

COMPLETE BACKUP OF

WWW.TRUEBAHAI.COM

ORTHODOX BAHÁ'Í FAITH

TRUE BAHÁ'Í FAITH

TrueBahai Archive (one snapshot per URL)

Table of Contents

- Principle 5:Religion must be in accord with Science and Reason
- Principle 4:Religion must be the Cause of Unity
- The Twelve Principles of the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith
- Principle 9:Universal Education
- Principle 1: The Oneness of Mankind
- Principle 6:Equality of Men & Women
- Principle 10:Spiritual Solution of the Economic Problem
- Principle 3:The Foundation of all Religions is One
- Principle 12:International Tribunal
- http://truebahai.com:80/centraldocs.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/docs/KITAB-I-AHD.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/docs/Master-foretells.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/docs/abdul-baha-race-unity.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/docs/abdul-baha-universal-peace.html
- Bahá'u'lláh on the Origin of Conflict
- http://truebahai.com:80/docs/hungry.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/docs/intro_to_faith.htm
- http://truebahai.com:80/docs/maxwell-guardianship.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/docs/openletter.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/docs/peaceplan.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/docs/relevance.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/docs/sept11.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/docs/truefriend.html
- TRUEBAHAI.comThe TRUTH about the Bahá'í Faith
- http://truebahai.com:80/docs/violation.htm
- Orthodox Bahá'í Faith - FAQ
- FAQ About Covenant Breakers
- FAQ About the Living Guardian
- FAQ About the Orthodox Baha'i Faith
- Heterodox Believers' Questions About Investigating the Claims of the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith
- Newly-Declared Orthodox Believers' Questions
- http://truebahai.com:80/faq/toc.htm
- http://truebahai.com:80/general.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/great-vio-links.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/hoc/attendant.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/hoc/index.html

- http://truebahai.com:80/hoc/interp-domain.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/index.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/links.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/living-guardians.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/misc.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/official.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/peace.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/personal.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/remey/
- http://truebahai.com:80/remey/index.html
- The Great Catastrophe
- http://truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/how-jm.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/how-mr.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/how-se.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/what-jm.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/what-mr.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/what-se.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/why-jm.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/why-mr.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/why-se.html
- http://truebahai.com:80/spiritual/index.html
- TRUEBAHAI.comBlessed is the spot,and the house,and the place, and the city,and the heart,and the mountain,and the refuge, and the cave,and the valley,and the land,and the sea, and the island,and the meadowwhere mention of Godhath been made,and His praise glorified-Bahá'u'lláh
- TRUEBAHAI.comTHE HIDDEN WORDS OF BAHÁ'U'LLÁHArabicPersianArabicHE IS THE GLORY OF GLORIESThis is that which hath descended from the realm of glory, uttered by the tongue of power and might, and revealed unto the Prophets of old. We have taken the inner essence thereof and clothed it in the garment of brevity, as a token of grace unto the righteous, that they may stand faithful unto the Covenant of God, may fulfill in their lives His trust, and in the realm of spirit obtain the gem of Divine virtue.1. O SON OF SPIRIT!My first counsel is this: Possess a pure, kindly and radiant heart, that thine may be a sovereignty ancient, imperishable and everlasting.2. O SON OF SPIRIT!The best beloved of all things in My sight is Justice; turn not away therefrom if thou desirest Me, and neglect it not that I may confide in thee. By its aid thou shalt see with thine own eyes and not through the eyes of others, and shalt know of thine own knowledge and not through the knowledge of thy neighbor. Ponder this in thy heart; how it behooveth thee to be. Verily justice is My gift to thee and the sign of My loving-kindness. Set it then before thine eyes.3. O SON OF MAN! Veiled in My immemorial being and in the ancient eternity of My essence, I knew My love for thee; therefore I created thee, have engraved on thee Mine image and revealed to thee My beauty.4. O SON OF MAN!I loved thy creation, hence I created thee. Wherefore, do thou love Me, that I may name thy name and fill thy soul with the spirit of life.5. O SON OF BEING! Love Me, that I may love thee. If thou lovest Me not, My love can in no wise reach thee. Know this, O servant.6. O SON OF BEING!Thy Paradise is My love; thy heavenly home, reunion with Me. Enter therein and tarry not. This is that which hath been destined for thee in Our kingdom above and Our exalted dominion.7. O SON OF MAN!If thou lovest Me, turn away from thyself; and if thou seekest My pleasure, regard not thine own; that thou mayest die in Me and I may eternally live in thee.8. O SON OF SPIRIT!There is no peace for thee save by renouncing thyself and turning unto Me; for it behooveth thee to glory in My name, not in thine own; to put thy trust in Me and not in thyself, since I desire to be loved alone and above all that is.9. O SON OF BEING!My love is My stronghold; he that entereth therein is safe and secure, and he that turneth away shall surely stray and perish.10. O SON OF UTTERANCE! Thou art My stronghold; enter therein that thou mayest abide in safety. My love is in thee, know it, that thou mayest find Me near unto thee.11. O SON OF BEING!Thou art My lamp and My light is in thee. Get thou from it thy radiance and seek none other than Me. For I have created thee rich and have bountifully shed My favor upon thee.12. O SON OF BEING!With the hands of power I made thee and with the fingers of strength I created thee; and within thee have I placed the essence of My light. Be thou content with it and seek naught else, for My work is perfect and My command is binding. Question it not, nor have a doubt thereof.13. O SON OF SPIRIT!I created thee rich, why dost thou bring thyself down to poverty? Noble I made thee, wherewith dost thou abase thyself? Out of the essence of knowledge I gave thee being, why seekest thou enlightenment from anyone beside Me? Out of the clay of love I molded thee, how dost thou busy thyself with another? Turn thy sight unto thyself, that thou mayest find Me standing within thee, mighty, powerful and self-subsisting.14. O SON OF MAN!Thou art My dominion and My dominion perisheth not; wherefore fearest thou thy perishing? Thou art My light and My light shall never be extinguished; why dost thou dread extinction? Thou art My glory and My glory fadeth not; thou art My robe and My robe shall never be outworn. Abide then in thy love for Me, that thou mayest find Me in the realm of glory.15. O SON OF UTTERANCE!Turn thy face unto Mine and renounce all save Me; for My sovereignty endureth and My dominion perisheth not. If thou seekest another than Me, yea, if thou searchest the universe for evermore, thy quest will be in vain.16. O SON OF LIGHT! Forget all save Me and commune with My spirit. This is of the essence of My command, therefore turn unto it.17. O SON OF MAN!Be thou content with Me and seek no other helper. For none but Me can ever suffice thee.18. O SON OF SPIRIT!Ask not of Me that which We desire not for thee, then be content with what We have ordained for thy sake, for this is that which profiteth thee, if therewith thou dost content thyself.19. O SON OF THE WONDROUS VISION!I have breathed within thee a breath of My own Spirit, that thou mayest be My lover. Why hast thou forsaken Me and sought a beloved other than Me?20. O SON OF SPIRIT!My claim on thee is great, it cannot be forgotten. My grace to thee is plenteous, it cannot be veiled. My love has made in thee its home, it cannot be concealed. My light is manifest to thee, it cannot be obscured.21. O SON OF MAN!Upon the tree of effulgent glory I have hung for thee the choicest fruits, wherefore hast thou turned away and contented thyself with that which is less good? Return then unto that which is better for thee in the realm on high.22. O SON OF SPIRIT!Noble have I created thee, yet thou hast abased thyself. Rise then unto that for which thou wast created.23. O SON OF THE SUPREME!To the eternal I call thee, yet thou dost seek that which perisheth. What hath made thee turn away from Our desire and seek thine own?24. O SON OF MAN!Transgress not thy limits, nor claim that which beseemeth thee not. Prostrate thyself before the countenance of thy God, the Lord of might and power. 25. O SON OF SPIRIT!Vaunt not thyself over the poor, for I lead him on his way and behold thee in thy evil plight and confound thee for evermore.26. O SON OF BEING!How couldst thou forget thine own faults and busy thyself with the faults of others? Whoso doeth this is accursed of Me.27. O SON OF MAN!Breathe not the sins of others so long as thou art thyself a sinner. Shouldst thou transgress this command, accursed wouldst thou be, and to this I bear witness.28. O SON OF SPIRIT!Know thou of a truth: He that biddeth men be just and himself committeth iniquity is not of Me, even though he bear My name.29. O SON OF BEING! Ascribe not to any soul that which thou wouldst not have ascribed to thee, and say not that which thou doest not. This is My command unto thee, do thou observe it.30. O SON OF MAN! Deny not My servant should he ask anything from thee, for his face is My face; be then abashed before Me.31. O SON OF BEING!Bring thyself to account each day ere thou art summoned to a reckoning; for death, unheralded, shall come upon thee and thou shalt be called to give account for thy deeds.32. O SON OF THE SUPREME!I have made death a messenger of joy to thee. Wherefore dost thou grieve? I made the light to shed on thee its splendor. Why dost thou veil thyself therefrom?33. O SON OF SPIRIT!With the joyful tidings of light I hail thee: rejoice! To the court of holiness I summon thee; abide therein that thou mayest live in peace for evermore.34. O SON OF SPIRIT!The spirit of holiness beareth unto thee the joyful tidings of reunion; wherefore dost thou grieve? The spirit of power confirmeth thee in His cause; why dost thou veil thyself? The light of His countenance doth lead thee; how canst thou go astray?35. O SON OF MAN!Sorrow not save that thou art far from Us. Rejoice not save that thou art drawing near and returning unto Us.36. O SON OF MAN! Rejoice in the gladness of thine heart, that thou mayest be worthy to meet Me and to mirror forth My beauty.37. O SON OF MAN!Divest not thyself of My beauteous robe, and forfeit not thy portion from My wondrous fountain, lest thou shouldst thirst for evermore.38. O SON OF BEING!Walk in My statutes for love of Me and deny thyself that which thou desirest if thou seekest My pleasure.39. O SON OF MAN!Neglect not My commandments if thou lovest My beauty, and forget not My counsels if thou wouldst attain My good pleasure.40. O SON OF MAN!Wert thou to speed through the immensity of space and traverse the expanse of heaven, yet thou wouldst find no rest save in submission to Our command and humbleness before Our Face.41. O SON OF MAN!Magnify My cause that I may reveal unto thee the mysteries of My greatness and shine upon thee with the light of eternity.42. O SON OF MAN!Humble thyself before Me, that I may graciously visit thee. Arise for the triumph of My cause, that while yet on earth thou mayest obtain the victory.43. O SON OF BEING!Make mention of Me on My earth, that in My heaven I may remember thee, thus shall Mine eyes and thine be solaced.44. O SON OF THE THRONE!Thy hearing is My hearing, hear thou therewith. Thy sight is My sight, do thou see therewith, that in thine inmost soul thou mayest testify unto My exalted sanctity, and I within Myself may bear witness unto an exalted station for thee.45. O SON OF BEING!Seek a martyr's death in My path, content with My pleasure and thankful for that which I ordain, that thou mayest repose with Me beneath the canopy of majesty behind the tabernacle of glory.46. O SON OF MAN!Ponder and reflect. Is it thy wish to die upon thy bed, or to shed thy life-blood on the dust, a martyr in My path, and so become the manifestation of My command and the revealer of My light in the highest paradise? Judge thou aright, O servant!47. O SON OF MAN!By My beauty! To tinge thy hair with thy blood is greater in My sight than the creation of the universe and the light of both worlds. Strive then to attain this, O servant!48. O SON OF MAN!For everything there is a sign. The sign of love is fortitude under My decree and patience under My trials.49. O SON OF MAN!The true lover yearneth for tribulation even as doth the rebel for forgiveness and the sinful for mercy.50. O

SON OF MAN!If adversity befall thee not in My path, how canst thou walk in the ways of them that are content with My pleasure? If trials afflict thee not in thy longing to meet Me, how wilt thou attain the light in thy love for My beauty?51. O SON OF MAN!My calamity is My providence, outwardly it is fire and vengeance, but inwardly it is light and mercy. Hasten thereunto that thou mayest become an eternal light and an immortal spirit. This is My command unto thee, do thou observe it.52. O SON OF MAN!Should prosperity befall thee, rejoice not, and should abasement come upon thee, grieve not, for both shall pass away and be no more.53. O SON OF BEING!If poverty overtake thee, be not sad; for in time the Lord of wealth shall visit thee. Fear not abasement, for glory shall one day rest on thee.54. O SON OF BEING!If thine heart be set upon this eternal, imperishable dominion, and this ancient, everlasting life, forsake this mortal and fleeting sovereignty.55. O SON OF BEING!Busy not thyself with this world, for with fire We test the gold, and with gold We test Our servants.56. O SON OF MAN!Thou dost wish for gold and I desire thy freedom from it. Thou thinkest thyself rich in its possession, and I recognize thy wealth in thy sanctity therefrom. By My life! This is My knowledge, and that is thy fancy; how can My way accord with thine?57. O SON OF MAN!Bestow My wealth upon My poor, that in heaven thou mayest draw from stores of unfading splendor and treasures of imperishable glory. But by My life! To offer up thy soul is a more glorious thing couldst thou but see with Mine eye.58. O SON OF MAN!The temple of being is My throne; cleanse it of all things, that there I may be established and there I may abide.59. O SON OF BEING!Thy heart is My home; sanctify it for My descent. Thy spirit is My place of revelation; cleanse it for My manifestation.60. O SON OF MAN!Put thy hand into My bosom, that I may rise above thee, radiant and resplendent.61. O SON OF MAN!Ascend unto My heaven, that thou mayest obtain the joy of reunion, and from the chalice of imperishable glory quaff the peerless wine.62. O SON OF MAN!Many a day hath passed over thee whilst thou hast busied thyself with thy fancies and idle imaginings. How long art thou to slumber on thy bed? Lift up thy head from slumber, for the Sun hath risen to the zenith, haply it may shine upon thee with the light of beauty.63. O SON OF MAN!The light hath shone on thee from the horizon of the sacred Mount and the spirit of enlightenment hath breathed in the Sinai of thy heart. Wherefore, free thyself from the veils of idle fancies and enter into My court, that thou mayest be fit for everlasting life and worthy to meet Me. Thus may death not come upon thee, neither weariness nor trouble.64. O SON OF MAN!My eternity is My creation, I have created it for thee. Make it the garment of thy temple. My unity is My handiwork; I have wrought it for thee; clothe thyself therewith, that thou mayest be to all eternity the revelation of My everlasting being.65. O SON OF MAN!My majesty is My gift to thee, and My grandeur the token of My mercy unto thee. That which beseemeth Me none shall understand, nor can anyone recount. Verily, I have preserved it in My hidden storehouses and in the treasuries of My command, as a sign of My loving-kindness unto My servants and My mercy unto My people.66. O CHILDREN OF THE DIVINE AND INVISIBLE ESSENCE!Ye shall be hindered from loving Me and souls shall be perturbed as they make mention of Me. For minds cannot grasp Me nor hearts contain Me.67. O SON OF BEAUTY!By My spirit and by My favor! By My mercy and by My beauty! All that I have revealed unto thee with the tongue of power, and have written for thee with the pen of might, hath been in accordance with thy capacity and understanding, not with My state and the melody of My voice.68. O CHILDREN OF MEN!Know ye not why We created you all from the same dust? That no one should exalt himself over the other. Ponder at all times in your hearts how ye were created. Since We have created you all from one same substance it is incumbent on you to be even as one soul, to walk with the same feet, eat with the same mouth and dwell in the same land, that from your inmost being, by your deeds and actions, the signs of oneness and the essence of detachment may be made manifest. Such is My counsel to you, O concourse of light! Heed ye this counsel that ye may obtain the fruit of holiness from the tree of wondrous glory.69. O YE SONS OF SPIRIT!Ye are My treasury, for in you I have treasured the pearls of My mysteries and the gems of My knowledge. Guard them from the strangers amidst My servants and from the ungodly amongst My people.70. O SON OF HIM THAT STOOD BY HIS OWN ENTITY IN THE KINGDOM OF HIS SELF!Know thou, that I have wafted unto thee all the fragrances of holiness, have fully revealed to thee My word, have perfected through thee My bounty and have desired for thee that which I have desired for My Self. Be then content with My pleasure and thankful unto Me.71. O SON OF MAN!Write all that We have revealed unto thee with the ink of light upon the tablet of thy spirit. Should this not be in thy power, then make thine ink of the essence of thy heart. If this thou canst not do, then write with that crimson ink that hath been shed in My path. Sweeter indeed is this to Me than all else, that its light may endure for ever.ArabicPersianPersianIn the Name of the Lord of Utterance, The Mighty.1. O YE PEOPLE THAT HAVE MINDS TO KNOW AND EARS TO HEAR!The first call of the Beloved is this: O mystic nightingale! Abide not but in the rose-garden of the spirit. O messenger of the Solomon of love! Seek thou no shelter except in the Sheba of the well-beloved, and O immortal phoenix! dwell not save on the mount of faithfulness. Therein is thy habitation, if on the wings of thy soul thou soarest to the realm of the infinite and seekest to attain thy goal.2. O SON OF SPIRIT!The bird seeketh its nest; the nightingale the charm of the rose; whilst those birds, the hearts of men, content with transient dust, have strayed far from their eternal nest, and with eyes turned towards the slough of heedlessness are bereft of the glory of the divine presence. Alas! How strange and pitiful; for a mere cupful, they have turned away from the billowing seas of the Most High, and remained far from the most effulgent horizon.3. O FRIEND!In the garden of thy heart plant naught but the rose of love, and from the nightingale of affection and desire loosen not thy hold. Treasure the companionship of the righteous and eschew all fellowship with the ungodly.4. O SON OF JUSTICE!Whither can a lover go but to the land of his beloved? and what seeker findeth rest away from his heart's desire? To the true lover reunion is life, and separation is death. His breast is void of patience and his heart hath no peace. A myriad lives he would forsake to hasten to the abode of his beloved.5. O SON OF DUST!Verily I say unto thee: Of all men the most negligent is he that disputeth idly and seeketh to advance himself over his brother. Say, O brethren! Let deeds, not words, be your adorning.6. O SON OF EARTH!Know, verily, the heart wherein the least remnant of envy yet lingers, shall never attain My everlasting dominion, nor inhale the sweet savors of holiness breathing from My kingdom of sanctity.7. O SON OF LOVE!Thou art but one step away from the glorious heights above and from the celestial tree of love. Take thou one pace and with the next advance into the immortal realm and enter the pavilion of eternity. Give ear then to that which hath been revealed by the pen of glory.8. O SON OF GLORY!Be swift in the path of holiness, and enter the heaven of communion with Me. Cleanse thy heart with the burnish of the spirit, and hasten to the court of the Most High.9. O FLEETING SHADOW!Pass beyond the baser stages of doubt and rise to the exalted heights of certainty. Open the eye of truth, that thou mayest behold the veilless Beauty and exclaim: Hallowed be the Lord, the most excellent of all creators!10. O SON OF DESIRE!Give ear unto this: Never shall mortal eye recognize the everlasting Beauty, nor the lifeless heart delight in aught but in the withered bloom. For like seeketh like, and taketh pleasure in the company of its kind.11. O SON OF DUST!Blind thine eyes, that thou mayest behold My beauty; stop thine ears, that thou mayest hearken unto the sweet melody of My voice; empty thyself of all learning, that thou mayest partake of My knowledge; and sanctify thyself from riches, that thou mayest obtain a lasting share from the ocean of My eternal wealth. Blind thine eyes, that is, to all save My beauty; stop thine ears to all save My word; empty thyself of all learning save the knowledge of Me; that with a clear vision, a pure heart and an attentive ear thou mayest enter the court of My holiness.12. O MAN OF TWO VISIONS!Close one eye and open the other. Close one to the world and all that is therein, and open the other to the hallowed beauty of the Beloved.13. O MY CHILDREN!I fear lest, bereft of the melody of the dove of heaven, ye will sink back to the shades of utter loss, and, never having gazed upon the beauty of the rose, return to water and clay.14. O FRIENDS!Abandon not the everlasting beauty for a beauty that must die, and set not your affections on this mortal world of dust.15. O SON OF SPIRIT!The time cometh, when the nightingale of holiness will no longer unfold the inner mysteries and ye will all be bereft of the celestial melody and of the voice from on high.16. O ESSENCE OF NEGLIGENCE!Myriads of mystic tongues find utterance in one speech, and myriads of hidden mysteries are revealed in a single melody; yet, alas, there is no ear to hear, nor heart to understand.17. O COMRADES! The gates that open on the Placeless stand wide and the habitation of the loved one is adorned with the lovers' blood, yet all but a few remain bereft of this celestial city, and even of these few, none but the smallest handful hath been found with a pure heart and sanctified spirit.18. O YE DWELLERS IN THE HIGHEST PARADISE!Proclaim unto the children of assurance that within the realms of holiness, nigh unto the celestial paradise, a new garden hath appeared, round which circle the denizens of the realm on high and the immortal dwellers of the exalted paradise. Strive, then, that ye may attain that station, that ye may unravel the mysteries of love from its wind-flowers and learn the secret of divine and consummate wisdom from its eternal fruits. Solaced are the eyes of them that enter and abide therein!19. O MY FRIENDS!Have ye forgotten that true and radiant morn, when in those hallowed and blessed surroundings ye were all gathered in My presence beneath the shade of the tree of life, which is planted in the all-glorious paradise? Awe-struck ye listened as I gave utterance to these three most holy words: O friends! Prefer not your will to Mine, never desire that which I have not desired for you, and approach Me not with lifeless hearts, defiled with worldly desires and cravings. Would ye but sanctify your souls, ye would at this present hour recall that place and those surroundings, and the truth of My utterance should be made evident unto all of you.In the eighth of the most holy lines, in the fifth Tablet of Paradise, He saith:20. O YE THAT ARE LYING AS DEAD ON THE COUCH OF HEEDLESSNESS!Ages have passed and your precious lives are well-nigh ended, yet not a single breath of purity hath reached Our court of holiness from you. Though immersed in the ocean of misbelief, yet with your lips ye profess the one true faith of God. Him whom I abhor ye have loved, and of My foe ye have made a friend. Notwithstanding, ye walk on My earth complacent and self-satisfied, heedless that My earth is weary of you and everything within it shunneth you. Were ye but to open your eyes, ye would, in truth, prefer a myriad griefs unto this joy, and would count death itself better than this life.21. O MOVING FORM OF DUST!I desire communion with thee, but thou wouldst put no trust in Me. The sword of thy rebellion hath felled the tree of thy hope. At all times I am near unto thee, but thou art ever far from Me. Imperishable glory I have chosen for thee, yet boundless shame thou hast chosen for thyself. While there is yet time, return, and lose not thy chance.22. O SON OF DESIRE!The learned and the wise have for long years striven and failed to attain the presence of the All-Glorious; they have spent their lives in search of Him, yet did not behold the beauty of His countenance. Thou without the least effort didst attain thy goal, and without search hast obtained the object of thy quest. Yet, notwithstanding, thou didst remain so wrapt in the veil of self, that thine eyes beheld not the beauty of the Beloved, nor did thy hand touch the hem of His robe. Ye that have eyes, behold and wonder.23. O DWELLERS IN THE CITY OF LOVE!Mortal blasts have beset the everlasting candle, and the beauty of the celestial Youth is veiled in the darkness of dust. The chief of the monarchs of love is wronged by the people of tyranny and the dove of holiness lies prisoned in the talons of owls. The dwellers in the pavilion of glory and the celestial concourse bewail and lament, while ye repose in the realm of negligence, and esteem yourselves as of the true friends. How vain are your imaginings!24. O YE THAT ARE FOOLISH, YET HAVE A NAME TO BE WISE!Wherefore do ye wear the guise of shepherds, when inwardly ye have become wolves, intent upon My flock? Ye are even as the star, which riseth ere the dawn, and which, though it seem radiant and luminous, leadeth the wayfarers of My city astray into the paths of perdition.25. O YE SEEMING FAIR YET INWARDLY FOUL!Ye are like clear but bitter water, which to outward seeming is crystal pure but of which, when tested by the divine Assayer, not a drop is accepted. Yea, the sun beam falls alike upon the dust and the mirror, yet differ they in reflection even as doth the star from the earth: nay, immeasurable is the difference!26. O MY FRIEND IN WORD!Ponder awhile. Hast thou ever heard that friend and foe should abide in one heart? Cast out then the stranger, that the Friend may enter His home.27. O SON OF DUST!All that is in heaven and earth I have ordained for thee, except the human heart, which I have made the habitation of My beauty and glory; yet thou didst give My home and dwelling to another than Me; and whenever the manifestation of My holiness sought His own abode, a stranger found He there, and, homeless, hastened unto the sanctuary of the Beloved. Notwithstanding I have concealed thy secret and desired not thy shame.28. O ESSENCE OF DESIRE!At many a dawn have I turned from the realms of the Placeless unto thine abode, and found thee on the bed of ease busied with others than Myself. Thereupon, even as the flash of the spirit, I returned to the realms of celestial glory and breathed it not in My retreats above unto the hosts of holiness.29. O SON OF BOUNTY!Out of the wastes of nothingness, with the clay of My command I made thee to appear, and have ordained for thy training every atom in existence and the essence of all created things. Thus, ere thou didst issue from thy mother's womb, I destined for thee two founts of gleaming milk, eyes to watch over thee, and hearts to love thee. Out of My loving-kindness, 'neath the shade of My mercy I nurtured thee, and guarded thee by the essence of My grace and favor. And My purpose in all this was that thou mightest attain My everlasting dominion and become worthy of My invisible bestowals. And yet heedless thou didst remain, and when fully grown, thou didst neglect all My bounties and occupied thyself with thine idle imaginings, in such wise that thou didst become wholly forgetful, and, turning away from the portals of the Friend didst abide within the courts of My enemy.30. O BOND SLAVE OF THE WORLD!Many a dawn hath the breeze of My loving-kindness wafted over thee and found thee upon the bed of heedlessness fast asleep. Bewailing then thy plight it returned whence it came.31. O SON OF EARTH!Wouldst thou have Me, seek none other than Me; and wouldst thou gaze upon My beauty, close thine eyes to the world and all that is therein; for My will and the will of another than Me, even as fire and water, cannot dwell together in one heart.32. O BEFRIENDED STRANGER!The candle of thine heart is lighted by the hand of My power, quench it not with the contrary winds of self and passion. The healer of all thine ills is remembrance of Me, forget it not. Make My love thy treasure and cherish it even as thy very sight and life.33. O MY BROTHER!Hearken to the delightsome words of My honeyed tongue, and quaff the stream of mystic holiness from My sugar-shedding lips. Sow the seeds of My divine wisdom in the pure soil of thy heart, and water them with the water of certitude, that the hyacinths of My knowledge and wisdom may spring up fresh and green in the sacred city of thy heart.34. O DWELLERS OF MY PARADISE!With the hands of loving-kindness I have planted in the holy garden of paradise the young tree of your love and friendship, and have watered it with the goodly showers of My tender grace; now that the hour of its fruiting is come, strive that it may be protected, and be not consumed with the flame of desire and passion.35. O MY FRIENDS! Quench ye the lamp of error, and kindle within your hearts the everlasting torch of divine guidance. For ere long the assayers of mankind shall, in the holy presence of the Adored, accept naught but purest virtue and deeds of stainless holiness.36. O SON OF DUST!The wise are they that speak not unless they obtain a hearing, even as the cup-bearer, who proffereth not his cup till he findeth a seeker, and the lover who crieth not out from the depths of his heart until he gazeth upon the beauty of his beloved. Wherefore sow the seeds of wisdom and knowledge in the pure soil of the heart, and keep them hidden, till the hyacinths of divine wisdom spring from the heart and not from mire and clay.In the first line of the Tablet it is recorded and written, and within the sanctuary of the tabernacle of God is hidden:37. O MY SERVANT!Abandon not for that which perisheth an everlasting dominion, and cast not away celestial sovereignty for a worldly desire. This is the river of everlasting life that hath flowed from the well-spring of the pen of the merciful; well is it with them that drink!38. O SON OF SPIRIT!Burst thy cage asunder, and even as the phoenix of love soar into the firmament of holiness. Renounce thyself and, filled with the spirit of mercy, abide in the realm of celestial sanctity.39. O OFFSPRING OF DUST!Be not content with the ease of a passing day, and deprive not thyself of everlasting rest. Barter not the garden of eternal delight for the dust-heap of a mortal world. Up from thy prison ascend unto the glorious meads above, and from thy mortal cage wing thy flight unto the paradise of the Placeless.40. O MY SERVANT!Free thyself from the fetters of this world, and loose thy soul from the prison of self. Seize thy chance, for it will come to thee no more.41. O SON OF MY HANDMAID!Didst thou behold immortal sovereignty, thou wouldst strive to pass from this fleeting world. But to conceal the one from thee and to reveal the other is a mystery which none but the pure in heart can comprehend.42. O MY SERVANT!Purge thy heart from malice and, innocent of envy, enter the divine court of holiness.43. O MY FRIENDS!Walk ye in the ways of the good pleasure of the Friend, and know that His pleasure is in the pleasure of His creatures. That is: no man should enter the house of his friend save at his friend's pleasure, nor lay hands upon his treasures nor prefer his own will to his friend's, and in no wise seek an advantage over him. Ponder this, ye that have insight!44. O COMPANION OF MY THRONE!Hear no evil, and see no evil, abase not thyself, neither sigh and weep. Speak no evil, that thou mayest not hear it spoken unto thee, and magnify not the faults of others that thine own faults may not appear great; and wish not the abasement of anyone, that thine own abasement be not exposed. Live then the days of thy life, that are less than a fleeting moment, with thy mind stainless, thy heart unsullied, thy thoughts pure, and thy nature sanctified, so that, free and content, thou mayest put away this mortal frame, and repair unto the mystic paradise and abide in the eternal kingdom for evermore.45. ALAS! ALAS! O LOVERS OF WORLDLY DESIRE!Even as the swiftness of lightning ye have passed by the Beloved One, and have set your hearts on satanic fancies. Ye bow the knee before your vain imagining, and call it truth. Ye turn your eyes towards the thorn, and name it a flower. Not a pure breath have ye breathed, nor hath the breeze of detachment been wafted from the meadows of your hearts. Ye have cast to the winds the loving counsels of the Beloved and have effaced them utterly from the tablet of your hearts, and even as the beasts of the field, ye move and have your being within the pastures of desire and passion.46. O BRETHREN IN THE PATH!Wherefore have ye neglected the mention of the Loved One, and kept remote from His holy presence? The essence of beauty is within the peerless pavilion, set upon the throne of glory, whilst ye busy yourselves with idle contentions. The sweet savors of holiness are breathing and the breath of bounty is wafted, yet ye are all sorely afflicted and deprived thereof. Alas for you and for them that walk in your ways and follow in your footsteps!47. O CHILDREN OF DESIRE!Put away the garment of vainglory, and divest yourselves of the attire of haughtiness.In the third of the most holy lines writ and recorded in the Ruby Tablet by the pen of the unseen this is revealed:48. O BRETHREN!Be forbearing one with another and set not your affections on things below. Pride not yourselves in your glory, and be not ashamed of abasement. By My beauty! I have created all things from dust, and to dust will I return them again.49. O CHILDREN OF DUST! Tell the rich of the midnight sighing of the poor, lest heedlessness lead them into the path of destruction, and deprive them of the Tree of Wealth. To give and to be generous are attributes of Mine; well is it with him that adorneth himself with My virtues.50. O QUINTESSENCE OF PASSION!Put away all covetousness and seek contentment; for the covetous hath ever been deprived, and the contented hath ever been loved and praised.51. O SON OF MY HANDMAID!Be not troubled in poverty nor confident in riches, for poverty is followed by riches, and riches are followed by poverty. Yet to be poor in all save God is a wondrous gift, belittle not the value thereof, for in the end it will make thee rich in God, and thus thou shalt know the meaning of the utterance, "In truth ye are the poor," and the holy words, "God is the all-possessing," shall even as the true morn break forth gloriously resplendent upon the horizon of the lover's heart, and abide secure on the throne of wealth.52. O CHILDREN OF NEGLIGENCE AND PASSION!Ye have suffered My enemy to enter My house and have cast out My friend, for ye have enshrined the love of another than Me in your hearts. Give ear to the sayings of the Friend and turn towards His paradise. Worldly friends, seeking their own good, appear to love one the other, whereas the true Friend hath loved and doth love you for your own sakes; indeed He hath suffered for your guidance countless afflictions. Be not disloyal to such a Friend, nay rather hasten unto Him. Such is the daystar of the word of truth and faithfulness, that hath dawned above the horizon of the pen of the Lord of all names. Open your ears that ye may hearken unto the word of God, the Help in peril, the Self-existent. 53. O YE THAT PRIDE YOURSELVES ON MORTAL RICHES!Know ye in truth that wealth is a mighty barrier between the seeker and his desire, the lover and his beloved. The rich, but for a few, shall in no wise attain the court of His presence nor enter the city of content and resignation. Well is it then with him, who, being rich, is not hindered by his riches from the eternal kingdom, nor deprived by them of imperishable dominion. By the Most Great Name! The splendor of such a wealthy man shall illuminate the dwellers of heaven even as the sun enlightens the people of the earth!54. O YE RICH ONES ON EARTH!The poor in your midst are My trust; guard ye My trust, and be not intent only on your own ease.55. O SON OF PASSION!Cleanse thyself from the defilement of riches and in perfect peace advance into the realm of poverty; that from the well-spring of detachment thou mayest quaff the wine of immortal life.56. O MY SON!The company of the ungodly increaseth sorrow, whilst fellowship with the righteous cleanseth the rust from off the heart. He that seeketh to commune with God, let him betake himself to the companionship of His loved ones; and he that desireth to hearken unto the word of God, let him give ear to the words of His chosen ones.57. O SON OF DUST!Beware! Walk not with the ungodly and seek not fellowship with him, for such companionship turneth the radiance of the heart into infernal fire.58. O SON OF MY HANDMAID!Wouldst thou seek the grace of the Holy Spirit, enter into fellowship with the righteous, for he hath drunk the cup of eternal life at the hands of the immortal Cup-bearer and even as the true morn doth quicken and illumine the hearts of the dead.59. O HEEDLESS ONES!Think not the secrets of hearts are hidden, nay, know ye of a certainty that in clear characters they are engraved and are openly manifest in the holy Presence.60. O FRIENDS!Verily I say, whatsoever ye have concealed within your hearts is to Us open and manifest as the day; but that it is hidden is of Our grace and favor, and not of your deserving. 61. O SON OF MAN!A dewdrop out of the fathomless ocean of My mercy I have shed upon the peoples of the world, yet found none turn thereunto, inasmuch as every one hath turned away from the celestial wine of unity unto the foul dregs of impurity, and, content with mortal cup, hath put away the chalice of immortal beauty. Vile is that wherewith he is contented.62. O SON OF DUST!Turn not away thine eyes from the matchless wine of the immortal Beloved, and open them not to foul and mortal dregs. Take from the hands of the divine Cup-bearer the chalice of immortal life, that all wisdom may be thine, and that thou mayest hearken unto the mystic voice calling from the realm of the invisible. Cry aloud, ye that are of low aim! Wherefore have ye turned away from My holy and immortal wine unto evanescent water?63. O YE PEOPLES OF THE WORLD!Know, verily, that an unforeseen calamity followeth you, and grievous retribution awaiteth you. Think not that which ye have committed hath been effaced in My sight. By My beauty! All your doings hath My pen graven with open characters upon tablets of chrysolite.64. O OPPRESSORS ON EARTH!Withdraw your hands from tyranny, for I have pledged Myself not to forgive any man's injustice. This is My covenant which I have irrevocably decreed in the preserved tablet and sealed with My seal.65. O REBELLIOUS ONES!My forbearance hath emboldened you and My long-suffering hath made you negligent, in such wise that ye have spurred on the fiery charger of passion into perilous ways that lead unto destruction. Have ye thought Me heedless or that I was unaware?66. O EMIGRANTS!The tongue I have designed for the mention of Me, defile it not with detraction. If the fire of self overcome you, remember your own faults and not the faults of My creatures, inasmuch as every one of you knoweth his own self better than he knoweth others.67. O CHILDREN OF FANCY!Know, verily, that while the radiant dawn breaketh above the horizon of eternal holiness, the satanic secrets and deeds done in the gloom of night shall be laid bare and manifest before the peoples of the world.68. O WEED THAT SPRINGETH OUT OF DUST!Wherefore have not these soiled hands of thine touched first thine own garment, and why with thine heart defiled with desire and passion dost thou seek to commune with Me and to enter My sacred realm? Far, far are ye from that which ye desire.69. O CHILDREN OF ADAM!Holy words and pure and goodly deeds ascend unto the heaven of celestial glory.

Strive that your deeds may be cleansed from the dust of self and hypocrisy and find favor at the court of glory; for ere long the assayers of mankind shall, in the holy presence of the Adored One, accept naught but absolute virtue and deeds of stainless purity. This is the daystar of wisdom and of divine mystery that hath shone above the horizon of the divine will. Blessed are they that turn thereunto.70. O SON OF WORLDLINESS!Pleasant is the realm of being, wert thou to attain thereto; glorious is the domain of eternity, shouldst thou pass beyond the world of mortality; sweet is the holy ecstasy if thou drinkest of the mystic chalice from the hands of the celestial Youth. Shouldst thou attain this station, thou wouldst be freed from destruction and death, from toil and sin.71. O MY FRIENDS!Call ye to mind that covenant ye have entered into with Me upon Mount Paran, situate within the hallowed precincts of Zaman. I have taken to witness the concourse on high and the dwellers in the city of eternity, yet now none do I find faithful unto the covenant. Of a certainty pride and rebellion have effaced it from the hearts, in such wise that no trace thereof remaineth. Yet knowing this, I waited and disclosed it not.72. O MY SERVANT!Thou art even as a finely tempered sword concealed in the darkness of its sheath and its value hidden from the artificer's knowledge. Wherefore come forth from the sheath of self and desire that thy worth may be made resplendent and manifest unto all the world.73. O MY FRIEND!Thou art the daystar of the heavens of My holiness, let not the defilement of the world eclipse thy splendor. Rend asunder the veil of heedlessness, that from behind the clouds thou mayest emerge resplendent and array all things with the apparel of life.74. O CHILDREN OF VAINGLORY! For a fleeting sovereignty ye have abandoned My imperishable dominion, and have adorned yourselves with the gay livery of the world and made of it your boast. By My beauty! All will I gather beneath the one-colored covering of the dust and efface all these diverse colors save them that choose My own, and that is purging from every color.75. O CHILDREN OF NEGLIGENCE!Set not your affections on mortal sovereignty and rejoice not therein. Ye are even as the unwary bird that with full confidence warbleth upon the bough; till of a sudden the fowler Death throws it upon the dust, and the melody, the form and the color are gone, leaving not a trace. Wherefore take heed, O bondslaves of desire!76. O SON OF MY HANDMAID!Guidance hath ever been given by words, and now it is given by deeds. Every one must show forth deeds that are pure and holy, for words are the property of all alike, whereas such deeds as these belong only to Our loved ones. Strive then with heart and soul to distinguish yourselves by your deeds. In this wise We counsel you in this holy and resplendent tablet.77. O SON OF JUSTICE!In the night-season the beauty of the immortal Being hath repaired from the emerald height of fidelity unto the Sadratu'l-Muntaha, and wept with such a weeping that the concourse on high and the dwellers of the realms above wailed at His lamenting. Whereupon there was asked, Why the wailing and weeping? He made reply: As bidden I waited expectant upon the hill of faithfulness, yet inhaled not from them that dwell on earth the fragrance of fidelity. Then summoned to return I beheld, and lo! certain doves of holiness were sore tried within the claws of the dogs of earth. Thereupon the Maid of heaven hastened forth unveiled and resplendent from Her mystic mansion, and asked of their names, and all were told but one. And when urged, the first letter thereof was uttered, whereupon the dwellers of the celestial chambers rushed forth out of their habitation of glory. And whilst the second letter was pronounced they fell down, one and all, upon the dust. At that moment a voice was heard from the inmost shrine: "Thus far and no farther." Verily We bear witness to that which they have done and now are doing.78. O SON OF MY

HANDMAID!Quaff from the tongue of the merciful the stream of divine mystery, and behold from the dayspring of divine utterance the unveiled splendor of the daystar of wisdom. Sow the seeds of My divine wisdom in the pure soil of the heart, and water them with the waters of certitude, that the hyacinths of knowledge and wisdom may spring up fresh and green from the holy city of the heart.79. O SON OF DESIRE!How long wilt thou soar in the realms of desire? Wings have I bestowed upon thee, that thou mayest fly to the realms of mystic holiness and not the regions of satanic fancy. The comb, too, have I given thee that thou mayest dress My raven locks, and not lacerate My throat.80. O MY SERVANTS!Ye are the trees of My garden; ye must give forth goodly and wondrous fruits, that ye yourselves and others may profit therefrom. Thus it is incumbent on every one to engage in crafts and professions, for therein lies the secret of wealth, O men of understanding! For results depend upon means, and the grace of God shall be all-sufficient unto you. Trees that yield no fruit have been and will ever be for the fire.81. O MY SERVANT!The basest of men are they that yield no fruit on earth. Such men are verily counted as among the dead, nay better are the dead inthe sight of God than those idle and worthless souls.82. O MY SERVANT!The best of men are they that earn a livelihood by their calling and spend upon themselves and upon their kindred for the love of God, the Lord of all worlds.The mystic and wondrous Bride, hidden ere this beneath theveiling of utterance, hath now, by the grace of God and Hisdivine favor, been made manifest even as the resplendent lightshed by the beauty of the Beloved. I bear witness, O friends!that the favor is complete, the argument fulfilled, the proofmanifest and the evidence established. Let it now be seen whatyour endeavors in the path of detachment will reveal. In thiswise hath the divine favor been fully vouchsafed unto youand unto them that are in heaven and on earth. All praiseto God, the Lord of all Worlds.ArabicPersian

- TRUEBAHAI.comLauded be Thy name, O Lord my God! I testify that Thou wast a hidden Treasure wrapped within Thine immemorial Being and an impenetrable Mystery enshrined in Thine own Essence. Wishing to reveal Thyself, Thou didst call into being the Greater and the Lesser Worlds, and didst choose Man above all Thy creatures, and didst make Him a sign of both of these worlds, O Thou Who art our Lord, the Most Compassionate!Thou didst raise Him up to occupy Thy throne before all the people of Thy creation. Thou didst enable Him to unravel Thy mysteries, and to shine with the lights of Thine inspiration and Thy Revelation, and to manifest Thy names and Thine attributes. Through Him Thou didst adorn the preamble of the book of Thy creation, O Thou Who art the Ruler of the universe Thou hast fashioned!I bear witness that in His person solidity and fluidity have been joined and combined. Through His immovable constancy in Thy Cause, and His unwavering adherence to whatsoever Thou, in the plentitude of the light of Thy glory, didst unveil to His eyes, throughout the domains of Thy Revelation and creation, the souls of Thy servants were stirred up in their longing for Thy Kingdom, and the dwellers of Thy realms rushed forth to enter into Thy heavenly dominion. Through the restlessness He evinced in Thy path, the feet of all them that are devoted to Thee were steeled and confirmed to manifest Thy Cause amidst Thy creatures, and to demonstrate Thy sovereignty throughout Thy realm.How great, O my God, is this Thy most excellent handiwork, and how consummate Thy creation, which hath caused every understanding heart and mind to marvel! And when the set time was fulfilled, and what had been preordained came to pass, Thou didst unloose His tongue to praise Thee, and to lay bare Thy mysteries before all Thy creation, O Thou Who art the Possessor of all names, and the Fashioner of earth and heaven! Through Him all created things were made to glorify Thee, and to celebrate Thy praise, and every soul was directed towards the kingdomof Thy revelation and Thy sovereignty.At one time, Thou didst raise Him up, O my God, and didst attire Him with the ornament of the nameof Him Who conversed with Thee (Moses), anddidst through Him uncover all that Thy will haddecreed and Thine irrevocable purpose ordained. Atanother time, Thou didst adorn Him with the nameof Him Who was Thy Spirit (Jesus), and didst sendHim down out of the heaven of Thy will, for theedification of Thy people, infusing thereby the spiritof life into the hearts of the sincere among Thy servantsand the faithful among Thy creatures. Again,Thou didst reveal Him, decked forth by the name ofHim Who was Thy Friend (Muhammad), and causedHim to shine brightly above the horizon of Hijaz,as a token of Thy power and an evidence of Thymight. Through Him Thou didst send unto Thy servantswhat enabled them to scale the heights of Thyunity, and to yearn over the wonders of Thy manifoldknowledge and wisdom.I testify, O Thou Who art the Lord of the wholecreation, and the Desire of whosoever hath soughtThee, that, amidst Thy creatures, They resemble thesun which no matter how often it riseth and settethis still the one and the same sun. Whoso maketh anydistinction between any of Them hath truly failedto attain the ultimate purpose, and to reach the highestgoal, and hath been deprived of the mysteries ofunity and of the lights of sanctity and oneness. Itestify, moreover, that Thou hast decreed that noneon the face of the earth should equal Them, and noneof Thy creatures be able to be compared with any ofThem, in order that Thine own singleness and peerlessnessmight be recognized and established.Glorified, immeasurably glorified be Thy name,O my God! How can I ever befittingly mention Theeor sufficiently praise Thee, that Thou hast manifested Him by the power of Thy might, and caused Himto shine above the horizon of Thy will, and madeHim the Day-Spring of Thy signs, and the Dawning-Placeof the revelation of Thy names and Thine attributes?How bewilderingly mysterious, moreover, Omy God, is His nature and all that Thou hast infusedinto Him, through Thy strength and by the powerof Thy might! At one time He appeareth as the waterwhich is Life indeed, sent down out of the heaven ofThy grace, and poured forth from the clouds of Thymercy, that Thy creatures may be endued with newlife, and live as long as Thine own Kingdom endureth.Every drop of that water would suffice to quicken thedead, and to set their faces in the direction of Thyfavors and Thy gifts, and to rid them of all attachmentto aught else except Thee. At another time Herevealeth Himself as the Fire which Thou didst kindlein the tree of Thy unity, whose heat melted the heartsof Thine ardent lovers when He Who is the Day-Starof the world shone forth above the horizon of Iraq.I testify, O my God, that through Him the veils ofhuman fancy were burnt up, and the hearts of menwere set towards the scene of Thy most resplendentglory.I implore Thee, O Thou Who art the SupremeOrdainer, not to suffer me to be deprived of thebreezes which are wafted in Thy days, the dayswhereon the sweet smell of the raiment of Thy mercyhath been shed abroad. Neither do Thou keep meback from Thy most great Ocean, every drop ofwhich crieth out and saith: "Great is the blessednessthat awaiteth him who hath been awakened from hissleep by the breath of God which, from the sourceof His mercy, hath blown over all such of His creaturesas have set themselves towards Him!"Thou seest, O my Lord, how Thy servants are heldcaptive by their own selves and desires. Redeem themfrom their bondage, O my God, by the power of Thysovereignty and might, that they may turn towardsThee when He Who is the Revealer of Thy namesand attributes is manifested unto men.Cast upon this poor and desolate creature,

O myLord, the glance of Thy wealth, and flood his heartwith the beams of Thy knowledge, that he may apprehendthe verities of the unseen world, and discoverthe mysteries of Thy heavenly realm, and perceivethe signs and tokens of Thy kingdom, and beholdthe manifold revelations of this earthly life all setforth before the face of Him Who is the Revealer ofThine own Self. Direct, then, his eyes, O my God,towards the horizon of Thy loving-kindness, andmake steadfast his heart in its attachment to Thee,and unloose his tongue to praise Thee, and make himable to hold fast the cord of Thy love, and to clingto the hem of Thy bounteousness, and to proclaimThy name amidst Thy creatures, and to recount Thyvirtues throughout Thy realm, in such wise that noobstacle will deter him from turning to Thy name,the All-Bountiful, and no veil shut him out fromThee, in Whose hand is the dominion of utteranceand the kingdom of all names and attributes!Hold Thou the hand of this seeker who hath set hisface towards Thee, O my Lord, and draw him out ofthe depths of his vain imaginations, that the light ofcertainty may shine brightly above the horizon of hisheart in the days whereon the sun of the knowledge ofThy creatures hath been darkened through the shiningof the Day-Star of Thy glory; the days whereonthe moon of the world's wisdom hath been eclipsedthrough the appearance of Thy hidden knowledge,and the manifestation of Thy well-guarded secret,and the revelation of Thine enshrined mystery; thedays whereon the stars of men's doings have fallenthrough the rising of the orb of Thy unity and theshedding of the radiance of Thy transcendent oneness.I beg of Thee, O my God, by Thy most exaltedWord which Thou hast ordained as the Divine Elixirunto all who are in Thy realm, the Elixir throughwhose potency the crude metal of human life hathbeen transmuted into purest gold, O Thou in Whosehands are both the visible and invisible kingdoms, toordain that my choice be conformed to Thy choiceand my wish to Thy wish, that I may be entirelycontent with that which Thou didst desire, and bewholly satisfied with what Thou didst destine forme by Thy bounteousness and favor. Potent art Thouto do as Thou willest. Thou, in very truth, art theAll-Glorious, the All-Wise.Happy is the man who hath recognized Thee, anddiscovered the sweetness of Thy fragrance, and sethimself towards Thy kingdom, and tasted of thethings that have been perfected therein by Thy graceand favor. Great is the blessedness of him who hathacknowledged Thy most excellent majesty, and whomthe veils that have shut out the nations from Theehave not hindered from directing his eyes towardsThee, O Thou Who art the King of eternity and theQuickener of every moldering bone! Blessed, also, is hethat hath inhaled Thy sweet savors, and been carriedaway by Thine utterances in Thy days. Blessed, moreover,be the man that hath turned unto Thee, andwoe betide him that hath turned his back upon Thee.Praised be Thou, the Lord of the worlds!--Bahá'u'lláh

- TRUEBAHAI.comPrayer, Meditations, and Mystical Works of Bahá'u'lláh*noteSelectedPrayers, Meditations, and Mystical Works from Bahá'u'lláhPRAYERS AND TABLETS:Blessed is the SpotLauded be Thy NamePrayer for Americaby `Abdu´l-BahápPrayer for the GuardianPrayers for the DeadPrayers for All of God's ChildrenTablet of Purity by `Abdu'l-BahápMYSTICAL WORKSHidden Words of Bahá'u'lláhTablet of the Holy Mariner by Bahá'u'lláhMessage about the Holy Marinerby Joel B. Marangella, Third GuardianArticle about Bahá'u'lláh's The Seven Valleys and the Four Valleysby "Sharaf"ARTICLESGrace Will and Faith: Insights and Mediations on Scriptures and Writingsan e-book by I'an RoebuckThe Dynamics of Prayerby Ruth Moffett
- http://truebahai.com:80/third.html
- True Bahá'í

- The Twelve Principles of the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í

- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í

- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í

- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í

- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í

- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í

- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í

- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í

- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í

- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í

- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í

- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í

- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- http://www.truebahai.com/centraldocs.html
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- http://www.truebahai.com/docs/KITAB-I-AHD.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/docs/Master-foretells.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/docs/abdul-baha-race-unity.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/docs/abdul-baha-universal-peace.html
- Bahá'u'lláh on the Origin of Conflict
- http://www.truebahai.com/docs/hungry.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/docs/intro_to_faith.htm
- http://www.truebahai.com/docs/maxwell-guardianship.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/docs/openletter.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/docs/peaceplan.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/docs/relevance.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/docs/sept11.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/docs/truefriend.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/docs/violation.htm
- Orthodox Bahá'í Faith - FAQ
- Orthodox Bahá'í Faith - FAQ
- FAQ About Covenant Breakers
- FAQ About the Living Guardian
- FAQ About the Orthodox Baha'i Faith
- Heterodox Believers' Questions About Investigating the Claims of the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith

- Newly-Declared Orthodox Believers' Questions
- http://www.truebahai.com/faq/toc.htm
- http://www.truebahai.com/general.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/great-vio-links.html
- True Bahá'í
- http://www.truebahai.com/hoc/attendant.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/hoc/index.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/hoc/interp-domain.html
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- http://www.truebahai.com/links.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/living-guardians.html
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- http://www.truebahai.com/misc.html
- True Bahá'í
- http://www.truebahai.com/official.html
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- http://www.truebahai.com/peace.html
- True Bahá'í
- http://www.truebahai.com/personal.html
- True Bahá'í
- http://www.truebahai.com/remey/
- http://www.truebahai.com/remey/index.html
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/
- The Great Catastrophe
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/guardians/how-jm.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/guardians/how-mr.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/guardians/how-se.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/guardians/what-jm.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/guardians/what-mr.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/guardians/what-se.html

- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/guardians/why-jm.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/guardians/why-mr.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/guardians/why-se.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/index.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/mystic/blessed_is_the_spot.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/mystic/hidden_words.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/mystic/holy_mariner.htm
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/mystic/lauded_be_thy_name.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/mystic/majesty-cause-prayer.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/mystic/moffettonprayer.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/mystic/prayer-guardian.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/mystic/prayer.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/mystic/prayers-dead.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/mystic/seven_valleys.htm
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/philo/death.html
- Divine Love
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/philo/philosophy.html
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/philo/verities.html
- TABLETS TO THE BAHÁ'ÍS OF THE CENTRAL STATES
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/usa/index.html
- TABLETS TO THE BAHÁ'ÍS OF THE NORTHEASTERN STATES
- TABLETS TO THE BAHÁ'ÍS OF THE SOUTHERN STATES
- TABLETS TO THE BAHÁ'ÍS OF THE WESTERN STATES
- What does Bahá'u'lláh want you to do as a community?
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/who/individual.htm
- http://www.truebahai.com/spiritual/who/who_is_bahaullah.htm
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- Principle 8:Universal Peace
- Principle 11:Universal Language
- Principle 5:Religion must be in accord with Science and Reason
- Principle 4:Religion must be the Cause of Unity
- The Twelve Principles of the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith
- Principle 9:Universal Education
- Principle 1: The Oneness of Mankind
- Principle 7:Prejudice of all kinds must be Forgotten
- Principle 6:Equality of Men & Women

- Principle 10:Spiritual Solution of the Economic Problem
- Principle 3:The Foundation of all Religions is One
- Principle 12:International Tribunal
- Principle 2:Independent Investigation of Truth
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í

- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í

- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- TRUEBAHAI.com
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/centraldocs.html
- Contempt Motion by Wilmette NSA& Response by Orthodox Bahá'í Faith
- True Bahá'í
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/docs/KITAB-I-AHD.html
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/docs/Master-foretells.html
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/docs/abdul-baha-race-unity.html
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/docs/abdul-baha-universal-peace.html
- Bahá'u'lláh on the Origin of Conflict
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/docs/hungry.html
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/docs/intro_to_faith.htm
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/docs/maxwell-guardianship.html
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/docs/openletter.html

- http://www.truebahai.com:80/docs/peaceplan.html
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/docs/relevance.html
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/docs/sept11.html
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/docs/truefriend.html
- TRUEBAHAI.comThe TRUTH about the Bahá'í Faith
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/docs/violation.htm
- Orthodox Bahá'í Faith - FAQ
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/faq/declaration.html
- Orthodox Bahá'í Faith - FAQ
- FAQ About Covenant Breakers
- FAQ About the Living Guardian
- FAQ About the Orthodox Baha'i Faith
- Heterodox Believers' Questions About Investigating the Claims of the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith
- Newly-Declared Orthodox Believers' Questions
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/faq/toc.htm
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/general.html
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/great-vio-links.html
- TRUEBAHAI.comHand of the Causeof GodFranklin Schlatter
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/hoc/attendant.html
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/hoc/index.html
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/hoc/interp-domain.html
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/links.html
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/living-guardians.html
- True Bahá'í
- TRUEBAHAI.comMAY MAXWELL ON THE GUARDIANSHIP
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/misc.html
- True Bahá'í
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/official.html
- True Bahá'í
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/peace.html
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/personal.html
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/remey/
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/remey/index.html
- TRUEBAHAI.comSearch Page
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/spiritual/
- The Great Catastrophe
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/how-jm.html
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/how-mr.html
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/how-se.html
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/what-jm.html
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/what-mr.html
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/what-se.html
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/why-jm.html

- http://www.truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/why-mr.html
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/why-se.html
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/spiritual/index.html
- TRUEBAHAI.comBlessed is the spot,and the house,and the place, and the city,and the heart,and the mountain,and the refuge, and the cave,and the valley,and the land,and the sea, and the island,and the meadowwhere mention of Godhath been made,and His praise glorified-Bahá'u'lláh
- TRUEBAHAI.comTHE HIDDEN WORDS OF BAHÁ'U'LLÁHArabicPersianArabicHE IS THE GLORY OF GLORIESThis is that which hath descended from the realm of glory, uttered by the tongue of power and might, and revealed unto the Prophets of old. We have taken the inner essence thereof and clothed it in the garment of brevity, as a token of grace unto the righteous, that they may stand faithful unto the Covenant of God, may fulfill in their lives His trust, and in the realm of spirit obtain the gem of Divine virtue.1. O SON OF SPIRIT!My first counsel is this: Possess a pure, kindly and radiant heart, that thine may be a sovereignty ancient, imperishable and everlasting.2. O SON OF SPIRIT!The best beloved of all things in My sight is Justice; turn not away therefrom if thou desirest Me, and neglect it not that I may confide in thee. By its aid thou shalt see with thine own eyes and not through the eyes of others, and shalt know of thine own knowledge and not through the knowledge of thy neighbor. Ponder this in thy heart; how it behooveth thee to be. Verily justice is My gift to thee and the sign of My loving-kindness. Set it then before thine eyes.3. O SON OF MAN! Veiled in My immemorial being and in the ancient eternity of My essence, I knew My love for thee; therefore I created thee, have engraved on thee Mine image and revealed to thee My beauty.4. O SON OF MAN!I loved thy creation, hence I created thee. Wherefore, do thou love Me, that I may name thy name and fill thy soul with the spirit of life.5. O SON OF BEING! Love Me, that I may love thee. If thou lovest Me not, My love can in no wise reach thee. Know this, O servant.6. O SON OF BEING!Thy Paradise is My love; thy heavenly home, reunion with Me. Enter therein and tarry not. This is that which hath been destined for thee in Our kingdom above and Our exalted dominion.7. O SON OF MAN!If thou lovest Me, turn away from thyself; and if thou seekest My pleasure, regard not thine own; that thou mayest die in Me and I may eternally live in thee.8. O SON OF SPIRIT!There is no peace for thee save by renouncing thyself and turning unto Me; for it behooveth thee to glory in My name, not in thine own; to put thy trust in Me and not in thyself, since I desire to be loved alone and above all that is.9. O SON OF BEING!My love is My stronghold; he that entereth therein is safe and secure, and he that turneth away shall surely stray and perish.10. O SON OF UTTERANCE! Thou art My stronghold; enter therein that thou mayest abide in safety. My love is in thee, know it, that thou mayest find Me near unto thee.11. O SON OF BEING!Thou art My lamp and My light is in thee. Get thou from it thy radiance and seek none other than Me. For I have created thee rich and have bountifully shed My favor upon thee.12. O SON OF BEING!With the hands of power I made thee and with the fingers of strength I created thee; and within thee have I placed the essence of My light. Be thou content with it and seek naught else, for My work is perfect and My command is binding. Question it not, nor have a doubt thereof.13. O SON OF SPIRIT!I created thee rich, why dost thou bring thyself down to poverty? Noble I made thee, wherewith dost thou abase thyself? Out of the essence of knowledge I gave thee being, why seekest thou enlightenment from anyone beside Me? Out of the clay of love I molded thee, how dost thou busy thyself with another? Turn thy sight unto thyself, that thou mayest find Me standing within thee, mighty, powerful and self-subsisting.14. O SON OF MAN!Thou art My dominion and My dominion perisheth not; wherefore fearest thou thy perishing? Thou art My light and My light shall never be extinguished; why dost thou dread extinction? Thou art My glory and My glory fadeth not; thou art My robe and My robe shall never be outworn. Abide then in thy love for Me, that thou mayest find Me in the realm of glory.15. O SON OF UTTERANCE!Turn thy face unto Mine and renounce all save Me; for My sovereignty endureth and My dominion perisheth not. If thou seekest another than Me, yea, if thou searchest the universe for evermore, thy quest will be in vain.16. O SON OF LIGHT! Forget all save Me and commune with My spirit. This is of the essence of My command, therefore turn unto it.17. O SON OF MAN!Be thou content with Me and seek no other helper. For none but Me can ever suffice thee.18. O SON OF SPIRIT!Ask not of Me that which We desire not for thee, then be content with what We have ordained for thy sake, for this is that which profiteth thee, if therewith thou dost content thyself.19. O SON OF THE WONDROUS VISION!I have breathed within thee a breath of My own Spirit, that thou mayest be My lover. Why hast thou forsaken Me and sought a beloved other than Me?20. O SON OF SPIRIT!My claim on thee is great, it cannot be forgotten. My grace to thee is plenteous, it cannot be veiled. My love has made in thee its home, it cannot be concealed. My light is manifest to thee, it cannot be obscured.21. O SON OF MAN!Upon the tree of effulgent glory I have hung for thee the choicest fruits, wherefore hast thou turned away and contented thyself with that which is less good? Return then unto that which is better for thee in the realm on high.22. O SON OF SPIRIT!Noble have I created thee, yet thou hast abased thyself. Rise then unto that for which thou wast created.23. O SON OF THE SUPREME!To the eternal I call thee, yet thou dost seek that which perisheth. What hath made thee turn away from Our desire and seek thine own?24. O SON OF MAN!Transgress not thy limits, nor claim that which beseemeth thee not. Prostrate thyself before the countenance of thy God, the Lord of might and power. 25. O SON OF SPIRIT!Vaunt not thyself over the poor, for I lead him on his way and behold thee in thy evil plight and confound thee for evermore.26. O SON OF BEING!How couldst thou forget thine own faults and busy thyself with the faults of others? Whoso doeth this is accursed of Me.27. O SON OF MAN!Breathe not the sins of others so long as thou art thyself a sinner. Shouldst thou transgress this command, accursed wouldst thou be, and to this I bear witness.28. O SON OF SPIRIT!Know thou of a truth: He that biddeth men be just and himself committeth iniquity is not of Me, even though he bear My name.29. O SON OF BEING! Ascribe not to any soul that which thou wouldst not have ascribed to thee, and say not that which thou doest not. This is My command unto thee, do thou observe it.30. O SON OF MAN! Deny not My servant should he ask anything from thee, for his face is My face; be then abashed before Me.31. O SON OF BEING!Bring thyself to account each day ere thou art summoned to a reckoning; for death, unheralded, shall come upon thee and thou shalt be called to give account for thy deeds.32. O SON OF THE SUPREME!I have made death a messenger of joy to thee. Wherefore dost thou grieve? I made the light to shed on thee its splendor. Why dost thou veil thyself therefrom?33. O SON OF SPIRIT!With the joyful tidings of light I hail thee: rejoice! To the court of holiness I summon thee; abide therein that thou mayest live in peace for evermore.34. O SON OF SPIRIT!The spirit of holiness beareth unto thee the joyful tidings of reunion; wherefore dost thou grieve? The spirit of power confirmeth thee in His cause; why dost thou veil thyself? The light of His countenance doth lead thee; how canst thou go astray?35. O SON OF MAN!Sorrow not save that thou art far from Us.

Rejoice not save that thou art drawing near and returning unto Us.36. O SON OF MAN! Rejoice in the gladness of thine heart, that thou mayest be worthy to meet Me and to mirror forth My beauty.37. O SON OF MAN!Divest not thyself of My beauteous robe, and forfeit not thy portion from My wondrous fountain, lest thou shouldst thirst for evermore.38. O SON OF BEING!Walk in My statutes for love of Me and deny thyself that which thou desirest if thou seekest My pleasure.39. O SON OF MAN!Neglect not My commandments if thou lovest My beauty, and forget not My counsels if thou wouldst attain My good pleasure.40. O SON OF MAN!Wert thou to speed through the immensity of space and traverse the expanse of heaven, yet thou wouldst find no rest save in submission to Our command and humbleness before Our Face.41. O SON OF MAN!Magnify My cause that I may reveal unto thee the mysteries of My greatness and shine upon thee with the light of eternity.42. O SON OF MAN!Humble thyself before Me, that I may graciously visit thee. Arise for the triumph of My cause, that while yet on earth thou mayest obtain the victory.43. O SON OF BEING!Make mention of Me on My earth, that in My heaven I may remember thee, thus shall Mine eyes and thine be solaced.44. O SON OF THE THRONE!Thy hearing is My hearing, hear thou therewith. Thy sight is My sight, do thou see therewith, that in thine inmost soul thou mayest testify unto My exalted sanctity, and I within Myself may bear witness unto an exalted station for thee.45. O SON OF BEING!Seek a martyr's death in My path, content with My pleasure and thankful for that which I ordain, that thou mayest repose with Me beneath the canopy of majesty behind the tabernacle of glory.46. O SON OF MAN!Ponder and reflect. Is it thy wish to die upon thy bed, or to shed thy life-blood on the dust, a martyr in My path, and so become the manifestation of My command and the revealer of My light in the highest paradise? Judge thou aright, O servant!47. O SON OF MAN!By My beauty! To tinge thy hair with thy blood is greater in My sight than the creation of the universe and the light of both worlds. Strive then to attain this, O servant!48. O SON OF MAN!For everything there is a sign. The sign of love is fortitude under My decree and patience under My trials.49. O SON OF MAN!The true lover yearneth for tribulation even as doth the rebel for forgiveness and the sinful for mercy.50. O SON OF MAN!If adversity befall thee not in My path, how canst thou walk in the ways of them that are content with My pleasure? If trials afflict thee not in thy longing to meet Me, how wilt thou attain the light in thy love for My beauty?51. O SON OF MAN!My calamity is My providence, outwardly it is fire and vengeance, but inwardly it is light and mercy. Hasten thereunto that thou mayest become an eternal light and an immortal spirit. This is My command unto thee, do thou observe it.52. O SON OF MAN!Should prosperity befall thee, rejoice not, and should abasement come upon thee, grieve not, for both shall pass away and be no more.53. O SON OF BEING!If poverty overtake thee, be not sad; for in time the Lord of wealth shall visit thee. Fear not abasement, for glory shall one day rest on thee.54. O SON OF BEING!If thine heart be set upon this eternal, imperishable dominion, and this ancient, everlasting life, forsake this mortal and fleeting sovereignty.55. O SON OF BEING!Busy not thyself with this world, for with fire We test the gold, and with gold We test Our servants.56. O SON OF MAN!Thou dost wish for gold and I desire thy freedom from it. Thou thinkest thyself rich in its possession, and I recognize thy wealth in thy sanctity therefrom. By My life! This is My knowledge, and that is thy fancy; how can My way accord with thine?57. O SON OF MAN!Bestow My wealth upon My poor, that in heaven thou mayest draw from stores of unfading splendor and treasures of imperishable glory. But by My life! To offer up thy soul is a more glorious thing couldst thou but see with Mine eye.58. O SON OF MAN!The temple of being is My throne; cleanse it of all things, that there I may be established and there I may abide.59. O SON OF BEING!Thy heart is My home; sanctify it for My descent. Thy spirit is My place of revelation; cleanse it for My manifestation.60. O SON OF MAN!Put thy hand into My bosom, that I may rise above thee, radiant and resplendent.61. O SON OF MAN!Ascend unto My heaven, that thou mayest obtain the joy of reunion, and from the chalice of imperishable glory quaff the peerless wine.62. O SON OF MAN!Many a day hath passed over thee whilst thou hast busied thyself with thy fancies and idle imaginings. How long art thou to slumber on thy bed? Lift up thy head from slumber, for the Sun hath risen to the zenith, haply it may shine upon thee with the light of beauty.63. O SON OF MAN!The light hath shone on thee from the horizon of the sacred Mount and the spirit of enlightenment hath breathed in the Sinai of thy heart. Wherefore, free thyself from the veils of idle fancies and enter into My court, that thou mayest be fit for everlasting life and worthy to meet Me. Thus may death not come upon thee, neither weariness nor trouble.64. O SON OF MAN!My eternity is My creation, I have created it for thee. Make it the garment of thy temple. My unity is My handiwork; I have wrought it for thee; clothe thyself therewith, that thou mayest be to all eternity the revelation of My everlasting being.65. O SON OF MAN!My majesty is My gift to thee, and My grandeur the token of My mercy unto thee. That which beseemeth Me none shall understand, nor can anyone recount. Verily, I have preserved it in My hidden storehouses and in the treasuries of My command, as a sign of My loving-kindness unto My servants and My mercy unto My people.66. O CHILDREN OF THE DIVINE AND INVISIBLE ESSENCE!Ye shall be hindered from loving Me and souls shall be perturbed as they make mention of Me. For minds cannot grasp Me nor hearts contain Me.67. O SON OF BEAUTY!By My spirit and by My favor! By My mercy and by My beauty! All that I have revealed unto thee with the tongue of power, and have written for thee with the pen of might, hath been in accordance with thy capacity and understanding, not with My state and the melody of My voice.68. O CHILDREN OF MEN!Know ye not why We created you all from the same dust? That no one should exalt himself over the other. Ponder at all times in your hearts how ye were created. Since We have created you all from one same substance it is incumbent on you to be even as one soul, to walk with the same feet, eat with the same mouth and dwell in the same land, that from your inmost being, by your deeds and actions, the signs of oneness and the essence of detachment may be made manifest. Such is My counsel to you, O concourse of light! Heed ye this counsel that ye may obtain the fruit of holiness from the tree of wondrous glory.69. O YE SONS OF SPIRIT!Ye are My treasury, for in you I have treasured the pearls of My mysteries and the gems of My knowledge. Guard them from the strangers amidst My servants and from the ungodly amongst My people.70. O SON OF HIM THAT STOOD BY HIS OWN ENTITY IN THE KINGDOM OF HIS SELF!Know thou, that I have wafted unto thee all the fragrances of holiness, have fully revealed to thee My word, have perfected through thee My bounty and have desired for thee that which I have desired for My Self. Be then content with My pleasure and thankful unto Me.71. O SON OF MAN!Write all that We have revealed unto thee with the ink of light upon the tablet of thy spirit. Should this not be in thy power, then make thine ink of the essence of thy heart. If this thou canst not do, then write with that crimson ink that hath been shed in My path. Sweeter indeed is this to Me than all else, that its light may endure for ever.ArabicPersianPersianIn the Name of the Lord of Utterance, The Mighty.1. O YE PEOPLE THAT HAVE MINDS TO KNOW AND EARS TO HEAR!The first call of the Beloved is this: O mystic nightingale! Abide not but in the rosegarden of the spirit. O messenger of the Solomon of love! Seek thou no shelter except in the Sheba of the well-beloved, and O immortal phoenix! dwell not save on the mount of faithfulness. Therein is thy habitation, if on the wings of thy soul thou soarest to the realm of the infinite and seekest to attain thy goal.2. O SON OF SPIRIT!The bird seeketh its nest; the nightingale the charm of the rose; whilst those birds, the hearts of men, content with transient dust, have strayed far from their eternal nest, and with eyes turned towards the slough of heedlessness are bereft of the glory of the divine presence. Alas! How strange and pitiful; for a mere cupful, they have turned away from the billowing seas of the Most High, and remained far from the most effulgent horizon.3. O FRIEND!In the garden of thy heart plant naught but the rose of love, and from the nightingale of affection and desire loosen not thy hold. Treasure the companionship of the righteous and eschew all fellowship with the ungodly.4. O SON OF JUSTICE!Whither can a lover go but to the land of his beloved? and what seeker findeth rest away from his heart's desire? To the true lover reunion is life, and separation is death. His breast is void of patience and his heart hath no peace. A myriad lives he would forsake to hasten to the abode of his beloved.5. O SON OF DUST!Verily I say unto thee: Of all men the most negligent is he that disputeth idly and seeketh to advance himself over his brother. Say, O brethren! Let deeds, not words, be your adorning.6. O SON OF EARTH!Know, verily, the heart wherein the least remnant of envy yet lingers, shall never attain My everlasting dominion, nor inhale the sweet savors of holiness breathing from My kingdom of sanctity.7. O SON OF LOVE!Thou art but one step away from the glorious heights above and from the celestial tree of love. Take thou one pace and with the next advance into the immortal realm and enter the pavilion of eternity. Give ear then to that which hath been revealed by the pen of glory.8. O SON OF GLORY!Be swift in the path of holiness, and enter the heaven of communion with Me. Cleanse thy heart with the burnish of the spirit, and hasten to the court of the Most High.9. O FLEETING SHADOW!Pass beyond the baser stages of doubt and rise to the exalted heights of certainty. Open the eye of truth, that thou mayest behold the veilless Beauty and exclaim: Hallowed be the Lord, the most excellent of all creators!10. O SON OF DESIRE!Give ear unto this: Never shall mortal eye recognize the everlasting Beauty, nor the lifeless heart delight in aught but in the withered bloom. For like seeketh like, and taketh pleasure in the company of its kind.11. O SON OF DUST!Blind thine eyes, that thou mayest behold My beauty; stop thine ears, that thou mayest hearken unto the sweet melody of My voice; empty thyself of all learning, that thou mayest partake of My knowledge; and sanctify thyself from riches, that thou mayest obtain a lasting share from the ocean of My eternal wealth. Blind thine eyes, that is, to all save My beauty; stop thine ears to all save My word; empty thyself of all learning save the knowledge of Me; that with a clear vision, a pure heart and an attentive ear thou mayest enter the court of My holiness.12. O MAN OF TWO VISIONS!Close one eye and open the other. Close one to the world and all that is therein, and open the other to the hallowed beauty of the Beloved.13. O MY CHILDREN!I fear lest, bereft of the melody of the dove of heaven, ye will sink back to the shades of utter loss, and, never having gazed upon the beauty of the rose, return to water and clay.14. O FRIENDS!Abandon not the everlasting beauty for a beauty that must die, and set not your affections on this mortal world of dust.15. O SON OF SPIRIT!The time cometh, when the nightingale of holiness will no longer unfold the inner mysteries and ye will all be bereft of the celestial melody and of the voice from on high.16. O ESSENCE OF NEGLIGENCE!Myriads of mystic tongues find utterance in one speech, and myriads of hidden mysteries are revealed in a single melody; yet, alas, there is no ear to hear, nor heart to understand.17. O COMRADES! The gates that open on the Placeless stand wide and the habitation of the loved one is adorned with the lovers' blood, yet all but a few remain bereft of this celestial city, and even of these few, none but the smallest handful hath been found with a pure heart and sanctified spirit.18. O YE DWELLERS IN THE HIGHEST PARADISE!Proclaim unto the children of assurance that within the realms of holiness, nigh unto the celestial paradise, a new garden hath appeared, round which circle the denizens of the realm on high and the immortal dwellers of the exalted paradise. Strive, then, that ye may attain that station, that ye may unravel the mysteries of love from its wind-flowers and learn the secret of divine and consummate wisdom from its eternal fruits. Solaced are the eyes of them that enter and abide therein!19. O MY FRIENDS!Have ye forgotten that true and radiant morn, when in those hallowed and blessed surroundings ye were all gathered in My presence beneath the shade of the tree of life, which is planted in the all-glorious paradise? Awe-struck ye listened as I gave utterance to these three most holy words: O friends! Prefer not your will to Mine, never desire that which I have not desired for you, and approach Me not with lifeless hearts, defiled with worldly desires and cravings. Would ye but sanctify your souls, ye would at this present hour recall that place and those surroundings, and the truth of My utterance should be made evident unto all of you.In the eighth of the most holy lines, in the fifth Tablet of Paradise, He saith:20. O YE THAT ARE LYING AS DEAD ON THE COUCH OF HEEDLESSNESS!Ages have passed and your precious lives are well-nigh ended, yet not a single breath of purity hath reached Our court of holiness from you. Though immersed in the ocean of misbelief, yet with your lips ye profess the one true faith of God. Him whom I abhor ye have loved, and of My foe ye have made a friend. Notwithstanding, ye walk on My earth complacent and self-satisfied, heedless that My earth is weary of you and everything within it shunneth you. Were ye but to open your eyes, ye would, in truth, prefer a myriad griefs unto this joy, and would count death itself better than this life.21. O MOVING FORM OF DUST!I desire communion with thee, but thou wouldst put no trust in Me. The sword of thy rebellion hath felled the tree of thy hope. At all times I am near unto thee, but thou art ever far from Me. Imperishable glory I have chosen for thee, yet boundless shame thou hast chosen for thyself. While there is yet time, return, and lose not thy chance.22. O SON OF DESIRE!The learned and the wise have for long years striven and failed to attain the presence of the All-Glorious; they have spent their lives in search of Him, yet did not behold the beauty of His countenance. Thou without the least effort didst attain thy goal, and without search hast obtained the object of thy quest. Yet, notwithstanding, thou didst remain so wrapt in the veil of self, that thine eyes beheld not the beauty of the Beloved, nor did thy hand touch the hem of His robe. Ye that have eyes, behold and wonder.23. O DWELLERS IN THE CITY OF LOVE!Mortal blasts have beset the everlasting candle, and the beauty of the celestial Youth is veiled in the darkness of dust. The chief of the monarchs of love is wronged by the people of tyranny and the dove of holiness lies prisoned in the talons of owls. The dwellers in the pavilion of glory and the celestial concourse bewail and lament, while ye repose in the realm of negligence, and esteem yourselves as of the true friends. How vain are your imaginings!24. O YE THAT ARE FOOLISH, YET HAVE A NAME TO BE WISE!Wherefore do ye wear the guise of shepherds, when inwardly ye have become wolves, intent upon My flock? Ye are even as the star, which riseth ere the dawn, and which, though it seem radiant and luminous, leadeth the wayfarers of My city astray into the paths of perdition.25. O YE SEEMING FAIR YET INWARDLY FOUL!Ye are like clear but bitter water, which to outward seeming is crystal pure but of which, when tested by the divine Assayer, not a drop is accepted. Yea, the sun beam falls alike upon the dust and the mirror, yet differ they in reflection even as doth the star from the earth: nay, immeasurable is the difference!26. O MY FRIEND IN WORD!Ponder awhile. Hast thou ever heard that friend and foe should abide in one heart? Cast out then the stranger, that the Friend may enter His home.27. O SON OF DUST!All that is in heaven and earth I have ordained for thee, except the human heart, which I have made the habitation of My beauty and glory; yet thou didst give My home and dwelling to another than Me; and whenever the manifestation of My holiness sought His own abode, a stranger found He there, and, homeless, hastened unto the sanctuary of the Beloved. Notwithstanding I have concealed thy secret and desired not thy shame.28. O ESSENCE OF DESIRE!At many a dawn have I turned from the realms of the Placeless unto thine abode, and found thee on the bed of ease busied with others than Myself. Thereupon, even as the flash of the spirit, I returned to the realms of celestial glory and breathed it not in My retreats above unto the hosts of holiness.29. O SON OF BOUNTY!Out of the wastes of nothingness, with the clay of My command I made thee to appear, and have ordained for thy training every atom in existence and the essence of all created things. Thus, ere thou didst issue from thy mother's womb, I destined for thee two founts of gleaming milk, eyes to watch over thee, and hearts to love thee. Out of My loving-kindness, 'neath the shade of My mercy I nurtured thee, and guarded thee by the essence of My grace and favor. And My purpose in all this was that thou mightest attain My everlasting dominion and become worthy of My invisible bestowals. And yet heedless thou didst remain, and when fully grown, thou didst neglect all My bounties and occupied thyself with thine idle imaginings, in such wise that thou didst become wholly forgetful, and, turning away from the portals of the Friend didst abide within the courts of My enemy.30. O BOND SLAVE OF THE WORLD!Many a dawn hath the breeze of My loving-kindness wafted over thee and found thee upon the bed of heedlessness fast asleep. Bewailing then thy plight it returned whence it came.31. O SON OF EARTH!Wouldst thou have Me, seek none other than Me; and wouldst thou gaze upon My beauty, close thine eyes to the world and all that is therein; for My will and the will of another than Me, even as fire and water, cannot dwell together in one heart.32. O BEFRIENDED STRANGER!The candle of thine heart is lighted by the hand of My power, quench it not with the contrary winds of self and passion. The healer of all thine ills is remembrance of Me, forget it not. Make My love thy treasure and cherish it even as thy very sight and life.33. O MY BROTHER!Hearken to the delightsome words of My honeyed tongue, and quaff the stream of mystic holiness from My sugar-shedding lips. Sow the seeds of My divine wisdom in the pure soil of thy heart, and water them with the water of certitude, that the hyacinths of My knowledge and wisdom may spring up fresh and green in the sacred city of thy heart.34. O DWELLERS OF MY PARADISE!With the hands of loving-kindness I have planted in the holy garden of paradise the young tree of your love and friendship, and have watered it with the goodly showers of My tender grace; now that the hour of its fruiting is come, strive that it may be protected, and be not consumed with the flame of desire and passion.35. O MY FRIENDS! Quench ye the lamp of error, and kindle within your hearts the everlasting torch of divine guidance. For ere long the assayers of mankind shall, in the holy presence of the Adored, accept naught but purest virtue and deeds of stainless holiness.36. O SON OF DUST!The wise are they that speak not unless they obtain a hearing, even as the cup-bearer, who proffereth not his cup till he findeth a seeker, and the lover who crieth not out from the depths of his heart until he gazeth upon the beauty of his beloved. Wherefore sow the seeds of wisdom and knowledge in the pure soil of the heart, and keep them hidden, till the hyacinths of divine wisdom spring from the heart and not from mire and clay.In the first line of the Tablet it is recorded and written, and within the sanctuary of the tabernacle of God is hidden:37. O MY SERVANT!Abandon not for that which perisheth an everlasting dominion, and cast not away celestial sovereignty for a worldly desire. This is the river of everlasting life that hath flowed from the well-spring of the pen of the merciful; well is it with them that drink!38. O SON OF SPIRIT!Burst thy cage asunder, and even as the phoenix of love soar into the firmament of holiness. Renounce thyself and, filled with the spirit of mercy, abide in the realm of celestial sanctity.39. O OFFSPRING OF DUST!Be not content with the ease of a passing day, and deprive not thyself of everlasting rest. Barter not the garden of eternal delight for the dust-heap of a mortal world. Up from thy prison ascend unto the glorious meads above, and from thy mortal cage wing thy flight unto the paradise of the Placeless.40. O MY SERVANT!Free thyself from the fetters of this world, and loose thy soul from the prison of self. Seize thy chance, for it will come to thee no more.41. O SON OF MY HANDMAID!Didst thou behold immortal sovereignty, thou wouldst strive to pass from this fleeting world. But to conceal the one from thee and to reveal the other is a mystery which none but the pure in heart can comprehend.42. O MY SERVANT!Purge thy heart from malice and, innocent of envy, enter the divine court of holiness.43. O MY FRIENDS!Walk ye in the ways of the good pleasure of the Friend, and know that His pleasure is in the pleasure of His creatures. That is: no man should enter the house of his friend save at his friend's pleasure, nor lay hands upon his treasures nor prefer his own will to his friend's, and in no wise seek an advantage over him. Ponder this, ye that have insight!44. O COMPANION OF MY THRONE!Hear no evil, and see no evil, abase not thyself, neither sigh and weep. Speak no evil, that thou mayest not hear it spoken unto thee, and magnify not the faults of others that thine own faults may not appear great; and wish not the abasement of anyone, that thine own abasement be not exposed. Live then the days of thy life, that are less than a fleeting moment, with thy mind stainless, thy heart unsullied, thy thoughts pure, and thy nature sanctified, so that, free and content, thou mayest put away this mortal frame, and repair unto the mystic paradise and abide in the eternal kingdom for evermore.45. ALAS! ALAS! O LOVERS OF WORLDLY DESIRE!Even as the swiftness of lightning ye have passed by the Beloved One, and have set your hearts on satanic fancies. Ye bow the knee before your vain imagining, and call it truth. Ye turn your eyes towards the thorn, and name it a flower. Not a pure breath have ye breathed, nor hath the breeze of detachment been wafted from the meadows of your hearts. Ye have cast to the winds the loving counsels of the Beloved and have effaced them utterly from the tablet of your hearts, and even as the beasts of the field, ye move and have your being within the pastures of desire and passion.46. O BRETHREN IN THE PATH!Wherefore have ye neglected the mention of the Loved One, and kept remote from His holy presence? The essence of beauty is within the peerless pavilion, set upon the throne of glory, whilst ye busy yourselves with idle contentions. The sweet savors of holiness are breathing and the breath of bounty is wafted, yet ye are all sorely afflicted and deprived thereof. Alas for you and for them that walk in your ways and follow in your footsteps!47. O CHILDREN OF DESIRE!Put away the garment of vainglory, and divest yourselves of the attire of haughtiness.In the third of the most holy lines writ and recorded in the Ruby Tablet by the pen of the unseen this is revealed:48. O BRETHREN!Be forbearing one with another and set not your affections on things below.

Pride not yourselves in your glory, and be not ashamed of abasement. By My beauty! I have created all things from dust, and to dust will I return them again.49. O CHILDREN OF DUST! Tell the rich of the midnight sighing of the poor, lest heedlessness lead them into the path of destruction, and deprive them of the Tree of Wealth. To give and to be generous are attributes of Mine; well is it with him that adorneth himself with My virtues.50. O QUINTESSENCE OF PASSION!Put away all covetousness and seek contentment; for the covetous hath ever been deprived, and the contented hath ever been loved and praised.51. O SON OF MY HANDMAID!Be not troubled in poverty nor confident in riches, for poverty is followed by riches, and riches are followed by poverty. Yet to be poor in all save God is a wondrous gift, belittle not the value thereof, for in the end it will make thee rich in God, and thus thou shalt know the meaning of the utterance, "In truth ye are the poor," and the holy words, "God is the all-possessing," shall even as the true morn break forth gloriously resplendent upon the horizon of the lover's heart, and abide secure on the throne of wealth.52. O CHILDREN OF NEGLIGENCE AND PASSION!Ye have suffered My enemy to enter My house and have cast out My friend, for ye have enshrined the love of another than Me in your hearts. Give ear to the sayings of the Friend and turn towards His paradise. Worldly friends, seeking their own good, appear to love one the other, whereas the true Friend hath loved and doth love you for your own sakes; indeed He hath suffered for your guidance countless afflictions. Be not disloyal to such a Friend, nay rather hasten unto Him. Such is the daystar of the word of truth and faithfulness, that hath dawned above the horizon of the pen of the Lord of all names. Open your ears that ye may hearken unto the word of God, the Help in peril, the Self-existent. 53. O YE THAT PRIDE YOURSELVES ON MORTAL RICHES!Know ye in truth that wealth is a mighty barrier between the seeker and his desire, the lover and his beloved. The rich, but for a few, shall in no wise attain the court of His presence nor enter the city of content and resignation. Well is it then with him, who, being rich, is not hindered by his riches from the eternal kingdom, nor deprived by them of imperishable dominion. By the Most Great Name! The splendor of such a wealthy man shall illuminate the dwellers of heaven even as the sun enlightens the people of the earth!54. O YE RICH ONES ON EARTH!The poor in your midst are My trust; guard ye My trust, and be not intent only on your own ease.55. O SON OF PASSION!Cleanse thyself from the defilement of riches and in perfect peace advance into the realm of poverty; that from the well-spring of detachment thou mayest quaff the wine of immortal life.56. O MY SON!The company of the ungodly increaseth sorrow, whilst fellowship with the righteous cleanseth the rust from off the heart. He that seeketh to commune with God, let him betake himself to the companionship of His loved ones; and he that desireth to hearken unto the word of God, let him give ear to the words of His chosen ones.57. O SON OF DUST!Beware! Walk not with the ungodly and seek not fellowship with him, for such companionship turneth the radiance of the heart into infernal fire.58. O SON OF MY HANDMAID!Wouldst thou seek the grace of the Holy Spirit, enter into fellowship with the righteous, for he hath drunk the cup of eternal life at the hands of the immortal Cup-bearer and even as the true morn doth quicken and illumine the hearts of the dead.59. O HEEDLESS ONES!Think not the secrets of hearts are hidden, nay, know ye of a certainty that in clear characters they are engraved and are openly manifest in the holy Presence.60. O FRIENDS!Verily I say, whatsoever ye have concealed within your hearts is to Us open and manifest as the day; but that it is hidden is of Our grace and favor, and not of your deserving. 61. O SON OF MAN!A dewdrop out of the fathomless ocean of My mercy I have shed upon the peoples of the world, yet found none turn thereunto, inasmuch as every one hath turned away from the celestial wine of unity unto the foul dregs of impurity, and, content with mortal cup, hath put away the chalice of immortal beauty. Vile is that wherewith he is contented.62. O SON OF DUST!Turn not away thine eyes from the matchless wine of the immortal Beloved, and open them not to foul and mortal dregs. Take from the hands of the divine Cup-bearer the chalice of immortal life, that all wisdom may be thine, and that thou mayest hearken unto the mystic voice calling from the realm of the invisible. Cry aloud, ye that are of low aim! Wherefore have ye turned away from My holy and immortal wine unto evanescent water?63. O YE PEOPLES OF THE WORLD!Know, verily, that an unforeseen calamity followeth you, and grievous retribution awaiteth you. Think not that which ye have committed hath been effaced in My sight. By My beauty! All your doings hath My pen graven with open characters upon tablets of chrysolite.64. O OPPRESSORS ON EARTH!Withdraw your hands from tyranny, for I have pledged Myself not to forgive any man's injustice. This is My covenant which I have irrevocably decreed in the preserved tablet and sealed with My seal.65. O REBELLIOUS ONES!My forbearance hath emboldened you and My long-suffering hath made you negligent, in such wise that ye have spurred on the fiery charger of passion into perilous ways that lead unto destruction. Have ye thought Me heedless or that I was unaware?66. O EMIGRANTS!The tongue I have designed for the mention of Me, defile it not with detraction. If the fire of self overcome you, remember your own faults and not the faults of My creatures, inasmuch as every one of you knoweth his own self better than he knoweth others.67. O CHILDREN OF FANCY!Know, verily, that while the radiant dawn breaketh above the horizon of eternal holiness, the satanic secrets and deeds done in the gloom of night shall be laid bare and manifest before the peoples of the world.68. O WEED THAT SPRINGETH OUT OF DUST!Wherefore have not these soiled hands of thine touched first thine own garment, and why with thine heart defiled with desire and passion dost thou seek to commune with Me and to enter My sacred realm? Far, far are ye from that which ye desire.69. O CHILDREN OF ADAM!Holy words and pure and goodly deeds ascend unto the heaven of celestial glory. Strive that your deeds may be cleansed from the dust of self and hypocrisy and find favor at the court of glory; for ere long the assayers of mankind shall, in the holy presence of the Adored One, accept naught but absolute virtue and deeds of stainless purity. This is the daystar of wisdom and of divine mystery that hath shone above the horizon of the divine will. Blessed are they that turn thereunto.70. O SON OF WORLDLINESS!Pleasant is the realm of being, wert thou to attain thereto; glorious is the domain of eternity, shouldst thou pass beyond the world of mortality; sweet is the holy ecstasy if thou drinkest of the mystic chalice from the hands of the celestial Youth. Shouldst thou attain this station, thou wouldst be freed from destruction and death, from toil and sin.71. O MY FRIENDS!Call ye to mind that covenant ye have entered into with Me upon Mount Paran, situate within the hallowed precincts of Zaman. I have taken to witness the concourse on high and the dwellers in the city of eternity, yet now none do I find faithful unto the covenant. Of a certainty pride and rebellion have effaced it from the hearts, in such wise that no trace thereof remaineth. Yet knowing this, I waited and disclosed it not.72. O MY SERVANT!Thou art even as a finely tempered sword concealed in the darkness of its sheath and its value hidden from the artificer's knowledge. Wherefore come forth from the sheath of self and desire that thy worth may be made resplendent and manifest unto all the world.73. O MY FRIEND!Thou art the daystar of the heavens of My holiness, let not the defilement of the world eclipse thy splendor.

Rend asunder the veil of heedlessness, that from behind the clouds thou mayest emerge resplendent and array all things with the apparel of life.74. O CHILDREN OF VAINGLORY! For a fleeting sovereignty ye have abandoned My imperishable dominion, and have adorned yourselves with the gay livery of the world and made of it your boast. By My beauty! All will I gather beneath the one-colored covering of the dust and efface all these diverse colors save them that choose My own, and that is purging from every color.75. O CHILDREN OF NEGLIGENCE!Set not your affections on mortal sovereignty and rejoice not therein. Ye are even as the unwary bird that with full confidence warbleth upon the bough; till of a sudden the fowler Death throws it upon the dust, and the melody, the form and the color are gone, leaving not a trace. Wherefore take heed, O bondslaves of desire!76. O SON OF MY HANDMAID!Guidance hath ever been given by words, and now it is given by deeds. Every one must show forth deeds that are pure and holy, for words are the property of all alike, whereas such deeds as these belong only to Our loved ones. Strive then with heart and soul to distinguish yourselves by your deeds. In this wise We counsel you in this holy and resplendent tablet.77. O SON OF JUSTICE!In the night-season the beauty of the immortal Being hath repaired from the emerald height of fidelity unto the Sadratu'l-Muntaha, and wept with such a weeping that the concourse on high and the dwellers of the realms above wailed at His lamenting. Whereupon there was asked, Why the wailing and weeping? He made reply: As bidden I waited expectant upon the hill of faithfulness, yet inhaled not from them that dwell on earth the fragrance of fidelity. Then summoned to return I beheld, and lo! certain doves of holiness were sore tried within the claws of the dogs of earth. Thereupon the Maid of heaven hastened forth unveiled and resplendent from Her mystic mansion, and asked of their names, and all were told but one. And when urged, the first letter thereof was uttered, whereupon the dwellers of the celestial chambers rushed forth out of their habitation of glory. And whilst the second letter was pronounced they fell down, one and all, upon the dust. At that moment a voice was heard from the inmost shrine: "Thus far and no farther." Verily We bear witness to that which they have done and now are doing.78. O SON OF MY HANDMAID!Quaff from the tongue of the merciful the stream of divine mystery, and behold from the dayspring of divine utterance the unveiled splendor of the daystar of wisdom. Sow the seeds of My divine wisdom in the pure soil of the heart, and water them with the waters of certitude, that the hyacinths of knowledge and wisdom may spring up fresh and green from the holy city of the heart.79. O SON OF DESIRE!How long wilt thou soar in the realms of desire? Wings have I bestowed upon thee, that thou mayest fly to the realms of mystic holiness and not the regions of satanic fancy. The comb, too, have I given thee that thou mayest dress My raven locks, and not lacerate My throat.80. O MY SERVANTS!Ye are the trees of My garden; ye must give forth goodly and wondrous fruits, that ye yourselves and others may profit therefrom. Thus it is incumbent on every one to engage in crafts and professions, for therein lies the secret of wealth, O men of understanding! For results depend upon means, and the grace of God shall be all-sufficient unto you. Trees that yield no fruit have been and will ever be for the fire.81. O MY SERVANT!The basest of men are they that yield no fruit on earth. Such men are verily counted as among the dead, nay better are the dead inthe sight of God than those idle and worthless souls.82. O MY SERVANT!The best of men are they that earn a livelihood by their calling and spend upon themselves and upon their kindred for the love of God, the Lord of all worlds.The mystic and wondrous Bride, hidden ere this beneath theveiling of utterance, hath now, by the grace of God and Hisdivine favor, been made manifest even as the resplendent lightshed by the beauty of the Beloved. I bear witness, O friends!that the favor is complete, the argument fulfilled, the proofmanifest and the evidence established. Let it now be seen whatyour endeavors in the path of detachment will reveal. In thiswise hath the divine favor been fully vouchsafed unto youand unto them that are in heaven and on earth. All praiseto God, the Lord of all Worlds.ArabicPersian

- TRUEBAHAI.comTablet of the Holy MarinerHe is the Gracious, the Well-Beloved!O Holy Mariner!Bid thine ark of eternity to appear before the Celestial Concourse,Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!Launch it upon the ancient sea, in His Name, the Most Wondrous,Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!And let the angelic spirits enter, in the Name of God, the Most High.Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!Unmoor it, then, that it may sail upon the ocean of glory,Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!Haply the dwellers therein may attain the retreats of nearness in the everlasting realm.Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!Having reached the sacred strand, the shore of the crimson seas,Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!Bid them issue forth and attain this ethereal invisible station,Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!A station wherein the Lord hath in the Flame of His Beauty appeared within the deathless tree;Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!Wherein the embodiments of His Cause cleansed themselves of self and passion;Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!Around which the Glory of Moses doth circle with the everlasting hosts;Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!Wherein the Hand of God was drawn forth from His bosom of Grandeur;Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!Wherein the ark of the Cause remaineth motionless even though to its dwellers be declared all divine attributes.Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!O Mariner! Teach them that are within the ark that which we have taught thee behind the mystic veil,Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!Perchance they may not tarry in the sacred snow-white spot,Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!But may soar upon the wings of the spirit unto that station which the Lord hath exalted above all mention in the worlds below, Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!May wing through space even as the favored birds in the realm of eternal reunion;Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!May know the mysteries hidden in the Seas of light.Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!They passed the grades of worldly limitations and reached that of the divine unity, the center of heavenly guidance.Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!They have desired to ascend unto that state which the Lord hath ordained to be above their stations.Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!Whereupon the burning meteor cast them out from them that abide in the Kingdom of His presence,Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!And they heard the Voice of Grandeur raised from behind the unseen pavilion upon the Height of Glory:Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!"O guardian angels! Return them to their abode in the world below,Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!"Inasmuch as they have purposed to rise to that sphere which the wings of the celestial dove have never attained;Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!"Whereupon the ship of fancy standeth still which the minds of them that comprehend cannot grasp."Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!Whereupon the maid of heaven looked out from her exalted chamber,Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!And with her brow signed to the Celestial Concourse,Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!Flooding with the light of her countenance the heaven and the earth,Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!And as the radiance of her beauty shone upon the people of dust,Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!All beings were shaken in their mortal graves.Glorified be my Lord, the

All-Glorious!She then raised the call which no ear throughout all eternity hath ever heard,Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!And thus proclaimed: "By the Lord! He whose heart hath not the fragrance of the love of the exalted and glorious ArabianYouth, Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!"Can in no wise ascend unto the glory of the highest heaven."Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!Thereupon she summoned unto herself one maiden from her handmaidens,Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!And commanded her: "Descend into space from the mansions of eternity,Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!"And turn thou unto that which they have concealed in the inmost of their hearts.Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!"Shouldst thou inhale of perfume of the robe from the Youth that hath been hidden within the tabernacle of light by reason ofthat which the hands of the wicked have wrought,Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!"Raise a cry within thyself, that all the inmates of the chambers of paradise, that are the embodiments of the eternal wealth,may understand and hearken;Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!"That they may all come down from their everlasting chambers and tremble,Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!"And kiss their hands and feet for having soared to the heights of faithfulness;Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!"Perchance they may find from their robes the fragrance of the Beloved One."Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!Thereupon the countenance of the favored damsel beamed above the celestial chambers even as the light that shineth from the face of the Youth above His mortal temple;Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!She then descended with such an adorning as to illumine the heavens and all that is therein.Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!She bestirred herself and perfumed all things in the lands of holiness and grandeur.Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!When she reached that place she rose to her full height in the midmost heart of creation,Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!And sought to inhale their fragrance at a time that knoweth neither beginning nor end.Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!She found not in them that which she did desire, and this, verily, is but one of His wondrous tales.Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!She then cried aloud, wailed and repaired to her own station within her most lofty mansion,Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!And then gave utterance to one mystic word, whispered privily by her honeyed tongue,Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!And raised the call amidst the Celestial Concourse and the immortal maids of heaven:Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!"By the Lord! The Youth hath remained lone and forlorn in the land of exile in the hands of the ungodly."Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!She then uttered within herself such a cry that the Celestial Concourse did shriek and tremble,Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!And she fell upon the dust and gave up the spirit. It seemeth that she was called and hearkened unto Him that summoned her unto the Realm on High.Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!Glorified be He that created her out of the essence of love in the midmost heart of his exalted paradise!Glorified be my Lord, the All-Glorious!Thereupon the maids of heaven hastened forth from their chambers, upon whose countenances the eye of no dweller in thehighest paradise had ever gazed.Glorified be our Lord, the Most High!They all gathered round her, and lo! they found her body fallen upon the dust;Glorified be our Lord, the Most High!And as they beheld her state and comprehended a word of the tale told by the Youth, they bared their heads, rent theirgarments asunder, beat upon their faces, forgot their joy, shed tears and smote with their hands upon their cheeks, and this is verily one of the mysterious grievous afflictionsGlorified be our Lord, the Most High!

- TRUEBAHAI.comBahá'u'lláh's Prayer for the Protection of the Cause:"Uncover before them...the majesty of Thy Cause, lest they be led to doubt Thy sovereignty..."Lauded be Thy name, O my God! I am so carried away by the breezes blowing from Thy presence that I have forgotten my self and all that I possess. This is but a sign of the wonders of Thy grace and bountiful favors vouchsafed unto me. I give praise to Thee, O my God, that Thou hast chosen me out of all Thy creatures, and made me to be the Day-Spring of Thy strength and the Manifestation of Thy might, and empowered me to reveal such of Thy signs and such tokens of Thy majesty and power as none, whether in Thy heaven or on Thy earth, can produce.I beseech Thee, O my Lord, by Thy most effulgent Name, to acquaint my people with the things Thou didst destine for them. Do Thou, then, preserve them within the stronghold of Thy guardianship and the tabernacle of Thine unerring protection, lest through them may appear what will divide Thy servants. Assemble them, O my Lord, on the shores of this Ocean, every drop of which proclaimeth Thee to be God, besides Whom there is none other God, the All-Glorious, the All-Wise.Uncover before them, O my Lord, the majesty of Thy Cause, lest they be led to doubt Thy sovereignty and the power of Thy might. I swear by Thy glory, O Thou Who art the Beloved of the worlds! Had they been aware of Thy power they would of a certainty have refused to utter what Thou didst not ordain for them in the heaven of Thy will.Inspire them, O my Lord, with a sense of their own powerlessness before Him Who is the Manifestation of Thy Self, and teach them to recognize the poverty of their own nature in the face of the manifold tokens of Thy self-sufficiency and riches, that they may gather together round Thy Cause, and cling to the hem of Thy mercy, and cleave to the cord of the good-pleasure of Thy will.Thou art the Lord of the worlds, and of all those who show mercy, art the Most Merciful.Bahá'u'lláh, Prayers and Meditations, p. 46
- TRUEBAHAI.comThe Dynamics of Prayerby Ruth J. Moffett(including5 Steps of Prayerby Shoghi Effendi, First Guardian)as published in the Star of the West,vol 21, No. 2, pp. 47-51 (May, 1930)The archeologists have discovered that before the dawn of recorded history, even the earliest primitive man has worshipped a super being and has believed in immortality. The Neanderthal Man, which is represented in the newly placed group at the Field Museum, Chicago, existed 50,000 B. C. With the discovery of those skeletons was found indications of primitive worship and belief in immortality. Mr. Henry Field, director of the Field Museum, says that a very recent discovery indicates that a great flood occurred at about 4,000 B. C. and still earlier time of Noah, referred to in our Bible, was probably only about 3,000 B. C. A recent discovery reveals this interesting inscription: "In the land of Kish (which was the first capital after the first flood) there are legends of earlier races 30,000 years before our inscriptions begin."From different excavated art pieces and implements, from crude frescoes on the walls of caves, from the skeletons found in various places is clearly indicated that inherent in the very center of man's being, there always has been an inner urge impelling him to look beyond his sense perception, beyond his consciousness to a Creator, an urge to implore that Creator for help in time of trouble, and guidance in time of danger. Our ancestors worshipped this Creator in the storm. the lightning, the famine, the sun, moon, comets, eclipses ----- in anything that inspired awe and wonder. Gradually throughout the panorama of cycles, man's conception of this Supreme Being has unfolded as his consciousness has expanded. Although the methods of worship have changed through every conceivable form, yet the keynote of all, throughout this stupendous symphony around which all the melodies, discords and harmonies weave in mystical upliftment is prayer.What is

prayer? There are many beautiful definitions by the Prophets of God. "Prayer is loving service." "Prayer is the soliloquy of the beholding soul." But the one I like is, "Prayer is the practice of the Presence of God."A careful analysis reveals that there are nine ways in which man turns his heart to God, or tries to practice the Presence of God. The one with which we are most familiar is:SUPPLICATION. This is an humble earnest entreaty, with a sense of dependence upon what is greater than ourselves. We remember the words of Paul, "God is an ever present source of help in time of trouble." We have all lifted our consciousness many times by this impelling motive to prayer. And also;COMPUNCTION. This is an uneasiness of mind arising from wrong doing. It is the sting of conscience, or a sense of remorsefulness. This [Star of the West, Vol. 21, p. 48] feeling of unworthiness we find in many of the Psalms: "Feed me o Lord with the bread of tears, and give me plenteousness of tears to drink." Psalms 140:5. Compunction also compels us to prayer, as does:ASPIRATION. This is the longing, usually unexpressed, for what is above one's present attainment, a somewhat vague longing for what is pure, noble and spiritual. Alger says, "It is not aspiration but ambition that is the mother of misery in man." We all have these vague longings and aspirations within us, which lead us into the prayer life. The next is,INTERCESSION. This has been described as entreaty in behalf of others. We remember these familiar words of the Prophets of God, "The service of others is perfected by prayer," 'Abdu'l Baha) "Let your light so shine before men that they, in seeing your good works will glorify your Father which art in Heaven." "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these, ye have done it unto me." (Christ) "Withhold not from my servant in whatsoever he may ask of thee, for his face is My face, and thou must reverence Me." (Bahá'u'lláh).GRATITUDE. Gratitude is also we know the cause of lifting the heart upward. It is the sense of appreciation for favors or bounties received. Gratefulness wells up in the heart and finds expression in prayer, as for example the words of David, "Oh give thanks unto the Lord for He is good, for His mercies endureth forever." Also the words of Bahá'u'lláh, "Praise be to Thee o God of Names and Creator of Heaven, Praise be to Thee for that by reason of which Thou hast made known to Thy servants, Thy Day, wherein the River of Life hath flowed from the Finger of Thy Generosity, and the Spring of Revelation and Unity hath become manifest through Thy Manifestation to whomsoever is in the earth and heaven. Praise be to Thee, o Desire of the world! Praise be to Thee o Beloved of the hearts of the yearning!'"MEDITATION. Meditation and prayer are not exactly synonymous. We are told that meditation is the continued thought about those things beyond the physical world. Both meditation and contemplation are necessary as one develops in the practice of the Presence of God. Meditation begins with continued reason, we are told, merging into a state of calm reflection and devotional pondering on statements of thoughts, ideas and principles about God. This seems to be a high intellectual process, while contemplation might be described as beginning with continued attention, merging into a state of beholding, a looking to God, resulting in spiritual perception. This seems to be a combination of the highest intellectual and emotional processes. Mara Williams in his book "Hiunduism'" says, "A true Buddhist never prays, he only meditates on the perfections of Buddha, and the hope of attaining Nirvana."OBLATION, May be described as the act of offering something as a sacrifice in worship. As man's ideas of God have changed, the form of oblation has changed from the offering of burnt offerings of many kinds of animal and human flesh, to the offering of fruits and (Star of the West, Vol. 21, p. 49] grains with prayers. Later, sweet smelling incense was used until the more advanced souls have learned to sacrifice the self consciousness to the God Consciousness, and to give the self in hallowed consecration and joyous dedication. As in the words of Bahá'u'lláh. "Draw me unto Thee o My Divine Center, by the secret springs of my existence, and all my powers and senses shall follow Thy potent magnetism."ADORATION. Adoration has quite a different heart motive. It is the act of rendering divine homage, of rendering veneration and reverence to the Divine Being. It is a joyful, spontaneous uplift of deep feelings of love, admiration, awe and devotion. We the servants of God have much to learn of the way to turn our hearts to God in adoration and to learn the real meaning of the words of Bahá'u'lláh as expressed in the daily prayer, "o God Thou hast created us to know and toadoreThee."COMMUNION is the combination of several of the foregoing urges. It is the interchange or inter-communion of spirit, or the spirit's conversation with God. There is the longing on the part of the soul to receive wisdom, guidance, light and the opening of the soul, not to receive the answer to this or that minor question, but to receive illumination, the Christos or the Logos. "As the heart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after Thee, o God." (Psalm 42:1) "My love is in thee. Seek, and thou wilt find Me near. I have placed within thee, a spirit from Me, that thou mightiest be My love'r "Love Me that I may love thee; if thou lovest Me not, My love can in no wise reach thee." (Bahá'u'lláh.)We can learn a valuable lesson from the little girl who, when she was asked why it took her so long to pray, said, "You see, I always like to wait to hear what God has to say back to me."These nine urges to prayer supplication compunction, aspiration, intercession, gratitude, meditation, adoration, oblation and communion are all necessary for the practice of the Presence of God. Some religious groups emphasize and practice one or two to the exclusion of the others. Each urge is important and all are essential, though all need not be used at the same time.Any one without all the other steps is incomplete. The expression of each urge indicates the progress the soul is making on the path of God.Prayer may be expressed in four ways, the Thought Prayer, with more or less definite thoughts and ideas; the Heart Prayer, which is a vague, high, emotional aspiration. The Will Prayer, which is expressed in various forms of affirmation. And last the Uttered Prayer which is the expressed thought, idea and aspiration of the one praying. These are best expressed in the words revealed by the great Prophets of God. There is great power in the spoken word, and there is great wisdom in using the words revealed by the great World Teachers all of whom have revealed prayers for the upliftment of the [Star of the West, Vol. 21, p. 50] people. The Bahá'í Revelation contains the most abundant and richest material for prayer life.While in Haifa, the beloved Guardian of the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh Shoghi Effendi, gave to the writer, the most concise, complete and effective formula she has ever seen, for the Dynamics of Prayer. After saying to stress the need of more prayer and meditation among the friends, he said to use these five steps if we had a problem of any kind for which we desired a solution, or wished help.(First Step) Pray and mediate about it. Use the prayers of the Manifestations as they have the greatest power. Then remain in the silence of contemplation for a few moments.(Second Step) Arrive to a decision and hold this. This decision is usually born during the contemplation. It may seem almost impossible of accomplishment, but if it seems to be an answer to prayer or a way of solving the problem, then immediately take the next step.(Third Step) Have determination to carry the decision through. Many fail here. The decision, budding in to determination is blighted and instead becomes a wish or a vague longing. When determination is born, immediately take the next step.(Fourth Step) Have faith and confidence, that the power will flow through you, the right way will appear, the door will open, the right thought, the right message, the right principle or the right book will be given you. Have confidence, and the right thing will come to your need. Then as you rise from prayer take at once the fifth step.(Fifth Step) Then he said, lastly, Act! Act as though it had all been answered. Then act with tireless, ceaseless energy. And, as you act, you, yourself will become a magnet which will attract more power to your being, until you become an unobstructed channel for the Divine Power to flow through you. Many pray, but do not remain for the last half of the first step. Some who meditate arrive at a decision, but fail to hold it. Few have the determination to carry the decision through, and still fewer have the confidence that the right thing will come to their need. But how many remember to act as though it had all been answered? How true are those words "Greater than the prayer is the spirit in which it is uttered," and greater than the way it is uttered is the spirit in which it is carried out.Now out of a few simple words by our wise Guardian, a great light has shone. Out of this light has grown an effective method of practicing prayer, out of which has grown a long trail of prayers answered and problems solved, and out of this method of practicing prayer has grown a new life in the most ancient of human acts of worship.Many have asked to whom shall we pray? All the Manifestations have taught the same answer ----to God ----through that great Cosmic Focal Point that stands between the finite and Infinite absolute station of Unknowableness. That is the way taught by all the Messengers of God. The Manifes- [Star of the West Vol. 21, p. 51] station is the Way of Prayer.In conclusion may we add these thoughts. He who is in need will pray. He who hesitates to supplicate God is standing in the station of pride, or has not awakened to his own need, or has not realized the great value of prayer. He is therefore deprived. Therefore let all our business be to know God. The more we know of Him the more we shall desire to know Him, and as knowledge is the measure of love, the deeper and more extensive our knowledge is, the deeper our love is. "The root of all knowledge is the knowledge of God."The Presence of God is realized within, but is evoked by something from without. When these two streams meet on the fifth step enunciated by Shoghi Effendi, the exterior life becomes an act of worship, and we have learned ----theDynamics of Prayeror thePractice of the Presence of God.

- TRUEBAHAI.comThe Prayer for the GuardianO my Lord, My beloved. I cherish the hope that from now on, Thou mayest bestow upon the Guardian of the Cause, Joel B. Marangella, all the strength and vigor that will enable him to pursue over a long and unbroken period of strenuous labor the supreme task of achieving, in collaboration with the faithful supporters of the Covenant in every land, the speedy triumph of the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh and His Mighty Covenant.Thou art, verily, the God of Power, the Help in Peril, the All-Glorious, the Almighty.
- TRUEBAHAI.comPrayer, Meditations, and Mystical Works of Bahá'u'lláh*noteSelectedPrayers, Meditations, and Mystical Works from Bahá'u'lláhPRAYERS AND TABLETS:Blessed is the SpotLauded be Thy NamePrayer for Americaby `Abdu´l-BaháPrayer for the GuardianPrayers for the DeadPrayers for All of God's ChildrenTablet of Purity by `Abdu'l-BaháMYSTICAL WORKSHidden Words of Bahá'u'lláhTablet of the Holy Mariner by Bahá'u'lláhMessage about the Holy Marinerby Joel B. Marangella, Third GuardianArticle about Bahá'u'lláh's The Seven Valleys and the Four Valleysby "Sharaf"ARTICLESGrace Will and Faith: Insights and Mediations on Scriptures and Writingsan e-book by I'an RoebuckThe Dynamics of Prayerby Ruth Moffett
- TRUEBAHAI.comPrayers for the Deadas revealed by Bahá'u'lláh and `Abdu'l-BaháThe Prayer for the Dead(to be recited by one person while all present stand)O my God! This is Thy servant and the son of Thy servant who hath believed in Thee and in Thy signs, and set his face towards Thee, wholly detached from all except Thee. Thou art, verily, of those who show mercy the most merciful.Deal with him, O Thou Who forgivest the sins of men and concealest their faults, as beseemeth the heaven of Thy bounty and the ocean of Thy grace. Grant him admission within the precincts of Thy transcendent mercy that was before the foundation of earth and heaven. There is no God but Thee, the Ever-Forgiving, the Most Generous.(Let him, then, repeat six times the greeting "Allah-u-Abhá," and then repeat nineteen times each of the following verses):We all, verily, worship God.We all, verily, bow down before God.We all, verily, are devoted unto God.We all, verily, give praise unto God.We all, verily, yield thanks unto God.We all, verily, are patient in God.(If the dead be a woman, let him say: This is Thy handmaiden and the daughter of Thy handmaiden, etc. ...)- Bahá'u'lláhOther Prayers for the Dead:O my God! O Thou forgiver of sins, bestower of gifts, dispeller of afflictions!Verily, I beseech Thee to forgive the sins of such as have abandoned the physical garment and have ascended to the spiritual world.O my Lord! Purify them from trespasses, dispel their sorrows, and change their darkness into light. Cause them to enter the garden of happiness, cleanse them with the most pure water, and grant them to behold Thy splendors on the loftiest mount.- `Abdu'l-BaháO my God! O my God! Verily, thy servant, humble before the majesty of Thy divine supremacy, lowly at the door of Thy oneness, hath believed in Thee and in Thy verses, hath testified to Thy word, hath been enkindled with the fire of Thy love, hath been immersed in the depths of the ocean of Thy knowledge, hath been attracted by Thy breezes, hath relied upon his supplications to Thee, and hath been assured of Thy pardon and forgiveness. He hath abandoned this mortal life and hath flown to the kingdom of immortality, yearning for the favor of meeting Thee.O Lord, glorify his station, shelter him under the pavilion of Thy supreme mercy, cause him to enter Thy glorious paradise, and perpetuate his existence in Thine exalted rose garden, that he may plunge into the sea of light in the world of mysteries.Verily, Thou art the Generous, the Powerful, the Forgiver and the Bestower.- `Abdu'l-Bahá(from Bahá'í Prayers)

- TRUEBAHAI.comThe Seven Valleys and the Four Valleys of Bahá'u'lláhAn Overview bySharafThe Seven Valleys was a treatise written by Bahá'u'lláh in response to questions posed to Him by a student of Sufi philosophy. The Four Valleys was written later, and addressed to a learnedShaykh. These two essays are perhaps the most profound mystical writings of Bahá'u'lláh.This brief overview and introduction could not possibly do justice to the majesty of the language of these essays, and the rich spiritual insights that may be gleaned from serious study of these works. Recognizing his own inability to capture the sublimity of these themes, the author submits this overview not to try to summarize all of the truths that lie hidden within the originals, but rather only to serve as a tribute, to increase awareness and attraction and to encourage the study of and meditation upon the wisdom enshrined within these masterpieces.The Seven ValleysBahá'u'lláh states His purpose in writing the Seven Valleys is to attract the reader to "the court of holiness and nearness and beauty, and draw thee to a station wherein thou shalt see nothing in creation save the Face of the Beloved One, the Honored...."The seven valleys or seven cities represent stages of spiritual attainment and "mark the wayfarers journey from the abode of dust to the heavenly homeland." One must traverse these stages to achieve nearness and union with God. Bahá'u'lláh assures us that, God willing, and with the assistance of theGuardian of the Cause, the Seven Valleys may be traversed in a single breath.The Valley of SearchThe first valley is theValley of Search. This first stage of attainment requires the wayfarer to exercise the utmost patience and perseverance, to cleanse his heart, and to wander in search for his Beloved. No matter how difficult the trials, difficulties, and temptations, and no matter how futile and hopeless this search may be, the true seeker must never give up his quest to attain the presence of the True One. The "steed" of this Valley is patience.One must judge of search by the standard of the Majnun of Love. It is related that one day they came upon Majnun sifting the dust and his tears flowing down. They said, "What doest thou?" He said, "I seek for Layli." They cried, "Alas for thee! Layli is of pure spirit, and thou seekest her in the dust! He said, "I seek her everywhere; haply somewhere I shall find her." .The Valley of LoveIf the seeker's search bears fruit, he will step into the second Valley, theValley of Love. In this City, the seeker becomes unaware of self, and has no thought whatsoever except for the Beloved. "At every moment", the seeker "offereth a hundred lives in the path of the Loved One."Love accepteth no existence and wisheth no life: He seeth life in death, and in shame seeketh glory. To merit the madness of love, man must abound in sanity; to merit the bonds of the Friend, he must be full of spirit. Blessed the neck that is caught in His noose, happy the head that falleth on the dust in the pathway of His love.The "steed" of this Valley is pain; and "if there be no pain this journey will never end." Madness engulfs the seeker. Here the seeker gives up his reason, his life and his self. All of the veils are burned away by the fire of this divine love.Wherefore must the veils of the satanic self be burned away at the fire of love, that the spirit may purified and cleansed and thus may know the station of the Lord of the Worlds.The Valley of KnowledgeAfter passing through the Valley of Love, the wayfarer enters theValley of Knowledgeand attains certitude and contentment with the Will of God. The feverish pain of the Valley of Love dissolves into the peaceful certainty of true knowledge. In this City, the wayfarer apprehends the wisdom of God's command. He sees "war as peace" and finds in death "the secrets of everlasting life." In injustice, he perceives justice; in ignorance, he finds knowledge. For no matter how cruel and horrible events may be, they are sweet mercy when they lead the wayfarer towards union with his heart's desire.Bahá'u'lláh tells the story of a man searching for his beloved, who happens upon a watchman. Running from the watchman, and fearing harm to himself, the seeker finds himself trapped up against a garden wall. With great pain, he scales over the wall and throws himself over, without thought for his life. He is rewarded, on the other side of the wall, with the presence of his long-lost beloved and he surrenders his love to her. The lover now gratefully discovers the "secret justice" of the seeming tyranny of the watchman.The Valley of Knowledge is said to be "the last plane of limitation." The successful seeker next enters theValley of Unity.The Valley of UnityThis City is the station where the wayfarer apprehends the mysteries of God.In this station, he pierceth the veils of plurality, fleeth from the worlds of the flesh, and ascendeth into the heaven of singleness. With the ear of God he heareth, with the eye of God he beholdeth the mysteries of divine creation. He steppeth into the sanctuary of the Friend, and shareth as an intimate the pavilion of the Loved One. He stretcheth out the hand of truth from the sleeve of the Absolute; he revealeth the secrets of power. He seeth in himself neither name nor fame nor rank, but findeth his own praise in praising God.Bahá'u'lláh goes on to explain the origin of conflict in creation. In the place of appearance, where the reflection of light on created beings reflects the creature's own color and attributes instead of the inherent brilliance of the light itself, there are difference of understanding and attainment. Some "wayfarers" attain to the plane of oneness, others live in the realms of limitation, and still others are completely veiled from the light. From these differences of station and understanding, conflict emerges.Thus do the ignorant people of the day, who have no portion of the radiance of Divine Beauty, make certain claims, and in every age and cycle inflict on the people of oneness what they themselves deserve. "Should God punish men for their perverse doings, He would not leave on earth a moving thing! But to an appointed term doth He respite them..."[quoting from the Qur'an, 16:63]In the Valley of Unity, the wayfarer's heart is purified and cleansed so that the Light of the Sun is fully revealed as light reflected in a mirror. Thus the traveler learns the truth that only the heart of the faithful servant can contain Him. God in His Essence does not descend into the heart of the seeker any more than the sun itself descends to earth. The heat and light of the sun are transmitted through the sun's rays and are perfectly reflected in a polished mirror. Yet the sun never descends from its place in the heavens.Bahá'u'lláh makes clear that the perfect mirrors of God are the Manifestations of God. The light that appears in the seeker's heart is the reflection from the Beloved One.Yea, these mentionings that have been made of the grades of knowledge relate to the knowledge of the Manifestations of that Sun of Reality, which casteth Its light upon the Mirrors. And the splendor of that light is in the hearts, yet it is hidden under the veilings of sense and the conditions of this earth, even as a candle within a lantern of iron, and only when the lantern is removed doth the light of the candle shine out.The Valley of ContentmentThe wayfarer next enters into theValley of Contentmentwhere all desires are burnt away and the wayfarer's heart is filled with bliss, joy, delight and rapture. Bahá'u'lláh admits that words cannot describe the profound mysteries of this plane. The beauty of the Friend is witnessed in everything. The content wayfarer throws down his life and soul. All the veils are unwrapped and burned away.The Valley of WondermentAfter this, the traveler enters into theValley of Wondermentand is struck dumb with the beauty and truth of God.At every moment he beholdeth a wondrous world, a new creation, and goeth from astonishment to astonishment, and is lost in awe at the works of the Lord of Oneness.In this City, the wayfarer learns "that all of these planes and states are folded up and hidden away within him." The search is, and always was an inner journey. The eternal mysteries dwell within his own heart. The task is to "labor to destroy the animal condition, till the meaning of humanity shall come to light."The Valley of True Poverty and Absolute NothingnessFinally, the wayfarer cometh to theValley of True Poverty and Absolute Nothingness. In this station, the self dies and then lives in God. The lover is burned away to reveal only the Beloved. This is a state of ecstasy, a life in God and sanctified from the world.This station is the dying from self and the living in God, the being poor in self and rich in the Desired One. Poverty as here referred to signifieth being poor in the things of the created world, rich in the things of God's world. For when the true lover and devoted friend reacheth to the presence of the Beloved, the sparkling beauty of the Loved One and the fire of the lover's heart will kindle a blaze and burn away all veils and wrappings. Yea, all he hath, from heart to skin, will be set aflame, so that nothing will remain save the Friend.In all these journeys the traveler must stray not the breadth of a hair from the "Law," for this is indeed the secret of the "Path" and the fruit of the Tree of "Truth"; and in all these stages he must cling to the robe of obedience to the commandments, and hold fast to the cord of shunning all forbidden things . . .The Four ValleysWhile the wayfarer in the path of God must traverse through the Seven Valleys to attain union with God, Bahá'u'lláh teaches us that "those who progress in mystic wayfaring are of four kinds." These journeys are represented by four Valleys or planes. The first plane is of self. The second plane is of reason. The third plane is of love. The fourth plane is the apex of consciousness.The First ValleyIn the First Valley, the seeker's goal is the Intended One. The Self of God is found standing within the seeker. This is the path of purification, by bringing evil desires into submission."The death of self is needed here, not rhetoric:Be nothing, then, and walk upon the waves" [quoting The Mathnavi]Likewise, it is written, "And be ye not like those who forget God, and whom He hath therefore caused to forget their own selves. These are the wicked doers.The Second ValleyIn the Second Valley, the wayfarer searches for the Praiseworthy One. This is the station of primal reason of the divine, universal mind which is known as the Prophet (i.e. those Prophets endowed with constancy). This seeker must make his heart worthy of the descent of heavenly knowledge.This station conferreth the true standard of knowledge, and freeth man from tests. In this realm. to search after knowledge is irrelevant, for He hath said concerning the guidance of travelers on this plane, "Fear God, and God will instruct thee." And again: "Knowledge is a light which God casteth into the heart of whomsoever He willeth."The Third ValleyIn the Third Valley, the traveler seeks out the Attracting One. This is the plane of attraction to heavenly beauty. It is without words, as there is nothing but the inner reality of the Beloved. This is the realm of pure affection and fellowship. To the "denizens of this plane", "all words of sense are meaningless, and senseless words are full of meaning."The Fourth ValleyThe mystic knowers, in the Fourth Valley, are those who have reached the beauty of the Beloved One and attained a station that is "the apex of consciousness and the secret of divine guidance." This is the station of God's immutable decree. It is free of all earthly attributes.This is the realm of full awareness, of utter self-effacement. Even love is no pathway to this region, and longing hath no dwelling here; wherefore it is said, "Love is a veil betwixt the lover and the beloved." Here love becometh an obstruction and a barrier, and all else save Him is but a curtain.

- TRUEBAHAI.comLife's purpose and life after deathAccording to the Bahá'í Sacred Texts, the process known as death is merely the withdrawal of the soul from the physical mind and body. During "life", the soul's powers shine upon the body (in the same way the physical sun gives its powers of light and heat to the earth). The soul never was physically connected to the body or inside the body, and therefore it doesn't leave the body upon death. Rather, at "death", the soul ceases to have contact with the body, its powers cease to shine upon the physical body and mind, and then the human mind and body simply pass away.Having dropped the veil of a physical body, the soul continues its growth in the spiritual worlds.The primary function of the soul in the physical reality is to grow spiritually by exercising moral decision-making. Basically, our job in life is to learn to choose and turn towards God. Only by having a physical mind and body can the soul have a free will and learn to make choices. The culmination of a life of proper choices is a soul that has fully developed its latent spiritual capacities. The importance of understanding the teachings on life after death cannot be over-emphasized. Only by knowing how one's souls will exist in the spiritual world can one recognize how to live in this physical reality. The truth about death teaches us how to live.How One Should Look Forward to Deathby `Abdu´l-BaháA fetus in the womb must develop its latent physical capacities before being born. Thus, the fetus develops arms, legs, brain, and other organs that will be essential after birth. If the fetus failed to developed these attributes, its existence in the physical world after birth would not be viable (or the baby would be severely deformed).In the same way that the fetus develops physical attributes during the approximately 9 month gestation period, the soul must develop spiritual attributes during its approximately 70-90 year gestational lifetime. If the soul fails to develop spiritual qualities in this life, then it will be impaired in the next spiritual life.According to the Bahá'í Sacred Texts, the commonly held beliefs and images of heaven and hell are symbolic of a spiritual state of being. Since there is no such thing as a "place" in the spiritual world, it is certain that the soul does not go to any such place after death of the body. Rather, the soul either has developed to the point where it draws near to God (more like God) or it draws away from God (less like God). A soul that is near to God attains spiritual happiness. The typical conception of heaven with beautiful angels and gold-lined streets is symbolic of this happiness. The soul that draws away from God because it failed to adequately develop its spiritual powers, is isolated and cut off from God. The image of a soul existing within an eternal burning fire is a meaningful symbol of what it is like for a spiritual entity such as the soul to exist far from God.There is an urgent truth to the admonition that one must repent during one's lifetime to avoid having the soul consigned to hell. That is, each person must make the proper choices in his or her lifetime so that the soul will develop its spiritual capacities and be able to draw nearer to God. Nobody knows how long their physical life will last, and therefore time is of the essence. The time to grow spiritually is now.Fortunately, the entire physical world was created for our souls' enlightenment and education. For more on this subject, go toThe Divine Philosophy of `Abdu´l-BaháThe Bahá'í Writings reveal a great deal about the nature of the soul but there is also a great deal of knowledge on this subject that apparently is beyond our ken. Our minds cannot help but think in terms of space and time, and tangible realities. It is very difficult to comprehend the intangible spiritual realities. It is safe to assume that no one ever fully understands the subject. The best that can be hoped for is some insight into the life of the soul after death.Bahá'u'lláh tell us the following:every soul has the capacity to recognize the "signs of God"the soul is "exalted above and independent of all infirmities of body or mind"the body reflects the light of the soul, just as the earth reflects the light of the sunthe soul remains "unafflicted by any bodily ailments"after separation from the body, the soul will continue to progress until it attains the presence of Godthe nature of the soul after death cannot be describedwhen the soul attains the presence of God, "it will assume the form that best befitteth its immortality and is worthy of its celestial habitation""the soul is a sign of God, a heavenly gem whose reality the most learned of men have failed to grasp, and whose mystery no mind, however acute, can ever hope to unravel"the soul that walked in the ways of God and was faithful to the Cause of God will be refreshed and revived and will be invested with the honor "and glory of all goodly names and stations"the soul who fails to turn towards God will be "indeed as one dead" and will suffer "bound, distressed and helpless in the fetters of his desires"at death the unfaithful souls will "be made aware of the good things that have escaped them, and shall bemoan their plight, and shall humble themselves before God."faithful souls will associate and commune intimately with one another, "and shall be so closely associated in their lives, their aspirations, their aims and strivings as to be even as one soul"the holy soul will be "immortal, live the life of God, and abideth within the retreats of celestial glory upon the Sadrih of heavenly reunion."`Abdu´l-Bahá has this to say about the soul:the next life "is a world of perceptions and discoveries, for the interposed veil will be lifted away and the human spirit will gaze upon souls that are above, below, and on a par with itself. It is similar to the condition of a human being in the womb, where his eyes are veiled, and all things are hidden away from him"at death, "when the human soul soareth out of this transient heap of dust and riseth into the world of God, then veils will fall away, and verities will come to light, and things unknown before will be made clear, and hidden truths be understood"each soul is pure and holy at birth, but the conditions of the souls "will vary according to what they acquire of virtues or vices in this world"after death, the soul of man "remains in the degree of purity to which it has evolved during life in the physical body, and after it is freed from the body it remains plunged in the ocean of God's mercy"souls that "are not vivified and attracted by the Holy Spirit, are accounted among the dead"This essay only strikes the surface of a deep ocean of spiritual knowledge and insight set forth in the Bahá'í Sacred Texts. You are urged to explore and study the words of Bahá'u'lláh and `Abdu´l-Bahá, and to pray and meditate concerning the truths expressed in the Texts.

- TRUEBAHAI.comA friend asked: "How should one look forward to death?"`Abdu´l-Bahá answered: "How does one look forward to the goal of any journey? With hope and with expectation. It is even so with the end of this earthly journey. In the next world, man will find himself freed from many of the disabilities under which he now suffers. Those who have passed on through death, have a sphere of their own. It is not removed from ours; their work, the work of the Kingdom, is ours; but it is sanctified from what we call 'time and place.' Time with us is measured by the sun. When there is no more sunrise, and no more sunset, that kind of time does not exist for man. Those who have ascended have different attributes from those who are still on earth, yet there is no real separation."In prayer there is a mingling of station, a mingling of condition. Pray for them as they pray for you! When you do not know it, and are in a receptive attitude, they are able to make suggestions to you, if you are in difficulty. This sometimes happens in sleep. but there is no phenomenal intercourse! That which seems like phenomenal intercourse has another explanation." The questioner exclaimed; "But I have heard a voice!" `Abdu´l-Bahá said: "Yes, that is possible; we hear voices clearly in dreams. It is not with the physical ear that you heard; the spirit of those that have passed on are freed from sense-life, and do not use physical means. It is not possible to put these great matters into human words; the language of man is the language of children, and man's explanation often leads astray."Someone present asked how it was that in prayer and meditation the heart often turns with instinctive appeal to some friend who has passed into the next life.`Abdu´l-Bahá answered: "It is a law of God's creation that the weak should lean upon the strong. Those to whom you turn may be the mediators of God's power to you, even as when on earth. But it is the One Holy Spirit that strengthens all men." Hereupon another friend referred to the communing of Jesus on the Mount of Transfiguration with Moses and Elijah; and `Abdu´l-Bahá said: "The faithful are ever sustained by the presence of the Supreme Concourse. In the Supreme Concourse are Jesus, and Moses, and Elijah, and Bahá'u'lláh, and other supreme Souls: there, also, are the martyrs."When asked about the individual persistence of the animal's personality after death, `Abdu´l-Bahá said: "Even the most developed dog has not the immortal soul of the man; yet the dog is perfect in its own place. You do not quarrel with a rose-tree because it cannot sing!"`Abdu´l-Bahá, `Abdu´l-Bahá in London, p. 95
- TRUEBAHAI.comThe Divine Philosophy of `Abdu´l-Bahá`Abdu'l-Bahá, one of the leaders and founders of the Bahá'í religion, was one of the twentieth century's great thinkers and philosophers. In many works and talks He expounded upon the spiritual basis and purpose of physical reality, the nature of reality, and humanity's role and place in the world. This page will try to briefly explore some of the wisdom found in the writings and talks of the "Master."According to the Divine Philosophy, the universe is made up of three worlds of God:

the World of God, the Kingdom, and Creation.The world of Creationreflects thequalities and attributes of Godaccording to the limited capacity of each of the material beings to express them. Although this material world is real, compared to the spiritual world it has no fundamental existence. It is like the shadow of the spiritual world. All of its positive qualities are emanations from the Holy Spirit. Its negative qualities, such as evil, are simply the absence of spirit (just as the places where light does not shine are in darkness). There was never a time when Creation did not exist. Because the Creator always was and always will be, His Creation has always existed and always will exist.The world of the Kingdomis the spiritual world. The Kingdom is heaven, but heaven is not a place because time and place are constructs of the material Creation. The Kingdom is true, eternal life. Just like the world of Creation receives its power, heat and light from the physical sun, the Kingdom receives its life-giving light from the rays of the Sun of Reality, the breath of the Holy Spirit.The world of Godis the Realm of Divinity. Humanity cannot conceive of this world and has no relationship with it. The only approach of humans to this Realm is through the heavenly fragrances emanating from the Manifestations of GodHumans are twi-light beings, each with one foot in the darkness of the material world of Creation and one foot in the light of the heavenly Kingdom. Humanity is the perfection of material creation and at the lowest point of spiritual reality. The purpose of our lives is to grow spiritually and to be illumined by the spirit of faith. That is, we must learn to step out of the darkness and towards the light.Man is in the highest degree of materiality, and at the beginning of spirituality-- that is to say, he is the end of imperfection and the beginning of perfection. He is at the last degree of darkness, and at the beginning of light; that is why it has been said that the condition of man is the end of night and the beginning of day, meaning he is the sum of all the degrees of imperfections and that he possesses the degrees of perfection. He has the animal side as well as the angelic side, and the aim of an educator is to so train human souls that their angelic aspect may overcome their animal side. Then if the divine power in man, which is his essential perfection, overcomes the satanic power, which is absolute imperfection, he becomes the most excellent of creatures; but if the satanic power overcomes the divine power, he becomes the lowest of the creatures. That is why he is the end of imperfection and the beginning of perfection.... - `Abdu´l-BaháBecause man exists within the world of Creation and the world of the Kingdom, he exists for the purpose of growing to overcome his material nature. To do this, he must come under the shadow of the True Educator (the Manifestation of God). Through the love of God, detachment, holiness, chastity, truthfulness, purity, steadfastness, faithfulness and the sacrifice of life (which powers are acquired by turning towards the Manifestation of God), humanity draws nearer to God. Those souls who have love of God enjoy eternal life. Those souls who are veiled from God, although they exist in this world and the next, they are nothing when compared to the heavenly souls who are the children of the Kingdom of God.Although the human soul appears in the material world, it exists within the spiritual world even if it remains veiled from God. The human body and mind exist in the material realm and are dependent upon the soul. The human mind exists by virtue of the action of the mental powers of the soul upon the brain. The soul does not enter the body but "shines" on it just as the sun's rays shine upon the earth.The metaphor of the sun's rays "shining" upon the earth instructs us to the truth of how the five aspects of spirit are expressed in the universe. The five aspects are: the vegetable spirit, the animal spirit, the human spirit, the heavenly spirit, and the Holy Spirit. Each aspect represents a greater and more complete and perfected expression of God's attributes and qualities.The first is the vegetable spiritwhich expresses the power or attribute of growth through the cohesion of various elements and substances by the decree of God. When the spiritual power of cohesion and growth ceases, the vegetable spirit ceases to exist.The second is the animal spirit,composed of a more complete and perfect commingling of the elements to produce the power of sense perception. The animal power perceives the reality of tangible things. When this perfected spiritual power of perception disassociates and decomposes, the animal spirit vanishes.The third is the human spirit,the perfection of the animal power as it reflects and incorporates all of the powers of the created world. The sign of the human spirit is reason. The power of humanity is to reflect upon intangible realities. By this, humanity makes great scientific discoveries, undertakes immense enterprises and historical events. This is the source of all arts and sciences and discoveries. The human body is the perfected animal body, and therefore, the human spirit reflects its rational powers upon the body. When this power is withdrawn, the animal body of a human is decomposed and disassociated, but the human spirit remains everlasting in its heavenly realm.The mineral evolves till it is absorbed in the life of the plant, the plant progresses til finally it loses its life in that of the animal; the animal, in its turn, forming part of the food of man, is absorbed into human life. Thus, man is shown to be the sum of all creation, the superior of all created beings, the goal to which countless ages of existence have progressed.-- `Abdu´l-BaháThe fourth degree of spirit is the heavenly spiritwhich is the spirit of faith and the bounty of God. This is a spiritual power emanating from the the Holy Spirit. This angelic power represents the perfection of humanity, the acquistion and development of thedivine powers and attributes. When the soul turns toward this spirit, it will give full expression to the soul's mental or intellectual powers. These divine forces are imagination (conception), thought (reflection), comprehension (understanding), memory (retention), and a common faculty that is the mysterious bridge between the physical and spiritual (between the soul and the human mind and body).The soul that turns to the heavenly spirit posseses:inner vision (the power of creative and intuitive thought)individuality (development of latent capabilities and virtues)immortality (eternal life - the soul begins at conception but has no end)spiritual happiness (by the proper development of the soul)During life, each human makes moral choices as life situations pose various courses of action to us. These moral choices are recorded by the soul and it develops accordingly. The physical reality is nothing more than a training ground for new souls to develop spiritual capacities. At death, the human mind and its power of moral decision-making ceases, the soul frees itself from the material world, and becomes fully aware of the spiritual realm. If the soul has chosen properly, it will have become an angelic being perfectly reflecting the attributes and spiritual traits of God, and it will draw nearer to God (during this life and the next). If the soul has made poor choices, failing to develop its spiritual capacities, it will remain far from God. Heaven is the state of being that is close to God, infused with the heavenly spirit. Hell is the state of being that is far from God, from the human soul turning away from the heavenly spirit and turning towards the darkness of the animal existence. Heaven and hell are states of being which characterize our attainment both in this life and the life to come.Man is a reality which stands between light and darkness.... The animal nature is darkness; the heavenly is light in light.-- `Abdu´l-BaháThe fifth degree of spirit is the Holy Spirit. This is the Power that serves as an Intermediary between God and His creatures. The Holy Spirit is like a perfect mirror receiving the rays of the Sun and transmitting the light and heat of the Sun to the world. When the Holy Spirit appears in the world (by the Manifestations of God), the world is renewed and humanity receives a fresh measure of spiritual power.All of creation was called into being by the Holy Spirit for our spiritual re-birth. All of the conflicts and situations that arise in it, contain metaphors of spiritual truths. For example, the physical act of washing one's hands is a metaphor for a spiritual truth of purity, cleanliness and refinement. Thus, all the world is a schoolhouse, we are students of truth, and all things and situations are our lessons.In every situation in life, we must learn to turn towards the higher realm of the heavenly world --- to the spirit of faith or the breaths of the Holy Spirit which are rays of light reflecting the attributes and powers of God..Our souls develop their latent capacities and virtues by turning towards the spirit of faith, as follows:obedience and submission to Will of Godservice to the Cause of Godlove of Goddetachment, holiness and chastitytruthfulnesspuritysteadfastnessfaithfulnesssacrificeAlthough the spirit of faith bridges the gap between us and the Manifestation of God, we cannot expect ever to attain that station. The highest attainment for a human soul is to be illumined by the spirit of faith. A human soul never could be or become a Manifestation of God.

- What does Bahá'u'lláh want you to do as a community?
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/spiritual/who/individual.htm
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/spiritual/who/who_is_bahaullah.htm
- http://www.truebahai.com:80/third.html
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í

- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í

- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í

- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í

- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í

- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í

- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í
- True Bahá'í

Principle 5:Religion must be in accord with Science and Reason

Principle 5:
Religion must be in accord with Science and Reason

Religion must be in accord with Science and Reason

*Religion and Science are inter-twined with each other and cannot be separated.
These are the two wings with which humanity must fly.
One wing is not enough.
Every religion which does not concern itself with science is mere tradition, and that is not the essential.
Therefore science, education, and civilization are most important necessities for the full religious life.

('Abdu'l-Bahá , 'Abdu'l-Bahá in London, p. 28)

Principle 4:Religion must be the Cause of Unity

Principle 4:
Religion must be the Cause of Unity

Religion must be the Cause of Unity

An essential principle of Bahá'u'lláh's teaching is that religion must be the cause of unity and love amongst men;*
that it is the supreme effulgence of Divinity, the stimulus of life, the source of honor and productive of eternal existence.

('Abdu'l-Bahá , The Promulgation of Universal Peace, p. 394)

The Twelve Principles of the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith

as explained by the Center of the Covenant, `Abdu'l-Bahá:

One - The Oneness of Mankind

Two - Independent Investigation of Truth

Three - The Foundation of all Religions is One

Four - Religion must be the Cause of Unity

Five - Religion must be in accord with Science & Reason

Six - Equality of Men and Women

Seven - Prejudice of all kinds must be Forgotten

Eight - Universal Peace

Nine - Universal Education

Ten - Spiritual Solution of the Economic Problem

Eleven - Universal Language

Twelve - International Tribunal

NEXT Next slide

Return to Main Page

Principle 9:Universal Education

Principle 9:
Universal Education

Universal Peace

Partaking of knowledge and education is one of the requisites of religion.
The education of each child is obligatory.*
If there are no parents, the community must look after the child.
It is suggested that the childless educate a child.
It is incumbent on every one to engage in some occupation, such as arts, trades, and the like.
We have made this -- your occupation
-- identical with the worship of God, the true one.
Reflect, O people, upon the mercy of God and upon his favors, then thank him in mornings and evenings.

('Abdu'l-Bahá , Divine Philosophy, pp. 26-27)

Principle 1: The Oneness of Mankind

Principle 1: The Oneness of Mankind

Oneness of Mankind

All men are the leaves and fruits of one same tree.....

('Abdu'l-Bahá , Paris Talks, p.129)

Of this unique and wonderful Tree, Bahá'u'lláh is the Ancient Root from which has sprung the Primal Branch or Greatest Branch; that is His appointed Successor and the Center of His Covenant,
'Abdu'l-Bahá "a Branch" that hath been so uplifted as to* encompass the whole of creation" *and the "Most Mighty Branch of God."
The Guardians of the Faith who have been endowed with the same interpretive authority as had been vested in 'Abdu'l-Bahá, in accordance with the explicit provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, may be regarded (and, in fact, are so designated by 'Abdu'l-Bahá) as the youthful branches or twigs which are the offshoots of the Primal Branch while the mass of faithful believers are the leaves and fruits of this glorious Tree.

(Joel B. Marangella, Tree of the Covenant)

Principle 6:Equality of Men & Women

Principle 6:
Equality of Men & Women

Equality of Men & Women

The male and female of the *human kingdom are equal before God.
God is no respecter of gender.
Whosoever practices more faith, whosoever practices more humanitarianism is nearer to God;
but between the male and female there is no innate difference because they share in common all the faculties.

('Abdu'l-Bahá, Bahá'í Scriptures, Selections from the Utterances of Bahá'u'lláh and 'Abdu'l-Bahá p. 277)

Principle 10:
Spiritual Solution of the Economic Problem

Spiritual Solution of the Economic Problem

"The Teachings of Bahá'u'lláh advocate voluntary sharing, and this is a greater thing than the equalization of wealth.
For equalization must be imposed from without, while sharing is a matter of free choice*."*

('Abdu'l-Bahá: Peace More Than an End to War p.115)

Principle 3:The Foundation of all Religions is One

Principle 3:
The Foundation of all Religions is One

The Foundation of all Religions is One

All the Prophets are the Temples of the Cause of God,
Who have appeared clothed in divers attire.
If thou wilt observe with discriminating eyes,
thou wilt behold them all abiding in the same tabernacle, soaring in the same heaven,
seated upon the same throne,
uttering the same speech,
and proclaiming the same Faith

(Baha'u'llah, The Kitab-i-Iqan, p. 153)

There is one God;
mankind is one;
the foundations of religion are one.
Let us worship Him, and give praise for all His great Prophets and Messengers who have manifested
His brightness and glory.

('Abdu'l-Bahá , 'Abdu'l-Bahá in London, p. 19)

Principle 12:International Tribunal

Principle 12:
International Tribunal

International Tribunal

The best beloved of all things in My sight is Justice.

(Baha'u'llah, The Arabic Hidden Words, No. 2)

A Supreme Tribunal shall be elected by the peoples and governments of every nation, where members from each country and government shall assemble in unity.
All disputes shall be brought before this Court, its mission being to prevent war.

('Abdu'l-Bahá , Paris Talks, p. 132)

http://truebahai.com:80/centraldocs.html

truebahai.com

Central Documents:

Kitab-i-`Ahd (Book of Covenant) by Bahá'u'lláh

The Will and Testament of `Abdu´l-Bahá

The Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh by Shoghi Effendi

Proclamation of Shoghi Effendi 9 January 1951

Proclamation of Mason Remey

Announcement to the Bahá'í World from the Third Guardian

The Tree of the Covenant by Joel B. Marangella, Third Guardian

RETURN TO MAIN LINKS MENU

Copyright © 2004, 2003, 2002, 2001 - truebahai.com
All Rights Reserved

This web site is offered in loving service to the Third Guardian of the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh, Joel B. Maranagella

Webmaster: Email uses JavaScript to defend against SPAM.
You must enable JavaScript to contact me.

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

KITÁB-I-'AHD
(Book of the Covenant)

Although the Realm of Glory hath none of the vanities of the world, yet within the treasury of trust and resignation We have bequeathed to Our heirs an excellent and priceless heritage. Earthly treasures We have not bequeathed, nor have We added such cares as they entail. By God! In earthly riches fear is hidden and peril is concealed. Consider ye and call to mind that which the All-Merciful hath revealed in the Qur'án: 'Woe betide every slanderer and defamer, him that layeth up riches and counteth them.'[1] Fleeting are the riches of the world; all that perisheth and changeth is not, and hath never been, worthy of attention, except to a recognized measure. [1 Qur'án 104:1-2.]

The aim of this Wronged One in sustaining woes and tribulations, in revealing the Holy Verses and in demonstrating proofs hath been naught but to quench the flame of hate and enmity, that the horizon of the hearts of men may be illumined with the light of concord and attain real peace and tranquillity. From the dawning-place of the divine Tablet the day-star of this utterance shineth resplendent, and it behoveth everyone to fix his gaze upon it: We exhort you, O peoples of the world, to observe that which will elevate your station. Hold fast to the fear of God and firmly adhere to what is right. Verily I say, the tongue is for mentioning what is good, defile it not with unseemly talk. God hath forgiven what is past. Henceforward everyone should utter that which is meet and seemly, and should refrain from slander, abuse and whatever causeth sadness in men. Lofty is the station of man! Not long ago this exalted Word streamed forth from the treasury of Our Pen of Glory: Great and blessed is this Day -- the Day in which all that lay latent in man hath been and will be made manifest. Lofty is the station of man, were he to hold fast to righteousness and truth and to remain firm and steadfast in the Cause. In the eyes of the All-Merciful a true man appeareth even as a firmament; its sun and moon are his sight and hearing, and his shining and resplendent character its stars. His is the loftiest station, and his influence educateth the world of being.

Every receptive soul who hath in this Day inhaled the fragrance of His garment and hath, with a pure heart, set his face towards the all-glorious Horizon is reckoned among the people of Bahá in the Crimson Book. Grasp ye, in My Name, the chalice of My loving-kindness, drink then your fill in My glorious and wondrous remembrance.

O ye that dwell on earth! The religion of God is for love and unity; make it not the cause of enmity or dissension. In the eyes of men of insight and the beholders of the Most Sublime Vision, whatsoever are the effective means for safeguarding and promoting the happiness and welfare of the children of men have already been revealed by the Pen of Glory. But the foolish ones of the earth, being nurtured in evil passions and desires, have remained heedless of the consummate wisdom of Him Who is, in truth, the All-Wise, while their words and deeds are prompted by idle fancies and vain imaginings.

O ye the loved ones and the trustees of God! Kings are the manifestations of the power, and the daysprings of the might and riches, of God. Pray ye on their behalf. He hath invested them with the rulership of the earth and hath singled out the hearts of men as His Own domain.

Conflict and contention are categorically forbidden in His Book. This is a decree of God in this Most Great Revelation. It is divinely preserved from annulment and is invested by Him with the splendour of His confirmation. Verily He is the All-Knowing, the All-Wise.

It is incumbent upon everyone to aid those daysprings of authority and sources of command who are adorned with the ornament of equity and justice. Blessed are the rulers and the learned among the people of Bahá. They are My trustees among My servants and the manifestations of My commandments amidst My people. Upon them rest My glory, My blessings and My grace which have pervaded the world of being. In this connection the utterances revealed in the Kitáb-i-Aqdas are such that from the horizon of their words the light of divine grace shineth luminous and resplendent.

O ye My Branches! A mighty force, a consummate power lieth concealed in the world of being. Fix your gaze upon it and upon its unifying influence, and not upon the differences which appear from it.

The Will of the divine Testator is this: It is incumbent upon the Aghsán, the Afnán and My Kindred to turn, one and all, their faces towards the Most Mighty Branch. Consider that which We have revealed in Our Most Holy Book: 'When the ocean of My presence hath ebbed and the Book of My Revelation is ended, turn your faces toward Him Whom God hath purposed, Who hath branched from this Ancient Root.' The object of this sacred verse is none other except the Most Mighty Branch [`Abdu´l-Bahá]. Thus have We graciously revealed unto you Our potent Will, and I am verily the Gracious, the All-Powerful. Verily God hath ordained the station of the Greater Branch [Muhammad Ali] to be beneath that of the Most Great Branch [`Abdu´l-Bahá]. He is in truth the Ordainer, the All-Wise. We have chosen 'the Greater' after 'the Most Great', as decreed by Him Who is the All-Knowing, the All-Informed.

It is enjoined upon everyone to manifest love towards the Aghsán, but God hath not granted them any right to the property of others.

O ye My Aghsán, My Afnán and My Kindred! We exhort you to fear God, to perform praiseworthy deeds and to do that which is meet and seemly and serveth to exalt your station. Verily I say, fear of God is the greatest commander that can render the Cause of God victorious, and the hosts which best befit this commander have ever been and are an upright character and pure and goodly deeds.

Say: O servants! Let not the means of order be made the cause of confusion and the instrument of union an occasion for discord. We fain would hope that the people of Bahá may be guided by the blessed words: 'Say: all things are of God.' This exalted utterance is like unto water for quenching the fire of hate and enmity which smouldereth within the hearts and breasts of men. By this single utterance contending peoples and kindreds will attain the light of true unity. Verily He speaketh the truth and leadeth the way. He is the All-Powerful, the Exalted, the Gracious.

It is incumbent upon everyone to show courtesy to, and have regard for the Aghsán, that thereby the Cause of God may be glorified and His Word exalted. This injunction hath time and again been mentioned and recorded in the Holy Writ. Well is it with him who is enabled to achieve that which the Ordainer, the Ancient of Days hath prescribed for him. Ye are bidden moreover to respect the members of the Holy Household, the Afnán and the kindred. We further admonish you to serve all nations and to strive for the betterment of the world.

That which is conducive to the regeneration of the world and the salvation of the peoples and kindreds of the earth hath been sent down from the heaven of the utterance of Him Who is the Desire of the world. Give ye a hearing ear to the counsels of the Pen of Glory. Better is this for you than all that is on the earth. Unto this beareth witness My glorious and wondrous Book.

Bahá'u'lláh, Tablets of Bahá'u'lláh, pp. 217-225

RETURN TO MAIN LINKS MENU

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

http://truebahai.com:80/docs/Master-foretells.html

A Tablet from `Abdu´l-Bahá, dated 3 May 1906, addressed to Mason Remey, included the following unique and highly significant statement whose momentous significance only became clear and its fulfilment realized more than a half-century later: (Star of the West, Vol V,No.19)

"Verily, I beseech God to make thee confirmed under all circumstances. Do not become despondent, neither be thou sad. Ere long, thy Lord shall make thee a sign of guidance among mankind"

To what else but Mason Remey's future accession to the Guardianship of the Faith could such a statement refer? There is no record of `Abdu´l-Bahá making a similar statement to any other believer, a declaration that can be construed in no other light than `Abdu´l-Bahá's clear promise that Mason Remey would in the future become Guardian of the Cause of God.

Permit us to prove to you that Shoghi Effendi brought to fulfillment this promise of the Master and thereby faithfully assured the continuance of the Guardianship after his passing in complete conformity with the provisions of the Will and Testament of `Abdu´l-Bahá and inform you of the impelling reasons why, he had to obscure from the believers, the appointment of this successor "in his own life-time" as required by the terms of `Abdu´l-Bahá's Testament. Then, let us reveal to you how he veiled this appointment, even though openly made and announced, in such an ingenious way that the believers, upon his passing, some six years later erroneously expecting to find a testamentary document appointing a successor, and not finding one, tragically failed to perceive the manner in which he had. appointed his successor and came to the hasty conclusion that the Guardianship of the Faith had forever ended. Failing in this way to perceive the undeniable validity of Mason Remey's appointment and accession to the Guardianship, they accepted a man-made corrupted organization set up by their self-appointed and faithless leaders as a substitute for the divinely-conceived Administrative Order delineated in the sacred and immortal Testament of 'Abdu'l-Baha thus permanently precluding the establishment of the future World Order of Bahá'u'lláh in all of its perfection and glory.

For information:

National Bahá'í Council

RETURN TO MAIN LINKS MENU

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

http://truebahai.com:80/docs/abdul-baha-race-unity.html

all are human beings

God has created the world as one -- the boundaries are marked out by man. God has not divided the lands, but each man has his house and meadow; horses and dogs do not divide the fields into parts. That is why Baha'u'llah says: "Let not a man glory in that he loves his country, but that he loves his kind." All are of one family, one race; all are human beings. Differences as to the partition of lands should not be the cause of separation among the people.

One of the great reasons of separation is colour. Look how this prejudice has power in America, for instance. See how they hate one another! Animals do not quarrel because of their colour! Surely man who is so much higher in creation, should not be lower than the animals. Think over this. What ignorance exists! White doves do not quarrel with blue doves because of their colour, but white men fight with dark-coloured men. This racial prejudice is the worst of all.

The Old Testament says that God created man like unto His own image; in the Qur'an it says: "There is no difference in the Creation of God!" Think well, God has created all, cares for all, and all are under His protection. The policy of God is better than our policy. We are not as wise as God!

`Abdu´l-Bahá, `Abdu´l-Bahá in London, p. 55

---

color is of the least importance

Today I am most happy, for I see here a gathering of the servants of God. I see the white and colored people together. In the estimation of God there is no distinction of color; all are one in the color and beauty of servitude to him. Color is not important; the heart is all-important. It matters not what the exterior may be if the heart be pure and white within. God does not behold differences of hue and complexion; He looks at the hearts. He whose morals and virtues are praiseworthy is preferred in the presence of God; he who is devoted to the Kingdom is most beloved. In the realm of genesis and creation the question of color is of least importance.

The mineral kingdom abounds with many-colored substances and compositions but we find no strife among them on that account. In the kingdom of the plant and vegetable, distinct and variegated hues exist but the fruit and flowers are not in conflict for that reason. Nay, rather, the very fact that there is difference and variety lends a charm to the garden. If all were of the same color the effect would be monotonous and depressing. When you enter a rose-garden the wealth of color and variety of floral forms spread before you a picture of wonder and beauty. The world of humanity is like a garden and the various races are the flowers which constitute its adornment and decoration. In the animal kingdom also we find variety of color. See how the doves differ in beauty yet they live together in perfect peace, and love each other. They do not make difference of color a cause of discord and strife. They view each other as the same species and kind. They know they are one in kind. Often a white dove soars aloft with a black one. Throughout the animal kingdom we do not find the creatures separated because of color. They recognize unity of species and oneness of kind. If we do not find color distinction drawn in a kingdom of lower intelligence and reason, how can it be justified among human beings, especially when we know that all have come from the same source and belong to the same household? In origin and intention of creation mankind is one. Distinctions of race and color have arisen afterward.

Therefore today I am exceedingly glad that both white and colored people have gathered here and I hope the time will come when they shall live together in the utmost peace, unity and friendship. I wish to say one thing of importance to both in order that the white race may be just and kind to the colored and that the colored race may in turn be grateful and appreciative toward the white. The great proclamation of liberty and emancipation from slavery was made upon this continent. A long bloody war was fought by white men for the sake of colored people. These white men forfeited their possessions and sacrificed their lives by thousands in order that colored men might be freed from bondage. The colored population of the United States of America are possibly not fully informed of the wide-reaching effect of this freedom and emancipation upon their colored brethren in Asia and Africa where even more terrible conditions of slavery existed. Influenced and impelled by the example of the United States, the European powers proclaimed universal liberty to the colored race and slavery ceased to exist. This effort and accomplishment by the white nations should never be lost sight of. Both races should rejoice in gratitude, for the institution of liberty and equality here became the cause of liberating your fellow-beings elsewhere. The colored people of this country are especially fortunate, for, praise be to God! conditions here are so much higher than in the East and comparatively few differences exist in the possibility of equal attainments with the white race. May both develop toward the highest degree of equality and altruism. May you be drawn together in friendship and may extraordinary development make brotherhood a reality and truth. I pray in your behalf that there shall be no name other than that of humanity among you. For instance we say "a flock of doves," without mention or distinction as to white or black; we apply the name "horse," "deer," "gazelle" to other creatures, referring to species and not to their variance in color. It is my hope that through love and fellowship we may advance to such a degree of mutual recognition and estimate, that the oneness of the human world may be realized in each and all present in this meeting.

Therefore strive earnestly and put forth your greatest endeavor toward the accomplishment of this fellowship and the cementing of this bond of brotherhood between you. Such an attainment is not possible without will and effort on the part of each; from one, expressions of gratitude and appreciation; from the other kindliness and recognition of equality. Each one should endeavor to develop and assist the other toward mutual advancement. This is possible only by conjoining of effort and inclination. Love and unity will be fostered between you, thereby bringing about the oneness of mankind. For the accomplishment of unity between the colored and whites will be an assurance of the world's peace. Then racial prejudice, national prejudice, limited patriotism and religious bias will pass away and remain no longer. I am pleased to see you at this gathering, white and dark, and I praise God that I have had this opportunity of seeing you loving each other, for this is the means of the glory of humanity. This is the means of the good-pleasure of God and of eternal bliss in His kingdom. Therefore I pray in your behalf that you may attain to the fullest degree of love and that the day may come when all differences between you may disappear.

`Abdu´l-Bahá, Bahá'í World Faith, pp. 267-270 [note: the phrase "colored people" was in common use during the time of `Abdu´l-Bahá]

gather together these two races

You have written that there were several meetings of joy and happiness, one for white and another for colored people. Praise be to God! As both races are under the protection of the All-Knowing God, therefore the lamps of unity must be lighted in such a manner in these meetings that no distinction be perceived between the white and colored. Colors are phenomenal, but the realities of men are essence. When there exists unity of the essence what power has the phenomenal? When the light of reality is shining what power has the darkness of the unreal? If it be possible, gather together these two races, black and white, into one Assembly, and put such love into their hearts that they shall not only unite but even intermarry. Be sure that the result of this will abolish differences and disputes between black and white. Moreover, by the Will of God, may it be so. This is a great service to humanity.

`Abdu´l-Bahá, Bahá'í World Faith, p. 359 [note: the phrase "colored people" was in common use during the time of `Abdu´l-Bahá]

---

is not all humanity one race?

Consider the creation of the infinite universe. This globe of ours is one of the smallest planets. Those stupendous bodies revolving in yonder immeasurable space, the infinite blue canopy of God, are many times greater than our small earth. To our eyes this globe appears spacious; yet when we look upon it with divine eyes, it is reduced to the tiniest atom. This small planet is not worthy of division. Is it not one home, one native land? Is not all humanity one race? Creationally there is no difference whatsoever between the peoples.

How short-sighted we would be should we try to divide a room into the eastern and western corners. The geographical division of this world is an exact parallel. Through our ignorance and lack of viewpoint we divide this common home, we divide the members of this family into various races, we divide religion into different sects and then with those suppositional division we wage war against one another; we shed one another's blood and we pillage one another's possessions. Is not this unpardonable ignorance? Is this not the height of injustice? Were we just and could we observe without prejudice we would realize that there are no fundamental differences. For the last six thousand years there have been wars and contentions between the various nations and in every age we have had some great culminating catastrophe.

`Abdu´l-Bahá, Divine Philosophy, p. 178

---

prejudices have caused the world's sickness

All prejudices, whether of religion, race, politics or nation, must be renounced, for these prejudices have caused the world's sickness. It is a grave malady which, unless arrested, is capable of causing the destruction of the whole human race. Every ruinous war, with its terrible bloodshed and misery, has been caused by one or other of these prejudices.

The deplorable wars going on in these days are caused by the fanatical religious hatred of one people for another, or the prejudices of race or colour.

`Abdu´l-Bahá, Paris Talks, p. 146

God has not created men that they should destroy one another

Concerning the prejudice of race: it is an illusion, a superstition pure and simple! For God created us all of one race. There were no differences in the beginning, for we are all descendants of Adam. In the beginning, also, there were no limits and boundaries between the different lands; no part of the earth belonged more to one people than to another. In the sight of God there is no difference between the various races. Why should man invent such a prejudice? How can we uphold war caused by an illusion?

God has not created men that they should destroy one another. All races, tribes, sects and classes share equally in the Bounty of their Heavenly Father.

The only difference lies in the degree of faithfulness, of obedience to the laws of God. There are some who are as lighted torches, there are others who shine as stars in the sky of humanity. The lovers of mankind, these are the superior men, of whatever nation, creed, or colour they may be. For it is they to whom God will say these blessed words, 'Well done, My good and faithful servants'. In that day He will not ask, 'Are you English, French, or perhaps Persian? Do you come from the East, or from the West?'

The only division that is real is this: There are heavenly men and earthly men; self-sacrificing servants of humanity in the love of the Most High, bringing harmony and unity, teaching peace and goodwill to men. On the other hand there are those selfish men, haters of their brethren, in whose hearts prejudice has replaced loving kindness, and whose influence breeds discord and strife.

To which race or to which colour belong these two divisions of men, to the White, to the Yellow, to the Black, to the East or to the West, to the North or to the South? If these are God's divisions, why should we invent others? Political prejudice is equally mischievous, it is one of the greatest causes of bitter strife amongst the children of men. There are people who find pleasure in breeding discord, who constantly endeavour to goad their country into making war upon other nations -- and why? They think to advantage their own country to the detriment of all others. They send armies to harass and destroy the land, in order to become famous in the world, for the joy of conquest. That it may be said: 'Such a country has defeated another, and brought it under the yoke of their stronger, more superior rule'. This victory, bought at the price of much bloodshed, is not lasting! The conqueror shall one day be conquered; and the vanquished ones victorious! Remember the history of the past: did not France conquer Germany more than once -- then did not the German nation overcome France?

We learn also that France conquered England; then was the English nation victorious over France!

These glorious conquests are so ephemeral! Why attach so great importance to them and to their fame, as to be willing to shed the blood of the people for their attainment? Is any victory worth the inevitable train of evils consequent upon human slaughter, the grief and sorrow and ruin which must overwhelm so many homes of both nations? For it is not possible that one country alone should suffer.

Oh! why will man, the disobedient child of God, who should be an example of the power of the spiritual law, turn his face away from the Divine Teaching and put all his effort into destruction and war?

My hope is that in this enlightened century the Divine Light of love will shed its radiance over the whole world, seeking out the responsive heart's intelligence of every human being; that the light of the Sun of Truth will lead politicians to shake off all the claims of prejudice and superstition, and with freed minds to follow the Policy of God: for Divine Politics are mighty, man's politics are feeble! God has created all the world, and bestows His Divine Bounty upon every creature.

Are we not the servants of God? Shall we neglect to follow our Master's Example, and ignore His Commands?

`Abdu´l-Bahá, Paris Talks, pp. 148-150

Return to World Peace and Unity

http://truebahai.com:80/docs/abdul-baha-universal-peace.html

O ye esteemed ones who are pioneers among the well-wishers of the world of humanity!

The letters which ye sent during the war were not received, but a letter dated February 11th, 1916, has just come to hand, and immediately an answer is being written. Your intention deserves a thousand praises, because you are serving the world of humanity, and this is conducive to the happiness and welfare of all. This recent war has proved to the world and the people that war is destruction while universal peace is construction; war is death while peace is life; war is rapacity and bloodthirstiness while peace is beneficence and humaneness; war is an appurtenance of the world of nature while peace is of the foundation of the religion of God; war is darkness upon darkness while peace is heavenly light; war is the destroyer of the edifice of mankind while peace is the everlasting life of the world of humanity; war is like a devouring wolf while peace is like the angels of heaven; war is the struggle for existence while peace is mutual aid and co-operation among the peoples of the world and the cause of the good-pleasure of the True One in the heavenly realm.

There is not one soul whose conscience does not testify that in this day there is no more important matter in the world than that of universal peace. Every just one bears witness to this and adores that esteemed Assembly because its aim is that this darkness may be changed into light, this bloodthirstiness into kindness, this torment into bliss, this hardship into ease and this enmity and hatred into fellowship and love. Therefore, the effort of those esteemed souls is worthy of praise and commendation.

But the wise souls who are aware of the essential relationships emanating from the realities of things consider that one single matter cannot, by itself, influence the human reality as it ought and should, for until the minds of men become united, no important matter can be accomplished. At present universal peace is a matter of great importance, but unity of conscience is essential, so that the foundation of this matter may become secure, its establishment firm and its edifice strong.

Therefore Bahá'u'lláh, fifty years ago, expounded this question of universal peace at a time when He was confined in the fortress of 'Akká and was wronged and imprisoned. He wrote about this important matter of universal peace to all the great sovereigns of the world, and established it among His friends in the orient. The horizon of the east was in utter darkness, nations displayed the utmost hatred and enmity towards each other, religions thirsted for each other's blood, and it was darkness upon darkness. At such a time Bahá'u'lláh shone forth like the sun from the horizon of the east and illumined Persia with the lights of these teachings.

Among His teachings was the declaration of universal peace. People of different nations, religions and sects who followed Him came together to such an extent that remarkable gatherings were instituted consisting of the various nations and religions of the east. Every soul who entered these gatherings saw but one nation, one teaching, one pathway, one order, for the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh were not limited to the establishment of universal peace. They embraced many teachings which supplemented and supported that of universal peace.

Among these teachings was the independent investigation of reality so that the world of humanity may be saved from the darkness of imitation and attain to the truth; may tear off and cast away this ragged and outgrown garment of a thousand years ago and may put on the robe woven in the utmost purity and holiness in the loom of reality. As reality is one and cannot admit of multiplicity, therefore different opinions must ultimately become fused into one.

And among the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh is the oneness of the world of humanity; that all human beings are the sheep of God and He is the kind Shepherd. This Shepherd is kind to all the sheep, because He created them all, trained them, provided for them and protected them. There is no doubt that the Shepherd is kind to all the sheep and should there be among these sheep ignorant ones, they must be educated; if there be children, they must be trained until they reach maturity; if there be sick ones, they must be cured. There must be no hatred and enmity, for as by a kind physician these ignorant, sick ones should be treated.

And among the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh is that religion must be the cause of fellowship and love. If it becomes the cause of estrangement then it is not needed, for religion is like a remedy; if it aggravates the disease then it becomes unnecessary.

And among the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh is that religion must be in conformity with science and reason, so that it may influence the hearts of men. The foundation must be solid and must not consist of imitations.

And among the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh is that religious, racial, political, economic and patriotic prejudices destroy the edifice of humanity. As long as these prejudices prevail, the world of humanity will not have rest. For a period of 6,000 years history informs us about the world of humanity. During these 6,000 years the world of humanity has not been free from war, strife, murder and bloodthirstiness. In every period war has been waged in one country or another and that war was due to either religious prejudice, racial prejudice, political prejudice or patriotic prejudice. It has therefore been ascertained and proved that all prejudices are destructive of the human edifice. As long as these prejudices persist, the struggle for existence must remain dominant, and bloodthirstiness and rapacity continue. Therefore, even as was the case in the past, the world of humanity cannot be saved from the darkness of nature and cannot attain illumination except through the abandonment of prejudices and the acquisition of the morals of the Kingdom.

If this prejudice and enmity are on account of religion consider that religion should be the cause of fellowship, otherwise it is fruitless. And if this prejudice be the prejudice of nationality consider that all mankind are of one nation; all have sprung from the tree of Adam, and Adam is the root of the tree. That tree is one and all these nations are like branches, while the individuals of humanity are like leaves, blossoms and fruits thereof. Then the establishment of various nations and the consequent shedding of blood and destruction of the edifice of humanity result from human ignorance and selfish motives.

As to the patriotic prejudice, this is also due to absolute ignorance, for the surface of the earth is one native land. Every one can live in any spot on the terrestrial globe. Therefore all the world is man's birthplace. These boundaries and outlets have been devised by man. In the creation, such boundaries and outlets were not assigned. Europe is one continent, Asia is one continent, Africa is one continent, Australia is one continent, but some of the souls, from personal motives and selfish interests, have divided each one of these continents and considered a certain part as their own country. God has set up no frontier between France and Germany; they are continuous. Yea, in the first centuries, selfish souls, for the promotion of their own interests, have assigned boundaries and outlets and have, day by day, attached more importance to these, until this led to intense enmity, bloodshed and rapacity in subsequent centuries. In the same way this will continue indefinitely, and if this conception of patriotism remains limited within a certain circle, it will be the primary cause of the world's destruction. No wise and just person will acknowledge these imaginary distinctions. Every limited area which we call our native country we regard as our motherland, whereas the terrestrial globe is the motherland of all, and not any restricted area. In short, for a few days we live on this earth and eventually we are buried in it, it is our eternal tomb. Is it worth while that we should engage in bloodshed and tear one another to pieces for this eternal tomb? Nay, far from it, neither is God pleased with such conduct nor would any sane man approve of it.

Consider! The blessed animals engage in no patriotic quarrels. They are in the utmost fellowship with one another and live together in harmony. For example, if a dove from the east and a dove from the west, a dove from the north and a dove from the south chance to arrive, at the same time, in one spot, they immediately associate in harmony. So is it with all the blessed animals and birds. But the ferocious animals, as soon as they meet, attack and fight with each other, tear each other to pieces and it is impossible for them to live peaceably together in one spot. They are all unsociable and fierce, savage and combative fighters.

Regarding the economic prejudice, it is apparent that whenever the ties between nations become strengthened and the exchange of commodities accelerated, and any economic principle is established in one country, it will ultimately affect the other countries and universal benefits will result. Then why this prejudice?

As to the political prejudice, the policy of God must be followed and it is indisputable that the policy of God is greater than human policy. We must follow the Divine policy and that applies alike to all individuals. He treats all individuals alike: no distinction is made, and that is the foundation of the Divine Religions.

And among the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh is the origination of one language that may be spread universally among the people. This teaching was revealed from the pen of Bahá'u'lláh in order that this universal language may eliminate misunderstandings from among mankind.

And among the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh is the equality of women and men. The world of humanity has two wings -- one is women and the other men. Not until both wings are equally developed can the bird fly. Should one wing remain weak, flight is impossible. Not until the world of women becomes equal to the world of men in the acquisition of virtues and perfections, can success and prosperity be attained as they ought to be.

And among the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh is voluntary sharing of one's property with others among mankind. This voluntary sharing is greater than equality, and consists in this, that man should not prefer himself to others, but rather should sacrifice his life and property for others. But this should not be introduced by coercion so that it becomes a law and man is compelled to follow it. Nay, rather, man should voluntarily and of his own choice sacrifice his property and life for others, and spend willingly for the poor, just as is done in Persia among the Bahá'ís.

And among the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh is man's freedom, that through the ideal Power he should be free and emancipated from the captivity of the world of nature; for as long as man is captive to nature he is a ferocious animal, as the struggle for existence is one of the exigencies of the world of nature. This matter of the struggle for existence is the fountain-head of all calamities and is the supreme affliction.

And among the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh is that religion is a mighty bulwark. If the edifice of religion shakes and totters, commotion and chaos will ensue and the order of things will be utterly upset, for in the world of mankind there are two safeguards that protect man from wrongdoing. One is the law which punishes the criminal; but the law prevents only the manifest crime and not the concealed sin; whereas the ideal safeguard, namely, the religion of God, prevents both the manifest and the concealed crime, trains man, educates morals, compels the adoption of virtues and is the all-inclusive power which guarantees the felicity of the world of mankind. But by religion is meant that which is ascertained by investigation and not that which is based on mere imitation, the foundations of Divine Religions and not human imitations.

And among the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh is that although material civilization is one of the means for the progress of the world of mankind, yet until it becomes combined with Divine civilization, the desired result, which is the felicity of mankind, will not be attained. Consider! These battleships that reduce a city to ruins within the space of an hour are the result of material civilization; likewise the Krupp guns, the Mauser rifles, dynamite, submarines, torpedo boats, armed aircraft and bombers -- all these weapons of war are the malignant fruits of material civilization. Had material civilization been combined with Divine civilization, these fiery weapons would never have been invented. Nay, rather, human energy would have been wholly devoted to useful inventions and would have been concentrated on praiseworthy discoveries. Material civilization is like a lamp-glass. Divine civilization is the lamp itself and the glass without the light is dark. Material civilization is like the body. No matter how infinitely graceful, elegant and beautiful it may be, it is dead. Divine civilization is like the spirit, and the body gets its life from the spirit, otherwise it becomes a corpse. It has thus been made evident that the world of mankind is in need of the breaths of the Holy Spirit. Without the spirit the world of mankind is lifeless, and without this light the world of mankind is in utter darkness. For the world of nature is an animal world. Until man is born again from the world of nature, that is to say, becomes detached from the world of nature, he is essentially an animal, and it is the teachings of God which convert this animal into a human soul.

And among the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh is the promotion of education. Every child must be instructed in sciences as much as is necessary. If the parents are able to provide the expenses of this education, it is well, otherwise the community must provide the means for the teaching of that child.

And among the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh are justice and right. Until these are realized on the plane of existence, all things shall be in disorder and remain imperfect. The world of mankind is a world of oppression and cruelty, and a realm of aggression and error.

In fine, such teachings are numerous. These manifold principles, which constitute the greatest basis for the felicity of mankind and are of the bounties of the Merciful, must be added to the matter of universal peace and combined with it, so that results may accrue. Otherwise the realization of universal peace by itself in the world of mankind is difficult. As the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh are combined with universal peace, they are like a table provided with every kind of fresh and delicious food. Every soul can find, at that table of infinite bounty, that which he desires. If the question is restricted to universal peace alone, the remarkable results which are expected and desired will not be attained. The scope of universal peace must be such that all the communities and religions may find their highest wish realized in it. The teachings of Bahá'u'lláh are such that all the communities of the world, whether religious, political or ethical, ancient or modern, find in them the expression of their highest wish.

For example, the people of religions find, in the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh, the establishment of Universal Religion -- a religion that perfectly conforms with present conditions, which in reality effects the immediate cure of the incurable disease, which relieves every pain, and bestows the infallible antidote for every deadly poison. For if we wish to arrange and organize the world of mankind in accordance with the present religious imitations and thereby to establish the felicity of the world of mankind, it is impossible and impracticable -- for example, the enforcement of the laws of the Torah and also of the other religions in accordance with present imitations. But the essential basis of all the Divine Religions which pertains to the virtues of the world of mankind and is the foundation of the welfare of the world of man, is found in the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh in the most perfect presentation.

Similarly, with regard to the peoples who clamour for freedom: the moderate freedom which guarantees the welfare of the world of mankind and maintains and preserves the universal relationships, is found in its fullest power and extension in the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh.

So with regard to political parties: that which is the greatest policy directing the world of mankind, nay, rather, the Divine policy, is found in the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh.

Likewise with regard to the party of 'equality' which seeks the solution of the economic problems: until now all proposed solutions have proved impracticable except the economic proposals in the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh which are practicable and cause no distress to society.

So with the other parties: when ye look deeply into this matter, ye will discover that the highest aims of those parties are found in the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh. These teachings constitute the all-inclusive power among all men and are practicable. But there are some teachings of the past, such as those of the Torah, which cannot be carried out at the present day. It is the same with the other religions and the tenets of the various sects and the different parties.

For example, the question of universal peace, about which Bahá'u'lláh says that the Supreme Tribunal must be established: although the League of Nations has been brought into existence, yet it is incapable of establishing universal peace. But the Supreme Tribunal which Bahá'u'lláh has described will fulfil this sacred task with the utmost might and power. And His plan is this: that the national assemblies of each country and nation -- that is to say parliaments -- should elect two or three persons who are the choicest men of that nation, and are well informed concerning international laws and the relations between governments and aware of the essential needs of the world of humanity in this day. The number of these representatives should be in proportion to the number of inhabitants of that country. The election of these souls who are chosen by the national assembly, that is, the parliament, must be confirmed by the upper house, the congress and the cabinet and also by the president or monarch so these persons may be the elected ones of all the nation and the government. From among these people the members of the Supreme Tribunal will be elected, and all mankind will thus have a share therein, for every one of these delegates is fully representative of his nation. When the Supreme Tribunal gives a ruling on any international question, either unanimously or by majority rule, there will no longer be any pretext for the plaintiff or ground of objection for the defendant. In case any of the governments or nations, in the execution of the irrefutable decision of the Supreme Tribunal, be negligent or dilatory, the rest of the nations will rise up against it, because all the governments and nations of the world are the supporters of this Supreme Tribunal. Consider what a firm foundation this is! But by a limited and restricted League the purpose will not be realized as it ought and should. This is the truth about the situation, which has been stated....

[Tablet dated December 17, 1919, published in Selections from the Writings of `Abdu´l-Bahá, pp. 296- 307]

Return to World Peace and Unity

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

Bahá'u'lláh on the Origin of Conflict

Bahá'u'lláh on the Origin of Conflict

"Consider the visible sun; although it shineth with one radiance upon all things, and at the behest of the King of Manifestation bestoweth light on all creation, yet in each place it becometh manifest and sheddeth its bounty according to the potentialities of that place. For instance, in a mirror it reflecteth its own disk and shape, and this is due to the sensitivity of the mirror; in a crystal it maketh fire to appear, and in other things it showeth only the effect of its shining, but not its full disk. And yet, through that effect, by the command of the Creator, it traineth each thing according to the quality of that thing, as thou observest.

"In like manner, colors become visible in every object according to the nature of that object. For instance, in a yellow globe, the rays shine yellow; in a white the rays are white; and in a red, the red rays are manifest. Then these variations are from the object, not from the shining light. And if a place be shut away from the light, as by walls or a roof, it will be entirely bereft of the splendor of the light, nor will the sun shine thereon.

"Thus it is that certain invalid souls have confined the lands of knowledge within the wall of self and passion, and clouded them with ignorance and blindness, and have been veiled from the light of the mystic sun and the mysteries of the Eternal Beloved; they have strayed afar from the jewelled wisdom of the lucid Faith of the Lord of Messengers, have been shut out of the sanctuary of the All-Beauteous One....

"In sum, the differences in objects have now been made plain. Thus when the wayfarer gazeth only upon the place of appearance -- that is, when he seeth only the many-colored globes -- he beholdeth yellow and red and white; hence it is that conflict hath prevailed among the creatures, and a darksome dust from limited souls hath hid the world. And some do gaze upon the effulgence of the light; and some have drunk of the wine of oneness and these see nothing but the sun itself.

"Thus, for that they move on these three differing planes, the understanding and the words of the wayfarers have differed; and hence the sign of conflict doth continually appear on earth. For some there are who dwell upon the plane of oneness and speak of that world, and some inhabit the realms of limitation, and some the grades of self, while others are completely veiled. Thus do the ignorant people of the day, who have no portion of the radiance of Divine Beauty, make certain claims, and in every age and cycle inflict on the people of the sea of oneness what they themselves deserve. 'Should God punish men for their perverse doings, He would not leave on earth a moving thing! But to an appointed term doth He respite them....' Qur'án 16:63."

Bahá'u'lláh, The Seven Valleys, pp. 18-21

Return to World Peace and Unity

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

Just Hungry for Love
by Silvana Campbell

God created us to want love
need love
give and share love

When a soul is deprived of
The precious nutrient of love
They do things

So

Don t be surprised when you find that behind each mean word or sarcastic remark
Is a soul
Just hungry for love

Don t be surprised when you find that behind each clenched fist or each curse uttered is a soul
starved of love

Don t be surprised when you find that behind each tear streaked cheek or each scowling face is a soul just longing for love

So next time
Don t look at the bad language or the black eye or the hurtful angry word that just crashed into your ear and sliced your own soul

but learn to look behind all those things at the malnourished, miserable, poor little soul

just hungry for love

God gave us all a want for love a need for love and most importantly the ability to Give Love

RETURN TO MAIN LINKS MENU

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

http://truebahai.com:80/docs/intro_to_faith.htm

INTRODUCTION TO
ORTHODOX BAHÁ'Í FAITH

The Orthodox Bahá'í Faith is an independent world religion. The word "orthodox" is a temporary designation intended to distinguish the faithful Bahá'ís from those who have strayed from the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh (those whose organizations are presently headquartered in Wilmette, Illinois and Haifa, Israel). The word "orthodox" connotes the fact that we faithfully adhere to the original teachings of the Faith. For information about the difference between the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith and the sans-Guardian organization, click here.

The central teachings of the Faith are the oneness of God, religion and humanity. We believe that God's Religion is a continuous and progressive process of revelation and all of the great world religions come from God. Each religion carries the spiritual and social teachings in successive stages according to the capacity and needs of the people to whom it was revealed. Today, the Bahá'í Revelation teaches the spiritual and social principles needed by humanity for this Day.

We are striving to bring about world unity and peace, and to eliminate hatred and prejudices. The Bahá'í Teachings all revolve around this mission, and the institutions of the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith that are being established are all designed to institute a united world community, to promote concord and unity between the peoples of the world, and to establish a just peace and orderly progress in society.

We urge you to explore the teachings of the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith and to ask any questions you may have. Send your questions to Email uses JavaScript to defend against SPAM.
You must enable JavaScript to contact me.

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

http://truebahai.com:80/docs/maxwell-guardianship.html

May Maxwell on the Guardianship:

(From a one-page document headed with the following: 'Words written by beloved May Maxwell which she permitted me to copy.. .A. B. Alexander')

Do we turn sufficiently, wholly and consciously to the irresistible might of the guardian?

Can we dare say that we administratively, collectively or individually tap the infinite resources concealed in the (mystery of the) guardianship?

Every one of us realizes that he singly and alone outweighs the world, that in the light of the Supreme Being he is more precious than the entire human race.

I believe that if the truth were known, every success in the Faith is in direct ratio to this "turning", this utter dependence on him, and every failure due to, etc.

Bahá'u'lláh hears and grants our prayers, it is promised us, but in this hour of supreme danger, the more firmly we grasp that mighty cord held in the grasp of the Almighty, a life-rope through the oncoming storms, the more shall we be moved by his all-swaying power and guided under his shadow, etc.

We in America still believe in size and numbers despite the revelations of science of the power of imponderable forces. Quantity, not quality, colours the mental consciousness of the West to a great degree.

Undoubtedly the chief comer-stone of the Will and Testament is the Guardianship, and the crux of this mighty institution, including the International House of Justice, once it is formed, lies in the one word, "turn". "Turn unto him." All things in the universe "turn". The invisible rays which form the atoms - the earth on its axis - its relation in the solar system - that system turns around another faster center, thus in the single word, "turn unto Shoghi Effendi," the law of the universe, the law of life has been established at the centre, the heart of the divine religion, the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh. Our entire life, inwardly and outwardly hinges on this "turning." . . .In the words of the Master, "concentrated in a Point of concentration"; in the words of Christ, "if the eye be single," it is a law. Likewise we shall turn in the future to the International House of Justice because the Guardian is its head. Through him that body elected from the human plane, the elect of the elect, through him they become overshadowed by that mighty power, through him alone they are linked with God.

We know that Bahá'u'lláh hears and grants our prayers within bounds perhaps of our finite faith and limitation, but the prayer of the Guardian is irresistible, all-moving, all-potent.

RETURN TO MAIN LINKS MENU

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

http://truebahai.com:80/docs/openletter.html

An Open Letter to a Heterodox Believer:

Dear [Heterodox Bahá'í],

I'm writing this letter in order to express my concerns.

Not too long ago I was sharing the Faith with a close friend of mine whom happens to be a Sikh. I was so excited in having the chance to explain the beautiful Faith to her. We had talked about other faiths as well and how the Bahá'í Faith is prophesied in all the true faiths of the world. But most of the human race doesn't recognize this because they have deviated so far from the truth. Then she asked me a question that surprised me. She asked, "So how can you be sure that the Bahá'í Faith won't deviate from the truth?"

Recently, I have been studying the Will and Testament [of `Abdu´l-Bahá] with some friends. At the end of the session there are 14 questions listed. I was finding my answers to these questions when all of a sudden, it was like a light went on. Question #5, "How will 'the mighty stronghold' of the Cause 'remain impregnable and safe"? The answer, "The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through the obedience to him who is the Guardian of the Cause of God."

What a wonderful answer. A Guardian on this earth to keep us from deviating from the truth. A Guardian to translate the Holy Writings. A true living Guardian to guide us to God's Kingdom. How great this would be.

However, the large body of Bahá'ís don't believe this to be true. So then how do the large body of Bahá'ís keep themselves from deviating from the truth?

I read on. After the questions it has some recommended reading. One of them is the Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh. So I read it again, looking for an answer as to how Bahá'ís can be sure that they are staying true to the Faith.

Of course, it continuously talks about the importance of the Guardianship. One quote that stands out in regards to my question is "Without such an institution, (the Guardianship) the integrity of the faith would be endangered. It's prestige would suffer, the means required to take a long, uninterrupted view over a series of generations would be completely lacking, and the necessary guidance to define the sphere of legislative action of it's representatives would be totally withdrawn." Without the Guardian the integrity of the faith would be endangered. So how is the Faith, at this present time, being kept from becoming endangered if it's believed by most that there is no Guardian?

Later, I had asked one of the friends how Bahá'ís are supposed to keep themselves from deviating from the truth. He told me that the Bahá'ís, in order to remain true to the faith are to follow the Will and Testament of `Abdu´l-Bahá. Well let's have closer look.

"By this body (the Universal House of Justice) all difficult problems are to resolved and the Guardian of the Cause of God is its sacred head and distinguished member for life of that body." But if there is no Guardian, there is no sacred head. How can a body live without a head?

"The Hands of the Cause of God must elect from their own number nine persons that shall at all times be occupied in the important services in the work of the Guardian of the Cause of God." How can this instruction be fulfilled when soon there will be no more Hands of the Cause within the large body of Bahá'ís? And therefore, they can not continually "elect from their own number nine persons that shall at all times be occupied in the important services in the work of the Guardian of the Cause of God."

It is incumbent upon every one, "to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the Guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him." Another instruction that is not being followed, because it's believed by the large body of Bahá'ís that there is no Guardian.

"This body of the Hands of the Cause of God is under the direction of the Guardian of the Cause of God. He must continually urge them to strive and endeavor to the utmost of their ability to diffuse the sweet savors of God, and to guide all the peoples of the world..." So, if it's believed by the large body of Bahá'ís, that there is no Guardian and soon no more Hands of the Cause who is going to guide all the peoples of the world?

These are just a few excerpts taken from the Will and Testament that already, aren't being followed. Again because it's believed by most that there is no Guardian.

But with a living Guardian the instructions in the Will and Testament could be completely followed. No question. How wonderful that would be.

What have I been told about the Will and Testament of `Abdu´l-Bahá? How important is it to the Bahá'í Faith? It's of the utmost importance. That it's as if the Words have come from Bahá'u'lláh himself. That together, the Will and Testament with the most Holy Book, "are inseparable parts of one complete unit." They are both Holy Writings that can not be changed or altered. Shoghi Effendi states, speaking of the Administrative Order, that no one shall, "misconceive its character, belittle its significance or misrepresent its purpose. The bedrock on which this Administrative Order is founded is God's immutable purpose for mankind in this day."

What I see happening right now with the large body of Bahá'ís is terrifying. Because from what I see, if the Will and Testament is supposed to keep everybody true to the faith and nobody is following it, they must be already deviating. This is one of the reasons why I believe it is so important to have a living Guardian on this earth today.

Isn't there any possibility that Shoghi Effendi chose his successor and he went unrecognized?

Damaris Campbell

RETURN TO MAIN LINKS MENU

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

http://truebahai.com:80/docs/peaceplan.html

Bahá'í Peace Plan

The Bahá'í Faith teaches that peace is an inevitable stage in the development of humanity. It will come in two stages:

1) The Lesser Peace- which will be a political unification of the planet in which the nations of the earth will agree to cease all war and resolve boundary disputes and other disagreements with peaceful means (and if any country does wage war, all of the other countries would rise up to stop it). We can see the world moving towards the Lesser Peace right now.

2) The Most Great Peace-- a development in the future that will be characterized by the establishment of a world civilization and brotherhood. Bahá'ís believe their own administrative structure is the embryonic pattern for such a world order. Bahá'ís believe that the establishment of the Most Great Peace will be the fulfillment of ancient prophecies for the Kingdom of Heaven on earth.

From Shoghi Effendi's World Order of Bahá'u'lláh, describing the world commonwealth (pp. 203-204:

"The unity of the human race, as envisaged by Bahá'u'lláh, implies the establishment of a world commonwealth in which all nations, races, creeds and classes are closely and permanently united, and in which the autonomy of its state members and the personal freedom and initiative of the individuals that compose them are definitely and completely safeguarded. This commonwealth must, as far as we can visualize it, consist of a world legislature, whose members will, as the trustees of the whole of mankind, ultimately control the entire resources of all the component nations, and will enact such laws as shall be required to regulate the life, satisfy the needs and adjust the relationships of all races and peoples. A world executive, backed by an international Force, will carry out the decisions arrived at, and apply the laws enacted by, this world legislature, and will safeguard the organic unity of the whole commonwealth. A world tribunal will adjudicate and deliver its compulsory and final verdict in all and any disputes that may arise between the various elements constituting this universal system. A mechanism of world inter-communication will be devised, embracing the whole planet, freed from national hindrances and restrictions, and functioning with marvellous swiftness and perfect regularity. A world metropolis will act as the nerve center of a world civilization, the focus towards which the unifying forces of life will converge and from which its energizing influences will radiate. A world language will either be invented or chosen from among the existing languages and will be taught in the schools of all the federated nations as an auxiliary to their mother tongue. A world script, a world literature, a uniform and universal system of currency, of weights and measures, will simplify and facilitate intercourse and understanding among the nations and races of mankind. In such a world society, science and religion, the two most potent forces in human life, will be reconciled, will cooperate, and will harmoniously develop. The press will, under such a system, while giving full scope to the expression of the diversified views and convictions of mankind, cease to be mischievously manipulated by vested interests, whether private or public, and will be liberated from the influence of contending governments and peoples. The economic resources of the world will be organized, its sources of raw materials will be tapped and fully utilized, its markets will be coordinated and developed, and the distribution of its products will be equitably regulated.

"National rivalries, hatreds, and intrigues will cease, and racial animosity and prejudice will be replaced by racial amity, understanding and cooperation. The causes of religious strife will be permanently removed, economic barriers and restrictions will be completely abolished, and the inordinate distinction between classes will be obliterated. Destitution on the one hand, and gross accumulation of ownership on the other, will disappear. The enormous energy dissipated and wasted on war, whether economic or political, will be consecrated to such ends as will extend the range of human inventions and technical development, to the increase of the productivity of mankind, to the extermination of disease, to the extension of scientific research, to the raising of the standard of physical health, to the sharpening and refinement of the human brain, to the exploitation of the unused and unsuspected resources of the planet, to the prolongation of human life, and to the furtherance of any other agency that can stimulate the intellectual, the moral, and spiritual life of the entire human race.

"A world federal system, ruling the whole earth and exercising unchallengeable authority over its unimaginably vast resources, blending and embodying the ideals of both the East and the West, liberated from the curse of war and its miseries, and bent on the exploitation of all the available sources of energy on the surface of the planet, a system in which Force is made the servant of Justice, whose life is sustained by its universal recognition of one God and by its allegiance to one common Revelation--such is the goal towards which humanity, impelled by the unifying forces of life, is moving."

Return to World Peace and Unity

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

http://truebahai.com:80/docs/relevance.html

The Relevance of the Bahá'í Teachings in Today's World
by David Maxwell

In the apparent madness of today's world, there appears to be a need for "something" at times, in order that a sense of sanity may be found for the answers to some very vexing questions. The Bahá'í Teachings proclaim to be the message of God for this day, which should be the end of the discussion, but after 160 years on this Earth, with turmoil seeming to increase daily rather than decrease, we seem to have a paradox on our hands. Yet, the Bahá'ís gain a feeling of comfort from the promises of the Teachings.

While thinking of proofs for this subject, I could think of nothing that is happening in the world today that could not be solved, or could have been avoided in the first place, through the following of the precepts and guidance of the Bahá'í Teachings. I must emphasize that the Orthodox position must be assumed in order to make the above statement true. There must be a Guardian at the helm in order for the Faith to yield its intended efficacy. Yet, while we understand that the ignoring of God's plan for this day led to today's problems, we also possess the comfort of the powerful Prayers and assurances in the Writings of this Most Great Revelation.

The skeptic could argue that while the Faith has been on this Earth since the mid-nineteenth century, it has had little to no influence on bringing an out-of-control world to bay, as evidenced by two major world wars, countless world conflicts, famine and pestilence of untold magnitude, not to mention untold heartache to humanity. Thus, it has seemingly had little success in bringing the Kingdom of God on Earth, as foretold in the Holy books. But wait. Did not Bahá'u'lláh proclaim, while he remained a prisoner of unjust governments during most of His ministry, that mankind had a chance of experiencing the prophesied period of peace on Earth if but the rulers of the world would accept his Teachings and follow Him? We know the results of that. And as each succeeding generation has witnessed, the problems and suffering have increased such that many on this Earth can not find safety and peace even in their own homes.

Consider Bahá'u'lláh's statement "Anticipating the System which the irresistible power of His Law was destined to unfold in a later age, He writes: "The world's equilibrium hath been upset through the vibrating influence of this most great, this new World Order. Mankind's ordered life hath been revolutionized through the agency of this unique, this wondrous System--the like of which mortal eyes have never witnessed. The Hand of Omnipotence hath established His Revelation upon an unassailable, an enduring foundation. Storms of human strife are powerless to undermine its basis, nor will men's fanciful theories succeed in damaging its structure." -- Shoghi Effendi, The World Order of Bahá'u'lláh, p. 109

That quote seems to hold particular power for me, both in providing reasons for the world's troubles, and in proclaiming hope for the future. The world's equilibrium. What can be more important than the equilibrium of an entity? Without equilibrium there is no sense of balance, without balance there is at the very least considerable difficulty. And as each generation has witnessed, the problems have increased to the degree that there seems absolutely no solution for many of them. And why would God destine havoc upon the very creatures He loves? Bahá'ís know that since God's call was not heeded by the rulers of the world many years ago, we were put on the path of "doing it the hard way." Mankind's choice; not His. Yet there remains a comfort..."nor will men's fanciful theories succeed in damaging its structure."

As children, most of us suffered hardships of some sort or another. But the world had a safeness, a saneness to depend upon. At least our world in the United States did. World War II, while murderously horrible to those directly involved, was certainly not the end of things for most of us. In fact, many of the modern medicines and conveniences we have today had their beginnings from that War; penicillin, the harnessing of atomic energy, the development of a network of highways, the development of jet aircraft to enable swift circumvention of the globe. Many of the Bahá'í principles found sanctuary as well, such as the intermarriage of the races.

All the while we continued to feel the safeness and saneness of our country, with a distant view of the hardships of others. And then that was taken from us when the Russians launched their Sputnik beyond the gravitational pull of the Earth in 1957. Now, we became vulnerable. And with the capture of Gary Powers and his U2 spy plane, we came to realize that our government at times withheld information from us, and was capable of the little white lie. Where had the good old days gone? A maturity we did not want was thrust upon us. Would these things have happened to us if the rulers of the world had followed the directives of Bahá'u'lláh and had been following the Bahá'í Teachings?

Then, the ultimate tragedy struck. When the Guardian Shoghi Effendi died in late 1957, the Hands of the Cause quickly tossed out the very essence of the Faith, the Institution of the Guardianship. This act lead additionally to the end of the Institution of the Hands, the re-writing of many passages in the Holy Books, and the illicit handling of the money contributions to the Faith. While the Hand's actions were not bad enough, even more unfortunate was the fact that the overwhelming majority of believers bought it lock, stock, and barrel. Yet there remained a comfort zone for those who continued to support the Institution of the Guardianship.

Later, during the Cuban missile crisis, Russia blinked first. A magnified acceleration of the ills of mankind was everywhere. The rampant use of recreational mind-altering drugs put parents in a dither, and numbed the senses of young people. Would that have happened if the Teachings had been widely followed? And then there was the sexual revolution. Its results have carried unresolved to this day, with increasing perversity. Fast forward. Abortion. What to do? The murder of those who support it. The murder of those who do not support it. And through the Aids virus, the murder of many others. Now we are faced with the consequences of cloning. Will a human clone have a soul? What about stem-cell research? Have to ask the Guardian. Unfortunately, the man on the street has to ask, "What do you mean, ask the Guardian? What Guardian are you talking about?" How do we solve Ebola or SARS? How about terrorism? Shall we solve that on our own, unaided by a Guardian presiding over the Universal House of Justice?

During my working years, I learned many lessons of the goodness of people, and of their treachery. I recall a particularly stressful period when the world-famous McKinsey Corporation came to call, and spent several months roaming around various departments of the company. We were told... "these guys are not efficiency experts, cooperate fully and truthfully with them to assist them in their research." Yeah. Right. When they eventually compiled and released their findings, we had to enact their guidelines. The McKinsey folks, to no one's surprise, found we were overstaffed. That much of our staff was located in the field at various production units, some being hundreds of miles apart, was of no consequence. To cover all the bases we could transfer a half person to cover the defined half-day job at one location; the remaining half person would cover the half-day job at another location. Piece of cake. But over time we somehow managed to accomplish the guidelines. Then management was on our case about the reduced service levels we were providing.

Additionally, our vocabularies were enhanced, with buzzwords such as "rationalization of staff." We were puzzled; what did that mean? Quite simply it meant "reduction of staff." Then I read an article that helped me understand. In order to rebuild a company into a more efficient entity, you must first obliterate the old one. Are not all the old established institutions of the world being obliterated? Like it or not, we are all a part of it. Even the old order of the Bahá'í Faith is in the process of eventual obliteration. While we can take comfort that future generations will benefit from the faithful believers of this period, who hold steadfast to the Bahá'í Covenant, that does not mean it has been an easy path. But God is there with a comforting presence to provide all our needs.

And I cannot recount the continuous tumult we see around us every day of our twenty-first century lives. There is a crisis of the day, and if there isn't a genuine crisis, the news media will fabricate one. Today's scary headline is often never heard of again. We do not know what to believe or who to trust. All the while, our lives and those around us have been in constant change. Most of us hate change. Yet, did not Bahá'u'lláh, `Abdu´l-Bahá, and Shoghi Effendi tell us in their prolific writings, that the World's equilibrium had been upset, and that change of a magnitude never before seen would occur in this world, until the day that Bahá'u'lláh's message was fully instituted?

So here we are, over forty years after the Hands foisted the ultimate crisis on the world, disturbing the intended path of development of the Faith, to make conditions even worse in the world than they would have been had the Second and Third Guardians been recognized by the majority of the Faith. We have the illicit organization in Haifa ruling their flock with their very own man-made version of the Bahá'í Faith. How can the world expect to be any better off? It's a marvel that the world is still spinning, and that the problems are not worse than they are. Now, back to Bahá'u'lláh's quote: "The Hand of Omnipotence hath established His Revelation upon an unassailable, an enduring foundation. Storms of human strife are powerless to undermine its basis, nor will men's fanciful theories succeed in damaging its structure." We are assured of the eventual victory of the Bahá'í Faith. Can anything be more comforting than knowing that men's fanciful theories cannot succeed in damaging the intended path of the Faith?

I challenge anyone to refute that any of the ills of the world over the past 150 years could not have been mitigated through the intended efficacy of the true Bahá'í Teachings, as established by Bahá'u'lláh, taught by the Master `Abdu´l-Bahá, further defined through the pen of Shoghi Effendi, upheld by Mason Remey, and championed through the Guardianship of Joel B. Marangella. Name just one. Can't do it can you?

RETURN TO MAIN LINKS MENU

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

http://truebahai.com:80/docs/sept11.html

Third Guardian's Message on September 11th Terrorist Attacks

The faithful believers have certainly been as shocked, stunned, saddened and dismayed by the recent unforeseen and heinous terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon as their fellow-Americans and grieve along side them at the great loss of life incurred by so many innocent victims. Their hearts go out especially to those who have lost their loved ones in this terrible and unprecedented tragedy and they remember them in their prayers.

We, as Bahá'í's, have the assurance and the consolation from our Writings that those who have lost their lives in this tragic event have ascended to a greater world.

In the midst of this darkness that has fallen upon the world there are traces of some light. It is interesting that this view should also be expressed in a recent article that has appeared in one of the Australian newspapers which states that the Afghans have a proverb: "After every darkness there is light."

It has been gratifying to see the volume of material appearing in the press about the teachings of Islam as well as the numerous statements made by Muslim clerics and officials in interviews held on TV news programs emphasizing that the Qu'rán does not sanction terrorism and explaining the true position of Islam. In fact, a recent newspaper article appearing in the Australian press has devoted two full pages to a presentation of the facts concerning the teachings of Islam, including even a description of the difference between the Shí'ih Muslims and Sunni Muslims. The reader then comes to understand that the terrorists represent a fanatical fringe element who have perverted the teachings of Muhammad to justify their acts of terrorism.

No doubt, you have also seen on TV the pictures of the visit of the President of the United States to a Mosque (with a copy of the Qu'rán on the table in front of him) and have heard his statements in a public address in which he made the point that the war against the terrorists is not to be construed as one against Islam.

The increased understanding of Islam that has resulted from this discussion of Islam should facilitate our future teaching efforts and serve to make the inquirer more receptive to the Bahá'í teachings on the oneness of religion.

Another good thing that has come out of this tragic event is the increased cooperation that has been brought about between most of the governments of the world in an united and determined effort to eliminate terrorism from the world from whatever quarter.

Well nigh 140 years have elapsed since the Declaration of Bahá'u'lláh in the Garden of Ridván. Yet the great masses of the world continue to remain ignorant of His Revelation and have failed therefore to be faithful to the Greater Covenant while the believers have almost universally become violators of the Covenant Bahá'u'lláh. In the light of this sad situation we might well call to mind the dire warning issued by Bahá'u'lláh in which God reveals through Him the following: "We have a fixed time for you, O peoples. If ye fail, at the appointed hour, to turn towards God, He, verily, will lay violent hold on you, and will cause grievous afflictions to assail you from every direction. How severe, indeed, is the chastisement with which your Lord will then chastise you!" (p.113, BWF)

With loving Abhá greetings to all,

Faithfully your brother in El Abhá,

Joel

Letter to National Council 10-1-01 from Joel B. Marangella, Third Guardian

Return to TRUEBAHAI.com

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

http://truebahai.com:80/docs/truefriend.html

What is True Friendship?
by Ross Campbell

Only a spiritually mature man or woman is able to consistently demonstrate true friendship to another man or woman.

Spiritual maturity means accomplishing the application in our lives of the Words of the Holy Messengers. Application means not merely learning their Words, but actually discovering how to make application of those Words in our daily lives. For example, one of those Holy Messengers, His Holiness the Lord Christ said: "There is more happiness in giving than in receiving."

A true friend seeks only good for the other person, and never betrays trust. A person who has the qualities of true friendship even shows kindness and friendship to persons who are his/her enemies, and those who act like enemies. For example, His Holiness the Lord Buddha on one occasion was sitting on some steps when a group of boys came by and commenced vigorously insulting Him and taunting Him, attempting to make Him angry. After some time, one of the boys, having observed that the insults were having no effect upon the Lord Buddha, Who remained sitting peacefully, silently, asked the Lord Buddha why He was not becoming angry with them. He responded by asking a question: "If someone offers a gift and the one to whom the gift is offered refuses the gift, then to whom does the gift belong?" The boy answered: "It continues to belong to the one offering the gift." The Lord Buddha said: " Likewise, I am refusing to accept your insults, therefore they remain yours."

He remained at peace and at the same time taught a lesson in Divine Wisdom to those who wished to make themselves His enemies.

There is very much to say about that true friendship and many true life examples from history to relate. Of course, our truest Friend is the Lord of this age in which we live (Bahá'u'lláh), Who commenced His Ministry in the year 1863, and left us many books full of Truth and Wisdom for us to examine. He is the most loyal Friend, the most trustworthy Friend. He suffered immensely during His Ministry of 40 years and many relatives and apparent friends betrayed Him. He teaches us the blessings of suffering and how our sufferings mature us spiritually and prepare us for the next world.

RETURN TO MAIN LINKS MENU

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

TRUEBAHAI.com
The TRUTH about the Bahá'í Faith

The TRUTH about the Bahá'í Faith is that every letter and every word spoken or written by Bahá'u'lláh, `Abdu'l-Bahá, and Shoghi Effendi was, and still is, TRUE.

None of it has been abrogated.

Some followers of Bahá'u'lláh imagine that God changed His Mind.

Return to TRUEBAHAI.com

How absurd it is to believe that one of the central verities, the very TRUTH of the Bahá'í Revelation - that Divine Guidance flows to mankind from the Universal House of Justice AND the Guardian, its sacred head - has been abrogated.

If you want to be a TRUE Bahá'í, you must accept the Revelation of Bahá'u'lláh in its entirety.

The TRUE covenant-breakers are those who know the TRUTH about the Bahá'í Faith, but turn away from it anyway. The consequences are that the peoples of our sick world, filled with hatred, war, and misery, continue to suffer from their acute illness. The majority of the Bahá'í Faith's adherents have refused to offer up to the world the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh, the prescription for what ails humanity as written by the Divine Physician.

It is time for those TRUE Bahá'ís remaining in the sans-Guardian organization to emerge from the lies and deception, and come forward to defend the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh.

Only instant, exact, and complete obedience to the Guardian will suffice.

You are invited to come under the loving shadow of the Tree of the Covenant in obedience to the living Guardian of the Cause of God,
Joel B. Marangella.

privacy

The Great Violation of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh

The central teaching of the Bahá'í religion is the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh, because it is by firmness in the Covenant that the followers of Bahá'u'lláh will bring to fruition the central mission of the Manifestation of God for this Day: the unification of humanity through the establishment of the world Order of Bahá'u'lláh.

Bahá'u'lláh appointed his eldest son, `Abdu´l-Bahá, as the Center of His Covenant, in the tablet known as the Book of the Covenant:

> When the ocean of My presence hath ebbed and the Book of My Revelation is ended, turn your faces toward Him Whom God hath purposed, Who hath branched from this Ancient Root. The object of this sacred verse is none other except the Most Mighty Branch (`Abdu´l-Bahá). Thus have we graciously revealed unto you our potent Will, and I am verily the Gracious, the All-Powerful.

In that tablet, Bahá'u'lláh commanded His followers to turn towards His Successor, `Abdu´l-Bahá, and to obey Him, because to disobey `Abdu´l-Bahá is tantamount to disobedience to Bahá'u'lláh Himself:

> Render thanks unto God, O people, for His appearance; for verily He is the most great Favor unto you, the most perfect bounty upon you; and through Him every mouldering bone is quickened. Whoso turneth towards Him hath turned towards God, and whoso turneth away from Him hath turned away from My Beauty, hath repudiated My Proof, and transgressed against Me.

Although appointed as Bahá'u'lláh's successor, the Master (`Abdu´l-Bahá) never claimed the station of a Manifestation of God. In His Will and Testament, the Master specifically states:

> His Holiness, the Exalted One (the Báb), is the Manifestation of the Unity and Oneness of God and the Forerunner of the Ancient Beauty. His Holiness the Abhá Beauty (may my life be a sacrifice for His steadfast friends) is the Supreme Manifestation of God and the Dayspring of His Most Divine Essence. All others are servants unto Him and do His bidding.

As the Center of the Covenant, the Master led the Bahá'í world after the passing of His Father, and was instrumental in spreading the Cause to the West. In His many talks and letters, the Master authoritatively expounded upon the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh. Probably the most important aspect of His ministry, however, was His authorship of the Will and Testament, because in this momentous document the Master laid out the fundamental principles of the administrative Order of Bahá'u'lláh and appointed His own successor to lead the Bahá'í world after His passing:

> O my loving friends! After the passing away of this wronged one, it is incumbent upon the Aghsán (Branches), the Afnán (Twigs) of the Sacred Lote-Tree, the Hands (pillars) of the Cause of God and the loved ones of the Abhá Beauty to turn unto Shoghi Effendi-- the youthful branch branched from the two hallowed and sacred Lote-Trees and the fruit grown from the union of the two offshoots of the Tree of Holiness,-- as he is the sign of God, the chosen branch, the Guardian of the Cause of God, he unto whom all the Aghsán, the Afnán, the Hands of the Cause of God and His loved ones must turn. He is the Interpreter of the Word of God and after him will succeed the first-born of his lineal descendants.

The Master appointed His grandson, Shoghi Effendi, as the first Guardian of the Cause and the sole Interpreter of the Word of God. Not only this, but He also provided for future succession by creating the office of the Guardian.

Shoghi Effendi wrote a number of books and letters to the Bahá'í world. These writings all are authoritative interpretations by the appointed Interpreter and Guardian. In what is perhaps Shoghi Effendi's most important writing, The Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh, the Guardian explains the essential verities of the Bahá'í Faith. In that work, the Guardian expounds upon the importance and meaning of the Will and Testament:

> The creative energies released by the Law of Bahá'u'lláh, permeating and evolving within the mind of `Abdu´l-Bahá, have, by their very impact and close interaction, given birth to an Instrument which may be viewed as the Charter of the New World Order which is at once the glory and the promise of this most great Dispensation. The Will may thus be acclaimed as the inevitable offspring resulting from that mystic intercourse between Him Who communicated the generating influence of His divine Purpose and the One Who was its vehicle and chosen recipient. Being the Child of the Covenant-- the Heir of both the Originator and the Interpreter of the Law of God-- the Will and Testament of `Abdu´l-Bahá can no more be divorced from Him Who supplied the original and motivating impulse than from the One Who ultimately conceived it. Bahá'u'lláh's inscrutable purpose, we must ever bear in mind, has been so thoroughly infused into the conduct of `Abdu´l-Bahá, and their motives have been so closely wedded together, that the mere attempt to dissociate the teachings of the former from any system which the ideal Exemplar of those same teachings has established would amount to a repudiation of one of the most sacred and basic truths of the Faith.
>
> The Administrative Order, which ever since `Abdu´l-Bahá's ascension has evolved and is taking shape under our very eyes in no fewer than forty countries of the world, may be considered as the framework of the Will itself, the inviolable stronghold wherein this new-born child is being nurtured and developed. This Administrative Order, as it expands and consolidates itself, will no doubt manifest the potentialities and reveal the full implications of this momentous Document-- this most remarkable expression of the Will of One of the most remarkable Figures of the Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh. It will, as its component parts, its organic institutions, begin to function with efficiency and vigor, assert its claim and demonstrate its capacity to be regarded not only as the nucleus but the very pattern of the New World Order destined to embrace in the fullness of time the whole of mankind

In this passage, the Guardian explains that the Will and Testament is the Charter of Bahá'u'lláh's Order, and that it is the offspring of the mystical intercourse between Bahá'u'lláh and the Master. The Guardian explains that the Will and Testament reveals Bahá'u'lláh's purpose and sets forth the pattern of the Order of Bahá'u'lláh.

It should be clear to every faithful follower of Bahá'u'lláh that the Will and Testament cannot be violated or altered, because to do so would be a repudiation of the central truth of the Bahá'í Faith. A firm understanding of the provisions of the Will and Testament is of fundamental importance. The Master states, in His Will and Testament:

O ye beloved of the Lord! The greatest of all things is the protection of the True Faith of God, the preservation of His Law, the safeguarding of His Cause and service unto His Word. Ten thousand souls have shed streams of their sacred blood in this path, their precious lives they offered in sacrifice unto Him, hastened wrapt in holy ecstasy unto the glorious field of martyrdom, upraised the Standard of God's Faith and writ with their life-blood upon the Tablet of the world the verses of His Divine Unity. The sacred breast of His Holiness, the Exalted One (may my life be a sacrifice unto Him), was made a target to many a dart of woe, and in Mazindaran, the blessed feet of the Abhá Beauty (may my life be offered up for His loved ones) were so grievously scourged as to bleed and be sore wounded. His neck also was put into captive chains and His feet made fast in the stocks. In every hour, for a period of fifty years, a new trial and calamity befell Him and fresh afflictions and cares beset Him

The Will and Testament did not just appoint Shoghi Effendi as the Interpreter and Guardian of the Cause of God, but it also set forth fundamental principles and institutions of the administrative Order of Bahá'u'lláh. The unique mission of the followers of Bahá'u'lláh is to build the structure of this Order. If the Bahá'ís should fail to establish this System, then the sufferings and death of the Founders and the thousands of their followers would be for naught. History reveals that Shoghi Effendi recognized the importance of this mission as his ministry was almost exclusively devoted to the raising of the divine institutions of the Bahá'u'lláh's Order.

The central institutions of the Order are the Guardian and the Universal House of Justice. In His Will and Testament, the Master states:

The sacred and youthful branch, the Guardian of the Cause of God, as well as the Universal House of Justice to be universally elected and established, are both under the care and protection of the Abhá Beauty, under the shelter and unerring guidance of the Exalted One (may my life be offered up for them both). Whatsoever they decide is of God. Whoso obeyeth him not, neither obeyeth them, hath not obeyed God; whoso rebelleth against him and against them hath rebelled against God; whoso opposeth him hath opposed God; whoso contendeth with them hath contended with God; whoso disputeth with him hath disputed with God; whoso denieth him hath denied God; whoso disbelieveth in him hath disbelieved in God; whoso deviateth, separateth himself and turneth aside from him hath in truth deviated, separated himself and turned aside from God. May the wrath, the fierce indignation, the vengeance of God rest upon him! The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the Guardian of the Cause of God. It is incumbent upon the members of the House of Justice, upon all the Aghsán, the Afnán, the Hands of the Cause of God to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the Guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him. He that opposeth him hath opposed the True One, will make a breach in the Cause of God, will subvert His Word and will become a manifestation of the Center of Sedition. Beware, beware, lest the days after the ascension (of Bahá'u'lláh) be repeated when the Center of Sedition waxed haughty and rebellious and with Divine Unity for his excuse deprived himself and perturbed and poisoned others. No doubt every vainglorious one that purposeth dissension and discord will not openly declare his evil purposes, nay rather, even as impure gold, will he seize upon divers measures and various pretexts that he may separate the gathering of the people of Baha. My object is to show that the Hands of the Cause of God must be ever watchful and so soon as they find anyone beginning to oppose and protest against the Guardian of the Cause of God, cast him out from the congregation of the people of Baha and in no wise accept any excuse from him. How often hath grievous error been disguised in the garb of truth, that it might sow the seeds of doubt in the hearts of men!

The Master's potent words of warning must not go unheeded. All are to obey the Guardian of the Cause of God. Anyone who opposes the Guardian will make a breach in the Cause of God. The Master says that no one may oppose the Guardian, not even the Hands, or the members of the House of Justice. We must be watchful because the enemies of the Covenant will not openly declare their purposes but rather will use pretexts and measures and "Divine Unity" as their excuse to rebel against the Covenant and subvert the Word of God.

Although the Guardianship is a central institution of the Cause, the Master also explained that the functions of the Universal House of Justice are equally vital:

And now, concerning the House of Justice which God hath ordained as the source of all good and freed from all error, it must be elected by universal suffrage, that is, by the believers. Its members must be manifestations of the fear of God and daysprings of knowledge and understanding, must be steadfast in God's faith and the well-wishers of all mankind. By this House is meant the Universal House of Justice, that is, in all countries a secondary House of Justice must be instituted, and these secondary Houses of Justice must elect the members of the Universal one. Unto this body all things must be referred. It enacteth all ordinances and regulations that are not to be found in the explicit Holy Text. By this body all the difficult problems are to be resolved and the Guardian of the Cause of God is its sacred head and the distinguished member for life of that body. Should he not attend in person its deliberations, he must appoint one to represent him. Should any of the members commit a sin, injurious to the common weal, the Guardian of the Cause of God hath at his own discretion the right to expel him, whereupon the people must elect another one in his stead. This House of Justice enacteth the laws and the government enforceth them. The legislative body must reinforce the executive, the executive must aid and assist the legislative body so that through the close union and harmony of these two forces, the foundation of fairness and justice may become firm and strong, that all the regions of the world may become even as Paradise itself.

The Master explains how the twin institutions of the Guardianship and the Universal House of Justice are to work together. The Guardian is the appointed sacred head for life of the House of Justice. The other members of the Universal House of Justice are to be elected by the believers in a two-tiered manner: first the secondary (national) houses of justice are to be elected, and then the members of the secondary houses elect the members of the Universal House of Justice. The Guardian has the power to expel a member for cause, at his discretion. The Universal House of Justice is the legislative body.

Shoghi Effendi, in the Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh, explains and clarifies how these twin institutions are to work together:

> It should be stated, at the very outset, in clear and unambiguous language, that these twin institutions of the Administrative Order of Bahá'u'lláh [the Guardianship and the Universal House of Justice] should be regarded as divine in origin, essential in their functions and complementary in their aim and purpose. Their common, their fundamental object is to insure the continuity of that divinely-appointed authority which flows from the Source of our Faith, to safeguard the unity of its followers and to maintain the integrity and flexibility of its teachings. Acting in conjunction with each other these two inseparable institutions administer its affairs, coordinate its activities, promote its interests, execute its laws and defend its subsidiary institutions. Severally, each operates within a clearly defined sphere of jurisdiction; each is equipped with its own attendant institutions--instruments designed for the effective discharge of its particular responsibilities and duties. Each exercises, within the limitations imposed upon it, its powers, its authority, its rights and prerogatives. These are neither contradictory, nor detract in the slightest degree from the position which each of these institutions occupies. Far from being incompatible or mutually destructive, they supplement each other's authority and functions, and are permanently and fundamentally united in their aims.
>
> Divorced from the institution of the Guardianship the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh would be mutilated and permanently deprived of that hereditary principle which, as `Abdu´l-Bahá has written, has been invariably upheld by the Law of God. "In all the Divine Dispensations," He states, in a Tablet addressed to a follower of the Faith in Persia, "the eldest son hath been given extraordinary distinctions. Even the station of prophethood hath been his birthright." Without such an institution the integrity of the Faith would be imperiled, and the stability of the entire fabric would be gravely endangered. Its prestige would suffer, the means required to enable it to take a long, an uninterrupted view over a series of generations would be completely lacking, and the necessary guidance to define the sphere of the legislative action of its elected representatives would be totally withdrawn.
>
> Severed from the no less essential institution of the Universal House of Justice this same System of the Will of `Abdu´l-Bahá would be paralyzed in its action and would be powerless to fill in those gaps which the Author of the Kitáb-i-Aqdas has deliberately left in the body of His legislative and administrative ordinances

Shoghi Effendi emphasizes the importance of both institutions operating together. Without the Guardian, the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh would be mutilated, it would be deprived of the hereditary principle, and the integrity and stability of the Faith would be in danger. The Faith's prestige would suffer, there would be no way for the Faith to take a long-term view over a series of generations, and there would be no way to define the legislative sphere of the Universal House of Justice.

Likewise, in the absence of the Universal House of Justice, there would be no way to legislate or to fill in the gaps of ordinances deliberately left by Bahá'u'lláh. The System inaugurated by Bahá'u'lláh would be paralyzed.

The two functions of these institutions are vital and necessary. The Order of Bahá'u'lláh cannot exist without both of these offices and it is important that these two functions remain within their own separate spheres. Shoghi Effendi states in the Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh:

> [T]he Guardian of the Faith has been made the Interpreter of the Word and that the Universal House of Justice has been invested with the function of legislating on matters not expressly revealed in the teachings. The interpretation of the Guardian, functioning within his own sphere, is as authoritative and binding as the enactments of the International House of Justice, whose exclusive right and prerogative is to pronounce upon and deliver the final judgment on such laws and ordinances as Bahá'u'lláh has not expressly revealed. Neither can, nor will ever, infringe upon the sacred and prescribed domain of the other. Neither will seek to curtail the specific and undoubted authority with which both have been divinely invested.
>
> Though the Guardian of the Faith has been made the permanent head of so august a body he can never, even temporarily, assume the right of exclusive legislation. He cannot override the decision of the majority of his fellow-members, but is bound to insist upon a reconsideration by them of any enactment he conscientiously believes to conflict with the meaning and to depart from the spirit of Bahá'u'lláh's revealed utterances. He interprets what has been specifically revealed, and cannot legislate except in his capacity as member of the Universal House of Justice. He is debarred from laying down independently the constitution that must govern the organized activities of his fellow-members, and from exercising his influence in a manner that would encroach upon the liberty of those whose sacred right is to elect the body of his collaborators.

The Bahá'í world was plunged into turmoil upon the passing of Shoghi Effendi. The vast majority of believers expected the Guardian to leave a will in which he would have appointed his son as the next Guardian. What they failed to realize was that the Master said that the Guardian must appoint his successor "in his lifetime." The Master would not have said this if he intended for the Guardian to leave a will. The Master specifically had provided for a lifetime appointment and he even included a procedure whereby the Hands would acknowledge the validity of the appointment so that differences would not arise after the passing of the Guardian.

The Hands of the Cause of God were appointed by Shoghi Effendi pursuant to the Will and Testament. The institution of the Hands is the "learned" branch of the Order: individuals having no authority but whose function is to teach and protect the Faith in service to the Guardian. Upon Shoghi Effendi's death, the Hands met in a secret conclave to determine whether the Guardian had left a will and appointed a successor. There is no explicit authority in the Will and Testament for the Hands to meet as a group or to make any determinations whatsoever. The Hands subsequently declared that the Guardian had left no will. The Hands proceeded to seize control over the Faith and exercise the powers of the Guardian. There is no authority anywhere in the Bahá'í Writings for the Hands to exercise control over the Faith. There is no authority anywhere in the Bahá'í Writings for any follower of Bahá'u'lláh to obey the Hands. Yet the vast majority of the believers did follow the Hands.

Most of the followers of Bahá'u'lláh, including the Hands, believed that the Guardian must be succeeded by the first-born of his lineal descendents. There is no question that the Will and Testament makes explicit reference to this. However, it is important to understand that the Master provided for appointment of the next Guardian. If not, the next Guardian would automatically be the first-born child. The Will and Testament sets forth the procedure whereby the guardianship is to be continued into the future:

> O ye beloved of the Lord! It is incumbent upon the Guardian of the Cause of God to appoint in his own life-time him that shall become his successor, that differences may not arise after his passing. He that is appointed must manifest in himself detachment from all worldly things, must be the essence of purity, must show in himself the fear of God, knowledge, wisdom and learning. Thus, should the first-born of the Guardian of the Cause of God not manifest in himself the truth of the words:--"The child is the secret essence of its sire," that is, should he not inherit of the spiritual within him (the Guardian of the Cause of God) and his glorious lineage not be matched with a goodly character, then must he, (the Guardian of the Cause of God) choose another branch to succeed him

In this passage, the Master provides for the Guardian to appoint his successor during his lifetime and states, that while it is clear that his eldest son is the preferred choice, the Guardian must ensure that the one appointed to the future office possess spiritual qualities, and knowledge, wisdom and learning. If not, the Guardian is to choose another "branch." In the Bahá'í Writings, there are numerous references to the "Branches" (meaning the male descendants of Bahá'u'lláh). In all such references to the Holy Family, including in the Will and Testament, the word "Branch" was translated into English with an upper case "B" (although in the original Persian language, there are no upper case or lower case letters). Shoghi Effendi translated the Will and Testament into English, and he chose to translate the word in the above passage with a lower case "b". This means that, although it is preferable for the Guardian to appoint his lineal descendants, the Master recognized that this might not be possible. This is especially so when one considers the history of the Holy Family in which almost all of the Family rebelled against the appointed Center. This means that the Guardian has the power and discretion, if necessary, to appoint some other person as the Guardian. It is interesting to note that if the Guardianship really had been limited to the male descendants of Baha u llah, then even Shoghi Effendi did not qualify since he was a maternal descendant of Baha u llah (having been born to Baha u llah s grand-daughter)

It is now historical fact that Shoghi Effendi had no children and that the other members of the Holy Family all had rebelled against the Guardian. Yet, it was "incumbent" upon Shoghi Effendi to appoint his successor during his lifetime. Otherwise, Shoghi Effendi would have been in disobedience to a central requirement of the Will and Testament and also the twin institutions could not function in harmony as Shoghi Effendi had earlier explained how they must do so.

The Hands of the Cause of God controlled the affairs of the Bahá'í Faith from the passing of the Guardian in 1957 until the election of the "Universal House of Justice" in 1963. The Hands ultimately recognized that they had no right to exercise authority and therefore decided that the Bahá'í world must elect the "Universal House of Justice" even though they believed that there could be no Guardian as the head of this institution.

The question that must arise, however, is whether Shoghi Effendi did in fact appoint his successor during his lifetime? If he did not, then Shoghi Effendi disobeyed the Master's clear injunction that he must do so. The only way to conclusively answer this question is to review the letters and writings of Shoghi Effendi.

On January 9, 1951, Shoghi Effendi sent a cablegram to the Bahá'í world. The cablegram begins with the word "proclaim." This is the only message Shoghi Effendi sent to the Bahá'í world that he identified as a proclamation. The cablegram, which is published in Messages to the Bahá'í World, states in its entirety as follows:

> Proclaim National Assemblies of East and West weighty epoch-making decision of formation of first International Bahá'í Council, forerunner of supreme administrative institution destined to emerge in fullness of time within precincts beneath shadow of World Spiritual Center of Faith already established in twin cities of 'Akká and Haifa. Fulfillment of prophecies uttered by Founder of Faith and Center of His Covenant culminating in establishment of Jewish State, signalizing birth after lapse of two thousand years of an independent nation in the Holy Land, the swift unfoldment of historic undertaking associated with construction of superstructure of the Báb's Sepulcher on Mount Carmel, the present adequate maturity of nine vigorously functioning national administrative institutions throughout Bahá'í World, combine to induce me to arrive at this historic decision marking most significant milestone in evolution of Administrative Order of the Faith of Bahá'u'lláh in course of last thirty years. Nascent Institution now created is invested with threefold function: first, to forge link with authorities of newly emerged State; second, to assist me to discharge responsibilities involved in erection of mighty superstructure of the Báb's Holy Shrine; third, to conduct negotiations related to matters of personal status with civil authorities. To these will be added further functions in course of evolution of this first embryonic International Institution, marking its development into officially recognized Bahá'í Court, its transformation into duly elected body, its efflorescence into Universal House of Justice, and its final fruition through erection of manifold auxiliary institutions constituting the World Administrative Center destined to arise and function and remain permanently established in close neighborhood of Twin Holy Shrines. Hail with thankful, joyous heart at long last the constitution of International Council which history will acclaim as the greatest event shedding luster upon second epoch of Formative Age of Bahá'í Dispensation potentially unsurpassed by any enterprise undertaken since inception of Administrative Order of Faith on morrow of `Abdu´l-Bahá's Ascension, ranking second only to glorious immortal events > associated with Ministries of the Three Central Figures of Faith in course of First Age of most glorious Dispensation of the five thousand century Bahá'í Cycle. Advise publicize announcement through Public Relations Committee.

>
> --Shoghi

Those familiar with the writings of Shoghi Effendi know that he wrote very deliberately. He rarely wasted any words, but chose his words carefully to communicate exactly what he meant to say.

Pay attention to the words of this cablegram. He proclaims the establishment of the Bahá'í International Bahá'í Council ("IBC") calling it a "weighty epoch-making decision" and an "historic decision marking most significant milestone in evolution of Administrative Order of the Faith of Bahá'u'lláh in course of last thirty years" (In other words, this is the most important thing to happen since Shoghi Effendi took office as the Guardian upon the passing of `Abdu´l-Bahá), He says that the IBC is the "forerunner of the supreme administrative institution," and a "nascent" and embryonic institution." He hails its formation with a "thankful" and "joyous heart" stating that "history will acclaim" its formation as "the greatest event shedding luster upon the second epoch of Formative Age of Bahá'í Dispensation potentially unsurpassed by any enterprise undertaken since the inception of Administrative Order." Shoghi Effendi goes on to say that its formation ranks "second only to glorious immortal events associated with Ministries" of the Báb, Bahá'u'lláh and `Abdu´l-Bahá!

Shoghi Effendi explains that the IBC is to evolve in four stages. The first stage was embryonic (at the time of the cablegram). Next, it was to evolve into an officially recognized world court. The third stage was its transformation into an elected body, and the final stage was its efflorescence into the Universal House of Justice. In other words, Shoghi Effendi had proclaimed the establishment of an embryonic Universal House of Justice.

In reading this proclamation, the central question that comes to mind is: what happened to this glorious institution? It is important for the proper understanding of this development to read the Guardian's later cables and to understand what happened to the IBC after its formation.

On March 2, 1951, Shoghi Effendi sent a cablegram announcing that (Charles) Mason Remey was its president and Amelia Collins was its vice-president. On April 25, 1951, the Guardian sent a cablegram that stated in part:

> Process of the unfoldment of the ever-advancing Administrative Order accelerated by the formation of the International Bahá'í Council designed to assist in the erection of the superstructure of the Báb's Sepulcher, cement ties uniting the budding World Administrative Center with the recently established state, and pave the way for the formation of the Bahá'í Court, essential prelude to the institution of the Universal House of Justice.

In this cable, the Guardian was explaining that the IBC was to establish ties with the new State of Israel so that it could become a recognized Bahá'í Court which he said was an "essential prelude" to the IBC transforming into the Universal House of Justice.

On December 24, 1951, the Guardian sent another cable in which he appointed the first contingent of the Hands of the Cause. He said that this step was being taken in conjunction with six other vital steps in establishing the institutions of the Will and Testament: 1) construction of superstructure of the Báb's Sepulcher; 2) "creation of International Bahá'í Council in precincts Holy Shrine, forerunner of International House of Justice, supreme legislative organ of nascent, divinely-conceived, world-encircling Bahá'í Administrative Order;" 3) acquisition, restoration and embellishment of historic sites associated with incarceration of Bahá'u'lláh and `Abdu´l-Bahá;. 4) initiation of formal negotiation with central municipal authorities of Israel to preserve neighborhood of Most Holy Tomb on outskirts of 'Akká, and to acquire properties in vicinity of Báb's Sepulcher for future sites of "auxiliary agencies revolving around twin institutions of Guardianship and House of Justice;" 5) preparation of design of future Mashriqu'l-Adhkar on Mount Carmel; and 6) convocation of four international conferences ("precursor final step summoning assemblage representative communities all sovereign states, chief dependencies, islands, entire planet"). Shoghi Effendi said the establishment of the Hands was made in conformity with provisions of the Master's Testament and that it paralleled formation of "International Council destined to culminate in emergence of Universal House of Justice."

On March 8, 1952, the Guardian sent the following cablegram:

> [Announcement of t]he enlargement of the International Bahá'í Council. Present membership now comprises: Amatu'l-Baha Ruhiyyih, chosen liaison between me and the Council. Hands of the Cause, Mason Remey, Amelia Collins, Ugo Giachery, Leroy Ioas, President, Vice-President, member at large, Secretary-General, respectively. Jessie Revell, Ethel Revell, Lotfullah Hakim, Treasurer, Western and Eastern assistant Secretaries. [The ninth member, Sylvia Ioas, was appointed by cablegram of May 4, 1955]

Once the members of the IBC and the Hands were appointed, Shoghi Effendi had completed his primary mission of building the institutions of the Order of Bahá'u'lláh. The next step was to undertake the spread of the Faith throughout the world, as set forth in the Master's Tablets of the Divine Plan, the initial stage of which was incorporated into the Guardians 10-year Crusade beginning in 1953.

Although the Guardian's spouse, Hand of the Cause Amatu'l-Bahá Rúhíyyih Khánum, was appointed to the IBC and was designated as the liaison between the IBC and the Guardian, it is important to recognize that the IBC never was activated by the Guardian. Although the members of this first embryonic International Institution were assigned specific tasks by the Guardian, the IBC never met as a group, made no decisions, and performed no tasks as the IBC.

Since the IBC was the embryonic form of the Universal House of Justice, it only follows that the Guardian would be the sacred head of this institution. However, Shoghi Effendi appointed Mason Remey as it president. It would have been impossible for Mason Remey and the IBC to conduct business separate and apart from Shoghi Effendi. Thus, it is clear that Shoghi Effendi intended this institution to remain in embryonic form until his own passing.

In his cablegram of May 4, 1953, the Guardian set forth his plan for the 10-year World Crusade. The Guardian stated:

> The International Bahá'í Council, comprising eight members, charged with assisting in the manifold activities attendant upon the rise of the World Administrative Center of the Faith, which must pave the way for the formation of a Bahá'í International Court and the eventual emergence of the Universal House of Justice, the supreme legislative body of the future Bahá'í Commonwealth, has been established, enlarged, and the functions of its members defined.....

He then announced twelve national plans as part of the 10-year crusade, one for each of the twelve existing national spiritual assemblies. Among the many goals of the Guardian's plan was "the transformation of the International Bahá'í Council into an international Bahá'í court" and "the establishment of six national Bahá'í Courts in the chief cities of the Islamic East."

Although Western believers are not familiar with the concept of religious courts, the Guardian had emphasized the importance of establishing Bahá'í courts that would be recognized by the governments of Eastern countries (which recognized the authority of other religious courts). The Guardian had planned by 1963 to have six of the National Spiritual Assemblies evolve into Bahá'í courts and to have the IBC transform into a world Bahá'í Court recognized by the State of Israel (and eventually by all of the nations of the world). Thus it can be seen that the national and local spiritual assemblies throughout the world, in the vision of Shoghi Effendi, would parallel the development of the IBC's evolution, passing through stages until they developed from recognized courts and then into local and national Houses of Justice.

Although many Bahá'ís in the world at the time were ignorant of the Guardian's plans and vision for the Order of Bahá'u'lláh, those closest to the Guardian (the Hands) were well aware of what Shoghi Effendi had done and what he intended.

After the passing of Shoghi Effendi in 1957 during the middle of the 10-year crusade, the Hands met in a secret conclave and seized control of the Faith. Although there is no provision or authority in the Will and Testament of `Abdu´l-Bahá (or anywhere else in the Writings) for the Hands to meet as a body, or to act as a collegial head of the Faith, the Hands proceeded to assume this role with only one of the Hands of the Cause objecting. The Hands simply declared themselves the head of the Faith. Hand of the Cause Mason Remey originally accepted the Hands usurpation of authority on the assurance of his fellow Hands that the IBC would be activated in order to take control of the Faith. However, as time passed, Mason Remey learned that his fellow Hands had decided to abandon the IBC and the Guardianship and instead to establish a "Universal House of Justice" without a Guardian as its head to be the central authority in the Faith.

Mason Remey quietly met with the Hands for several years to try to convince them that this was wrong. He told them that it was a violation of the Covenant for the Hands to usurp authority and control over the Faith, that they had no authority to decide on the issue of the Guardian's succession, and that they had no right or authority to destroy the nascent Universal House of Justice established by Shoghi Effendi himself and replace it with an institution of their own fashioning. He patiently explained to the Hands that the Will and Testament and the writings of Shoghi Effendi made it abundantly clear that there would be and must be a Guardian as the sacred head of the Universal House of Justice. Without the Guardian, who would accept the Huquq'llah (which the Will and Testament says should be paid through the Guardian)? Without the Guardian, who would appoint the Hands of the Cause? Without the Guardian, who would define the legislative sphere of the Universal House of Justice and who would have the authority to expel its members? Without the Guardian, did not Shoghi Effendi warn us, would not the Faith be mutilated? Mason Remey came to realize that the Hands had already made up their minds and had a secret plan to establish the "House of Justice" and have it proclaim that no Guardian has been or could be appointed. The Hands already had decided that Shoghi Effendi could not have appointed a Guardian because he had no children.

The Hands made this unauthorized decision even though they knew that Shoghi Effendi had anticipated future Guardians. Even in the later years when Shoghi Effendi knew that he had no children, he had laid out plans for the building on Mount Carmel to house the office of the Guardian, and even less than 10 years before his death, he anticipated future Guardians. In a letter written on behalf of Shoghi Effendi to an individual believer, November 25, 1948 (published in Bahá'í News, No. 232, p. 8, June, 1950, and Lights of Guidance p. 231-232, it states:

> He feels that if...ponders more deeply about the fundamentals of Divine Revelation, she will come to understand the Guardianship. Once the mind and heart have grasped the fact that God guides men through a Mouthpiece, a human being, a Prophet, infallible and unerring, it is only a logical projection of this acceptance to also accept the station of `Abdu´l-Bahá and the Guardians. The Guardians are the evidence of the maturity of mankind in the sense that at long last men have progressed to the point of having one world management for human affairs. In the spiritual realm, they have also reached the point where God could leave, in human hands (i.e. the Guardians'), guided directly by the Báb and Bahá'u'lláh, as the Master states in His Will, the affairs of His Faith for this Dispensation. This is what is meant by 'this is the day which will not be followed by night'. In this Dispensation, divine guidance flows on to us in this world after the Prophet's ascension, through, first the Master, and then the Guardians. If a person can accept Bahá'u'lláh's function, it should not present any difficulty to them to also accept what He has ordained in a divinely guided individual in matters pertaining to the Faith.

In the Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh, Shoghi Effendi also made clear references to future Guardians.

Finally in 1960, after exhausting every effort to convince the Hands not to create a headless "House of Justice" instead of the IBC, Mason Remey published a proclamation to the national spiritual assemblies of the Bahá'í world. He announced that, by virtue of his appointment as the head of the International Bahá'í Council (the embryonic Universal House of Justice), Shoghi Effendi had complied with the Master's requirement that he appoint his successor during his lifetime. Mason Remey announced that he was the Second Guardian of the Cause, appointed by Shoghi Effendi as the sacred head of the Universal House of Justice. Mason Remey denounced the plan of the Hands to establish their own headless version, he pronounced that the Hands were covenant-breakers, and called upon the followers of Bahá'u'lláh to accept the authority of the Guardian and the IBC.

The Hands expelled Mason Remey on the basis that he was a covenant-breaker. Of course, at the time of his so-called expulsion, the Hands were the self-appointed heads of the Faith and had no authority whatsoever to expel him, nor was there any basis for them to insist that he follow them. As for the Bahá'í world, only the national spiritual assemblies of the world received Remey's proclamation but they refused to publish it to the faithful believers of the world. To this day, most Bahá'ís have never been given the opportunity to read or consider Mason Remey's proclamation.

Only the National Spiritual Assembly of France accepted Mason Remey as the Second Guardian. The Hands quickly acted to expel them and replace the French NSA, although there exists no authority whatsoever in the Bahá'í Writings for the Hands to take any administrative actions at all.

At the present time, the so-called "Universal House of Justice" sits on Mount Carmel, without a Guardian. The institution of the Guardianship has been abandoned by most of the Bahá'ís. The Universal House of Justice is the sole authority in the Faith. They accept the Huquq'llah instead of the Guardian. They have replaced the institution of the Hands with one of their own making, the Continental Board of Counselors. The IBC established by Shoghi Effendi, never transformed into a Bahá'í court as envisioned by the Guardian but instead has been simply abandoned and has ceased to exist. The administration now existing on Mount Carmel is a distorted image of the vision set forth in the Master's Will and Testament and the writings of Shoghi Effendi. Almost the entire Bahá'í world has rejected the Covenant, repudiated the Will and Testament, and ignored and rejected the Guardian. They have come out of the shade of the Tree of the Covenant and now vainly attempt to establish their own man-made government in place of God's Kingdom.

The Bahá'í world has expelled the only believers who were true and firm in the Covenant. The Bahá'í world itself is constituted of covenant-breakers, yet they have the audacity to shun the true believers and label them as covenant-breaker. When the veil is lifted from some believers' eyes and they begin to question this violation of the Hands, the Bahá'í world unceremoniously expels them from the ranks. To avoid these questions, the heterodox Bahá'í world is now undergoing a systematic revision of all of the Bahá'í Writings, whereby the Texts are altered by supposedly "new" translations.

The Bahá'í world is in darkness. Yet, the fortunes of the Bahá'í Faith have been very dark in the past. The process of succession from the Báb to Bahá'u'lláh, then to the Master, and to Shoghi Effendi, and thereafter, were all marked by intense antagonism and covenant-breaking by those closest to the Center of the Covenant. The passing of Shoghi Effendi was another test of the believer's firmness in the Covenant and the great majority of the believers failed miserably. Bahá'u'lláh, `Abdu´l-Bahá and Shoghi Effendi warned the Bahá'í world of great tests to come, of enemies from within and without who would seek to destroy the Faith. They warned us to be alert and vigilant and to remain firm in the Covenant.

From the Will and Testament:

> And now, one of the greatest and most fundamental principles of the Cause of God is to shun and avoid entirely the Covenant-breakers, for they will utterly destroy the Cause of God, exterminate His Law and render of no account all efforts exerted in the past. O friends! It behooveth you to call to mind with tenderness the trials of His Holiness, the Exalted One, and show your fidelity to the Ever-Blest Beauty. The utmost endeavor must be exerted lest all these woes, trials and afflictions, all this pure and sacred blood that hath been shed so profusely in the Path of God, may prove to be in vain.

The Second Guardian, Mason Remey, appointed Joel Bray Marengella (who was the chair of the French NSA at the time of the Hand's violation, and who served as an Auxiliary Board Member of the Hands in Europe, under Dr Herman Grossman of Germany) as the Third Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith. Joel Bray Marengella is today the living Guardian of the Cause of God. Those Bahá'ís who have accepted the guardianship call themselves "Orthodox" Bahá'ís in order to distinguish themselves from the others.

RETURN TO MAIN LINKS MENU

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

Orthodox Bahá'í Faith - FAQ

Frequently Asked Questions on the Search for True Faith

ENTER Next slide

 .

FAQ About Covenant Breakers

Previous page Table of contents Next slide

What is a Covenant Breaker?

Do I Have to Shun Covenant Breakers?

Is The Material On This Site Covenant Breaking Material?

Do you have more questions? Email uses JavaScript to defend against SPAM. You must enable JavaScript to contact me.

What is a Covenant Breaker?

The Bahá'í Writings teach that covenant breaking is a spiritual disease and the Writings are replete with warnings about the great harm that will come to the Cause unless Bahá'ís everywhere are vigilant about avoiding them.[FN1]

But exactly what is a covenant breaker, how does a Bahá'í become one, and what can we do to make sure that we do not fall under their influence?

For a full explanation of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh, read the article What does He want you to do as a community? For a complete discussion of how the Center of the Cause was rejected by most Bahá'ís, read the article on The Great Violation.

It is important to distinguish between persons whom have broken the Covenant and others whom have been merely misled away from the Covenant. A covenant breaker is a Baha'i who fully understands and grasps the significance of the Covenant and recognizes the Center of the Cause. However, a covenant breaker knowingly and purposefully betrays the Center of the Cause due to personal and selfish concerns or pursuits. This condition is born of an arrogance that leads the wayward Baha'i into believing that he or she has a better approach than what has been put forth by the Will of God. The covenant breaker believes that he or she knows better or has a compelling personal reason to reject and betray the Center of the Cause.[FN2]

A misled believer, on the other hand, does not have knowledge but comes under the influence of a covenant breaker and blindly accepts whatever he or she has to say. This is not covenant breaking. This condition arises from a shallowness of belief---a lack of faith. These misled and faithless believers must not be shunned. Instead they must be lovingly nurtured and deepened until their faith goes deeper.

Faithfulness to the Covenant should be understood as a spiritual process and journey. In order for a Bahá'í to properly take this journey, he or she must deepen in the Writings, become a sincere and independent investigator of Truth, and become a True Seeker. [FN3] Bahá'u'lláh did not come to bring humanity another religion filled with "nice" people who profess their belief in God and try to live a moral and decent life. He came to establish the Kingdom of Heaven on earth. If one is to be a true Bahá'í, one must recognize and obey the Guardian. To do this, one must grow spiritually until there is the capacity to see and accept the Center of the Cause. It is not enough to remain on the surface of the Ocean of Bahá'u'lláh's Revelation. He requires a deeper understanding and acceptance of the Faith. The independent investigation of Truth is our spiritual obligation.

A True Seeker does not have pre-conceived notions of what he or she will accept. The True Seeker knows that Truth is. All else is error and has no meaning or existence. Thus, the True Seeker will go wherever the Truth may lead. When a deaf, dumb, and blind Bahá'í awakens, True Faith is born and the wayward Bahá'í awakens to the truths of the Covenant. In other words, a deepened Bahá'í is a Bahá'í that has recognized the living Guardian of the Faith and obeys him.

There is a community of deepened Bahá'ís who remain completely unkown to the larger group of "blind, deaf, and dumb" Bahá'ís (those who have no capacity for the truth of the Covenant). Only those believers who remain faithful to the Center of the Cause--- the living Guardian of the Cause--- can be said to be True Baha'is. They understand that God really meant everything uttered from the mouths of Bahá'u'lláh and `Abdu´l-Bahá. They accept that the Bahá'í Revelation is a blueprint for God's Plan for our society. This blueprint must be followed exactly. It is not acceptable to deviate at all from the Plan established by God Himself.

To be True Bahá'ís, it is required that we be fully prepared to render instant, exact, and complete obedience to the Center of the Cause. [FN4]

When we have become deepened in the Bahá'í Revelation, and we have sincere, unyielding and complete faith in the Truth, we no longer have anything to fear. We have no doubt about our position. There is nobody to convince or convert. We simply stand for the Truth with full knowledge that the Truth will prevail and will be victorious.

Covenant breakers and the misled shallow believers who follow them are not characterized by the peaceful and fearless traits of the True Bahá'ís. Because they have no Faith, they respond with fear and frustration, and the urgent desire to proselytize and convert others to their position. They have great fear that something will go wrong and that the Bahá'í Revelation will come to naught. Since they don't really accept the validity of the Bahá'í Revelation, they have doubts about it. They desire to make changes and to improve it. They want to substitute their own judgment for the Will of God. They attack and fear anybody who challenges their belief system because they are not so sure about it themselves. The more converts they can find, the better they feel that they are on the right course. If they can find leaders to guide them, they can let go of their fear and simply be a follower without question.

All Bahá'ís must come into the Light. It is time for Bahá'ís everywhere to begin their spiritual journey back to the shade of the Tree of the Covenant. Know that God is, and that all of His attributes, such as Love, Knowledge, and Glory, are the only things that really exist. All else is falsehood. Our job is to turn to Bahá'u'lláh, render instant, exact, and complete obedience to the Guardian, and allow God's attributes to shine within our souls.

Return to Top

Do I Have to Shun Covenant Breakers?

The Writings are clear that covenant breaking is a spiritual disease and that we must avoid contact with them for our own spiritual health. [FN5] However, it is important to understand that only persons whom have been declared to be covenant-breakers by the living Guardian of the Cause are to be shunned. [FN6]

Return to Top

Is The Material On This Site Covenant Breaking Material?

The Heterodox organization claims that it fears our materials are covenant breaking material and that you will catch a spiritual disease if you read them. In fact, our materials contain or are based upon the unadulterated Holy Writings of Bahá'u'lláh and '`Abdu´l-Bahá, and the statements of Shoghi Effendi. All of the statements and claims made by the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith are backed up by the Writings. How could that material be harmful at all?

Return to Top

Do you have more questions? Email uses JavaScript to defend against SPAM.
You must enable JavaScript to contact me.

Previous page Table of contents Next slide

[FN1] "And now, one of the greatest and most fundamental principles of the Cause of God is to shun and avoid entirely the Covenant-breakers, for they will utterly destroy the Cause of God, exterminate His Law and render of no account all efforts exerted in the past. O friends! It behooveth you to call to mind with tenderness the trials of His Holiness, the Exalted One, and show your fidelity to the Ever-Blest Beauty. The utmost endeavor must be exerted lest all these woes, trials and afflictions, all this pure and sacred blood that hath been shed so profusely in the Path of God, may prove to be in vain." `Abdu´l-Bahá, Will and Testament p. 20

[FN2] "In all His Books and Tablets He [Bahá'u'lláh} has praised those who are firm in the Covenant and rebuked those who are not. He said, "Verily, shun those who are shaken in the Covenant. Verily, God is the Confirmer of the firm ones." In His prayers He has said, "O God! Render those who are firm in the Covenant blessed, and degrade those who are not. O God! Be the Protector of him who protecteth Him, and confirm him who confirms the Center of the Covenant." Many utterances are directed against the violators of the Covenant, the purpose being that no dissension should arise in the blessed Cause; that no one should say, "My opinion is this"; and that all may know Who is the authoritative expounder and whatsoever He says is correct. Bahá'u'lláh has not left any possible room for dissension. Naturally, there are some who are antagonistic, some who are followers of self-desire, others who hold to their own ideas and still others who wish to create dissension in the Cause. For example, Judas Iscariot was one of the disciples, yet he betrayed Christ. Such a thing has happened in the past, but in this day the Blessed Perfection has declared, "This person is the expounder of My Book and all must turn to Him." The purpose is to ward off dissension and differences among His followers. Notwithstanding this safeguard and provision against disagreement, there are certain souls here in America and a few in Akka who have violated this explicit command." `Abdu´l-Bahá, Promulgation of Universal Peace, p. 382 [FN3] "O My brother! When a true seeker determineth to take the step of search in the path leading unto the knowledge of the Ancient of Days, he must, before all else, cleanse his heart, which is the seat of the revelation of the inner mysteries of God, from the obscuring dust of all acquired knowledge, and the allusions of the embodiments of satanic fancy. He must purge his breast, which is the sanctuary of the abiding love of the Beloved, of every defilement, and sanctify his soul from all that pertaineth to water and clay, from all shadowy and ephemeral attachments. He must so cleanse his heart that no remnant of either love or hate may linger therein, lest that love blindly incline him to error, or that hate repel him away from the truth. Even as thou dost witness in this Day how most of the people, because of such love and hate, are bereft of the immortal Face, have strayed far from the Embodiments of the Divine mysteries, and, shepherdless, are roaming through the wilderness of oblivion and error.

"That seeker must, at all times, put his trust in God, must renounce the peoples of the earth, must detach himself from the world of dust, and cleave unto Him Who is the Lord of Lords. He must never seek to exalt himself above any one, must wash away from the tablet of his heart every trace of pride and vain-glory, must cling unto patience and resignation, observe silence and refrain from idle talk. For the tongue is a smoldering fire, and excess of speech a deadly poison. Material fire consumeth the body, whereas the fire of the tongue devoureth both heart and soul. The force of the former lasteth but for a time, whilst the effects of the latter endureth a century.

"That seeker should, also, regard backbiting as grievous error, and keep himself aloof from its dominion, inasmuch as backbiting quencheth the light of the heart, and extinguisheth the life of the soul. He should be content with little, and be freed from all inordinate desire. He should treasure the companionship of them that have renounced the world, and regard avoidance of boastful and worldly people a precious benefit. At the dawn of every day he should commune with God, and, with all his soul, persevere in the quest of his Beloved. He should consume every wayward thought with the flame of His loving mention, and, with the swiftness of lightning, pass by all else save Him. He should succor the dispossessed, and never withhold his favor from the destitute. He should show kindness to animals, how much more unto his fellow-man, to him who is endowed with the power of utterance. He should not hesitate to offer up his life for his Beloved, nor allow the censure of the people to turn him away from the Truth. He should not wish for others that which he doth not wish for himself, nor promise that which he doth not fulfil. With all his heart he should avoid fellowship with evil-doers, and pray for the remission of their sins. He should forgive the sinful, and never despise his low estate, for none knoweth what his own end shall be. How often hath a sinner attained, at the hour of death, to the essence of faith, and, quaffing the immortal draught, hath taken his flight unto the Concourse on high! And how often hath a devout believer, at the hour of his soul's ascension, been so changed as to fall into the nethermost fire!

"Our purpose in revealing these convincing and weighty utterances is to impress upon the seeker that he should regard all else beside God as transient, and count all things save Him, Who is the Object of all adoration, as utter nothingness.

"These are among the attributes of the exalted, and constitute the hall-mark of the spiritually-minded. They have already been mentioned in connection with the requirements of the wayfarers that tread the path of Positive Knowledge. When the detached wayfarer and sincere seeker hath fulfilled these essential conditions, then and only then can he be called a true seeker. Whensoever he hath fulfilled the conditions implied in the verse: "Whoso maketh efforts for Us," he shall enjoy the blessings conferred by the words: "In Our Ways shall We assuredly guide him."

"Only when the lamp of search, of earnest striving, of longing desire, of passionate devotion, of fervid love, of rapture, and ecstasy, is kindled within the seeker's heart, and the breeze of His loving-kindness is wafted upon his soul, will the darkness of error be dispelled, the mists of doubts and misgivings be dissipated, and the lights of knowledge and certitude envelop his being. At that hour will the Mystic Herald, bearing the joyful tidings of the Spirit, shine forth from the City of God resplendent as the morn, and, through the trumpet-blast of knowledge, will awaken the heart, the soul, and the spirit from the slumber of heedlessness. Then will the manifold favors and outpouring grace of the holy and everlasting Spirit confer such new life upon the seeker that he will find himself endowed with a new eye, a new ear, a new heart, and a new mind. He will contemplate the manifest signs of the universe, and will penetrate the hidden mysteries of the soul. Gazing with the eye of God, he will perceive within every atom a door that leadeth him to the stations of absolute certitude. He will discover in all things the mysteries of Divine Revelation, and the evidences of an everlasting Manifestation.

"I swear by God! Were he that treadeth the path of guidance and seeketh to scale the heights of righteousness to attain unto this glorious and exalted station, he would inhale, at a distance of a thousand leagues, the fragrance of God, and would perceive the resplendent morn of a Divine guidance rising above the Day Spring of all things. Each and every thing, however small, would be to him a revelation, leading him to his Beloved, the Object of his quest. So great shall be the discernment of this seeker that he will discriminate between truth and falsehood, even as he doth distinguish the sun from shadow. If in the uttermost corners of the East the sweet savors of God be wafted, he will assuredly recognize and inhale their fragrance, even though he be dwelling in the uttermost ends of the West. He will, likewise, clearly distinguish all the signs of God--His wondrous utterances, His great works, and mighty deeds--from the doings, the words and ways of men, even as the jeweler who knoweth the gem from the stone, or the man who distinguisheth the spring from autumn, and heat from cold. When the channel of the human soul is cleansed of all worldly and impeding attachments, it will unfailingly perceive the breath of the Beloved across immeasurable distances, and will, led by its perfume, attain and enter the City of Certitude.

"Therein he will discern the wonders of His ancient Wisdom, and will perceive all the hidden teachings from the rustling leaves of the Tree that flourisheth in that City. With both his inner and outer ear, he will hear from its dust the hymns of glory and praise ascending unto the Lord of Lords, and with his inner eye will he discover the mysteries of "return" and "revival."

"How unspeakably glorious are the signs, the tokens, the revelations, and splendors which He, Who is the King of Names and Attributes, hath destined for that City! The attainment unto this City quencheth thirst without water, and kindleth the love of God without fire. Within every blade of grass are enshrined the mysteries of an inscrutable Wisdom, and upon every rose-bush a myriad nightingales pour out, in blissful rapture, their melody. Its wondrous tulips unfold the mystery of the undying Fire in the Burning Bush, and its sweet savors of holiness breathe the perfume of the Messianic Spirit. It bestoweth wealth without gold, and conferreth immortality without death. In each one of its leaves ineffable delights are treasured, and within every chamber unnumbered mysteries lie hidden.

"They that valiantly labor in quest of God, will, when once they have renounced all else but Him, be so attached and wedded unto that City, that a moment's separation from it would to them be unthinkable. They will hearken unto infallible proofs from the Hyacinth of that assembly, and will receive the surest testimonies from the beauty of its Rose, and the melody of its Nightingale. Once in about a thousand years shall this City be renewed and readorned....

"That City is none other than the Word of God revealed in every age and dispensation. In the days of Moses it was the Pentateuch; in the days of Jesus, the Gospel; in the days of Muhammad, the Messenger of God, the Qur'an; in this day, the Bayan; and in the Dispensation of Him Whom God will make manifest, His own Book--the Book unto which all the Books of former Dispensations must needs be referred, the Book that standeth amongst them all transcendent and supreme." Bahá'u'lláh, Gleanings, pp. 264-270

[FN4] "Any opinion expressed by the Center of the Covenant is correct, and there is no reason for disobedience by anyone. Be watchful, for perchance there may be violators (naqidin) of the Covenant among you. Do not listen to them. Read the Book of the Covenant. All have been commanded to obey the Covenant, and the first admonition is addressed to the sons of Bahá'u'lláh, the Branches: "You must turn to the appointed Center; He is the expounder of the Book."

"Should any soul so clearly violate and disobey this command, can he even say he is a Bahá'í? If anyone disobeys the explicit command of Christ, can he truthfully say he is a Christian?" `Abdu´l-Bahá, Promulgation of Universal Peace, p. 386

[FN5]"....Baha'u'llah and the Master in many places and very emphatically have told us to shun entirely all Covenant breakers as they are afflicted with what we might try and define as a contagious spiritual disease; they have also told us, however, to pray for them. These souls are not lost forever. In the Aqdas, Bahá'u'lláh says that God will forgive Mirza Yahya if he repents. It follows, therefore, that God will forgive any soul if he repents. Most of them don't want to repent, unfortunately. If the leaders can be forgiven it goes without saying that their followers can also be forgiven..." Shoghi Effendi, Directives from the Guardian, pp. 16-17

[FN6] "The Guardian, like the Master before him, has not considered it advisable to as yet permit any person or Assembly to put another person out of the Cause of God. There is a sharp distinction between depriving a believer of his voting rights, which is a severe disciplinary measure and not a spiritual sanction, and pronouncing a former believer to be a truly spiritually diseased soul, a soul in the condition the Master referred to when, in His last cable to America before His ascension, He said: `He who sitteth with a leper catcheth leprosy.' The Guardian has, within the last few years, considered the National Assemblies strong enough to wield the instrument of sanction in the sense of depriving a Bahá'í of his voting rights. But no one but himself can pronounce a person to be in that diseased condition we call `Covenant Breaking' and no one but he can reinstate a Covenant Breaker. No National Assembly has been given this right and cannot therefore review the question or reinstate anyone..." Shoghi Effendi (on behalf of), Directives from the Guardian p. 16

Previous page Table of contents Next slide

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

 .

FAQ About the Living Guardian

Previous page Table of contents Next slide

How do we Know Who is the Guardian?

Can I Read the Writings of the Third Guardian?

Do you have more questions? Email uses JavaScript to defend against SPAM. You must enable JavaScript to contact me.

How do we Know Who is the Living Guardian?

Ever since the Great Violation of the Covenant, it has been difficult for most seekers to sort out the truth about the Guardianship. [FN1} The search for the truth about the Guardianship is difficult, but not impossible. It requires the independent investigation of truth, and a patient and careful analysis of the Bahá'í Writings. In brief, Shoghi Effendi issued a proclamation on January 9, 1951 in which he created the Institution of the International Bahá'í Council. [FN2} Charles Mason Remey was subsequently named as the President of the IBC. Shoghi Effendi clearly proclaimed to the Bahá'í World that the IBC was the embryonic Universal House of Justice.

After the death of Shoghi Effendi, Mason Remey proclaimed to the Bahá'í World that he was the Second Guardian because Shoghi Effendi's appointment of Remey as the President of the embryonic IBC meant that, upon activation of the IBC at Shoghi's death, Mason automatically became the head of the Universal House of Justice. The Guardian and the head of the Universal House of Justice are synonymous. [FN3] Mason Remey publicly appointed Joel B. Marangella as the Third Guardian on September 21, 1964 by appointing him to be president of the Second International Bahá'í Council. Mason subsequently activated the Second IBC in October, 1965, whereupon Joel B. Marangella, as the head of the activated IBC acceded to the office of the Guardianship. [FN4} He was also appointed by a signed writing.

Joel B. Marangella is the living Guardian of the Cause. He has not yet named his successor.

Return to Top

Can I Read the Writings of the Third Guardian?

The writings of the Third Guardian, Joel B. Marangella, are available on his web site at www.bahai-guardian.com. Also, printed materials are available from the National Bahá'í Council of the United States, PO Box 3201, Roswell, NM 88201

Return to Top

Do you have more questions? Email uses JavaScript to defend against SPAM.
You must enable JavaScript to contact me.

Previous page Table of contents Next slide

[FN1] "What "oppression" is more grievous than that a soul seeking the truth, and wishing to attain unto the knowledge of God, should know not where to go for it and from whom to seek it? For opinions have sorely differed, and the ways unto the attainment of God have multiplied." Bahá'u'lláh, Kitab-i-Iqan (Book of Certitude), p. 31

[FN2} "Proclaim National Assemblies of East and West weighty epoch-making decision of formation of first International Bahá'í Council, forerunner of supreme administrative institution destined to emerge in fullness of time within precincts beneath shadow of World Spiritual Center of Faith already established in twin cities of Akka and Haifa. Fulfillment of prophecies uttered by Founder of Faith and Center of His Covenant culminating in establishment of Jewish State, signalizing birth after lapse of two thousand years of an independent nation in the Holy Land, the swift unfoldment of historic undertaking associated with construction of superstructure of the Bab's Sepulcher on Mount Carmel, the present adequate maturity of nine vigorously functioning national administrative institutions throughout Bahá'í World, combine to induce me to arrive at this historic decision marking most significant milestone in evolution of Administrative Order of the Faith of Bahá'u'lláh in course of last thirty years. Nascent Institution now created is invested with threefold function: first, to forge link with authorities of newly emerged State; second, to assist me to discharge responsibilities involved in erection of mighty superstructure of the Bab's Holy Shrine; third, to conduct negotiations related to matters of personal status with civil authorities. To these will be added further functions in course of evolution of this first embryonic International Institution, marking its development into officially recognized Bahá'í Court, its transformation into duly elected body, its efflorescence into Universal House of Justice, and its final fruition through erection of manifold auxiliary institutions constituting the World Administrative Center destined to arise and function and remain permanently established in close neighborhood of Twin Holy Shrines. Hail with thankful, joyous heart at long last the constitution of International Council which history will acclaim as the greatest event shedding luster upon second epoch of Formative Age of Bahá'í Dispensation potentially unsurpassed by any enterprise undertaken since inception of Administrative Order of Faith on morrow of `Abdu´l-Bahá's Ascension, ranking second only to glorious immortal events associated with Ministries of the Three Central Figures of Faith in course of First Age of most glorious Dispensation of the five thousand century Bahá'í Cycle. Advise publicize announcement through Public Relations Committee. --Shoghi" Shoghi Effendi, Messages to Bahá'í World, 1950-57, pp. 7-8

[FN3]"The First Guardian of the Faith left this world without giving me any orders or instructions whatsoever regarding the International Council. The Beloved Guardian gave me no authority to do anything about the Universal Council during his lifetime for while He was living He was the Guardian of the Faith and as infallibility then was vested in him and in him only, my position was then only that of I myself holding a potential responsibility. But with the death of Shoghi Effendi, He no longer being the center upon earth of infallibility, I became the acting President of the International Council in my own right as President of this body, thus I came into active command of the council. Therefore I am now but assuming the powers that came to me automatically upon the death of Shoghi Effendi and that have been mine exclusively of all others upon earth since the death of the First Guardian of the Faith." Mason Remey, Proclamation of the Second Guardian, Ridván 117 B.E.

[FN4] "As time went on Mason Remey assigned increasing responsibilities to me in my capacity as President of the Council. A culmination was reached in the summer of 1965 when I visited him in Florence, Italy, and he instructed me to announce to the Bahá'í World the activation of the second International Bahá'í Council. He left the wording of this announcement to me. I recall wondering to myself at the time how I would word such an announcement as Mason Remey's Proclamation had made it very clear to all of us why Shoghi Effendi had never instructed him during his lifetime to activate the first International Bahá'í Council (created in 1951), for had he done so Mason Remey, as its President (i.e., the head of the Universal House of Justice), would have at that instant automatically become the second Guardian. Upon returning to France where I was residing at the time and reflecting further on how I should phrase the announcement activating the Council, I prepared the statement which appears in the Glad Tidings of October 1965 under the heading of "Council Assumes Task" . This statement was forwarded to Mason Remey for approval, although he had not asked me to do so. A review of this statement will show that I attempted to resolve my dilemma by using such phrases as: "the second International Bahá'í Council (the embryonic Universal House of Justice under the hereditary Guardianship) will not be convened at this time as a collectively functioning body" and "The President will assign responsibilities and tasks to individual members of the Council". However, recalling the circumstances surrounding the creation of the first International Bahá'í Council in 1951, it will be remembered that Shoghi Effendi, himself, had issued all instructions and assigned tasks to individual members of the Council. Therefore, Mason Remey, the embryonic Head of the embryonic Universal House of Justice, remained in this embryonic state destined only to emerge and come into active life as Guardian of the Faith upon the passing of Shoghi Effendi. My situation was different for it is now apparent that the procedure which I conceived and placed into effect with the aim of circumventing activation of the Council really did not accomplish this purpose at all. For the moment I assumed responsibility for directing members of the Council in the performance of their tasks the Council was actively functioning and activated under its President (its activation not necessarily being contingent upon a collective convocation of its members in a given place). The head of this functioning body could only be the Guardian of the Faith. Whether Mason Remey, himself, at the time, grasped the implications of his instructions to me to activate the Council is not known to me. If he did not, however, a subsequent announcement which he directed I prepare and release to the faithful Bahá'ís indicated that he had turned the affairs of the Faith over to me. In a letter under date of February 18, 1966, he stated: "I am turning the affairs of the Faith over to you as the President of the second Bahá'í International Council to handle this for me - you having the other members of the International Council to assist you" and further in this same letter "from now on I will leave you free to conduct the affairs of the Faith, I making suggestions when necessary". (Published in the Glad Tidings of May 1966)." Joel B. Marangella, Proclamation of the Third Guardian, November 12, 1969

Previous page Table of contents Next slide

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

 .

FAQ About the Orthodox Baha'i Faith

Previous page Table of contents Next slide

Why do you call it "Orthodox"?

How Can There Be More Than One Baha'i Faith?

Why is the Orthodox Baha'i Faith focused upon the history of events surrounding Shoghi Effendi's death?

Since the Orthodox Baha'i Faith has fewer members than the Heterodox Faith, why not just unite with the main group?

Where can I Learn More About the Orthodox Baha'i Faith?

Do you have more questions? Email uses JavaScript to defend against SPAM.
You must enable JavaScript to contact me.

Why do you call it "Orthodox"?

The word "orthodox" means adhering to the accepted original or traditional and established faith. This is a temporary appellation used to distinguish the believers whom have accepted Mason Remey as the Second Guardian, and Joel B. Marangella as the Third Guardian, from those believers who believe that the Guardianship ended with the death of Shoghi Effendi. Orthodox Baha'is calls that group the "Heterodox" Baha'is to signify their departure from the original texts of the Baha'i Writings.

Return to Top How Can There Be More Than One Baha'i Faith?

Surely one of the central teachings of the Baha'i Writings is that it cannot be split into sects. It has been promised that there shall be only one Baha'i Faith. However, the Writings also are clear that unity in the Cause can be maintained ONLY by obedience to the GUARDIAN. From the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha:

"The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the Guardian of the Cause of God. It is incumbent upon the members of the House of Justice, upon all the Aghsan, the Afnan, the Hands of the Cause of God to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the Guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him. He that opposeth him hath opposed the True One, will make a breach in the Cause of God, will subvert His Word and will become a manifestation of the Center of Sedition. Beware, beware, lest the days after the ascension (of Baha'u'llah) be repeated when the Center of Sedition waxed haughty and rebellious and with Divine Unity for his excuse deprived himself and perturbed and poisoned others. No doubt every vainglorious one that purposeth dissension and discord will not openly declare his evil purposes, nay rather, even as impure gold, will he seize upon divers measures and various pretexts that he may separate the gathering of the people of Baha."

The horrible fact is that the vast majority of the Baha'is have turned against the Guardian and caused a division in the Faith. Our living Guardian has stated that the Great Violation will not stand, however, and that the Cause of Baha'u'llah is destined to triumph and that every clause of the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha will come to pass. The Guardian has urged all of the misled believers in the Heterodox organization to flee that organization and to come under the loving shadow of the Tree of the Covenant.

Return to Top

Why is the Orthodox Baha'i Faith focused upon the history of events surrounding Shoghi Effendi's death?

The Orthodox Baha'i Faith is not concerned about the historical past so much as it is concerned about the continuing violation of the Baha'i Covenant that began upon Shoghi Effendi's death. Without the Covenant and its central Institutions such as the Guardianship, then there is nothing left for the Baha'is to teach. The Guardianship IS the Baha'i Faith. Therefore, unless and until the Baha'i world faces up to the fact that the Covenant was violated after Shoghi Effendi's death, and that violation continues to this day, the Faith will not emerge triumphant. [FN1] We believe that the Cause of God belongs to Baha'u'llah, and we know that He will make it triumphant eventually. However, for this to be realized the Baha'is must obey the living Guardian, the Center of the Cause.

Return to Top

Since the Orthodox Baha'i Faith has fewer members than the Heterodox Faith, why not just unite with the main group?

When it comes to faith, it is not important how many members there are. There are far more people who do not believe in Baha'u'llah than the few people who do believe. Does that mean that, for the sake of unity, all Baha'is should join the Christian churches? The issue is faith. The Orthodox Baha'is believe that, as Shoghi Effendi clearly stated, the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá is equated in its sacredness and immutability with Bahá'u'lláh's Most Holy Book-the Kitáb-i-Aqdas-and that these two Documents are "inseparable parts of one complete unit", that Abdu'l-Bahá's Will constitutes a part of the explicit Holy Text whose laws and provisions, including those applicable to the continuity of the Guardianship, are destined to remain inviolate, unchanged and applicable as long as the Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh, itself, is to endure.[FN2] Thus, it is impossible for the Orthodox Baha'is to unite with the Heterodox. To do so, would be to turn away from and betray God Himself.

Return to Top

Where can I Learn More About the Orthodox Baha'i Faith?

There are a number of web sites that contain complete information about the Orthodox Baha'i Faith. Go to these sites:

The Guardian's Web Site

The National Baha'i Council of the United States

The above sites have links to a variety of other sites maintained by the Institutions or believers of the Orthodox Baha'i Faith. If you would like printed material mailed to you, please write to:

The National Baha'i Council of the United States
PO Box 3201
Roswell, NM 88201

Return to Top

Do you have more questions? Email uses JavaScript to defend against SPAM.
You must enable JavaScript to contact me.

Previous page Table of contents Next slide

[FN1] "The way of the Baha'i Faith is difficult. At all times one must be awake to its perils, and particularly so in times of crisis such as the one in which the Faith now finds itself, for, at this present time, the very existence and the future of the Faith upon earth hangs in the balance. Should the Guardianship of the Faith lapse and the line be allowed to break (as these violators are making every effort to accomplish), the line of Guardianship will be broken, infallibility will be lost to the Faith, and all hopes will be lost for the Kingdom of God upon Earth.

"Such a condition we must not allow to happen. Even though we be but a mere handful--a very small number of followers faithful to the Covenant and the Administration of the Guardianship--we, with all the world in violation against us, must stand together and support the Guardianship.

"We must stand in firmness for the Guardianship, that is, the Administration of our Faith. Not only must we do this for our own sakes and for the present existence of our Faith; but it must be done for the Faith in the ages to come, for if we fail now and allow the Guardianship to pass out of existence and this spiritual line of heritage to become extinct, future generations will have no Cause. All infallible divine guidance will be at an end.

"Therefore, Friends of the Baha'i Faith, arise and maintain the life center--the heart and soul of the Abha Kingdom upon earth that is the Guardianship--for only by our doing so will the Cause of El Abha be saved for this world. Even though all the rest of the world be against us, nothing can destroy the Cause so long as even a small few believers stand in support of the Guardian and the continued Guardianship of the Baha'i Faith." Mason Remey, Second Guardian's Second Encyclical Letter (1960)

[FN2] "Shoghi Effendi has further acclaimed this sacred and immortal Document 'as the inevitable offspring resulting from that mystic intercourse between Him Who communicated the generating influence of His divine Purpose (Baha u llah) and the One Who was its vehicle and chosen recipient' ('Abdu'l-Bahá) and has emphasized that this Will 'Being the Child of the Covenant the Heir of both the Originator and the Interpreter of the Law of God can no more be divorced from Him Who supplied the original and motivating impulse than from the One Who ultimately conceived it.' In the light of this significant statement we can understand the following comments of Shoghi Effendi concerning this momentous Document:

'For nothing short of the explicit directions of their Book, and the surprisingly emphatic language with which they have clothed the provisions of their Will, could possibly safeguard the Faith for which they have both so gloriously labored all their lives.' (underlinings have been added for emphasis)

Having gained the understanding that the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá as a result of its joint Authorship is the Child of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh, we are better prepared to understand the relationship of this sacred and divinely-conceived Document to the Aqdas Bahá'u'lláh's Most Holy Book. In explaining this relationship, Shoghi Effendi has stated that the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá 'confirms, supplements, and correlates the provisions of the Aqdas' and that as these two sacred Documents are complementary and 'mutually confirm one another' they are inseparable parts of one complete unit. An understanding of these two points (i.e. the joint Authorship of the Will and the fact that the Will and Aqdas are parts of one unit the 'explicit Holy Text') is critical to the realization of the falsity of the heretical doctrines espoused by the Heterodox Bahá'ís. For it is obvious that to change or annul any of the provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá or to declare that some of its provisions have become null and void, as, in fact, the Heterodox Bahá ís have claimed, is to nullify the provisions of the explicit Holy Text and the Purpose of Bahá'u'lláh, Himself. In declaring the sacred Text of 'Abdu'l-Bahá's Will to be co-equal in status with the Text of the Aqdas, Shoghi Effendi has made it clear that the faithful Bahá'ís can no more tamper with or alter the sacred provisions of 'Abdu'l-Bahá's Will than they can with the immutable laws of the Aqdas which every faithful Bahá'í believes will endure and remain inviolable as long as the Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh endures (promised by Him to last at least a full thousand years). If one accepts the fallacious doctrine that certain provisions of the Will and Testament have become null and void some 36 years after the passing of 'Abdu'l Baha (i.e. with the passing of Shoghi Effendi), as claimed by the Heterodox Bahá'ís, the enquirer may justifiably ask how these Bahá'ís can uphold the immutability and indestructibility of the provisions and laws of the Aqdas and prevent them from suffering, as time goes on, a deformation as severe as that inflicted upon the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá at their hands." Joel B. Marangella, What is the Meaning of Loyalty to the Covenant of Baha u'llah and Who are the Present Day Covenant-Breakers?

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

 .

Heterodox Believers' Questions About Investigating the Claims of the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith

Previous page Table of contents Next slide

Should I Tell My Bahá'í Friends That I am Studying the Orthodox Faith?

What Can I do About Being Shunned?

Can I Stay in the Heterodox Organization Even Though I Have Declared as an Orthodox Bahá'í?

Do I Have to Shun My Heterodox Bahá'í Friends?

How Do I Join the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith?

Do you have more questions? Email uses JavaScript to defend against SPAM.
You must enable JavaScript to contact me.

Should I Tell My Bahá'í Friends That I am Studying the Orthodox Faith?

Of course, that is entirely up to you. However, you should be aware that just as soon as the Heterodox organization finds out that you are reading Orthodox Bahá'í material, the organization will put pressure upon you to stop reading it and to affirm your faith in and obedience to the Heterodox organization. Don't make the mistake of believing that your Bahá'í friends will keep the matter confidential. They will not. They will notify an institution of the Heterodox organization. You will most likely receive a call from an Auxiliary Board Member who will question you. The ABM will act like he or she is looking out for your own "spiritual health." In fact, the ABM is gathering facts to determine whether or not you should be declared a covenant-breaker for "the good of the entire community." Don't believe you will have a fair hearing or that your "Universal House of Justice" will carefully deliberate about whether or not you are a covenant breaker. They won't. If the ABM does not like your answers, it is likely that your community will be informed that you have a spiritual disease and must be shunned. The ABM will contact your spouse and insist that he or she leave you, together with your kids, and if your family refuses to do so they will be shunned also. You may not have heard about it but this has happened a number of times to others just like you. It will happen to you also. Why do this to yourself? While you are reading the material and before you have made up your mind, the last thing you need is to have this kind of pressure used against you. It may force you to make a decision before you are ready. Why not just quietly read the materials and refrain from telling anybody until you are ready to make a decision?

Return to Top

What Can I do About Being Shunned?

The shunning behavior exhibited by the Heterodox organization is a mind-control device in an attempt to keep the believers from independently investigating the truth. One must wonder what they are so afraid of? Do they have no faith in their position? Or are they aware that their position is wrong and don't want you to find out? Regardless of their reasons, if they found out you are investigating the Orthodox Faith or that you believe in it, you will be shunned. There is no way to avoid it. Many people have tried different strategies. The bottom line is that sooner or later, they will find out about you and you will be shunned. You must ask yourself whether or not it is worth it to pursue this matter further. Are you dedicated to the truth so much that you are willing to sacrifice all contact with your friends (and perhaps family)? If not, then it would be best for you to simply stop reading right now.

Return to Top

Can I Stay in the Heterodox Organization Even Though I Have Declared as an Orthodox Bahá'í?

Again, that is entirely up to you. Some newly-declared believers have thought that if they quietly remained in the Heterodox organization, they might be able to gently guide their friends to the truth of the Orthodox Faith. It is certainly possible to do so. Some have been successful at this. Eventually, they are found out and shunned. This is a matter of individual conscience. You must ask yourself whether or not it is deceptive for you to continue in your role within the Heterodox organization even though your loyalty has shifted to the Guardian. After all, the Heterodox institutions are covenant breaking bodies.

Return to Top

Do I Have to Shun My Heterodox Bahá'í Friends?

Generally, no. The Guardian has not declared the rank and file members of the Heterodox organization as covenant breakers. He recognizes them as misled believers and would welcome them back to the True Faith at any time. Therefore, you will not be asked to shun your friends within the Heterodox organization. [FN1] Of course, they will be asked to shun you. If they fail to shun you, they will most likely be expelled by the Heterodox organization.

Return to Top

How Do I Join the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith?

It is important for you to be clear about what it means to declare your belief in the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith. When you sign the Orthodox declaration, you are affirming your belief that Shoghi Effendi was the First Guardian, that Charles Mason Remey was the Second Guardian, and that Joel B. Marangella is the Third Guardian. You are encouraged to fully deepen in the Writings and make sure you understand the significance of your declaration of belief. If you are interested in becoming an Orthodox Bahá'í, please contact:

National Bahá'í Council
PO Box 3201
Roswell, NM 88201
505-622-1611
obfusa@rt66.com

Return to Top

Previous page Table of contents Next slide

[FN1] "When a Soul errs and separates himself from the Faith, we should be particularly loving and kind to him in our thoughts and prayers, realizing that he is sick spiritually and is in need of our kindness. To attack and berate him and want to seem him chastised and punished for his lack of faith only makes the breech wider and more difficult to bridge. We should do all we can to bring him back into happy relations with ourselves and not treat him as an enemy but always as a friend. In other words, friendship added to friendship creates friendship--enmity added to enmity creates more enmity." Mason Remey, Correspondence to the N.S.A. Under the Hereditary Guardianship, December 5, 1965

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

 .

Newly-Declared Orthodox Believers' Questions

Previous page Table of contents Next slide

I Have Declared My Belief in the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith, Now What Happens?

What Institutions Govern the Faith?

What Meetings Do We Have and How Do We Communicate?

Do We Have Teaching Plans and Goals?

I Have a Question for the Guardian, May I Write to Him?

Do you have more questions? Email uses JavaScript to defend against SPAM. You must enable JavaScript to contact me.

I Have Declared My Belief in the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith, Now What Happens?

Be prepared to be warmly welcomed. If you have left the Heterodox organization to join the Orthodox Faith, you will find that the Orthodox Faith operates a bit differently from what you have been used to. It is much smaller and less formal. The friends are scattered about and many of them are isolated believers. Conditions exist the same as the early days of Shoghi Effendi's ministry. Many of the attitudes, practices, and approaches adopted by the Heterodox organization since the death of Shoghi Effendi are not followed. It will take some time to get accustomed to this new way. You will find in our community that there are older believers who were members of the Bahá'í Faith from before Shoghi Effendi's death as well as believers who have recently left the Heterodox organization. The best thing to do is to make contact with the other believers and ask as many questions as you would like. This group has nothing to hide or fear and no questions are off limits. You should read as much material as you can, especially the writings of the Guardian, so that you can quickly learn how your new community operates.

Return to Top

What Institutions Govern the Faith?

The Institutions that exist in the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith are the ones that Shoghi Effendi wrote about in The Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh. Of course, we have a Guardian! To date, he has appointed one Hand of the Cause of God (Franklin Schlatter). The Faith in the United States is governed by the National Bahá'í Council appointed by the Guardian as the national administrative body. There is also a Council in India. There are a number of groups and a few Local Spiritual Assemblies.

Return to Top

What Meetings Do We Have and How Do We Communicate?

The National Bahá'í Council hosts several conferences each year. New believers are especially encouraged to attend in order to meet the friends and learn from the wealth of information presented by a number of long established and deepened Bahá'ís. You will find there is a warmth and unity not found in the Heterodox organization. In many respects, attending the conferences resembles a family reunion. Because we are so isolated, the Council believes it is important for believers to attend and therefore it accepts contributions for a fund to help defray the expenses for believers who need financial assistance in order to attend. In addition to our regular conferences, there is a regular publication of The Herald of the Covenant newsletter containing useful information and excerpts from correspondence with the Guardian and any new messages or writings from the Guardian. The Friends in Touch newsletter is another regular publication to keep all of the friends connected and informed about what is happening around the country. In addition, the National Council publishes materials from time to time and makes them available to the friends. Finally, many believers are active on the internet and frequently send email messages back and forth. There is also a Yahoo! Group dedicated to communication between the members of the Faith, and there is an email deepening program operated by one of the believers

Return to Top

Do We Have Teaching Plans and Goals?

Unlike the Heterodox organization, at this time our numbers are too small to effectively prosecute ambitious teaching plans and goals. However, the Guardian from time to time has suggested a variety of teaching campaigns directed primarily at awakening the misled believers in the Heterodox organization. Many individual Bahá'ís have their own teaching efforts, on the internet and by way of teaching firesides in their local communities. As for goals, considering the fact that the vast majority of believers have turned away from the Guardianship and that only a few faithful believers have kept the True Faith alive over the past 40 years, many of us consider it to be a major accomplishment for the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith to remain thriving and growing to this day.

Return to Top

I Have a Question for the Guardian, May I Write to Him?

All faithful believers are free to correspond with the Guardian through the National Bahá'í Council. In addition, at this time the Guardian allows individual believers to write to him through the mail or by email. Now that you have found the source of divine guidance on this earth, you should feel free to ask the Guardian about any question or problem that may arise.

Return to Top

privacy

http://truebahai.com:80/faq/toc.htm

Frequently Asked Questions

About Covenant Breakers

About the Living Guardian

About the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith

Heterodox Believers' Questions About Investigating the Claims of the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith

Newly-Declared Orthodox Believers' Questions

RETURN TO MAIN PAGE:TRUEBAHAI.com

Previous slide Table of contents Next slide

HOW TO NAVIGATE OUR SITE: Click the left arrow to return to the previous page. Click the right arrow to proceed to the next page. Click the middle arrow to return to this table of contents. Click an underlined question to get that question's answer.

http://truebahai.com:80/general.html

truebahai.com

General Links:

What is an Orthodox Bahá'í?

The Twelve Principles of the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith

Words to Live By

THE BAHÁ'Í FAITH: A Summary of its Aims, Teachings and History by Joel B. Marangella, Third Guardian

Orthodox Bahá'í Faith: A Capsule View

Introduction to Orthodox Bahá'í Faith

Personal Experiences of Orthodox Bahá'ís Upon Leaving the Heterodox Organization -- Their Concerns and Suggested Courses of Action

RETURN TO MAIN LINKS MENU

Copyright © 2006, 2004, 2003, 2002, 2001 - truebahai.com
All Rights Reserved

This web site is offered in loving service to the Third Guardian of the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh, Joel B. Maranagella

Webmaster: Email uses JavaScript to defend against SPAM.
You must enable JavaScript to contact me.

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

http://truebahai.com:80/great-vio-links.html

truebahai.com

THE TREE OF THE COVENANT OF BAHÁ'U' LLÁH by Joel B. Marangella, Third Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith

THE COVENANT From Bahá'u'lláh to The Year 2000

The Lamentation of Shoghi Effendi by Joel B. Marangella, Third Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith

Shoghi Effendi, First Guardian

Third Guardian's Message to sans-Guardian UHJ (re Tablet of the Holy Mariner)

The Erring Hands on Trial: A Play by Jeffrey Goldberg

The Great Violation of the Covenant by "Sharaf"

Questions for the Current Haifa Administration over the Heterodox Bahá'ís of the Earth, Which Administration is Acting Under the Appellation "Universal House of Justice" by Ross Campbell

RETURN TO MAIN LINK MENU

Copyright © 2004, 2003, 2002, 2001 - truebahai.com
All Rights Reserved

This web site is offered in loving service to the Third Guardian of the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh, Joel B. Maranagella

Webmaster: Email uses JavaScript to defend against SPAM.
You must enable JavaScript to contact me.

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

http://truebahai.com:80/hoc/attendant.html

Attendant Institutions
by Hand of the Cause Franklin Schlatter

Of the Universal House of Justice and the Guardianship, Shoghi Effendi wrote on page 148 of "The World Order of Bahá'u'lláh" that "each is equipped with its own attendant institutions--instruments designed for the effective discharge of its particular responsibilities and duties. Each exercises, within the limitations imposed upon it, its powers, its authority, its rights and prerogatives." Additionally, he stated that "Far from being incompatible or mutually destructive, they supplement each other's authority and functions, and are permanently and fundamentally united in their aims."

It seems clear to me that in the organization that is now minus a living Guardian that the "attendant institutions" referred to by Shoghi Effendi no longer exist in the manner that the beloved Guardian described. Certainly, without the Guardianship in that organization, the concept of the UHJ and the Guardianship (with their attendant institutions) being able to "supplement each other's authority and functions" is no longer valid.

How do members of the sans-living Guardian organization square their operation with what Shoghi Effendi wrote on page 148 of WOB?

The "attendant institutions" for the Guardianship (at least as provided in the writings of `Abdu'l-Bahá and Shoghi Effendi) include the Hands of the Faith. Additionally, Shoghi Effendi called for Auxiliary Board members to be appointed by the Hands. In the sans-living Guardian organization, those attendant institutions are no longer under the Guardianship; they are under the sans-Guardian UHJ.

The attendant institutions for the Universal House of Justice --in its efflorescence and "final fruition" -- according to Shoghi Effendi's January 9, 1951 message to the National Assemblies of the East and West will be "manifold auxiliary institutions constituting the World Administrative Center destined to arise and function and remain permanently established in [the] close neighborhood of [the] Twin Holy Shrines."

If those "manifold auxiliary institutions" are not spelled out in the writings, and if it is the Guardian of the Faith who provides "the necessary guidance to define the sphere of the legislative action of its elected representatives" (p. 148 of WOB), then minus the Guardian that 'necessary guidance' is withdrawn and the wrong attendant institutions could well be put into place.

Obviously, neither `Abdu'l-Bahá nor Shoghi Effendi pictured the successors to the Hands (the Continental Board of Counselors) to be an auxiliary institution of the UHJ.

Sincerely,

Frank Schlatter
April 2002

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

Hand of the Cause of God Franklin Schlatter, who now lives in Roswell, New Mexico, was originally from Peoria, Illinois. He became acquainted with the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh while he was in the army and stationed in Germany in the late 50 s. On his return to the states he became a Bahá'í in 1959. Subsequent to the 1960 proclamation of Charles Mason Remey, identifying himself as the second Guardian of the Faith on the basis of his appointment by his predecessor to the presidency of the embryonic Universal House of Justice, Schlatter joined the small band of Bahá'ís who followed the second Guardian.

In 1963, he was elected to the national assembly that was formed under Mason Remey and in the next three years served as that body s recording and corresponding secretary. In later years, after Joel B. Marangella became the third Guardian of the Faith, Schlatter was elected as secretary of the Mother Bahá'í Council of the United States, a local council that was first formed in 1978 and given provisional national administrative responsibilities, pending the development of the Orthodox Faith in this country.

Schlatter, who has worked in close harmony with the third Guardian, was identified by Marangella as a Knight of the Cause in 1978, and then, in April of 1997 he was named as the first Hand of the Cause since the first Guardian of the Faith, Shoghi Effendi, had appointed twenty-seven Hands to serve under him. Only the Guardian of the Faith can appoint Hands, whose basic duties are to assist the Guardian of the Faith and to work for the spread of the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh, the Prophet-Founder of the Bahá'í Faith.

Some Writings of Franklin Schlatter:

Attendant Institutions

The Interpretative Domain and a Prayer of Bahá'u'lláh

The Messages of Frank Schlatter to alt.religion.bahai

My Experience in Becoming an Orthodox Bahá'í

Warning: This Religious Faith Now Contains Heresy

The Real Heresy Within the Bahá'í Faith Today

The Overlooked Importance of Pilgrim's Notes

The Wrongful Pattern Of the Sans-Guardian Bahá'ís

RETURN TO MAIN LINKS MENU

Copyright © 2005, 2004, 2003, 2002, 2001 - truebahai.com
All Rights Reserved

This web site is offered in loving service to the Third Guardian of the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh, Joel B. Maranagella

Webmaster: Email uses JavaScript to defend against SPAM.
You must enable JavaScript to contact me.

http://truebahai.com:80/hoc/interp-domain.html

The Interpretive Domain and a Prayer of Bahá'u'lláh
by Hand of the Cause Franklin Schlatter

A letter written on behalf of Shoghi Effendi to the NSA of Canada on June 4, 1957, stated: "The Will and Testament of Bahá'u'lláh and The Will and Testament of the Master clearly and explicitly indicate that the Interpreter of The Word was the Center of the Covenant and now is the Guardian. There are no other Interpreters whatsoever and no individual may interpret. This is strictly forbidden."

The sans-Guardian Universal House of Justice reaffirmed that position on August 22, 1977, when, in a letter written on its behalf, it was stated: "It must always be remembered that authoritative interpretation of the Teachings was, after `Abdu'l-Bahá, the exclusive right of the Guardian, and fell within the 'sacred and prescribed domain' of the Guardianship, and therefore the Universal House of Justice cannot and will not infringe upon that domain."

Yet, interestingly enough, in the UHJ's 7 December 1969 letter devoted to the Guardianship and the UHJ, the sans-Guardian body propounded an interpretation about a passage in the Aqdas which purportedly envisaged the possibility of "a break in the line of Guardians" -- an interpretation that has become an accepted understanding for the members of the majority organization of Bahá'ís, as is the case with other interpretations being made by the UHJ.

Since the majority of Bahá'ís apparently now accept the UHJ's intrusion into the sacred and prescribed domain of the Guardianship, it would be appropriate, I think, for believers who are now without a living Guardian to ask the UHJ for its interpretation of Bahá'u'lláh's prayer XXXVI in the volume "Prayers and Meditations."

That prayer reads as follows:

"Lauded be Thy name, O my God! I am so carried away by the breezes blowing from Thy presence that I have forgotten my self and all that I possess. This is but a sign of the wonders of Thy grace and bountiful favors vouchsafed unto me. I give praise to Thee, O my God, that Thou hast chosen me out of all Thy creatures, and made me to be the Day-Spring of Thy strength and the Manifestation of Thy might, and empowered me to reveal such of Thy signs and such tokens of Thy majesty and power as none, whether in Thy heaven or on Thy earth, can produce.

"I beseech Thee, O my Lord, by Thy most effulgent Name, to acquaint my people with the things Thou didst destine for them. Do Thou, then, preserve them within the stronghold of Thy guardianship and the tabernacle of Thine unerring protection, lest through them may appear what will divide Thy servants. Assemble them, O my Lord, on the shores of this Ocean, every drop of which proclaimeth Thee to be God, besides Whom there is none other God, the All-Glorious, the All-Wise.

"Uncover before them, O my Lord, the majesty of Thy Cause, lest they be led to doubt Thy sovereignty and the power of Thy might. I swear by Thy glory, O Thou Who art the Beloved of the worlds! Had they been aware of Thy power they would of a certainty have refused to utter what Thou didst not ordain for them in the heaven of Thy will.

"Inspire them, O my Lord, with a sense of their own powerlessness before Him Who is the Manifestation of Thy Self, and teach them to recognize the poverty of their own nature in the face of the manifold tokens of Thy self-sufficiency and riches, that they may gather together round Thy Cause, and cling to the hem of Thy mercy, and cleave to the cord of the good-pleasure of Thy will.

"Thou art the Lord of the worlds, and of all those who show mercy, art the Most Merciful."

****

I think the sans-Guardian UHJ should be asked such questions as these:

1) Would the sans-Guardian UHJ maintain that the Bahá'í Administrative Order (including both a living Guardian and the Universal House of Justice) can rightfully be included in those "things" to which Bahá'u'lláh refers when he calls upon God "to acquaint my people with the things Thou didst destine for them"?

2) Is the guardianship in this prayer the same guardianship as the sans-Guardian UHJ referred to in its 1969 letter when it spoke of the possibility of a break in the line of Guardians? If not, what is the sans-Guardian UHJ's interpretation of the word "guardianship" in this prayer?

3) Is there an authoritative interpretation that is to be given regarding Bahá'u'lláh's intent when He wrote the words "preserve them within the stronghold of Thy guardianship"? That is, did either `Abdu'l-Bahá or Shoghi Effendi provide an interpretation for this prayer?

4) In their 1969 interpretation, the sans-Guardian UHJ said that there are "clear indications" in the writings that the Guardianship might end. Would the sans-Guardian UHJ agree that there are "clear indications" that Bahá'u'lláh's use of the words "preserve them within the stronghold of Thy guardianship" is akin to `Abdu'l-Bahá's statement in His Will and Testament that "The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the guardian of the Cause of God"?

5) When Bahá'u'lláh writes "lest through them may appear what will divide Thy servants," is He implying that a sans-Guardian UHJ is necessary to maintain unity or that without the guardianship there may be division? Or is there some other implication to be drawn from His words?

6) In the passage "Uncover before them, O my Lord, the majesty of Thy Cause, lest they be led to doubt Thy sovereignty and the power of Thy might", to whom is Bahá'u'lláh referring when He speaks of those who may lose sight of the majesty of God's Cause and thus be "led to doubt" God's sovereignty and His power? Is the reference to those who think God changed His mind about the continuing Guardianship, or is the reference to those who abide by all the clauses in Bahá'u'lláh's and `Abdu'l-Bahá's sacred Will and Testament?

7) To whom is Bahá'u'lláh referring in the passage "Had they been aware of Thy power they would of a certainty have refused to utter what Thou didst not ordain for them in the heaven of Thy will"? Is the reference to those who, in conformity with `Abdu'l-Bahá's and Shoghi Effendi's views of the Guardianship, continue to follow a living Guardian, or is the reference to the Hands of the Faith and their sans-Guardian UHJ -- the Hands having taken command of the Cause without authorization from the writings?

8) What is it that has been uttered which God "didst not ordain for them in the heaven of Thy will?" Is it that there must be a living Guardian, or is it that, in the absence of a living Guardian, the Hands had to assume the direction of the Cause and to pass that power on to a sans-Guardian UHJ?

9)Because the believers under the sans-Guardian UHJ, despite the absence of a living Guardian, feel that they have everything they need to develop the World Commonwealth of Bahá'u'lláh--have they truly been inspired "with a sense of their own powerlessness"? Or are they so enamored with the power that their sans-Guardian organization evinces that they fail to recognize their powerlessness and thus continue to maintain that their Hand-made, sans-Guardian organization is Bahá'u'lláh's divinely-inspired matrix for the New World Order?

For those of us who are not followers of the sans-Guardian UHJ, it is obvious that a Universal House of Justice actually has no business attempting to answer such questions. And if neither `Abdu'l-Bahá nor Shoghi Effendi provided an authoritative interpretation of the prayer in question, then, certainly, those who follow the sans-Guardian UHJ can have no clear resolution to its meaning. Without doubt, over the next eight and a half or nine centuries or more, the sans-Guardian organization is destined to face many statements within the writings of the Faith for which there can be no clear interpretation, and, as `Abdu'l-Bahá pointed out in His writings, without the appointed interpreter there will be grounds for any number of schisms.

Sincerely,

Frank Schlatter

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

http://truebahai.com:80/index.html

truebahai.com

"[T]he principal factors that must be taken into consideration before deciding whether a person may be regarded a true believer or not [are:] 'Full recognition of the station of the Forerunner, the Author, and the True Exemplar of the Bahá'í Cause, as set forth in 'Abdu'l-Bahá's testament; unreserved acceptance of, and submission to, whatsoever has been revealed by their Pen; loyal and steadfast adherence to every clause of our Beloved's sacred Will*; and close association with the spirit as well as the form of the present day Bahá'í Administration throughout the world..."* - Shoghi Effendi (Bahá'í Administration, p.90)

Welcome to TRUEBAHAI.com! A portal to the teachings of the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith.

Featured Links:

Main Links
Introduction to the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith
The Guardian's Web Site
USA National Bahá'í Council's Web Site

NEW! The 12 principles of the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith. Our new online teaching booklet.

From the living third Guardian, Joel B. Marangella:
Why did he call it "The Central Body"?
A TERM USED ONLY ONCE FOR EMPHASIS, YET ITS PURPOSE WOULD BE SHAMELESSLY IGNORED In July, 1947, Shoghi Effendi prepared a statement for submission to the "United Nations Special Palestine Committee" that was incorporated in a pamphlet under the title of "The Faith of Bahá u lláh" and published by the Bahá í Publishing Committee of the United States. In this statement Shoghi Effendi pointed out that "the foundations are now being laid by the national and local councils . . . paving the way for the constitution of the World Council to be designated as the Universal House of Justice which in conjunction with me as its appointed Head and the authorized interpreter of the Bahá í teachings, must coordinate and direct the affairs of the Bahá í community." Read More

Also from the living third Guardian, Joel B. Marangella:
IF YOU SAY "YES," I ACCEPT AS VALID THE FOLLOWING ACTS AND PRONOUNCEMENTS OF SHOGHI EFFENDI
THEN YOU ARE LEFT WITH ONE INESCAPABLE CONCLUSION. If you are a Bahá í faithful to the Covenant of Bahá u lláh and its immortal "Child" the Will and Testament of Abdu l-Bahá and therefore faithful to the institution of the Guardianship, you will certainly say "yes" that you accept, without qualification, everything that Shoghi Effendi has written about the Covenant of [Bahá u lláh, the Will and Testament of Abdu l-Bahá and the Bahá í Administrative Order and unquestionably believe in the validity of all of his pronouncements, acts and decisions, including those announced in his messages to the Bahá í world, often communicated in cablegram form, and the absolute essentiality of faithfully complying, without reservation and to the best of our ability, with such instructions and goals as may be set forth in his communications. Read More

The Erring Hands on Trial
A HYPOTHETICAL TRIAL HELD IN THE NEXT WORLD OF THE FORMER HANDS OF THE CAUSE OF GOD WHO, UPON THE PASSING OF SHOGHI EFFENDI IN 1957,DECLARED THE GUARDIANSHIP FOREVER ENDED. [Court bailiff:] All rise. [All stand up] Hear ye! Hear ye! This Special Court of the Abhá Kingdom is now in session. The Honorable Chief Justice, Hand of the Cause of God Louis Gregory presiding. Read More

Just Hungry for Love God created us to want love
need love
give and share love

When a soul is deprived of
The precious nutrient of love
They do things Read More
(written by a 13-year old Orthodox Bahá í)

Our most popular article for the past several years:
What is True Friendship? by Ross Campbell
Only a spiritually mature man or woman is able to consistently demonstrate true friendship to another man or woman. Spiritual maturity means accomplishing the application in our lives of the Words of the Holy Messengers. Application means not merely learning their Words, but actually discovering how to make application of those Words in our daily lives. For example, one of those Holy Messengers, His Holiness the Lord Christ said: "There is more happiness in giving than in receiving." Read More

---

Third Guardian's web site: www.bahai-guardian.com

National Bahá í Council of the USA web site: www.orthodoxbahai.com

MORE LINKS!: Main Links Menu

Copyright © 2001-2006,truebahai.com
All Rights Reserved

This web site is offered in loving service to the Third Guardian of the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh
Joel B. Maranagella

Webmaster: contact@truebahai.com

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

http://truebahai.com:80/links.html

truebahai.com

Main Links Menu

Official Sites
This is a listing of web sites sponsored by the official Institutions of the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith, including the Guardian's home page and the web sites for the National Bahá'í Councils of the United States and of India.

Introductory & General Teachings
The basic principles and teachings of the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith can be found on these web sites.

World Peace and Unity
The Bahá'í Faith was revealed to bring peace and racial harmony to the world. Here are links to articles that set forth the Bahá'í "peace plan."

Spiritual Teachings
These links bring together articles about the mystical and spiritual teachings, including Divine Love, the Divine philosophy, Bahá'u'lláh's mystical books, The Hidden Words and the Seven Valleys, life after death, prayer, and the Tablet of the Holy Mariner.

Frequently Asked Questions
Click here to get the answers to the Frequently Asked Questions about the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith and submit your own questions!

Central Documents
Here are the links to the basic and most fundamental of the Bahá'í Writings, including the Book of the Covenant, the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá, and Shoghi Effendi's masterpiece, The Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh, which explains the fundamental verities of the Bahá'í Faith.

The Living Guardianship
This collection of web sites introduces the reader to the Living Guardianship through the writings of Shoghi Effendi, Mason Remey, Joel B. Marangella, and others.

The Great Violation
This is a listing of web links to articles about the Great Violation, whereby most of the Bahá'ís of the world tragically broke the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh.

[The Writings of Charles Mason Remey]
Here is a listing of the writings of Mason Remey that are available on the web.

[The Writings of Joel B. Marangella]
A listing of the writings of the current Guardian of the Cause, Joel B. Marangella, that are available on the web.

[Hand of the Cause of God]
Here is the place to find out about Frank Schlatter, the first Hand of the Cause of God to be appointed since the death of Shoghi Effendi, and read some of his writings. (The Third Guardian also has since appointed the following faithful believers to the ranks of the Hands: Marilyn Meyer, Madeline Byers (posthumous), Nosrat u llah Bahremand, Ross Campbell, Jeffrey Goldberg, David Maxwell, and Y.H. Taylor.

[Personal Web Pages]
Not officially sponsored by the Faith, individual Bahá'ís and Bahá'í groups have placed a wealth of information on the web.

[The Great Catastrophe]
Read what the Guardians have to say about the coming world catastrophe and how we might prepare for it.

[Miscellaneous Links]
There is a wealth of information on the web about the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith, but not everything can be classified into neat categories. This is the place to read the rest of it all!

[RETURN TO HOME PAGE]

Copyright © 2001-2006,truebahai.com
All Rights Reserved

This web site is offered in loving service to the Third Guardian of the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh
Joel B. Maranagella

Webmaster: contact@truebahai.com

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

http://truebahai.com:80/living-guardians.html

truebahai.com

The Living Guardianship:

SHOGHI EFFENDI FORETELLS AN ACTIVE ROLE FOR THE INTERNATIONAL BAHÁ Í COUNCIL by Joel B. Marangella, Third Guardian

Shoghi Effendi, First Guardian

The Tree of the Covenant by Joel B. Marangella, Third Guardian

Letter to a Heterodox Believer by Damaris Campbell

Chronology of the Guardianship

57 STATEMENTS OF FACT RELATED TO THE CONTINUING GUARDIANSHIP by Hand of the Cause of God Franklin D. Schlatter

May Maxwell on the Guardianship

`Abdu´l-Bahá's Tablets to Mason Remey

Mason Remey, Second Guardian

`Abdu´l-Bahá foretold Mason Remey's Accession to Guardianship

Faith and Belief

RETURN TO MAIN LINKS MENU

Copyright © 2004, 2003, 2002, 2001 - truebahai.com
All Rights Reserved

This web site is offered in loving service to the Third Guardian of the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh, Joel B. Maranagella

Webmaster: Email uses JavaScript to defend against SPAM.
You must enable JavaScript to contact me.

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

http://truebahai.com:80/misc.html

truebahai.com

Miscellaneous Links

Just Hungry for Love, a profound poem about God's love, written by a 13-year old Orthodox Bahá í.

The Relevance of the Bahá'í Teachings in Today's World, by David Maxwell Written and presented to the latest International Orthodox Bahá'í Conference, David Maxwell's essay takes a look at the ills of the world today and how much of these problems would have been mitigated if only the world, including the Bahá í world, had embraced the true teachings of Bahá u lláh.

What is True Friendship? by Ross Campbell
Asserting that only spiritually mature individuals can accomplish true friendship, Canadian Bahá'í Ross Campbell tells us what friendship is all about in this, our most popular web article so far this year.

Some Reflections on Obedience by Madeline Byers

EXTRACTS FROM THE DAILY OBSERVATIONS OF THE BAHÁ'Í FAITH MADE TO THE HANDS OF THE FAITH IN THE HOLY LAND BY MASON REMEY, Second Guardian

Hand of the Cause of God Franklin Schlatter

Third Guardian's Message on September 11th Attacks

Copyright © 2004, 2003, 2002, 2001 - truebahai.com
All Rights Reserved

This web site is offered in loving service to the Third Guardian of the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh, Joel B. Maranagella

Webmaster: Email uses JavaScript to defend against SPAM.
You must enable JavaScript to contact me.

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

http://truebahai.com:80/official.html

truebahai.com

Official Sites:

The Third Guardian's Web Site This official site of the Third Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith, Joel B. Marangella, contains a library of the living Guardian's writings in addition to a sampling of writings from Shoghi Effendi and Mason Remey (1st and 2nd Guardians), and others.

National Bahá'í Council - USA This is the official web site of the National Bahá'í Council of the United States, the governing national body of the Orthodox Baha'is living in the United States. Here you will find an excellent collection of articles addressing the position of the Orthodox Bahá'ís on the Covenant and the Living Guardianship. You will also find articles carefully refuting the positions taken by the sans-Guardian organization.

National Bahá'í Council of India The official web site of the National Bahá'í Council for India.

Orthodox Bahá'í Council of Delhi The web site for the local council for Delhi.

RETURN TO MAIN LINKS MENU

Copyright © 2004, 2003, 2002, 2001 - truebahai.com
All Rights Reserved

This web site is offered in loving service to the Third Guardian of the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh, Joel B. Maranagella

Webmaster: Email uses JavaScript to defend against SPAM.
You must enable JavaScript to contact me.

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

http://truebahai.com:80/peace.html

truebahai.com

World Peace and Unity Links

[What is the Bahá'í Peace Plan?]

[`Abdu´l-Bahá on Universal Peace]

[`Abdu´l-Bahá on Race Unity]

[The Brotherhood Potential]
by `Abdu´l-Bahá

[Bahá'u'lláh on the Origin of Conflict]

RETURN TO MAIN LINKS MENU

Copyright © 2004, 2003, 2002, 2001 - truebahai.com
All Rights Reserved

This web site is offered in loving service to the Third Guardian of the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh, Joel B. Maranagella

Webmaster: Email uses JavaScript to defend against SPAM.
You must enable JavaScript to contact me.

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

http://truebahai.com:80/personal.html

truebahai.com

Personal Web Pages Links

K.J.'s Bahá'í Home Page Written by an individual believer, this page contains a number of articles about the Bahá'í Teachings including articles written by `Abdu´l-Bahá, the Center of the Covenant, and by Mason Remey, Second Guardian, among others. In addition, there is a small library of historical documents of interest to Orthodox Bahá'í's.

Web Pages of Various Orthodox Bahá'í Groups:

RETURN TO MAIN LINKS MENU

Copyright © 2006, 2004, 2003, 2002, 2001 - truebahai.com
All Rights Reserved

This web site is offered in loving service to the Third Guardian of the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh, Joel B. Maranagella

Webmaster: Email uses JavaScript to defend against SPAM.
You must enable JavaScript to contact me.

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

http://truebahai.com:80/remey/

truebahai.com

Charles Mason Remey
Second Guardian of the Cause of God

Charles Mason Remey, appointed by Shoghi Effendi as Hand of the Cause, and as the President of the embryonic Universal House of Justice (known as the "International Bahá'í Council"), his accession to the office of the Guardianship occurred automatically upon the death of Shoghi Effendi.

Unfortunately, the Hands of the Cause of God at the time of Shoghi Effendi's death, did not accept Mason Remey's appointment. Instead, they seized control over the affairs of the Faith and expelled Mason Remey, thereby establishing the Most Great Violation of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh.

To read selections of Mason Remey's writings, please click the links below.

Proclamation of Mason Remey

Mason Remey on the Great Catastrophe

Extracts from the Daily Observations made to the Hand of the Faith in the Holy Land

Appeals to the Hands of the Faith

Announcement to the Hands of the Faith

The Encyclical Letters to the Bahá'í World

The Question of the Guardianship (compiled by Mason Remey)

RETURN TO MAIN LINKS MENU

Copyright © 2003, 2002, 2001 - truebahai.com
All Rights Reserved

This web site is offered in loving service to the Third Guardian of the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh, Joel B. Maranagella

Webmaster: Email uses JavaScript to defend against SPAM.
You must enable JavaScript to contact me.

---

privacy

http://truebahai.com:80/remey/index.html

truebahai.com

Charles Mason Remey
Second Guardian of the Cause of God

Charles Mason Remey, appointed by Shoghi Effendi as Hand of the Cause, and as the President of the embryonic Universal House of Justice (known as the "International Bahá'í Council"), his accession to the office of the Guardianship occurred automatically upon the death of Shoghi Effendi.

Unfortunately, the Hands of the Cause of God at the time of Shoghi Effendi's death, did not accept Mason Remey's appointment. Instead, they seized control over the affairs of the Faith and expelled Mason Remey, thereby establishing the Most Great Violation of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh.

To read selections of Mason Remey's writings, please click the links below.

Proclamation of Mason Remey

Mason Remey on the Great Catastrophe

Extracts from the Daily Observations made to the Hand of the Faith in the Holy Land

Appeals to the Hands of the Faith

Announcement to the Hands of the Faith

The Encyclical Letters to the Bahá'í World

The Question of the Guardianship (compiled by Mason Remey)

RETURN TO MAIN LINKS MENU

Copyright © 2004, 2003, 2002, 2001 - truebahai.com
All Rights Reserved

This web site is offered in loving service to the Third Guardian of the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh, Joel B. Maranagella

Webmaster: Email uses JavaScript to defend against SPAM.
You must enable JavaScript to contact me.

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

The Great Catastrophe

What Will Happen?
Shoghi Effendi
Mason Remey
Joel B. Marangella

Why Will it Happen?
Shoghi Effendi
Mason Remey
Joel B. Marangella

How Can We Prepare?
Shoghi Effendi
Mason Remey
Joel B. Marangella

Return to Spiritual Teachings

Updated
1-1-2004

The Great Catastrophe

Prophecies for Our Time

A Collection of Writings of the Guardians of the Orthodox Baha'i Faith

The Writings of Baha'u'llah warn us of a future time when a great catastrophe will overcome humanity. His Teachings don't tell us when the Great Catastrophe will come -- only that it will come. Perhaps it is now upon us.

The purpose of this web site is to gather writings on this subject by the Guardians of the Orthodox Baha'i Faith in order to discover WHAT will happen, WHY it will happen, and WHAT we can do to prepare!

TO NAVIGATE OUR SITE, SIMPLY CLICK THE LINKS ON THE LEFT BORDER

Please submit any additional quotes from the Guardians' writings, or send your questions or comments: Email uses JavaScript to defend against SPAM.
You must enable JavaScript to contact me.

For more information about the Orthodox Baha'i Faith: TRUEBAHAI.com

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

http://truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/how-jm.html

What Will Happen?

Shoghi Effendi Mason Remey Joel B. Marangella

FROM THE WRITINGS OF JOEL B. MARANGELLA, THIRD GUARDIAN

to make the inquirer more receptive

The faithful believers have certainly been as shocked, stunned, saddened and dismayed by the recent unforeseen and heinous terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon as their fellow-Americans and grieve along side them at the great loss of life incurred by so many innocent victims. Their hearts go out especially to those who have lost their loved ones in this terrible and unprecedented tragedy and they remember them in their prayers.

We, as Bahá'í's, have the assurance and the consolation from our Writings that those who have lost their lives in this tragic event have ascended to a greater world.

In the midst of this darkness that has fallen upon the world there are traces of some light. It is interesting that this view should also be expressed in a recent article that has appeared in one of the Australian newspapers which states that the Afghans have a proverb: "After every darkness there is light."

Why Will it Happen?

Shoghi Effendi Mason Remey Joel B. Mara

It has been gratifying to see the volume of material appearing in the press about the teachings of Islam as well as the numerous statements made by Muslim clerics and officials in interviews held on TV news programs emphasizing that the Qu'rán does not sanction terrorism and explaining the true position of Islam. In fact, a recent newspaper article appearing in the Australian press has devoted two full pages to a presentation of the facts concerning the teachings of Islam, including even a description of the difference between the Shí'ih Muslims and Sunni Muslims. The reader then comes to understand that the terrorists represent a fanatical fringe element who have perverted the teachings of Muhammad to justify their acts of terrorism.

No doubt, you have also seen on TV the pictures of the visit of the President of the United States to a Mosque (with a copy of the Qu'rán on the table in front of him) and have heard his statements in a public address in which he made the point that the war against the terrorists is not to be construed as one against Islam.

The increased understanding of Islam that has resulted from this discussion of Islam should facilitate our future teaching efforts and serve to make the inquirer more receptive to the Bahá'í teachings on the oneness of religion.

ngell
a

Ho w
Can
We Pre pare
?

Shog
hi Effe ndi
Mas on Rem
ey
Joel
B.
Mara
ngell
a

Another good thing that has come out of this tragic event is the increased cooperation that has been brought about between most of the governments of the world in an united and determined effort to eliminate terrorism from the world from whatever quarter.
Letter to National Baha'i Council 10-1-01 (commenting on terrorist attack on U.S.)

Retu rn to Main
Page

http://truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/how-mr.html

What Will Happen?

Why Will it Happen?

FROM THE WRITINGS OF MASON REMEY, SECOND GUARDIAN

Shoghi Effendi Mason Remey Joel B. Marangella

the Spiritual Safety of the peoples of the world

The people of the Baha'i Faith believe that when the great "Judgement" falls upon the world and the two-thirds part of mankind killed by the greatest catastrophe of all times, the Spiritual Safety of the peoples of the world lies in their embracing the Baha'i Revelation.

Statement Issued by the Second Guardian of the Baha'i World Faith to Dr. SR Levy, Librarian of the State Archives, Jerusalem Israel, 9-12-62

low, coastal and valley areas that will most likely be inundated by the rising waters from the seas and oceans

The Guardian of the Faith puts forth this general statement to all Baha'is who are established and living in those low, coastal and valley areas that will most likely be inundated by the rising waters from the seas and oceans during the Great World Catastrophe. With this statement he is warning all to seriously consider any opportunity, present or future, to re-locate themselves and their families as pioneers under the Guardianship in any part of the world that they may choose on one of those high plateau areas which appear most likely to remain above the inundations after the new seas and oceans have been formed by the coming slip of the earth's crust.

Correspondence to the N.S.A. Under the Hereditary Guardianship, February 20, 1965

Shoghi Effendi Mason Remey Joel B. Marangella

time is running out

We of the Baha'i Faith (under the hereditary Guardianship) have the solution in our spiritual teachings to minister to this world need and it is necessary that we should tell the world and explain to the people that Baha'u'llah, the Great Latter-Day Messiah came to the world over a century ago and established His Cause upon Earth. His Message of peace was refused by the rulers and Kings of the world. Time is running out and shortly, we do not know exactly when, the Great Judgement of mankind will fall. This is our message to the world of today....

....The coming world catastrophe is like a surgical operation....that one has to face....most unpleasant to say the least...but a thing that must be faced and met.

Correspondence to the N.S.A. Under the Hereditary Guardianship, May 29, 1965

How Can We Prepare?

Shoghi Effendi Mason Remey Joel B. Marangella

Return to Main Page

http://truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/how-se.html

What Will Happen?

FROM THE WRITINGS OF SHOGHI EFFENDI, FIRST GUARDIAN

[Shoghi Effendi Mason Remey Joel B. Marangella]

plumb greater depths of consecration

The American Baha'i Community, exalted, singled out among sister communities of East and West through revelation of the Tablets of the Divine Plan, is unavoidably approaching a testing period, crucial, prolonged, potent, purifying, clearly envisaged by Abdu'l-Baha, different from but recalling in its severity the ordeals which afflicted the dawn-breakers in a former Age.

The anticipated trials will enable its members to plumb greater depths of consecration, soar to nobler heights of collective endeavor, and disclose in fuller measure the future glory of their destiny.

Might not the strain, the stress, of the strenuous period now being ushered in through inscrutable dispensations of Providence be productive of perspicuous benefits and blessings reminiscent of the incalculable outpourings of divine grace which followed closely in the train of the woeful trials immortalizing the initial, the bloodiest, the most dramatic period in the Heroic Age of the Baha'i Dispensation.

Citadel of Faith pp. 66-67

Why Will it Happen?

rescue a fallen and sore-tried generation

The opportunities which the turmoil of the present age presents, with all the sorrows which it evokes, the fears which it excites, the disillusionment which it produces, the perplexities which it creates, the indignation which it arouses, the revolt which it provokes, the grievances it engenders, the spirit of restless search which it awakens, must, in like manner, be exploited for the purpose of spreading far and wide the knowledge of the redemptive power of the Faith of Baha'u'llah, and for enlisting fresh recruits in the ever-swelling army of His followers. So precious an opportunity, so rare a conjunction of favorable circumstances, may never again recur. Now is the time, the appointed time, for the American believers, the vanguard of the hosts of the Most Great Name, to proclaim, through the agencies and channels of a specially designed Administrative Order, their capacity and readiness to rescue a fallen and sore-tried generation that has rebelled against its God and ignored His warnings, and to offer it that complete security which only the strongholds of their Faith can provide.

Advent of Divine Justice, p48

the chosen remnant that must survive

Shoghi Effendi Mason Remey Joel B. Marangella

Pregnant indeed are the years looming ahead of us all. The twin processes of internal disintegration and external chaos are being accelerated and every day are inexorably moving towards a climax. The rumblings that must precede the eruption of those forces that must cause "the limbs of humanity to quake" can already be heard. "The time of the end," "the latter years," as foretold in the Scriptures, are at long last upon us. The Pen of Baha'u'llah, the voice of Abdu'l-Baha, have time and again, insistently and in terms unmistakable, warned an unheeding humanity of impending disaster. The Community of the Most Great Name, the leaven that must leaven the lump, the chosen remnant that must survive the rolling up of the old, discredited, tottering order, and assist in the unfoldment of a new one in its stead, is standing ready, alert, clear-visioned, and resolute. The American believers, standard-bearers of this world-wide community and torch-bearers of an as yet unborn civilization, have girt up their loins, unfurled their banners and stepped into the arena of service. Their Plan has been formulated. Their forces are mobilized. They are steadfastly marching towards their goal. The hosts of the Abha Kingdom are rushing forth, as promised, to direct their steps and reinforce their power. Through their initial victories they have provided the impulse that must now surge and, with relentless force sweep over their sister-communities and eventually overpower the entire human race. The generality of mankind, blind and enslaved, is wholly unaware of the healing power with which this community has been endowed, nor can it as yet suspect the role which this same community is destined to play in its redemption. Fierce and manifold will be the assaults with which governments, races, classes and religions, jealous of its rising prestige and fearful of its consolidating strength, will seek to silence its voice and sap its foundations. Unmoved by the relative obscurity that surrounds it at the present time, and undaunted by the forces that will be arrayed against it in the future, this community, I cannot but feel confident, will, no matter how afflictive the agonies of a travailing age, pursue its destiny, undeflected in its course, undimmed in its serenity, unyielding in its resolve, unshaken in its convictions. July 5, 1938
Messages to America pp. 13-14

How Can We Prepare?

clear away the choking weeds

Shoghi Effendi Mason Remey Joel

Are we, the privileged custodians of a priceless Faith, called upon to witness a cataclysmical change, politically as fundamental and spiritually as beneficent as that which precipitated the fall of the Roman Empire in the West? Might it not happen--every vigilant adherent of the Faith of Baha'u'llah might well pause to reflect--that out of this world eruption there may stream forces of such spiritual energy as shall recall, nay eclipse, the splendor of those signs and wonders that accompanied the establishment of the Faith of Jesus Christ? Might there not emerge out of the agony of a shaken world a religious revival of such scope and power as to even transcend the potency of those world-directing forces with which the Religions of the Past have, at fixed intervals and according to an inscrutable Wisdom, revived the fortunes of declining ages and peoples? Might not the bankruptcy of this present, this highly-vaunted materialistic civilization, in itself clear away the choking weeds that now hinder the unfoldment and future efflorescence of God's struggling Faith?

Let Baha'u'llah Himself shed the illumination of His words upon our path as we steer our course amid the pitfalls and miseries of this troubled age. More than fifty years ago, in a world far removed from the ills and trials that now torment it, there flowed from His Pen these prophetic words: "The world is in travail and its agitation waxeth day by day. Its face is turned towards waywardness and unbelief. Such shall be its plight that to disclose it now would not be meet and seemly. Its perversity will long continue. And when the appointed hour is come, there shall suddenly appear that which shall cause the limbs of mankind to quake. Then and only then will the Divine Standard be unfurled and the Nightingale of Paradise warble its melody."

B. Marangella

World Order of Baha'u'llah p. 33

Return to Main Page

withstand every test
...the believers need to be deepened in their knowledge and appreciation of the Covenants of both Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha. This is the stronghold of the Faith of every Baha'i, and that which enables him to withstand every test and the attacks of the enemies outside the Faith, and the far more dangerous, insidious, lukewarm people inside the Faith who have no real attachment to the Covenant, and consequently uphold the intellectual aspect of the teachings while at the same time undermining the spiritual foundation upon which the whole Cause of God rests.
Light of Divine Guidance vol. 2 p. 84

http://truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/what-jm.html

What Will Happen?

Shoghi Effendi

Mason Remey

Joel B. Marangella

Why Will it Happen?

Shoghi

FROM THE WRITINGS OF JOEL B. MARANGELLA, THIRD GUARDIAN

these fleeting visions will be completely forgotten

As many of the faithful friends do not have issues of Star of the West, I am copying below in its entirety a Tablet of 'Abdu'l-Baha revealed at Ramleh, Egypt, on September 1913, appearing in this old publication (Vol.IV, No. 16, 31 December 1913). In spite of the importance, significance and uniqueness of this Tablet, I do not recall that it was ever mentioned by any of the Baha'is in the several major cities of the United States where I resided at different times during my youth. Nor did I happen to come across this Tablet myself and read it with considerable surprise for the first time until a few years ago, long after the passing of Mason Remey, I might add. While I have not shared this startling Tablet with the friends before, I feel that I should do so now, not that the momentous event predicted by the Master is immediately upon us or should dominate our thinking or teaching efforts at this time, but only to relate it to a prophecy of Baha u llah with which all are familiar, I am sure, that foretells of the catastrophe that shall suddenly be visited upon a decadent and increasingly Godless world which shall cause the limbs of mankind to quake, the skins of men to creep and the eyes to stare up in terror and promises that then, and only then, will the Divine Nightingale warble His Melody. The Tablet of the Master follows:

A WORD PICTURE OF THE OLD WORLD

Look thou with seeing eyes at the world about thee and at the inhabitants thereof. Upon the stage of this immense theatre, most spectacular plays are being enacted. On one side thereof thou wilt see the victorious and vanquished legions of profit and loss. On the other side thou wilt observe the waves of the sea of folly rising and falling. Cries are being raised on every side and the agonies of revolution, revolt and unrest reach unto the ears of progressive men. There is a tremendous strike and clash between capital and labor, and the war between the aristocrats and democrats is carried on relentlessly with bow and arrow, sword and javelin. The phalanxes of a great army are drawn in battle array, each division taking its position. Armed troops and artillery are to be found in every part of the field. The flash of the swords of enmity blind the eyes from even the most remote distance, the lightning effect of breast-plate and lance and the sparkle of the bucklers of hatred light up the night and bewilder the sight. In short: strife, battle, slaughter and war are prepared in organized perfection.

On the other hand thou wilt hear that from every house strains of music are raised, and confusing melodies of harp, lyre, cymbal and flute are heard, and mad revellers are dancing to the tunes, while they are inebriated with the wine of vanishing pleasures. In one place thou wilt behold the wanton and soiled decorations and in another the flimsy shows of the gilded class of creatures. On the one hand is to be seen the embellishment and luxury made possible through illicit wealth, and on the other hand, the ravishing of this mortal world of its beautiful appearance.

Shoghi Effendi Mason Remey Joel B. Marangella

From different parts are to be heard sighs of anguish, lamentations of poverty, cries of agony and misery, -- and the calls for succor have reached to the gate of heaven. One hears the weeping of the hopeless, the appeals of the oppressed, the trembling murmurs of the helpless and the harrowing wails of the ship-wrecked in the sea of persecution. The heat of the conflagration of separation spreads on all sides, the fire of longing is raging with great intensity and the tongues of the flames of calamity leap forth in every direction. Here one sees the oppression of kings and the thoughtlessness of cabinet ministers; there one sees conflict on the battle field of thoughts and ideals by ambitious generals,statesmen and administrators of the nations and countries. They consult, scheme, plot and exchange views; they organize fallacious and superfluous companies and make false the established values; and thus do they lay and destroy the foundation of their political careers.

How Can We Prepare?

In short: when thou observest these things with the eye of reality, thou wilt see that the outcome, result and fruit of all these theatrical performances are mirages and their sweetness is bitter poison. A few days the earth shall roll on its axis, and these fleeting visions will be completely forgotten.

When thou shuttest thine eyes to this dark world and lookest upward and heavenward, thou wilt see light upon light stretching from eternity to eternity. The reality of the mysteries will be revealed. Happy is the pure soul who does not attach himself to the transient conditions and comforts, but rather seeks to attach himself to the purity, nobility and splendor of the world which endures.

--ABDUL-BAHA ABBAS

Shoghi Effendi Mason Remey Joel B. Marangella

I do not know whether Mason Remey ever read this Tablet. I do not recall that he ever mentioned it in any of his writings about the impending catastrophe that he was convinced was so near at hand. It would appear that he had not read this Tablet, or if he had, it was so long ago that he had forgotten that in Abdu l-Baha s description of this terrible future event He had stated: A FEW DAYS THE EARTH SHALL ROLL ON ITS AXIS.

It may be seen that the nature of this event, as described by the Master, varies markedly from the theory of Charles Hapgood which Mason subscribed to in his writings although the tragic outcome for mankind would ultimately be somewhat the same but with less loss of life. It may be recalled that according to the Hapgood theory the earth s crust will suddenly move with great rapidity over the underlying mantle as the result of a build up of the antarctic ice mass over thousands of years which coupled with the centrifugal force that this off-centered mass exerts as the earth revolves will increasingly exert a lateral pressure on the crust until a critical stage is reached and a sudden slippage of the crust for several thousand miles occurs. In contrast, Abdu l-Baha does not refer to a crustal shift but a rollover of the earth s axis over a period of a "few days." It is evident that according to the Hapgood theory huge tidal waves are produced that rush with incredible speed over the surface of the earth causing widespread and immediate inundations of the lower lying areas. While inundations can also be expected under the axis rollover theory it would certainly seem that these inundations would much less sudden and disastrous. A book has recently come to my attention, quite by chance, titled Pole Shift which includes the theories of several scientists, all of whom, with the exception of Hapgood, who is mentioned in the book, support the statement made by the Master as they theorize that the earth s poles are due for a change in the near future due to a flip over of the earth in the same manner which they contend has occurred many times in the ancient past. One scientist even sets forth a date for this change theorizing that this will take place on the 5th of May, 2000 because of the unique and unusual alignment of the planets in our solar system at that time which will exert such a tremendous magnetic pull on the earth that it will cause this pole shift.

Ret

urn to Main Page

Mason, as you know, was convinced that the catastrophe that he visualized would take place soon after 1963 and accordingly warned the friends to relocate to high ground as soon as possible. While he made an error in his timing of the event and the exact nature of the catastrophe as described in the Master s Tablet those who took his advice and moved to high ground within the United States at that time certainly are still well located and certainly have less to be concerned about than others, whatever the future may bring.
Joel B. Marangella (Ridvan letter) 4-18-1999

http://truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/what-mr.html

What Will Happen?

FROM THE WRITINGS OF MASON REMEY, SECOND GUARDIAN

Shoghi Effendi Mason Remey Joel B. Marangella

there will be safety in the Rocky Mountain area

[The Master said] "this catastrophe that is to come will be like certain catastrophes that came in the past, where a whole people and civilizations will be wiped out and there will not be a trace left...." ...I am not certain when it is coming, but it is coming. Now when the Master was in this country He made several statements. He said time will come when New England will be tropical. Another time He said Greenland will be temperate. Well I reason out from that if New England was to move into the tropics and Greenland in the temperate zone, then the North Pole would move down into Russia. And that is one of the recent scientific theories that the poles are at a critical point. However, that simply comes as a secondary confirmation. But again, the Master said that in those days to come of trouble there will be safety for the Baha'is in the Rocky Mountain area. Now, during the past two or three months I have sent a number of my Baha'i records and placed them out in Santa Fe, New Mexico, in the Rocky Mountain area. I looked at the different places. There are any number of cities there, but Santa Fe seemed to be the best place.... But I have been getting my things up there, and I want some time within the next year or so to establish a center of Baha'i teaching in Santa Fe. Time will come, I do not know when it's coming, have no idea at all. The time will come when the people will look to that point for spiritual help and we ought to have something there. Now, it is up to different Baha'is to do what they feel they should do as far as going here, or going there is concerned. I really don't issue any general orders to tell the people to go there. But what I should tell them that there will be safety there. if necessary, there will be safety in the Rocky Mountain area.

Talk in the home of Audie Petzolt, 1961

Why Will it Happen?

Shoghi

the entire Rocky Mountain area will probably come out safely

My reason for having suggested Santa Fe as a possible center for the new N.S.A. was born from my studies of the eventual catastrophe. Although we do not know exactly when this will be, we have every reason to believe that the entire Rocky Mountain area will probably come out safely. Therefore, Santa Fe or any other place in the Rocky Mountain area would be acceptable for the center. Of course, I do not intend indicating exactly where this is to be. I shall leave that entirely up to the N.S.A. However, it would seem wise for the friends of the U.S.A. to consider their center to be situated in an area where they may be able to purchase a rather large tract of land (several acres, if possible) which they may be able to get at a reasonable price and which will be available to them for future development. In choosing their site, they ought to keep in mind the fact that we are developing a center there for a time which we project into the future and after the catastrophe.

Effendi Mason Remey Joel B. Marangella

Correspondence to N.S.A. Under the Hereditary Guardianship August 20, 1963 prophecies that forewarn man

How Can We Prepare?

Of late, your Guardian has been studying the prophecies that forewarn man of the coming of the Great Global Cataclysm in which Biblical prophecy (Ezekiel, Ch. 39) and (Zachariah, Ch. 13)tell us that 2/3 of mankind will perish. In 1910 the Master, 'Abdu'l-Baha told him (the present living Guardian of the Faith) in reply to his questions, that this would happen sometime after 1963--the date given by the Prophet Daniel, Ch. 12: "Blessed is he that waiteth and cometh to the thousand and three hundred and five and thirty days". "Abdu'l-Baha said that the Catastrophe would not be immediately after and not in the distant future...simply "after" that date.

In recent years, I have been studying other prophecies from which I figured this would be much later than I had previously thought and now, very recently, I have been studying the prophecies of the seer Nostradamus, who lived from 1503 to 1566, and who places the date 1999 that is to be preceded by a time of world wars of seven years duration.

Shoghi Effendi Mason Remey Joel B. Marangella

Ezekiel, the Hebrew Prophet, foretells this seven years of war in which (with the great catastrophe) 5/6 of the people of God and Magog (Russia) will perish.

The people of the Baha'i Faith should bear these matters in mind and each one should make his plans for the present and future as he or she may be spiritually guided.

Correspondence to the N.S.A. Under the Hereditary Guardianship, December 15, 1965

Ret

urn to Main Page

http://truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/what-se.html

What Will Happen?

FROM THE WRITINGS OF SHOGHI EFFENDI, FIRST GUARDIAN

Shoghi Effendi Mason Remey Joel B. Marangella

taste ye what your hands have wrought

A tempest, unprecedented in its violence, unpredictable in its course, catastrophic in its immediate effects, unimaginably glorious in its ultimate consequences, is at present sweeping the face of the earth. Its driving power is remorselessly gaining in range and momentum. Its cleansing force, however much undetected, is increasing with every passing day. Humanity, gripped in the clutches of its devastating power, is smitten by the evidences of its resistless fury. It can neither perceive its origin, nor probe its significance, nor discern its outcome. Bewildered, agonized and helpless, it watches this great and mighty wind of God invading the remotest and fairest regions of the earth, rocking its foundations, deranging its equilibrium, sundering its nations, disrupting the homes of its peoples, wasting its cities, driving into exile its kings, pulling down its bulwarks, uprooting its institutions, dimming its light, and harrowing up the souls of its inhabitants.

Why Will it Happen?

Shoghi Effendi Ma

"The time for the destruction of the world and its people," Baha'u'llah's prophetic pen has proclaimed, "hath arrived." "The hour is approaching," He specifically affirms, "when the most great convulsion will have appeared." "The promised day is come, the day when tormenting trials will have surged above your heads, and beneath your feet, saying: `Taste ye what your hands have wrought!'" "Soon shall the blasts of His chastisement beat upon you, and the dust of hell enshroud you." And again: "And when the appointed hour is come, there shall suddenly appear that which shall cause the limbs of mankind to quake." "The day is approaching when its [civilization's] flame will devour the cities, when the Tongue of Grandeur will proclaim: `The Kingdom is God's, the Almighty, the All-Praised!'" "The day will soon come," He, referring to the foolish ones of the earth, has written, "whereon they will cry out for help and receive no answer." "The day is approaching," He moreover has prophesied, "when the wrathful anger of the Almighty will have taken hold of them. He, verily, is the Omnipotent, the All-Subduing, the Most Powerful. He shall cleanse the earth from the defilement of their corruption, and shall give it for an heritage unto such of His servants as are nigh unto Him."

"As to those who deny Him Who is the Sublime Gate of God," the Bab, for His part, has affirmed in the Qayyum-i-Asma', "for them We have prepared, as justly decreed by God, a sore torment. And He, God, is the Mighty, the Wise." And further, "O peoples of the earth! I swear by your Lord! Ye shall act as former generations have acted. Warn ye, then, yourselves of the terrible, the most grievous vengeance of God. For God is, verily, potent over all things." And again: "By My glory! I will make the infidels to taste, with the hands of son Remey

My power, retributions unknown of anyone except Me, and will waft over the faithful those musk-scented breaths which I have nursed in the midmost heart of My throne."
Promised Day is Come, pp. 3-4

Joel B. Marangella

we have no indication
We have no indication of exactly what nature the apocalyptic upheaval will be; it might be another war ... but as students of our Baha'i Writings, it is clear that the longer the `Divine Physician' (i.e. Baha'u'llah) is withheld from healing the ills of the world, the more severe will be the crisis, and the more terrible the sufferings of the patient.
Directives from the Guardian pp.12-13

How Can We Prepare?

a holocaust sparing neither prince nor peasant
On the high seas, in the air, on land, in the forefront of battle, in the palaces of kings and the cottages of peasants, in the most hallowed sanctuaries, whether secular or religious, the evidences of God's retributive act and mysterious discipline are manifest. Its heavy toll is steadily mounting--a holocaust sparing neither prince nor peasant, neither man nor woman, neither young nor old.
Messages to America p. 46

Shoghi Effendi

the end of a bankrupt and of a fundamentally defective civilization
For reasons which are only too obvious the Baha'i philosophy of social and political organization cannot be fully reconciled with the political doctrines and conceptions that are current and much in vogue to-day. The wave of nationalism, so aggressive and so contagious in its effects, which has swept not only over Europe but over a large part of mankind is, indeed, the very negation of the gospel of peace and of brotherhood proclaimed by Baha'u'llah. The actual trend in the political world is, indeed, far from being in the direction of the Baha'i teachings. The world is drawing nearer and nearer to a universal catastrophe which will mark the end of a bankrupt and of a fundamentally defective civilization.
Light of Divine guidance vol. 1 p 55

Mason Remey

Joel B. Marangella

violent derangement
Against the background of these afflictive disturbances--the turmoil and tribulations of a travailing age--we may well ponder the portentous prophecies uttered well-nigh fourscore years ago, by the Author of our Faith, as well as the dire predictions made by Him Who is the unerring Interpreter of His teachings, all foreshadowing a universal commotion, of a scope and intensity unparalleled in the annals of mankind.

Return to Main Page

The violent derangement of the world's equilibrium; the trembling that will seize the limbs of mankind; the radical transformation of human society; the rolling up of the present-day Order; the fundamental changes affecting the structure of government; the weakening of the pillars of religion; the rise of dictatorships; the spread of tyranny; the fall of monarchies; the decline of ecclesiastical institutions; the increase of anarchy and chaos; the extension and consolidation of the Movement of the Left; the fanning into flame of the smouldering fire of racial strife; the development of infernal engines of war; the burning of cities; the contamination of the atmosphere of the earth--these stand out as the signs and portents that must either herald or accompany the retributive calamity which, as decreed by Him Who is the Judge and Redeemer of mankind, must, sooner or later, afflict a society which, for the most part, and for over a century, has turned a deaf ear to the Voice of God's Messenger in this day--a calamity which must purge the human race of the dross of its age-long corruptions, and weld its component parts into a firmly-knit world-embracing Fellowship--a Fellowship destined, in the fullness of time, to be incorporated in the framework, and to be galvanized by the spiritualizing influences, of a mysteriously expanding, divinely appointed Order, and to flower, in the course of future Dispensations, into a Civilization, the like of which mankind has, at no stage in its evolution, witnessed.

Messages to Baha'i World 1950-57 p 103

oppression will envelop the world
"The winds of despair," writes Baha'u'llah, as He surveys the immediate destinies of mankind, "are, alas, blowing from every direction, and the strife that divides and afflicts the human race is daily increasing. The signs of impending convulsions and chaos can now be discerned, inasmuch as the prevailing order appears to be lamentably defective."

"Such shall be its plight," He, in another connection, has declared, "that to disclose it now would not be meet and seemly." "These fruitless strifes," He, on the other hand, contemplating the future of mankind, has emphatically prophesied, in the course of His memorable interview with the Persian orientalist, Edward G. Browne, "these ruinous wars shall pass away, and the `Most Great Peace' shall come.... These strifes and this bloodshed and discord must cease, and all men be as one kindred and one family." "Soon," He predicts, "will the present-day order be rolled up, and a new one spread out in its stead." "After a time," He also has written, "all the governments on earth will change. Oppression will envelop the world. And following a universal convulsion, the sun of justice will rise from the horizon of the unseen realm." "The whole earth," He, moreover, has stated, "is now in a state of pregnancy. The day is approaching when it will have yielded its noblest fruits, when from it will have sprung forth the loftiest trees, the most enchanting blossoms, the most heavenly blessings." "All nations and kindreds," Abdu'l-Baha likewise has written, "...will become a single nation. Religious and sectarian antagonism, the hostility of races and peoples, and differences among nations, will be eliminated. All men will adhere to one religion, will have one common faith, will be blended into one race, and become a single people. All will dwell in one common fatherland, which is the planet itself."

What we witness at the present time, during "this gravest crisis in the history of civilization," recalling such times in which "religions have perished and are born," is the adolescent stage in the slow and painful evolution of humanity, preparatory to the attainment of the stage of manhood, the stage of maturity, the promise of which is embedded in the teachings, and enshrined in the prophecies, of Baha'u'llah. The tumult of this age of transition is characteristic of the impetuosity and irrational instincts of youth, its follies, its prodigality, its pride, its self-assurance, its rebelliousness, and contempt of discipline.
Promised Day is come pp. 115-116

so great a catastrophe in human affairs
The whole of mankind is groaning, is dying to be led to unity, and to terminate its age-long martyrdom. And yet it stubbornly refuses to embrace the light and acknowledge the sovereign authority of the one Power that can extricate it from its entanglements, and avert the woeful calamity that threatens to engulf it.

Ominous indeed is the voice of Baha'u'llah that rings through these prophetic words: "O ye peoples of the world! Know, verily, that an unforeseen calamity followeth you, and grievous retribution awaiteth you. Think not that which ye have committed hath been effaced in My sight." And again: "We have a fixed time for you, O peoples. If ye fail, at the appointed hour, to turn towards God, He, verily, will lay violent hold on you, and will cause grievous afflictions to assail you from every direction. How severe, indeed, is the chastisement with which your Lord will then chastise you!"

Must humanity, tormented as she now is, be afflicted with still severer tribulations ere their purifying influence can prepare her to enter the heavenly Kingdom destined to be established upon earth? Must the inauguration of so vast, so unique, so illumined an era in human history be ushered in by so great a catastrophe in human affairs as to recall, nay surpass, the appalling collapse of Roman civilization in the first centuries of the Christian Era? Must a series of profound convulsions stir and rock the human race ere Baha'u'llah can be enthroned in the hearts and consciences of the masses, ere His undisputed ascendancy is universally recognized, and the noble edifice of His World Order is reared and established?

The long ages of infancy and childhood, through which the human race had to pass, have receded into the background. Humanity is now experiencing the commotions invariably associated with the most turbulent stage of its evolution, the stage of adolescence, when the impetuosity of youth and its vehemence reach their climax, and must gradually be superseded by the calmness, the wisdom, and the maturity that characterize the stage of manhood. Then will the human race reach that stature of ripeness which will enable it to acquire all the powers and capacities upon which its ultimate development must depend.
World Order of Baha'u'llah 201-202

PILGRIMS' NOTES

Shoghi Effendi does not say what the nature of the catastrophe will be, but he says `it will be more disastrous then the fall of the roman empire.' Says he `has done everything to wake people up but they still sleep.'

The catastrophe is inevitable and needs be to purge the world. It will be something the world has never seen and will effect every nation, country, class and creed. The world has high blood pressure and this will be the blood letting. Blood will run everywhere. It will purge the world and then cement the remnants together. The Administration is the embryo of the new World Order. The new World Order is the is the child and it will mature into the world civilization. There will be no decline in the future. It will be like a spiral, ever upwards. There may be moments that stop, but no decline. This is the Day that is not followed by night.'

Regardless what the government does it cannot prevent the catastrophe. One million people in New York cannot be saved. It will come swift and sudden and whole cities will be leveled to the ground.'

`Persia is the cradle of the Faith, America the cradle of the Administration. America is named because it is the most corrupt nation. Baha'is are wasting their time in cities. They must go out into small towns. Cities will not respond until after destruction.' America and Persia must suffer.

Once again the Guardian talked of the catastrophe.

`America is the most corrupt nation in the world and is contaminating the other nations, therefore it will suffer the worst.'

I asked if this was war, he said `yes, and other things too; the most fiery ordeal the world has ever known. The whole world will be like a convulsion. The flame will clean and also weld.'
Elmer and Gladys Beasley "Our Pilgrimage to Haifa" Pilgrim's Notes, 1957

The Baha'is must disperse from the cities, for the people in the cities will be trapped when they want to get out. They must disperse for their protection - the cities are doomed - New York, Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles. They must flee from the United States, because America will become the storm center of the future. When asked, "Should the pioneers go back home after the calamity and help reconstruct," Shoghi Effendi replied, "Reconstruct what?"
Haifa Notes - May 2, 1954 -by Mrs Ramona A Brown of Oakland, California

---

Americans are exposed to great dangers. Today the power of America is in the hands of the masses. There is a terrific power in the press, and the people are swayed by it. The United States, on a national scale, sets the pattern for an international pattern... There will be a world civil war followed by the establishment of a world state; all the nations will be part of it and will have to conform to it. This war has already started in Korea. Mankind cannot be purified and cleansed without suffering... It is positively dangerous to live in cities. The cities are doomed. They will evaporate... The Bahá'ís must disperse from the cities...why do they not disperse? If they do not respond and disperse, they will suffer spiritually, materially, and physically...In America the destruction will be great!... They must disperse for their own protection. the cities are doomed: New York, Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles. They must flee from the United States because America will become the storm center of the future....

Ramona Brown Pilgrim Notes Extracts from her book, Memories of 'Abdu'l- Bahá, Recollections of the Early Days of the Bahá'ís of California

---

One evening the Guardian began speaking about the coming calamities. He was very emphatic and after he left, Ruhiyyih Khanum and the members of the International Council stated they had never heard him speak with so much force or so decisively. He said the coming calamity would be worse than war. Cities would evaporate; especially in the cities where it is hardest to teach the Faith such as New York, Chicago, and San Francisco. People would lose all their possessions and homes overnight - would simply evaporate. Americans would become refugees to other continents. The U.S. would suffer the most because it was the most materialistic. Europe was the cradle of materialism but the U.S. was the stronghold of materialism. Russia would also suffer greatly. He said there was no difference between Russia and the U.S. in their systems because both were materialistic - capitalism which is purely materialistic and communism which controls the proletariat. The coming calamity would be retributive.

Abdul-Baha went to the U.S. to specifically waken the nation to its dangers. His mission was a failure - both from the standpoint of the Baha'is and the Americans. That can be discerned by reading between the lines of his addresses in America.

Speaking again about the calamity, the Guardian said it was retributive and referred to the passage in the Hidden Words: "All of a sudden the unforeseen calamity..." and to the quotation about the "limbs of mankind will quake." It especially applies to the U.S. because of the importance of the U.S. It is now America's turn to suffer. Referring to the coming cataclysm, the Guardian stated that the world needs a blood-letting because of over population of such countries as China, India, Japan. Refers to it as high blood-pressure and also to the unhealthy condition of many of the people, bad blood. Sally Sanor asked if in the future, when there would be no more wars, would there be a problem of overpopulation and the Guardian replied that science by that time would have solved the food problem.

The Guardian stated that the U.S. was chosen as the Cradle of the World Order (the Administrative Order) not because of its spiritual qualities but because of its corruption. After the coming calamity, the U.S. will fulfill the prophecy of Abdul-Baha that the U.S. would lead the nations because of its suffering.

The Guardian said he had given up warning the friends because they paid no heed to him. Furthermore, that this calamity had been destined. The Guardian stated Abdul-Baha warned the friends but they were heedless. It is too late to save the world. The message of Baha'u'llah has been in the world for over 100 years and has been rejected. The calamity will be sudden. He spoke of our statesmen from the President down; all were helpless and impotent.

The Guardian said the calamity would happen before the Lesser Peace. He said the Baha'is in America should not only leave their homes, but should go as far away as possible. Victories come only from self-sacrifice and self-abnegation. The greater the sacrifice, the greater the victories. Baha'is should lower their standards of living in order to give more.

I asked the Guardian if the calamity could be averted. He replied, "No." I asked if it would be all North America? He said mainly the U.S.
Alice Dudley Pilgrim's Notes (certified as being "fairly accurate" by Shoghi Effendi in letter dated 8-30-57 to Seymore Malkin and Pat Gangel)

Those who do not respond will loss everything. Those who do respond will gain everything. The large cities are centers of materialism and the believers there will be caught in a trap. Cities like LONDON, PARIS, CHICAGO, NEW YORK, SAN FRANCISCO, will suffer horribly - Abdul-Baha warned the people about the danger of the racial problem in America, but they did nothing and had two wars. The situation is very grave and wish the friends to realize it. They calculate too much, there is not enough self- sacrifice, not enough trust in God.

While they are calculating, the BLOW WILL BE STRUCK. They, themselves, WILL EVAPORATE (go up in smoke), YES THEY WILL!!! The American continent is going to suffer, particularly THE NORTH AMERICAN CONTINENT. This is a very grave challenge and if they don't face it, they will be very sorry

The last war was only the beginning. The next conflict may give a chance for the non-white to contribute its share. (The yellow race could come and take possession of the U.S. and could be followed in same manner by the negro race.) CITIES ARE DOOMED. WHITE people have done a great deal of harm and will suffer. America will become a storm center of the future. THERE ARE VERY, VERY DARK DAYS AHEAD. The situation is very, very grave. Anything can happen, decrease in population, destruction of cities. WESTERN CIVILIZATION HAS INVOLVED THE WORLD IN ONE OF THE GREATEST OF CRISIS. In 1912 Abdu'l-Baha saw it and warned them, now the people are beginning to see it. America is the most disturbed nation on the earth. This is reflected in the Baha'is of the west, in their activities. THEY ARE LIVING IN A FOOL'S PARADISE. The excesses to which the Americans have gone have raised up enemies (induced hatred). R----- is the greatest enemy. It is all in God's plan. Who would think the [time] could come when America would have such fear! Anything can happen and any time SUDDENLY. Baha'u'llah praised agriculture, A GREAT FUTURE FOR AGRICULTURE. A new race of men will appear after the cataclysm (catastrophe) We must have a totally new mode of life - NEW CITIES - SIMPLER.

HAIFA NOTES BY CLARA EDGE May 16-25 1954

http://truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/why-jm.html

What Will Happen?

FROM THE WRITINGS OF JOEL B. MARANGELLA, THIRD GUARDIAN

Baha'u'llah's Covenant has been shamefully violated

Shoghi Effendi Mason Remey Joel B. Marangella

While this fateful spiritual battle rages between the defenders and betrayers of the Covenant of Baha'u'llah we find that God's Greater Covenant continues to be violated as mankind for the most part remains neglectful, disdainful or heedless of the redemptive and life-giving Message revealed by Baha'u'llah more than a century ago. Are not the peoples of the world still worshipping at altars they have reared to false Gods and enmeshed in the trappings of a moribund civilization fast approaching its convulsive death throes? Indeed, nothing seems capable of awakening mankind from its spiritual torpor, not even the unprecedented wide-scale fury of the physical elements unleashed throughout the world. Are not these calamitous events but the prelude to a much more catastrophic holocaust with world-wide consequences unleashed by man himself which will, ere long, fulfill the dire prophetic Words of Baha'u'llah: "Taste ye what your own hands have wrought?"

Why Will it Happen?

Considering the fact that Baha'u'llah's Covenant has been shamefully violated by the vast majority of the professed adherents of His Cause and God's Greater Covenant has been long forgotten, ignored, and violated by the generality of mankind should there be any doubt that God's retributive justice will soon be meted out in full measure to the peoples of the world for their sins of omission as well as commission?

Ridvan letter, 4-11-83

masses of the world continue to remain ignorant

Shoghi Effendi Mason Remey Joel B. Mar

Well nigh 140 years have elapsed since the Declaration of Bahá'u'lláh in the Garden of Ridván. Yet the great masses of the world continue to remain ignorant of His Revelation and have failed therefore to be faithful to the Greater Covenant while the believers have almost universally become violators of the Covenant Bahá'u'lláh. In the light of this sad situation we might well call to mind the dire warning issued by Bahá'u'lláh in which God reveals through Him the following: "We have a fixed time for you, O peoples. If ye fail, at the appointed hour, to turn towards God, He, verily, will lay violent hold on you, and will cause grievous afflictions to assail you from every direction. How severe, indeed, is the chastisement with which your Lord will then chastise you!" (p.113, BWF)

J.M. Letter to National Baha'iCouncil 10-1-01 (commenting on terrorist attack on U.S.)

ang ella

Ho w
Can We Pre par
e?

Sho ghi Effe ndi
[Mas on Rem
ey](#)
[Joel
B.
Mar
ang
ella](#)

[Ret urn to Mai n Pag
e](#)

http://truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/why-mr.html

What Will Happen?

Shoghi Effendi
Mason Remey
Joel B. Marangella

FROM THE WRITINGS OF MASON REMEY, SECOND GUARDIAN

Why Will it Happen?

Shoghi Effendi
Mason Remey
Joel B. Marangella

to prepare the world and its people for the triumph of the Kingdom of God on Earth
The Hebrew Prophets of old foresaw this calamity and understood that it would come in these "Latter Days" in order to prepare the world and its people for the triumph of the Kingdom of God on Earth. This coming "Day of Judgement" is to mark the end of the epoch of the kingdom of man on earth. Thereafter, mankind is no longer to dominate the world as he has in past ages, as he is doing now and as he will continue to do until the actual occurrence of this catastrophe.
Statement Issued by the Second Guardian of the Baha'i World Faith to Dr. SR Levy, Librarian of the State Archives, Jerusalem Israel, 9-12-62

end the day of their power
We will have the present set-up "sans-Guardian" with us until the coming Catastrophe (judgment day of the world) will definitely end the day of their power.
Correspondence to the N.S.A. Under the Hereditary Guardianship, August 22, 1964

How Can We Prepare?

Shoghi Effend

i

Mason Remedy

Joel B. Marangella

Return to Main Page

http://truebahai.com:80/spiritual/guardians/why-se.html

What Will Happen?

FROM THE WRITINGS OF SHOGHI EFFENDI, FIRST GUARDIAN

Shoghi Effendi Mason Remey Joel B. Marangella

the coming of age of the entire human race

As the dusk creeps over a steadily sinking society the radiant outlines of their redemptive mission become sharper every day. The present world unrest, symptom of a world-wide malady, their world religion has already affirmed must needs culminate in that world catastrophe out of which the consciousness of world citizenship will be born, a consciousness that can alone provide an adequate basis for the organization of world unity, on which a lasting world peace must necessarily depend, the peace itself inaugurating in turn that world civilization which will mark the coming of age of the entire human race.

Messages to America pp 22-23

the slow and painful evolution of humanity

What we witness at the present time, during "this gravest crisis in the history of civilization," recalling such times in which "religions have perished and are born," is the adolescent stage in the slow and painful evolution of humanity, preparatory to the attainment of the stage of manhood, the stage of maturity, the promise of which is embedded in the teachings, and enshrined in the prophecies, of Baha'u'llah. The tumult of this age of transition is characteristic of the impetuosity and irrational instincts of youth, its follies, its prodigality, its pride, its self-assurance, its rebelliousness, and contempt of discipline.

Promised Day is Come p117

Why Will it Happen?

Shoghi Effendi Mason Remey

the advent of the Most Great Justice

Dear friends! The powerful operations of this titanic upheaval are comprehensible to none except such as have recognized the claims of both Baha'u'llah and the Bab. Their followers know full well whence it comes, and what it will ultimately lead to. Though ignorant of how far it will reach, they clearly recognize its genesis, are aware of its direction, acknowledge its necessity, observe confidently its mysterious processes, ardently pray for the mitigation of its severity, intelligently labor to assuage its fury, and anticipate, with undimmed vision, the consummation of the fears and the hopes it must necessarily engender.

This Judgment of God

This judgment of God, as viewed by those who have recognized Baha'u'llah as His Mouthpiece and His greatest Messenger on earth, is both a retributory calamity and an act of holy and supreme discipline. It is at once a visitation from God and a cleansing process for all mankind. Its fires punish the perversity of the human race, and weld its component parts into one organic, indivisible, world-embracing community. Mankind, in these fateful years, which at once signalize the passing of the first century of the Baha'i Era and proclaim the opening of a new one, is, as ordained by Him Who is both the Judge and the Redeemer of the human race, being simultaneously called upon to give account of its past actions, and is being purged and prepared for its future mission. It can neither escape the responsibilities of the past, nor shirk those of the future. God, the Vigilant, the Just, the Loving, the All-Wise Ordainer, can, in this supreme Dispensation, neither allow the sins of an unregenerate humanity, whether of omission or of commission, to go unpunished, nor will He be willing to abandon His children to their fate, and refuse them that culminating and blissful stage in their long, their slow and painful evolution throughout the ages, which is at once their inalienable right and their true destiny.

Joel B. Marangella

How Can We Prepare?

"Bestir yourselves, O people," is, on the one hand, the ominous warning sounded by Baha'u'llah Himself, "in anticipation of the days of Divine Justice, for the promised hour is now come." "Abandon that which ye possess, and seize that which God, Who layeth low the necks of men, hath brought. Know ye of a certainty that if ye turn not back from that which ye have committed, chastisement will overtake you on every side, and ye shall behold things more grievous than that which ye beheld aforetime." And again: "We have fixed a time for you, O people! If ye fail, at the appointed hour, to turn towards God, He, verily, will lay violent hold on you, and will cause grievous afflictions to assail you from every direction. How severe indeed is the chastisement with which your Lord will then chastise you!" And again: "God assuredly dominateth the lives of them that wronged Us, and is well aware of their doings. He will most certainly lay hold on them for their sins. He, verily, is the fiercest of Avengers." And finally: "O ye peoples of the world! Know verily that an unforeseen calamity is following you and that grievous retribution awaiteth you. Think not the deeds ye have committed have been blotted from My sight. By My Beauty! All your doings hath My pen graven with open characters upon tablets of chrysolite."

Shoghi Effendi Mason Remey

Joel B. Marangella

"The whole earth," Baha'u'llah, on the other hand, forecasting the bright future in store for a world now wrapt in darkness, emphatically asserts, "is now in a state of pregnancy. The day is approaching when it will have yielded its noblest fruits, when from it will have sprung forth the loftiest trees, the most enchanting blossoms, the most heavenly blessings." "The time is approaching when every created thing will have cast its burden. Glorified be God Who hath vouchsafed this grace that encompasseth all things, whether seen or unseen!" "These great oppressions," He, moreover, foreshadowing humanity's golden age, has written, "are preparing it for the advent of the Most Great Justice." This Most Great Justice is indeed the Justice upon which the structure of the Most Great Peace can alone, and must eventually, rest, while the Most Great Peace will, in turn, usher in that Most Great, that World Civilization which shall remain forever associated with Him Who beareth the Most Great Name.

Promised Day is Come pp. 4-6

Return to Main Page

not...regarded solely as a punishment meted out by God

This great retributive calamity, for which the world's supreme leaders, both secular and religious, are to be regarded as primarily answerable, as testified by Baha'u'llah, should not, if we would correctly appraise it, be regarded solely as a punishment meted out by God to a world that has, for a hundred years, persisted in its refusal to embrace the truth of the redemptive Message proffered to it by the supreme Messenger of God in this day. It should be viewed also, though to a lesser degree, in the light of a divine retribution for the perversity of the human race in general, in casting itself adrift from those elementary principles which must, at all times, govern, and can alone safeguard, the life and progress of mankind. Humanity has, alas, with increasing insistence, preferred, instead of acknowledging and adoring the Spirit of God as embodied in His religion in this day, to worship those false idols, untruths and half-truths, which are obscuring its religions, corrupting its spiritual life, convulsing its political institutions, corroding its social fabric, and shattering its economic structure.

Not only have the peoples of the earth ignored, and some of them even assailed, a Faith which is at once the essence, the promise, the reconciler, and the unifier of all religions, but they have drifted away from their own religions, and set up on their subverted altars other gods wholly alien not only to the spirit but to the traditional forms of their ancient faiths.

"The face of the world," Baha'u'llah laments, "hath altered. The way of God and the religion of God have ceased to be of any worth in the eyes of men." "The vitality of men's belief in God," He also has written, "is dying out in every land.... The corrosion of ungodliness is eating into the vitals of human society." "Religion," He affirms, "is verily the chief instrument for the establishment of order in the world, and of tranquility amongst its peoples.... The greater the decline of religion, the more grievous the waywardness of the ungodly. This cannot but lead in the end to chaos and confusion." And again: "Religion is a radiant light and an impregnable stronghold for the protection and welfare of the peoples of the world." "As the body of man," He, in another connection, has written, "needeth a garment to clothe it, so the body of mankind must needs be adorned with the mantle of justice and wisdom. Its robe is the Revelation vouchsafed unto it by God."
Promised Day is Come pp. 112-114

cleanse an unregenerate humanity
God, however, as has been pointed out in the very beginning of these pages, does not only punish the wrongdoings of His children. He chastises because He is just, and He chastens because He loves. Having chastened them, He cannot, in His great mercy, leave them to their fate. Indeed, by the very act of chastening them He prepares them for the mission for which He has created them. "My calamity is My providence," He, by the mouth of Baha'u'llah, has assured them, "outwardly it is fire and vengeance, but inwardly it is light and mercy."

The flames which His Divine justice have kindled cleanse an unregenerate humanity, and fuse its discordant, its warring elements as no other agency can cleanse or fuse them. It is not only a retributory and destructive fire, but a disciplinary and creative process, whose aim is the salvation, through unification, of the entire planet. Mysteriously, slowly, and resistlessly God accomplishes His design, though the sight that meets our eyes in this day be the spectacle of a world hopelessly entangled in its own meshes, utterly careless of the Voice which, for a century, has been calling it to God, and miserably subservient to the siren voices which are attempting to lure it into the vast abyss.

God's Purpose

God's purpose is none other than to usher in, in ways He alone can bring about, and the full significance of which He alone can fathom, the Great, the Golden Age of a long-divided, a long-afflicted humanity. Its present state, indeed even its immediate future, is dark, distressingly dark. Its distant future, however, is radiant, gloriously radiant--so radiant that no eye can visualize it.
Promised Day is come pp. 116-117

fuse and weld the discordant entities
Great and far-reaching as have been those changes in the past, they cannot appear, when viewed in their proper perspective, except as subsidiary adjustments preluding that transformation of unparalleled majesty and scope which humanity is in this age bound to undergo. That the forces of a world catastrophe can alone precipitate such a new phase of human thought is, alas, becoming increasingly apparent. That nothing short of the fire of a severe ordeal, unparalleled in its intensity, can fuse and weld the discordant entities that constitute the elements of present-day civilization, into the integral components of the world commonwealth of the future, is a truth which future events will increasingly demonstrate.

The prophetic voice of Baha'u'llah warning, in the concluding passages of the Hidden Words, "the peoples of the world" that "an unforeseen calamity is following them and that grievous retribution awaiteth them" throws indeed a lurid light upon the immediate fortunes of sorrowing humanity. Nothing but a fiery ordeal, out of which humanity will emerge, chastened and prepared, can succeed in implanting that sense of responsibility which the leaders of a new-born age must arise to shoulder.

I would again direct your attention to those ominous words of Baha'u'llah which I have already quoted: "And when the appointed hour is come, there shall suddenly appear that which shall cause the limbs of mankind to quake."

Has not Abdu'l-Baha Himself asserted in unequivocal language that "another war, fiercer than the last, will assuredly break out"?

Upon the consummation of this colossal, this unspeakably glorious enterprise--an enterprise that baffled the resources of Roman statesmanship and which Napoleon's desperate efforts failed to achieve--will depend the ultimate realization of that millennium of which poets of all ages have sung and seers have long dreamed. Upon it will depend the fulfillment of the prophecies uttered by the Prophets of old when swords shall be beaten into ploughshares and the lion and the lamb lie down together. It alone can usher in the Kingdom of the Heavenly Father as anticipated by the Faith of Jesus Christ. It alone can lay the foundation for the New World Order visualized by Baha'u'llah--a World Order that shall reflect, however dimly, upon this earthly plane, the ineffable splendors of the Abha Kingdom.

World Order of Baha'u'llah, pp. 46-48

http://truebahai.com:80/spiritual/index.html

Return to TRUEBAHAI.com

The Mystical and Spiritual Teachings of the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith

`Abdu´l-Bahá, Center of the Covenant
`Abdu´l-Bahá, Center of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh

Navigate
Spiritual Teachings
Links:

Select a Link

To navigate the Spiritual Teachings Links,
"SELECT A LINK" from the left-hand column.

Updated 1-1-2004

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

TRUEBAHAI.comBlessed is the spot,and the house,and the place, and the city,and the heart,and the mountain,and the refuge, and the cave,and the valley,and the land,and the sea, and the island,and the meadowwhere mention of Godhath been made,and His praise glorified-Bahá'u'lláh

TRUEBAHAI.com

Blessed is the spot,
and the house,
and the place, and the city,
and the heart,
and the mountain,
and the refuge, and the cave,
and the valley,
and the land,
and the sea, and the island, and the meadow where mention of God hath been made,
and His praise glorified
-Bahá'u'lláh

Return to
TRUEBAHAI.com

Return to
Spiritual Teachings Page

privacy

TRUEBAHAI.comTHE HIDDEN WORDS OF BAHÁ'U'LLÁHArabicPersianArabicHE IS THE GLORY OF GLORIESThis is that which hath descended from the realm of glory, uttered by the tongue of power and might, and revealed unto the Prophets of old. We have taken the inner essence thereof and clothed it in the garment of brevity, as a token of grace unto the righteous, that they may stand faithful unto the Covenant of God, may fulfill in their lives His trust, and in the realm of spirit obtain the gem of Divine virtue.1. O SON OF SPIRIT!My first counsel is this: Possess a pure, kindly and radiant heart, that thine may be a sovereignty ancient, imperishable and everlasting.2. O SON OF SPIRIT!The best beloved of all things in My sight is Justice; turn not away therefrom if thou desirest Me, and neglect it not that I may confide in thee. By its aid thou shalt see with thine own eyes and not through the eyes of others, and shalt know of thine own knowledge and not through the knowledge of thy neighbor. Ponder this in thy heart; how it behooveth thee to be. Verily justice is My gift to thee and the sign of My loving-kindness. Set it then before thine eyes.3. O SON OF MAN!Veiled in My immemorial being and in the ancient eternity of My essence, I knew My love for thee; therefore I created thee, have engraved on thee Mine image and revealed to thee My beauty.4. O SON OF MAN! I loved thy creation, hence I created thee. Wherefore, do thou love Me, that I may name thy name and fill thy soul with the spirit of life.5. O SON OF BEING!Love Me, that I may love thee. If thou lovest Me not, My love can in no wise reach thee. Know this, O servant.6. O SON OF BEING!Thy Paradise is My love; thy heavenly home, reunion with Me. Enter therein and tarry not. This is that which hath been destined for thee in Our kingdom above and Our exalted dominion.7. O SON OF MAN!If thou lovest Me, turn away from thyself; and if thou seekest My pleasure, regard not thine own; that thou mayest die in Me and I may eternally live in thee.8. O SON OF SPIRIT!There is no peace for thee save by renouncing thyself and turning unto Me; for it behooveth thee to glory in My name, not in thine own; to put thy trust in Me and not in thyself, since I desire to be loved alone and above all that is.9. O SON OF BEING!My love is My stronghold; he that entereth therein is safe and secure, and he that turneth away shall surely stray and perish.10. O SON OF UTTERANCE!Thou art My stronghold; enter therein that thou mayest abide in safety. My love is in thee, know it, that thou mayest find Me near unto thee.11. O SON OF BEING!Thou art My lamp and My light is in thee. Get thou from it thy radiance and seek none other than Me. For I have created thee rich and have bountifully shed My favor upon thee.12. O SON OF BEING!With the hands of power I made thee and with the fingers of strength I created thee; and within thee have I placed the essence of My light. Be thou content with it and seek naught else, for My work is perfect and My command is binding. Question it not, nor have a doubt thereof.13. O SON OF SPIRIT!I created thee rich, why dost thou bring thyself down to poverty? Noble I made thee, wherewith dost thou abase thyself? Out of the essence of knowledge I gave thee being, why seekest thou enlightenment from anyone beside Me? Out of the clay of love I molded thee, how dost thou busy thyself with another? Turn thy sight unto thyself, that thou mayest find Me standing within thee, mighty, powerful and self-subsisting.14. O SON OF MAN!Thou art My dominion and My dominion perisheth not; wherefore fearest thou thy perishing? Thou art My light and My light shall never be extinguished; why dost thou dread extinction? Thou art My glory and My glory fadeth not; thou art My robe and My robe shall never be outworn. Abide then in thy love for Me, that thou mayest find Me in the realm of glory.15. O SON OF UTTERANCE! Turn thy face unto Mine and renounce all save Me; for My sovereignty endureth and My dominion perisheth not. If thou seekest another than Me, yea, if thou searchest the universe for evermore, thy quest will be in vain.16. O SON OF LIGHT!Forget all save Me and commune with My spirit. This is of the essence of My command, therefore turn unto it.17. O SON OF MAN!Be thou content with Me and seek no other helper. For none but Me can ever suffice thee.18. O SON OF SPIRIT!Ask not of Me that which We desire not for thee, then be content with what We have ordained for thy sake, for this is that which profiteth thee, if therewith thou dost content thyself.19. O SON OF THE WONDROUS VISION! I have breathed within thee a breath of My own Spirit, that thou mayest be My lover. Why hast thou forsaken Me and sought a beloved other than Me?20. O SON OF SPIRIT!My claim on thee is great, it cannot be forgotten.

My grace to thee is plenteous, it cannot be veiled. My love has made in thee its home, it cannot be concealed. My light is manifest to thee, it cannot be obscured.21. O SON OF MAN!Upon the tree of effulgent glory I have hung for thee the choicest fruits, wherefore hast thou turned away and contented thyself with that which is less good? Return then unto that which is better for thee in the realm on high.22. O SON OF SPIRIT!Noble have I created thee, yet thou hast abased thyself. Rise then unto that for which thou wast created.23. O SON OF THE SUPREME!To the eternal I call thee, yet thou dost seek that which perisheth. What hath made thee turn away from Our desire and seek thine own?24. O SON OF MAN! Transgress not thy limits, nor claim that which beseemeth thee not. Prostrate thyself before the countenance of thy God, the Lord of might and power.25. O SON OF SPIRIT!Vaunt not thyself over the poor, for I lead him on his way and behold thee in thy evil plight and confound thee for evermore.26. O SON OF BEING! How couldst thou forget thine own faults and busy thyself with the faults of others? Whoso doeth this is accursed of Me.27. O SON OF MAN!Breathe not the sins of others so long as thou art thyself a sinner. Shouldst thou transgress this command, accursed wouldst thou be, and to this I bear witness.28. O SON OF SPIRIT! Know thou of a truth: He that biddeth men be just and himself committeth iniquity is not of Me, even though he bear My name.29. O SON OF BEING!Ascribe not to any soul that which thou wouldst not have ascribed to thee, and say not that which thou doest not. This is My command unto thee, do thou observe it.30. O SON OF MAN!Deny not My servant should he ask anything from thee, for his face is My face; be then abashed before Me. 31. O SON OF BEING!Bring thyself to account each day ere thou art summoned to a reckoning; for death, unheralded, shall come upon thee and thou shalt be called to give account for thy deeds.32. O SON OF THE SUPREME!I have made death a messenger of joy to thee. Wherefore dost thou grieve? I made the light to shed on thee its splendor. Why dost thou veil thyself therefrom? 33. O SON OF SPIRIT!With the joyful tidings of light I hail thee: rejoice! To the court of holiness I summon thee; abide therein that thou mayest live in peace for evermore.34. O SON OF SPIRIT!The spirit of holiness beareth unto thee the joyful tidings of reunion; wherefore dost thou grieve? The spirit of power confirmeth thee in His cause; why dost thou veil thyself? The light of His countenance doth lead thee; how canst thou go astray?35. O SON OF MAN!Sorrow not save that thou art far from Us. Rejoice not save that thou art drawing near and returning unto Us.36. O SON OF MAN! Rejoice in the gladness of thine heart, that thou mayest be worthy to meet Me and to mirror forth My beauty.37. O SON OF MAN!Divest not thyself of My beauteous robe, and forfeit not thy portion from My wondrous fountain, lest thou shouldst thirst for evermore.38. O SON OF BEING!Walk in My statutes for love of Me and deny thyself that which thou desirest if thou seekest My pleasure.39. O SON OF MAN!Neglect not My commandments if thou lovest My beauty, and forget not

My counsels if thou wouldst attain My good pleasure.40. O SON OF MAN!Wert thou to speed through the immensity of space and traverse the expanse of heaven, yet thou wouldst find no rest save in submission to Our command and humbleness before Our Face.41. O SON OF MAN!Magnify My cause that I may reveal unto thee the mysteries of My greatness and shine upon thee with the light of eternity.42. O SON OF MAN!Humble thyself before Me, that I may graciously visit thee. Arise for the triumph of My cause, that while yet on earth thou mayest obtain the victory.43. O SON OF BEING!Make mention of Me on My earth, that in My heaven I may remember thee, thus shall Mine eyes and thine be solaced.44. O SON OF THE THRONE!Thy hearing is My hearing, hear thou therewith. Thy sight is My sight, do thou see therewith, that in thine inmost soul thou mayest testify unto My exalted sanctity, and I within Myself may bear witness unto an exalted station for thee.45. O SON OF BEING!Seek a martyr's death in My path, content with My pleasure and thankful for that which I ordain, that thou mayest repose with Me beneath the canopy of majesty behind the tabernacle of glory.46. O SON OF MAN!Ponder and reflect. Is it thy wish to die upon thy bed, or to shed thy life-blood on the dust, a martyr in My path, and so become the manifestation of My command and the revealer of My light in the highest paradise? Judge thou aright, O servant!47. O SON OF MAN!By My beauty! To tinge thy hair with thy blood is greater in My sight than the creation of the universe and the light of both worlds. Strive then to attain this, O servant!48. O

SON OF MAN!For everything there is a sign. The sign of love is fortitude under My decree and patience under My trials.49. O SON OF MAN!The true lover yearneth for tribulation even as doth the rebel for forgiveness and the sinful for mercy.50. O SON OF MAN!If adversity befall thee not in My path, how canst thou walk in the ways of them that are content with My pleasure? If trials afflict thee not in thy longing to meet Me, how wilt thou attain the light in thy love for My beauty?51. O SON OF MAN! My calamity is My providence, outwardly it is fire and vengeance, but inwardly it is light and mercy. Hasten thereunto that thou mayest become an eternal light and an immortal spirit. This is My command unto thee, do thou observe it.52. O SON OF MAN!Should prosperity befall thee, rejoice not, and should abasement come upon thee, grieve not, for both shall pass away and be no more.53. O SON OF BEING!If poverty overtake thee, be not sad; for in time the Lord of wealth shall visit thee. Fear not abasement, for glory shall one day rest on thee. 54. O SON OF BEING!If thine heart be set upon this eternal, imperishable dominion, and this ancient, everlasting life, forsake this mortal and fleeting sovereignty.55. O SON OF BEING!Busy not thyself with this world, for with fire We test the gold, and with gold We test Our servants.56. O SON OF MAN!Thou dost wish for gold and I desire thy freedom from it. Thou thinkest thyself rich in its possession, and I recognize thy wealth in thy sanctity therefrom. By My life! This is My knowledge, and that is thy fancy; how can My way accord with thine?57. O SON OF MAN!Bestow My wealth upon

My poor, that in heaven thou mayest draw from stores of unfading splendor and treasures of imperishable glory. But by My life! To offer up thy soul is a more glorious thing couldst thou but see with Mine eye.58. O SON OF MAN!The temple of being is My throne; cleanse it of all things, that there I may be established and there I may abide.59. O SON OF BEING!Thy heart is My home; sanctify it for My descent. Thy spirit is My place of revelation; cleanse it for My manifestation.60. O SON OF MAN!Put thy hand into My bosom, that I may rise above thee, radiant and resplendent.61. O SON OF MAN! Ascend unto My heaven, that thou mayest obtain the joy of reunion, and from the chalice of imperishable glory quaff the peerless wine.62. O SON OF MAN!Many a day hath passed over thee whilst thou hast busied thyself with thy fancies and idle imaginings. How long art thou to slumber on thy bed? Lift up thy head from slumber, for the Sun hath risen to the zenith, haply it may shine upon thee with the light of beauty.63. O SON OF MAN! The light hath shone on thee from the horizon of the sacred Mount and the spirit of enlightenment hath breathed in the Sinai of thy heart. Wherefore, free thyself from the veils of idle fancies and enter into My court, that thou mayest be fit for everlasting life and worthy to meet Me. Thus may death not come upon thee, neither weariness nor trouble.64. O SON OF MAN!My eternity is My creation, I have created it for thee. Make it the garment of thy temple. My unity is My handiwork; I have wrought it for thee; clothe thyself therewith, that thou mayest be to all eternity the revelation of My everlasting being.65. O SON OF MAN!My majesty is My gift to thee, and My grandeur the token of My mercy unto thee. That which beseemeth Me none shall understand, nor can anyone recount. Verily, I have preserved it in My hidden storehouses and in the treasuries of My command, as a sign of My loving-kindness unto My servants and My mercy unto My people.66. O CHILDREN OF THE DIVINE AND INVISIBLE ESSENCE! Ye shall be hindered from loving Me and souls shall be perturbed as they make mention of Me. For minds cannot grasp Me nor hearts contain Me.67. O SON OF BEAUTY!By My spirit and by My favor! By My mercy and by My beauty! All that I have revealed unto thee with the tongue of power, and have written for thee with the pen of might, hath been in accordance with thy capacity and understanding, not with My state and the melody of My voice.68. O CHILDREN OF MEN!Know ye not why We created you all from the same dust? That no one should exalt himself over the other. Ponder at all times in your hearts how ye were created. Since We have created you all from one same substance it is incumbent on you to be even as one soul, to walk with the same feet, eat with the same mouth and dwell in the same land, that from your inmost being, by your deeds and actions, the signs of oneness and the essence of detachment may be made manifest. Such is My counsel to you, O concourse of light! Heed ye this counsel that ye may obtain the fruit of holiness from the tree of wondrous glory.69. O YE SONS OF SPIRIT!Ye are My treasury, for in you I have treasured the pearls of My mysteries and the gems of My knowledge. Guard them from the strangers amidst My servants and from the ungodly amongst My people.70. O SON OF HIM THAT STOOD BY HIS OWN ENTITY IN THE KINGDOM OF HIS SELF!Know thou, that I have wafted unto thee all the fragrances of holiness, have fully revealed to thee My word, have perfected through thee My bounty and have desired for thee that which I have desired for My Self. Be then content with My pleasure and thankful unto Me.71. O SON OF MAN!Write all that We have revealed unto thee with the ink of light upon the tablet of thy spirit. Should this not be in thy power, then make thine ink of the essence of thy heart. If this thou canst not do, then write with that crimson ink that hath been shed in My path. Sweeter indeed is this to Me than all else, that its light may endure for ever.ArabicPersianPersianIn the Name of the Lord of Utterance, The Mighty.1. O YE PEOPLE THAT HAVE MINDS TO KNOW AND EARS TO HEAR!The first call of the Beloved is this: O mystic nightingale! Abide not but in the rose-garden of the spirit. O messenger of the Solomon of love! Seek thou no shelter except in the Sheba of the well-beloved, and O immortal phoenix! dwell not save on the mount of faithfulness. Therein is thy habitation, if on the wings of thy soul thou soarest to the realm of the infinite and seekest to attain thy goal.2. O SON OF SPIRIT!The bird seeketh its nest; the nightingale the charm of the rose; whilst those birds, the hearts of men, content with transient dust, have strayed far from their eternal nest, and with eyes turned towards the slough of heedlessness are bereft of the glory of the divine presence. Alas! How strange and pitiful; for a mere cupful, they have turned away from the billowing seas of the Most High, and remained far from the most effulgent horizon.3. O FRIEND!In the garden of thy heart plant naught but the rose of love, and from the nightingale of affection and desire loosen not thy hold. Treasure the companionship of the righteous and eschew all fellowship with the ungodly.4. O SON OF JUSTICE!Whither can a lover go but to the land of his beloved? and what seeker findeth rest away from his heart's desire? To the true lover reunion is life, and separation is death. His breast is void of patience and his heart hath no peace. A myriad lives he would forsake to hasten to the abode of his beloved.5. O SON OF DUST! Verily I say unto thee: Of all men the most negligent is he that disputeth idly and seeketh to advance himself over his brother. Say, O brethren! Let deeds, not words, be your adorning.6. O SON OF EARTH!Know, verily, the heart wherein the least remnant of envy yet lingers, shall never attain My everlasting dominion, nor inhale the sweet savors of holiness breathing from My kingdom of sanctity.7. O SON OF LOVE!Thou art but one step away from the glorious heights above and from the celestial tree of love. Take thou one pace and with the next advance into the immortal realm and enter the pavilion of eternity. Give ear then to that which hath been revealed by the pen of glory.8. O SON OF GLORY!Be swift in the path of holiness, and enter the heaven of communion with Me. Cleanse thy heart with the burnish of the spirit, and hasten to the court of the Most High.9.

O FLEETING SHADOW!Pass beyond the baser stages of doubt and rise to the exalted heights of certainty. Open the eye of truth, that thou mayest behold the veilless Beauty and exclaim: Hallowed be the Lord, the most excellent of all creators!10. O SON OF DESIRE!Give ear unto this: Never shall mortal eye recognize the everlasting Beauty, nor the lifeless heart delight in aught but in the withered bloom. For like seeketh like, and taketh pleasure in the company of its kind.11. O SON OF DUST!Blind thine eyes, that thou mayest behold My beauty; stop thine ears, that thou mayest hearken unto the sweet melody of My voice; empty thyself of all learning, that thou mayest partake of My knowledge; and sanctify thyself from riches, that thou mayest obtain a lasting share from the ocean of My eternal wealth. Blind thine eyes, that is, to all save My beauty; stop thine ears to all save My word; empty thyself of all learning save the knowledge of Me; that with a clear vision, a pure heart and an attentive ear thou mayest enter the court of My holiness.12. O MAN OF TWO VISIONS!Close one eye and open the other. Close one to the world and all that is therein, and open the other to the hallowed beauty of the Beloved.13. O MY CHILDREN!I fear lest, bereft of the melody of the dove of heaven, ye will sink back to the shades of utter loss, and, never having gazed upon the beauty of the rose, return to water and clay.14. O FRIENDS!Abandon not the everlasting beauty for a beauty that must die, and set not your affections on this mortal world of dust.15. O SON OF SPIRIT!The time cometh, when the nightingale of holiness will no longer unfold the inner mysteries and ye will all be bereft of the celestial melody and of the voice from on high.16. O ESSENCE OF NEGLIGENCE!Myriads of mystic tongues find utterance in one speech, and myriads of hidden mysteries are revealed in a single melody; yet, alas, there is no ear to hear, nor heart to understand.17. O COMRADES!The gates that open on the Placeless stand wide and the habitation of the loved one is adorned with the lovers' blood, yet all but a few remain bereft of this celestial city, and even of these few, none but the smallest handful hath been found with a pure heart and sanctified spirit.18. O YE DWELLERS IN THE HIGHEST PARADISE!Proclaim unto the children of assurance that within the realms of holiness, nigh unto the celestial paradise, a new garden hath appeared, round which circle the denizens of the realm on high and the immortal dwellers of the exalted paradise. Strive, then, that ye may attain that station, that ye may unravel the mysteries of love from its wind-flowers and learn the secret of divine and consummate wisdom from its eternal fruits. Solaced are the eyes of them that enter and abide therein!19. O MY FRIENDS!Have ye forgotten that true and radiant morn, when in those hallowed and blessed surroundings ye were all gathered in My presence beneath the shade of the tree of life, which is planted in the all-glorious paradise? Awe-struck ye listened as I gave utterance to these three most holy words: O friends! Prefer not your will to Mine, never desire that which I have not desired for you, and approach Me not with lifeless hearts, defiled with worldly desires and cravings. Would ye but sanctify your souls, ye would at this present hour recall that place and those surroundings, and the truth of My utterance should be made evident unto all of you.In the eighth of the most holy lines, in the fifth Tablet of Paradise, He saith:20. O YE THAT ARE LYING AS DEAD ON THE COUCH OF HEEDLESSNESS!Ages have passed and your precious lives are well-nigh ended, yet not a single breath of purity hath reached Our court of holiness from you. Though immersed in the ocean of misbelief, yet with your lips ye profess the one true faith of God. Him whom I abhor ye have loved, and of My foe ye have made a friend. Notwithstanding, ye walk on My earth complacent and self-satisfied, heedless that My earth is weary of you and everything within it shunneth you. Were ye but to open your eyes, ye would, in truth, prefer a myriad griefs unto this joy, and would count death itself better than this life.21. O MOVING FORM OF DUST!I desire communion with thee, but thou wouldst put no trust in Me. The sword of thy rebellion hath felled the tree of thy hope. At all times I am near unto thee, but thou art ever far from Me. Imperishable glory I have chosen for thee, yet boundless shame thou hast chosen for thyself. While there is yet time, return, and lose not thy chance.22. O SON OF DESIRE!The learned and the wise have for long years striven and failed to attain the presence of the All-Glorious; they have spent their lives in search of Him, yet did not behold the beauty of His countenance. Thou without the least effort didst attain thy goal, and without search hast obtained the object of thy quest. Yet, notwithstanding, thou didst remain so wrapt in the veil of self, that thine eyes beheld not the beauty of the Beloved, nor did thy hand touch the hem of His robe. Ye that have eyes, behold and wonder.23. O DWELLERS IN THE CITY OF LOVE!Mortal blasts have beset the everlasting candle, and the beauty of the celestial Youth is veiled in the darkness of dust. The chief of the monarchs of love is wronged by the people of tyranny and the dove of holiness lies prisoned in the talons of owls. The dwellers in the pavilion of glory and the celestial concourse bewail and lament, while ye repose in the realm of negligence, and esteem yourselves as of the true friends. How vain are your imaginings!24. O YE THAT ARE FOOLISH, YET HAVE A NAME TO BE WISE!Wherefore do ye wear the guise of shepherds, when inwardly ye have become wolves, intent upon My flock? Ye are even as the star, which riseth ere the dawn, and which, though it seem radiant and luminous, leadeth the wayfarers of My city astray into the paths of perdition.25. O YE SEEMING FAIR YET INWARDLY FOUL!Ye are like clear but bitter water, which to outward seeming is crystal pure but of which, when tested by the divine Assayer, not a drop is accepted. Yea, the sun beam falls alike upon the dust and the mirror, yet differ they in reflection even as doth the star from the earth: nay, immeasurable is the difference!26. O MY FRIEND IN WORD!Ponder awhile. Hast thou ever heard that friend and foe should abide in one heart? Cast out then the stranger, that the Friend may enter His home. 27. O SON OF DUST!All that is in heaven and earth I have ordained for thee, except the human heart, which I have made the habitation of My beauty and glory; yet thou didst give My home and dwelling to another than Me; and whenever the manifestation of My holiness sought His own abode, a stranger found He there, and, homeless, hastened unto the sanctuary of the Beloved. Notwithstanding I have concealed thy secret and desired not thy shame.28. O ESSENCE OF DESIRE!At many a dawn have I turned from the realms of the Placeless unto thine abode, and found thee on the bed of ease busied with others than Myself. Thereupon, even as the flash of the spirit, I returned to the realms of celestial glory and breathed it not in My retreats above unto the hosts of holiness.29. O SON OF BOUNTY!Out of the wastes of nothingness, with the clay of My command I made thee to appear, and have ordained for thy training every atom in existence and the essence of all created things. Thus, ere thou didst issue from thy mother's womb, I destined for thee two founts of gleaming milk, eyes to watch over thee, and hearts to love thee. Out of My loving-kindness, 'neath the shade of My mercy I nurtured thee, and guarded thee by the essence of My grace and favor. And My purpose in all this was that thou mightest attain My everlasting dominion and become worthy of My invisible bestowals. And yet heedless thou didst remain, and when fully grown, thou didst neglect all My bounties and occupied thyself with thine idle imaginings, in such wise that thou didst become wholly forgetful, and, turning away from the portals of the Friend didst abide within the courts of My enemy.30. O

BOND SLAVE OF THE WORLD!Many a dawn hath the breeze of My loving-kindness wafted over thee and found thee upon the bed of heedlessness fast asleep. Bewailing then thy plight it returned whence it came.31. O SON OF EARTH!Wouldst thou have Me, seek none other than Me; and wouldst thou gaze upon My beauty, close thine eyes to the world and all that is therein; for My will and the will of another than Me, even as fire and water, cannot dwell together in one heart.32. O BEFRIENDED STRANGER!The candle of thine heart is lighted by the hand of My power, quench it not with the contrary winds of self and passion. The healer of all thine ills is remembrance of Me, forget it not. Make My love thy treasure and cherish it even as thy very sight and life.33. O MY BROTHER!Hearken to the delightsome words of My honeyed tongue, and quaff the stream of mystic holiness from My sugar-shedding lips. Sow the seeds of My divine wisdom in the pure soil of thy heart, and water them with the water of certitude, that the hyacinths of My knowledge and wisdom may spring up fresh and green in the sacred city of thy heart.34. O DWELLERS OF MY PARADISE!With the hands of loving-kindness I have planted in the holy garden of paradise the young tree of your love and friendship, and have watered it with the goodly showers of My tender grace; now that the hour of its fruiting is come, strive that it may be protected, and be not consumed with the flame of desire and passion.35. O MY FRIENDS!Quench ye the lamp of error, and kindle within your hearts the everlasting torch of divine guidance. For ere long the assayers of mankind shall, in the holy presence of the Adored, accept naught but purest virtue and deeds of stainless holiness.36. O SON OF DUST!The wise are they that speak not unless they obtain a hearing, even as the cup-bearer, who proffereth not his cup till he findeth a seeker, and the lover who crieth not out from the depths of his heart until he gazeth upon the beauty of his beloved. Wherefore sow the seeds of wisdom and knowledge in the pure soil of the heart, and keep them hidden, till the hyacinths of divine wisdom spring from the heart and not from mire and clay.In the first line of the Tablet it is recorded and written, and within the sanctuary of the tabernacle of God is hidden:37. O MY SERVANT!Abandon not for that which perisheth an everlasting dominion, and cast not away celestial sovereignty for a worldly desire. This is the river of everlasting life that hath flowed from the well-spring of the pen of the merciful; well is it with them that drink! 38. O SON OF SPIRIT!Burst thy cage asunder, and even as the phoenix of love soar into the firmament of holiness. Renounce thyself and, filled with the spirit of mercy, abide in the realm of celestial sanctity.39. O OFFSPRING OF DUST!Be not content with the ease of a passing day, and deprive not thyself of everlasting rest. Barter not the garden of eternal delight for the dust-heap of a mortal world. Up from thy prison ascend unto the glorious meads above, and from thy mortal cage wing thy flight unto the paradise of the Placeless.40. O MY SERVANT!Free thyself from the fetters of this world, and loose thy soul from the prison of self. Seize thy chance, for it will come to thee no more.41. O SON OF MY HANDMAID!Didst thou behold immortal sovereignty, thou wouldst strive to pass from this fleeting world. But to conceal the one from thee and to reveal the other is a mystery which none but the pure in heart can comprehend.42. O MY SERVANT!Purge thy heart from malice and, innocent of envy, enter the divine court of holiness.43. O MY FRIENDS!Walk ye in the ways of the good pleasure of the Friend, and know that His pleasure is in the pleasure of His creatures. That is: no man should enter the house of his friend save at his friend's pleasure, nor lay hands upon his treasures nor prefer his own will to his friend's, and in no wise seek an advantage over him. Ponder this, ye that have insight!44. O COMPANION OF MY THRONE!Hear no evil, and see no evil, abase not thyself, neither sigh and weep. Speak no evil, that thou mayest not hear it spoken unto thee, and magnify not the faults of others that thine own faults may not appear great; and wish not the abasement of anyone, that thine own abasement be not exposed. Live then the days of thy life, that are less than a fleeting moment, with thy mind stainless, thy heart unsullied, thy thoughts pure, and thy nature sanctified, so that, free and content, thou mayest put away this mortal frame, and repair unto the mystic paradise and abide in the eternal kingdom for evermore.45. ALAS! ALAS! O LOVERS OF WORLDLY DESIRE!Even as the swiftness of lightning ye have passed by the Beloved One, and have set your hearts on satanic fancies. Ye bow the knee before your vain imagining, and call it truth. Ye turn your eyes towards the thorn, and name it a flower. Not a pure breath have ye breathed, nor hath the breeze of detachment been wafted from the meadows of your hearts. Ye have cast to the winds the loving counsels of the Beloved and have effaced them utterly from the tablet of your hearts, and even as the beasts of the field, ye move and have your being within the pastures of desire and passion.46. O BRETHREN IN THE PATH! Wherefore have ye neglected the mention of the Loved One, and kept remote from His holy presence? The essence of beauty is within the peerless pavilion, set upon the throne of glory, whilst ye busy yourselves with idle contentions. The sweet savors of holiness are breathing and the breath of bounty is wafted, yet ye are all sorely afflicted and deprived thereof. Alas for you and for them that walk in your ways and follow in your footsteps!47. O CHILDREN OF DESIRE!Put away the garment of vainglory, and divest yourselves of the attire of haughtiness.In the third of the most holy lines writ and recorded in the Ruby Tablet by the pen of the unseen this is revealed:48. O BRETHREN!Be forbearing one with another and set not your affections on things below. Pride not yourselves in your glory, and be not ashamed of abasement. By My beauty! I have created all things from dust, and to dust will I return them again.49. O CHILDREN OF DUST!Tell the rich of the midnight sighing of the poor, lest heedlessness lead them into the path of destruction, and deprive them of the Tree of Wealth. To give and to be generous are attributes of Mine; well is it with him that adorneth himself with My virtues.50. O QUINTESSENCE OF PASSION!Put away all covetousness and seek contentment; for the covetous hath ever been deprived, and the contented hath ever been loved and praised.51. O SON OF MY HANDMAID! Be not troubled in poverty nor confident in riches, for poverty is followed by riches, and riches are followed by poverty. Yet to be poor in all save God is a wondrous gift, belittle not the value thereof, for in the end it will make thee rich in God, and thus thou shalt know the meaning of the utterance, "In truth ye are the poor," and the holy words, "God is the all-possessing," shall even as the true morn break forth gloriously resplendent upon the horizon of the lover's heart, and abide secure on the throne of wealth.52. O CHILDREN OF NEGLIGENCE AND PASSION!Ye have suffered My enemy to enter My house and have cast out My friend, for ye have enshrined the love of another than Me in your hearts. Give ear to the sayings of the Friend and turn towards His paradise. Worldly friends, seeking their own good, appear to love one the other, whereas the true Friend hath loved and doth love you for your own sakes; indeed He hath suffered for your guidance countless afflictions. Be not disloyal to such a Friend, nay rather hasten unto Him. Such is the daystar of the word of truth and faithfulness, that hath dawned above the horizon of the pen of the Lord of all names. Open your ears that ye may hearken unto the word of God, the Help in peril, the Self-existent. 53. O YE THAT PRIDE YOURSELVES ON MORTAL RICHES!Know ye in truth that wealth is a mighty barrier between the seeker and his desire, the lover and his beloved. The rich, but for a few, shall in no wise attain the court of His presence nor enter the city of content and resignation. Well is it then with him, who, being rich, is not hindered by his riches from the eternal kingdom, nor deprived by them of imperishable dominion. By the Most Great Name! The splendor of such a wealthy man shall illuminate the dwellers of heaven even as the sun enlightens the people of the earth!54. O YE RICH ONES ON EARTH!The poor in your midst are My trust; guard ye My trust, and be not intent only on your own ease.55. O SON OF PASSION!Cleanse thyself from the defilement of riches and in perfect peace advance into the realm of poverty; that from the well-spring of detachment thou mayest quaff the wine of immortal life.56. O MY SON!The company of the ungodly increaseth sorrow, whilst fellowship with the righteous cleanseth the rust from off the heart. He that seeketh to commune with God, let him betake himself to the companionship of His loved ones; and he that desireth to hearken unto the word of God, let him give ear to the words of His chosen ones.57. O SON OF DUST!Beware! Walk not with the ungodly and seek not fellowship with him, for such companionship turneth the radiance of the heart into infernal fire.58. O SON OF MY HANDMAID! Wouldst thou seek the grace of the Holy Spirit, enter into fellowship with the righteous, for he hath drunk the cup of eternal life at the hands of the immortal Cup-bearer and even as the true morn doth quicken and illumine the hearts of the dead.59. O HEEDLESS ONES!Think not the secrets of hearts are hidden, nay, know ye of a certainty that in clear characters they are engraved and are openly manifest in the holy Presence.60. O FRIENDS!Verily I say, whatsoever ye have concealed within your hearts is to Us open and manifest as the day; but that it is hidden is of Our grace and favor, and not of your deserving.61. O SON OF MAN!A dewdrop out of the fathomless ocean of My mercy I have shed upon the peoples of the world, yet found none turn thereunto, inasmuch as every one hath turned away from the celestial wine of unity unto the foul dregs of impurity, and, content with mortal cup, hath put away the chalice of immortal beauty. Vile is that wherewith he is contented.62. O SON OF DUST!Turn not away thine eyes from the matchless wine of the immortal Beloved, and open them not to foul and mortal dregs. Take from the hands of the divine Cup-bearer the chalice of immortal life, that all wisdom may be thine, and that thou mayest hearken unto the mystic voice calling from the realm of the invisible. Cry aloud, ye that are of low aim! Wherefore have ye turned away from My holy and immortal wine unto evanescent water?63. O YE PEOPLES OF THE WORLD!Know, verily, that an unforeseen calamity followeth you, and grievous retribution awaiteth you. Think not that which ye have committed hath been effaced in My sight. By My beauty! All your doings hath My pen graven with open characters upon tablets of chrysolite.64. O OPPRESSORS ON EARTH!Withdraw your hands from tyranny, for I have pledged Myself not to forgive any man's injustice. This is My covenant which I have irrevocably decreed in the preserved tablet and sealed with My seal.65. O

REBELLIOUS ONES!My forbearance hath emboldened you and My long-suffering hath made you negligent, in such wise that ye have spurred on the fiery charger of passion into perilous ways that lead unto destruction. Have ye thought Me heedless or that I was unaware?66. O EMIGRANTS!The tongue I have designed for the mention of Me, defile it not with detraction. If the fire of self overcome you, remember your own faults and not the faults of My creatures, inasmuch as every one of you knoweth his own self better than he knoweth others.67. O CHILDREN OF FANCY!Know, verily, that while the radiant dawn breaketh above the horizon of eternal holiness, the satanic secrets and deeds done in the gloom of night shall be laid bare and manifest before the peoples of the world.68. O WEED THAT SPRINGETH OUT OF DUST!Wherefore have not these soiled hands of thine touched first thine own garment, and why with thine heart defiled with desire and passion dost thou seek to commune with Me and to enter My sacred realm? Far, far are ye from that which ye desire.69. O CHILDREN OF ADAM!Holy words and pure and goodly deeds ascend unto the heaven of celestial glory. Strive that your deeds may be cleansed from the dust of self and hypocrisy and find favor at the court of glory; for ere long the assayers of mankind shall, in the holy presence of the Adored One, accept naught but absolute virtue and deeds of stainless purity. This is the daystar of wisdom and of divine mystery that hath shone above the horizon of the divine will. Blessed are they that turn thereunto. 70. O SON OF WORLDLINESS!Pleasant is the realm of being, wert thou to attain thereto; glorious is the domain of eternity, shouldst thou pass beyond the world of mortality; sweet is the holy ecstasy if thou drinkest of the mystic chalice from the hands of the celestial Youth. Shouldst thou attain this station, thou wouldst be freed from destruction and death, from toil and sin.71. O MY FRIENDS!Call ye to mind that covenant ye have entered into with Me upon Mount Paran, situate within the hallowed precincts of Zaman. I have taken to witness the concourse on high and the dwellers in the city of eternity, yet now none do I find faithful unto the covenant. Of a certainty pride and rebellion have effaced it from the hearts, in such wise that no trace thereof remaineth. Yet knowing this, I waited and disclosed it not.72. O MY SERVANT!Thou art even as a finely tempered sword concealed in the darkness of its sheath and its value hidden from the artificer's knowledge. Wherefore come forth from the sheath of self and desire that thy worth may be made resplendent and manifest unto all the world.73. O MY FRIEND!Thou art the daystar of the heavens of My holiness, let not the defilement of the world eclipse thy splendor. Rend asunder the veil of heedlessness, that from behind the clouds thou mayest emerge resplendent and array all things with the apparel of life.74. O CHILDREN OF VAINGLORY!For a fleeting sovereignty ye have abandoned My imperishable dominion, and have adorned yourselves with the gay livery of the world and made of it your boast. By My beauty! All will I gather beneath the one-colored covering of the dust and efface all these diverse colors save them that choose My own, and that is purging from every color.75. O CHILDREN OF NEGLIGENCE!Set not your affections on mortal sovereignty and rejoice not therein. Ye are even as the unwary bird that with full confidence warbleth upon the bough; till of a sudden the fowler Death throws it upon the dust, and the melody, the form and the color are gone, leaving not a trace. Wherefore take heed, O bondslaves of desire!76. O SON OF MY HANDMAID! Guidance hath ever been given by words, and now it is given by deeds. Every one must show forth deeds that are pure and holy, for words are the property of all alike, whereas such deeds as these belong only to Our loved ones. Strive then with heart and soul to distinguish yourselves by your deeds. In this wise We counsel you in this holy and resplendent tablet.77. O SON OF JUSTICE! In the night-season the beauty of the immortal Being hath repaired from the emerald height of fidelity unto the Sadratu'l-Muntaha, and wept with such a weeping that the concourse on high and the dwellers of the realms above wailed at His lamenting. Whereupon there was asked, Why the wailing and weeping? He made reply: As bidden I waited expectant upon the hill of faithfulness, yet inhaled not from them that dwell on earth the fragrance of fidelity. Then summoned to return I beheld, and lo! certain doves of holiness were sore tried within the claws of the dogs of earth. Thereupon the Maid of heaven hastened forth unveiled and resplendent from Her mystic mansion, and asked of their names, and all were told but one. And when urged, the first letter thereof was uttered, whereupon the dwellers of the celestial chambers rushed forth out of their habitation of glory. And whilst the second letter was pronounced they fell down, one and all, upon the dust. At that moment a voice was heard from the inmost shrine: "Thus far and no farther." Verily We bear witness to that which they have done and now are doing.

78. O SON OF MY HANDMAID!Quaff from the tongue of the merciful the stream of divine mystery, and behold from the dayspring of divine utterance the unveiled splendor of the daystar of wisdom. Sow the seeds of My divine wisdom in the pure soil of the heart, and water them with the waters of certitude, that the hyacinths of knowledge and wisdom may spring up fresh and green from the holy city of the heart.79. O SON OF DESIRE! How long wilt thou soar in the realms of desire? Wings have I bestowed upon thee, that thou mayest fly to the realms of mystic holiness and not the regions of satanic fancy. The comb, too, have I given thee that thou mayest dress My raven locks, and not lacerate My throat.80. O MY SERVANTS!Ye are the trees of My garden; ye must give forth goodly and wondrous fruits, that ye yourselves and others may profit therefrom. Thus it is incumbent on every one to engage in crafts and professions, for therein lies the secret of wealth, O men of understanding! For results depend upon means, and the grace of God shall be all-sufficient unto you. Trees that yield no fruit have been and will ever be for the fire.81. O MY SERVANT!The basest of men are they that yield no fruit on earth. Such men are verily counted as among the dead, nay better are the dead inthe sight of God than those idle and worthless souls.82. O MY SERVANT!The best of men are they that earn a livelihood by their calling and spend upon themselves and upon their kindred for the love of God, the Lord of all worlds.The mystic and wondrous Bride, hidden ere this beneath theveiling of utterance, hath now, by the grace of God and Hisdivine favor, been made manifest even as the resplendent lightshed by the beauty of the Beloved. I bear witness, O friends!that the favor is complete, the argument fulfilled, the proofmanifest and the evidence established. Let it now be seen whatyour endeavors in the path of detachment will reveal. In thiswise hath the divine favor been fully vouchsafed unto youand unto them that are in heaven and on earth. All praiseto God, the Lord of all Worlds.ArabicPersian

Return to TRUEBAHAI.com

—

Return to Spi

THE HIDDEN WORDS OF BAHÁ'U'LLÁH

Arabic Persian

ritual Teachings Page

Arabic

HE IS THE GLORY OF GLORIES

This is that which hath descended from the realm of glory, uttered by the tongue of power and might, and revealed unto the Prophets of old. We have taken the inner essence thereof and clothed it in the garment of brevity, as a token of grace unto the righteous, that they may stand faithful unto the Covenant of God, may fulfill in their lives His trust, and in the realm of spirit obtain the gem of Divine virtue.

1. O SON OF SPIRIT!

My first counsel is this: Possess a pure, kindly and radiant heart, that thine may be a sovereignty ancient, imperishable and everlasting.

2. O SON OF SPIRIT!

The best beloved of all things in My sight is Justice; turn not away therefrom if thou desirest Me, and neglect it not that I may confide in thee. By its aid thou shalt see with thine own eyes and not through the eyes of others, and shalt know of thine own knowledge and not through the knowledge of thy neighbor. Ponder this in thy heart; how it behooveth thee to be. Verily justice is My gift to thee and the sign of My loving-kindness. Set it then before thine eyes.

3. O SON OF MAN!

Veiled in My immemorial being and in the ancient eternity of My essence, I knew My love for thee;

therefore I created thee, have engraved on thee Mine image and revealed to thee My beauty.

4. O SON OF MAN!

I loved thy creation, hence I created thee. Wherefore, do thou love Me, that I may name thy name and fill thy soul with the spirit of life.

5. O SON OF BEING!

Love Me, that I may love thee. If thou lovest Me not, My love can in no wise reach thee. Know this, O servant.

6. O SON OF BEING!

Thy Paradise is My love; thy heavenly home, reunion with Me. Enter therein and tarry not. This is that which hath been destined for thee in Our kingdom above and Our exalted dominion.

7. O SON OF MAN!

If thou lovest Me, turn away from thyself; and if thou seekest My pleasure, regard not thine own; that thou mayest die in Me and I may eternally live in thee.

8. O SON OF SPIRIT!

There is no peace for thee save by renouncing thyself and turning unto Me; for it behooveth thee to glory in My name, not in thine own; to put thy trust in Me and not in thyself, since I desire to be loved alone and above all that is.

9. O SON OF BEING!

My love is My stronghold; he that entereth therein is safe and secure, and he that turneth away shall surely stray and perish.

10. O SON OF UTTERANCE!

Thou art My stronghold; enter therein that thou mayest abide in safety. My love is in thee, know it, that thou mayest find Me near unto thee.

11. O SON OF BEING!

Thou art My lamp and My light is in thee. Get thou from it thy radiance and seek none other than Me. For I have created thee rich and have bountifully shed My favor upon thee.

12. O SON OF BEING!

With the hands of power I made thee and with the fingers of strength I created thee; and within thee have I placed the essence of My light. Be thou content with it and seek naught else, for My work is perfect and My command is binding. Question it not, nor have a doubt thereof.

13. O SON OF SPIRIT!

I created thee rich, why dost thou bring thyself down to poverty? Noble I made thee, wherewith dost thou abase thyself? Out of the essence of knowledge I gave thee being, why seekest thou enlightenment from anyone beside Me? Out of the clay of love I molded thee, how dost thou busy thyself with another? Turn thy sight unto thyself, that thou mayest find Me standing within thee, mighty, powerful and self-subsisting.

14. O SON OF MAN!

Thou art My dominion and My dominion perisheth not; wherefore fearest thou thy perishing? Thou art My light and My light shall never be extinguished; why dost thou dread extinction? Thou art My glory and My glory fadeth not; thou art My robe and My robe shall never be outworn. Abide then in thy love for Me, that thou mayest find Me in the realm of glory.

15. O SON OF UTTERANCE!

Turn thy face unto Mine and renounce all save Me; for My sovereignty endureth and My dominion perisheth not. If thou seekest another than Me, yea, if thou searchest the universe for evermore, thy quest will be in vain.

16. O SON OF LIGHT!

Forget all save Me and commune with My spirit. This is of the essence of My command, therefore turn unto it.

17. O SON OF MAN!

Be thou content with Me and seek no other helper. For none but Me can ever suffice thee.

18. O SON OF SPIRIT!

Ask not of Me that which We desire not for thee, then be content with what We have ordained for thy sake, for this is that which profiteth thee, if therewith thou dost content thyself.

19. O SON OF THE WONDROUS VISION!

I have breathed within thee a breath of My own Spirit, that thou mayest be My lover. Why hast thou forsaken Me and sought a beloved other than Me?

20. O SON OF SPIRIT!

My claim on thee is great, it cannot be forgotten. My grace to thee is plenteous, it cannot be veiled. My love has made in thee its home, it cannot be concealed. My light is manifest to thee, it cannot be obscured.

21. O SON OF MAN!

Upon the tree of effulgent glory I have hung for thee the choicest fruits, wherefore hast thou turned away and contented thyself with that which is less good? Return then unto that which is better for thee in the realm on high.

22. O SON OF SPIRIT!

Noble have I created thee, yet thou hast abased thyself. Rise then unto that for which thou wast created.

23. O SON OF THE SUPREME!

To the eternal I call thee, yet thou dost seek that which perisheth. What hath made thee turn away from Our desire and seek thine own?

24. O SON OF MAN!

Transgress not thy limits, nor claim that which beseemeth thee not. Prostrate thyself before the countenance of thy God, the Lord of might and power.

25. O SON OF SPIRIT!

Vaunt not thyself over the poor, for I lead him on his way and behold thee in thy evil plight and confound thee for evermore.

26. O SON OF BEING!

How couldst thou forget thine own faults and busy thyself with the faults of others? Whoso doeth this is accursed of Me.

27. O SON OF MAN!

Breathe not the sins of others so long as thou art thyself a sinner. Shouldst thou transgress this command, accursed wouldst thou be, and to this I bear witness.

28. O SON OF SPIRIT!

Know thou of a truth: He that biddeth men be just and himself committeth iniquity is not of Me, even though he bear My name.

29. O SON OF BEING!

Ascribe not to any soul that which thou wouldst not have ascribed to thee, and say not that which thou doest not. This is My command unto thee, do thou observe it.

30. O SON OF MAN!

Deny not My servant should he ask anything from thee, for his face is My face; be then abashed before Me.

31. O SON OF BEING!

Bring thyself to account each day ere thou art summoned to a reckoning; for death, unheralded, shall come upon thee and thou shalt be called to give account for thy deeds.

32. O SON OF THE SUPREME!

I have made death a messenger of joy to thee. Wherefore dost thou grieve? I made the light to shed on thee its splendor. Why dost thou veil thyself therefrom?

33. O SON OF SPIRIT!

With the joyful tidings of light I hail thee: rejoice! To the court of holiness I summon thee; abide therein that thou mayest live in peace for evermore.

34. O SON OF SPIRIT!

The spirit of holiness beareth unto thee the joyful tidings of reunion; wherefore dost thou grieve? The spirit of power confirmeth thee in His cause; why dost thou veil thyself? The light of His countenance doth lead thee; how canst thou go astray?

35. O SON OF MAN!

Sorrow not save that thou art far from Us. Rejoice not save that thou art drawing near and returning unto Us.

36. O SON OF MAN!

Rejoice in the gladness of thine heart, that thou mayest be worthy to meet Me and to mirror forth My beauty.

37. O SON OF MAN!

Divest not thyself of My beauteous robe, and forfeit not thy portion from My wondrous fountain, lest thou shouldst thirst for evermore.

38. O SON OF BEING!

Walk in My statutes for love of Me and deny thyself that which thou desirest if thou seekest My pleasure.

39. O SON OF MAN!

Neglect not My commandments if thou lovest My beauty, and forget not My counsels if thou wouldst attain My good pleasure.

40. O SON OF MAN!

Wert thou to speed through the immensity of space and traverse the expanse of heaven, yet thou wouldst find no rest save in submission to Our command and humbleness before Our Face.

41. O SON OF MAN!

Magnify My cause that I may reveal unto thee the mysteries of My greatness and shine upon thee with the light of eternity.

42. O SON OF MAN!

Humble thyself before Me, that I may graciously visit thee. Arise for the triumph of My cause, that while yet on earth thou mayest obtain the victory.

43. O SON OF BEING!

Make mention of Me on My earth, that in My heaven I may remember thee, thus shall Mine eyes and thine be solaced.

44. O SON OF THE THRONE!

Thy hearing is My hearing, hear thou therewith. Thy sight is My sight, do thou see therewith, that in thine inmost soul thou mayest testify unto My exalted sanctity, and I within Myself may bear witness unto an exalted station for thee.

45. O SON OF BEING!

Seek a martyr's death in My path, content with My pleasure and thankful for that which I ordain, that thou mayest repose with Me beneath the canopy of majesty behind the tabernacle of glory.

46. O SON OF MAN!

Ponder and reflect. Is it thy wish to die upon thy bed, or to shed thy life-blood on the dust, a martyr in My path, and so become the manifestation of My command and the revealer of My light in the highest paradise? Judge thou aright, O servant!

47. O SON OF MAN!

By My beauty! To tinge thy hair with thy blood is greater in My sight than the creation of the universe and the light of both worlds. Strive then to attain this, O servant!

48. O SON OF MAN!

For everything there is a sign. The sign of love is fortitude under My decree and patience under My trials.

49. O SON OF MAN!

The true lover yearneth for tribulation even as doth the rebel for forgiveness and the sinful for mercy.

50. O SON OF MAN!

If adversity befall thee not in My path, how canst thou walk in the ways of them that are content with My pleasure? If trials afflict thee not in thy longing to meet Me, how wilt thou attain the light in thy love for My beauty?

51. O SON OF MAN!

My calamity is My providence, outwardly it is fire and vengeance, but inwardly it is light and mercy. Hasten thereunto that thou mayest become an eternal light and an immortal spirit. This is My command unto thee, do thou observe it.

52. O SON OF MAN!

Should prosperity befall thee, rejoice not, and should abasement come upon thee, grieve not, for both shall pass away and be no more.

53. O SON OF BEING!

If poverty overtake thee, be not sad; for in time the Lord of wealth shall visit thee. Fear not abasement, for glory shall one day rest on thee.

54. O SON OF BEING!

If thine heart be set upon this eternal, imperishable dominion, and this ancient, everlasting life, forsake this mortal and fleeting sovereignty.

55. O SON OF BEING!

Busy not thyself with this world, for with fire We test the gold, and with gold We test Our servants.

56. O SON OF MAN!

Thou dost wish for gold and I desire thy freedom from it. Thou thinkest thyself rich in its possession, and I recognize thy wealth in thy sanctity therefrom. By My life! This is My knowledge, and that is thy fancy; how can My way accord with thine?

57. O SON OF MAN!

Bestow My wealth upon My poor, that in heaven thou mayest draw from stores of unfading splendor and treasures of imperishable glory. But by My life! To offer up thy soul is a more glorious thing couldst thou but see with Mine eye.

58. O SON OF MAN!

The temple of being is My throne; cleanse it of all things, that there I may be established and there I may abide.

59. O SON OF BEING!

Thy heart is My home; sanctify it for My descent. Thy spirit is My place of revelation; cleanse it for My manifestation.

60. O SON OF MAN!

Put thy hand into My bosom, that I may rise above thee, radiant and resplendent.

61. O SON OF MAN!

Ascend unto My heaven, that thou mayest obtain the joy of reunion, and from the chalice of imperishable glory quaff the peerless wine.

62. O SON OF MAN!

Many a day hath passed over thee whilst thou hast busied thyself with thy fancies and idle imaginings. How long art thou to slumber on thy bed? Lift up thy head from slumber, for the Sun hath risen to the zenith, haply it may shine upon thee with the light of beauty.

63. O SON OF MAN!

The light hath shone on thee from the horizon of the sacred Mount and the spirit of enlightenment hath breathed in the Sinai of thy heart. Wherefore, free thyself from the veils of idle fancies and enter into My court, that thou mayest be fit for everlasting life and worthy to meet Me. Thus may death not come upon thee, neither weariness nor trouble.

64. O SON OF MAN!

My eternity is My creation, I have created it for thee. Make it the garment of thy temple. My unity is My handiwork; I have wrought it for thee; clothe thyself therewith, that thou mayest be to all eternity the revelation of My everlasting being.

65. O SON OF MAN!

My majesty is My gift to thee, and My grandeur the token of My mercy unto thee. That which beseemeth Me none shall understand, nor can anyone recount. Verily, I have preserved it in My hidden storehouses and in the treasuries of My command, as a sign of My loving-kindness unto My servants and My mercy unto My people.

66. O CHILDREN OF THE DIVINE AND INVISIBLE ESSENCE!

Ye shall be hindered from loving Me and souls shall be perturbed as they make mention of Me. For minds cannot grasp Me nor hearts contain Me.

67. O SON OF BEAUTY!

By My spirit and by My favor! By My mercy and by My beauty! All that I have revealed unto thee with the tongue of power, and have written for thee with the pen of might, hath been in accordance with thy capacity and understanding, not with My state and the melody of My voice.

68. O CHILDREN OF MEN!

Know ye not why We created you all from the same dust? That no one should exalt himself over the other. Ponder at all times in your hearts how ye were created. Since We have created you all from one same substance it is incumbent on you to be even as one soul, to walk with the same feet, eat with the same mouth and dwell in the same land, that from your inmost being, by your deeds and actions, the signs of oneness and the essence of detachment may be made manifest. Such is My counsel to you, O concourse of light! Heed ye this counsel that ye may obtain the fruit of holiness from the tree of wondrous glory.

69. O YE SONS OF SPIRIT!

Ye are My treasury, for in you I have treasured the pearls of My mysteries and the gems of My knowledge. Guard them from the strangers amidst My servants and from the ungodly amongst My people.

70. O SON OF HIM THAT STOOD BY HIS OWN ENTITY IN THE KINGDOM OF HIS SELF!

Know thou, that I have wafted unto thee all the fragrances of holiness, have fully revealed to thee My word, have perfected through thee My bounty and have desired for thee that which I have desired for My Self. Be then content with My pleasure and thankful unto Me.

71. O SON OF MAN!

Write all that We have revealed unto thee with the ink of light upon the tablet of thy spirit. Should this not be in thy power, then make thine ink of the essence of thy heart. If this thou canst not do, then write with that crimson ink that hath been shed in My path. Sweeter indeed is this to Me than all else, that its light may endure for ever.

Arabic Persian

Persian

In the Name of the Lord of Utterance, The Mighty.

1. O YE PEOPLE THAT HAVE MINDS TO KNOW AND EARS TO HEAR!

The first call of the Beloved is this: O mystic nightingale! Abide not but in the rose-garden of the spirit. O messenger of the Solomon of love! Seek thou no shelter except in the Sheba of the well-beloved, and O immortal phoenix! dwell not save on the mount of faithfulness. Therein is thy habitation, if on the wings of thy soul thou soarest to the realm of the infinite and seekest to attain thy goal.

2. O SON OF SPIRIT!

The bird seeketh its nest; the nightingale the charm of the rose; whilst those birds, the hearts of men, content with transient dust, have strayed far from their eternal nest, and with eyes turned towards the slough of heedlessness are bereft of the glory of the divine presence. Alas! How strange and pitiful; for a mere cupful, they have turned away from the billowing seas of the Most High, and remained far from the most effulgent horizon.

3. O FRIEND!

In the garden of thy heart plant naught but the rose of love, and from the nightingale of affection and desire loosen not thy hold. Treasure the companionship of the righteous and eschew all fellowship with the ungodly.

4. O SON OF JUSTICE!

Whither can a lover go but to the land of his beloved? and what seeker findeth rest away from his heart's desire? To the true lover reunion is life, and separation is death. His breast is void of patience and his heart hath no peace. A myriad lives he would forsake to hasten to the abode of his beloved.

5. O SON OF DUST!

Verily I say unto thee: Of all men the most negligent is he that disputeth idly and seeketh to advance himself over his brother. Say, O brethren! Let deeds, not words, be your adorning.

6. O SON OF EARTH!

Know, verily, the heart wherein the least remnant of envy yet lingers, shall never attain My everlasting dominion, nor inhale the sweet savors of holiness breathing from My kingdom of sanctity.

7. O SON OF LOVE!

Thou art but one step away from the glorious heights above and from the celestial tree of love. Take thou one pace and with the next advance into the immortal realm and enter the pavilion of eternity. Give ear then to that which hath been revealed by the pen of glory.

8. O SON OF GLORY!

Be swift in the path of holiness, and enter the heaven of communion with Me. Cleanse thy heart with the burnish of the spirit, and hasten to the court of the Most High.

9. O FLEETING SHADOW!

Pass beyond the baser stages of doubt and rise to the exalted heights of certainty. Open the eye of truth, that thou mayest behold the veilless Beauty and exclaim: Hallowed be the Lord, the most excellent of all creators!

10. O SON OF DESIRE!

Give ear unto this: Never shall mortal eye recognize the everlasting Beauty, nor the lifeless heart delight in aught but in the withered bloom. For like seeketh like, and taketh pleasure in the company of its kind.

11. O SON OF DUST!

Blind thine eyes, that thou mayest behold My beauty; stop thine ears, that thou mayest hearken unto the sweet melody of My voice; empty thyself of all learning, that thou mayest partake of My knowledge; and sanctify thyself from riches, that thou mayest obtain a lasting share from the ocean of My eternal wealth. Blind thine eyes, that is, to all save My beauty; stop thine ears to all save My word; empty thyself of all learning save the knowledge of Me; that with a clear vision, a pure heart and an attentive ear thou mayest enter the court of My holiness.

12. O MAN OF TWO VISIONS!

Close one eye and open the other. Close one to the world and all that is therein, and open the other to the hallowed beauty of the Beloved.

13. O MY CHILDREN!

I fear lest, bereft of the melody of the dove of heaven, ye will sink back to the shades of utter loss, and, never having gazed upon the beauty of the rose, return to water and clay.

14. O FRIENDS!

Abandon not the everlasting beauty for a beauty that must die, and set not your affections on this mortal world of dust.

15. O SON OF SPIRIT!

The time cometh, when the nightingale of holiness will no longer unfold the inner mysteries and ye will all be bereft of the celestial melody and of the voice from on high.

16. O ESSENCE OF NEGLIGENCE!

Myriads of mystic tongues find utterance in one speech, and myriads of hidden mysteries are revealed in a single melody; yet, alas, there is no ear to hear, nor heart to understand.

17. O COMRADES!

The gates that open on the Placeless stand wide and the habitation of the loved one is adorned with the lovers' blood, yet all but a few remain bereft of this celestial city, and even of these few, none but the smallest handful hath been found with a pure heart and sanctified spirit.

18. O YE DWELLERS IN THE HIGHEST PARADISE!

Proclaim unto the children of assurance that within the realms of holiness, nigh unto the celestial paradise, a new garden hath appeared, round which circle the denizens of the realm on high and the immortal dwellers of the exalted paradise. Strive, then, that ye may attain that station, that ye may unravel the mysteries of love from its wind-flowers and learn the secret of divine and consummate wisdom from its eternal fruits. Solaced are the eyes of them that enter and abide therein!

19. O MY FRIENDS!

Have ye forgotten that true and radiant morn, when in those hallowed and blessed surroundings ye were all gathered in My presence beneath the shade of the tree of life, which is planted in the all-glorious paradise? Awe-struck ye listened as I gave utterance to these three most holy words: O friends! Prefer not your will to Mine, never desire that which I have not desired for you, and approach Me not with lifeless hearts, defiled with worldly desires and cravings. Would ye but sanctify your souls, ye would at this present hour recall that place and those surroundings, and the truth of My utterance should be made evident unto all of you.

In the eighth of the most holy lines, in the fifth Tablet of Paradise, He saith:

20. O YE THAT ARE LYING AS DEAD ON THE COUCH OF HEEDLESSNESS!

Ages have passed and your precious lives are well-nigh ended, yet not a single breath of purity hath reached Our court of holiness from you. Though immersed in the ocean of misbelief, yet with your lips ye profess the one true faith of God. Him whom I abhor ye have loved, and of My foe ye have made a friend. Notwithstanding, ye walk on My earth complacent and self-satisfied, heedless that My earth is weary of you and everything within it shunneth you. Were ye but to open your eyes, ye would, in truth, prefer a myriad griefs unto this joy, and would count death itself better than this life.

21. O MOVING FORM OF DUST!

I desire communion with thee, but thou wouldst put no trust in Me. The sword of thy rebellion hath felled the tree of thy hope. At all times I am near unto thee, but thou art ever far from Me. Imperishable glory I have chosen for thee, yet boundless shame thou hast chosen for thyself. While there is yet time, return, and lose not thy chance.

22. O SON OF DESIRE!

The learned and the wise have for long years striven and failed to attain the presence of the All-Glorious; they have spent their lives in search of Him, yet did not behold the beauty of His countenance. Thou without the least effort didst attain thy goal, and without search hast obtained the object of thy quest. Yet, notwithstanding, thou didst remain so wrapt in the veil of self, that thine eyes beheld not the beauty of the Beloved, nor did thy hand touch the hem of His robe. Ye that have eyes, behold and wonder.

23. O DWELLERS IN THE CITY OF LOVE!

Mortal blasts have beset the everlasting candle, and the beauty of the celestial Youth is veiled in the darkness of dust. The chief of the monarchs of love is wronged by the people of tyranny and the dove of holiness lies prisoned in the talons of owls. The dwellers in the pavilion of glory and the celestial concourse bewail and lament, while ye repose in the realm of negligence, and esteem yourselves as of the true friends. How vain are your imaginings!

24. O YE THAT ARE FOOLISH, YET HAVE A NAME TO BE WISE!

Wherefore do ye wear the guise of shepherds, when inwardly ye have become wolves, intent upon My flock? Ye are even as the star, which riseth ere the dawn, and which, though it seem radiant and luminous, leadeth the wayfarers of My city astray into the paths of perdition.

25. O YE SEEMING FAIR YET INWARDLY FOUL!

Ye are like clear but bitter water, which to outward seeming is crystal pure but of which, when tested by the divine Assayer, not a drop is accepted. Yea, the sun beam falls alike upon the dust and the mirror, yet differ they in reflection even as doth the star from the earth: nay, immeasurable is the difference!

26. O MY FRIEND IN WORD!

Ponder awhile. Hast thou ever heard that friend and foe should abide in one heart? Cast out then the stranger, that the Friend may enter His home.

27. O SON OF DUST!

All that is in heaven and earth I have ordained for thee, except the human heart, which I have made the habitation of My beauty and glory; yet thou didst give My home and dwelling to another than Me; and whenever the manifestation of My holiness sought

His own abode, a stranger found He there, and, homeless, hastened unto the sanctuary of the Beloved. Notwithstanding I have concealed thy secret and desired not thy shame.

28. O ESSENCE OF DESIRE!

At many a dawn have I turned from the realms of the Placeless unto thine abode, and found thee on the bed of ease busied with others than Myself. Thereupon, even as the flash of the spirit, I returned to the realms of celestial glory and breathed it not in My retreats above unto the hosts of holiness.

29. O SON OF BOUNTY!

Out of the wastes of nothingness, with the clay of My command I made thee to appear, and have ordained for thy training every atom in existence and the essence of all created things. Thus, ere thou didst issue from thy mother's womb, I destined for thee two founts of gleaming milk, eyes to watch over thee, and hearts to love thee. Out of My loving-kindness, 'neath the shade of My mercy I nurtured thee, and guarded thee by the essence of My grace and favor. And My purpose in all this was that thou mightest attain My everlasting dominion and become worthy of My invisible bestowals. And yet heedless thou didst remain, and when fully grown, thou didst neglect all My bounties and occupied thyself with thine idle imaginings, in such wise that thou didst become wholly forgetful, and, turning away from the portals of the Friend didst abide within the courts of My enemy.

30. O BOND SLAVE OF THE WORLD!

Many a dawn hath the breeze of My loving-kindness wafted over thee and found thee upon the bed of heedlessness fast asleep. Bewailing then thy plight it returned whence it came.

31. O SON OF EARTH!

Wouldst thou have Me, seek none other than Me; and wouldst thou gaze upon My beauty, close thine eyes to the world and all that is therein; for My will and the will of another than Me, even as fire and water, cannot dwell together in one heart.

32. O BEFRIENDED STRANGER!

The candle of thine heart is lighted by the hand of My power, quench it not with the contrary winds of self and passion. The healer of all thine ills is remembrance of Me, forget it not. Make My love thy treasure and cherish it even as thy very sight and life.

33. O MY BROTHER!

Hearken to the delightsome words of My honeyed tongue, and quaff the stream of mystic holiness from My sugar-shedding lips. Sow the seeds of My divine wisdom in the pure soil of thy heart, and water them with the water of certitude, that the hyacinths of My knowledge and wisdom may spring up fresh and green in the sacred city of thy heart.

34. O DWELLERS OF MY PARADISE!

With the hands of loving-kindness I have planted in the holy garden of paradise the young tree of your love and friendship, and have watered it with the goodly showers of My tender grace; now that the hour of its fruiting is come, strive that it may be protected, and be not consumed with the flame of desire and passion.

35. O MY FRIENDS!

Quench ye the lamp of error, and kindle within your hearts the everlasting torch of divine guidance. For ere long the assayers of mankind shall, in the holy presence of the Adored, accept naught but purest virtue and deeds of stainless holiness.

36. O SON OF DUST!

The wise are they that speak not unless they obtain a hearing, even as the cup-bearer, who proffereth not his cup till he findeth a seeker, and the lover who crieth not out from the depths of his heart until he gazeth upon the beauty of his beloved. Wherefore sow the seeds of wisdom and knowledge in the pure soil of the heart, and keep them hidden, till the hyacinths of divine wisdom spring from the heart and not from mire and clay.

In the first line of the Tablet it is recorded and written, and within the sanctuary of the tabernacle of God is hidden:

37. O MY SERVANT!

Abandon not for that which perisheth an everlasting dominion, and cast not away celestial sovereignty for a worldly desire. This is the river of everlasting life that hath flowed from the well-spring of the pen of the merciful; well is it with them that drink!

38. O SON OF SPIRIT!

Burst thy cage asunder, and even as the phoenix of love soar into the firmament of holiness. Renounce thyself and, filled with the spirit of mercy, abide in the realm of celestial sanctity.

39. O OFFSPRING OF DUST!

Be not content with the ease of a passing day, and deprive not thyself of everlasting rest. Barter not the garden of eternal delight for the dust-heap of a mortal world. Up from thy prison ascend unto the glorious meads above, and from thy mortal cage wing thy flight unto the paradise of the Placeless.

40. O MY SERVANT!

Free thyself from the fetters of this world, and loose thy soul from the prison of self. Seize thy chance, for it will come to thee no more.

41. O SON OF MY HANDMAID!

Didst thou behold immortal sovereignty, thou wouldst strive to pass from this fleeting world. But to conceal the one from thee and to reveal the other is a mystery which none but the pure in heart can comprehend.

42. O MY SERVANT!

Purge thy heart from malice and, innocent of envy, enter the divine court of holiness.

43. O MY FRIENDS!

Walk ye in the ways of the good pleasure of the Friend, and know that His pleasure is in the pleasure of His creatures. That is: no man should enter the house of his friend save at his friend's pleasure, nor lay hands upon his treasures nor prefer his own will to his friend's, and in no wise seek an advantage over him. Ponder this, ye that have insight!

44. O COMPANION OF MY THRONE!

Hear no evil, and see no evil, abase not thyself, neither sigh and weep. Speak no evil, that thou mayest not hear it spoken unto thee, and magnify not the faults of others that thine own faults may not appear great; and wish not the abasement of anyone, that thine own abasement be not exposed. Live then the days of thy life, that are less than a fleeting moment, with thy mind stainless, thy heart unsullied, thy thoughts pure, and thy nature sanctified, so that, free and content, thou mayest put away this mortal frame, and repair unto the mystic paradise and abide in the eternal kingdom for evermore.

45. ALAS! ALAS! O LOVERS OF WORLDLY DESIRE!

Even as the swiftness of lightning ye have passed by the Beloved One, and have set your hearts on satanic fancies. Ye bow the knee before your vain imagining, and call it truth. Ye turn your eyes towards the thorn, and name it a flower. Not a pure breath have ye breathed, nor hath the breeze of detachment been wafted from the meadows of your hearts. Ye have cast to the winds the loving counsels of the Beloved and have effaced them utterly from the tablet of your hearts, and even as the beasts of the field, ye move and have your being within the pastures of desire and passion.

46. O BRETHREN IN THE PATH!

Wherefore have ye neglected the mention of the Loved One, and kept remote from His holy presence? The essence of beauty is within the peerless pavilion, set upon the throne of glory, whilst ye busy yourselves with idle contentions. The sweet savors of holiness are breathing and the breath of bounty is wafted, yet ye are all sorely afflicted and deprived thereof. Alas for you and for them that walk in your ways and follow in your footsteps!

47. O CHILDREN OF DESIRE!

Put away the garment of vainglory, and divest yourselves of the attire of haughtiness.

In the third of the most holy lines writ and recorded in the Ruby Tablet by the pen of the unseen this is revealed:

48. O BRETHREN!

Be forbearing one with another and set not your affections on things below. Pride not yourselves in your glory, and be not ashamed of abasement. By My beauty! I have created all things from dust, and to dust will I return them again.

49. O CHILDREN OF DUST!

Tell the rich of the midnight sighing of the poor, lest heedlessness lead them into the path of destruction, and deprive them of the Tree of Wealth. To give and to be generous are attributes of Mine; well is it with him that adorneth himself with My virtues.

50. O QUINTESSENCE OF PASSION!

Put away all covetousness and seek contentment; for the covetous hath ever been deprived, and the contented hath ever been loved and praised.

51. O SON OF MY HANDMAID!

Be not troubled in poverty nor confident in riches, for poverty is followed by riches, and riches are followed by poverty. Yet to be poor in all save God is a wondrous gift, belittle not the value thereof, for in the end it will make thee rich in God, and thus thou shalt know the meaning of the utterance, "In truth ye are the poor," and the holy words, "God is the all-possessing," shall even as the true morn break forth gloriously resplendent upon the horizon of the lover's heart, and abide secure on the throne of wealth.

52. O CHILDREN OF NEGLIGENCE AND PASSION!

Ye have suffered My enemy to enter My house and have cast out My friend, for ye have enshrined the love of another than Me in your hearts. Give ear to the sayings of the Friend and turn towards His paradise. Worldly friends, seeking their own good, appear to love one the other, whereas the true Friend hath loved and doth love you for your own sakes; indeed He hath suffered for your guidance countless afflictions. Be not disloyal to such a Friend, nay rather hasten unto Him. Such is the daystar of the word of truth and faithfulness, that hath dawned above the horizon of the pen of the Lord of all names. Open your ears that ye may hearken unto the word of God, the Help in peril, the Self-existent.

53. O YE THAT PRIDE YOURSELVES ON MORTAL RICHES!

Know ye in truth that wealth is a mighty barrier between the seeker and his desire, the lover and his beloved. The rich, but for a few, shall in no wise attain the court of His presence nor enter the city of content and resignation. Well is it then with him, who, being rich, is not hindered by his riches from the eternal kingdom, nor deprived by them of imperishable dominion. By the Most Great Name! The splendor of such a wealthy man shall illuminate the dwellers of heaven even as the sun enlightens the people of the earth!

54. O YE RICH ONES ON EARTH!

The poor in your midst are My trust; guard ye My trust, and be not intent only on your own ease.

55. O SON OF PASSION!

Cleanse thyself from the defilement of riches and in perfect peace advance into the realm of poverty; that from the well-spring of detachment thou mayest quaff the wine of immortal life.

56. O MY SON!

The company of the ungodly increaseth sorrow, whilst fellowship with the righteous cleanseth the rust from off the heart. He that seeketh to commune with God, let him betake himself to the companionship of His loved ones; and he that desireth to hearken unto the word of God, let him give ear to the words of His chosen ones.

57. O SON OF DUST!

Beware! Walk not with the ungodly and seek not fellowship with him, for such companionship turneth the radiance of the heart into infernal fire.

58. O SON OF MY HANDMAID!

Wouldst thou seek the grace of the Holy Spirit, enter into fellowship with the righteous, for he hath drunk the cup of eternal life at the hands of the immortal Cup-bearer and even as the true morn doth quicken and illumine the hearts of the dead.

59. O HEEDLESS ONES!

Think not the secrets of hearts are hidden, nay, know ye of a certainty that in clear characters they are engraved and are openly manifest in the holy Presence.

60. O FRIENDS!

Verily I say, whatsoever ye have concealed within your hearts is to Us open and manifest as the day; but that it is hidden is of Our grace and favor, and not of your deserving.

61. O SON OF MAN!

A dewdrop out of the fathomless ocean of My mercy I have shed upon the peoples of the world, yet found none turn thereunto, inasmuch as every one hath turned away from the celestial wine of unity unto the foul dregs of impurity, and, content with mortal cup, hath put away the chalice of immortal beauty. Vile is that wherewith he is contented.

62. O SON OF DUST!

Turn not away thine eyes from the matchless wine of the immortal Beloved, and open them not to foul and mortal dregs. Take from the hands of the divine Cup-bearer the chalice of immortal life, that all wisdom may be thine, and that thou mayest hearken unto the mystic voice calling from the realm of the invisible. Cry aloud, ye that are of low aim! Wherefore have ye turned away from My holy and immortal wine unto evanescent water?

63. O YE PEOPLES OF THE WORLD!

Know, verily, that an unforeseen calamity followeth you, and grievous retribution awaiteth you. Think not that which ye have committed hath been effaced in My sight. By My beauty! All your doings hath My pen graven with open characters upon tablets of chrysolite.

64. O OPPRESSORS ON EARTH!

Withdraw your hands from tyranny, for I have pledged Myself not to forgive any man's injustice. This is My covenant which I have irrevocably decreed in the preserved tablet and sealed with My seal.

65. O REBELLIOUS ONES!

My forbearance hath emboldened you and My long-suffering hath made you negligent, in such wise that ye have spurred on the fiery charger of passion into perilous ways that lead unto destruction. Have ye thought Me heedless or that I was unaware?

66. O EMIGRANTS!

The tongue I have designed for the mention of Me, defile it not with detraction. If the fire of self overcome you, remember your own faults and not the faults of My creatures, inasmuch as every one of you knoweth his own self better than he knoweth others.

67. O CHILDREN OF FANCY!

Know, verily, that while the radiant dawn breaketh above the horizon of eternal holiness, the satanic secrets and deeds done in the gloom of night shall be laid bare and manifest before the peoples of the world.

68. O WEED THAT SPRINGETH OUT OF DUST!

Wherefore have not these soiled hands of thine touched first thine own garment, and why with thine heart defiled with desire and passion dost thou seek to commune with Me and to enter My sacred realm? Far, far are ye from that which ye desire.

69. O CHILDREN OF ADAM!

Holy words and pure and goodly deeds ascend unto the heaven of celestial glory. Strive that your deeds may be cleansed from the dust of self and hypocrisy and find favor at the court of glory; for ere long the assayers of mankind shall, in the holy presence of the Adored One, accept naught but absolute virtue and deeds of stainless purity. This is the daystar of wisdom and of divine mystery that hath shone above the horizon of the divine will. Blessed are they that turn thereunto.

70. O SON OF WORLDLINESS!

Pleasant is the realm of being, wert thou to attain thereto; glorious is the domain of eternity, shouldst thou pass beyond the world of mortality; sweet is the holy ecstasy if thou drinkest of the mystic chalice from the hands of the celestial Youth. Shouldst thou attain this station, thou wouldst be freed from destruction and death, from toil and sin.

71. O MY FRIENDS!

Call ye to mind that covenant ye have entered into with Me upon Mount Paran, situate within the hallowed precincts of Zaman. I have taken to witness the concourse on high and the dwellers in the city of eternity, yet now none do I find faithful unto the covenant. Of a certainty pride and rebellion have effaced it from the hearts, in such wise that no trace thereof remaineth. Yet knowing this, I waited and disclosed it not.

72. O MY SERVANT!

Thou art even as a finely tempered sword concealed in the darkness of its sheath and its value hidden from the artificer's knowledge. Wherefore come forth from the sheath of self and desire that thy worth may be made resplendent and manifest unto all the world.

73. O MY FRIEND!

Thou art the daystar of the heavens of My holiness, let not the defilement of the world eclipse thy splendor. Rend asunder the veil of heedlessness, that from behind the clouds thou mayest emerge resplendent and array all things with the apparel of life.

74. O CHILDREN OF VAINGLORY!

For a fleeting sovereignty ye have abandoned My imperishable dominion, and have adorned yourselves with the gay livery of the world and made of it your boast. By My beauty! All will I gather beneath the one-colored covering of the dust and efface all these diverse colors save them that choose My own, and that is purging from every color.

75. O CHILDREN OF NEGLIGENCE!

Set not your affections on mortal sovereignty and rejoice not therein. Ye are even as the unwary bird that with full confidence warbleth upon the bough; till of a sudden the fowler Death throws it upon the dust, and the melody, the form and the color are gone, leaving not a trace. Wherefore take heed, O bondslaves of desire!

76. O SON OF MY HANDMAID!

Guidance hath ever been given by words, and now it is given by deeds. Every one must show forth deeds that are pure and holy, for words are the property of all alike, whereas such deeds as these belong only to Our loved ones. Strive then with heart and soul to distinguish yourselves by your deeds. In this wise We counsel you in this holy and resplendent tablet.

77. O SON OF JUSTICE!

In the night-season the beauty of the immortal Being hath repaired from the emerald height of fidelity unto the Sadratu'l-Muntaha, and wept with such a weeping that the concourse on high and the dwellers of the realms above wailed at His lamenting. Whereupon there was asked, Why the wailing and weeping? He made reply: As bidden I waited expectant upon the hill of faithfulness, yet inhaled not from them that dwell on earth the fragrance of fidelity. Then summoned to return I beheld, and lo! certain doves of holiness were sore tried within the claws of the dogs of earth. Thereupon the Maid of heaven hastened forth unveiled and resplendent from Her mystic mansion, and asked of their names, and all were told but one. And when urged, the first letter thereof was uttered, whereupon the dwellers of the celestial chambers rushed forth out of their habitation of glory. And whilst the second letter was pronounced they fell down, one and all, upon the dust. At that moment a voice was heard from the inmost shrine: "Thus far and no farther." Verily We bear witness to that which they have done and now are doing.

78. O SON OF MY HANDMAID!

Quaff from the tongue of the merciful the stream of divine mystery, and behold from the dayspring of divine utterance the unveiled splendor of the daystar of wisdom. Sow the seeds of My divine wisdom in the pure soil of the heart, and water them with the waters of certitude, that the hyacinths of knowledge and wisdom may spring up fresh and green from the holy city of the heart.

79. O SON OF DESIRE!

How long wilt thou soar in the realms of desire? Wings have I bestowed upon thee, that thou mayest fly to the realms of mystic holiness and not the regions of satanic fancy. The comb, too, have I given thee that thou mayest dress My raven locks, and not lacerate My throat.

80. O MY SERVANTS!

Ye are the trees of My garden; ye must give forth goodly and wondrous fruits, that ye yourselves and others may profit therefrom. Thus it is incumbent on every one to engage in crafts and professions, for therein lies the secret of wealth, O men of understanding! For results depend upon means, and the grace of God shall be all-sufficient unto you. Trees that yield no fruit have been and will ever be for the fire.

81. O MY SERVANT!

The basest of men are they that yield no fruit on earth. Such men are verily counted as among the dead, nay better are the dead in the sight of God than those idle and worthless souls.

82. O MY SERVANT!

The best of men are they that earn a livelihood by their calling and spend upon themselves and upon their kindred for the love of God, the Lord of all worlds.

The mystic and wondrous Bride, hidden ere this beneath the veiling of utterance, hath now, by the grace of God and His divine favor, been made manifest even as the resplendent light shed by the beauty of the Beloved. I bear witness, O friends! that the favor is complete, the argument fulfilled, the proof manifest and the evidence established. Let it now be seen what your endeavors in the path of detachment will reveal. In this wise hath the divine favor been fully vouchsafed unto you and unto them that are in heaven and on earth. All praise to God, the Lord of all Worlds.

Arabic Persian

TRUEBAHAI.comLauded be Thy name, O Lord my God! I testify that Thou wast a hidden Treasure wrapped within Thine immemorial Being and an impenetrable Mystery enshrined in Thine own Essence. Wishing to reveal Thyself, Thou didst call into being the Greater and the Lesser Worlds, and didst choose Man above all Thy creatures, and didst make Him a sign of both of these worlds, O Thou Who art our Lord, the Most Compassionate!Thou didst raise Him up to occupy Thy throne before all the people of Thy creation. Thou didst enable Him to unravel Thy mysteries, and to shine with the lights of Thine inspiration and Thy Revelation, and to manifest Thy names and Thine attributes. Through Him Thou didst adorn the preamble of the book of Thy creation, O Thou Who art the Ruler of the universe Thou hast fashioned!I bear witness that in His person solidity and fluidity have been joined and combined. Through His immovable constancy in Thy Cause, and His unwavering adherence to whatsoever Thou, in the plentitude of the light of Thy glory, didst unveil to His eyes, throughout the domains of Thy Revelation and creation, the souls of Thy servants were stirred up in their longing for Thy Kingdom, and the dwellers of Thy realms rushed forth to enter into Thy heavenly dominion. Through the restlessness He evinced in Thy path, the feet of all them that are devoted to Thee were steeled and confirmed to manifest Thy Cause amidst Thy creatures, and to demonstrate Thy sovereignty throughout Thy realm.How great, O my God, is this Thy most excellent handiwork, and how consummate Thy creation, which hath caused every understanding heart and mind to marvel! And when the set time was fulfilled, and what had been preordained came to pass, Thou didst unloose His tongue to praise Thee, and to lay bare Thy mysteries before all Thy creation, O Thou Who art the Possessor of all names, and the Fashioner of earth and heaven! Through Him all created things were made to glorify Thee, and to celebrate Thy praise, and every soul was directed towards the kingdomof Thy revelation and Thy sovereignty.At one time, Thou didst raise Him up, O my God, and didst attire Him with the ornament of the nameof Him Who conversed with Thee (Moses), anddidst through Him uncover all that Thy will haddecreed and Thine irrevocable purpose ordained. Atanother time, Thou didst adorn Him with the nameof Him Who was Thy Spirit (Jesus), and didst sendHim down out of the heaven of Thy will, for theedification of Thy people, infusing thereby the spiritof life into the hearts of the sincere among Thy servantsand the faithful among Thy creatures. Again,Thou didst reveal Him, decked forth by the name ofHim Who was Thy Friend (Muhammad), and causedHim to shine brightly above the horizon of Hijaz,as a token of Thy power and an evidence of Thymight. Through Him Thou didst send unto Thy servantswhat enabled them to scale the heights of Thyunity, and to yearn over the wonders of Thy manifoldknowledge and wisdom.I testify, O Thou Who art the Lord of the wholecreation, and the Desire of whosoever hath soughtThee, that, amidst Thy creatures, They resemble thesun which no matter how often it riseth and settethis still the one and the same sun. Whoso maketh anydistinction between any of Them hath truly failedto attain the ultimate purpose, and to reach the highestgoal, and hath been deprived of the mysteries ofunity and of the lights of sanctity and oneness. Itestify, moreover, that Thou hast decreed that noneon the face of the earth should equal Them, and noneof Thy creatures be able to be compared with any ofThem, in order that Thine own singleness and peerlessnessmight be recognized and established.Glorified, immeasurably glorified be Thy name,O my God! How can I ever befittingly mention Theeor sufficiently praise Thee, that Thou hast manifested Him by the power of Thy might, and caused Himto shine above the horizon of Thy will, and madeHim the Day-Spring of Thy signs, and the Dawning-Placeof the revelation of Thy names and Thine attributes?How bewilderingly mysterious, moreover, Omy God, is His nature and all that Thou hast infusedinto Him, through Thy strength and by the powerof Thy might! At one time He appeareth as the waterwhich is Life indeed, sent down out of the heaven ofThy grace, and poured forth from the clouds of Thymercy, that Thy creatures may be endued with newlife, and live as long as Thine own Kingdom endureth.Every drop of that water would suffice to quicken thedead, and to set their faces in the direction of Thyfavors and Thy gifts, and to rid them of all attachmentto aught else except Thee. At another time Herevealeth Himself as the Fire which Thou didst kindlein the tree of Thy unity, whose heat melted the heartsof Thine ardent lovers when He Who is the Day-Starof the world shone forth above the horizon of Iraq.I testify, O my God, that through Him the veils ofhuman fancy were burnt up, and the hearts of menwere set towards the scene of Thy most resplendentglory.I implore Thee, O Thou Who art the SupremeOrdainer, not to suffer me to be deprived of thebreezes which are wafted in Thy days, the dayswhereon the sweet smell of the raiment of Thy mercyhath been shed abroad. Neither do Thou keep meback from Thy most great Ocean, every drop ofwhich crieth out and saith: "Great is the blessednessthat awaiteth him who hath been awakened from hissleep by the breath of God which, from the sourceof His mercy, hath blown over all such of His creaturesas have set themselves towards Him!"Thou seest, O my Lord, how Thy servants are heldcaptive by their own selves and desires. Redeem themfrom their bondage, O my God, by the power of Thysovereignty and might, that they may turn towardsThee when He Who is the Revealer of Thy namesand attributes is manifested unto men.Cast upon this poor and desolate creature, O myLord, the glance of Thy wealth, and flood his heartwith the beams of Thy knowledge, that he may apprehendthe verities of the unseen world, and discoverthe mysteries of Thy heavenly realm, and perceivethe signs and tokens of Thy kingdom, and beholdthe manifold revelations of this earthly life all setforth before the face of Him Who is the Revealer ofThine own Self. Direct, then, his eyes, O my God,towards the horizon of Thy loving-kindness, andmake steadfast his heart in its attachment to Thee,and unloose his tongue to praise Thee, and make himable to hold fast the cord of Thy love, and to clingto the hem of Thy bounteousness, and to proclaimThy name amidst Thy creatures, and to recount Thyvirtues throughout Thy realm, in such wise that noobstacle will deter him from turning to Thy name,the All-Bountiful, and no veil shut him out fromThee, in Whose hand is the dominion of utteranceand the kingdom of all names and attributes!Hold Thou the hand of this seeker who hath set hisface towards Thee, O my Lord, and draw him out ofthe depths of his vain imaginations, that the light ofcertainty may shine brightly above the horizon of hisheart in the days whereon the sun of the knowledge ofThy creatures hath been darkened through the shiningof the Day-Star of Thy glory; the days whereonthe moon of the world's wisdom hath been eclipsedthrough the appearance of Thy hidden knowledge,and the manifestation of Thy well-guarded secret,and the revelation of Thine enshrined mystery; thedays whereon the stars of men's doings have fallenthrough the rising of the orb of Thy unity and theshedding of the radiance of Thy transcendent oneness.I beg of Thee, O my God, by Thy most exaltedWord which Thou hast ordained as the Divine Elixirunto all who are in Thy realm, the Elixir throughwhose potency the crude metal of human life hathbeen transmuted into purest gold, O Thou in Whosehands are both the visible and invisible kingdoms, toordain that my choice be conformed to Thy choiceand my wish to Thy wish, that I may be entirelycontent with that which Thou didst desire, and bewholly satisfied with what Thou didst destine forme by Thy bounteousness and favor. Potent art Thouto do as Thou willest. Thou, in very truth, art theAll-Glorious, the All-Wise.Happy is the man who hath recognized Thee, anddiscovered the sweetness of Thy fragrance, and sethimself towards Thy kingdom, and tasted of thethings that have been perfected therein by Thy graceand favor. Great is the blessedness of him who hathacknowledged Thy most excellent majesty, and whomthe veils that have shut out the nations from Theehave not hindered from directing his eyes towardsThee, O Thou Who art the King of eternity and theQuickener of every moldering bone! Blessed, also, is hethat hath inhaled Thy sweet savors, and been carriedaway by Thine utterances in Thy days. Blessed, moreover,be the man that hath turned unto Thee, andwoe betide him that hath turned his back upon Thee.Praised be Thou, the Lord of the worlds!--Bahá'u'lláh

Return to TRUEBAHAI.com

Return

Lauded be Thy name, O Lord my God! I testify that Thou wast a hidden Treasure wrapped within Thine immemorial Being and an impenetrable Mystery enshrined in Thine own Essence. Wishing to reveal Thyself, Thou didst call into being the Greater and the Lesser Worlds, and didst choose Man above all Thy creatures, and didst make Him a sign of both of these worlds, O Thou Who art our Lord, the Most Compassionate!

n to Spiritual Teachings Page

Thou didst raise Him up to occupy Thy throne before all the people of Thy creation. Thou didst enable Him to unravel Thy mysteries, and to shine with the lights of Thine inspiration and Thy Revelation, and to manifest Thy names and Thine attributes. Through Him Thou didst adorn the preamble of the book of Thy creation, O Thou Who art the Ruler of the universe Thou hast fashioned!

I bear witness that in His person solidity and fluidity have been joined and combined. Through His immovable constancy in Thy Cause, and His unwavering adherence to whatsoever Thou, in the plentitude of the light of Thy glory, didst unveil to

His eyes, throughout the domains of Thy Revelation and creation, the souls of Thy servants were stirred up in their longing for Thy Kingdom, and the dwellers of Thy realms rushed forth to enter into Thy heavenly dominion. Through the restlessness He evinced in Thy path, the feet of all them that are devoted to Thee were steeled and confirmed to manifest Thy Cause amidst Thy creatures, and to demonstrate Thy sovereignty throughout Thy realm.

How great, O my God, is this Thy most excellent handiwork, and how consummate Thy creation, which hath caused every understanding heart and mind to marvel! And when the set time was fulfilled, and what had been preordained came to pass, Thou didst unloose His tongue to praise Thee, and to lay bare Thy mysteries before all Thy creation, O Thou Who art the Possessor of all names, and the Fashioner of earth and heaven! Through Him all created things were made to glorify Thee, and to celebrate Thy praise, and every soul was directed towards the kingdom of Thy revelation and Thy sovereignty.

At one time, Thou didst raise Him up, O my God, and didst attire Him with the ornament of the name of Him Who conversed with Thee (Moses), and didst through Him uncover all that Thy will had decreed and Thine irrevocable purpose ordained. At another time, Thou didst adorn Him with the name of Him Who was Thy Spirit (Jesus), and didst send Him down out of the heaven of Thy will, for the edification of Thy people, infusing thereby the spirit of life into the hearts of the sincere among Thy servants and the faithful among Thy creatures. Again, Thou didst reveal Him, decked forth by the name of Him Who was Thy Friend (Muhammad), and caused Him to shine brightly above the horizon of Hijaz, as a token of Thy power and an evidence of Thy might. Through Him Thou didst send unto Thy servants what enabled them to scale the heights of Thy unity, and to yearn over the wonders of Thy manifold knowledge and wisdom.

I testify, O Thou Who art the Lord of the whole creation, and the Desire of whosoever hath sought Thee, that, amidst Thy creatures, They resemble the sun which no matter how often it riseth and setteth is still the one and the same sun. Whoso maketh any distinction between any of Them hath truly failed to attain the ultimate purpose, and to reach the highest goal, and hath been deprived of the mysteries of unity and of the lights of sanctity and oneness. I testify, moreover, that Thou hast decreed that none on the face of the earth should equal Them, and none of Thy creatures be able to be compared with any of Them, in order that Thine own singleness and peerlessness might be recognized and established.

Glorified, immeasurably glorified be Thy name, O my God! How can I ever befittingly mention Thee or sufficiently praise Thee, that Thou hast manifested Him by the power of Thy might, and caused Him to shine above the horizon of Thy will, and made Him the Day-Spring of Thy signs, and the Dawning-Place of the revelation of Thy names and Thine attributes?

How bewilderingly mysterious, moreover, O my God, is His nature and all that Thou hast infused into Him, through Thy strength and by the power of Thy might! At one time He appeareth as the water which is Life indeed, sent down out of the heaven of Thy grace, and poured forth from the clouds of Thy mercy, that Thy creatures may be endued with new life, and live as long as Thine own Kingdom endureth. Every drop of that water would suffice to quicken the dead, and to set their faces in the direction of Thy favors and Thy gifts, and to rid them of all attachment to aught else except Thee. At another time He revealeth Himself as the Fire which Thou didst kindle in the tree of Thy unity, whose heat melted the hearts of Thine ardent lovers when He Who is the Day-Star of the world shone forth above the horizon of Iraq. I testify, O my God, that through Him the veils of human fancy were burnt up, and the hearts of men were set towards the scene of Thy most resplendent glory.

I implore Thee, O Thou Who art the Supreme Ordainer, not to suffer me to be deprived of the breezes which are wafted in Thy days, the days whereon the sweet smell of the raiment of Thy mercy hath been shed abroad. Neither do Thou keep me back from Thy most great Ocean, every drop of which crieth out and saith: "Great is the blessedness that awaiteth him who hath been awakened from his sleep by the breath of God which, from the source of His mercy, hath blown over all such of His creatures as have set themselves towards Him!"

Thou seest, O my Lord, how Thy servants are held captive by their own selves and desires. Redeem them from their bondage, O my God, by the power of Thy sovereignty and might, that they may turn towards Thee when He Who is the Revealer of Thy names and attributes is manifested unto men.

Cast upon this poor and desolate creature, O my Lord, the glance of Thy wealth, and flood his heart with the beams of Thy knowledge, that he may apprehend the verities of the unseen world, and discover the mysteries of Thy heavenly realm, and perceive the signs and tokens of Thy kingdom, and behold the manifold revelations of this earthly life all set forth before the face of Him Who is the Revealer of Thine own Self. Direct, then, his eyes, O my God, towards the horizon of Thy loving-kindness, and make steadfast his heart in its attachment to Thee, and unloose his tongue to praise Thee, and make him able to hold fast the cord of Thy love, and to cling to the hem of Thy bounteousness, and to proclaim Thy name amidst Thy creatures, and to recount Thy virtues throughout Thy realm, in such wise that no obstacle will deter him from turning to Thy name, the All-Bountiful, and no veil shut him out from Thee, in Whose hand is the dominion of utterance and the kingdom of all names and attributes!

Hold Thou the hand of this seeker who hath set his face towards Thee, O my Lord, and draw him out of the depths of his vain imaginations, that the light of certainty may shine brightly above the horizon of his heart in the days whereon the sun of the knowledge of Thy creatures hath been darkened through the shining of the Day-Star of Thy glory; the days whereon the moon of the world's wisdom hath been eclipsed through the appearance of Thy hidden knowledge, and the manifestation of Thy well-guarded secret, and the revelation of Thine enshrined mystery; the days whereon the stars of men's doings have fallen through the rising of the orb of Thy unity and the shedding of the radiance of Thy transcendent oneness.

I beg of Thee, O my God, by Thy most exalted Word which Thou hast ordained as the Divine Elixir unto all who are in Thy realm, the Elixir through whose potency the crude metal of human life hath been transmuted into purest gold, O Thou in Whose hands are both the visible and invisible kingdoms, to ordain that my choice be conformed to Thy choice and my wish to Thy wish, that I may be entirely content with that which Thou didst desire, and be wholly satisfied with what Thou didst destine for me by Thy bounteousness and favor. Potent art Thou to do as Thou willest. Thou, in very truth, art the All-Glorious, the All-Wise.

Happy is the man who hath recognized Thee, and discovered the sweetness of Thy fragrance, and set himself towards Thy kingdom, and tasted of the things that have been perfected therein by Thy grace and favor. Great is the blessedness of him who hath acknowledged Thy most excellent majesty, and whom the veils that have shut out the nations from Thee have not hindered from directing his eyes towards Thee, O Thou Who art the King of eternity and the Quickener of every moldering bone! Blessed, also, is he that hath inhaled Thy sweet savors, and been carried away by Thine utterances in Thy days. Blessed, moreover, be the man that hath turned unto Thee, and woe betide him that hath turned his back upon Thee.

Praised be Thou, the Lord of the worlds!

--Bahá'u'lláh

privacy

TRUEBAHAI.comPrayer, Meditations, and Mystical Works of Bahá'u'lláh*noteSelectedPrayers, Meditations, and Mystical Works from Bahá'u'lláhPRAYERS AND TABLETS:Blessed is the SpotLauded be Thy NamePrayer for Americaby `Abdu´l-BaháPrayer for the GuardianPrayers for the DeadPrayers for All of God's ChildrenTablet of Purity by `Abdu'l-BaháMYSTICAL WORKSHidden Words of Bahá'u'lláhTablet of the Holy Mariner by Bahá'u'lláhMessage about the Holy Marinerby Joel B. Marangella, Third GuardianArticle about Bahá'u'lláh's The Seven Valleys and the Four Valleysby "Sharaf"ARTICLESGrace Will and Faith: Insights and Mediations on Scriptures and Writingsan e-book by I'an RoebuckThe Dynamics of Prayerby Ruth Moffett

Return to
TRUEBAHAI.com

Return to
Spiritual Teachings Page

Prayer, Meditations, and Mystical Works of Bahá'u'lláh

*note

Selected Prayers, Meditations, and Mystical Works from Bahá'u'lláh

PRAYERS AND TABLETS:

Blessed is the Spot

Lauded be Thy Name

Prayer for America
by `Abdu´l-Bahá

Prayer for the Guardian

Prayers for the Dead

*Please note: The Bahá'í House of Worship in Wilmette, Illinois, shown above, is presently in the hands of the sans-Guardian organization (which we believe has been corrupted and fails to follow the true teachings of Bahá'u'lláh). Please do not confuse the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith with the sans Guardian Bahá'í organization.

[Prayers for All of God's Children]

[Tablet of Purity by `Abdu'l-Bahá]

MYSTICAL WORKS

[Hidden Words of Bahá'u'lláh]

[Tablet of the Holy Mariner by Bahá'u'lláh]

[Message about the Holy Mariner] by Joel B. Marangella, Third Guardian

[Article about Bahá'u'lláh's The Seven Valleys and the Four Valleys] by "Sharaf"

ARTICLES

[Grace Will and Faith: Insights and Mediations on Scriptures and]

Writings

an e-book by I'an Roebuck

The Dynamics of Prayer by Ruth Moffett

privacy

http://truebahai.com:80/third.html

truebahai.com

Joel Bray Marangella, appointed by Mason Remey as the third Guardian and as the President of the embryonic Universal House of Justice (known as the "Second International Bahá'í Council"), his accession to the office of the Guardianship occurred automatically upon the activation by Mason Remey of the Second International Bahá'í Council with Joel B. Marangella as its head.

Joel Bray Marangella, 1956

The third Guardian is currently the Center of the Cause. His ministry has been and is devoted to overcoming and eliminating completely the Most Great Violation of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh.

To read selections of Joel B. Marangella's writings, go to his web site or please click the links below.

Announcement from the Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith
Extensive documentation has been posted for several years on my internet Home Page providing irrefutable evidence that Shoghi Effendi, in complete fidelity to the sacred and immutable provisions of the Will and Testament of Abdu l-Bahá, appointed his successor and thereby assured the continuity of the Guardianship of the Cause of God... Read More

A summary of the Bahá'í Faith, its Aims, Teachings and History
The Bahá'í Faith teaches that world unity is the inevitable stage towards which society has been moving in an age-long process of development from infancy to maturity; and that to guide mankind in this evolutionary process the Creator has revealed His Word and His Laws from age to age through a chosen lntermediary, a Prophet or a Manifestation of God. For the Bahá'ís these divine Intermediaries have been mouthpieces voicing... Read More

The Proclamation of the Third Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith
To the faithful supporters of the Covenant of Bahá u lláh throughout the world. Dearly beloved brothers and sisters in El Abhá, Well nigh a decade has passed since a spiritual catastrophe of undreamt of magnitude revolving around the Guardianship of the Faith struck at the very roots of the Cause of Bahá u lláh and swept away all but a handful of stalwart defenders and champions of His Covenant.... Read More

Bahá u lláh Promises Continuous Access to a Living Interpeter of His Word
Similarly to Muhammad Who, in referring to the Imams who were destined to succeed Him and be the sole interpreters of His word, stated in the Qu ran: "Ask ye therefore, of them that have the custody of the Scriptures, if ye know it not." Bahá u lláh has likewise cautioned "no man to interpret the holy words according to his own imperfect understanding..." or "contrary to his inclination and desires..." Read More

The Tree of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh

The world's extant religions have without exception fallen prey to sectarianism and schism that have preoccupied and divided their followers to such an extent that the true spirit of the Teachings of the Authors of their respective Revelations has been so obscured that the spiritual effect which these Teachings have had on the hearts of men has been progressively weakened. Sectarianism and schism have stemmed from differences over interpretation of the Holy Scriptures and the introduction into the original Teachings of man-made dogmas and rituals. Had the Founders of the past great religions made specific provisions concerning the matter of succession; that is, had they formally designated a successor or established a system whereby a successor or series of successors would have been endowed with unequivocal authority to interpret Holy Writ, there would have been no basis for the divisive interpretations that have sundered these Faiths... Read More

Commentary on the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá

The Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá has been described by the first Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith, Shoghi Effendi, as that "immortal Document", the "Charter of the New World Order" of Bahá'u'lláh and a Document which "in some of its features" is "supplementary to no less weighty a Book than the Kitáb-i-Aqdas" (the Most Holy Book). Shoghi Effendi has also extolled this Instrument as "His greatest legacy to posterity, the brightest emanation of His mind and the mightiest instrument forged to insure the continuity of the three ages... Read More

A Eulogy to Charles Mason Remey

Charles Mason Remey, Abdu l-Bahá s designated spiritual son, Hand of the Cause of God, President of the first International Bahá i Council the embryonic Universal House of Justice divinely appointed second Guardian of the Bahá i Faith, the Masters chosen architect of the Bahá i House of worship to be constructed on Mount Carmel in the Holy Land the most distinguished architect of the Bahá í world, faithful servant and indefatigable defender of the Covenant of Bahá u lláh during a period of 75 years of service has been gathered into the Abha Kingdom there, at long last, to be reunited with the beloved Master whom he loved and so faithfully served in his lifetime and enjoy eternal communion with the inmates of the most exalted Paradise that heavenly company of God s apostles, martyrs, saints, heroes and champions who laid down their lives before him on the battlefield of service to God s Cause.... Read More

A brief history of the violation of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh at the World Center of the Bahá'í Faith following the passing of the first Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith

This brief historical account is written in the hope that the inquiring student of the Bahá'í Faith may gain an insight into the true meaning of loyalty to the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh as he reviews those events which took place shortly preceding and immediately following the passing of Shoghi Effendi, the first Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith, and which so tragically led to the subversion of the sacred provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá and a shameful betrayal of the acts and works of Shoghi Effendi by a majority of the followers of Bahá'u'lláh... Read More

Why did he call it "The Central Body"?

A TERM USED ONLY ONCE FOR EMPHASIS, YET ITS PURPOSE WOULD BE SHAMELESSLY

IGNORED In July, 1947, Shoghi Effendi prepared a statement for submission to the "United Nations Special Palestine Committee" that was incorporated in a pamphlet under the title of "The Faith of Bahá u lláh" and published by the Bahá í Publishing Committee of the United States.... Read More

If you say "yes," I accept as valid the following acts and pronouncements of Shoghi Effendi
THEN YOU ARE LEFT WITH ONE INESCAPABLE CONCLUSION. If you are a Bahá í faithful to the Covenant of Bahá u lláh and its immortal "Child" the Will and Testament of Abdu l-Bahá and therefore faithful to the institution of the Guardianship, you will certainly say "yes" that you accept, without qualification, everything that Shoghi Effendi has written about the Covenant... Read More

Unanswered Letters to Rúhíyyih Khánum
My dear Rúhíyyih Khánum, I dare hope that you will read this letter which should have been written many years ago. I could not bring myself to write it then but recently I have had the strong feeling that it is one that Shoghi Effendi would want me to write... Read More

The Most Significant Milestone...The Greatest Event...
To what significant milestone and to what greatest event in the evolution of the Administrative Order was Shoghi Effendi referring and eulogizing in the unprecedented superlative terms found in the extracts from his message quoted above? He was referring to Read More

It Has Come to This!
They dare not disclose to the enquirer the very existence of an integral part of the explicit Holy Text the divinely-conceived, sacred and immortal Will and Testament of Abdu l-Bahá. Recently a magazine has been placed in my hands titled: THE BAHÁ ÍS published by the Office of Public Information of the Bahá í International Community of the heterodox Bahá í organization... Read More

Do They Really Care?
DO THESE BAHÁ ÍS CARE THAT THEY, IN EFFECT, CONSIDER THAT THE MAJOR PROVISIONS OF THE WILL AND TESTAMENT OF ABDU L-BAHÁ ARE NOW NULL AND VOID, DESPITE THE FACT THAT SHOGHI EFFENDI HAD DECLARED THIS SACRED DOCUMENT TO BE A PART OF THE IMMORTAL AND IMMUTABLE EXPLICIT HOLY TEXT? Read More

WHAT IS THE MEANING OF LOYALTY TO THE COVENANT OF BAHÁ'U'LLÁH AND WHO ARE THE PRESENT DAY COVENANT-BREAKERS?
The enquirer who has come in contact with the Bahá'í Faith in the past twenty years has, perhaps, discovered that this Faith, since the passing of Shoghi Effendi, first Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith, has become divided into two principal camps: the pro-Guardian (or Orthodox) Bahá'ís who believe in the uninterrupted continuity of the guardianship throughout the Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh and the sans-Guardian (or Heterodox) Bahá'ís who believe that "God changed His plan" and the guardianship of the Bahá'í Faith came to an end with the death of the first Guardian, Shoghi Effendi.... Read More

"LO, THE ALL POSSESSING HAS COME. EARTH AND HEAVEN, GLORY AND DOMINION ARE GOD S . . ." BAHÁ U LLÁH

Reflect upon the above words of Bahá u lláh as revealed in His Obligatory prayers, and then ask yourself whether the Kingdom of God on earth is destined to have a flawed, imperfect and man-made headless administrative organization... Read More

An Illegitmate Nondescript Administrative Body Pretending to be the Universal House of Justice of the Bahá í Faith

And nothing more than a headless caricature of the divinely-conceived and immortal institution bequeathed to us by the Center of the Covenant. Certainly this body is not the Universal House of Justice delineated in the divinely-conceived, sacred and immutable provisions of the Will and Testament of Abdu l-Bahá... Read More

The Satanic Collusion to Terminate the Institution of the Guardianship

BETWEEN Ten Persian Hands of the Cause who, during the first conclave of 26 of the 27 Hands of the Cause held in Akká, some two weeks following the passing of Shoghi Effendi... Read More

The Diabolical Subversion of the Bahá í Administrative Order perpetrated following the passing of Shoghi Effendi. During the concluding years of Shoghi Effendi s thirty-six year ministry he appointed twenty-seven living Hands of the Cause of God, the first contingent of twelve being appointed on 24 December 1951 and the last contingent of eight being appointed in his last message to the Bahá í world in October 1957, dispatched one month prior to his passing on the 4th of November 1957 during a visit to London, England.... Read More

ABDU L-BAHÁ WRITES OFF THE AGHSÁN IN PART THREE OF HIS WILL AND TESTAMENT

Why would Abdu l-Bahá have omitted reference to the Aghsán in Part Three of His Will and Testament and only mentioned the Afnán and the Hands when enjoining fidelity to the guardian. Obviously it was because by the time He had come to write Part Three, they had already shown their disloyalty to Him and were therefore out of the Faith.... Read More

THE AGHSÁN MYTH EXPOSED

The undeniable falsehood propagated by twenty-six Hands of the Cause that only an Aghsán could inherit the Guardianship.... Read More

THE EMBRYO. A Perfect and Complete Organism at Conception

During the last seven years of the ministry of Shoghi Effendi (1950-1957) as he established "at long last" the international institutions of the Bahá í Administrative Order at the World Center of the Faith on Mount Carmel, he frequently described these institutions, as well as the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh, as being in their embryonic state of development. Following the passing of Shoghi Effendi... Read More

'ABDU'L-BAHÁ'S UNIQUE PROMISE TO A BELIEVER: "ERE LONG, THY LORD SHALL MAKE THEE A SIGN OF GUIDANCE AMONG MANKIND"

The above quotation has been extracted from a Tablet addressed to Mason Remey and may be found in the publication "Star of the West" (Vol. V, No. 19, March 2, 1915). In addition to this brilliant and unique promise made to him by Abdu l-Bahá, he was frequently eulogized by Him in other Tablets that are recorded in various issues of the "Star of the West" where, for example... Read More

SHOGHI EFFENDI INFORMS UNITED NATIONS OF HIS ROLE AS THE "APPOINTED HEAD" OF FUTURE BAHÁ'Í "WORLD COUNCIL" PRIOR TO ITS FORMATION IN 1951

In July 1947, some three and one half years prior to his appointment of the International Bahá'í Council on 9 January 1951, Shoghi Effendi prepared a statement for submission to the United Nations Special Palestine Committee that has been published in pamphlet form under the title of: "The Faith of Bahá'u'lláh." with the subtitle, "A World Religion." On page three of this document one may note the following significant paragraph which incontestably proves, in Shoghi Effendi's own words, that... Read More

SHOGHI EFFENDI FORETELLS AN ACTIVE ROLE FOR THE INTERNATIONAL BAHÁ Í COUNCIL

IN A MESSAGE THAT INDIRECTLY AND UNDENIABLY PORTENDED HIS IMMINENT PASSING AND CONFIRMED THE IDENTITY OF HIS APPOINTED SUCCESSOR. Read More

THE THREE SECRETARIES OF THE INTERNATIONAL BAHÁ Í COUNCIL WHO NEVER WROTE A SINGLE LETTER

As more than half a century has now elapsed since the first beloved Guardian of the Faith, Shoghi Effendi, issued the only Proclamation of his ministry, in which he extolled in unprecedented and glowing terms the decision he had taken "at long last" to constitute the International Bahá í Council, as depicted above, it is certain that those believers who have embraced the Faith in recent years would have no knowledge of this auspicious event, much less the momentous significance and implications involved in its formation, which even the Bahá ís at the time, failed to discern with tragic results for the future of the Faith.... Read More

9 January 1951 - The date on which Shoghi Effendi issued the only Proclamation of his ministry

The date on which he proclaimed an "historic decision marking the most significant milestone in the evolution of the Administrative Order of the Faith of Bahá u lláh in the course of the last thirty years." The date on which he established "this first embryonic International Institution" which "history will acclaim as the greatest event shedding lustre upon the second epoch of the Formative Age of the Bahá í Dispensation." The date marking an undertaking... Read More

A LETTER AND FIVE MESSAGES OF SHOGHI EFFENDI PROVIDING IRREFUTABLE PROOF OF THE CONTINUANCE OF THE GUARDIANSHIP

This letter to the United Nations and these five messages were inexcusably overlooked or ignored by the Hands of the Cause in their reprehensible hasty abandonment of the Guardianship on the very first day of their conclave in Akká following the passing of Shoghi Effendi with the result that the momentous significance and implications of this letter and these five messages were never perceived by them at the time and have remained unperceived by the Bahá í World to this day with tragic consequences for the Faith.... Read More

The Ultimate Delusion

That a man-made, obviously fallible, sans-Guardian and hence an illegitimate and illicitly formed Universal House of Justice, foisted upon the Bahá í World by the former Hands of the Cause, following the passing of Shoghi Effendi in 1957, who had faithlessly concluded that the Guardianship had come to an end and who then, in place of the Twin Institutions delineated by Abdu l-Bahá in His divinely-conceived, sacred and immortal Will and Testament, had substituted this single, headless body of their own making, and, notwithstanding its obvious incompleteness, its headless deformity and its shameless assumption of functions clearly contrary to the provisions of Abdu l-Bahá s sacred Mandate, would still delude themselves into believing that they would be able to successfully establish the World Order of Bahá u lláh the long-prayed for, long-awaited and promised Kingdom of God "on earth as it is in Heaven...." Read More

THE ILLEGITIMATE REIGN OF THE "CUSTODIANS" AT THE BAHÁ Í WORLD CENTER THAT WAS NEVER MEANT TO BE

"How [was this body of the Hands] to assume the reins of authority with no document to support us, other than general theological statements about the Hands?" The above question posed by Rúhíyyih Khánum, widow of Shoghi Effendi, first Guardian of the Bahá í Faith, is found in the introduction of a book titled: "The Ministry of the Custodians" and, while she is referring to the entire body of the Hands, the question is equally applicable to the body of nine Hands of the Cause that the Hands selected from their own number, to direct the affairs of the Faith from Haifa following the passing of Shoghi Effendi in November 1957... Read More

A CRITIQUE REVEALING ERRONEOUS STATEMENTS AND INTERPRETATIONS PERTAINING TO THE CONTINUITY OF THE GUARDIANSHIP IN ADIB TAHERZADEH'S BOOK: "THE COVENANT OF BAHÁ U LLÁH"

The author of this book has devoted thirty-six chapters, 441 pages and three appendices to the subject of the Covenant of Bahá u lláh. While the first thirty-three chapters and 376 pages provide an exhaustive and well-written exposition, with a few exceptions, covering for the most part, the early history of the Faith and the various fruitless attempts to subvert the Covenant of Bahá u lláh, it will be clearly shown in this critique... Read More

TO: THOSE DIRECTING AFFAIRS AT THE BAHÁ'Í WORLD CENTER. WHAT POSSIBLE ANSWER CAN YOU GIVE TO FUTURE BAHÁ'Í GENERATIONS?

How can any faithful and devoted believer professing fidelity to the mighty, indestructible and resistless Covenant of Bahá u lláh maintain the belief that the most important provisions of the Will and Testament of Abdu l-Bahá have now become null and void? Read More

TABLET OF THE HOLY MARINER DOOMS THE BOGUS UHJ TO OBLIVION

To the members of the sans-Guardian "Universal House of Justice." You would do well to heed the warning revealed in Bahá u lláh s highly prophetic "Tablet of the Holy Mariner," as enjoined by Abdu l-Bahá in the following foreword penned by Him, as this highly significant Tablet not only unmistakably foretells the tragic events centered in "the land of exile" that were destined to take place, and have since transpired following the passing of Shoghi Effendi, but foretells the terrible retributive fate that is now soon to befall those "idle claimants" to a station that is above theirs to claim and from whom "the breeze of Faithfulness" has not been found.... Read More

"A Severe Trial Pursueth You"

The above quotation differs in its language from other warnings of Bahá u lláh in which He has prophesied a dire catastrophe that is destined to befall the world. Is there any doubt that He would have foreseen the crisis that was destined to afflict the Bahá í World with the sudden and unexpected passing of the first Guardian... Read More

Third Guardian's Message on September 11th Terrorist Attacks

The faithful believers have certainly been as shocked, stunned, saddened and dismayed by the recent unforeseen and heinous terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon as their fellow-Americans and grieve along side them at the great loss of life incurred by so many innocent victims. Their hearts go out especially to those who have lost their loved ones in this terrible and unprecedented tragedy and they remember them in their prayers. We, as Bahá'í's, have the assurance and the consolation from our Writings that... Read More

RETURN TO MAIN LINKS MENU

Copyright © 2001-2006,truebahai.com
All Rights Reserved

This web site is offered in loving service to the Third Guardian of the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh
Joel B. Maranagella

Webmaster: contact@truebahai.com

Tracked for free by statcounter.com

True Bahá'í

A Message from the Guardian to the Bahá'ís of the World: A Warning Call!

A warning call to obey "The Summons of the Lord of Hosts"

by Nosrat'u'llah Bahremand

It was brought to my attention that the illegitimate organization which is headquartered in Haifa and which undeservedly calls itself "the Universal House of Justice", has recently organized a Web-page and claims that it is the "Official website of the Bahá'í Faith"!

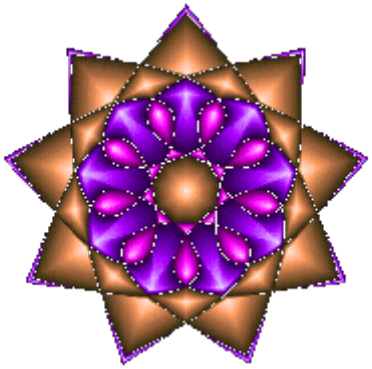
They should have honestly clarified that they meant a version of the Baha'i Faith modified and manipulated by Ruhiyyih Khanum and those former Hands of the Cause who followed her; a faith which repudiates the "Center of the Cause" and does not adhere to the sacred provisions of the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha, a faith that is based on imitation, herd instinct and mind control, and by scare and hate-mongering rhetoric; a version of faith which is compatible with the ill wishes of "The Center of Sedition, the Prime Mover of mischief, Mirza Muhammad Alí,", by "interpolating and falsifying the words and verses of the Sacred Text," and consequently they "inflicted a grievous loss upon the true Faith of God," by ignoring writings of the first Guardian of the Cause of God, especially his Proclamation of 9 January 1951 the only Proclamation during his own life; and opposing the descendant Guardians of the Cause of God.

The bogus organization pretends to be real; to be the same Universal House of Justice revealed in the Kitáb-i-Aqdas and the Will and Testament of Abdu'l Baha, and as mentioned throughout the writings of Shoghi Effendi. They are trying to say that their organization has originated from the Most Holy Book, the Kitáb-i-Aqdas, when in reality this organization has been rooted in the violation of the Covenant by Ruhiyyih Khanum and the former Hands of the Cause who followed her.

They have written:

"In 1951, Shoghi Effendi appointed a number of individuals to an International Bahá'í Council, a forerunner to the Universal House of Justice. In 1961, this appointed Council was reformed as a body elected by all the National and Regional Assemblies then established in the world.

"After Shoghi Effendi's sudden passing in 1957, his work was faithfully carried on by the group of distinguished Bahá'ís he had appointed as Hands of the Cause of God. These individuals arranged for the first election of the Universal House of Justice."



The International Baha'i Council, so contemptuously mentioned in their writing, was truly an august body, the formation of which was announced by Shoghi Effendi, the first Guardian of the Cause of God, in his proclamation of January 9, 1951, the only proclamation of his lifetime to the Baha'i World. Rebellious Hands of the Cause did not have any authority to "reform" the IBC, which by that term they meant the termination of the Embryo IBC.

Go to full article

Posted at 01:36 PM | Permalink | Comments (0)

Reblog (0)

The Twelve Principles of the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith

as exp

True Bahá'í

True Bahai unity: disputes are essential for arriving at truth

What first attracted me to the Bahai religion were its teachings on the rule of law as a means of peace and justice between nations, the independent investigation of reality as the basis of unity between individuals, and the idea of consultation.

Unity of nations cannot be achieved without the rule of law and justice between the peoples of the world. Without justice and the rule of law, war is inevitable. "An arbitral court of justice shall be established by which international disputes are to be settled. Through this means all possibility of discord and war between the nations will be obviated." Abdu'l-Baha, The Promulgation of Universal Peace, p. 317. This fundamental teaching is so obvious today. The time is so ripe for justice to reign in the affairs of the world. However, nations are just assemblies of persons, so if unity and justice is to be achieved, we must look to the teachings of how individuals are to become united.

Baha'u'llah taught that unity of individual persons requires that each of us think for ourselves, investigate reality and truth for ourselves, and that we do not follow traditions or the opinions of clergy members. Too many Baha'is today, under the yoke of their bogus UHJ (presently residing in Haifa), are unable or unwilling to think for themselves. Every obscure question of how they should think or behave is presented to their so-called Universal House of Justice. The dictatorial pronouncements of this body are eagerly anticipated and studied. The unity that this bogus UHJ enforces is one of single-minded thinking. According to its formula, the community remains united by agreement with its dictates. Don't think your own thoughts. Think our thoughts and thus the robotic unity of community will be maintained. It is disagreement that is the source of disunity, according to the bogus UHJ. Therefore they espouse the belief that no matter how wrong they might be, every community member must accept their dictates as being the divine truth, or else that member must be expelled for the sake of unity.

"[D]isputes are forbidden in the community" says the UHJ's Secretary General, Albert Lincoln (quoted from the documentary film "Bahais in My Backyard), disregarding Baha'u'llah's unique and distinctive method for achieving unity. The unity envisaged by Baha'u'llah was not one in which all of humanity was required to think the same thoughts and conform its behavior to the dictates of an elite leadership. To the contrary, Baha'u'llah's vision was for a commonwealth of free people, with no clergy to tell persons what to think or how to behave. Instead of unity of thinking, Baha'u'llah command His followers to resolve all problems and all disputes by using the principles of consultation.

The central idea of consultation is that each person expresses with absolute freedom his or her own opinion and arguments. Each person remains detached from the views being expressed so that no personal attacks are made nor is anyone injured by a dissenting viewpoint. Every effort is made to arrive at a consensus. "The shining spark of truth cometh forth only after the clash of differing opinions." Selections from the Writings of Abdu'l-Baha, p. 86. In this way, problems and disputes are resolved in a manner whereby every participant can get behind the ultimate decision, knowing that every viewpoint was carefully considered and that the truth has emerged.

What a liberating philosophy brought by Baha'u'llah. It seems that while dispute and contention is built into the human mind, it is precisely that same clash of opinions, when presented using the proper procedures of consultation, that transforms the long-standing practice of humanity to disagree as a means of arriving at the truth. How else will humanity achieve peace and justice than to transform its very contentiousness into the means for solving all of the world's problems?

Posted at 05:08 PM in World Unity | Permalink | Comments (0) | TrackBack (0)

True Bahá'í

Don't be an imitator: independent investigation of truth

One of the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh is the independent investigation of truth, meaning that we must not be imitators or blind followers. Instead of relying upon the opinion of any other person, we are enjoined to investigate independently and arrive at our own conclusion. A true Bahá'í does not accept any teaching merely because it is a tradition but rather he or she always must question dogma and doctrines until truth is ascertained.

The idea here is that truth must be based upon reality rather than opinion: "As reality is one and cannot admit of multiplicity, therefore different opinions must ultimately become fused into one" (Selections from the Writings of `Abdu'l-Bahá, p. 298). It was ignorance based upon blind imitation that has caused wars, hatred and animosity to prevail over humanity. The road to peace involves all persons approaching truth for themselves.

This means that no leaders, whether they be administrative institutions of the Faith, respected members of the learned, or the head of the Faith himself, have the power to tell us how to believe or how to behave. We are God's creation, with God-given minds and souls, and nobody has the authority over our conscience. In the Bahá'í religion, there is not to be a professional clergy. There is no need for a clergy because all of humanity is to be educated and all of humanity is responsible for ascertaining the truth independently.

In every religion corruption sets in, when the leadership seeks to control the membership with dogmas and doctrines designed to keep free thinking in check and to cause limits of discussion in certain areas. This is how clergy maintain power and control. The corrupt practices of the clergy in past religions must be resisted in the Bahá'í religion. "It seems both strange and pitiful that the Church and clergy should always, in every age, be the most bitter opponents of the very Truth they are continually admonishing their followers to be prepared to receive! They have become so violently attached to the form that the substance itself eludes them!" (Shoghi Effendi, letter of 7 February 1945 to an individual believer).

Investigation of truth and reality is fundamentally a spiritual and mystical endeavor. Although Bahá'ís far too often have immersed themselves in the details of administering their communities, the central focus of the Bahá'í religion is prayer and meditation. "For the core of religious faith is that mystical feeling which unites man with God. This state of spiritual communion can be brought about and maintained by means of meditation and prayer. And this is the reason why Bahá'u'lláh has so much stressed the importance of worship. It is not sufficient for a believer merely to accept and observe the teachings. He should, in addition, cultivate the sense of spirituality which he can acquire chiefly be means of prayer." (Letter written on behalf of Shoghi Effendi to an individual believer, 8 December 1935). In the Bahá'í religion, prayer and meditation are between the individual and God. Worship is not a public practice or the fruit of any administration.

Thus in matters of the apprehension and experience of truth, faith, and worship, the individual Bahá'í is not subject to the dictates of any other person or entity. This is a matter strictly between

God and the individual believer. This is such a radical approach to religion that it appears most Bahá'ís have failed to live up to the individual responsibility imposed upon them. Instead of taking this matter of faith and investigation of truth seriously, too many Bahá'ís are content to let their leaders dictate to them every aspect of their lives, belief, and behavior.

But it is personal conscience and not the dictates of Bahá'í leadership that is most important:

The "conscience of man is sacred and to be respected; and that liberty thereof produces widening of ideas, amendment of morals, improvement of conduct, disclosure of the secrets of creation, and manifestation of the hidden verities of the contingent world" (`Abdu'l-Bahá, A Traveller's Narrative, p. 91) and "when freedom of conscience, liberty of thought and right of speech prevail -- that is to say, when every man according to his own idealization may give expression to his beliefs -- development and growth are inevitable (`Abdu'l-Bahá, The Promulgation of Universal Peace, p. 197).

Until now there has been this dichotomy between religion and spirituality. Religious people worshiped and thought as a group, while spiritual persons worshiped and thought freely and individual. In this Faith, each individual is to be free to worship and think for himself, yet the administrative order keeps them united in one common Faith. `Abdu'l-Bahá said of Bahá'ís who achieve this, that "... ye have investigated the truth and have been freed from imitations and superstitions, that ye observe with your own eyes and not with those of others, hearken with your own ears and not with the ears of others, and discover mysteries with the help of your own consciences and not with those of others. For the imitator saith that such a man hath seen, such a man hath heard, and such a conscience hath discovered; in other words he dependeth upon the sight, the hearing and the conscience of others and hath no will of his own" (Selections from the Writings of `Abdu'l-Bahá, p. 29).

How important it is for all Bahá'ís to study and understand this principle of the independent investigation of truth. It is the starting point for deepening the in the verities of the Faith. To not be an imitator is a spiritual duty and obligation of the first order.

Posted at 12:10 PM in Introductory | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Don't be an imitator: independent investigation of truth

One of the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh is the independent investigation of truth, meaning that we must not be imitators or blind followers. Instead of relying upon the opinion of any other person, we are enjoined to investigate independently and arrive at our own conclusion. A true Bahá'í does not accept any teaching merely because it is a tradition but rather he or she always must question dogma and doctrines until truth is ascertained.

The idea here is that truth must be based upon reality rather than opinion: "As reality is one and cannot admit of multiplicity, therefore different opinions must ultimately become fused into one" (Selections from the Writings of `Abdu'l-Bahá, p. 298). It was ignorance based upon blind imitation that has caused wars, hatred and animosity to prevail over humanity. The road to peace involves all persons approaching truth for themselves.

This means that no leaders, whether they be administrative institutions of the Faith, respected members of the learned, or the head of the Faith himself, have the power to tell us how to believe or how to behave. We are God's creation, with God-given minds and souls, and nobody has the authority over our conscience. In the Bahá'í religion, there is not to be a professional clergy. There is no need for a clergy because all of humanity is to be educated and all of humanity is responsible for ascertaining the truth independently.

In every religion corruption sets in, when the leadership seeks to control the membership with dogmas and doctrines designed to keep free thinking in check and to cause limits of discussion in certain areas. This is how clergy maintain power and control. The corrupt practices of the clergy in past religions must be resisted in the Bahá'í religion. "It seems both strange and pitiful that the Church and clergy should always, in every age, be the most bitter opponents of the very Truth they are continually admonishing their followers to be prepared to receive! They have become so violently attached to the form that the substance itself eludes them!" (Shoghi Effendi, letter of 7 February 1945 to an individual believer).

Investigation of truth and reality is fundamentally a spiritual and mystical endeavor. Although Bahá'ís far too often have immersed themselves in the details of administering their communities, the central focus of the Bahá'í religion is prayer and meditation. "For the core of religious faith is that mystical feeling which unites man with God. This state of spiritual communion can be brought about and maintained by means of meditation and prayer. And this is the reason why Bahá'u'lláh has so much stressed the importance of worship. It is not sufficient for a believer merely to accept and observe the teachings. He should, in addition, cultivate the sense of spirituality which he can acquire chiefly be means of prayer." (Letter written on behalf of Shoghi Effendi to an individual believer, 8 December 1935). In the Bahá'í religion, prayer and meditation are between the individual and God. Worship is not a public practice or the fruit of any administration.

Thus in matters of the apprehension and experience of truth, faith, and worship, the individual Bahá'í is not subject to the dictates of any other person or entity. This is a matter strictly between

God and the individual believer. This is such a radical approach to religion that it appears most Bahá'ís have failed to live up to the individual responsibility imposed upon them. Instead of taking this matter of faith and investigation of truth seriously, too many Bahá'ís are content to let their leaders dictate to them every aspect of their lives, belief, and behavior.

But it is personal conscience and not the dictates of Bahá'í leadership that is most important:

The "conscience of man is sacred and to be respected; and that liberty thereof produces widening of ideas, amendment of morals, improvement of conduct, disclosure of the secrets of creation, and manifestation of the hidden verities of the contingent world" (`Abdu'l-Bahá, A Traveller's Narrative, p. 91) and "when freedom of conscience, liberty of thought and right of speech prevail -- that is to say, when every man according to his own idealization may give expression to his beliefs -- development and growth are inevitable (`Abdu'l-Bahá, The Promulgation of Universal Peace, p. 197).

Until now there has been this dichotomy between religion and spirituality. Religious people worshiped and thought as a group, while spiritual persons worshiped and thought freely and individual. In this Faith, each individual is to be free to worship and think for himself, yet the administrative order keeps them united in one common Faith. `Abdu'l-Bahá said of Bahá'ís who achieve this, that "... ye have investigated the truth and have been freed from imitations and superstitions, that ye observe with your own eyes and not with those of others, hearken with your own ears and not with the ears of others, and discover mysteries with the help of your own consciences and not with those of others. For the imitator saith that such a man hath seen, such a man hath heard, and such a conscience hath discovered; in other words he dependeth upon the sight, the hearing and the conscience of others and hath no will of his own" (Selections from the Writings of `Abdu'l-Bahá, p. 29).

How important it is for all Bahá'ís to study and understand this principle of the independent investigation of truth. It is the starting point for deepening the in the verities of the Faith. To not be an imitator is a spiritual duty and obligation of the first order.

Posted at 12:10 PM in Introductory | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Great Moments in Bahá'í Litigation, Part 2

As part of the court action by the NSA of Wilmette (of the sans-Guardian Bahá'ís) against the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith, the NSA's attorney traveled to Perth Australia to take the deposition of Joel B. Marangella, the OBF's Guardian.

The conclusion of the deposition seemed to sum up very nicely the NSA's case against the OBF:

[MR. DOLAN, attorney for the NSA] Q. Earlier you stepped through many of the articles on your web site with Mr Goldberg and you explained what the meaning of those articles were. Do you recall that?

[JOEL B. MARANGELLA] A. Yes. Yes.

Q. All those explanations, were those based on your personal interpretations of the documents and events captured there?

A. Not interpretation. It was mentioning facts, not interpretations. Off-hand I can't remember was it a question of interpretation; it was a question of facts. I mean, if someone does not accept certain conditions of the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha, it's a fact, not an interpretation. They have no longer any Hands of the Cause, that's a fact. They no longer have a head of the Universal House of Justice, that's a fact. , it's not an interpretation.

Q. And are you entitled to conclude that because you're the Guardian and so interpreter?

A. Well, I would tell them to read the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha and there is it. It says that the Guardians are sacred head "sacred head for life of the Universal of Justice". I can show that document or Shoghi Effendi has said it, "It's a sacred immutable document" and it should be endure as long as the Dispensation of Balla'u'llah endures. So what else is it?

Q. So that all has to do with your reading of the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha?

A. Well, it's evidence, it's evidence. Well, not my reading, it's Shoghi Effendi's statement, his clear statement, that this document is sacred - a sacred document, co-equal on status with the Kitab-i-Aqdas which is Baha'u'llah's most sacred book. He says its equal parts. See, so it's there, it's his statement, inviolable.

Q. But those are your articles, correct, on the web site .....

A. Well, they're my articles, yes.

Q. So - - -

A. I constantly quote Shoghi Effendi to support whatever I say.

Q. But you wrote all of those articles on your web site?

A. Yes, yes. Definitely.

Q. I have nothing further.

MR GOLDBERG: I have nothing else.

MR. DOLAN: Thank you very much.

MR MARANGELLA: Okay. Thank you. Do I say it's my pleasure?

MR DOLAN: Maybe a stretch - - -

DEPOSITION CONCLUDED

From Transcript of Deposition of Joel B. Marangella, April 30, 2007 (pp. 201:10 to 203:13). Exhibit A to the OBF's Surreply.

To see the Court documents go to: http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html

Posted at 10:56 AM in Court Action | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Great Moments in Bahá'í Litigation, Part 2

As part of the court action by the NSA of Wilmette (of the sans-Guardian Bahá'ís) against the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith, the NSA's attorney traveled to Perth Australia to take the deposition of Joel B. Marangella, the OBF's Guardian.

The conclusion of the deposition seemed to sum up very nicely the NSA's case against the OBF:

[MR. DOLAN, attorney for the NSA] Q. Earlier you stepped through many of the articles on your web site with Mr Goldberg and you explained what the meaning of those articles were. Do you recall that?

[JOEL B. MARANGELLA] A. Yes. Yes.

Q. All those explanations, were those based on your personal interpretations of the documents and events captured there?

A. Not interpretation. It was mentioning facts, not interpretations. Off-hand I can't remember was it a question of interpretation; it was a question of facts. I mean, if someone does not accept certain conditions of the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha, it's a fact, not an interpretation. They have no longer any Hands of the Cause, that's a fact. They no longer have a head of the Universal House of Justice, that's a fact. , it's not an interpretation.

Q. And are you entitled to conclude that because you're the Guardian and so interpreter?

A. Well, I would tell them to read the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha and there is it. It says that the Guardians are sacred head "sacred head for life of the Universal of Justice". I can show that document or Shoghi Effendi has said it, "It's a sacred immutable document" and it should be endure as long as the Dispensation of Balla'u'llah endures. So what else is it?

Q. So that all has to do with your reading of the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha?

A. Well, it's evidence, it's evidence. Well, not my reading, it's Shoghi Effendi's statement, his clear statement, that this document is sacred - a sacred document, co-equal on status with the Kitab-i-Aqdas which is Baha'u'llah's most sacred book. He says its equal parts. See, so it's there, it's his statement, inviolable.

Q. But those are your articles, correct, on the web site .....

A. Well, they're my articles, yes.

Q. So - - -

A. I constantly quote Shoghi Effendi to support whatever I say.

Q. But you wrote all of those articles on your web site?

A. Yes, yes. Definitely.

Q. I have nothing further.

MR GOLDBERG: I have nothing else.

MR. DOLAN: Thank you very much.

MR MARANGELLA: Okay. Thank you. Do I say it's my pleasure?

MR DOLAN: Maybe a stretch - - -

DEPOSITION CONCLUDED

From Transcript of Deposition of Joel B. Marangella, April 30, 2007 (pp. 201:10 to 203:13). Exhibit A to the OBF's Surreply.

To see the Court documents go to: http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html

Posted at 10:56 AM in Court Action | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Great Moments in Bahá'í Litigation

As part of the court action by the NSA of Wilmette (of the sans-Guardian Bahá'ís) against the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith, the NSA's attorney traveled to Perth Australia to take the deposition of Joel B. Marangella, the OBF's Guardian. In the following brilliant exchange, it appears that Mr. Dolan, the NSA's attorney, is slowly beginning to realize what this case is really about:

[MR. DOLAN] Q. Just below that at the end of that paragraph you refer to a battle against the forces of darkness. Do you know who you're referring to there as the forces of darkness?

[JOEL B. MARANGELLA] A. It would be those that abandoned the Guardianship, those that believe there's no more guardian. I said they were the forces of darkness.

Q. Would that include my client?

A. Yes, it would. Most definitely.

Transcript of Deposition of Joel B. Marangella, April 30, 2007 (p. 89:11-19). Exhibit A to the OBF's Surreply.

To see the Court documents go to: http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html

Posted at 09:16 AM in Court Action | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Great Moments in Bahá'í Litigation

As part of the court action by the NSA of Wilmette (of the sans-Guardian Bahá'ís) against the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith, the NSA's attorney traveled to Perth Australia to take the deposition of Joel B. Marangella, the OBF's Guardian. In the following brilliant exchange, it appears that Mr. Dolan, the NSA's attorney, is slowly beginning to realize what this case is really about:

[MR. DOLAN] Q. Just below that at the end of that paragraph you refer to a battle against the forces of darkness. Do you know who you're referring to there as the forces of darkness?

[JOEL B. MARANGELLA] A. It would be those that abandoned the Guardianship, those that believe there's no more guardian. I said they were the forces of darkness.

Q. Would that include my client?

A. Yes, it would. Most definitely.

Transcript of Deposition of Joel B. Marangella, April 30, 2007 (p. 89:11-19). Exhibit A to the OBF's Surreply.

To see the Court documents go to: http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html

Posted at 09:16 AM in Court Action | Permalink

True Bahá'í

True Bahai unity: disputes are essential for arriving at truth

What first attracted me to the Bahai religion were its teachings on the rule of law as a means of peace and justice between nations, the independent investigation of reality as the basis of unity between individuals, and the idea of consultation.

Unity of nations cannot be achieved without the rule of law and justice between the peoples of the world. Without justice and the rule of law, war is inevitable. "An arbitral court of justice shall be established by which international disputes are to be settled. Through this means all possibility of discord and war between the nations will be obviated." Abdu'l-Baha, The Promulgation of Universal Peace, p. 317. This fundamental teaching is so obvious today. The time is so ripe for justice to reign in the affairs of the world. However, nations are just assemblies of persons, so if unity and justice is to be achieved, we must look to the teachings of how individuals are to become united.

Baha'u'llah taught that unity of individual persons requires that each of us think for ourselves, investigate reality and truth for ourselves, and that we do not follow traditions or the opinions of clergy members. Too many Baha'is today, under the yoke of their bogus UHJ (presently residing in Haifa), are unable or unwilling to think for themselves. Every obscure question of how they should think or behave is presented to their so-called Universal House of Justice. The dictatorial pronouncements of this body are eagerly anticipated and studied. The unity that this bogus UHJ enforces is one of single-minded thinking. According to its formula, the community remains united by agreement with its dictates. Don't think your own thoughts. Think our thoughts and thus the robotic unity of community will be maintained. It is disagreement that is the source of disunity, according to the bogus UHJ. Therefore they espouse the belief that no matter how wrong they might be, every community member must accept their dictates as being the divine truth, or else that member must be expelled for the sake of unity.

"[D]isputes are forbidden in the community" says the UHJ's Secretary General, Albert Lincoln (quoted from the documentary film "Bahais in My Backyard), disregarding Baha'u'llah's unique and distinctive method for achieving unity. The unity envisaged by Baha'u'llah was not one in which all of humanity was required to think the same thoughts and conform its behavior to the dictates of an elite leadership. To the contrary, Baha'u'llah's vision was for a commonwealth of free people, with no clergy to tell persons what to think or how to behave. Instead of unity of thinking, Baha'u'llah command His followers to resolve all problems and all disputes by using the principles of consultation.

The central idea of consultation is that each person expresses with absolute freedom his or her own opinion and arguments. Each person remains detached from the views being expressed so that no personal attacks are made nor is anyone injured by a dissenting viewpoint. Every effort is made to arrive at a consensus. "The shining spark of truth cometh forth only after the clash of differing opinions." Selections from the Writings of Abdu'l-Baha, p. 86. In this way, problems and disputes are resolved in a manner whereby every participant can get behind the ultimate decision, knowing that every viewpoint was carefully considered and that the truth has emerged.

What a liberating philosophy brought by Baha'u'llah. It seems that while dispute and contention is built into the human mind, it is precisely that same clash of opinions, when presented using the proper procedures of consultation, that transforms the long-standing practice of humanity to disagree as a means of arriving at the truth. How else will humanity achieve peace and justice than to transform its very contentiousness into the means for solving all of the world's problems?

Posted at 05:08 PM in World Unity | Permalink | Comments (0) | TrackBack (0)

True Bahá'í

True Bahai unity: disputes are essential for arriving at truth

What first attracted me to the Bahai religion were its teachings on the rule of law as a means of peace and justice between nations, the independent investigation of reality as the basis of unity between individuals, and the idea of consultation.

Unity of nations cannot be achieved without the rule of law and justice between the peoples of the world. Without justice and the rule of law, war is inevitable. "An arbitral court of justice shall be established by which international disputes are to be settled. Through this means all possibility of discord and war between the nations will be obviated." Abdu'l-Baha, The Promulgation of Universal Peace, p. 317. This fundamental teaching is so obvious today. The time is so ripe for justice to reign in the affairs of the world. However, nations are just assemblies of persons, so if unity and justice is to be achieved, we must look to the teachings of how individuals are to become united.

Baha'u'llah taught that unity of individual persons requires that each of us think for ourselves, investigate reality and truth for ourselves, and that we do not follow traditions or the opinions of clergy members. Too many Baha'is today, under the yoke of their bogus UHJ (presently residing in Haifa), are unable or unwilling to think for themselves. Every obscure question of how they should think or behave is presented to their so-called Universal House of Justice. The dictatorial pronouncements of this body are eagerly anticipated and studied. The unity that this bogus UHJ enforces is one of single-minded thinking. According to its formula, the community remains united by agreement with its dictates. Don't think your own thoughts. Think our thoughts and thus the robotic unity of community will be maintained. It is disagreement that is the source of disunity, according to the bogus UHJ. Therefore they espouse the belief that no matter how wrong they might be, every community member must accept their dictates as being the divine truth, or else that member must be expelled for the sake of unity.

"[D]isputes are forbidden in the community" says the UHJ's Secretary General, Albert Lincoln (quoted from the documentary film "Bahais in My Backyard), disregarding Baha'u'llah's unique and distinctive method for achieving unity. The unity envisaged by Baha'u'llah was not one in which all of humanity was required to think the same thoughts and conform its behavior to the dictates of an elite leadership. To the contrary, Baha'u'llah's vision was for a commonwealth of free people, with no clergy to tell persons what to think or how to behave. Instead of unity of thinking, Baha'u'llah command His followers to resolve all problems and all disputes by using the principles of consultation.

The central idea of consultation is that each person expresses with absolute freedom his or her own opinion and arguments. Each person remains detached from the views being expressed so that no personal attacks are made nor is anyone injured by a dissenting viewpoint. Every effort is made to arrive at a consensus. "The shining spark of truth cometh forth only after the clash of differing opinions." Selections from the Writings of Abdu'l-Baha, p. 86. In this way, problems and disputes are resolved in a manner whereby every participant can get behind the ultimate decision, knowing that every viewpoint was carefully considered and that the truth has emerged.

What a liberating philosophy brought by Baha'u'llah. It seems that while dispute and contention is built into the human mind, it is precisely that same clash of opinions, when presented using the proper procedures of consultation, that transforms the long-standing practice of humanity to disagree as a means of arriving at the truth. How else will humanity achieve peace and justice than to transform its very contentiousness into the means for solving all of the world's problems?

Posted at 05:08 PM in World Unity | Permalink | Comments (0) | TrackBack (0)

True Bahá'í

Is is Teaching or is it Proselytizing?

In the court case against the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith ("OBF") brought by the sans-Guardian Wilmette NSA, the OBF revealed (in its Sur-reply Memorandum) that the number of its members in the United States was only about 40 persons. This small number comes as a surprise to many, including many of the OBF members and supporters who assumed that the number was much higher.

When I was a member of the sans-Guardian organization, I recall there was great emphasis on teaching for the purpose of increasing enrollments. I never gave it much thought at the time. However, in reviewing the Bahá'í Writings today, I do not find much support for the notion of teaching for enrollments. In fact, Bahá'ís are not supposed to proselytize. The sans-Guardian UHJ defines this as bringing undue pressure to bear upon someone to change his Faith (UHJ letter of 1982 Jan 03, "Teaching vs. Proselytizing"). The American Heritage Dictionary definition of "proselytize" is to recruit or seek to convert someone from one belief to another. Nothing is there about undue pressure. I think teaching for the purpose of increasing enrollments is proselytizing and I don't think Bahá'ís are supposed to do that.

With all of the buildings they have built and must maintain, and all of their far-flung activities, it is no wonder that the sans-Guardian organization has sought for a long time to increase their enrollments because, since only Bahá'ís can contribute money, they have a strong financial pressure to make sure their numbers increase. They need to have a larger pool of recruits from which to seek donations. In my opinion, this is a purely materialistic approach not worthy of Bahá'ís.

The OBF seeks to teach its interpretation of the Faith, but it does not do so for the purpose of enrollment. In other words, as the name "Orthodox" implies, the Orthodox Bahá'ís do not proselytize. They just teach. This teaching is to spread the divine remedy for healing the ills of humanity far and wide, to give as much information out to as many people as possible about the Teachings of Bahá'u'lláh. If there are people out there who wish to seek, to understand, and to apply these Teachings, and they decide to join with us in our community of defenders of the Greatest Name, we are most happy to have them. But we don't want enrollment for enrollment's sake. We do not want people signing up just to swell our mailing list so we can send appeals to them for money. Unfortunately, there are very few people in the United States who are interested in the Teachings, and that is why our numbers are so few. Nevertheless, we know we are doing our duty to just be out there making the information available and teaching to everyone and anyone who wants to know the truth.

Does our position have support, that we should not worry about the numbers of enrollments but instead worry about spreading the Message in its pure form and hope to reach the pure in heart? Why yes, of course!

"Look ye not upon the fewness of thy numbers, rather, seek ye out hearts that are pure. One consecrated soul is preferable to a thousand other souls" `Abdu'l-Bahá says (Selections from the Writings of `Abdu'l-Bahá, pp. 80-81). He exhorts us not to despair over this and puts our present situation into historical perspective when He says: "do not be discouraged because you are few or because people think that your Cause is of no importance. If few people come to your gatherings do not lose heart, and if you are ridiculed and contradicted be not distressed, for the apostles of Christ had the same to bear" (Paris Talks, p. 117). The Master even goes on to point out that it is the enemies of the true Cause of God who are more likely to have large numbers: "But always the greater the cause the more do enemies arise in larger and larger numbers to attempt its overthrow! The brighter the light the darker the shadow! Our part it is to act in accordance with the teaching of Bahá'u'lláh in humility and firm steadfastness" (Paris Talks, p. 106).

It seems to me that this spiritual approach to the idea of enrolling believers is the appropriate way to think about this. The sans-Guardian Bahá'ís and their obsession with enrollments is false and demonstrates they have strayed from the Teachings and are of the lost.

Posted at 12:08 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Is is Teaching or is it Proselytizing?

In the court case against the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith ("OBF") brought by the sans-Guardian Wilmette NSA, the OBF revealed (in its Sur-reply Memorandum) that the number of its members in the United States was only about 40 persons. This small number comes as a surprise to many, including many of the OBF members and supporters who assumed that the number was much higher.

When I was a member of the sans-Guardian organization, I recall there was great emphasis on teaching for the purpose of increasing enrollments. I never gave it much thought at the time. However, in reviewing the Bahá'í Writings today, I do not find much support for the notion of teaching for enrollments. In fact, Bahá'ís are not supposed to proselytize. The sans-Guardian UHJ defines this as bringing undue pressure to bear upon someone to change his Faith (UHJ letter of 1982 Jan 03, "Teaching vs. Proselytizing"). The American Heritage Dictionary definition of "proselytize" is to recruit or seek to convert someone from one belief to another. Nothing is there about undue pressure. I think teaching for the purpose of increasing enrollments is proselytizing and I don't think Bahá'ís are supposed to do that.

With all of the buildings they have built and must maintain, and all of their far-flung activities, it is no wonder that the sans-Guardian organization has sought for a long time to increase their enrollments because, since only Bahá'ís can contribute money, they have a strong financial pressure to make sure their numbers increase. They need to have a larger pool of recruits from which to seek donations. In my opinion, this is a purely materialistic approach not worthy of Bahá'ís.

The OBF seeks to teach its interpretation of the Faith, but it does not do so for the purpose of enrollment. In other words, as the name "Orthodox" implies, the Orthodox Bahá'ís do not proselytize. They just teach. This teaching is to spread the divine remedy for healing the ills of humanity far and wide, to give as much information out to as many people as possible about the Teachings of Bahá'u'lláh. If there are people out there who wish to seek, to understand, and to apply these Teachings, and they decide to join with us in our community of defenders of the Greatest Name, we are most happy to have them. But we don't want enrollment for enrollment's sake. We do not want people signing up just to swell our mailing list so we can send appeals to them for money. Unfortunately, there are very few people in the United States who are interested in the Teachings, and that is why our numbers are so few. Nevertheless, we know we are doing our duty to just be out there making the information available and teaching to everyone and anyone who wants to know the truth.

Does our position have support, that we should not worry about the numbers of enrollments but instead worry about spreading the Message in its pure form and hope to reach the pure in heart? Why yes, of course!

"Look ye not upon the fewness of thy numbers, rather, seek ye out hearts that are pure. One consecrated soul is preferable to a thousand other souls" `Abdu'l-Bahá says (Selections from the Writings of `Abdu'l-Bahá, pp. 80-81). He exhorts us not to despair over this and puts our present situation into historical perspective when He says: "do not be discouraged because you are few or because people think that your Cause is of no importance. If few people come to your gatherings do not lose heart, and if you are ridiculed and contradicted be not distressed, for the apostles of Christ had the same to bear" (Paris Talks, p. 117). The Master even goes on to point out that it is the enemies of the true Cause of God who are more likely to have large numbers: "But always the greater the cause the more do enemies arise in larger and larger numbers to attempt its overthrow! The brighter the light the darker the shadow! Our part it is to act in accordance with the teaching of Bahá'u'lláh in humility and firm steadfastness" (Paris Talks, p. 106).

It seems to me that this spiritual approach to the idea of enrolling believers is the appropriate way to think about this. The sans-Guardian Bahá'ís and their obsession with enrollments is false and demonstrates they have strayed from the Teachings and are of the lost.

Posted at 12:08 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Is is Teaching or is it Proselytizing?

In the court case against the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith ("OBF") brought by the sans-Guardian Wilmette NSA, the OBF revealed (in its Sur-reply Memorandum) that the number of its members in the United States was only about 40 persons. This small number comes as a surprise to many, including many of the OBF members and supporters who assumed that the number was much higher.

When I was a member of the sans-Guardian organization, I recall there was great emphasis on teaching for the purpose of increasing enrollments. I never gave it much thought at the time. However, in reviewing the Bahá'í Writings today, I do not find much support for the notion of teaching for enrollments. In fact, Bahá'ís are not supposed to proselytize. The sans-Guardian UHJ defines this as bringing undue pressure to bear upon someone to change his Faith (UHJ letter of 1982 Jan 03, "Teaching vs. Proselytizing"). The American Heritage Dictionary definition of "proselytize" is to recruit or seek to convert someone from one belief to another. Nothing is there about undue pressure. I think teaching for the purpose of increasing enrollments is proselytizing and I don't think Bahá'ís are supposed to do that.

With all of the buildings they have built and must maintain, and all of their far-flung activities, it is no wonder that the sans-Guardian organization has sought for a long time to increase their enrollments because, since only Bahá'ís can contribute money, they have a strong financial pressure to make sure their numbers increase. They need to have a larger pool of recruits from which to seek donations. In my opinion, this is a purely materialistic approach not worthy of Bahá'ís.

The OBF seeks to teach its interpretation of the Faith, but it does not do so for the purpose of enrollment. In other words, as the name "Orthodox" implies, the Orthodox Bahá'ís do not proselytize. They just teach. This teaching is to spread the divine remedy for healing the ills of humanity far and wide, to give as much information out to as many people as possible about the Teachings of Bahá'u'lláh. If there are people out there who wish to seek, to understand, and to apply these Teachings, and they decide to join with us in our community of defenders of the Greatest Name, we are most happy to have them. But we don't want enrollment for enrollment's sake. We do not want people signing up just to swell our mailing list so we can send appeals to them for money. Unfortunately, there are very few people in the United States who are interested in the Teachings, and that is why our numbers are so few. Nevertheless, we know we are doing our duty to just be out there making the information available and teaching to everyone and anyone who wants to know the truth.

Does our position have support, that we should not worry about the numbers of enrollments but instead worry about spreading the Message in its pure form and hope to reach the pure in heart? Why yes, of course!

"Look ye not upon the fewness of thy numbers, rather, seek ye out hearts that are pure. One consecrated soul is preferable to a thousand other souls" `Abdu'l-Bahá says (Selections from the Writings of `Abdu'l-Bahá, pp. 80-81). He exhorts us not to despair over this and puts our present situation into historical perspective when He says: "do not be discouraged because you are few or because people think that your Cause is of no importance. If few people come to your gatherings do not lose heart, and if you are ridiculed and contradicted be not distressed, for the apostles of Christ had the same to bear" (Paris Talks, p. 117). The Master even goes on to point out that it is the enemies of the true Cause of God who are more likely to have large numbers: "But always the greater the cause the more do enemies arise in larger and larger numbers to attempt its overthrow! The brighter the light the darker the shadow! Our part it is to act in accordance with the teaching of Bahá'u'lláh in humility and firm steadfastness" (Paris Talks, p. 106).

It seems to me that this spiritual approach to the idea of enrolling believers is the appropriate way to think about this. The sans-Guardian Bahá'ís and their obsession with enrollments is false and demonstrates they have strayed from the Teachings and are of the lost.

Posted at 12:08 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink | Comments (0) | TrackBack (0)

True Bahá'í

The Dark Side of Bahá'í

In approaching members of the Bahá'í World Faith, that organization that is presently headquartered in Haifa and Wilmette ("BWF"), one must exercise great caution. These are people who are not at all what they seem to be. On the surface, they appear friendly and loving to the utmost degree. They espouse wonderfully liberal views of unity and harmony amongst the peoples of the world. They are so upright and kind, and seemingly open and tolerant. However, underneath the surface, they display much darker personalities. In my opinion, many of them are very dangerous.

Many people who have not experienced this darker element of the Bahá'ís will not believe it. I myself would never have believed it had I not witnessed for myself how awful the BWF members can behave when their world view is challenged. Their tolerance and openness is very robotic, for purposes of show only, in an effort to attract new adherents. They advocate unity in diversity, but they don't really mean this in the sense of being tolerant of diverse views and practices. What they really mean is a unity that swallows up diversity, more like the science fiction Borg who wish to bring cultures into unity by assimilation.

If you are considering joining the BWF, some caution would be advised. It is important to ask the questions that need to be asked. Do not allow them to sweep any topic under the rug. Do not join them unless they can answer your concerns fully. They are under great pressure to win new adherents and to give money to their organization. Many of them are very skilled at deflecting questions and concerns and making their Faith look attractive. Once you join their organization, their attitude towards you will change suddenly. Once you are no longer a "seeker" they see their mission as completed and they no longer care about responding to your concerns. In fact, this not so subtle shift in their attitude will be displayed by active discouragement of the slightest criticism or questioning of anything about the BWF. This questioning attitude, while tolerated to a limited extent with "seekers," is simply not allowed by card carrying members of the BWF. Once you have joined the BWF, it is not that easy to extricate yourself from the organization unless you are willing to do it on their terms, meaning very quietly and without displaying any desire to remain a Baha'i outside of their organization.

I was a member of the BWF from around mid-1980 until I resigned from their organization in early 1997. Before joining, I conducted an extensive investigation of the BWF, including reading numerous books and attending "firesides", meetings conducted by ordinary Bahá'ís to teach the Faith and answer questions of seekers. As part of my investigation, I inquired into the Guardianship since the Writings clearly called for a continuing line of Guardians, but was told that it was impossible for Shoghi Effendi to have appointed a successor and therefore there no longer was a living Guardian, but instead the Universal House of Justice was the sole head of the Faith even though it did not have the Guardian as its "sacred head" as required by the Will & Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá. Having been told by members of the BWF that there were no longer any living claimants to the Guardianship, I was satisfied with their explanation and embraced them.

It was not until the Fall of 1996, while surfing the Internet, did I come to the realization that there was a living claimant to the Guardianship (Joel B. Marangella) and that he had a worldwide following of believers who had accepted his Guardianship, the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith ("OBF"), and who were following what I considered to be the true original teachings of the Faith. The BWF considered them to be covenant-breakers. It had been a part of the teachings of the BWF that should any of us ever come across reading materials by covenant-breakers, we must not read them or have any contact with them because one could catch a spiritual disease from contact with them and their irrational ideas. Prior to 1996, I did not know of any living covenant-breakers and therefore never gave much thought to this teaching believing it was merely an historical reference. Once I came upon the web sites of the OBF and interacted with them on online bulletin boards, the prospect of "catching" irrational thought processes from these allegedly disturbed individuals did cross my mind. My intellectual curiosity compelled me to carefully review and consider their position, and I decided that if I came across any irrational ideas, I would simply stop reading their sites.

The OBF web sites contained intelligent, rational, and cogent arguments and explanations as to their version of the Faith's history of how almost all of the Hands of the Cause of God, persons appointed by Shoghi Effendi to protect the Faith, met in a secret conclave after Shoghi Effendi's death. The Hands decided that Shoghi Effendi did not and could not have appointed a successor. They later expelled Charles Mason Remey and his followers and tried to convince the rank and file believers that no Guardian could be appointed after Shoghi Effendi, but instead to accept the Custodians, a body of their own making from among their own, and a Universal House of Justice elected without a Guardian at its head, contrary to the explicit provisions of the Will & Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá. In fact, Charles Mason Remey had been appointed by Shoghi Effendi, during his lifetime, as the President of the embryonic International Baha'i Council ("IBC"), an embryo of the Universal House of Justice ("UHJ"), the supreme body of the Faith. Since President of the UHJ and the Guardian are synonymous terms under the explicit provisions of the Will & Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá, it was clear that upon the birth of the IBC (upon Shoghi Effendi's death), Charles Mason Remey became the second Guardian and the sacred head of the actively functioning IBC. However, the Hands rejected Charles Mason Remey and the IBC, the twin pillars of the Baha'i Administrative Order, and thus perpetrated the greatest violation of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh, turning most of the Baha'i world against the true Faith. No wonder the BWF tries to scare its members from reading the truth on the OBF's web sites!

On February, 18, 1997, I resigned from the BWF and declared and enrolled with the OBF. Although shortly thereafter, I received an acknowledgment of my resignation from the NSA of the BWF, several months later, on May 27, 1997, my wife and I were declared to be covenant-breakers and all of my friends in the Faith were instructed to shun me entirely and never to have any contact with me or face the same expulsion themselves. Although my wife did not join the OBF at that time, she was also expelled and shunned because she refused to take my children and divorce me as they had insisted she must.

The BWF claims that shunning us as covenant-breakers is required to maintain the unity of the Faith. The OBF believe, on the other hand, that unity in the Faith is achieved and maintained by obedience to the Center of the Cause, the living Guardian, and that a covenant-breaker is and always was defined as one who rejects the authority of the Guardian. Under the original definition of covenant-breaker, it was the Hands and those who followed them who are the covenant-breakers.

At the present time, the BWF is in court against the OBF in an attempt to prevent the OBF from using Bahá'í in its name and on its web sites and from using the symbol of the Greatest Name. In their view, if you do not show obedience to their organization, you are not allowed to call yourself a Bahá'í. For more on this, go to this web page:
http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html

My experience is not at all unique. Many of the OBF members have similar stories. Many others who have dissented from the BWF can tell you about the strange and cult-like behavior of the members of the BWF in their attempts to silence critics and stop all dissent.

If you are considering joining the BWF, I urge you to question them fully about the Guardianship, as this was supposedly one of the essential verities of their Faith. Read Shoghi Effendi's Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh, and `Abdu'l-Bahá's Will and Testament and ask them why their organization does not comport with the requirements of their own Writings, which expressly state that the Institutions of the Faith (that BWF no longer has) are divine in origin and essential to the Cause of God. Watch their reaction and judge for yourself whether you really wish to belong to the BWF.

Posted at 05:26 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The Dark Side of Bahá'í

In approaching members of the Bahá'í World Faith, that organization that is presently headquartered in Haifa and Wilmette ("BWF"), one must exercise great caution. These are people who are not at all what they seem to be. On the surface, they appear friendly and loving to the utmost degree. They espouse wonderfully liberal views of unity and harmony amongst the peoples of the world. They are so upright and kind, and seemingly open and tolerant. However, underneath the surface, they display much darker personalities. In my opinion, many of them are very dangerous.

Many people who have not experienced this darker element of the Bahá'ís will not believe it. I myself would never have believed it had I not witnessed for myself how awful the BWF members can behave when their world view is challenged. Their tolerance and openness is very robotic, for purposes of show only, in an effort to attract new adherents. They advocate unity in diversity, but they don't really mean this in the sense of being tolerant of diverse views and practices. What they really mean is a unity that swallows up diversity, more like the science fiction Borg who wish to bring cultures into unity by assimilation.

If you are considering joining the BWF, some caution would be advised. It is important to ask the questions that need to be asked. Do not allow them to sweep any topic under the rug. Do not join them unless they can answer your concerns fully. They are under great pressure to win new adherents and to give money to their organization. Many of them are very skilled at deflecting questions and concerns and making their Faith look attractive. Once you join their organization, their attitude towards you will change suddenly. Once you are no longer a "seeker" they see their mission as completed and they no longer care about responding to your concerns. In fact, this not so subtle shift in their attitude will be displayed by active discouragement of the slightest criticism or questioning of anything about the BWF. This questioning attitude, while tolerated to a limited extent with "seekers," is simply not allowed by card carrying members of the BWF. Once you have joined the BWF, it is not that easy to extricate yourself from the organization unless you are willing to do it on their terms, meaning very quietly and without displaying any desire to remain a Baha'i outside of their organization.

I was a member of the BWF from around mid-1980 until I resigned from their organization in early 1997. Before joining, I conducted an extensive investigation of the BWF, including reading numerous books and attending "firesides", meetings conducted by ordinary Bahá'ís to teach the Faith and answer questions of seekers. As part of my investigation, I inquired into the Guardianship since the Writings clearly called for a continuing line of Guardians, but was told that it was impossible for Shoghi Effendi to have appointed a successor and therefore there no longer was a living Guardian, but instead the Universal House of Justice was the sole head of the Faith even though it did not have the Guardian as its "sacred head" as required by the Will & Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá. Having been told by members of the BWF that there were no longer any living claimants to the Guardianship, I was satisfied with their explanation and embraced them.

It was not until the Fall of 1996, while surfing the Internet, did I come to the realization that there was a living claimant to the Guardianship (Joel B. Marangella) and that he had a worldwide following of believers who had accepted his Guardianship, the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith ("OBF"), and who were following what I considered to be the true original teachings of the Faith. The BWF considered them to be covenant-breakers. It had been a part of the teachings of the BWF that should any of us ever come across reading materials by covenant-breakers, we must not read them or have any contact with them because one could catch a spiritual disease from contact with them and their irrational ideas. Prior to 1996, I did not know of any living covenant-breakers and therefore never gave much thought to this teaching believing it was merely an historical reference. Once I came upon the web sites of the OBF and interacted with them on online bulletin boards, the prospect of "catching" irrational thought processes from these allegedly disturbed individuals did cross my mind. My intellectual curiosity compelled me to carefully review and consider their position, and I decided that if I came across any irrational ideas, I would simply stop reading their sites.

The OBF web sites contained intelligent, rational, and cogent arguments and explanations as to their version of the Faith's history of how almost all of the Hands of the Cause of God, persons appointed by Shoghi Effendi to protect the Faith, met in a secret conclave after Shoghi Effendi's death. The Hands decided that Shoghi Effendi did not and could not have appointed a successor. They later expelled Charles Mason Remey and his followers and tried to convince the rank and file believers that no Guardian could be appointed after Shoghi Effendi, but instead to accept the Custodians, a body of their own making from among their own, and a Universal House of Justice elected without a Guardian at its head, contrary to the explicit provisions of the Will & Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá. In fact, Charles Mason Remey had been appointed by Shoghi Effendi, during his lifetime, as the President of the embryonic International Baha'i Council ("IBC"), an embryo of the Universal House of Justice ("UHJ"), the supreme body of the Faith. Since President of the UHJ and the Guardian are synonymous terms under the explicit provisions of the Will & Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá, it was clear that upon the birth of the IBC (upon Shoghi Effendi's death), Charles Mason Remey became the second Guardian and the sacred head of the actively functioning IBC. However, the Hands rejected Charles Mason Remey and the IBC, the twin pillars of the Baha'i Administrative Order, and thus perpetrated the greatest violation of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh, turning most of the Baha'i world against the true Faith. No wonder the BWF tries to scare its members from reading the truth on the OBF's web sites!

On February, 18, 1997, I resigned from the BWF and declared and enrolled with the OBF. Although shortly thereafter, I received an acknowledgment of my resignation from the NSA of the BWF, several months later, on May 27, 1997, my wife and I were declared to be covenant-breakers and all of my friends in the Faith were instructed to shun me entirely and never to have any contact with me or face the same expulsion themselves. Although my wife did not join the OBF at that time, she was also expelled and shunned because she refused to take my children and divorce me as they had insisted she must.

The BWF claims that shunning us as covenant-breakers is required to maintain the unity of the Faith. The OBF believe, on the other hand, that unity in the Faith is achieved and maintained by obedience to the Center of the Cause, the living Guardian, and that a covenant-breaker is and always was defined as one who rejects the authority of the Guardian. Under the original definition of covenant-breaker, it was the Hands and those who followed them who are the covenant-breakers.

At the present time, the BWF is in court against the OBF in an attempt to prevent the OBF from using Bahá'í in its name and on its web sites and from using the symbol of the Greatest Name. In their view, if you do not show obedience to their organization, you are not allowed to call yourself a Bahá'í. For more on this, go to this web page:
http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html

My experience is not at all unique. Many of the OBF members have similar stories. Many others who have dissented from the BWF can tell you about the strange and cult-like behavior of the members of the BWF in their attempts to silence critics and stop all dissent.

If you are considering joining the BWF, I urge you to question them fully about the Guardianship, as this was supposedly one of the essential verities of their Faith. Read Shoghi Effendi's Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh, and `Abdu'l-Bahá's Will and Testament and ask them why their organization does not comport with the requirements of their own Writings, which expressly state that the Institutions of the Faith (that BWF no longer has) are divine in origin and essential to the Cause of God. Watch their reaction and judge for yourself whether you really wish to belong to the BWF.

Posted at 05:26 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The Light Side of Bahá'í

Yesterday I wrote about the dark side of Bahá'í, but today I want to talk about the Light side. My criticism of the Bahá'í World Faith, the organization presently headquartered in Haifa and Wilmette ("BWF") and my belief they are dark does not mean that I believe there is anything dark about the Bahá'í Revelation. To the contrary, it is precisely because the BWF's leaders have strayed far from the original teachings of Bahá'u'lláh that they have fallen so far into the darkness.

The Bahá'í teachings are key to achieving a peaceful and just society. For example, Bahá'u'lláh taught us of the unity of the human race, elimination of prejudices of all kinds, the rule of law and the establishment of justice between all nations of the world, the need for a universal language, the need for universal education, and a spiritual solution to the economic problem with an emphasis on voluntary equalization of the extremes of poverty and wealth. This is God's teaching for the present day.

`Abdu'l-Bahá:
"White doves and gray doves associate with each other in perfect friendship. Man draws imaginary lines on the planet and says, "This is a Frenchman, a Musselman, an Italian!" Upon these differences wars are waged. Men are fighting for the possession of the earth. They fight for that which becomes their graves, their cemeteries, their tombs.

"In reality all are members of one human family -- children of one Heavenly Father. Humanity may be likened unto the vari-colored flowers of one garden. There is unity in diversity. Each sets off and enhances the other's beauty." Divine Philosophy, pp. 25-26

To achieve unity and the elimination of prejudice, we must become tolerant of the differences of thought of various people. There is not a single right way to think and behave. All persons are children of God, and we must view them in a sacred light. We must celebrate the beauty and diversity of the various cultures, and refrain from imposing Western civilization as some kind of standard for the world. We must not seek to impose our own narrow views and opinions upon others. Rather, we need to listen to each other, be open to the truth wherever it might be found, allow everyone to express themselves freely and openly, and recognize the perfection of all.

`Abdu'l-Bahá:
How unpleasing to the eye if all the flowers and plants, the leaves and blossoms, the fruits, the branches and the trees of that garden were all of the same shape and colour! Diversity of hues, form and shape, enricheth and adorneth the garden, and heighteneth the effect thereof. In like manner, when divers shades of thought, temperament and character, are brought together under the power and influence of one central agency, the beauty and glory of human perfection will be revealed and made manifest. Naught but the celestial potency of the Word of God, which ruleth and transcendeth the realities of all things, is capable of harmonizing the divergent thoughts, sentiments, ideas, and convictions of the children of men. Verily, it is the penetrating power in all things, the mover of souls and the binder and regulator in the world of humanity." Selections from the Writings of `Abdu'l-Bahá, pp. 291-292.

Those who have a deep and abiding faith in God do not have fear of other's viewpoints and opinions. When people become upset and fearful over the words of others, this reveals that they do not have faith in their own point of view and they feel threatened by an opposing or differing approach. Instead of holding on to our own perceptions and viewpoints as if they were the truth, we should seek the reality of truth. This can come only by the clash of different opinions: "The shining spark of truth cometh forth only after the clash of differing opinions." Selections from the Writings of `Abdu'l-Bahá, p. 87.

The disagreement between the various denominations of the Bahá'í religion over leadership and authority is most difficult, in the view of the Orthodox Bahá'ís, because those who reject the Guardian are rejecting the central mechanism established in the Faith to keep its unity intact, that is universal obedience to the Guardian. However, as difficult as this might be, it is not acceptable for any denomination of the Faith to try to crush or oppress the other, or to stifle their right to freely express their views and practice their Faith according to the dictates of their own conscience. Those Bahá'í organizations which practice censorship, shunning, the stifling of dissenting views, and attacks against persons who disagree with them, are engaged in behavior that is anathema to the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh.

Posted at 01:14 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The Light Side of Bahá'í

Yesterday I wrote about the dark side of Bahá'í, but today I want to talk about the Light side. My criticism of the Bahá'í World Faith, the organization presently headquartered in Haifa and Wilmette ("BWF") and my belief they are dark does not mean that I believe there is anything dark about the Bahá'í Revelation. To the contrary, it is precisely because the BWF's leaders have strayed far from the original teachings of Bahá'u'lláh that they have fallen so far into the darkness.

The Bahá'í teachings are key to achieving a peaceful and just society. For example, Bahá'u'lláh taught us of the unity of the human race, elimination of prejudices of all kinds, the rule of law and the establishment of justice between all nations of the world, the need for a universal language, the need for universal education, and a spiritual solution to the economic problem with an emphasis on voluntary equalization of the extremes of poverty and wealth. This is God's teaching for the present day.

`Abdu'l-Bahá:
"White doves and gray doves associate with each other in perfect friendship. Man draws imaginary lines on the planet and says, "This is a Frenchman, a Musselman, an Italian!" Upon these differences wars are waged. Men are fighting for the possession of the earth. They fight for that which becomes their graves, their cemeteries, their tombs.

"In reality all are members of one human family -- children of one Heavenly Father. Humanity may be likened unto the vari-colored flowers of one garden. There is unity in diversity. Each sets off and enhances the other's beauty." Divine Philosophy, pp. 25-26

To achieve unity and the elimination of prejudice, we must become tolerant of the differences of thought of various people. There is not a single right way to think and behave. All persons are children of God, and we must view them in a sacred light. We must celebrate the beauty and diversity of the various cultures, and refrain from imposing Western civilization as some kind of standard for the world. We must not seek to impose our own narrow views and opinions upon others. Rather, we need to listen to each other, be open to the truth wherever it might be found, allow everyone to express themselves freely and openly, and recognize the perfection of all.

`Abdu'l-Bahá:
How unpleasing to the eye if all the flowers and plants, the leaves and blossoms, the fruits, the branches and the trees of that garden were all of the same shape and colour! Diversity of hues, form and shape, enricheth and adorneth the garden, and heighteneth the effect thereof. In like manner, when divers shades of thought, temperament and character, are brought together under the power and influence of one central agency, the beauty and glory of human perfection will be revealed and made manifest. Naught but the celestial potency of the Word of God, which ruleth and transcendeth the realities of all things, is capable of harmonizing the divergent thoughts, sentiments, ideas, and convictions of the children of men. Verily, it is the penetrating power in all things, the mover of souls and the binder and regulator in the world of humanity." Selections from the Writings of `Abdu'l-Bahá, pp. 291-292.

Those who have a deep and abiding faith in God do not have fear of other's viewpoints and opinions. When people become upset and fearful over the words of others, this reveals that they do not have faith in their own point of view and they feel threatened by an opposing or differing approach. Instead of holding on to our own perceptions and viewpoints as if they were the truth, we should seek the reality of truth. This can come only by the clash of different opinions: "The shining spark of truth cometh forth only after the clash of differing opinions." Selections from the Writings of `Abdu'l-Bahá, p. 87.

The disagreement between the various denominations of the Bahá'í religion over leadership and authority is most difficult, in the view of the Orthodox Bahá'ís, because those who reject the Guardian are rejecting the central mechanism established in the Faith to keep its unity intact, that is universal obedience to the Guardian. However, as difficult as this might be, it is not acceptable for any denomination of the Faith to try to crush or oppress the other, or to stifle their right to freely express their views and practice their Faith according to the dictates of their own conscience. Those Bahá'í organizations which practice censorship, shunning, the stifling of dissenting views, and attacks against persons who disagree with them, are engaged in behavior that is anathema to the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh.

Posted at 01:14 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

The Lost Teachings of the Bahá'í Guardianship

One of the more interesting aspects of the litigation against the Orthodox Bahá'ís brought by the National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahais of the United States headquartered in Wilmette (hereafter called the "sans-Guardian Bahais"), was the way in which the sans-Guardian Bahais acted as if the principles of the Guardianship were created by Charles Mason Remey and Joel B. Marangella.

Althought the Orthodox Bahá'ís believe that Shoghi Effendi was the first Guardian, Charles Mason Remey was the second Guardian and Joel B. Marangella was the third Guardian, it was not any of the Guardians who created the idea of the Guardianship. Throughout the litigation, the sans-Guardian Bahais acted as if the principle of the hereditary Guardianship is what distinguishes the Orthodox Bahá'ís from the sans-Guardian Bahais. This, of course, is untrue. The teachings of both organizations have the idea of the hereditary Guardianship. This is a teaching espoused by `Abdu'l-Bahá in His Will and Testament, and Shoghi Effendi (who was accepted by the sans-Guardian Bahais) wrote extensively on the subject. The idea did not originate from the Guardians. The only difference between the sans-Guardian Bahais and the Orthodox Bahá'ís, is that the sans-Guardian Bahais lost their faith in the Covenant after the death of Shoghi Effendi, falsely believing that the essential Institution of the Guardianship had come to an end. However, the fundamental teachings of the Faith have become so lost, that the sans-Guardian Bahais act as if the Guardianship is not part of their teachings.

During the deposition taken by Mr. Dolan for the sans-Guardian NSA of Orthodox Bahá'í Hand of the Cause Marilyn Meyer, he questions her about her duties as a Hand, and on the hereditary Guardianship, as if these things were somehow unknown to the Wilmette NSA. On cross-examination, the Orthodox Bahá'í attorney had to get Ms. Meyer to teach these lost but fundamental teachings of the Faith to the Wilmette NSA:

EXAMINATION
BY MR. GOLDBERG:
Q. Okay. I have a few questions for you just to clarify some of the things that you testified to.
A. Okay.
Q. You said that the goal of the National Spiritual Assembly of the -- under the Remey organization was to teach the guardianship. Can you tell me what that means, what does it mean, what is the guardianship?
A. The guardianship is the unique feature of the revelation of Baha'u'llah. It is the guardian -- we should -- that we should never be without a point of guidance. The guardian's job is to interpret the writings among other things, to elucidate on the writings. And he is head of the Universal House of Justice without which they cannot function.

00130
Q. Is the guardianship unique to the Remey NSA?
A. To the Remey NSA?
Q. Yes. Did that -- did it arise out of Mason Remey's teachings or --
A. No, the guardianship is unique. And Shoghi Effendi has written that it's unique to the Baha'i faith all together. And Shoghi Effendi stressed that point.
Q. And Shoghi Effendi you testified earlier was the first guardian. How did he become the guardian?
A. Shoghi Effendi was appointed by Abdu'l Baha, [chosen]shows in by Abdu'l Baha to be the first guardian.
Q. And so the guardianship then is a feature of the heterodox or the Wilmette group as well as the Remey NSA; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
MR. DOLAN: Objection, leading.
BY MR. GOLDBERG:
Q. So what is the difference between the Wilmette NSA group and the believers under the guardianship?
A. We hold the same beliefs up until the passing of Shoghi Effendi; that is, we believe Baha'u'llah to 00131
be the manifestation of God. We believe his eldest son, Abdu'l Baha, to be the center of the covenant. We believe that Shoghi Effendi was the first guardian. The -- what are we calling you?
Q. Wilmette group, Wilmette NSA.
A. I forgot, I'm sorry. Has not acknowledged a guardian since the passing of Shoghi Effendi. That's the point of divergence.

Transcript of deposition of Marilyn K. Meyer, April 18, 2007 (Exhibit C to OBF Sur-reply)

Later, the OBF attorney has to ask Ms. Meyer to explain the Institution of the Hands, another Institution that has been lost to the sans-Guardian Bahais:

Q. Okay. New topic. You testified about -- well, Hands of the Cause and the purpose of the Hands of the Cause and things like that. Do you recall whether -- well, let me ask you this, is the Hands of the Cause an institution created exclusively by Joel Marangella?

A. It is not.
Q. Where does the Hand of the Cause come from?
A. Again, using the definitive document for the administrative order, it was designed and implemented by -- designed and anticipated by Abdu'l Baha. And it was implemented by the first guardian Shoghi Effendi.
Q. And did Shoghi Effendi appoint Hands of the Cause then?
A. Shoghi Effendi did appoint Hands of the Cause.
Q. How about Mason Remey?
A. The only relative statement that I could remember was that Mason Remey said that all of the supporters of his organization should be considered Hands of the Cause. There was no individual appointment.
Q. Okay. And you -- well, let me ask you this, is the Hands of the Cause, does it have any administrative authority or power?

00140

A. The Hands of the Cause have no administrative authority or power.
Q. So --
A. Per the document of Abdu'l Baha's Will and Testament.
Q. So they function on their own or how do --
A. They -- they serve -- they serve the guardian.
Q. Okay.
A. And they serve them in various ways because under Shoghi Effendi they had different talents. So the hands serve at the request and bidding of the guardian.

It is unfortunate that the sans-Guardian Bahais have strayed so far away from the original teachings of the Faith that they barely recognize the teachings when they hear it from the mouths of the Orthodox Bahá'ís. For them, the Guardianship and the Hands of the Cause are relics of history instead of the living and vital Institutions of the Administrative Order of Bahá'u'lláh that they were intended to be and they truly are.

For more information about the court case against the OBF, go here:
http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html

Posted at 10:23 PM in Court Action | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The Lost Teachings of the Bahá'í Guardianship

One of the more interesting aspects of the litigation against the Orthodox Bahá'ís brought by the National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahais of the United States headquartered in Wilmette (hereafter called the "sans-Guardian Bahais"), was the way in which the sans-Guardian Bahais acted as if the principles of the Guardianship were created by Charles Mason Remey and Joel B. Marangella.

Althought the Orthodox Bahá'ís believe that Shoghi Effendi was the first Guardian, Charles Mason Remey was the second Guardian and Joel B. Marangella was the third Guardian, it was not any of the Guardians who created the idea of the Guardianship. Throughout the litigation, the sans-Guardian Bahais acted as if the principle of the hereditary Guardianship is what distinguishes the Orthodox Bahá'ís from the sans-Guardian Bahais. This, of course, is untrue. The teachings of both organizations have the idea of the hereditary Guardianship. This is a teaching espoused by `Abdu'l-Bahá in His Will and Testament, and Shoghi Effendi (who was accepted by the sans-Guardian Bahais) wrote extensively on the subject. The idea did not originate from the Guardians. The only difference between the sans-Guardian Bahais and the Orthodox Bahá'ís, is that the sans-Guardian Bahais lost their faith in the Covenant after the death of Shoghi Effendi, falsely believing that the essential Institution of the Guardianship had come to an end. However, the fundamental teachings of the Faith have become so lost, that the sans-Guardian Bahais act as if the Guardianship is not part of their teachings.

During the deposition taken by Mr. Dolan for the sans-Guardian NSA of Orthodox Bahá'í Hand of the Cause Marilyn Meyer, he questions her about her duties as a Hand, and on the hereditary Guardianship, as if these things were somehow unknown to the Wilmette NSA. On cross-examination, the Orthodox Bahá'í attorney had to get Ms. Meyer to teach these lost but fundamental teachings of the Faith to the Wilmette NSA:

EXAMINATION
BY MR. GOLDBERG:
Q. Okay. I have a few questions for you just to clarify some of the things that you testified to.
A. Okay.
Q. You said that the goal of the National Spiritual Assembly of the -- under the Remey organization was to teach the guardianship. Can you tell me what that means, what does it mean, what is the guardianship?
A. The guardianship is the unique feature of the revelation of Baha'u'llah. It is the guardian -- we should -- that we should never be without a point of guidance. The guardian's job is to interpret the writings among other things, to elucidate on the writings. And he is head of the Universal House of Justice without which they cannot function.

00130
Q. Is the guardianship unique to the Remey NSA?
A. To the Remey NSA?
Q. Yes. Did that -- did it arise out of Mason Remey's teachings or --
A. No, the guardianship is unique. And Shoghi Effendi has written that it's unique to the Baha'i faith all together. And Shoghi Effendi stressed that point.
Q. And Shoghi Effendi you testified earlier was the first guardian. How did he become the guardian?
A. Shoghi Effendi was appointed by Abdu'l Baha, [chosen]shows in by Abdu'l Baha to be the first guardian.
Q. And so the guardianship then is a feature of the heterodox or the Wilmette group as well as the Remey NSA; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
MR. DOLAN: Objection, leading.
BY MR. GOLDBERG:
Q. So what is the difference between the Wilmette NSA group and the believers under the guardianship?
A. We hold the same beliefs up until the passing of Shoghi Effendi; that is, we believe Baha'u'llah to 00131
be the manifestation of God. We believe his eldest son, Abdu'l Baha, to be the center of the covenant. We believe that Shoghi Effendi was the first guardian. The -- what are we calling you?
Q. Wilmette group, Wilmette NSA.
A. I forgot, I'm sorry. Has not acknowledged a guardian since the passing of Shoghi Effendi. That's the point of divergence.

Transcript of deposition of Marilyn K. Meyer, April 18, 2007 (Exhibit C to OBF Sur-reply)

Later, the OBF attorney has to ask Ms. Meyer to explain the Institution of the Hands, another Institution that has been lost to the sans-Guardian Bahais:

Q. Okay. New topic. You testified about -- well, Hands of the Cause and the purpose of the Hands of the Cause and things like that. Do you recall whether -- well, let me ask you this, is the Hands of the Cause an institution created exclusively by Joel Marangella?

A. It is not.
Q. Where does the Hand of the Cause come from?
A. Again, using the definitive document for the administrative order, it was designed and implemented by -- designed and anticipated by Abdu'l Baha. And it was implemented by the first guardian Shoghi Effendi.
Q. And did Shoghi Effendi appoint Hands of the Cause then?
A. Shoghi Effendi did appoint Hands of the Cause.
Q. How about Mason Remey?
A. The only relative statement that I could remember was that Mason Remey said that all of the supporters of his organization should be considered Hands of the Cause. There was no individual appointment.
Q. Okay. And you -- well, let me ask you this, is the Hands of the Cause, does it have any administrative authority or power?

00140

A. The Hands of the Cause have no administrative authority or power.
Q. So --
A. Per the document of Abdu'l Baha's Will and Testament.
Q. So they function on their own or how do --
A. They -- they serve -- they serve the guardian.
Q. Okay.
A. And they serve them in various ways because under Shoghi Effendi they had different talents. So the hands serve at the request and bidding of the guardian.

It is unfortunate that the sans-Guardian Bahais have strayed so far away from the original teachings of the Faith that they barely recognize the teachings when they hear it from the mouths of the Orthodox Bahá'ís. For them, the Guardianship and the Hands of the Cause are relics of history instead of the living and vital Institutions of the Administrative Order of Bahá'u'lláh that they were intended to be and they truly are.

For more information about the court case against the OBF, go here:
http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html

Posted at 10:23 PM in Court Action | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The Orthodox Bahá'í Peace Plan

In this time of war, the world thirsts for the divine remedy of the Message of Bahá'u'lláh. Almost all of the principles and teachings of the Bahá'í revelation have the unification of the planet and elimination of war and prejudice at their core. For example, among the principles and teachings of Bahá'u'lláh are the oneness of mankind, elimination of prejudice, the unity of religious truth, the accord of religion with science, equality of men and women, universal education, abolition of extremes of poverty and wealth, and a universal language. All of these principles, when realized, will be conducive to the elimination of warfare and the creation of a unified spiritual society.

There are a few principles of Bahá'u'lláh that are key to the end of warfare and the establishment of a peaceful civilization.

War will not be eliminated from the earth until justice reigns over it.

"And among the teachings of His Holiness Bahá'u'lláh are justice and right. Until these are realized on the plane of existence, all things will be in disorder and remain imperfect. The world of mankind is a world of oppression and cruelty, and a realm of aggression and error." `Abdu'l-Bahá, Foundations of World Unity, p. 31.

It is obvious that injustice is the reason why peoples of the world war against one another. If it were not for the unjust and oppressive actions of one people against another, if it were not for the grievous attacks and oppressive hostilities back and forth, there would be no need for war. Until humanity is able to dispense justice in response to the atrocities committed by the peoples of the world against one another, and thereby end forever the cycle of violence and hatred, there is no hope for a peaceful world. Bahá'u'lláh revealed a specific system of teachings to bring about justice. Specifically, the wondrous system created by Bahá'u'lláh and his Son, the Center of His Covenant, `Abdu'l-Bahá, for the government of human affairs contains within it an unparalleled divine system of justice, the Administrative Order of Bahá'u'lláh. Unfortunately, the sans-Guardian Bahá'ís have devised a perverted system in place of the divinely revealed one, and they have emphasized this system in order to perpetuate the power of their leadership. The man-made system they devised is nothing but a distorted image of the true system brought by Bahá'u'lláh.

This system involves several levels of houses of justice. At the basic level is the local house of justice to be created in every city and village on the earth. This body, following the laws of Bahá'u'lláh, will administer justice on the local level and will let justice and peace reign in every locality on the planet. If a person is aggrieved by the decision of the local house of justice, he or she may appeal it to the national house of justice, to be created in every nation on earth, and ultimately may appeal the decision to the supreme Universal House of Justice, that will dispense justice and peace around the entire globe, enacting laws to create a just and spiritual global society, the Commonwealth of Bahá'u'lláh. However, this is not a man-made system but is based upon the divine laws and teachings of Bahá'u'lláh Himself. At the center of this system is the Center of the Cause, the appointed Guardian and sacred head for life of the Universal House of Justice. The Guardian protects the Faith from schism and disorder as the ultimate authority in the Cause, the only authorized Interpreter of the Holy Texts.

The first Guardian of the Cause had this to say about the purpose of this system: "Alike in the claims unequivocally asserted by its author and the general character of the growth of the Bahá'í community in every continent of the globe, it can be regarded in no other light than a world religion, destined to evolve in the course of time into a world-embracing commonwealth, whose advent must signalize the Golden Age of mankind, the age in which the unity of the human race will have been unassailably established, its maturity attained, and its glorious destiny unfolded through the birth and efflorescence of a world-encompassing civilization.... This Administrative Order, unlike the systems evolved after the death of the Founders of the various religions, is divine in origin, rests securely on the laws, the precepts, the ordinances and institutions which the Founder of the Faith has Himself specifically laid down and unequivocally established, and functions in strict accordance with the interpretations of the authorized Interpreters of its holy scriptures." Shoghi Effendi, Summary Statement - 1947, Special UN Committee on Palestine.

Anyone interested in learning more on the functioning of this system is advised to read the first Guardian's spiritual testament and masterpiece, the Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh, a book that provides the details of the functioning of this wondrous divine system, including a world legislature, executive, and tribunal as the basis for a "world metropolis [that] will act as the nerve center of a world civilization." "A mechanism of world inter-communication," a "world language...invented or chosen from among the existing languages..." and a "world script, a world literature, a uniform and universal system of currency, of weights and measures" and the "e*conomic resources of the world will be organized, its sources of raw materials will be tapped and fully utilized, its markets will be coordinated and developed, and the distribution of its products will be equitably regulated.*" In this system, oppression and injustices will be forever eliminated, and the peoples of the world at long last will live together under the banner of a divine civilization.

Shoghi Effendi: "Who can doubt that such a consummation -- the coming of age of the human race -- must signalize, in its turn, the inauguration of a world civilization such as no mortal eye hath ever beheld or human mind conceived? Who is it that can imagine the lofty standard which such a civilization, as it unfolds itself, is destined to attain? Who can measure the heights to which human intelligence, liberated from its shackles, will soar? Who can visualize the realms which the human spirit, vitalized by the outpouring light of Bahá'u'lláh, shining in the plenitude of its glory, will discover?" The World Order of Bahá'u'lláh, p. 205.

Bahá'u'lláh: "The world's equilibrium hath been upset through the vibrating influence of this most great, this new World Order. Mankind's ordered life hath been revolutionized through the agency of this unique, this wondrous System -- the like of which mortal eyes have never witnessed." Gleanings from the Writings of Bahá'u'lláh, p. 136.

For more on the peace plan of the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith, follow this link:
http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/world_peace_unity.html

Posted at 08:40 PM in Introductory | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The Orthodox Bahá'í Peace Plan

In this time of war, the world thirsts for the divine remedy of the Message of Bahá'u'lláh. Almost all of the principles and teachings of the Bahá'í revelation have the unification of the planet and elimination of war and prejudice at their core. For example, among the principles and teachings of Bahá'u'lláh are the oneness of mankind, elimination of prejudice, the unity of religious truth, the accord of religion with science, equality of men and women, universal education, abolition of extremes of poverty and wealth, and a universal language. All of these principles, when realized, will be conducive to the elimination of warfare and the creation of a unified spiritual society.

There are a few principles of Bahá'u'lláh that are key to the end of warfare and the establishment of a peaceful civilization.

War will not be eliminated from the earth until justice reigns over it.

"And among the teachings of His Holiness Bahá'u'lláh are justice and right. Until these are realized on the plane of existence, all things will be in disorder and remain imperfect. The world of mankind is a world of oppression and cruelty, and a realm of aggression and error." `Abdu'l-Bahá, Foundations of World Unity, p. 31.

It is obvious that injustice is the reason why peoples of the world war against one another. If it were not for the unjust and oppressive actions of one people against another, if it were not for the grievous attacks and oppressive hostilities back and forth, there would be no need for war. Until humanity is able to dispense justice in response to the atrocities committed by the peoples of the world against one another, and thereby end forever the cycle of violence and hatred, there is no hope for a peaceful world. Bahá'u'lláh revealed a specific system of teachings to bring about justice. Specifically, the wondrous system created by Bahá'u'lláh and his Son, the Center of His Covenant, `Abdu'l-Bahá, for the government of human affairs contains within it an unparalleled divine system of justice, the Administrative Order of Bahá'u'lláh. Unfortunately, the sans-Guardian Bahá'ís have devised a perverted system in place of the divinely revealed one, and they have emphasized this system in order to perpetuate the power of their leadership. The man-made system they devised is nothing but a distorted image of the true system brought by Bahá'u'lláh.

This system involves several levels of houses of justice. At the basic level is the local house of justice to be created in every city and village on the earth. This body, following the laws of Bahá'u'lláh, will administer justice on the local level and will let justice and peace reign in every locality on the planet. If a person is aggrieved by the decision of the local house of justice, he or she may appeal it to the national house of justice, to be created in every nation on earth, and ultimately may appeal the decision to the supreme Universal House of Justice, that will dispense justice and peace around the entire globe, enacting laws to create a just and spiritual global society, the Commonwealth of Bahá'u'lláh. However, this is not a man-made system but is based upon the divine laws and teachings of Bahá'u'lláh Himself. At the center of this system is the Center of the Cause, the appointed Guardian and sacred head for life of the Universal House of Justice. The Guardian protects the Faith from schism and disorder as the ultimate authority in the Cause, the only authorized Interpreter of the Holy Texts.

The first Guardian of the Cause had this to say about the purpose of this system: "Alike in the claims unequivocally asserted by its author and the general character of the growth of the Bahá'í community in every continent of the globe, it can be regarded in no other light than a world religion, destined to evolve in the course of time into a world-embracing commonwealth, whose advent must signalize the Golden Age of mankind, the age in which the unity of the human race will have been unassailably established, its maturity attained, and its glorious destiny unfolded through the birth and efflorescence of a world-encompassing civilization.... This Administrative Order, unlike the systems evolved after the death of the Founders of the various religions, is divine in origin, rests securely on the laws, the precepts, the ordinances and institutions which the Founder of the Faith has Himself specifically laid down and unequivocally established, and functions in strict accordance with the interpretations of the authorized Interpreters of its holy scriptures." Shoghi Effendi, Summary Statement - 1947, Special UN Committee on Palestine.

Anyone interested in learning more on the functioning of this system is advised to read the first Guardian's spiritual testament and masterpiece, the Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh, a book that provides the details of the functioning of this wondrous divine system, including a world legislature, executive, and tribunal as the basis for a "world metropolis [that] will act as the nerve center of a world civilization." "A mechanism of world inter-communication," a "world language...invented or chosen from among the existing languages..." and a "world script, a world literature, a uniform and universal system of currency, of weights and measures" and the "e*conomic resources of the world will be organized, its sources of raw materials will be tapped and fully utilized, its markets will be coordinated and developed, and the distribution of its products will be equitably regulated.*" In this system, oppression and injustices will be forever eliminated, and the peoples of the world at long last will live together under the banner of a divine civilization.

Shoghi Effendi: "Who can doubt that such a consummation -- the coming of age of the human race -- must signalize, in its turn, the inauguration of a world civilization such as no mortal eye hath ever beheld or human mind conceived? Who is it that can imagine the lofty standard which such a civilization, as it unfolds itself, is destined to attain? Who can measure the heights to which human intelligence, liberated from its shackles, will soar? Who can visualize the realms which the human spirit, vitalized by the outpouring light of Bahá'u'lláh, shining in the plenitude of its glory, will discover?" The World Order of Bahá'u'lláh, p. 205.

Bahá'u'lláh: "The world's equilibrium hath been upset through the vibrating influence of this most great, this new World Order. Mankind's ordered life hath been revolutionized through the agency of this unique, this wondrous System -- the like of which mortal eyes have never witnessed." Gleanings from the Writings of Bahá'u'lláh, p. 136.

For more on the peace plan of the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith, follow this link:
http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/world_peace_unity.html

Posted at 08:40 PM in Introductory | Permalink

True Bahá'í

True Bahai unity: disputes are essential for arriving at truth

What first attracted me to the Bahai religion were its teachings on the rule of law as a means of peace and justice between nations, the independent investigation of reality as the basis of unity between individuals, and the idea of consultation.

Unity of nations cannot be achieved without the rule of law and justice between the peoples of the world. Without justice and the rule of law, war is inevitable. "An arbitral court of justice shall be established by which international disputes are to be settled. Through this means all possibility of discord and war between the nations will be obviated." Abdu'l-Baha, The Promulgation of Universal Peace, p. 317. This fundamental teaching is so obvious today. The time is so ripe for justice to reign in the affairs of the world. However, nations are just assemblies of persons, so if unity and justice is to be achieved, we must look to the teachings of how individuals are to become united.

Baha'u'llah taught that unity of individual persons requires that each of us think for ourselves, investigate reality and truth for ourselves, and that we do not follow traditions or the opinions of clergy members. Too many Baha'is today, under the yoke of their bogus UHJ (presently residing in Haifa), are unable or unwilling to think for themselves. Every obscure question of how they should think or behave is presented to their so-called Universal House of Justice. The dictatorial pronouncements of this body are eagerly anticipated and studied. The unity that this bogus UHJ enforces is one of single-minded thinking. According to its formula, the community remains united by agreement with its dictates. Don't think your own thoughts. Think our thoughts and thus the robotic unity of community will be maintained. It is disagreement that is the source of disunity, according to the bogus UHJ. Therefore they espouse the belief that no matter how wrong they might be, every community member must accept their dictates as being the divine truth, or else that member must be expelled for the sake of unity.

"[D]isputes are forbidden in the community" says the UHJ's Secretary General, Albert Lincoln (quoted from the documentary film "Bahais in My Backyard), disregarding Baha'u'llah's unique and distinctive method for achieving unity. The unity envisaged by Baha'u'llah was not one in which all of humanity was required to think the same thoughts and conform its behavior to the dictates of an elite leadership. To the contrary, Baha'u'llah's vision was for a commonwealth of free people, with no clergy to tell persons what to think or how to behave. Instead of unity of thinking, Baha'u'llah command His followers to resolve all problems and all disputes by using the principles of consultation.

The central idea of consultation is that each person expresses with absolute freedom his or her own opinion and arguments. Each person remains detached from the views being expressed so that no personal attacks are made nor is anyone injured by a dissenting viewpoint. Every effort is made to arrive at a consensus. "The shining spark of truth cometh forth only after the clash of differing opinions." Selections from the Writings of Abdu'l-Baha, p. 86. In this way, problems and disputes are resolved in a manner whereby every participant can get behind the ultimate decision, knowing that every viewpoint was carefully considered and that the truth has emerged.

What a liberating philosophy brought by Baha'u'llah. It seems that while dispute and contention is built into the human mind, it is precisely that same clash of opinions, when presented using the proper procedures of consultation, that transforms the long-standing practice of humanity to disagree as a means of arriving at the truth. How else will humanity achieve peace and justice than to transform its very contentiousness into the means for solving all of the world's problems?

Posted at 05:08 PM in World Unity | Permalink

True Bahá'í

True Bahai unity: disputes are essential for arriving at truth

What first attracted me to the Bahai religion were its teachings on the rule of law as a means of peace and justice between nations, the independent investigation of reality as the basis of unity between individuals, and the idea of consultation.

Unity of nations cannot be achieved without the rule of law and justice between the peoples of the world. Without justice and the rule of law, war is inevitable. "An arbitral court of justice shall be established by which international disputes are to be settled. Through this means all possibility of discord and war between the nations will be obviated." Abdu'l-Baha, The Promulgation of Universal Peace, p. 317. This fundamental teaching is so obvious today. The time is so ripe for justice to reign in the affairs of the world. However, nations are just assemblies of persons, so if unity and justice is to be achieved, we must look to the teachings of how individuals are to become united.

Baha'u'llah taught that unity of individual persons requires that each of us think for ourselves, investigate reality and truth for ourselves, and that we do not follow traditions or the opinions of clergy members. Too many Baha'is today, under the yoke of their bogus UHJ (presently residing in Haifa), are unable or unwilling to think for themselves. Every obscure question of how they should think or behave is presented to their so-called Universal House of Justice. The dictatorial pronouncements of this body are eagerly anticipated and studied. The unity that this bogus UHJ enforces is one of single-minded thinking. According to its formula, the community remains united by agreement with its dictates. Don't think your own thoughts. Think our thoughts and thus the robotic unity of community will be maintained. It is disagreement that is the source of disunity, according to the bogus UHJ. Therefore they espouse the belief that no matter how wrong they might be, every community member must accept their dictates as being the divine truth, or else that member must be expelled for the sake of unity.

"[D]isputes are forbidden in the community" says the UHJ's Secretary General, Albert Lincoln (quoted from the documentary film "Bahais in My Backyard), disregarding Baha'u'llah's unique and distinctive method for achieving unity. The unity envisaged by Baha'u'llah was not one in which all of humanity was required to think the same thoughts and conform its behavior to the dictates of an elite leadership. To the contrary, Baha'u'llah's vision was for a commonwealth of free people, with no clergy to tell persons what to think or how to behave. Instead of unity of thinking, Baha'u'llah command His followers to resolve all problems and all disputes by using the principles of consultation.

The central idea of consultation is that each person expresses with absolute freedom his or her own opinion and arguments. Each person remains detached from the views being expressed so that no personal attacks are made nor is anyone injured by a dissenting viewpoint. Every effort is made to arrive at a consensus. "The shining spark of truth cometh forth only after the clash of differing opinions." Selections from the Writings of Abdu'l-Baha, p. 86. In this way, problems and disputes are resolved in a manner whereby every participant can get behind the ultimate decision, knowing that every viewpoint was carefully considered and that the truth has emerged.

What a liberating philosophy brought by Baha'u'llah. It seems that while dispute and contention is built into the human mind, it is precisely that same clash of opinions, when presented using the proper procedures of consultation, that transforms the long-standing practice of humanity to disagree as a means of arriving at the truth. How else will humanity achieve peace and justice than to transform its very contentiousness into the means for solving all of the world's problems?

Posted at 05:08 PM in World Unity | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Two thumbs up for film "Bahais in My Backyard"

Two thumbs up for Bahais in My Backyard, an Israeli's view of the Bahai Faith that is presently headquartered in Haifa, Israel ("BWF"). This hour long film captures the essence of what is wrong with the BWF and how they have hijacked the true teachings of Bahá'u'lláh, distorted them and are attempting to use them to carry out their plan for world domination.

Of course, when I say "two thumbs up", I am borrowing from the Siskel and Ebert movie reviewers, with no pun intended about the hilarious television commercial for "erection problems" that provided much needed comic relief in a piece that mostly ran chills down my spine at the palpable evil being displayed by the leaders of the BWF.

Throughout the film, the BWF leaders appear as humorless, evasive, cold, calculating, arrogant, dark and paranoid. They are so scary they almost seem alien as if they were about to blink with more than one set of eyelids. Everyone else comes across as human, warm and trusting souls, although Frederick Glaysher, a Reform Bahá'í and outspoken critic of the BWF, came across as somewhat paranoid, not that I blame him. The rank and file members of BWF seemed like nice people but they did not seem to get it, as one woman calls the U.S. National Center in Wilmette and seems mystified that they are so paranoid about releasing information about the members.

The film crew is escorted through the underground pathways, facilities and auditoriums of the Haifa World Center by the BWF's Secretary General, Albert Lincoln (who inexplicably could not open all of the doors with his "master key"). In an attempt to make the BWF appear in a positive light he introduces the BWF by saying: "The Bahai Faith is the first religion in the history of the world as far as I am aware to function without a clergy and on a democratic basis."

Anyone who knows about how the BWF handles dissent and critcisim knows that the BWF does not function on a democratic basis. Not only that, but I find it hard to believe that Mr. Lincoln became the Secretary General of the World Centre without being familiar with Shoghi Effendi's teachings on the subject. This makes Mr. Lincoln a bald-faced liar.

Shoghi Effendi: "Neither in theory nor in practice can the Administrative Order of the Faith of Bahá'u'lláh be said to conform to any type of democratic government, to any system of autocracy, to any purely aristocratic order, or to any of the various theocracies, whether Jewish, Christian or Islamic which mankind has witnessed in the past. It incorporates within its structure certain elements which are to be found in each of the three recognized forms of secular government, is devoid of the defects which each of them inherently possesses, and blends the salutary truths which each undoubtedly contains without vitiating in any way the integrity of the Divine verities on which it is essentially founded." God Passes By, p. 326.

Later, in a candid moment, Mr. Lincoln discusses how the BWF treats dissidents. His statements are so precious, I will quote him in full here. He would make Mussolini proud:

"In every organization, particularly in religious organizations, there is always some form of dealing with harmful dissidents. It certainly exists in the Catholic Church and other religious organizations. Within the context of the Bahai Faith, those who attack the authority of the Institutions, which are there to maintain the unity of the community, are expelled from the community and the community is asked not to speak with them. This is because disputes are forbidden in the community and on such a fundamental issue the best way to avoid a dispute is simply not to have a conversation."

I must say hearing Mr. Lincoln speak so coldly about "dealing with" dissidents and saying that disputes are "forbidden" sent chills down my spine and I had to run to my front door to make sure it was securely locked! To hear him say these things, as if they were so reasonable, is punctuated by the fact that he is speaking in a palace situated on Mount Carmel that is purported to be the seat of a future world government. What he is really saying here is that the theocratic global State to be created by the BWF is a fascist organization. They will "deal with" the dissidents and they won't let them "have a conversation." Never mind that consultation, that is the clash of opposing viewpoints, is one of the central teachings of the Faith, and the question of the authority of their "Institutions" was never even consulted about. You don't achieve unity by avoiding the dispute altogether and just impose one view on everyone else, like it or not.

If you don't believe that the BWF intends to set up a world government, just listen to Douglas Moore, Public Information Director, spew his propaganda. He says that "nations will eventually give up some of their sovereignty and turn it over to a world government." This sounds all progressive and wonderful until one realizes that this world government he is talking about is THEIR world government, one where dissidents are dealt with. He is standing, after all, in a shrine to this world government, with the spooky buildings of world government all about him.

The disturbing lack of candor and outright lies of the BWF leaders is highlighted by the visit made by Murray Smith, Deputy Secretary General, who is secretly taped discussing why they BWF won't admit an Israeli to membership. The guy sits there and tells him that Bahá'u'lláh Himself forbid Israeli citizens from joining their community. Never mind that the Israeli State did not exist in the time of Bahá'u'lláh. In fact, this rule comes from their bogus UHJ, which attributes it to a policy that supposedly existed from the time of Bahá'u'lláh. Mr. Smith's lie becomes apparent when he admits this rule will be eliminated in the future, as if the pronouncements of Bahá'u'lláh can simply be cast aside in the future. This man is a buffoon.

The underground facilities of the BWF's world centre is examined by an architect who concludes that it is an elaborate bomb shelter or bunker to help a council of wise men survive through an anticipated holocaust. Of course, that is exactly what it is. The BWF leaders deny an apocalyptic vision in the film (and they elsewhere publicly denounce such a teaching) ignoring the fact that the writings of Bahá'u'lláh, `Abdu'l-Bahá and Shoghi Effendi are replete with references to a world embracing calamity. The deception just never ends.

Probably the most priceless portion of the film is the interview with Nigar Bahai Amsalem, the great grand-daughter of Bahá'u'lláh, a neighbor to the BWF world center and a very nice lady who insists that she exists despite the fact that her existence is officially denied by the BWF leaders. She says: "We are the family and they cannot say that we are not the family as they tell their people that come from abroad: 'do not talk to them,' but personally I think its very childish because what are they so afraid of us for? What can we do? Against all.... we are not interested. We are the family that are living here. The blood of Bahá'u'lláh runs in all the veins of the family. We are not doing anything against them. We are just living peacefully and doing exactly what Bahá'u'lláh told us to do. So we are Bahá'ís. We are true Bahá'ís."

She needs to be careful with that "true Bahá'í talk". It will get her sued. I know why they are so afraid of her and the rest of the family. Her existence threatens their authority and power. She does not fear them at all. She fears only God. I liked her.

It made me laugh out loud to hear Douglas Moore respond by saying that it did not matter that they are part of the Holy family. He said it was not "something of value in itself of being related to Baha'u'llah." I fell off my chair and laughed out loud because it was precisely because there was no member of the Holy family for Shoghi Effendi to appoint as his successor that the Institutions of the Guardianship and Hands of the Cause supposedly had to come to an end, and the UHJ had to be permanently disfigured as a headless body. To say that there is no significance is pretty far out there. The deception never ends.

In conclusion, the film was highly entertaining, revealing, and had a certain gloomy sense of humor about it even as it exposed the shapeshifting BWF leadership as the agents of deception and evil that they are. I highly recommend it.

Posted at 10:25 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Two thumbs up for film "Bahais in My Backyard"

Two thumbs up for Bahais in My Backyard, an Israeli's view of the Bahai Faith that is presently headquartered in Haifa, Israel ("BWF"). This hour long film captures the essence of what is wrong with the BWF and how they have hijacked the true teachings of Bahá'u'lláh, distorted them and are attempting to use them to carry out their plan for world domination.

Of course, when I say "two thumbs up", I am borrowing from the Siskel and Ebert movie reviewers, with no pun intended about the hilarious television commercial for "erection problems" that provided much needed comic relief in a piece that mostly ran chills down my spine at the palpable evil being displayed by the leaders of the BWF.

Throughout the film, the BWF leaders appear as humorless, evasive, cold, calculating, arrogant, dark and paranoid. They are so scary they almost seem alien as if they were about to blink with more than one set of eyelids. Everyone else comes across as human, warm and trusting souls, although Frederick Glaysher, a Reform Bahá'í and outspoken critic of the BWF, came across as somewhat paranoid, not that I blame him. The rank and file members of BWF seemed like nice people but they did not seem to get it, as one woman calls the U.S. National Center in Wilmette and seems mystified that they are so paranoid about releasing information about the members.

The film crew is escorted through the underground pathways, facilities and auditoriums of the Haifa World Center by the BWF's Secretary General, Albert Lincoln (who inexplicably could not open all of the doors with his "master key"). In an attempt to make the BWF appear in a positive light he introduces the BWF by saying: "The Bahai Faith is the first religion in the history of the world as far as I am aware to function without a clergy and on a democratic basis."

Anyone who knows about how the BWF handles dissent and critcisim knows that the BWF does not function on a democratic basis. Not only that, but I find it hard to believe that Mr. Lincoln became the Secretary General of the World Centre without being familiar with Shoghi Effendi's teachings on the subject. This makes Mr. Lincoln a bald-faced liar.

Shoghi Effendi: "Neither in theory nor in practice can the Administrative Order of the Faith of Bahá'u'lláh be said to conform to any type of democratic government, to any system of autocracy, to any purely aristocratic order, or to any of the various theocracies, whether Jewish, Christian or Islamic which mankind has witnessed in the past. It incorporates within its structure certain elements which are to be found in each of the three recognized forms of secular government, is devoid of the defects which each of them inherently possesses, and blends the salutary truths which each undoubtedly contains without vitiating in any way the integrity of the Divine verities on which it is essentially founded." God Passes By, p. 326.

Later, in a candid moment, Mr. Lincoln discusses how the BWF treats dissidents. His statements are so precious, I will quote him in full here. He would make Mussolini proud:

"In every organization, particularly in religious organizations, there is always some form of dealing with harmful dissidents. It certainly exists in the Catholic Church and other religious organizations. Within the context of the Bahai Faith, those who attack the authority of the Institutions, which are there to maintain the unity of the community, are expelled from the community and the community is asked not to speak with them. This is because disputes are forbidden in the community and on such a fundamental issue the best way to avoid a dispute is simply not to have a conversation."

I must say hearing Mr. Lincoln speak so coldly about "dealing with" dissidents and saying that disputes are "forbidden" sent chills down my spine and I had to run to my front door to make sure it was securely locked! To hear him say these things, as if they were so reasonable, is punctuated by the fact that he is speaking in a palace situated on Mount Carmel that is purported to be the seat of a future world government. What he is really saying here is that the theocratic global State to be created by the BWF is a fascist organization. They will "deal with" the dissidents and they won't let them "have a conversation." Never mind that consultation, that is the clash of opposing viewpoints, is one of the central teachings of the Faith, and the question of the authority of their "Institutions" was never even consulted about. You don't achieve unity by avoiding the dispute altogether and just impose one view on everyone else, like it or not.

If you don't believe that the BWF intends to set up a world government, just listen to Douglas Moore, Public Information Director, spew his propaganda. He says that "nations will eventually give up some of their sovereignty and turn it over to a world government." This sounds all progressive and wonderful until one realizes that this world government he is talking about is THEIR world government, one where dissidents are dealt with. He is standing, after all, in a shrine to this world government, with the spooky buildings of world government all about him.

The disturbing lack of candor and outright lies of the BWF leaders is highlighted by the visit made by Murray Smith, Deputy Secretary General, who is secretly taped discussing why they BWF won't admit an Israeli to membership. The guy sits there and tells him that Bahá'u'lláh Himself forbid Israeli citizens from joining their community. Never mind that the Israeli State did not exist in the time of Bahá'u'lláh. In fact, this rule comes from their bogus UHJ, which attributes it to a policy that supposedly existed from the time of Bahá'u'lláh. Mr. Smith's lie becomes apparent when he admits this rule will be eliminated in the future, as if the pronouncements of Bahá'u'lláh can simply be cast aside in the future. This man is a buffoon.

The underground facilities of the BWF's world centre is examined by an architect who concludes that it is an elaborate bomb shelter or bunker to help a council of wise men survive through an anticipated holocaust. Of course, that is exactly what it is. The BWF leaders deny an apocalyptic vision in the film (and they elsewhere publicly denounce such a teaching) ignoring the fact that the writings of Bahá'u'lláh, `Abdu'l-Bahá and Shoghi Effendi are replete with references to a world embracing calamity. The deception just never ends.

Probably the most priceless portion of the film is the interview with Nigar Bahai Amsalem, the great grand-daughter of Bahá'u'lláh, a neighbor to the BWF world center and a very nice lady who insists that she exists despite the fact that her existence is officially denied by the BWF leaders. She says: "We are the family and they cannot say that we are not the family as they tell their people that come from abroad: 'do not talk to them,' but personally I think its very childish because what are they so afraid of us for? What can we do? Against all.... we are not interested. We are the family that are living here. The blood of Bahá'u'lláh runs in all the veins of the family. We are not doing anything against them. We are just living peacefully and doing exactly what Bahá'u'lláh told us to do. So we are Bahá'ís. We are true Bahá'ís."

She needs to be careful with that "true Bahá'í talk". It will get her sued. I know why they are so afraid of her and the rest of the family. Her existence threatens their authority and power. She does not fear them at all. She fears only God. I liked her.

It made me laugh out loud to hear Douglas Moore respond by saying that it did not matter that they are part of the Holy family. He said it was not "something of value in itself of being related to Baha'u'llah." I fell off my chair and laughed out loud because it was precisely because there was no member of the Holy family for Shoghi Effendi to appoint as his successor that the Institutions of the Guardianship and Hands of the Cause supposedly had to come to an end, and the UHJ had to be permanently disfigured as a headless body. To say that there is no significance is pretty far out there. The deception never ends.

In conclusion, the film was highly entertaining, revealing, and had a certain gloomy sense of humor about it even as it exposed the shapeshifting BWF leadership as the agents of deception and evil that they are. I highly recommend it.

Posted at 10:25 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Understanding the Bahai Revelation

Very few people in the world today demonstrate an understanding of the Bahai Revelation, the body of teachings revealed by Baha'u'llah that are the divine remedy for the ills that plague mankind today. Orthodox Baha'is proclaim and teach their Faith, not because they seek to convert people to their religion, but for the higher goal of sharing the truth of the Message of Baha'u'llah for this Day. It is so unfortunate that even amongst most of the Bahais who have accepted Baha'u'llah, true and deep understanding of His teachings is a rare find.

How does one acquire knowledge and understanding of the Baha'i Revelation? I submit that intense prayer and meditation and devoted study of the Holy Writings is necessary. That is, prayer that goes beyond mere recitation of the Writings at the public meetings, and a study that goes beyond mere intellectual reflection. To absorb the truth of the Baha'i Revelation, one must undergo an intense search and devoted meditation until a spiritual understanding is achieved. This is a lifelong process.

Abdu'l-Baha: "How shall we attain the reality of knowledge? By the breaths and promptings of the Holy Spirit which is light and knowledge itself. Through it the human mind is quickened and fortified into true conclusions and perfect knowledge." Foundations of World Unity, p. 46. Abdu'l-Baha repeatedly speaks of the breaths and promptings of the Holy Spirit as the secret to obtaining eternal life and true knowledge, the means of true brotherhood, the solution to war and the source of real kindness.

One approach these breaths of the Holy Spirit by turning to the Manifestation of God in prayerful devotion and reflection:

"Likewise the Holy Spirit is the very cause of the life of man; without the Holy Spirit he would have no intellect, he would be unable to acquire his scientific knowledge by which his great influence over the rest of creation is gained. The illumination of the Holy Spirit gives to man the power of thought, and enables him to make discoveries by which he bends the laws of nature to his will. The Holy Spirit it is which, through the mediation of the Prophets of God, teaches spiritual virtues to man and enables him to attain Eternal Life." Abdu'l-Baha, Paris Talks, p. 58.

Unfortunately too many Baha'is are existing on the surface and have not delved deeply into the Ocean of Baha'u'llah's Revelation. Their devotions are limited to parrot-like recitations of the revealed prayers, delivered mechanically and only within the meetings of other Baha'is. However, for Baha'is devotion is supposed to be a personal matter directly between God and the individual, and not in the form of congregation. Prayer should be a constant activity from the moment one awakes in the morning until one retires at night. Prayer and devotion is not divorced from one's life activities and work, but every action should be done in devotion and praise of God. With this kind of devotion, the breaths of the Holy Spirit descend and one plunges deeply into the ocean of Truth.

Posted at 11:22 PM in Introductory | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Understanding the Bahai Revelation

Very few people in the world today demonstrate an understanding of the Bahai Revelation, the body of teachings revealed by Baha'u'llah that are the divine remedy for the ills that plague mankind today. Orthodox Baha'is proclaim and teach their Faith, not because they seek to convert people to their religion, but for the higher goal of sharing the truth of the Message of Baha'u'llah for this Day. It is so unfortunate that even amongst most of the Bahais who have accepted Baha'u'llah, true and deep understanding of His teachings is a rare find.

How does one acquire knowledge and understanding of the Baha'i Revelation? I submit that intense prayer and meditation and devoted study of the Holy Writings is necessary. That is, prayer that goes beyond mere recitation of the Writings at the public meetings, and a study that goes beyond mere intellectual reflection. To absorb the truth of the Baha'i Revelation, one must undergo an intense search and devoted meditation until a spiritual understanding is achieved. This is a lifelong process.

Abdu'l-Baha: "How shall we attain the reality of knowledge? By the breaths and promptings of the Holy Spirit which is light and knowledge itself. Through it the human mind is quickened and fortified into true conclusions and perfect knowledge." Foundations of World Unity, p. 46. Abdu'l-Baha repeatedly speaks of the breaths and promptings of the Holy Spirit as the secret to obtaining eternal life and true knowledge, the means of true brotherhood, the solution to war and the source of real kindness.

One approach these breaths of the Holy Spirit by turning to the Manifestation of God in prayerful devotion and reflection:

"Likewise the Holy Spirit is the very cause of the life of man; without the Holy Spirit he would have no intellect, he would be unable to acquire his scientific knowledge by which his great influence over the rest of creation is gained. The illumination of the Holy Spirit gives to man the power of thought, and enables him to make discoveries by which he bends the laws of nature to his will. The Holy Spirit it is which, through the mediation of the Prophets of God, teaches spiritual virtues to man and enables him to attain Eternal Life." Abdu'l-Baha, Paris Talks, p. 58.

Unfortunately too many Baha'is are existing on the surface and have not delved deeply into the Ocean of Baha'u'llah's Revelation. Their devotions are limited to parrot-like recitations of the revealed prayers, delivered mechanically and only within the meetings of other Baha'is. However, for Baha'is devotion is supposed to be a personal matter directly between God and the individual, and not in the form of congregation. Prayer should be a constant activity from the moment one awakes in the morning until one retires at night. Prayer and devotion is not divorced from one's life activities and work, but every action should be done in devotion and praise of God. With this kind of devotion, the breaths of the Holy Spirit descend and one plunges deeply into the ocean of Truth.

Posted at 11:22 PM in Introductory | Permalink

True Bahá'í

What did Shoghi Effendi say about what is a true Bahá'í?

"[T]he principal factors that must be taken into consideration before deciding whether a person may be regarded a true believer or not [are:] 'Full recognition of the station of the Forerunner, the Author, and the True Exemplar of the Bahá'í Cause, as set forth in 'Abdu'l-Bahá's testament; unreserved acceptance of, and submission to, whatsoever has been revealed by their Pen; loyal and steadfast adherence to every clause of our Beloved's sacred Will*; and close association with the spirit as well as the form of the present day Bahá'í Administration throughout the world..."* - Shoghi Effendi (Bahá'í Administration, p.90)

Posted at 01:06 PM in Introductory | Permalink

True Bahá'í

What did Shoghi Effendi say about what is a true Bahá'í?

"[T]he principal factors that must be taken into consideration before deciding whether a person may be regarded a true believer or not [are:] 'Full recognition of the station of the Forerunner, the Author, and the True Exemplar of the Bahá'í Cause, as set forth in 'Abdu'l-Bahá's testament; unreserved acceptance of, and submission to, whatsoever has been revealed by their Pen; loyal and steadfast adherence to every clause of our Beloved's sacred Will*; and close association with the spirit as well as the form of the present day Bahá'í Administration throughout the world..."* - Shoghi Effendi (Bahá'í Administration, p.90)

Posted at 01:06 PM in Introductory | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Wilmette NSA's court action against Orthodox Bahá'ís

Just in case you don't know about it yet, the Wilmette National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the United States has taken to court the Orthodox Bahá'ís (and others) seeking to enforce against them a Judgment entered back in 1966 against the long defunct NSA of the Baha'is under the Hereditary Guardianship (the NSA founded by Mason Remey's followers).

Click here to see the relevant pleadings in the court case.

That Judgment against the Remey NSA enjoined that organization from, among other things, calling itself Baha'i, and using the symbol of the Greatest Name. The Wilmette NSA claims trademark rights to these sacred names and symbols of the Faith. The Judgment makes findings that the Wilmette NSA's version of the Baha'i Faith is the only one, and basically it outlaws Mason Remey's version of the Faith.

Click here to see the 1966 Judgment (in Acrobat PDF format).

Posted at 10:21 AM in Court Action | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Wilmette NSA's court action against Orthodox Bahá'ís

Just in case you don't know about it yet, the Wilmette National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the United States has taken to court the Orthodox Bahá'ís (and others) seeking to enforce against them a Judgment entered back in 1966 against the long defunct NSA of the Baha'is under the Hereditary Guardianship (the NSA founded by Mason Remey's followers).

Click here to see the relevant pleadings in the court case.

That Judgment against the Remey NSA enjoined that organization from, among other things, calling itself Baha'i, and using the symbol of the Greatest Name. The Wilmette NSA claims trademark rights to these sacred names and symbols of the Faith. The Judgment makes findings that the Wilmette NSA's version of the Baha'i Faith is the only one, and basically it outlaws Mason Remey's version of the Faith.

Click here to see the 1966 Judgment (in Acrobat PDF format).

Posted at 10:21 AM in Court Action | Permalink

True Bahá'í

We have unsealed the choice cyanide kool-aid!

I had to laugh out loud over the recent admission by a sans-Guardian Bahai in the talk.religion.bahai newsgroup who insisted that Baha'u'llah revealed the "stifling rules and regulations" enforced by the Bahai organization currently occupying Haifa and Wilmette.

Anyone with familiarity with that organization knows that their religion consists of a series of endless edicts about what one can or cannot think, do or say in every conceivable situation. They pump out book after book of "guidance" to tell their faithful flock how they are supposed to think and behave about everything for the sake of "unity." If perchance there is some area of their lives not covered by their stifling rules and regulations, there is only one thing to do about it. Not sure which shade of lipstick to use? Is it OK for unmarried persons to kiss? With or without tongue? Shoot off a letter to God's supposed representative on this earth, their so-called Universal House of Justice and ask them to please tell me what to do, what to say, what to believe.

Of course, you can't have stifling rules and regulations without stifling ENFORCEMENT. Luckily, there is a unified community of single-minded busybodies to get the job done. The non-stop job of the Bahai busybodies is to make sure that nobody is breaking any of the stifling rules and regulations and to punish those who do, so that their precious Faith will not fall into disrepute:

Busybody 1: "What time did Jane come home last night?"
Busybody 2: "Did she even come home? She was on a date and never came home at all!"
Busybody 1; "Who is she sleeping with? We need to have a talk with her and remind her that she will risk losing her (gasp) voting rights!"
Busybody 2: "LuAnne never goes out on dates. I wonder if she is at home masturbating? The UHJ said that was definitely not allowed."
Busybody 1: "I wonder how we can find out? We need to spy on her for the sake of the community."
Busybody 2: "Is John drinking again? Peter saw him in a bar the other night."
Busybody 1: "Oh really, what was Peter doing in a bar?"
Busybody 2: "Good point. I better report him to the LSA."

Am I exaggerating? Perhaps. But I have seen this kind of mind-boggling interference with people's lives when I was a cult member of this Bahai community.

But you know I have read up quite a bit on the Bahai Revelation over the years and frankly I cannot remember reading in the words of the founding figures of this Faith the remotest reference to the need for a Bahai community to organize for the purpose of spying upon and enforcing the personal "laws" of the Faith.

Baha'u'llah had this to say about His rules and regulations:

"Think not that We have revealed unto you a mere code of laws. Nay, rather, We have unsealed the choice Wine with the fingers of might and power. To this beareth witness that which the Pen of Revelation hath revealed. Meditate upon this, O men of insight!" Baha'u'llah, The Kitab-i-Aqdas, p. 21

Let's meditate upon this for a moment. He did not say that He wanted you to drink the cyanide-laced kool-aid of sicko cultists. He said it was the choice Wine. Note the capital letters. I think that has something to do with God-intoxication and not a network of busybodies making sure everybody is doing the right thing, saying the right thing, and thinking the right thoughts.

There is an idea. God intoxication. That is, a soul in connection with the Beloved. Mystic intercourse with the Holy Spirit. Remember that spiritual stuff?

Could it be that the personal laws of the Bahai revelation are guidelines for leading a spiritual life that each person needs to internalize within his or her own life?

Could it be that the purpose of the Bahai revelation is the spiritual growth of the entire community by each member of that community fighting his or her own spiritual battles?

Could it be that the role of the community and its administrative institutions is to foster and facilitate this growth and not to promulgate and enforce stifing rules and regulations that lord over the individual members?

I think it could be.

The thing that really amazes me is that there so many individuals who are willing to allow others to impose external control over their minds and bodies. Why don't they wake up?

Posted at 09:53 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink | Comments (0) | TrackBack (0)

True Bahá'í

Abdu'l-Baha's rejection of tyranny

The dictatorial attitude and practices of the Bahai World Faith (that is the Baha'i organization presently headquartered in Haifa and Wilmette, hereafter "BWF"), by which they attempt to rule and control over every aspect of its members' lives and thoughts, does not at all arise from the teachings of the Founders of the Faith.

Abdul-Baha, the Center of the Covenant and the Interpreter of the Bahai Texts, rejected all forms of despotism and tyranny. In a talk He gave on 18 November 1911 in Paris, the Master said this:

"For persons who are believers, to commit tyranny is to be visited by divine torment in the world of immortality. Naturally, they will avoid despotism and coercion, especially if they believe that if they act justly they will draw near to the threshold of grandeur, gain eternal life, enter into the kingdom of God, and have their faces be illumined by the lights of divine grace and loving-kindness....

"My own hope is that all the divine friends will be manifestations of justice in all affairs. For justice does not pertain to government figures alone. Merchants must also be just in commerce. Those who make goods must be just in what they produce. All human beings, large and small, must behave with justice and fairness. Justice consists in not exceeding their own prerogatives. They must wish for each person what they wish for themselves. This is divine justice. Praise be to God, the sun of justice has risen from the horizon of Baha'u'llah. For in his tablets was laid the foundation for a justice such as was never conceived by any mind from the beginning of creation until now. A station has been established for every sort of individual, which they must not transgress against. For instance, he says that the people of every occupation must exercise justice therein, that is, they must not go beyond what they deserve. If anyone should transgress in his occupation, such as a king who becomes a despot, there is no distinction between them and him. All individuals who do not observe justice in their dealings with others are like the dictatorial leader. Thus, it is apparent that every human being can be just or tyrannical. But my hope is that all will be just, and that all of your thoughts will be of associating with all humankind and employing the utmost justice and fairness in your dealings with others."
[from `Abdu'l-Baha on Democracy and the Separation of Religion and State by Juan R.I. Cole]
http://www.h-net.org/~bahai/trans/vol6/absiyas2.htm

In my view, the dictatorial behavior of the BWF arises out of fear and a lack of true guidance. The overwhelming fear of their leaders and their rank and file becomes manifest every time the legitimacy of their leadership is questioned. If they were so certain that they were in the right, that they had divine authority to lead the Baha'i community, then they would react with faith and confidence in the face of naysayers. By reacting with panic and fear, their own faithlessness becomes apparent and their own doubts and concerns become evident. They know full well that their leadership's claim to authority is based upon hollow and empty interpretations of the Bahai Texts. It is a house of cards ready to fall with the slightest dissent. Their bogus UHJ has no clothes!

There will come a time when the misled members of the BWF will awaken and begin to think for themselves. They will see that there is no reason for them to tolerate the mind control and busybody regulation of their personal lives practiced by the BWF leadership. There is no reason at all for them to accept this abuse from anyone. They will see that the true Faith of God is united by attraction and love and not by fear and coercion. When that day arrives that the misled Baha'is awaken to the Truth, the Guardian of the Cause of God, Joel B. Marangella, will joyously welcome them back under the shade of the Tree of Covenant.

Posted at 04:19 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Abdu'l-Baha's rejection of tyranny

The dictatorial attitude and practices of the Bahai World Faith (that is the Baha'i organization presently headquartered in Haifa and Wilmette, hereafter "BWF"), by which they attempt to rule and control over every aspect of its members' lives and thoughts, does not at all arise from the teachings of the Founders of the Faith.

Abdul-Baha, the Center of the Covenant and the Interpreter of the Bahai Texts, rejected all forms of despotism and tyranny. In a talk He gave on 18 November 1911 in Paris, the Master said this:

"For persons who are believers, to commit tyranny is to be visited by divine torment in the world of immortality. Naturally, they will avoid despotism and coercion, especially if they believe that if they act justly they will draw near to the threshold of grandeur, gain eternal life, enter into the kingdom of God, and have their faces be illumined by the lights of divine grace and loving-kindness....

"My own hope is that all the divine friends will be manifestations of justice in all affairs. For justice does not pertain to government figures alone. Merchants must also be just in commerce. Those who make goods must be just in what they produce. All human beings, large and small, must behave with justice and fairness. Justice consists in not exceeding their own prerogatives. They must wish for each person what they wish for themselves. This is divine justice. Praise be to God, the sun of justice has risen from the horizon of Baha'u'llah. For in his tablets was laid the foundation for a justice such as was never conceived by any mind from the beginning of creation until now. A station has been established for every sort of individual, which they must not transgress against. For instance, he says that the people of every occupation must exercise justice therein, that is, they must not go beyond what they deserve. If anyone should transgress in his occupation, such as a king who becomes a despot, there is no distinction between them and him. All individuals who do not observe justice in their dealings with others are like the dictatorial leader. Thus, it is apparent that every human being can be just or tyrannical. But my hope is that all will be just, and that all of your thoughts will be of associating with all humankind and employing the utmost justice and fairness in your dealings with others."
[from `Abdu'l-Baha on Democracy and the Separation of Religion and State by Juan R.I. Cole]
http://www.h-net.org/~bahai/trans/vol6/absiyas2.htm

In my view, the dictatorial behavior of the BWF arises out of fear and a lack of true guidance. The overwhelming fear of their leaders and their rank and file becomes manifest every time the legitimacy of their leadership is questioned. If they were so certain that they were in the right, that they had divine authority to lead the Baha'i community, then they would react with faith and confidence in the face of naysayers. By reacting with panic and fear, their own faithlessness becomes apparent and their own doubts and concerns become evident. They know full well that their leadership's claim to authority is based upon hollow and empty interpretations of the Bahai Texts. It is a house of cards ready to fall with the slightest dissent. Their bogus UHJ has no clothes!

There will come a time when the misled members of the BWF will awaken and begin to think for themselves. They will see that there is no reason for them to tolerate the mind control and busybody regulation of their personal lives practiced by the BWF leadership. There is no reason at all for them to accept this abuse from anyone. They will see that the true Faith of God is united by attraction and love and not by fear and coercion. When that day arrives that the misled Baha'is awaken to the Truth, the Guardian of the Cause of God, Joel B. Marangella, will joyously welcome them back under the shade of the Tree of Covenant.

Posted at 04:19 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

Reblog (0)

True Bahá'í

Bahai Liberty

In observing the behavior of the leaders of the Baha'is who presently occupy the Bahai World Center in Israel and the Wilmette headquarters of the Bahai Faith in the USA, you might not realize that one of the fundamental teachings of the Cause of Baha'u'llah is that individual conscience and the liberty of the individual is essential for peace and for the spiritual growth of humanity.

In the words of Abdu'l-Baha:

"The standard of liberty is held aloft in this land. You enjoy political liberty; you enjoy liberty of thought and speech, religious liberty, racial and personal liberty. Surely this is worthy of appreciation and thanksgiving.... Liberalism is essential in this day -- justness and equity toward all nations and people." (The Promulgation of Universal Peace, p. 390)

In other passages, Abdu'l-Baha refers to liberty and freedom as bestowals from God. Any right thinking person will see that the heart of religion is the relationship and mystical union of the individual with God. Without liberty and freedom of conscience, it is impossible for mysticism to flourish.

The agencies of the State, corporate boards and bodies of all type have no soul. Spiritual progress and understanding does not come from committees and agencies. It is only the free individual, who answers to and communes with God, that can spiritually grow and apprehend the mysteries of the Holy Spirit. Without freedom of the individual, there can be no inspiration, no creativity, and no progress. Without liberty, all is lost.

How then did the Cause of Baha'u'llah become so denigrated and polluted by the pernicious ideas that the thoughts and minds of Baha'is must be controlled and limited for the sake of unity and protection of the community?

Posted at 10:22 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Bahai Liberty

In observing the behavior of the leaders of the Baha'is who presently occupy the Bahai World Center in Israel and the Wilmette headquarters of the Bahai Faith in the USA, you might not realize that one of the fundamental teachings of the Cause of Baha'u'llah is that individual conscience and the liberty of the individual is essential for peace and for the spiritual growth of humanity.

In the words of Abdu'l-Baha:

"The standard of liberty is held aloft in this land. You enjoy political liberty; you enjoy liberty of thought and speech, religious liberty, racial and personal liberty. Surely this is worthy of appreciation and thanksgiving.... Liberalism is essential in this day -- justness and equity toward all nations and people." (The Promulgation of Universal Peace, p. 390)

In other passages, Abdu'l-Baha refers to liberty and freedom as bestowals from God. Any right thinking person will see that the heart of religion is the relationship and mystical union of the individual with God. Without liberty and freedom of conscience, it is impossible for mysticism to flourish.

The agencies of the State, corporate boards and bodies of all type have no soul. Spiritual progress and understanding does not come from committees and agencies. It is only the free individual, who answers to and communes with God, that can spiritually grow and apprehend the mysteries of the Holy Spirit. Without freedom of the individual, there can be no inspiration, no creativity, and no progress. Without liberty, all is lost.

How then did the Cause of Baha'u'llah become so denigrated and polluted by the pernicious ideas that the thoughts and minds of Baha'is must be controlled and limited for the sake of unity and protection of the community?

Posted at 10:22 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Huququ'llah is the Right of the Guardian Only

HUQUQU'LLAH IS THE RIGHT OF THE GUARDIAN ONLY THEREFORE RECEIPT OF HUQUQ BY THE BOGUS UHJ IS ILLEGITIMATE
by guest blogger
Hand of the Cause of God Y.H. Taylor

According to the Master's Will which complements the Aqdas, the Huquq goes only to the Guardian.

The bogus sans-Guardian organization (that is, the Bahai organization of currently occupying Haifa and Wilmette) collects Huquq, which according to the Will and Testament of Abdu'l Baha goes only to the Guardian of the Cause of God, "that it may be expended for the diffusion of the Fragrances of God and the exaltation of His Word, for benevolent pursuits and for the common weal." But the money that they take undeservedly and without having any authority is being used in opposition to "what God hath decreed" and is spent to make opposition and animosity against the Guardian of the Cause of God. The recent court case by the Wilmette NSA against the TRUE FAITH OF BAHA'U'LLAH is witness to it.

The Master in his Will and Testament says:
"O friends of 'Abdu'l-Baha! The Lord, as a sign of His infinite bounties, hath graciously favored His servants by providing for a fixed money offering (Huquq), to be dutifully presented unto Him, though He, the True One and His servants have been at all times independent of all created things, and God verily is the All-Possessing, exalted above the need of any gift from His creatures. This fixed money offering, however, causeth the people to become firm and steadfast and draweth Divine increase upon them. It is to be offered through the Guardian of the Cause of God, that it may be expended for the diffusion of the Fragrances of God and the exaltation of His Word, for benevolent pursuits and for the common weal".

And the first Guardian emphasized:
"There is a difference between taxes and spiritual offerings. The House of Justice has certain revenues such as inheritance shares, fees and fines. These are the taxes, which, according to the Aqdas, go directly not to the Guardian but to the House of Justice. According to the Master's Will which complements the Aqdas, the Huquq goes only to the Guardian."
(To Mr. George O. Latimer, Portland, Oregon, dated Haifa, June 17, 1933.)
(Shoghi Effendi, Extracts from the USBN)

Y.H. Taylor

Posted at 09:04 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Huququ'llah is the Right of the Guardian Only

HUQUQU'LLAH IS THE RIGHT OF THE GUARDIAN ONLY THEREFORE RECEIPT OF HUQUQ BY THE BOGUS UHJ IS ILLEGITIMATE
by guest blogger
Hand of the Cause of God Y.H. Taylor

According to the Master's Will which complements the Aqdas, the Huquq goes only to the Guardian.

The bogus sans-Guardian organization (that is, the Bahai organization of currently occupying Haifa and Wilmette) collects Huquq, which according to the Will and Testament of Abdu'l Baha goes only to the Guardian of the Cause of God, "that it may be expended for the diffusion of the Fragrances of God and the exaltation of His Word, for benevolent pursuits and for the common weal." But the money that they take undeservedly and without having any authority is being used in opposition to "what God hath decreed" and is spent to make opposition and animosity against the Guardian of the Cause of God. The recent court case by the Wilmette NSA against the TRUE FAITH OF BAHA'U'LLAH is witness to it.

The Master in his Will and Testament says:
"O friends of 'Abdu'l-Baha! The Lord, as a sign of His infinite bounties, hath graciously favored His servants by providing for a fixed money offering (Huquq), to be dutifully presented unto Him, though He, the True One and His servants have been at all times independent of all created things, and God verily is the All-Possessing, exalted above the need of any gift from His creatures. This fixed money offering, however, causeth the people to become firm and steadfast and draweth Divine increase upon them. It is to be offered through the Guardian of the Cause of God, that it may be expended for the diffusion of the Fragrances of God and the exaltation of His Word, for benevolent pursuits and for the common weal".

And the first Guardian emphasized:
"There is a difference between taxes and spiritual offerings. The House of Justice has certain revenues such as inheritance shares, fees and fines. These are the taxes, which, according to the Aqdas, go directly not to the Guardian but to the House of Justice. According to the Master's Will which complements the Aqdas, the Huquq goes only to the Guardian."
(To Mr. George O. Latimer, Portland, Oregon, dated Haifa, June 17, 1933.)
(Shoghi Effendi, Extracts from the USBN)

Y.H. Taylor

Posted at 09:04 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

We have unsealed the choice cyanide kool-aid!

I had to laugh out loud over the recent admission by a sans-Guardian Bahai in the talk.religion.bahai newsgroup who insisted that Baha'u'llah revealed the "stifling rules and regulations" enforced by the Bahai organization currently occupying Haifa and Wilmette.

Anyone with familiarity with that organization knows that their religion consists of a series of endless edicts about what one can or cannot think, do or say in every conceivable situation. They pump out book after book of "guidance" to tell their faithful flock how they are supposed to think and behave about everything for the sake of "unity." If perchance there is some area of their lives not covered by their stifling rules and regulations, there is only one thing to do about it. Not sure which shade of lipstick to use? Is it OK for unmarried persons to kiss? With or without tongue? Shoot off a letter to God's supposed representative on this earth, their so-called Universal House of Justice and ask them to please tell me what to do, what to say, what to believe.

Of course, you can't have stifling rules and regulations without stifling ENFORCEMENT. Luckily, there is a unified community of single-minded busybodies to get the job done. The non-stop job of the Bahai busybodies is to make sure that nobody is breaking any of the stifling rules and regulations and to punish those who do, so that their precious Faith will not fall into disrepute:

Busybody 1: "What time did Jane come home last night?"
Busybody 2: "Did she even come home? She was on a date and never came home at all!"
Busybody 1; "Who is she sleeping with? We need to have a talk with her and remind her that she will risk losing her (gasp) voting rights!"
Busybody 2: "LuAnne never goes out on dates. I wonder if she is at home masturbating? The UHJ said that was definitely not allowed."
Busybody 1: "I wonder how we can find out? We need to spy on her for the sake of the community."
Busybody 2: "Is John drinking again? Peter saw him in a bar the other night."
Busybody 1: "Oh really, what was Peter doing in a bar?"
Busybody 2: "Good point. I better report him to the LSA."

Am I exaggerating? Perhaps. But I have seen this kind of mind-boggling interference with people's lives when I was a cult member of this Bahai community.

But you know I have read up quite a bit on the Bahai Revelation over the years and frankly I cannot remember reading in the words of the founding figures of this Faith the remotest reference to the need for a Bahai community to organize for the purpose of spying upon and enforcing the personal "laws" of the Faith.

Baha'u'llah had this to say about His rules and regulations:

"Think not that We have revealed unto you a mere code of laws. Nay, rather, We have unsealed the choice Wine with the fingers of might and power. To this beareth witness that which the Pen of Revelation hath revealed. Meditate upon this, O men of insight!" Baha'u'llah, The Kitab-i-Aqdas, p. 21

Let's meditate upon this for a moment. He did not say that He wanted you to drink the cyanide-laced kool-aid of sicko cultists. He said it was the choice Wine. Note the capital letters. I think that has something to do with God-intoxication and not a network of busybodies making sure everybody is doing the right thing, saying the right thing, and thinking the right thoughts.

There is an idea. God intoxication. That is, a soul in connection with the Beloved. Mystic intercourse with the Holy Spirit. Remember that spiritual stuff?

Could it be that the personal laws of the Bahai revelation are guidelines for leading a spiritual life that each person needs to internalize within his or her own life?

Could it be that the purpose of the Bahai revelation is the spiritual growth of the entire community by each member of that community fighting his or her own spiritual battles?

Could it be that the role of the community and its administrative institutions is to foster and facilitate this growth and not to promulgate and enforce stifing rules and regulations that lord over the individual members?

I think it could be.

The thing that really amazes me is that there so many individuals who are willing to allow others to impose external control over their minds and bodies. Why don't they wake up?

Posted at 09:53 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink | Comments (0) | TrackBack (0)

True Bahá'í

We have unsealed the choice cyanide kool-aid!

I had to laugh out loud over the recent admission by a sans-Guardian Bahai in the talk.religion.bahai newsgroup who insisted that Baha'u'llah revealed the "stifling rules and regulations" enforced by the Bahai organization currently occupying Haifa and Wilmette.

Anyone with familiarity with that organization knows that their religion consists of a series of endless edicts about what one can or cannot think, do or say in every conceivable situation. They pump out book after book of "guidance" to tell their faithful flock how they are supposed to think and behave about everything for the sake of "unity." If perchance there is some area of their lives not covered by their stifling rules and regulations, there is only one thing to do about it. Not sure which shade of lipstick to use? Is it OK for unmarried persons to kiss? With or without tongue? Shoot off a letter to God's supposed representative on this earth, their so-called Universal House of Justice and ask them to please tell me what to do, what to say, what to believe.

Of course, you can't have stifling rules and regulations without stifling ENFORCEMENT. Luckily, there is a unified community of single-minded busybodies to get the job done. The non-stop job of the Bahai busybodies is to make sure that nobody is breaking any of the stifling rules and regulations and to punish those who do, so that their precious Faith will not fall into disrepute:

Busybody 1: "What time did Jane come home last night?"
Busybody 2: "Did she even come home? She was on a date and never came home at all!"
Busybody 1; "Who is she sleeping with? We need to have a talk with her and remind her that she will risk losing her (gasp) voting rights!"
Busybody 2: "LuAnne never goes out on dates. I wonder if she is at home masturbating? The UHJ said that was definitely not allowed."
Busybody 1: "I wonder how we can find out? We need to spy on her for the sake of the community."
Busybody 2: "Is John drinking again? Peter saw him in a bar the other night."
Busybody 1: "Oh really, what was Peter doing in a bar?"
Busybody 2: "Good point. I better report him to the LSA."

Am I exaggerating? Perhaps. But I have seen this kind of mind-boggling interference with people's lives when I was a cult member of this Bahai community.

But you know I have read up quite a bit on the Bahai Revelation over the years and frankly I cannot remember reading in the words of the founding figures of this Faith the remotest reference to the need for a Bahai community to organize for the purpose of spying upon and enforcing the personal "laws" of the Faith.

Baha'u'llah had this to say about His rules and regulations:

"Think not that We have revealed unto you a mere code of laws. Nay, rather, We have unsealed the choice Wine with the fingers of might and power. To this beareth witness that which the Pen of Revelation hath revealed. Meditate upon this, O men of insight!" Baha'u'llah, The Kitab-i-Aqdas, p. 21

Let's meditate upon this for a moment. He did not say that He wanted you to drink the cyanide-laced kool-aid of sicko cultists. He said it was the choice Wine. Note the capital letters. I think that has something to do with God-intoxication and not a network of busybodies making sure everybody is doing the right thing, saying the right thing, and thinking the right thoughts.

There is an idea. God intoxication. That is, a soul in connection with the Beloved. Mystic intercourse with the Holy Spirit. Remember that spiritual stuff?

Could it be that the personal laws of the Bahai revelation are guidelines for leading a spiritual life that each person needs to internalize within his or her own life?

Could it be that the purpose of the Bahai revelation is the spiritual growth of the entire community by each member of that community fighting his or her own spiritual battles?

Could it be that the role of the community and its administrative institutions is to foster and facilitate this growth and not to promulgate and enforce stifing rules and regulations that lord over the individual members?

I think it could be.

The thing that really amazes me is that there so many individuals who are willing to allow others to impose external control over their minds and bodies. Why don't they wake up?

Posted at 09:53 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink | Comments (0) | TrackBack (0)

True Bahá'í

Message from LSA of Lucknow (India) in 1957

Message from LSA of Lucknow (India) in 1957 to Bahai's of the World
Reproduced by National Bahai Council of Orthodox Bahais of India

by guest blogger
Hand of the Cause of God Y.H. Taylor

In this period of strife, India is privileged to be a light to the world, the torch-bearer of a message of universal brotherhood. Indian culture possesses the capacity for rejuvenation, and can without loss of continuity bring about a spiritual change. Indian people, though somewhat slow-going, have the strength and vitality of youth, and so have preserved their basic human instinct for love of the truth. Their instinct reacts infallibly to the impact of realities. They are capable of effecting changes, not by imposition nor by intimidation, but by the process of education, a spiritual refining.

How many of us are aware that the Local Spiritual Assembly of Lucknow, upon the passing of Shoghi Effendi in 1957, stood up valiantly for this very basic human instinct of LOVE FOR THE TRUTH, and faithfully demonstrated its fidelity to the Will And Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, in refusing to conform to the dictates of the violating Hands of Cause who conspired to make the religion of Bahá'u'lláh conform to their own whims and wishes? These violating Hands of the Cause were bent upon exploitation of the Sacred Name in following a policy of imposition and intimidation.

It is a well known fact that when men follow a policy of secret collusion, of which these Hands were guilty at the very first conclave of Hands, held in 'Akká following the passing of Shoghi Effendi, they cut themselves off from the truth and they become deluded by ignorance, and developed satanic perversity or egotism that proclaims itself absolute both in knowledge and power. The LSA of Lucknow, undeterred by this policy of intimidation, passed a resolution in the presence of seven members of the Assembly on November 9th, 1957, resolving that "the activities of this L.S.A. be suspended till the appointment of the next Guardian of the Faith."

Y.H. Taylor

The letter written by the Local Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of Lucknow in 1957:

Resolution passed in the presence of seven members of the Assembly (L.S.A.

LUCKNOW) on November 9th,1957

REGISTERED SOCIETY NO. 141 NOVEMBER 18, 1958

(U.P.INDIA) RAFFANIAN
L.S.A. (LUCKNOW) HAIFA, ISRAEL

Where as by a resolution passed in the presence of seven members of the Assembly on November 9th, 1957, it was resolved that "the activities of this L.S.A. be suspended til the appointment of the next Guardian of the Faith" and the same was intimated to the N.S.A., New Delhi, and whereas it comes under the purview of the Supreme Council, so therefore it behooves this assembly to place the following arguments without prejudice, before the aforementioned Supreme Council through Raffanian, Haifa (Israel):

1. Man's nature is two-fold; he is spirit and body and therefore, at once, a citizen of this world and of the* Heavenly City.

2. The State of Guardianship is the supermost thing upon Earth, for the Guardians are not only God's lieutenants upon earth, and sit upon God's throne, but even by God Himself they are called Gods. That which concerns the mystery of The Guardian's power is not lawful to be disputed, for, that is to wade into the weakness of Gods, and to take away the mystical reverence that belongs unto the temporal presence of them that sit in the Throne of God.*

3. The Guardian ought to have no equal in his realm because this would nullify the rule that an equal cannot have authority over his equals. Still less ought he to have a superior or anyone more powerful than he, for he would then be below his own deputies and it is impossible that inferiors should be equal to the Supreme.*

4. The Supremacy of the Guardian in spiritual matters is absolute under God. Substantially He is the "AKDAS" in the sense that he can neither be removed nor held responsible and has ultimate authority over the rest of the hierarchy, which his deputies have not. The Guardian has full power to create Hands of the Cause and can do so without any of the customary forms of election.*

5. The unique power possessed by The Guardian alone, is, therefore a "Divine Right". It confers a peculiar superiority, a power of revision and supervision over all other forms of authority whether ecclesiastical or secular. In substance the Guardian alone is the head of the entire legal system, not, indeed, as a universal executive but as a court of final authority which functions not in absentia but by presence. It is evident that it is impossible to invest the community or even the Hands of the Cause, with the supreme authority which is the Divine prerogative of the Guardian.*

6. The present system is but conciliary and the concilliarists have set against it the ideal of a harmony of powers cooperating by free and mutual consent. Such an argument is fought with the implication that God had changed the mode of imposing His Divine Right according to the wishes of the few. Such a democratic conception is vitally opposed to the Spirit of the Faith. The concilliarist theory strands curiously balanced between past and present. Wherever authority stands upon the exploitation of a sacred name, intimidation has to be adopted as policy on considerations.*

L.S.A. Lucknow in animated suspense til the consecration of the Guardian on His vacant throne.

51 Sundarbagh,

Lucknow

U.P. (India)

Posted at 11:48 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Message from LSA of Lucknow (India) in 1957

Message from LSA of Lucknow (India) in 1957 to Bahai's of the World
Reproduced by National Bahai Council of Orthodox Bahais of India

by guest blogger
Hand of the Cause of God Y.H. Taylor

In this period of strife, India is privileged to be a light to the world, the torch-bearer of a message of universal brotherhood. Indian culture possesses the capacity for rejuvenation, and can without loss of continuity bring about a spiritual change. Indian people, though somewhat slow-going, have the strength and vitality of youth, and so have preserved their basic human instinct for love of the truth. Their instinct reacts infallibly to the impact of realities. They are capable of effecting changes, not by imposition nor by intimidation, but by the process of education, a spiritual refining.

How many of us are aware that the Local Spiritual Assembly of Lucknow, upon the passing of Shoghi Effendi in 1957, stood up valiantly for this very basic human instinct of LOVE FOR THE TRUTH, and faithfully demonstrated its fidelity to the Will And Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, in refusing to conform to the dictates of the violating Hands of Cause who conspired to make the religion of Bahá'u'lláh conform to their own whims and wishes? These violating Hands of the Cause were bent upon exploitation of the Sacred Name in following a policy of imposition and intimidation.

It is a well known fact that when men follow a policy of secret collusion, of which these Hands were guilty at the very first conclave of Hands, held in 'Akká following the passing of Shoghi Effendi, they cut themselves off from the truth and they become deluded by ignorance, and developed satanic perversity or egotism that proclaims itself absolute both in knowledge and power. The LSA of Lucknow, undeterred by this policy of intimidation, passed a resolution in the presence of seven members of the Assembly on November 9th, 1957, resolving that "the activities of this L.S.A. be suspended till the appointment of the next Guardian of the Faith."

Y.H. Taylor

The letter written by the Local Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of Lucknow in 1957:

Resolution passed in the presence of seven members of the Assembly (L.S.A.

LUCKNOW) on November 9th,1957

REGISTERED SOCIETY NO. 141 NOVEMBER 18, 1958

(U.P.INDIA) RAFFANIAN
L.S.A. (LUCKNOW) HAIFA, ISRAEL

Where as by a resolution passed in the presence of seven members of the Assembly on November 9th, 1957, it was resolved that "the activities of this L.S.A. be suspended til the appointment of the next Guardian of the Faith" and the same was intimated to the N.S.A., New Delhi, and whereas it comes under the purview of the Supreme Council, so therefore it behooves this assembly to place the following arguments without prejudice, before the aforementioned Supreme Council through Raffanian, Haifa (Israel):

1. Man's nature is two-fold; he is spirit and body and therefore, at once, a citizen of this world and of the* Heavenly City.

2. The State of Guardianship is the supermost thing upon Earth, for the Guardians are not only God's lieutenants upon earth, and sit upon God's throne, but even by God Himself they are called Gods. That which concerns the mystery of The Guardian's power is not lawful to be disputed, for, that is to wade into the weakness of Gods, and to take away the mystical reverence that belongs unto the temporal presence of them that sit in the Throne of God.*

3. The Guardian ought to have no equal in his realm because this would nullify the rule that an equal cannot have authority over his equals. Still less ought he to have a superior or anyone more powerful than he, for he would then be below his own deputies and it is impossible that inferiors should be equal to the Supreme.*

4. The Supremacy of the Guardian in spiritual matters is absolute under God. Substantially He is the "AKDAS" in the sense that he can neither be removed nor held responsible and has ultimate authority over the rest of the hierarchy, which his deputies have not. The Guardian has full power to create Hands of the Cause and can do so without any of the customary forms of election.*

5. The unique power possessed by The Guardian alone, is, therefore a "Divine Right". It confers a peculiar superiority, a power of revision and supervision over all other forms of authority whether ecclesiastical or secular. In substance the Guardian alone is the head of the entire legal system, not, indeed, as a universal executive but as a court of final authority which functions not in absentia but by presence. It is evident that it is impossible to invest the community or even the Hands of the Cause, with the supreme authority which is the Divine prerogative of the Guardian.*

6. The present system is but conciliary and the concilliarists have set against it the ideal of a harmony of powers cooperating by free and mutual consent. Such an argument is fought with the implication that God had changed the mode of imposing His Divine Right according to the wishes of the few. Such a democratic conception is vitally opposed to the Spirit of the Faith. The concilliarist theory strands curiously balanced between past and present. Wherever authority stands upon the exploitation of a sacred name, intimidation has to be adopted as policy on considerations.*

L.S.A. Lucknow in animated suspense til the consecration of the Guardian on His vacant throne.

51 Sundarbagh,

Lucknow

U.P. (India)

Posted at 11:48 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Shoghi Effendi the seer?

There is a video recently uploaded to youtube that refers to Shoghi Effendi, the first Guardian of the Bahai Faith, as a seer and oracle because he apparently predicted the internet years before anyone else:

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=6V28gQFnnFA

The video sets forth the famous quote of the first Guardian about the internet: "A mechanism of world inter-communication will be devised, embracing the whole planet, freed from national hindrances and restrictions, and functioning with marvellous swiftness and perfect regularity." The World Order of Baha'u'llah, p. 203.

It appears the video was created by a heterodox Bahai (it is an ad for the Bahai Faith presently headquartered in Haifa and Wilmette that we call heterodox because they have strayed from the original teachings of the Faith). I don't know what is most remarkable. The fact that these Bahais continue to deify Shoghi Effendi by referring to him as a seer and an oracle, or the fact that a heterodox Bahai has actually read the World Order of Baha'u'llah. Of course, Shoghi Effendi was not a seer. He was the Guardian and he was giving his interpretation of the teachings of Baha'u'llah. The Guardian is an ordinary human being who holds a divine office, and therefore he is guided when performing his official functions in the Faith. The video makes it sound like Shoghi Effendi was the Prophet of the Bahai religion.

This did get me to thinking about the internet, and what a gift from God it is. Not only is it removing the national barriers and creating a global community, but it is such an arena of freedom that the heterodox Baha'is are unable to silence their critics. Not that they are not trying to do so. They will fail, however, as long as the internet is free "from national hindrances and restrictions."

Posted at 11:23 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink | Comments (0) | TrackBack (0)

True Bahá'í

Shoghi Effendi the seer?

There is a video recently uploaded to youtube that refers to Shoghi Effendi, the first Guardian of the Bahai Faith, as a seer and oracle because he apparently predicted the internet years before anyone else:

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=6V28gQFnnFA

The video sets forth the famous quote of the first Guardian about the internet: "A mechanism of world inter-communication will be devised, embracing the whole planet, freed from national hindrances and restrictions, and functioning with marvellous swiftness and perfect regularity." The World Order of Baha'u'llah, p. 203.

It appears the video was created by a heterodox Bahai (it is an ad for the Bahai Faith presently headquartered in Haifa and Wilmette that we call heterodox because they have strayed from the original teachings of the Faith). I don't know what is most remarkable. The fact that these Bahais continue to deify Shoghi Effendi by referring to him as a seer and an oracle, or the fact that a heterodox Bahai has actually read the World Order of Baha'u'llah. Of course, Shoghi Effendi was not a seer. He was the Guardian and he was giving his interpretation of the teachings of Baha'u'llah. The Guardian is an ordinary human being who holds a divine office, and therefore he is guided when performing his official functions in the Faith. The video makes it sound like Shoghi Effendi was the Prophet of the Bahai religion.

This did get me to thinking about the internet, and what a gift from God it is. Not only is it removing the national barriers and creating a global community, but it is such an arena of freedom that the heterodox Baha'is are unable to silence their critics. Not that they are not trying to do so. They will fail, however, as long as the internet is free "from national hindrances and restrictions."

Posted at 11:23 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Shoghi Effendi the seer?

There is a video recently uploaded to youtube that refers to Shoghi Effendi, the first Guardian of the Bahai Faith, as a seer and oracle because he apparently predicted the internet years before anyone else:

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=6V28gQFnnFA

The video sets forth the famous quote of the first Guardian about the internet: "A mechanism of world inter-communication will be devised, embracing the whole planet, freed from national hindrances and restrictions, and functioning with marvellous swiftness and perfect regularity." The World Order of Baha'u'llah, p. 203.

It appears the video was created by a heterodox Bahai (it is an ad for the Bahai Faith presently headquartered in Haifa and Wilmette that we call heterodox because they have strayed from the original teachings of the Faith). I don't know what is most remarkable. The fact that these Bahais continue to deify Shoghi Effendi by referring to him as a seer and an oracle, or the fact that a heterodox Bahai has actually read the World Order of Baha'u'llah. Of course, Shoghi Effendi was not a seer. He was the Guardian and he was giving his interpretation of the teachings of Baha'u'llah. The Guardian is an ordinary human being who holds a divine office, and therefore he is guided when performing his official functions in the Faith. The video makes it sound like Shoghi Effendi was the Prophet of the Bahai religion.

This did get me to thinking about the internet, and what a gift from God it is. Not only is it removing the national barriers and creating a global community, but it is such an arena of freedom that the heterodox Baha'is are unable to silence their critics. Not that they are not trying to do so. They will fail, however, as long as the internet is free "from national hindrances and restrictions."

Posted at 11:23 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

They are cursed and trapped

Img_0157 by guest blogger:
Hand of the Cause of God Nosrat'u'llah Bahremand

A few years ago one of the Heterodox Baha'is told me that when Mason Remey, the second Guardian of the Cause of God broke his silence and sent his Proclamation to the American National Convention, the former Hands desperately started looking every where in the Writings to find anything to support their bogus claim and any thing to give legitimacy to their illegitimately appointed body of Custodians. Of course there was not even a word that they could find, so they had exhausted their search and were disappointed. Then one day, Mr. Varqa, one of the Hands, said he had good news as he had found something and then showed them a passage in the Aqdas regarding "Endowments dedicated to charity" and gave his interpretation which was accepted by the desperate Hands. That unauthorized and erroneous interpretation is the one which now is used by the bogus UHJ and its pawns. I am not sure how much of this story is accurate but I believe there is no reason to doubt its accuracy. Any how, I think Mr Varqa is still alive and he can explain whether he was the originator of this erroneous interpretation or if it was someone else.

It seems that the headless and bogus UHJ, which is the product of the violators of the Covenant, i.e. the former Hands of the Cause, is cursed and trapped in their malice and wickedness for they have not only violated and misrepresented the Will and Testament of the Master but they have also transgressed against the Aqdas and violated this most Holy Book. They disregarded the following warning of Baha'u'llah in The Aqdas:

"Whoso interpreteth what hath been sent down from the heaven of Revelation, and altereth its evident meaning, he, verily, is of them that have perverted the Sublime Word of God, and is of the lost ones in the Lucid Book." (The Kitab-i-Aqdas, p. 57)

In 1992 when they translated and published the Aqdas in English they added some notes to the Book, Many of them contain unauthorised and erroneous interpretations.

In their translation they conveniently and sinfully changed the meaning of the word "bilaad" (cities) in the passage about endowments, to "world," to suit their evil intentions.

"Endowments dedicated to charity revert to God, the Revealer of Signs. None hath the right to dispose of them without leave from Him Who is the Dawning-place of Revelation. After Him, this authority shall pass to the Aghsan, and after them to the House of Justice -- should it be established in the world by then -- that they may use these endowments for the benefit of the Places which have been exalted in this Cause, and for whatsoever hath been enjoined upon them by Him Who is the God of might and power. Otherwise, the endowments shall revert to the people of Baha who speak not except by His leave and judge not save in accordance with what God hath decreed in this Tablet -- lo, they are the champions of victory betwixt heaven and earth -- that they may use them in the manner that hath been laid down in the Book by God, the Mighty, the Bountiful. (The Kitab-i-Aqdas, p. 34)

In their notes, they illegitimately and erroneously interpreted this passage of Aqdas to mean that the main reason for including this verse was to tell the people that the Guardianship had been ended only 36 years after its establishment whereas, He in the same Holy Book:

"...alludes to the future Centre of His Covenant, and invests Him with the right of interpreting His holy Writ; anticipates by implication the institution of Guardianship; ..."
(God Passes By p.214)

Also in the Will and Testament of Abdu'l Baha which is: "...the Charter of a future world civilization, which may be regarded in some of its features as supplementary to no less weighty a Book than the Kitab-i-Aqdas; signed and sealed by 'Abdu'l-Baha; entirely written with His own hand; ... establishes the institution of the Guardianship as a hereditary office and outlines its essential functions;" (God Passes By, p. 327)

And while His rightful interpreter; the first Guardian of the Cause of God assures the continuation of the Guardianship until the end of the Baha'i Dispensation:

"In this Dispensation, Divine guidance flows on to us in this world after the Prophet's ascension, through first the Master, and then the Guardians." (Lights of Guidance, p.310)

Let's examine the erroneous and unauthorized interpretations of the man made, headless Body:

Note "66. "Aghsan," Paragraph 42 "Aghsan" (plural of Ghusn) is the Arabic word for "Branches". This term is used by Baha'u'llah to designate His male descendants."

Baha'u'llah only titled each one of His Sons using a superlative or comparative adjective and the word Ghusn such as Ghusn-I-Azam (Greatest Branch) and Ghusn-I-At-har(Purest Branch). or Ghusn-I-Akbar (Greater Branch) He never gave anybody other than His sons such a title or never did He write any thing to designate His male descendants to carry on such titles.

Baha'u'llah in the Kitab-i-Ahd (Book of the Covenant) refers to His sons using the plural of (Ghusn) *Aghsan * i.e. Branches; but He distinguishes Aghsan (His sons) from His other descendants, such as His own kindred and members of the Holy Household, while the first Guardian has identified Aghsan as the sons of Baha'u'llah [God Passes By p.239] and [Gleanings from the Writings of Baha'u'llah p.244]. Even at the time of Abdu'l Baha it was well understood that Branches means sons of Baha'u'llah as this is quite evident from the following Tablet of Abdu'l Baha:

"O thou whose heart is attracted and whose breast is dilated with joy by the Holy Fragrances!

"Give the glad-tidings to the assemblies of the beloved who are firm in the Covenant and say:

"Verily the Lord hath manifested Himself in this new and wonderful age with the greatest bounty and mercy, which have never been preceded and whereof the eye of existence hath never seen the like; and it is His Great Covenant and New Testament, as appointed by the trace of His Supreme Pen, through which, and according to clear ordinances and explicit statements, the matter was plainly shown and the branches (sons), twigs (relations), kinsmen and beloved were commanded to obey the "appointed Center of the Covenant." But the Covenant of God and His Testament is a bounty to the righteous and a curse to the wicked." (Abdu'l-Baha, Tablets of Abdu'l-Baha v2, p. 438)

Generally in Baha'u'llah's Writings the word ghusn and its plural aghsan similar to its meaning in English (branch) and (branches) are used as the original meaning (branch of tree) or other type of usage in representational or symbolic ways, but interestingly mostly these words are used to show spiritual connection or intellectual realities:

"Since the affectionate and faithful believers are as the aghsan (branches) and the leaves of this Holy Tree, therefore whatever (hostility and injuries) falls on the Mighty Stock; it will occur to the aghsan (branches), twigs and leaves as well, this is how in every age these tragedies and nuisances have been and will be for the lovers of the Beauty of All-Glorious." (Baha'u'llah, Al'vah-i-Moba'rakeh, p.343) (Ma'idiy-i-Asmani. Vol 4, p.42)

"O' Seeker when ye see the names in The Holy Scriptures mentioning Blessedness, Divine Lote-Tree, Forbidden tree, Leaves, Fruits and the like; do not consider them fantasy, in the sight of God; the purpose of all these names has been and will be the devoted believer of God, and as long as the believer is in the shadow of the Divine Tree he will be from the Tree of Blessedness and exalted in the presence of God, but after turning away will be from the burning bush of Hell, while being Faithful; afnan (twigs), aghsan (branches), o'ragh (leaves) and assmar (fruits) will be perceived as substantiated and after opposition all will considered as rejected and abandoned" (Baha'u'llah, Ma'idiy-i-Asmani. Vol 7, p.21)

In the continuation of the same note 66 they have written the following erroneous and sinful interpretation and flawed argument:

"It has particular implications not only for the disposition of endowments but also for the succession of authority following the passing of Baha'u'llah and of 'Abdu'l-Baha. Baha'u'llah, in the Book of His Covenant, appointed 'Abdu'l-Baha, His eldest son, as the Centre of His Covenant and the Head of the Faith. Abdu'l-Baha, in His Will and Testament, appointed Shoghi Effendi, His eldest grandson, as the Guardian and Head of the Faith. This passage of the Aqdas, therefore, anticipates the succession of chosen Aghsan and thus the institution of the Guardianship and envisages the possibility of a break in their line."

By their falsity and error they consider the "Endowments dedicated to charity" like a family foundation and business which has to be kept in the family, so with their other false interpretation that Aghsan means male descendent of Baha'u'llah, any remaining blood descendant can be a claimant to the Baha'i properties in the Holy land. The fact is that Endowments dedicated to charity is not a family business, it has nothing to do with the Guardianship, it is a revenue for the Houses of Justice (Local, National and International) on the other hand, the Aghsan mentioned in this section did not exist after Abdu'l Baha since Shoghi Effendi was not an Aghsan (i.e. sons of Baha'u'llah) he was a ghusn-i-momtaz (chosen branch) he was chosen from among "affectionate and faithful believers" (branches) as were the second and third Guardians.

Abdu'l Baha in one of his Tablets gives the following direction and guidance:

"Prior to establishment of the House of Justice, Endowments dedicated to charity revert to a spiritual assembly which is free from remnants of concupiscence, there is no other arrangement."
(Ganjineh-i-hodood va Ahkam, p.221)

Shoghi Effendi first Guardian of the Cause of God wrote:

"There is a difference between taxes and spiritual offerings. The House of Justice has certain revenues such as inheritance shares, fees and fines. These are the taxes which, according to the Aqdas, go directly not to the Guardian but to the House of Justice. According to the Master's Will which complements the Aqdas, the Huquq goes only to the Guardian." (To Mr. George O. Latimer, Portland, Oregon, dated Haifa, June 17, 1933.) (Shoghi Effendi, Extracts from the USBN)

The first Guardian during his ministry in more than one hundred of his messages and letters strongly encouraged National and Local Spiritual Assemblies to establish their local and national endowments, even urging the National Spiritual Assemblies to have a part of their International endowments in the Holy Land registered in their names.

"Theirs is the unrivalled opportunity, should they bestir themselves, to carry forward to a triumphant conclusion this first corporate effort to which they have consecrated themselves and their nascent institutions, to embark, in the course of subsequent Plans, on enterprises destined to safeguard and consolidate, in all parts of the motherland, the achievements so hardly won, to proclaim, unequivocally, systematically and effectively, to the masses throughout the length and breadth of the British Isles the verities enshrined in their Faith, to initiate the establishment of a befitting National Haziratu'l-Quds in either the capital of the United Kingdom or further north in the very heart of the British Isles, to inaugurate national and local endowments, to incorporate the newly constituted assemblies, to undertake the preliminary measures for the erection of the first Mashriqu'l-Adhkar in the British Empire," (Shoghi Effendi, The Unfolding Destiny of the British Baha'i Community, p. 220)

"Canadian National Assembly, the establishment of National Baha'i Endowments, doubling the number of Local Assemblies throughout the Dominion and raising to one hundred the total number of localities where Baha'is reside throughout the Provinces, the constitution of a group in Newfoundland and the formation of a nucleus of the Faith in the Territory of Greenland, singled out for special mention by the Author of the Divine Plan, and the participation of Eskimos and Red Indians in membership to share administrative privileges in local institutions of the Faith in Canada" (Shoghi Effendi, Messages to Canada, p. 7)

"The incorporation of firmly established Local Spiritual Assemblies must simultaneously be accelerated in order to strengthen the structure of these newly established institutions, and pave the way for the establishment of local Baha'i endowments." (Shoghi Effendi, Messages to Canada, p. 48)

"He was very pleased to learn of this endowment, now registered in the name of your Spiritual Assembly, and most generously contributed to the Faith of Baha'u'llah by the dear Baha'i friends Mr and Mrs. Bakhtiari... It is of the utmost importance that gradually, as the Communities grow stronger, they should acquire endowments to be used for the benefit of all the Baha'is. This not only reinforces the sense of community life, but enhances the prestige of the Faith in the eyes of their fellow citizens".

(Shoghi Effendi, Messages to the Indian Subcontinent, p. 215)

"NEWLY-ESTABLISHED ISRAEL BRANCH OF NATIONAL ASSEMBLY
While the members of this valiant, this highly gifted, forward marching and deeply consecrated community, and particularly its alert and zealous national representatives, labour to attain these immediate goals, that constitute the distinguishing features and the prime objectives of this newly opened phase of the Crusade, the measures initiated recently in the Holy Land to transfer eventually part of the international Baha'i endowments on Mt. Carmel to the name of the newly-established Branch of the Canadian National Spiritual Assembly will be steadily and energetically pursued, as a mark of abiding appreciation of the magnificence and exemplary achievements of this community in recent years in the service of the Cause of Baha'u'llah."
Shoghi Effendi, Messages to Canada, p. 48)

The fact that the Endowments dedicated to charity is revenue for the House of Justice is quite clear and well understood by Iranian Baha'i scholars during the time of Abdu'l Baha and Shoghi Effendi. Following are the links to two different books from two highly knowledgeable teachers of the Faith. Both of them have written about the passage on endowments in the section of the Aqdas pertaining to the revenues of the House of Justice:

http://www.reference.bahai.org/fa/t/c/GHA/gha-229.html

http://www.reference.bahai.org/fa/t/c/AK4/ak4-272.html#pg268

Another erroneous and unauthorised interpretation about the "people of Baha":

"The term "people of Baha" is used with a number of different meanings in the Baha'i Writings. In this instance, they are described as those 'who speak not except by His leave and judge not save in accordance with what God hath decreed in this Tablet.' Following the passing of Shoghi Effendi in 1957, the Hands of the Cause of God directed the affairs of the Cause until the election of the Universal House of Justice in 1963"

"People of Baha" simply means people of Baha, i.e. Baha'is. To say otherwise, means that those former Hands of the Cause who have arrogated unto themselves the collective Guardianship have grossly misinterpreted its meaning. They have obviously altered the evident meaning of the word in the Book, let alone conceded the fact that only the Guardian of the Cause of God has the authority to interpret. It is amazing that those Hands who were violators of the Covenant, and had caused a breach in the Cause of God, and subverted His Word, and become the manifestation of the Center of Sedition, described themselves as those "who speak not except by His leave and judge not save in accordance with what God hath decreed in this Tablet". Who did describe themselves as those? Themselves? The bogus UHJ? How can they do that? In fact they did so in opposition to "what God hath decreed"

"What deviation can be greater than interpolating and falsifying the words and verses of the Sacred Text," (Abdu'l-Baha, The Will and Testament, p. 5)

A book which is published by the Heterodox Baha'is in 1997, based on the Ishraq-i-khavari's talks about the Aqdas, contains some points which he could not help himself from saying and which also has escaped the censor, includes the following:

"Abdu'l Baha in a tablet explicitly explains that these "people of Baha" are the Spiritual Assemblies who are managing the spiritual affairs of the Baha'i communities in cities before the establishment of the House of Justice." http://www.reference.bahai.org/fa/t/o/TDKA/tdka-137.html#pg116

I have not seen the Tablet which Ishraq-i-khavari has mentioned but I am certain that it is true since Abdu'l Baha wrote:

"Prior to establishment of the House of Justice, Endowments dedicated to charity revert to the spiritual assembly which is free from remnants of concupiscence, there is no other arrangement."
(Ganjineh-i-hodood va Ahkam, p.221)

Following is the interpretation of the "people of Baha" by the rightful interpreter of word of God, Joel B Marangella, the third Guardian, in response to the question of an individual dated 12 April 2003

"If you will refer to page 154 in "God Passes By", in the fifth line from the top of the page you will find this statement: "Rejoice with exceeding gladness, O people of Baha!" It is clear that Baha'u'llah is referring to all faithful believers in this passage. As to the other clauses under the same heading of the Aqdas, one must, of course, when reading the Aqdas always keep in mind that the Will and Testament of the Master supplements the Aqdas, as explained by Shoghi Effendi. In this instance, it is clear that, similarly to the administration of other types of endowments, endowments or gifts to charity are currently administered, on behalf of the believers, that is, the "people of Baha" at national or local levels by their representatives in the Baha'i Administrative Order, that is their respective Assemblies (future Houses of Justice) and will in the future be administered by the Universal House of Justice, (when established) for any international endowments and by National and Local Houses of Justice, for endowments at those levels, as appropriate."

I have to remind Baha'is that:

"The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the Guardian of the Cause of God. It is incumbent upon the members of the House of Justice, upon all the Aghsan, the Afnan, the Hands of the Cause of God to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the Guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him. He that opposeth him hath opposed the True One, will make a breach in the Cause of God, will subvert His Word and will become a manifestation of the Center of Sedition." (Abdu'l-Baha, The Will and Testament, p. 11)

Nosrat

Posted at 11:54 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

They are cursed and trapped

Img_0157 by guest blogger:
Hand of the Cause of God Nosrat'u'llah Bahremand

A few years ago one of the Heterodox Baha'is told me that when Mason Remey, the second Guardian of the Cause of God broke his silence and sent his Proclamation to the American National Convention, the former Hands desperately started looking every where in the Writings to find anything to support their bogus claim and any thing to give legitimacy to their illegitimately appointed body of Custodians. Of course there was not even a word that they could find, so they had exhausted their search and were disappointed. Then one day, Mr. Varqa, one of the Hands, said he had good news as he had found something and then showed them a passage in the Aqdas regarding "Endowments dedicated to charity" and gave his interpretation which was accepted by the desperate Hands. That unauthorized and erroneous interpretation is the one which now is used by the bogus UHJ and its pawns. I am not sure how much of this story is accurate but I believe there is no reason to doubt its accuracy. Any how, I think Mr Varqa is still alive and he can explain whether he was the originator of this erroneous interpretation or if it was someone else.

It seems that the headless and bogus UHJ, which is the product of the violators of the Covenant, i.e. the former Hands of the Cause, is cursed and trapped in their malice and wickedness for they have not only violated and misrepresented the Will and Testament of the Master but they have also transgressed against the Aqdas and violated this most Holy Book. They disregarded the following warning of Baha'u'llah in The Aqdas:

"Whoso interpreteth what hath been sent down from the heaven of Revelation, and altereth its evident meaning, he, verily, is of them that have perverted the Sublime Word of God, and is of the lost ones in the Lucid Book." (The Kitab-i-Aqdas, p. 57)

In 1992 when they translated and published the Aqdas in English they added some notes to the Book, Many of them contain unauthorised and erroneous interpretations.

In their translation they conveniently and sinfully changed the meaning of the word "bilaad" (cities) in the passage about endowments, to "world," to suit their evil intentions.

"Endowments dedicated to charity revert to God, the Revealer of Signs. None hath the right to dispose of them without leave from Him Who is the Dawning-place of Revelation. After Him, this authority shall pass to the Aghsan, and after them to the House of Justice -- should it be established in the world by then -- that they may use these endowments for the benefit of the Places which have been exalted in this Cause, and for whatsoever hath been enjoined upon them by Him Who is the God of might and power. Otherwise, the endowments shall revert to the people of Baha who speak not except by His leave and judge not save in accordance with what God hath decreed in this Tablet -- lo, they are the champions of victory betwixt heaven and earth -- that they may use them in the manner that hath been laid down in the Book by God, the Mighty, the Bountiful. (The Kitab-i-Aqdas, p. 34)

In their notes, they illegitimately and erroneously interpreted this passage of Aqdas to mean that the main reason for including this verse was to tell the people that the Guardianship had been ended only 36 years after its establishment whereas, He in the same Holy Book:

"...alludes to the future Centre of His Covenant, and invests Him with the right of interpreting His holy Writ; anticipates by implication the institution of Guardianship; ..."
(God Passes By p.214)

Also in the Will and Testament of Abdu'l Baha which is: "...the Charter of a future world civilization, which may be regarded in some of its features as supplementary to no less weighty a Book than the Kitab-i-Aqdas; signed and sealed by 'Abdu'l-Baha; entirely written with His own hand; ... establishes the institution of the Guardianship as a hereditary office and outlines its essential functions;" (God Passes By, p. 327)

And while His rightful interpreter; the first Guardian of the Cause of God assures the continuation of the Guardianship until the end of the Baha'i Dispensation:

"In this Dispensation, Divine guidance flows on to us in this world after the Prophet's ascension, through first the Master, and then the Guardians." (Lights of Guidance, p.310)

Let's examine the erroneous and unauthorized interpretations of the man made, headless Body:

Note "66. "Aghsan," Paragraph 42 "Aghsan" (plural of Ghusn) is the Arabic word for "Branches". This term is used by Baha'u'llah to designate His male descendants."

Baha'u'llah only titled each one of His Sons using a superlative or comparative adjective and the word Ghusn such as Ghusn-I-Azam (Greatest Branch) and Ghusn-I-At-har(Purest Branch). or Ghusn-I-Akbar (Greater Branch) He never gave anybody other than His sons such a title or never did He write any thing to designate His male descendants to carry on such titles.

Baha'u'llah in the Kitab-i-Ahd (Book of the Covenant) refers to His sons using the plural of (Ghusn) *Aghsan * i.e. Branches; but He distinguishes Aghsan (His sons) from His other descendants, such as His own kindred and members of the Holy Household, while the first Guardian has identified Aghsan as the sons of Baha'u'llah [God Passes By p.239] and [Gleanings from the Writings of Baha'u'llah p.244]. Even at the time of Abdu'l Baha it was well understood that Branches means sons of Baha'u'llah as this is quite evident from the following Tablet of Abdu'l Baha:

"O thou whose heart is attracted and whose breast is dilated with joy by the Holy Fragrances!

"Give the glad-tidings to the assemblies of the beloved who are firm in the Covenant and say:

"Verily the Lord hath manifested Himself in this new and wonderful age with the greatest bounty and mercy, which have never been preceded and whereof the eye of existence hath never seen the like; and it is His Great Covenant and New Testament, as appointed by the trace of His Supreme Pen, through which, and according to clear ordinances and explicit statements, the matter was plainly shown and the branches (sons), twigs (relations), kinsmen and beloved were commanded to obey the "appointed Center of the Covenant." But the Covenant of God and His Testament is a bounty to the righteous and a curse to the wicked." (Abdu'l-Baha, Tablets of Abdu'l-Baha v2, p. 438)

Generally in Baha'u'llah's Writings the word ghusn and its plural aghsan similar to its meaning in English (branch) and (branches) are used as the original meaning (branch of tree) or other type of usage in representational or symbolic ways, but interestingly mostly these words are used to show spiritual connection or intellectual realities:

"Since the affectionate and faithful believers are as the aghsan (branches) and the leaves of this Holy Tree, therefore whatever (hostility and injuries) falls on the Mighty Stock; it will occur to the aghsan (branches), twigs and leaves as well, this is how in every age these tragedies and nuisances have been and will be for the lovers of the Beauty of All-Glorious." (Baha'u'llah, Al'vah-i-Moba'rakeh, p.343) (Ma'idiy-i-Asmani. Vol 4, p.42)

"O' Seeker when ye see the names in The Holy Scriptures mentioning Blessedness, Divine Lote-Tree, Forbidden tree, Leaves, Fruits and the like; do not consider them fantasy, in the sight of God; the purpose of all these names has been and will be the devoted believer of God, and as long as the believer is in the shadow of the Divine Tree he will be from the Tree of Blessedness and exalted in the presence of God, but after turning away will be from the burning bush of Hell, while being Faithful; afnan (twigs), aghsan (branches), o'ragh (leaves) and assmar (fruits) will be perceived as substantiated and after opposition all will considered as rejected and abandoned" (Baha'u'llah, Ma'idiy-i-Asmani. Vol 7, p.21)

In the continuation of the same note 66 they have written the following erroneous and sinful interpretation and flawed argument:

"It has particular implications not only for the disposition of endowments but also for the succession of authority following the passing of Baha'u'llah and of 'Abdu'l-Baha. Baha'u'llah, in the Book of His Covenant, appointed 'Abdu'l-Baha, His eldest son, as the Centre of His Covenant and the Head of the Faith. Abdu'l-Baha, in His Will and Testament, appointed Shoghi Effendi, His eldest grandson, as the Guardian and Head of the Faith. This passage of the Aqdas, therefore, anticipates the succession of chosen Aghsan and thus the institution of the Guardianship and envisages the possibility of a break in their line."

By their falsity and error they consider the "Endowments dedicated to charity" like a family foundation and business which has to be kept in the family, so with their other false interpretation that Aghsan means male descendent of Baha'u'llah, any remaining blood descendant can be a claimant to the Baha'i properties in the Holy land. The fact is that Endowments dedicated to charity is not a family business, it has nothing to do with the Guardianship, it is a revenue for the Houses of Justice (Local, National and International) on the other hand, the Aghsan mentioned in this section did not exist after Abdu'l Baha since Shoghi Effendi was not an Aghsan (i.e. sons of Baha'u'llah) he was a ghusn-i-momtaz (chosen branch) he was chosen from among "affectionate and faithful believers" (branches) as were the second and third Guardians.

Abdu'l Baha in one of his Tablets gives the following direction and guidance:

"Prior to establishment of the House of Justice, Endowments dedicated to charity revert to a spiritual assembly which is free from remnants of concupiscence, there is no other arrangement."
(Ganjineh-i-hodood va Ahkam, p.221)

Shoghi Effendi first Guardian of the Cause of God wrote:

"There is a difference between taxes and spiritual offerings. The House of Justice has certain revenues such as inheritance shares, fees and fines. These are the taxes which, according to the Aqdas, go directly not to the Guardian but to the House of Justice. According to the Master's Will which complements the Aqdas, the Huquq goes only to the Guardian." (To Mr. George O. Latimer, Portland, Oregon, dated Haifa, June 17, 1933.) (Shoghi Effendi, Extracts from the USBN)

The first Guardian during his ministry in more than one hundred of his messages and letters strongly encouraged National and Local Spiritual Assemblies to establish their local and national endowments, even urging the National Spiritual Assemblies to have a part of their International endowments in the Holy Land registered in their names.

"Theirs is the unrivalled opportunity, should they bestir themselves, to carry forward to a triumphant conclusion this first corporate effort to which they have consecrated themselves and their nascent institutions, to embark, in the course of subsequent Plans, on enterprises destined to safeguard and consolidate, in all parts of the motherland, the achievements so hardly won, to proclaim, unequivocally, systematically and effectively, to the masses throughout the length and breadth of the British Isles the verities enshrined in their Faith, to initiate the establishment of a befitting National Haziratu'l-Quds in either the capital of the United Kingdom or further north in the very heart of the British Isles, to inaugurate national and local endowments, to incorporate the newly constituted assemblies, to undertake the preliminary measures for the erection of the first Mashriqu'l-Adhkar in the British Empire," (Shoghi Effendi, The Unfolding Destiny of the British Baha'i Community, p. 220)

"Canadian National Assembly, the establishment of National Baha'i Endowments, doubling the number of Local Assemblies throughout the Dominion and raising to one hundred the total number of localities where Baha'is reside throughout the Provinces, the constitution of a group in Newfoundland and the formation of a nucleus of the Faith in the Territory of Greenland, singled out for special mention by the Author of the Divine Plan, and the participation of Eskimos and Red Indians in membership to share administrative privileges in local institutions of the Faith in Canada" (Shoghi Effendi, Messages to Canada, p. 7)

"The incorporation of firmly established Local Spiritual Assemblies must simultaneously be accelerated in order to strengthen the structure of these newly established institutions, and pave the way for the establishment of local Baha'i endowments." (Shoghi Effendi, Messages to Canada, p. 48)

"He was very pleased to learn of this endowment, now registered in the name of your Spiritual Assembly, and most generously contributed to the Faith of Baha'u'llah by the dear Baha'i friends Mr and Mrs. Bakhtiari... It is of the utmost importance that gradually, as the Communities grow stronger, they should acquire endowments to be used for the benefit of all the Baha'is. This not only reinforces the sense of community life, but enhances the prestige of the Faith in the eyes of their fellow citizens".

(Shoghi Effendi, Messages to the Indian Subcontinent, p. 215)

"NEWLY-ESTABLISHED ISRAEL BRANCH OF NATIONAL ASSEMBLY
While the members of this valiant, this highly gifted, forward marching and deeply consecrated community, and particularly its alert and zealous national representatives, labour to attain these immediate goals, that constitute the distinguishing features and the prime objectives of this newly opened phase of the Crusade, the measures initiated recently in the Holy Land to transfer eventually part of the international Baha'i endowments on Mt. Carmel to the name of the newly-established Branch of the Canadian National Spiritual Assembly will be steadily and energetically pursued, as a mark of abiding appreciation of the magnificence and exemplary achievements of this community in recent years in the service of the Cause of Baha'u'llah."
Shoghi Effendi, Messages to Canada, p. 48)

The fact that the Endowments dedicated to charity is revenue for the House of Justice is quite clear and well understood by Iranian Baha'i scholars during the time of Abdu'l Baha and Shoghi Effendi. Following are the links to two different books from two highly knowledgeable teachers of the Faith. Both of them have written about the passage on endowments in the section of the Aqdas pertaining to the revenues of the House of Justice:

http://www.reference.bahai.org/fa/t/c/GHA/gha-229.html

http://www.reference.bahai.org/fa/t/c/AK4/ak4-272.html#pg268

Another erroneous and unauthorised interpretation about the "people of Baha":

"The term "people of Baha" is used with a number of different meanings in the Baha'i Writings. In this instance, they are described as those 'who speak not except by His leave and judge not save in accordance with what God hath decreed in this Tablet.' Following the passing of Shoghi Effendi in 1957, the Hands of the Cause of God directed the affairs of the Cause until the election of the Universal House of Justice in 1963"

"People of Baha" simply means people of Baha, i.e. Baha'is. To say otherwise, means that those former Hands of the Cause who have arrogated unto themselves the collective Guardianship have grossly misinterpreted its meaning. They have obviously altered the evident meaning of the word in the Book, let alone conceded the fact that only the Guardian of the Cause of God has the authority to interpret. It is amazing that those Hands who were violators of the Covenant, and had caused a breach in the Cause of God, and subverted His Word, and become the manifestation of the Center of Sedition, described themselves as those "who speak not except by His leave and judge not save in accordance with what God hath decreed in this Tablet". Who did describe themselves as those? Themselves? The bogus UHJ? How can they do that? In fact they did so in opposition to "what God hath decreed"

"What deviation can be greater than interpolating and falsifying the words and verses of the Sacred Text," (Abdu'l-Baha, The Will and Testament, p. 5)

A book which is published by the Heterodox Baha'is in 1997, based on the Ishraq-i-khavari's talks about the Aqdas, contains some points which he could not help himself from saying and which also has escaped the censor, includes the following:

"Abdu'l Baha in a tablet explicitly explains that these "people of Baha" are the Spiritual Assemblies who are managing the spiritual affairs of the Baha'i communities in cities before the establishment of the House of Justice." http://www.reference.bahai.org/fa/t/o/TDKA/tdka-137.html#pg116

I have not seen the Tablet which Ishraq-i-khavari has mentioned but I am certain that it is true since Abdu'l Baha wrote:

"Prior to establishment of the House of Justice, Endowments dedicated to charity revert to the spiritual assembly which is free from remnants of concupiscence, there is no other arrangement."
(Ganjineh-i-hodood va Ahkam, p.221)

Following is the interpretation of the "people of Baha" by the rightful interpreter of word of God, Joel B Marangella, the third Guardian, in response to the question of an individual dated 12 April 2003

"If you will refer to page 154 in "God Passes By", in the fifth line from the top of the page you will find this statement: "Rejoice with exceeding gladness, O people of Baha!" It is clear that Baha'u'llah is referring to all faithful believers in this passage. As to the other clauses under the same heading of the Aqdas, one must, of course, when reading the Aqdas always keep in mind that the Will and Testament of the Master supplements the Aqdas, as explained by Shoghi Effendi. In this instance, it is clear that, similarly to the administration of other types of endowments, endowments or gifts to charity are currently administered, on behalf of the believers, that is, the "people of Baha" at national or local levels by their representatives in the Baha'i Administrative Order, that is their respective Assemblies (future Houses of Justice) and will in the future be administered by the Universal House of Justice, (when established) for any international endowments and by National and Local Houses of Justice, for endowments at those levels, as appropriate."

I have to remind Baha'is that:

"The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the Guardian of the Cause of God. It is incumbent upon the members of the House of Justice, upon all the Aghsan, the Afnan, the Hands of the Cause of God to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the Guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him. He that opposeth him hath opposed the True One, will make a breach in the Cause of God, will subvert His Word and will become a manifestation of the Center of Sedition." (Abdu'l-Baha, The Will and Testament, p. 11)

Nosrat

Posted at 11:54 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

They are cursed and trapped

Img_0157 by guest blogger:
Hand of the Cause of God Nosrat'u'llah Bahremand

A few years ago one of the Heterodox Baha'is told me that when Mason Remey, the second Guardian of the Cause of God broke his silence and sent his Proclamation to the American National Convention, the former Hands desperately started looking every where in the Writings to find anything to support their bogus claim and any thing to give legitimacy to their illegitimately appointed body of Custodians. Of course there was not even a word that they could find, so they had exhausted their search and were disappointed. Then one day, Mr. Varqa, one of the Hands, said he had good news as he had found something and then showed them a passage in the Aqdas regarding "Endowments dedicated to charity" and gave his interpretation which was accepted by the desperate Hands. That unauthorized and erroneous interpretation is the one which now is used by the bogus UHJ and its pawns. I am not sure how much of this story is accurate but I believe there is no reason to doubt its accuracy. Any how, I think Mr Varqa is still alive and he can explain whether he was the originator of this erroneous interpretation or if it was someone else.

It seems that the headless and bogus UHJ, which is the product of the violators of the Covenant, i.e. the former Hands of the Cause, is cursed and trapped in their malice and wickedness for they have not only violated and misrepresented the Will and Testament of the Master but they have also transgressed against the Aqdas and violated this most Holy Book. They disregarded the following warning of Baha'u'llah in The Aqdas:

"Whoso interpreteth what hath been sent down from the heaven of Revelation, and altereth its evident meaning, he, verily, is of them that have perverted the Sublime Word of God, and is of the lost ones in the Lucid Book." (The Kitab-i-Aqdas, p. 57)

In 1992 when they translated and published the Aqdas in English they added some notes to the Book, Many of them contain unauthorised and erroneous interpretations.

In their translation they conveniently and sinfully changed the meaning of the word "bilaad" (cities) in the passage about endowments, to "world," to suit their evil intentions.

"Endowments dedicated to charity revert to God, the Revealer of Signs. None hath the right to dispose of them without leave from Him Who is the Dawning-place of Revelation. After Him, this authority shall pass to the Aghsan, and after them to the House of Justice -- should it be established in the world by then -- that they may use these endowments for the benefit of the Places which have been exalted in this Cause, and for whatsoever hath been enjoined upon them by Him Who is the God of might and power. Otherwise, the endowments shall revert to the people of Baha who speak not except by His leave and judge not save in accordance with what God hath decreed in this Tablet -- lo, they are the champions of victory betwixt heaven and earth -- that they may use them in the manner that hath been laid down in the Book by God, the Mighty, the Bountiful. (The Kitab-i-Aqdas, p. 34)

In their notes, they illegitimately and erroneously interpreted this passage of Aqdas to mean that the main reason for including this verse was to tell the people that the Guardianship had been ended only 36 years after its establishment whereas, He in the same Holy Book:

"...alludes to the future Centre of His Covenant, and invests Him with the right of interpreting His holy Writ; anticipates by implication the institution of Guardianship; ..."
(God Passes By p.214)

Also in the Will and Testament of Abdu'l Baha which is: "...the Charter of a future world civilization, which may be regarded in some of its features as supplementary to no less weighty a Book than the Kitab-i-Aqdas; signed and sealed by 'Abdu'l-Baha; entirely written with His own hand; ... establishes the institution of the Guardianship as a hereditary office and outlines its essential functions;" (God Passes By, p. 327)

And while His rightful interpreter; the first Guardian of the Cause of God assures the continuation of the Guardianship until the end of the Baha'i Dispensation:

"In this Dispensation, Divine guidance flows on to us in this world after the Prophet's ascension, through first the Master, and then the Guardians." (Lights of Guidance, p.310)

Let's examine the erroneous and unauthorized interpretations of the man made, headless Body:

Note "66. "Aghsan," Paragraph 42 "Aghsan" (plural of Ghusn) is the Arabic word for "Branches". This term is used by Baha'u'llah to designate His male descendants."

Baha'u'llah only titled each one of His Sons using a superlative or comparative adjective and the word Ghusn such as Ghusn-I-Azam (Greatest Branch) and Ghusn-I-At-har(Purest Branch). or Ghusn-I-Akbar (Greater Branch) He never gave anybody other than His sons such a title or never did He write any thing to designate His male descendants to carry on such titles.

Baha'u'llah in the Kitab-i-Ahd (Book of the Covenant) refers to His sons using the plural of (Ghusn) *Aghsan * i.e. Branches; but He distinguishes Aghsan (His sons) from His other descendants, such as His own kindred and members of the Holy Household, while the first Guardian has identified Aghsan as the sons of Baha'u'llah [God Passes By p.239] and [Gleanings from the Writings of Baha'u'llah p.244]. Even at the time of Abdu'l Baha it was well understood that Branches means sons of Baha'u'llah as this is quite evident from the following Tablet of Abdu'l Baha:

"O thou whose heart is attracted and whose breast is dilated with joy by the Holy Fragrances!

"Give the glad-tidings to the assemblies of the beloved who are firm in the Covenant and say:

"Verily the Lord hath manifested Himself in this new and wonderful age with the greatest bounty and mercy, which have never been preceded and whereof the eye of existence hath never seen the like; and it is His Great Covenant and New Testament, as appointed by the trace of His Supreme Pen, through which, and according to clear ordinances and explicit statements, the matter was plainly shown and the branches (sons), twigs (relations), kinsmen and beloved were commanded to obey the "appointed Center of the Covenant." But the Covenant of God and His Testament is a bounty to the righteous and a curse to the wicked." (Abdu'l-Baha, Tablets of Abdu'l-Baha v2, p. 438)

Generally in Baha'u'llah's Writings the word ghusn and its plural aghsan similar to its meaning in English (branch) and (branches) are used as the original meaning (branch of tree) or other type of usage in representational or symbolic ways, but interestingly mostly these words are used to show spiritual connection or intellectual realities:

"Since the affectionate and faithful believers are as the aghsan (branches) and the leaves of this Holy Tree, therefore whatever (hostility and injuries) falls on the Mighty Stock; it will occur to the aghsan (branches), twigs and leaves as well, this is how in every age these tragedies and nuisances have been and will be for the lovers of the Beauty of All-Glorious." (Baha'u'llah, Al'vah-i-Moba'rakeh, p.343) (Ma'idiy-i-Asmani. Vol 4, p.42)

"O' Seeker when ye see the names in The Holy Scriptures mentioning Blessedness, Divine Lote-Tree, Forbidden tree, Leaves, Fruits and the like; do not consider them fantasy, in the sight of God; the purpose of all these names has been and will be the devoted believer of God, and as long as the believer is in the shadow of the Divine Tree he will be from the Tree of Blessedness and exalted in the presence of God, but after turning away will be from the burning bush of Hell, while being Faithful; afnan (twigs), aghsan (branches), o'ragh (leaves) and assmar (fruits) will be perceived as substantiated and after opposition all will considered as rejected and abandoned" (Baha'u'llah, Ma'idiy-i-Asmani. Vol 7, p.21)

In the continuation of the same note 66 they have written the following erroneous and sinful interpretation and flawed argument:

"It has particular implications not only for the disposition of endowments but also for the succession of authority following the passing of Baha'u'llah and of 'Abdu'l-Baha. Baha'u'llah, in the Book of His Covenant, appointed 'Abdu'l-Baha, His eldest son, as the Centre of His Covenant and the Head of the Faith. Abdu'l-Baha, in His Will and Testament, appointed Shoghi Effendi, His eldest grandson, as the Guardian and Head of the Faith. This passage of the Aqdas, therefore, anticipates the succession of chosen Aghsan and thus the institution of the Guardianship and envisages the possibility of a break in their line."

By their falsity and error they consider the "Endowments dedicated to charity" like a family foundation and business which has to be kept in the family, so with their other false interpretation that Aghsan means male descendent of Baha'u'llah, any remaining blood descendant can be a claimant to the Baha'i properties in the Holy land. The fact is that Endowments dedicated to charity is not a family business, it has nothing to do with the Guardianship, it is a revenue for the Houses of Justice (Local, National and International) on the other hand, the Aghsan mentioned in this section did not exist after Abdu'l Baha since Shoghi Effendi was not an Aghsan (i.e. sons of Baha'u'llah) he was a ghusn-i-momtaz (chosen branch) he was chosen from among "affectionate and faithful believers" (branches) as were the second and third Guardians.

Abdu'l Baha in one of his Tablets gives the following direction and guidance:

"Prior to establishment of the House of Justice, Endowments dedicated to charity revert to a spiritual assembly which is free from remnants of concupiscence, there is no other arrangement."
(Ganjineh-i-hodood va Ahkam, p.221)

Shoghi Effendi first Guardian of the Cause of God wrote:

"There is a difference between taxes and spiritual offerings. The House of Justice has certain revenues such as inheritance shares, fees and fines. These are the taxes which, according to the Aqdas, go directly not to the Guardian but to the House of Justice. According to the Master's Will which complements the Aqdas, the Huquq goes only to the Guardian." (To Mr. George O. Latimer, Portland, Oregon, dated Haifa, June 17, 1933.) (Shoghi Effendi, Extracts from the USBN)

The first Guardian during his ministry in more than one hundred of his messages and letters strongly encouraged National and Local Spiritual Assemblies to establish their local and national endowments, even urging the National Spiritual Assemblies to have a part of their International endowments in the Holy Land registered in their names.

"Theirs is the unrivalled opportunity, should they bestir themselves, to carry forward to a triumphant conclusion this first corporate effort to which they have consecrated themselves and their nascent institutions, to embark, in the course of subsequent Plans, on enterprises destined to safeguard and consolidate, in all parts of the motherland, the achievements so hardly won, to proclaim, unequivocally, systematically and effectively, to the masses throughout the length and breadth of the British Isles the verities enshrined in their Faith, to initiate the establishment of a befitting National Haziratu'l-Quds in either the capital of the United Kingdom or further north in the very heart of the British Isles, to inaugurate national and local endowments, to incorporate the newly constituted assemblies, to undertake the preliminary measures for the erection of the first Mashriqu'l-Adhkar in the British Empire," (Shoghi Effendi, The Unfolding Destiny of the British Baha'i Community, p. 220)

"Canadian National Assembly, the establishment of National Baha'i Endowments, doubling the number of Local Assemblies throughout the Dominion and raising to one hundred the total number of localities where Baha'is reside throughout the Provinces, the constitution of a group in Newfoundland and the formation of a nucleus of the Faith in the Territory of Greenland, singled out for special mention by the Author of the Divine Plan, and the participation of Eskimos and Red Indians in membership to share administrative privileges in local institutions of the Faith in Canada" (Shoghi Effendi, Messages to Canada, p. 7)

"The incorporation of firmly established Local Spiritual Assemblies must simultaneously be accelerated in order to strengthen the structure of these newly established institutions, and pave the way for the establishment of local Baha'i endowments." (Shoghi Effendi, Messages to Canada, p. 48)

"He was very pleased to learn of this endowment, now registered in the name of your Spiritual Assembly, and most generously contributed to the Faith of Baha'u'llah by the dear Baha'i friends Mr and Mrs. Bakhtiari... It is of the utmost importance that gradually, as the Communities grow stronger, they should acquire endowments to be used for the benefit of all the Baha'is. This not only reinforces the sense of community life, but enhances the prestige of the Faith in the eyes of their fellow citizens".

(Shoghi Effendi, Messages to the Indian Subcontinent, p. 215)

"NEWLY-ESTABLISHED ISRAEL BRANCH OF NATIONAL ASSEMBLY
While the members of this valiant, this highly gifted, forward marching and deeply consecrated community, and particularly its alert and zealous national representatives, labour to attain these immediate goals, that constitute the distinguishing features and the prime objectives of this newly opened phase of the Crusade, the measures initiated recently in the Holy Land to transfer eventually part of the international Baha'i endowments on Mt. Carmel to the name of the newly-established Branch of the Canadian National Spiritual Assembly will be steadily and energetically pursued, as a mark of abiding appreciation of the magnificence and exemplary achievements of this community in recent years in the service of the Cause of Baha'u'llah."
Shoghi Effendi, Messages to Canada, p. 48)

The fact that the Endowments dedicated to charity is revenue for the House of Justice is quite clear and well understood by Iranian Baha'i scholars during the time of Abdu'l Baha and Shoghi Effendi. Following are the links to two different books from two highly knowledgeable teachers of the Faith. Both of them have written about the passage on endowments in the section of the Aqdas pertaining to the revenues of the House of Justice:

http://www.reference.bahai.org/fa/t/c/GHA/gha-229.html

http://www.reference.bahai.org/fa/t/c/AK4/ak4-272.html#pg268

Another erroneous and unauthorised interpretation about the "people of Baha":

"The term "people of Baha" is used with a number of different meanings in the Baha'i Writings. In this instance, they are described as those 'who speak not except by His leave and judge not save in accordance with what God hath decreed in this Tablet.' Following the passing of Shoghi Effendi in 1957, the Hands of the Cause of God directed the affairs of the Cause until the election of the Universal House of Justice in 1963"

"People of Baha" simply means people of Baha, i.e. Baha'is. To say otherwise, means that those former Hands of the Cause who have arrogated unto themselves the collective Guardianship have grossly misinterpreted its meaning. They have obviously altered the evident meaning of the word in the Book, let alone conceded the fact that only the Guardian of the Cause of God has the authority to interpret. It is amazing that those Hands who were violators of the Covenant, and had caused a breach in the Cause of God, and subverted His Word, and become the manifestation of the Center of Sedition, described themselves as those "who speak not except by His leave and judge not save in accordance with what God hath decreed in this Tablet". Who did describe themselves as those? Themselves? The bogus UHJ? How can they do that? In fact they did so in opposition to "what God hath decreed"

"What deviation can be greater than interpolating and falsifying the words and verses of the Sacred Text," (Abdu'l-Baha, The Will and Testament, p. 5)

A book which is published by the Heterodox Baha'is in 1997, based on the Ishraq-i-khavari's talks about the Aqdas, contains some points which he could not help himself from saying and which also has escaped the censor, includes the following:

"Abdu'l Baha in a tablet explicitly explains that these "people of Baha" are the Spiritual Assemblies who are managing the spiritual affairs of the Baha'i communities in cities before the establishment of the House of Justice." http://www.reference.bahai.org/fa/t/o/TDKA/tdka-137.html#pg116

I have not seen the Tablet which Ishraq-i-khavari has mentioned but I am certain that it is true since Abdu'l Baha wrote:

"Prior to establishment of the House of Justice, Endowments dedicated to charity revert to the spiritual assembly which is free from remnants of concupiscence, there is no other arrangement."
(Ganjineh-i-hodood va Ahkam, p.221)

Following is the interpretation of the "people of Baha" by the rightful interpreter of word of God, Joel B Marangella, the third Guardian, in response to the question of an individual dated 12 April 2003

"If you will refer to page 154 in "God Passes By", in the fifth line from the top of the page you will find this statement: "Rejoice with exceeding gladness, O people of Baha!" It is clear that Baha'u'llah is referring to all faithful believers in this passage. As to the other clauses under the same heading of the Aqdas, one must, of course, when reading the Aqdas always keep in mind that the Will and Testament of the Master supplements the Aqdas, as explained by Shoghi Effendi. In this instance, it is clear that, similarly to the administration of other types of endowments, endowments or gifts to charity are currently administered, on behalf of the believers, that is, the "people of Baha" at national or local levels by their representatives in the Baha'i Administrative Order, that is their respective Assemblies (future Houses of Justice) and will in the future be administered by the Universal House of Justice, (when established) for any international endowments and by National and Local Houses of Justice, for endowments at those levels, as appropriate."

I have to remind Baha'is that:

"The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the Guardian of the Cause of God. It is incumbent upon the members of the House of Justice, upon all the Aghsan, the Afnan, the Hands of the Cause of God to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the Guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him. He that opposeth him hath opposed the True One, will make a breach in the Cause of God, will subvert His Word and will become a manifestation of the Center of Sedition." (Abdu'l-Baha, The Will and Testament, p. 11)

Nosrat

Posted at 11:54 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

They are cursed and trapped

Img_0157 by guest blogger:
Hand of the Cause of God Nosrat'u'llah Bahremand

A few years ago one of the Heterodox Baha'is told me that when Mason Remey, the second Guardian of the Cause of God broke his silence and sent his Proclamation to the American National Convention, the former Hands desperately started looking every where in the Writings to find anything to support their bogus claim and any thing to give legitimacy to their illegitimately appointed body of Custodians. Of course there was not even a word that they could find, so they had exhausted their search and were disappointed. Then one day, Mr. Varqa, one of the Hands, said he had good news as he had found something and then showed them a passage in the Aqdas regarding "Endowments dedicated to charity" and gave his interpretation which was accepted by the desperate Hands. That unauthorized and erroneous interpretation is the one which now is used by the bogus UHJ and its pawns. I am not sure how much of this story is accurate but I believe there is no reason to doubt its accuracy. Any how, I think Mr Varqa is still alive and he can explain whether he was the originator of this erroneous interpretation or if it was someone else.

It seems that the headless and bogus UHJ, which is the product of the violators of the Covenant, i.e. the former Hands of the Cause, is cursed and trapped in their malice and wickedness for they have not only violated and misrepresented the Will and Testament of the Master but they have also transgressed against the Aqdas and violated this most Holy Book. They disregarded the following warning of Baha'u'llah in The Aqdas:

"Whoso interpreteth what hath been sent down from the heaven of Revelation, and altereth its evident meaning, he, verily, is of them that have perverted the Sublime Word of God, and is of the lost ones in the Lucid Book." (The Kitab-i-Aqdas, p. 57)

In 1992 when they translated and published the Aqdas in English they added some notes to the Book, Many of them contain unauthorised and erroneous interpretations.

In their translation they conveniently and sinfully changed the meaning of the word "bilaad" (cities) in the passage about endowments, to "world," to suit their evil intentions.

"Endowments dedicated to charity revert to God, the Revealer of Signs. None hath the right to dispose of them without leave from Him Who is the Dawning-place of Revelation. After Him, this authority shall pass to the Aghsan, and after them to the House of Justice -- should it be established in the world by then -- that they may use these endowments for the benefit of the Places which have been exalted in this Cause, and for whatsoever hath been enjoined upon them by Him Who is the God of might and power. Otherwise, the endowments shall revert to the people of Baha who speak not except by His leave and judge not save in accordance with what God hath decreed in this Tablet -- lo, they are the champions of victory betwixt heaven and earth -- that they may use them in the manner that hath been laid down in the Book by God, the Mighty, the Bountiful. (The Kitab-i-Aqdas, p. 34)

In their notes, they illegitimately and erroneously interpreted this passage of Aqdas to mean that the main reason for including this verse was to tell the people that the Guardianship had been ended only 36 years after its establishment whereas, He in the same Holy Book:

"...alludes to the future Centre of His Covenant, and invests Him with the right of interpreting His holy Writ; anticipates by implication the institution of Guardianship; ..."
(God Passes By p.214)

Also in the Will and Testament of Abdu'l Baha which is: "...the Charter of a future world civilization, which may be regarded in some of its features as supplementary to no less weighty a Book than the Kitab-i-Aqdas; signed and sealed by 'Abdu'l-Baha; entirely written with His own hand; ... establishes the institution of the Guardianship as a hereditary office and outlines its essential functions;" (God Passes By, p. 327)

And while His rightful interpreter; the first Guardian of the Cause of God assures the continuation of the Guardianship until the end of the Baha'i Dispensation:

"In this Dispensation, Divine guidance flows on to us in this world after the Prophet's ascension, through first the Master, and then the Guardians." (Lights of Guidance, p.310)

Let's examine the erroneous and unauthorized interpretations of the man made, headless Body:

Note "66. "Aghsan," Paragraph 42 "Aghsan" (plural of Ghusn) is the Arabic word for "Branches". This term is used by Baha'u'llah to designate His male descendants."

Baha'u'llah only titled each one of His Sons using a superlative or comparative adjective and the word Ghusn such as Ghusn-I-Azam (Greatest Branch) and Ghusn-I-At-har(Purest Branch). or Ghusn-I-Akbar (Greater Branch) He never gave anybody other than His sons such a title or never did He write any thing to designate His male descendants to carry on such titles.

Baha'u'llah in the Kitab-i-Ahd (Book of the Covenant) refers to His sons using the plural of (Ghusn) *Aghsan * i.e. Branches; but He distinguishes Aghsan (His sons) from His other descendants, such as His own kindred and members of the Holy Household, while the first Guardian has identified Aghsan as the sons of Baha'u'llah [God Passes By p.239] and [Gleanings from the Writings of Baha'u'llah p.244]. Even at the time of Abdu'l Baha it was well understood that Branches means sons of Baha'u'llah as this is quite evident from the following Tablet of Abdu'l Baha:

"O thou whose heart is attracted and whose breast is dilated with joy by the Holy Fragrances!

"Give the glad-tidings to the assemblies of the beloved who are firm in the Covenant and say:

"Verily the Lord hath manifested Himself in this new and wonderful age with the greatest bounty and mercy, which have never been preceded and whereof the eye of existence hath never seen the like; and it is His Great Covenant and New Testament, as appointed by the trace of His Supreme Pen, through which, and according to clear ordinances and explicit statements, the matter was plainly shown and the branches (sons), twigs (relations), kinsmen and beloved were commanded to obey the "appointed Center of the Covenant." But the Covenant of God and His Testament is a bounty to the righteous and a curse to the wicked." (Abdu'l-Baha, Tablets of Abdu'l-Baha v2, p. 438)

Generally in Baha'u'llah's Writings the word ghusn and its plural aghsan similar to its meaning in English (branch) and (branches) are used as the original meaning (branch of tree) or other type of usage in representational or symbolic ways, but interestingly mostly these words are used to show spiritual connection or intellectual realities:

"Since the affectionate and faithful believers are as the aghsan (branches) and the leaves of this Holy Tree, therefore whatever (hostility and injuries) falls on the Mighty Stock; it will occur to the aghsan (branches), twigs and leaves as well, this is how in every age these tragedies and nuisances have been and will be for the lovers of the Beauty of All-Glorious." (Baha'u'llah, Al'vah-i-Moba'rakeh, p.343) (Ma'idiy-i-Asmani. Vol 4, p.42)

"O' Seeker when ye see the names in The Holy Scriptures mentioning Blessedness, Divine Lote-Tree, Forbidden tree, Leaves, Fruits and the like; do not consider them fantasy, in the sight of God; the purpose of all these names has been and will be the devoted believer of God, and as long as the believer is in the shadow of the Divine Tree he will be from the Tree of Blessedness and exalted in the presence of God, but after turning away will be from the burning bush of Hell, while being Faithful; afnan (twigs), aghsan (branches), o'ragh (leaves) and assmar (fruits) will be perceived as substantiated and after opposition all will considered as rejected and abandoned" (Baha'u'llah, Ma'idiy-i-Asmani. Vol 7, p.21)

In the continuation of the same note 66 they have written the following erroneous and sinful interpretation and flawed argument:

"It has particular implications not only for the disposition of endowments but also for the succession of authority following the passing of Baha'u'llah and of 'Abdu'l-Baha. Baha'u'llah, in the Book of His Covenant, appointed 'Abdu'l-Baha, His eldest son, as the Centre of His Covenant and the Head of the Faith. Abdu'l-Baha, in His Will and Testament, appointed Shoghi Effendi, His eldest grandson, as the Guardian and Head of the Faith. This passage of the Aqdas, therefore, anticipates the succession of chosen Aghsan and thus the institution of the Guardianship and envisages the possibility of a break in their line."

By their falsity and error they consider the "Endowments dedicated to charity" like a family foundation and business which has to be kept in the family, so with their other false interpretation that Aghsan means male descendent of Baha'u'llah, any remaining blood descendant can be a claimant to the Baha'i properties in the Holy land. The fact is that Endowments dedicated to charity is not a family business, it has nothing to do with the Guardianship, it is a revenue for the Houses of Justice (Local, National and International) on the other hand, the Aghsan mentioned in this section did not exist after Abdu'l Baha since Shoghi Effendi was not an Aghsan (i.e. sons of Baha'u'llah) he was a ghusn-i-momtaz (chosen branch) he was chosen from among "affectionate and faithful believers" (branches) as were the second and third Guardians.

Abdu'l Baha in one of his Tablets gives the following direction and guidance:

"Prior to establishment of the House of Justice, Endowments dedicated to charity revert to a spiritual assembly which is free from remnants of concupiscence, there is no other arrangement."
(Ganjineh-i-hodood va Ahkam, p.221)

Shoghi Effendi first Guardian of the Cause of God wrote:

"There is a difference between taxes and spiritual offerings. The House of Justice has certain revenues such as inheritance shares, fees and fines. These are the taxes which, according to the Aqdas, go directly not to the Guardian but to the House of Justice. According to the Master's Will which complements the Aqdas, the Huquq goes only to the Guardian." (To Mr. George O. Latimer, Portland, Oregon, dated Haifa, June 17, 1933.) (Shoghi Effendi, Extracts from the USBN)

The first Guardian during his ministry in more than one hundred of his messages and letters strongly encouraged National and Local Spiritual Assemblies to establish their local and national endowments, even urging the National Spiritual Assemblies to have a part of their International endowments in the Holy Land registered in their names.

"Theirs is the unrivalled opportunity, should they bestir themselves, to carry forward to a triumphant conclusion this first corporate effort to which they have consecrated themselves and their nascent institutions, to embark, in the course of subsequent Plans, on enterprises destined to safeguard and consolidate, in all parts of the motherland, the achievements so hardly won, to proclaim, unequivocally, systematically and effectively, to the masses throughout the length and breadth of the British Isles the verities enshrined in their Faith, to initiate the establishment of a befitting National Haziratu'l-Quds in either the capital of the United Kingdom or further north in the very heart of the British Isles, to inaugurate national and local endowments, to incorporate the newly constituted assemblies, to undertake the preliminary measures for the erection of the first Mashriqu'l-Adhkar in the British Empire," (Shoghi Effendi, The Unfolding Destiny of the British Baha'i Community, p. 220)

"Canadian National Assembly, the establishment of National Baha'i Endowments, doubling the number of Local Assemblies throughout the Dominion and raising to one hundred the total number of localities where Baha'is reside throughout the Provinces, the constitution of a group in Newfoundland and the formation of a nucleus of the Faith in the Territory of Greenland, singled out for special mention by the Author of the Divine Plan, and the participation of Eskimos and Red Indians in membership to share administrative privileges in local institutions of the Faith in Canada" (Shoghi Effendi, Messages to Canada, p. 7)

"The incorporation of firmly established Local Spiritual Assemblies must simultaneously be accelerated in order to strengthen the structure of these newly established institutions, and pave the way for the establishment of local Baha'i endowments." (Shoghi Effendi, Messages to Canada, p. 48)

"He was very pleased to learn of this endowment, now registered in the name of your Spiritual Assembly, and most generously contributed to the Faith of Baha'u'llah by the dear Baha'i friends Mr and Mrs. Bakhtiari... It is of the utmost importance that gradually, as the Communities grow stronger, they should acquire endowments to be used for the benefit of all the Baha'is. This not only reinforces the sense of community life, but enhances the prestige of the Faith in the eyes of their fellow citizens".

(Shoghi Effendi, Messages to the Indian Subcontinent, p. 215)

"NEWLY-ESTABLISHED ISRAEL BRANCH OF NATIONAL ASSEMBLY
While the members of this valiant, this highly gifted, forward marching and deeply consecrated community, and particularly its alert and zealous national representatives, labour to attain these immediate goals, that constitute the distinguishing features and the prime objectives of this newly opened phase of the Crusade, the measures initiated recently in the Holy Land to transfer eventually part of the international Baha'i endowments on Mt. Carmel to the name of the newly-established Branch of the Canadian National Spiritual Assembly will be steadily and energetically pursued, as a mark of abiding appreciation of the magnificence and exemplary achievements of this community in recent years in the service of the Cause of Baha'u'llah."
Shoghi Effendi, Messages to Canada, p. 48)

The fact that the Endowments dedicated to charity is revenue for the House of Justice is quite clear and well understood by Iranian Baha'i scholars during the time of Abdu'l Baha and Shoghi Effendi. Following are the links to two different books from two highly knowledgeable teachers of the Faith. Both of them have written about the passage on endowments in the section of the Aqdas pertaining to the revenues of the House of Justice:

http://www.reference.bahai.org/fa/t/c/GHA/gha-229.html

http://www.reference.bahai.org/fa/t/c/AK4/ak4-272.html#pg268

Another erroneous and unauthorised interpretation about the "people of Baha":

"The term "people of Baha" is used with a number of different meanings in the Baha'i Writings. In this instance, they are described as those 'who speak not except by His leave and judge not save in accordance with what God hath decreed in this Tablet.' Following the passing of Shoghi Effendi in 1957, the Hands of the Cause of God directed the affairs of the Cause until the election of the Universal House of Justice in 1963"

"People of Baha" simply means people of Baha, i.e. Baha'is. To say otherwise, means that those former Hands of the Cause who have arrogated unto themselves the collective Guardianship have grossly misinterpreted its meaning. They have obviously altered the evident meaning of the word in the Book, let alone conceded the fact that only the Guardian of the Cause of God has the authority to interpret. It is amazing that those Hands who were violators of the Covenant, and had caused a breach in the Cause of God, and subverted His Word, and become the manifestation of the Center of Sedition, described themselves as those "who speak not except by His leave and judge not save in accordance with what God hath decreed in this Tablet". Who did describe themselves as those? Themselves? The bogus UHJ? How can they do that? In fact they did so in opposition to "what God hath decreed"

"What deviation can be greater than interpolating and falsifying the words and verses of the Sacred Text," (Abdu'l-Baha, The Will and Testament, p. 5)

A book which is published by the Heterodox Baha'is in 1997, based on the Ishraq-i-khavari's talks about the Aqdas, contains some points which he could not help himself from saying and which also has escaped the censor, includes the following:

"Abdu'l Baha in a tablet explicitly explains that these "people of Baha" are the Spiritual Assemblies who are managing the spiritual affairs of the Baha'i communities in cities before the establishment of the House of Justice." http://www.reference.bahai.org/fa/t/o/TDKA/tdka-137.html#pg116

I have not seen the Tablet which Ishraq-i-khavari has mentioned but I am certain that it is true since Abdu'l Baha wrote:

"Prior to establishment of the House of Justice, Endowments dedicated to charity revert to the spiritual assembly which is free from remnants of concupiscence, there is no other arrangement."
(Ganjineh-i-hodood va Ahkam, p.221)

Following is the interpretation of the "people of Baha" by the rightful interpreter of word of God, Joel B Marangella, the third Guardian, in response to the question of an individual dated 12 April 2003

"If you will refer to page 154 in "God Passes By", in the fifth line from the top of the page you will find this statement: "Rejoice with exceeding gladness, O people of Baha!" It is clear that Baha'u'llah is referring to all faithful believers in this passage. As to the other clauses under the same heading of the Aqdas, one must, of course, when reading the Aqdas always keep in mind that the Will and Testament of the Master supplements the Aqdas, as explained by Shoghi Effendi. In this instance, it is clear that, similarly to the administration of other types of endowments, endowments or gifts to charity are currently administered, on behalf of the believers, that is, the "people of Baha" at national or local levels by their representatives in the Baha'i Administrative Order, that is their respective Assemblies (future Houses of Justice) and will in the future be administered by the Universal House of Justice, (when established) for any international endowments and by National and Local Houses of Justice, for endowments at those levels, as appropriate."

I have to remind Baha'is that:

"The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the Guardian of the Cause of God. It is incumbent upon the members of the House of Justice, upon all the Aghsan, the Afnan, the Hands of the Cause of God to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the Guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him. He that opposeth him hath opposed the True One, will make a breach in the Cause of God, will subvert His Word and will become a manifestation of the Center of Sedition." (Abdu'l-Baha, The Will and Testament, p. 11)

Nosrat

Posted at 11:54 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Three Approaches to Understanding the term "Aghsán"

The division of Baha'is into several different sects came about because of the differing interpretations of the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha. In that holy and sacred Document, Abdu'l-Baha created the Institution of the Guardianship as the Center of the Cause, and the Institution that would carry forward His function and authority as Interpreter of the Holy Writings. He appointed Shoghi Effendi as the first Guardian of the Cause and enjoined upon him the duty to appoint his successor: either his first born descendant, or the Guardian may "choose another branch to succeed him."

Since Shoghi Effendi had no descendants, the question came up whether he chose another branch. The Arabic word, Aghsán, or Branch, had been defined by Shoghi Effendi as the Sons of Baha'u'llah, although this was obviously not the meaning of the word in this context, since at the time Abdu'l-Baha wrote these words, there were no faithful Sons of Baha'u'llah. The proper interpretation of the word Aghsán to the question of the continuing Guardianship is key to understanding the split amongst the Baha'is.

There are three basic approaches to this:

1) Magic Sperm: The first approach is the belief that only one of the Sons of Baha'u'llah, or at least a male blood-line descendant, is eligible for appointment as Guardian. This is the majority Baha'i view represented by those Bahais who presently occupy Haifa and Wilmette (the heterodox Baha'is). I consider this concept to be the "magic sperm" theory carrying the implicit belief that there is some magical essence in the bloodline of Baha'u'llah that is necessary for one to be divinely guided. Although this is a highly superstitious and materialistic point of view, there is an historical basis for this in Islamic belief. For example, the descendants of the Prophet Muhammad are considered to have some special status or respect. The idea of blood royalty found in many of the systems of government historically also carry this idea that the genetic code of certain families carries with it some kind of magical power or essence.

If we carry the logic of this belief to its extreme, we would consider what would happen if the genetic material of Shoghi Effendi were cloned. We would have an exact duplicate of Shoghi Effendi's genetic makeup, but of course physically we would end up with his cloned identical twin. It would be a different person entirely and would not be the Guardian. Of course, if we could do this, we could clone Baha'u'llah Himself, but of course we would end up with a cloned human being and not the Manifestation of God for this Day. There is no magic in their genetic material. This example does not intend any disrespect, but merely to show absurd it is to insist that only a physical relative of Baha'u'llah could possibly serve as Guardian.

2) Spiritual Aghsán: The second approach is the belief that the Guardian may choose any male believer as his successor, and that the person so chosen is, effectively, a "spiritual" Aghsán. This would be the view represented by the Orthodox Baha'is, that is those who recognize Joel B. Marangella as the third Guardian. It is also the view taken by those Baha'is who follow Jacques Soghomonian as their fourth Guardian. This approach finds that the Will and Testament did not impose an obligation upon the Guardian to appoint an Aghsán, but allows him to appoint any male believer as his successor. Branchhood is essentially a spiritual relationship and does not require a physical family relation. This is not a materialistic and superstitious approach, but rather is a spiritual understanding of the essential relationships of the Institutions of the Faith and the believers. For more on these spiritual relationships, see Joel B. Marangella's article entitled "Tree of the Covenant".

3) Secular Adoption: The other approach is the belief that the Guardian may only choose an Aghsán to be his successor but that by a legal adoption, recognized by secular or civil authorities, of any male as his son will validate that choice as being legally an Aghsán. This is the position taken by the Baha'is Under the Provisions of the Covenant. In my opinion, this approach is very similar to the second one, but curiously adds the unnecessary requirement that the Guardian's choice of successor have a legal sanction by a secular adoption.

It is ironic that the split of the Faith comes over the interpretation of a clause contained in the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha, a writing intended by Him to avoid a split within the Cause of God by creating the Institution of the Guardianship and enjoining all of the believers to be obedient to the Guardian and his interpretations. Unfortunately, the vast majority of Baha'is lost faith in the Covenant of Baha'u'llah and rejected the Guardianship following the death of Shoghi Effendi, and thus they adopted the materialistic and superstitious belief that Shoghi Effendi was unable to appoint a successor because the Aghsán were either dead or unfaithful. Having failed to embrace the living Guardian of the Cause, the Baha'is followed the incorrect interpretation of the Will and Testament and have found themselves in grievous error.

Posted at 07:06 PM in Introductory | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Three Approaches to Understanding the term "Aghsán"

The division of Baha'is into several different sects came about because of the differing interpretations of the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha. In that holy and sacred Document, Abdu'l-Baha created the Institution of the Guardianship as the Center of the Cause, and the Institution that would carry forward His function and authority as Interpreter of the Holy Writings. He appointed Shoghi Effendi as the first Guardian of the Cause and enjoined upon him the duty to appoint his successor: either his first born descendant, or the Guardian may "choose another branch to succeed him."

Since Shoghi Effendi had no descendants, the question came up whether he chose another branch. The Arabic word, Aghsán, or Branch, had been defined by Shoghi Effendi as the Sons of Baha'u'llah, although this was obviously not the meaning of the word in this context, since at the time Abdu'l-Baha wrote these words, there were no faithful Sons of Baha'u'llah. The proper interpretation of the word Aghsán to the question of the continuing Guardianship is key to understanding the split amongst the Baha'is.

There are three basic approaches to this:

1) Magic Sperm: The first approach is the belief that only one of the Sons of Baha'u'llah, or at least a male blood-line descendant, is eligible for appointment as Guardian. This is the majority Baha'i view represented by those Bahais who presently occupy Haifa and Wilmette (the heterodox Baha'is). I consider this concept to be the "magic sperm" theory carrying the implicit belief that there is some magical essence in the bloodline of Baha'u'llah that is necessary for one to be divinely guided. Although this is a highly superstitious and materialistic point of view, there is an historical basis for this in Islamic belief. For example, the descendants of the Prophet Muhammad are considered to have some special status or respect. The idea of blood royalty found in many of the systems of government historically also carry this idea that the genetic code of certain families carries with it some kind of magical power or essence.

If we carry the logic of this belief to its extreme, we would consider what would happen if the genetic material of Shoghi Effendi were cloned. We would have an exact duplicate of Shoghi Effendi's genetic makeup, but of course physically we would end up with his cloned identical twin. It would be a different person entirely and would not be the Guardian. Of course, if we could do this, we could clone Baha'u'llah Himself, but of course we would end up with a cloned human being and not the Manifestation of God for this Day. There is no magic in their genetic material. This example does not intend any disrespect, but merely to show absurd it is to insist that only a physical relative of Baha'u'llah could possibly serve as Guardian.

2) Spiritual Aghsán: The second approach is the belief that the Guardian may choose any male believer as his successor, and that the person so chosen is, effectively, a "spiritual" Aghsán. This would be the view represented by the Orthodox Baha'is, that is those who recognize Joel B. Marangella as the third Guardian. It is also the view taken by those Baha'is who follow Jacques Soghomonian as their fourth Guardian. This approach finds that the Will and Testament did not

impose an obligation upon the Guardian to appoint an Aghsán, but allows him to appoint any male believer as his successor. Branchhood is essentially a spiritual relationship and does not require a physical family relation. This is not a materialistic and superstitious approach, but rather is a spiritual understanding of the essential relationships of the Institutions of the Faith and the believers. For more on these spiritual relationships, see Joel B. Marangella's article entitled "Tree of the Covenant".

3) Secular Adoption: The other approach is the belief that the Guardian may only choose an Aghsán to be his successor but that by a legal adoption, recognized by secular or civil authorities, of any male as his son will validate that choice as being legally an Aghsán. This is the position taken by the Baha'is Under the Provisions of the Covenant. In my opinion, this approach is very similar to the second one, but curiously adds the unnecessary requirement that the Guardian's choice of successor have a legal sanction by a secular adoption.

It is ironic that the split of the Faith comes over the interpretation of a clause contained in the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha, a writing intended by Him to avoid a split within the Cause of God by creating the Institution of the Guardianship and enjoining all of the believers to be obedient to the Guardian and his interpretations. Unfortunately, the vast majority of Baha'is lost faith in the Covenant of Baha'u'llah and rejected the Guardianship following the death of Shoghi Effendi, and thus they adopted the materialistic and superstitious belief that Shoghi Effendi was unable to appoint a successor because the Aghsán were either dead or unfaithful. Having failed to embrace the living Guardian of the Cause, the Baha'is followed the incorrect interpretation of the Will and Testament and have found themselves in grievous error.

Posted at 07:06 PM in Introductory | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Update on Court Action Against the Orthodox Baha'is

An evidentiary hearing on the Wilmette NSA's contempt motion against the Orthodox Bahai Faith and the Baha'is under the Provisions of the Covenant is scheduled for January 7, 2008 at 9:30 AM in the United States District Court, before the Honorable Amy J. St Eve in Courtroom 1241 in the Everett McKinley Dirksen Federal Building, 219 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Illinois. This will be a "mini-trial" on the issue of whether the respondents are in "privity" with the NSA under the Hereditary Guardianship (Mason Remey's organization) and therefore bound by the 1966 Judgment against that NSA. Witness testimony will be taken at the hearing which is scheduled for two days.

To see the recent Court orders, go to our updated page:
http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html

Posted at 11:23 AM in Court Action | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Update on Court Action Against the Orthodox Baha'is

An evidentiary hearing on the Wilmette NSA's contempt motion against the Orthodox Bahai Faith and the Baha'is under the Provisions of the Covenant is scheduled for January 7, 2008 at 9:30 AM in the United States District Court, before the Honorable Amy J. St Eve in Courtroom 1241 in the Everett McKinley Dirksen Federal Building, 219 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Illinois. This will be a "mini-trial" on the issue of whether the respondents are in "privity" with the NSA under the Hereditary Guardianship (Mason Remey's organization) and therefore bound by the 1966 Judgment against that NSA. Witness testimony will be taken at the hearing which is scheduled for two days.

To see the recent Court orders, go to our updated page:
http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html

Posted at 11:23 AM in Court Action | Permalink

True Bahá'í

We have unsealed the choice cyanide kool-aid!

I had to laugh out loud over the recent admission by a sans-Guardian Bahai in the talk.religion.bahai newsgroup who insisted that Baha'u'llah revealed the "stifling rules and regulations" enforced by the Bahai organization currently occupying Haifa and Wilmette.

Anyone with familiarity with that organization knows that their religion consists of a series of endless edicts about what one can or cannot think, do or say in every conceivable situation. They pump out book after book of "guidance" to tell their faithful flock how they are supposed to think and behave about everything for the sake of "unity." If perchance there is some area of their lives not covered by their stifling rules and regulations, there is only one thing to do about it. Not sure which shade of lipstick to use? Is it OK for unmarried persons to kiss? With or without tongue? Shoot off a letter to God's supposed representative on this earth, their so-called Universal House of Justice and ask them to please tell me what to do, what to say, what to believe.

Of course, you can't have stifling rules and regulations without stifling ENFORCEMENT. Luckily, there is a unified community of single-minded busybodies to get the job done. The non-stop job of the Bahai busybodies is to make sure that nobody is breaking any of the stifling rules and regulations and to punish those who do, so that their precious Faith will not fall into disrepute:

Busybody 1: "What time did Jane come home last night?"
Busybody 2: "Did she even come home? She was on a date and never came home at all!"
Busybody 1; "Who is she sleeping with? We need to have a talk with her and remind her that she will risk losing her (gasp) voting rights!"
Busybody 2: "LuAnne never goes out on dates. I wonder if she is at home masturbating? The UHJ said that was definitely not allowed."
Busybody 1: "I wonder how we can find out? We need to spy on her for the sake of the community."
Busybody 2: "Is John drinking again? Peter saw him in a bar the other night."
Busybody 1: "Oh really, what was Peter doing in a bar?"
Busybody 2: "Good point. I better report him to the LSA."

Am I exaggerating? Perhaps. But I have seen this kind of mind-boggling interference with people's lives when I was a cult member of this Bahai community.

But you know I have read up quite a bit on the Bahai Revelation over the years and frankly I cannot remember reading in the words of the founding figures of this Faith the remotest reference to the need for a Bahai community to organize for the purpose of spying upon and enforcing the personal "laws" of the Faith.

Baha'u'llah had this to say about His rules and regulations:

"Think not that We have revealed unto you a mere code of laws. Nay, rather, We have unsealed the choice Wine with the fingers of might and power. To this beareth witness that which the Pen of Revelation hath revealed. Meditate upon this, O men of insight!" Baha'u'llah, The Kitab-i-Aqdas, p. 21

Let's meditate upon this for a moment. He did not say that He wanted you to drink the cyanide-laced kool-aid of sicko cultists. He said it was the choice Wine. Note the capital letters. I think that has something to do with God-intoxication and not a network of busybodies making sure everybody is doing the right thing, saying the right thing, and thinking the right thoughts.

There is an idea. God intoxication. That is, a soul in connection with the Beloved. Mystic intercourse with the Holy Spirit. Remember that spiritual stuff?

Could it be that the personal laws of the Bahai revelation are guidelines for leading a spiritual life that each person needs to internalize within his or her own life?

Could it be that the purpose of the Bahai revelation is the spiritual growth of the entire community by each member of that community fighting his or her own spiritual battles?

Could it be that the role of the community and its administrative institutions is to foster and facilitate this growth and not to promulgate and enforce stifing rules and regulations that lord over the individual members?

I think it could be.

The thing that really amazes me is that there so many individuals who are willing to allow others to impose external control over their minds and bodies. Why don't they wake up?

Posted at 09:53 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

We have unsealed the choice cyanide kool-aid!

I had to laugh out loud over the recent admission by a sans-Guardian Bahai in the talk.religion.bahai newsgroup who insisted that Baha'u'llah revealed the "stifling rules and regulations" enforced by the Bahai organization currently occupying Haifa and Wilmette.

Anyone with familiarity with that organization knows that their religion consists of a series of endless edicts about what one can or cannot think, do or say in every conceivable situation. They pump out book after book of "guidance" to tell their faithful flock how they are supposed to think and behave about everything for the sake of "unity." If perchance there is some area of their lives not covered by their stifling rules and regulations, there is only one thing to do about it. Not sure which shade of lipstick to use? Is it OK for unmarried persons to kiss? With or without tongue? Shoot off a letter to God's supposed representative on this earth, their so-called Universal House of Justice and ask them to please tell me what to do, what to say, what to believe.

Of course, you can't have stifling rules and regulations without stifling ENFORCEMENT. Luckily, there is a unified community of single-minded busybodies to get the job done. The non-stop job of the Bahai busybodies is to make sure that nobody is breaking any of the stifling rules and regulations and to punish those who do, so that their precious Faith will not fall into disrepute:

Busybody 1: "What time did Jane come home last night?"
Busybody 2: "Did she even come home? She was on a date and never came home at all!"
Busybody 1; "Who is she sleeping with? We need to have a talk with her and remind her that she will risk losing her (gasp) voting rights!"
Busybody 2: "LuAnne never goes out on dates. I wonder if she is at home masturbating? The UHJ said that was definitely not allowed."
Busybody 1: "I wonder how we can find out? We need to spy on her for the sake of the community."
Busybody 2: "Is John drinking again? Peter saw him in a bar the other night."
Busybody 1: "Oh really, what was Peter doing in a bar?"
Busybody 2: "Good point. I better report him to the LSA."

Am I exaggerating? Perhaps. But I have seen this kind of mind-boggling interference with people's lives when I was a cult member of this Bahai community.

But you know I have read up quite a bit on the Bahai Revelation over the years and frankly I cannot remember reading in the words of the founding figures of this Faith the remotest reference to the need for a Bahai community to organize for the purpose of spying upon and enforcing the personal "laws" of the Faith.

Baha'u'llah had this to say about His rules and regulations:

"Think not that We have revealed unto you a mere code of laws. Nay, rather, We have unsealed the choice Wine with the fingers of might and power. To this beareth witness that which the Pen of Revelation hath revealed. Meditate upon this, O men of insight!" Baha'u'llah, The Kitab-i-Aqdas, p. 21

Let's meditate upon this for a moment. He did not say that He wanted you to drink the cyanide-laced kool-aid of sicko cultists. He said it was the choice Wine. Note the capital letters. I think that has something to do with God-intoxication and not a network of busybodies making sure everybody is doing the right thing, saying the right thing, and thinking the right thoughts.

There is an idea. God intoxication. That is, a soul in connection with the Beloved. Mystic intercourse with the Holy Spirit. Remember that spiritual stuff?

Could it be that the personal laws of the Bahai revelation are guidelines for leading a spiritual life that each person needs to internalize within his or her own life?

Could it be that the purpose of the Bahai revelation is the spiritual growth of the entire community by each member of that community fighting his or her own spiritual battles?

Could it be that the role of the community and its administrative institutions is to foster and facilitate this growth and not to promulgate and enforce stifing rules and regulations that lord over the individual members?

I think it could be.

The thing that really amazes me is that there so many individuals who are willing to allow others to impose external control over their minds and bodies. Why don't they wake up?

Posted at 09:53 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

WHO CREATED THE SECTS IN THE BAHAI FAITH?

by guest blogger:
Dr. A. Parikh
Secretary of the National (Orthodox) Bahai Council of India

My Dear Bahá'í Friends!

Some of the friends enquire as to why the Divine Cause (Bahá'í Faith) has become divided into different sects? What are the factors behind it? Who is responsible for this division?

It is well understood why such questions should come to mind. But it is sad that there is no discussion on such questions nor do we investigate the answers to such questions. While 'Abdu'l-Bahá insisted that:

"The shining spark of truth cometh forth only after the clash of differing opinions".
(Abdu'l-Baha, Selections from the Writings of Abdu'l-Baha, p. 87)

Friends claim that:

According to the sayings of Abdul Bahá, the "Guardian" should be from the lineage of Bahá'u'lláh.

This is not correct in any way. Bahá'u'lláh has never placed, or written, any such condition concerning the Guardianship. In fact, He has only alluded to the Guardianship in His Writings, and it remained for 'Abdu'l-Bahá to establish the institution of the Guardianship in His Will and Testament.

I request the friends whenever you quote what "Abdul Baha says", please quote His correct and exact words and do not insert the doubtful ideas of your own mind.

The majorityof the friends are unaware of and lack knowledge of the truth but, on the other hand, accept whatever has been stated by the UHJ, the NSA or LSA and rely completely upon erroneous facts. They do not strive to know any thing other than those confused ideas and attribute those baseless, adverse and confused ideas and facts to Bahá'u'lláh.

In the Writings and Tablets of Bahá'u'lláh and 'Abdul Bahá, preference is given to impeccability and perfection and it is emphasized that preference should be given to spiritual relationships over physical relationships. Therefore, 'Abdul Bahá explains the matter as follows:

"The lineage of descendants is of two types one is from physical descendants and the other is spiritual. One is born of clay and water, and the other from the soul and heart."
(Ma'idiy-i-Asmani. Vol 5, p. 161)

"O dear one of 'Abdu'l-Baha! Be the son of thy father and be the fruit of that tree. Be a son that hath been born of his soul and heart and not only of water and clay. A real son is such a one as hath branched from the spiritual part of man. I ask God that thou mayest be at all times confirmed and strengthened."

(Selections from the Writings of Abdu'l-Baha, p. 140)

The Friends should note that Assemblies do not have any right to decide or discuss "any matter" outside the powers and responsibilities fixed by Abdul Bahá and Shoghi Effendi. Then, who authorizes them to either change or falsify the intent of statements made in the "Tablets and Will and Testament" and thereby go against the explicit Holy Text?

They cannot decide that the Guardianship shall continue or not continue in the Bahai Faith, because according to the Will and Testament, the Guardianship of the Cause of God will continue till the end of the Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh. Even if all the people of the world should stand against him the truth cannot be changed by decision of the people.

As for the current sects in the Bahá'í Faith, this is due to those Baha'is who, following the passing of Shoghi Effendi, stood against the Expounder and Interpreter of the Words of God-- "The Guardian of the Faith"-- and, unfortunately, the majority of the Bahá'ís blindly followed them. It was far better had they paid attention to the words of 'Abdul Baha. For He said:

"Were it not for the protecting power of the Covenant to guard the impregnable fort of the Cause of God, there would arise among the Baha'is, in one day, a thousand different sects as was the case in former ages. But in this Blessed Dispensation, for the sake of the permanency of the Cause of God and the avoidance of dissension amongst the people of God, the Blessed Beauty (may my soul be a sacrifice unto Him), has through the Supreme Pen written the Covenant and the Testament; He appointed a Center, the Exponent of the Book and the annuller of disputes. Whatever is written or said by Him is conformable to the truth and under the protection of the Blessed Beauty. He is infallible. The express purpose of this last Will and Testament is to set aside disputes from the world."
(Abdu'l-Baha, Baha'i World Faith - Abdu'l-Baha Section, p. 357)

Further, 'Abdu'l-Bahá wrote in His Will and Testament:

"The Mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the guardian of the Cause of God. It is incumbent upon the members of the House Justice, upon all the Aghsán, the Afnán, the Hands of the Cause of God to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him. He that opposeth him hath opposed the True One, will make a breach in the Cause of God, will subvert His word and will become a manifestation of the Centre of Sedition. (Will & Testament of Abdul Bahá page No.12)

My Dear Bahá'í Friend!

Do you now realize why the different sects came into existence among the Bahá'ís? Do you understand to whom Abdul Bahá has referred to as the Disputer and Creator of the Sects?

It should now be clear from the terms of His "Will" that disobedience to the Guardian and rebelling against him have now caused the several sects to come into existence.

The true Bahá'ís are those who are under the Shelter of the Guardian. The deviated sects are those who have turned away from the true Guardian.

It is my fervent hope that soon all the friends will turn unto the living guardian of the Faith and will be submissive unto him.

Written by Dr. A. Parikh, Secretary of the National (Orthodox) Bahai Council of India
on 27th July 2007.

Posted at 06:17 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

WHO CREATED THE SECTS IN THE BAHAI FAITH?

by guest blogger:
Dr. A. Parikh
Secretary of the National (Orthodox) Bahai Council of India

My Dear Bahá'í Friends!

Some of the friends enquire as to why the Divine Cause (Bahá'í Faith) has become divided into different sects? What are the factors behind it? Who is responsible for this division?

It is well understood why such questions should come to mind. But it is sad that there is no discussion on such questions nor do we investigate the answers to such questions. While 'Abdu'l-Bahá insisted that:

"The shining spark of truth cometh forth only after the clash of differing opinions".
(Abdu'l-Baha, Selections from the Writings of Abdu'l-Baha, p. 87)

Friends claim that:

According to the sayings of Abdul Bahá, the "Guardian" should be from the lineage of Bahá'u'lláh.

This is not correct in any way. Bahá'u'lláh has never placed, or written, any such condition concerning the Guardianship. In fact, He has only alluded to the Guardianship in His Writings, and it remained for 'Abdu'l-Bahá to establish the institution of the Guardianship in His Will and Testament.

I request the friends whenever you quote what "Abdul Baha says", please quote His correct and exact words and do not insert the doubtful ideas of your own mind.

The majorityof the friends are unaware of and lack knowledge of the truth but, on the other hand, accept whatever has been stated by the UHJ, the NSA or LSA and rely completely upon erroneous facts. They do not strive to know any thing other than those confused ideas and attribute those baseless, adverse and confused ideas and facts to Bahá'u'lláh.

In the Writings and Tablets of Bahá'u'lláh and 'Abdul Bahá, preference is given to impeccability and perfection and it is emphasized that preference should be given to spiritual relationships over physical relationships. Therefore, 'Abdul Bahá explains the matter as follows:

"The lineage of descendants is of two types one is from physical descendants and the other is spiritual. One is born of clay and water, and the other from the soul and heart."
(Ma'idiy-i-Asmani. Vol 5, p. 161)

"O dear one of 'Abdu'l-Baha! Be the son of thy father and be the fruit of that tree. Be a son that hath been born of his soul and heart and not only of water and clay. A real son is such a one as hath branched from the spiritual part of man. I ask God that thou mayest be at all times confirmed and strengthened."

(Selections from the Writings of Abdu'l-Baha, p. 140)

The Friends should note that Assemblies do not have any right to decide or discuss "any matter" outside the powers and responsibilities fixed by Abdul Bahá and Shoghi Effendi. Then, who authorizes them to either change or falsify the intent of statements made in the "Tablets and Will and Testament" and thereby go against the explicit Holy Text?

They cannot decide that the Guardianship shall continue or not continue in the Bahai Faith, because according to the Will and Testament, the Guardianship of the Cause of God will continue till the end of the Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh. Even if all the people of the world should stand against him the truth cannot be changed by decision of the people.

As for the current sects in the Bahá'í Faith, this is due to those Baha'is who, following the passing of Shoghi Effendi, stood against the Expounder and Interpreter of the Words of God-- "The Guardian of the Faith"-- and, unfortunately, the majority of the Bahá'ís blindly followed them. It was far better had they paid attention to the words of 'Abdul Baha. For He said:

"Were it not for the protecting power of the Covenant to guard the impregnable fort of the Cause of God, there would arise among the Baha'is, in one day, a thousand different sects as was the case in former ages. But in this Blessed Dispensation, for the sake of the permanency of the Cause of God and the avoidance of dissension amongst the people of God, the Blessed Beauty (may my soul be a sacrifice unto Him), has through the Supreme Pen written the Covenant and the Testament; He appointed a Center, the Exponent of the Book and the annuller of disputes. Whatever is written or said by Him is conformable to the truth and under the protection of the Blessed Beauty. He is infallible. The express purpose of this last Will and Testament is to set aside disputes from the world."
(Abdu'l-Baha, Baha'i World Faith - Abdu'l-Baha Section, p. 357)

Further, 'Abdu'l-Bahá wrote in His Will and Testament:

"The Mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the guardian of the Cause of God. It is incumbent upon the members of the House Justice, upon all the Aghsán, the Afnán, the Hands of the Cause of God to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him. He that opposeth him hath opposed the True One, will make a breach in the Cause of God, will subvert His word and will become a manifestation of the Centre of Sedition. (Will & Testament of Abdul Bahá page No.12)

My Dear Bahá'í Friend!

Do you now realize why the different sects came into existence among the Bahá'ís? Do you understand to whom Abdul Bahá has referred to as the Disputer and Creator of the Sects?

It should now be clear from the terms of His "Will" that disobedience to the Guardian and rebelling against him have now caused the several sects to come into existence.

The true Bahá'ís are those who are under the Shelter of the Guardian. The deviated sects are those who have turned away from the true Guardian.

It is my fervent hope that soon all the friends will turn unto the living guardian of the Faith and will be submissive unto him.

Written by Dr. A. Parikh, Secretary of the National (Orthodox) Bahai Council of India
on 27th July 2007.

Posted at 06:17 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Can you guess where these quotations came from?

Can you guess where these quotations came from?

1. "At a time when religious extremism, intolerance, and discrimination are threatening peace and security in many parts of the world, it is imperative for the United Nations to address this issue [the freedom of religion or belief] openly and earnestly. Until all people are free to openly practice and share their beliefs within the parameters of equally applied laws, as well as change their religion or belief system, development and peace will prove elusive."

2. "Baha'is believe freedom of religion and conscience is the intrinsic right of each individual and is central to human development. It lies at the heart of an individual's integrity and identity."

3. "Baha'is believe adherence to religion or belief must never be coerced."

4. "In their interpersonal relationships, Baha'is are guided by Baha'u'llah's call to 'consort with the followers of all religions in a spirit of friendliness and fellowship.'"

5. "In the United States, the Baha'i community advocates for religious freedom..."

You might be shocked to know that quotation number 1 came from the Baha'i International Community's Response to the Secretary General's Report, 30 April 2005. http://statements.bahai.org/05-0402.htm.

The Bahá'í International Community is a non-governmental organization (NGO) registered with the United Nations and affiliated with the so-called Universal House of Justice now occupying Mt. Carmel in Haifa. If you want to see some more shameless hyprocrisy, check out these articles from the Bahai International Community:
Statement on religious freedom: http://www.bic-un.bahai.org/pdf/05-1001.pdf
Eliminating religious intolerance: http://www.bic-un.bahai.org/pdf/90-0125.pdf

The other quotations above are from a web page of the National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the United States (presently headquartered in Wilmette) that is devoted to "religious freedom." http://www.bahai.us/religious-freedom

Anyone familiar with this organization of Baha'is knows how stunning are the hypocrisy of these statements considering the track record of this organization in its constant attempts to stifle dissent and religious freedom of conscience within its own ranks. Everyone familiar with the organization knows how it shuns, coerces, and abuses anyone who might hold a different view from the one espoused by its leadership. The tight control of the community and the fanatical response to its critics lies in sharp contrast to the liberal words it espouses to the United Nations.

This hypocrisy is punctuated by the cries from the Wilmette NSA's religious freedom page over the persecution of Baha'is in Iran and Egypt. These cries of persecution are in sharp contrast to the actions of the Wilmette NSA in bringing the Orthodox Baha'is and others to court in an attempt to prevent them from using the word "Baha'i" in their names and from using the allegedly trademarked sacred symbols of the Greatest Name. For information about that action, go to: http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html

The attempt by this Bahai organization to put on a liberal face when it comes to religious freedom does not mean there is any hope at all that they will ever get their house in order and allow religious dissent within the Bahai community, and recognize the right of other denominations of Bahai to exist. It is only for show and to seek favors and pity from the international community over the mistreatment of the Bahais in Iran and Egypt. That mistreatment has not enlightened them about the falsity of their own position.

This hypocrisy is evident to the world at large. The fairly objective Ontario Consultants on Religious Tolerance has made note of this outrageous hypocrisy of the Bahais: http://www.religioustolerance.org/bahai5.htm.

Another amusing document is the bogus UHJ's statement on individual rights and freedom: http://bahai-library.org/published.uhj/irf.html

What a contribution to the world's literature is this gem of a statement. In it, the UHJ expresses both its fear and contempt for free speech. It suggests that the principle of moderation should be applied to just how free society should allow speech to be, reminding us that Baha'u'llah approved of liberty in certain circumstances and did not in others. It is for their fascist UHJ to let us know what those circumstances are. Because Baha'u'llah said "excess of speech (is) a deadly poison," the UHJ apparently believes that speech needs to be feared and suppressed.

If you want to see how speech is to be regulated in this bogus UHJ's world order, check out this correspondence:
http://www.bahai-faith.com/ex-Bahai-7.html

Hopefully, the world's public will eventually awaken to the fascist elements of this sick Bahai organization that now occupies Haifa and Wilmette and which every day perverts and distorts the Message of Baha'u'llah.

Hopefully too the public will perceive the more subtle hypocrisy of this Bahai organization as it espouses a liberal attitude towards all of the world's religions. It is barely able to mask its contempt for the followers of the other revealed religions it superciliously regards as dead faiths of the historical past. If this organization is ever given the chance, it will probably oppose the right of those religions to exist as well.

It is time for the Bahai community to eliminate the condescending attitude it displays with respect to other religions. In every exposition of the unity of all religions by Baha'is, there is always this patronizing air to it, that the Baha'i Faith is so superior to the previously revealed religions. The actual teaching of Baha'u'llah is not that the Baha'i Faith is superior to other religions, but that all revealed religious faiths are successive chapters of the one Faith, and that it is the latest one but not the last. To believe that the Baha'i Faith is superior to other religions is to lose sight of the true teaching of the Faith and it serves only to alienate the members of other religions who can certainly perceive this air of superiority coming from Baha'is.

Indeed it is high time for Baha'is everywhere to live up to the ideals of tolerance and righteousness, brotherhood, and freedom of conscience that was taught by the Founding Figures of the Faith. I pray this will happen soon, before it is too late to resurrect the good name of Baha'i.

Posted at 10:38 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Can you guess where these quotations came from?

Can you guess where these quotations came from?

1. "At a time when religious extremism, intolerance, and discrimination are threatening peace and security in many parts of the world, it is imperative for the United Nations to address this issue [the freedom of religion or belief] openly and earnestly. Until all people are free to openly practice and share their beliefs within the parameters of equally applied laws, as well as change their religion or belief system, development and peace will prove elusive."

2. "Baha'is believe freedom of religion and conscience is the intrinsic right of each individual and is central to human development. It lies at the heart of an individual's integrity and identity."

3. "Baha'is believe adherence to religion or belief must never be coerced."

4. "In their interpersonal relationships, Baha'is are guided by Baha'u'llah's call to 'consort with the followers of all religions in a spirit of friendliness and fellowship.'"

5. "In the United States, the Baha'i community advocates for religious freedom..."

You might be shocked to know that quotation number 1 came from the Baha'i International Community's Response to the Secretary General's Report, 30 April 2005. http://statements.bahai.org/05-0402.htm.

The Bahá'í International Community is a non-governmental organization (NGO) registered with the United Nations and affiliated with the so-called Universal House of Justice now occupying Mt. Carmel in Haifa. If you want to see some more shameless hyprocrisy, check out these articles from the Bahai International Community:
Statement on religious freedom: http://www.bic-un.bahai.org/pdf/05-1001.pdf
Eliminating religious intolerance: http://www.bic-un.bahai.org/pdf/90-0125.pdf

The other quotations above are from a web page of the National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the United States (presently headquartered in Wilmette) that is devoted to "religious freedom." http://www.bahai.us/religious-freedom

Anyone familiar with this organization of Baha'is knows how stunning are the hypocrisy of these statements considering the track record of this organization in its constant attempts to stifle dissent and religious freedom of conscience within its own ranks. Everyone familiar with the organization knows how it shuns, coerces, and abuses anyone who might hold a different view from the one espoused by its leadership. The tight control of the community and the fanatical response to its critics lies in sharp contrast to the liberal words it espouses to the United Nations.

This hypocrisy is punctuated by the cries from the Wilmette NSA's religious freedom page over the persecution of Baha'is in Iran and Egypt. These cries of persecution are in sharp contrast to the actions of the Wilmette NSA in bringing the Orthodox Baha'is and others to court in an attempt to prevent them from using the word "Baha'i" in their names and from using the allegedly trademarked sacred symbols of the Greatest Name. For information about that action, go to: http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html

The attempt by this Bahai organization to put on a liberal face when it comes to religious freedom does not mean there is any hope at all that they will ever get their house in order and allow religious dissent within the Bahai community, and recognize the right of other denominations of Bahai to exist. It is only for show and to seek favors and pity from the international community over the mistreatment of the Bahais in Iran and Egypt. That mistreatment has not enlightened them about the falsity of their own position.

This hypocrisy is evident to the world at large. The fairly objective Ontario Consultants on Religious Tolerance has made note of this outrageous hypocrisy of the Bahais: http://www.religioustolerance.org/bahai5.htm.

Another amusing document is the bogus UHJ's statement on individual rights and freedom: http://bahai-library.org/published.uhj/irf.html

What a contribution to the world's literature is this gem of a statement. In it, the UHJ expresses both its fear and contempt for free speech. It suggests that the principle of moderation should be applied to just how free society should allow speech to be, reminding us that Baha'u'llah approved of liberty in certain circumstances and did not in others. It is for their fascist UHJ to let us know what those circumstances are. Because Baha'u'llah said "excess of speech (is) a deadly poison," the UHJ apparently believes that speech needs to be feared and suppressed.

If you want to see how speech is to be regulated in this bogus UHJ's world order, check out this correspondence:
http://www.bahai-faith.com/ex-Bahai-7.html

Hopefully, the world's public will eventually awaken to the fascist elements of this sick Bahai organization that now occupies Haifa and Wilmette and which every day perverts and distorts the Message of Baha'u'llah.

Hopefully too the public will perceive the more subtle hypocrisy of this Bahai organization as it espouses a liberal attitude towards all of the world's religions. It is barely able to mask its contempt for the followers of the other revealed religions it superciliously regards as dead faiths of the historical past. If this organization is ever given the chance, it will probably oppose the right of those religions to exist as well.

It is time for the Bahai community to eliminate the condescending attitude it displays with respect to other religions. In every exposition of the unity of all religions by Baha'is, there is always this patronizing air to it, that the Baha'i Faith is so superior to the previously revealed religions. The actual teaching of Baha'u'llah is not that the Baha'i Faith is superior to other religions, but that all revealed religious faiths are successive chapters of the one Faith, and that it is the latest one but not the last. To believe that the Baha'i Faith is superior to other religions is to lose sight of the true teaching of the Faith and it serves only to alienate the members of other religions who can certainly perceive this air of superiority coming from Baha'is.

Indeed it is high time for Baha'is everywhere to live up to the ideals of tolerance and righteousness, brotherhood, and freedom of conscience that was taught by the Founding Figures of the Faith. I pray this will happen soon, before it is too late to resurrect the good name of Baha'i.

Posted at 10:38 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

follow the Light, not the torch-bearer

There is so much confusion and misunderstanding about the Guardianship in the Bahai world today. First of all, many Bahais have no concept or understanding of the Guardianship as one of the core teachings of the Cause of God. That is, in this Day of God it is necessary for the Cause to have an authorized interpreter and center, to whom all must turn, in order to maintain the unity of the Cause, and to carry the Faith effectively into the future.

The sans-Guardian Bahais, of course, have perverted this teaching to mean that all must turn to their headless so-called Universal House of Justice. I believe the simple analogy of a relay race will demonstrate how these Bahais, and others, have completely strayed from the true path.

If you think of divine guidance as the Light emanating from Baha'u'llah and the line of successors as the torch-bearers of that Light, then it is easy to understand the Bahai covenant.

Mastercolor_3 The first torch-bearer was Abdu'l-Baha, the Center of the Covenant. Once the torch was in His possession, the authority in the Faith belonged to Him. It was His decision entirely about the person to whom He would pass the authority after His passing. Abdu'l-Baha's Will and Testament created the Guardianship for this purpose, and He named Shoghi Effendi, His grandson, as the first Guardian. The Guardian was the Center of the Cause, the authorized interpreter, and the sacred head of the Universal House of Justice in that future time when it would be created by the Guardian.

Now Shoghi Effendi carried the torch that illumined the world with Baha'u'llah, the Light. He faithfully Shoghi_2 carried out his ministry to erect the Institutions of the Faith, as delineated in the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha. During his ministry, the Faith spread far and wide, with numerous and far-flung local and national Assemblies proliferating throughout the world, the appointment of Hands of the Cause, and the establishment in its embryonic state of the International Baha'i Council, the embryonic Universal House of Justice. Charles Mason Remey was appointed as the president of the embryonic Institution.

Upon Shoghi Effendi's untimely death, the Bahai world became confused. The Light of the torch carried by Shoghi Effendi was so bright that they could not conceive of anyone else worthy to carry the Light into the future. Had they understood more clearly the vital and central import of the Guardianship, they would not have lost faith that this Light remained on this earth even though Shoghi Effendi had passed on. Had they turned to the now newborn International Bahai Council, they would have eventually seen that the President of the IBC was holding the torch that he had received from Shoghi Effendi and that the Light continued to shine in this world.

Making the same mistake that the followers of past religions continually have made, they failed to distinguish between the Light and the torch-bearer, so that they were unable to recognize the new torch-bearer. It was a relay race and they were still looking to the runner who no longer carried the torch, instead of following the torch in the hands of the next runner. If one follows the relay race metaphor to its logical conclusion, it is evident that the Custodian Hands had no authority whatsoever. By the nonsensical argument that they were the "chief stewards" of the Cause, the Hands created the Custodians and claimed that this illicit body was now the bearer of the Light. The only problem was that the mere designation of the Hands as "chief stewards" was not, by any stretch of the imagination, the same as passing the authority of the Covenant to the Hands. To the contrary, it was a strong indication that the Hands were to remain sub-servient to the Guardian after the passing of the torch. The Custodians imagined, in their arrogance, that they somehow had the torch and that they had faithfully passed this torch to the headless UHJ of their own creation. Of course, their torch was not lit with the Light of Baha'u'llah, so the torch they passed to their bogus UHJ was emitting nothing but darkness.

Remey Meanwhile, Mason Remey ran with the torch. However, he was already an elderly man and it was difficult for him to run the relay race for very long. After a long and frustrating battle with the Hands of the Cause that found him expelled from the former Bahai organization and having been rejected by the vast majority of Bahais, Mason Remey's physical health was deteriorating and he was not able to function as the Guardian for more than a few years. Recognizing his failing health and being divinely guided by the Light that he faithfully carried, Mason Remey appointed Joel B. Marangella as the President of the Second International Bahai Council, and he forcefully insisted that the IBC be activated with Marangella as its President in 1965. This effectively transferred the torch to Joel B. Marangella even though Remey was still alive. All of Remey's followers continued to follow the former torch-bearer, Mason Remey, even though the torch was no longer in his hands. Even Marangella was in denial about this, even though the significance of the activation of the IBC was known and understood by him. He rationalized it away and continued to follow the former torch-bearer for several years.

Not until it became clear to many of his followers that Remey was no longer functioning as the Guardian (that is, his pronouncements were clearly erroneous and could not possibly be the product of a divinely guided man) did it occur to them that perhaps they may have missed something. By this time, towards the end of 1969, Joel B. Marangella announced that he was, in fact, the Guardian and had been so since Joelbmarangella_3 the activation of the IBC. Some of Remey's followers recognized that Marangella now held the torch of divine Light and came over to his Orthodox Bahai Faith. Many of Remey's followers could not understand how Marangella could possibly carry the torch while Remey was still alive, no matter how obvious it was to them that Mason no longer carried the Light. Those believers remained in Remey's Bahai Faith under the Hereditary Guardianship that he had re-named in 1966 as the "Abha World Faith." Again, the believers had mistaken the torch-bearer for the Light.

The torch carrying the Light of Baha'u'llah is now in the possession of Joel B. Marangella and will so remain until such time as he passes the torch to his chosen successor (a Persian believer, Hand of the Cause Nosrat'u'llah Bahremand, whose fatherImg_0157 had recognized Mason Remey and served in the NSA under the Hereditary Guardianship in Iran).

The Baha'is of the world will not be united, and will be unable to carry out their mission of delivering Baha'u'llah's Light to the world, until such time as they come under the guidance of the torch-bearer of His Light, the living Guardian of the Cause of God. This is nothing but the truth.

Posted at 09:36 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

follow the Light, not the torch-bearer

There is so much confusion and misunderstanding about the Guardianship in the Bahai world today. First of all, many Bahais have no concept or understanding of the Guardianship as one of the core teachings of the Cause of God. That is, in this Day of God it is necessary for the Cause to have an authorized interpreter and center, to whom all must turn, in order to maintain the unity of the Cause, and to carry the Faith effectively into the future.

The sans-Guardian Bahais, of course, have perverted this teaching to mean that all must turn to their headless so-called Universal House of Justice. I believe the simple analogy of a relay race will demonstrate how these Bahais, and others, have completely strayed from the true path.

If you think of divine guidance as the Light emanating from Baha'u'llah and the line of successors as the torch-bearers of that Light, then it is easy to understand the Bahai covenant.

Mastercolor_3 The first torch-bearer was Abdu'l-Baha, the Center of the Covenant. Once the torch was in His possession, the authority in the Faith belonged to Him. It was His decision entirely about the person to whom He would pass the authority after His passing. Abdu'l-Baha's Will and Testament created the Guardianship for this purpose, and He named Shoghi Effendi, His grandson, as the first Guardian. The Guardian was the Center of the Cause, the authorized interpreter, and the sacred head of the Universal House of Justice in that future time when it would be created by the Guardian.

Now Shoghi Effendi carried the torch that illumined the world with Baha'u'llah, the Light. He faithfully Shoghi_2 carried out his ministry to erect the Institutions of the Faith, as delineated in the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha. During his ministry, the Faith spread far and wide, with numerous and far-flung local and national Assemblies proliferating throughout the world, the appointment of Hands of the Cause, and the establishment in its embryonic state of the International Baha'i Council, the embryonic Universal House of Justice. Charles Mason Remey was appointed as the president of the embryonic Institution.

Upon Shoghi Effendi's untimely death, the Bahai world became confused. The Light of the torch carried by Shoghi Effendi was so bright that they could not conceive of anyone else worthy to carry the Light into the future. Had they understood more clearly the vital and central import of the Guardianship, they would not have lost faith that this Light remained on this earth even though Shoghi Effendi had passed on. Had they turned to the now newborn International Bahai Council, they would have eventually seen that the President of the IBC was holding the torch that he had received from Shoghi Effendi and that the Light continued to shine in this world.

Making the same mistake that the followers of past religions continually have made, they failed to distinguish between the Light and the torch-bearer, so that they were unable to recognize the new torch-bearer. It was a relay race and they were still looking to the runner who no longer carried the torch, instead of following the torch in the hands of the next runner. If one follows the relay race metaphor to its logical conclusion, it is evident that the Custodian Hands had no authority whatsoever. By the nonsensical argument that they were the "chief stewards" of the Cause, the Hands created the Custodians and claimed that this illicit body was now the bearer of the Light. The only problem was that the mere designation of the Hands as "chief stewards" was not, by any stretch of the imagination, the same as passing the authority of the Covenant to the Hands. To the contrary, it was a strong indication that the Hands were to remain sub-servient to the Guardian after the passing of the torch. The Custodians imagined, in their arrogance, that they somehow had the torch and that they had faithfully passed this torch to the headless UHJ of their own creation. Of course, their torch was not lit with the Light of Baha'u'llah, so the torch they passed to their bogus UHJ was emitting nothing but darkness.

Remey Meanwhile, Mason Remey ran with the torch. However, he was already an elderly man and it was difficult for him to run the relay race for very long. After a long and frustrating battle with the Hands of the Cause that found him expelled from the former Bahai organization and having been rejected by the vast majority of Bahais, Mason Remey's physical health was deteriorating and he was not able to function as the Guardian for more than a few years. Recognizing his failing health and being divinely guided by the Light that he faithfully carried, Mason Remey appointed Joel B. Marangella as the President of the Second International Bahai Council, and he forcefully insisted that the IBC be activated with Marangella as its President in 1965. This effectively transferred the torch to Joel B. Marangella even though Remey was still alive. All of Remey's followers continued to follow the former torch-bearer, Mason Remey, even though the torch was no longer in his hands. Even Marangella was in denial about this, even though the significance of the activation of the IBC was known and understood by him. He rationalized it away and continued to follow the former torch-bearer for several years.

Not until it became clear to many of his followers that Remey was no longer functioning as the Guardian (that is, his pronouncements were clearly erroneous and could not possibly be the product of a divinely guided man) did it occur to them that perhaps they may have missed something. By this time, towards the end of 1969, Joel B. Marangella announced that he was, in fact, the Guardian and had been so since Joelbmarangella_3 the activation of the IBC. Some of Remey's followers recognized that Marangella now held the torch of divine Light and came over to his Orthodox Bahai Faith. Many of Remey's followers could not understand how Marangella could possibly carry the torch while Remey was still alive, no matter how obvious it was to them that Mason no longer carried the Light. Those believers remained in Remey's Bahai Faith under the Hereditary Guardianship that he had re-named in 1966 as the "Abha World Faith." Again, the believers had mistaken the torch-bearer for the Light.

The torch carrying the Light of Baha'u'llah is now in the possession of Joel B. Marangella and will so remain until such time as he passes the torch to his chosen successor (a Persian believer, Hand of the Cause Nosrat'u'llah Bahremand, whose fatherImg_0157 had recognized Mason Remey and served in the NSA under the Hereditary Guardianship in Iran).

The Baha'is of the world will not be united, and will be unable to carry out their mission of delivering Baha'u'llah's Light to the world, until such time as they come under the guidance of the torch-bearer of His Light, the living Guardian of the Cause of God. This is nothing but the truth.

Posted at 09:36 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Reflections on the passing of Dr. Ali-Muhammad Varqa

The passing of Hand of the Cause, Dr. Ali-Muhammad Varqa, on 22 September 2007 was the end of an era for the sans-Guardian Bahai Faith that is presently headquartered in Haifa and Wilmette.

Dr Varqa came from a distinguished family of holy Baha'is. Dr. Varqa was a descendant of the revered martyr, Hand of the Cause Aqa Mirza Varqa, and received his name by Abdu'l-Baha in memory of his illustrious grandfather. His father, Hand of the Cause Valiyu'llah Varqa, was the trustee for the Huquq'ullah for Shoghi Effendi. Upon his father's death, Dr Varqa was appointed a Trustee of the Huquq by Shoghi Effendi just two years before the first Guardian's passing, and he continued to serve in that capacity on behalf of the Custodians and then the headless UHJ after it was created by the Hands.

Dr. Varqa was one of the nine Hands who met after the passing of Shoghi Effendi in order to open the Guardian's safe and desk in their futile search for Shoghi Effendi's Will and Testament. During the ministry of the Custodians following Shoghi Effendi's death, Dr. Varqa sometimes acted as one of the "substitute Custodians" in the absence of a permanent Custodian from Haifa. Dr. Varqa was the last living Hand of the Cause appointed by Shoghi Effendi. His death now means that organization is not only permanently deprived of its Guardian, but also now its Hands of the Cause.

How said it must be for Dr. Varqa to enter the Abha Kingdom in disgrace, In such sharp contrast to the station of glory to which his father and grandfather must have attained in the next world. To be counted amongst the instigators of the Great Violation must torment his soul. What a dubious honor it must be to be identified publicly as the "last Hand."

Of course, the Institution of the Hands of the Cause and of the Guardianship are alive and well in the Orthodox Bahai Faith, despite the efforts of the violators to kill these essential Institutions of Baha'u'llah's Kingdom. Although the Orthodox Baha'is are incredibly small in number, they have intact and functioning the Bahai Administrative Order as intended by Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha, as a shining beacon of light and guidance for the world. The Orthodox Baha'is have an activated International Bahai Council, with the Guardian (Joel B. Marangella) as its head, and both national and local councils serving under it. The Guardian has appointed 8 Hands of the Cause (one of whom was appointed posthumously).

After Shoghi Effendi's death, the Hands met together in secret conclave and decided the end of the Guardianship, declaring "Badah," that God had changed His mind. Then, instead of allowing the International Bahai Council, the embryonic UHJ created by Shoghi Effendi, to head up the Faith, the Hands appointed "Custodians" to exercise "all such functions, rights and powers in succession to the Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith" and then to deliver those illegitimate rights and powers to the illegitimate UHJ of their own making. As a result of this violation, the Hands actions threatened the end of the Guardianship and of the Institutions of the Hands (which can only be appointed by the Guardian). If not for the heroic deeds of Mason Remey and his followers, and now of Joel B. Marangella, and those who obey his Guardianship, in keeping alive these Institutions of the Cause of God, the Administrative Order of Baha'ullah might have been lost!

But it is not too late. The followers of the illegitimate UHJ now sitting in Haifa have the opportunity to right this wrong and to try to redeem the name of Dr Varqa and his fellow violating Hands. They simply must abandon this violation and approach the Guardian of Cause with humility and devotion, recognizing his Guardianship and offering their loyalty to him. They will be welcomed back to the true Cause of God and the healing Message of Baha'u'llah at last can begin to be spread throughout the world, and not a moment too soon.

Posted at 07:59 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink | Comments (1) | TrackBack (0)

True Bahá'í

Reflections on the passing of Dr. Ali-Muhammad Varqa

The passing of Hand of the Cause, Dr. Ali-Muhammad Varqa, on 22 September 2007 was the end of an era for the sans-Guardian Bahai Faith that is presently headquartered in Haifa and Wilmette.

Dr Varqa came from a distinguished family of holy Baha'is. Dr. Varqa was a descendant of the revered martyr, Hand of the Cause Aqa Mirza Varqa, and received his name by Abdu'l-Baha in memory of his illustrious grandfather. His father, Hand of the Cause Valiyu'llah Varqa, was the trustee for the Huquq'ullah for Shoghi Effendi. Upon his father's death, Dr Varqa was appointed a Trustee of the Huquq by Shoghi Effendi just two years before the first Guardian's passing, and he continued to serve in that capacity on behalf of the Custodians and then the headless UHJ after it was created by the Hands.

Dr. Varqa was one of the nine Hands who met after the passing of Shoghi Effendi in order to open the Guardian's safe and desk in their futile search for Shoghi Effendi's Will and Testament. During the ministry of the Custodians following Shoghi Effendi's death, Dr. Varqa sometimes acted as one of the "substitute Custodians" in the absence of a permanent Custodian from Haifa. Dr. Varqa was the last living Hand of the Cause appointed by Shoghi Effendi. His death now means that organization is not only permanently deprived of its Guardian, but also now its Hands of the Cause.

How said it must be for Dr. Varqa to enter the Abha Kingdom in disgrace, In such sharp contrast to the station of glory to which his father and grandfather must have attained in the next world. To be counted amongst the instigators of the Great Violation must torment his soul. What a dubious honor it must be to be identified publicly as the "last Hand."

Of course, the Institution of the Hands of the Cause and of the Guardianship are alive and well in the Orthodox Bahai Faith, despite the efforts of the violators to kill these essential Institutions of Baha'u'llah's Kingdom. Although the Orthodox Baha'is are incredibly small in number, they have intact and functioning the Bahai Administrative Order as intended by Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha, as a shining beacon of light and guidance for the world. The Orthodox Baha'is have an activated International Bahai Council, with the Guardian (Joel B. Marangella) as its head, and both national and local councils serving under it. The Guardian has appointed 8 Hands of the Cause (one of whom was appointed posthumously).

After Shoghi Effendi's death, the Hands met together in secret conclave and decided the end of the Guardianship, declaring "Badah," that God had changed His mind. Then, instead of allowing the International Bahai Council, the embryonic UHJ created by Shoghi Effendi, to head up the Faith, the Hands appointed "Custodians" to exercise "all such functions, rights and powers in succession to the Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith" and then to deliver those illegitimate rights and powers to the illegitimate UHJ of their own making. As a result of this violation, the Hands actions threatened the end of the Guardianship and of the Institutions of the Hands (which can only be appointed by the Guardian). If not for the heroic deeds of Mason Remey and his followers, and now of Joel B. Marangella, and those who obey his Guardianship, in keeping alive these Institutions of the Cause of God, the Administrative Order of Baha'ullah might have been lost!

But it is not too late. The followers of the illegitimate UHJ now sitting in Haifa have the opportunity to right this wrong and to try to redeem the name of Dr Varqa and his fellow violating Hands. They simply must abandon this violation and approach the Guardian of Cause with humility and devotion, recognizing his Guardianship and offering their loyalty to him. They will be welcomed back to the true Cause of God and the healing Message of Baha'u'llah at last can begin to be spread throughout the world, and not a moment too soon.

Posted at 07:59 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink | Comments (1) | TrackBack (0)

True Bahá'í

More thoughts on the spiritual battle with the forces of darkness

In my last article, I spoke about the spiritual warfare that is going on between the forces of darkness and the Army of Light, and about how so many people misunderstand this concept, erroneously confusing spiritual battle with physical methods of force and control.

"It follows that all who work for the Supreme Design are soldiers in the army of the Spirit. The light of the celestial world makes war against the world of shadow and illusion. The rays of the Sun of Truth dispel the darkness of superstition and misunderstanding." Abdu'l-Baha, Paris Talks, p. 85.

Spiritual battle is engaged in the hearts and minds of humanity and does not require physical methods.

"[B]e a celestial army, and you shall indeed conquer the city of hearts." Abdu'l-Baha, Paris Talks, p. 171.

The forces of darkness are engrossed in passions, greed, brutality, and enslavement of others as a means for obtaining power and control. The Army of Light works for the Kingdom of God on earth as it is in heaven, working in a spirit of selfless service, compassion, and loving-kindness for the purpose of freeing humanity from its bondage and allowing for its spiritual growth and happiness.

"I supplicate God that ye may become the army of that kingdom, in order that by the power of the Most Great Name, the friends of God may conquer this world through love, friendship and the strength of the Kingdom of peace; the human race become compassionate, and bloodshed and carnage be completely effaced from the universe." Baha'i World Faith - Abdu'l-Baha Section, p. 409.

At present, this war is going badly. The forces of darkness are taking ascendancy.

Blood lust and violence have taken hold of humanity at every level. Violence grips people in their families, in the streets, and globally as nations and factions fight one another with increasing levels of terror and destruction. Violence is viewed by most people as the only effective means of resolving disputes, regarding violence not only as legitimate but as the exclusive or preferred method of achieving one's ends. Almost universally peaceful methods of conflict resolution are viewed with disdain, as ineffective relics of naive fools.

"O ye dear friends! The world is at war and the human race is in travail and mortal combat. The dark night of hate hath taken over, and the light of good faith is blotted out. The peoples and kindreds of the earth have sharpened their claws, and are hurling themselves one against the other. It is the very foundation of the human race that is being destroyed. It is thousands of households that are vagrant and dispossessed, and every year seeth thousands upon thousands of human beings weltering in their life-blood on dusty battlefields. The tents of life and joy are down. The generals practise their generalship, boasting of the blood they shed, competing one with the next in inciting to violence. 'With this sword,' saith one of them, 'I beheaded a people!'

And another: 'I toppled a nation to the ground!' And yet another: 'I brought a government down!' On such things do men pride themselves, in such do they glory! Love -- righteousness -- these are everywhere censured, while despised are harmony, and devotion to the truth." Selections from the Writings of Abdu'l-Baha, p. 2.

Those who deny the existence of this great battle between the forces of darkness and the Army of Light must be blind to reality because the evidence of this epic fight is all around us. This is the end time, and those who love God must not sit idle while the forces of darkness take over every aspect of society and capture the souls of our fellow men and women. We must stand up courageously in the arena of service to the Cause of God and fight evil wherever it presents itself. This battle is not physical. This is not a violent struggle. This is a battle of prayer, kindness, and compassion.

"Therefore today "victory" neither hath been nor will be opposition to anyone, nor strife with any person; but rather what is well-pleasing is that the cities of [men's] hearts, which are under the dominion of the hosts of selfishness and lust, should be subdued by the sword of the Word, of Wisdom, and of Exhortation. Everyone, then, who desireth "victory" must first subdue the city of his own heart with the sword of spiritual truth and of the Word, and must protect it from remembering aught beside God: afterwards let him turn his regards towards the cities of [others'] hearts."
Abdu'l-Baha, A Traveller's Narrative, p. 63

Posted at 09:33 AM in Introductory | Permalink

True Bahá'í

More thoughts on the spiritual battle with the forces of darkness

In my last article, I spoke about the spiritual warfare that is going on between the forces of darkness and the Army of Light, and about how so many people misunderstand this concept, erroneously confusing spiritual battle with physical methods of force and control.

"It follows that all who work for the Supreme Design are soldiers in the army of the Spirit. The light of the celestial world makes war against the world of shadow and illusion. The rays of the Sun of Truth dispel the darkness of superstition and misunderstanding." Abdu'l-Baha, Paris Talks, p. 85.

Spiritual battle is engaged in the hearts and minds of humanity and does not require physical methods.

"[B]e a celestial army, and you shall indeed conquer the city of hearts." Abdu'l-Baha, Paris Talks, p. 171.

The forces of darkness are engrossed in passions, greed, brutality, and enslavement of others as a means for obtaining power and control. The Army of Light works for the Kingdom of God on earth as it is in heaven, working in a spirit of selfless service, compassion, and loving-kindness for the purpose of freeing humanity from its bondage and allowing for its spiritual growth and happiness.

"I supplicate God that ye may become the army of that kingdom, in order that by the power of the Most Great Name, the friends of God may conquer this world through love, friendship and the strength of the Kingdom of peace; the human race become compassionate, and bloodshed and carnage be completely effaced from the universe." Baha'i World Faith - Abdu'l-Baha Section, p. 409.

At present, this war is going badly. The forces of darkness are taking ascendancy.

Blood lust and violence have taken hold of humanity at every level. Violence grips people in their families, in the streets, and globally as nations and factions fight one another with increasing levels of terror and destruction. Violence is viewed by most people as the only effective means of resolving disputes, regarding violence not only as legitimate but as the exclusive or preferred method of achieving one's ends. Almost universally peaceful methods of conflict resolution are viewed with disdain, as ineffective relics of naive fools.

"O ye dear friends! The world is at war and the human race is in travail and mortal combat. The dark night of hate hath taken over, and the light of good faith is blotted out. The peoples and kindreds of the earth have sharpened their claws, and are hurling themselves one against the other. It is the very foundation of the human race that is being destroyed. It is thousands of households that are vagrant and dispossessed, and every year seeth thousands upon thousands of human beings weltering in their life-blood on dusty battlefields. The tents of life and joy are down. The generals practise their generalship, boasting of the blood they shed, competing one with the next in inciting to violence. 'With this sword,' saith one of them, 'I beheaded a people!'

And another: 'I toppled a nation to the ground!' And yet another: 'I brought a government down!' On such things do men pride themselves, in such do they glory! Love -- righteousness -- these are everywhere censured, while despised are harmony, and devotion to the truth." Selections from the Writings of Abdu'l-Baha, p. 2.

Those who deny the existence of this great battle between the forces of darkness and the Army of Light must be blind to reality because the evidence of this epic fight is all around us. This is the end time, and those who love God must not sit idle while the forces of darkness take over every aspect of society and capture the souls of our fellow men and women. We must stand up courageously in the arena of service to the Cause of God and fight evil wherever it presents itself. This battle is not physical. This is not a violent struggle. This is a battle of prayer, kindness, and compassion.

"Therefore today "victory" neither hath been nor will be opposition to anyone, nor strife with any person; but rather what is well-pleasing is that the cities of [men's] hearts, which are under the dominion of the hosts of selfishness and lust, should be subdued by the sword of the Word, of Wisdom, and of Exhortation. Everyone, then, who desireth "victory" must first subdue the city of his own heart with the sword of spiritual truth and of the Word, and must protect it from remembering aught beside God: afterwards let him turn his regards towards the cities of [others'] hearts."
Abdu'l-Baha, A Traveller's Narrative, p. 63

Posted at 09:33 AM in Introductory | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Reflections on the passing of Dr. Ali-Muhammad Varqa

The passing of Hand of the Cause, Dr. Ali-Muhammad Varqa, on 22 September 2007 was the end of an era for the sans-Guardian Bahai Faith that is presently headquartered in Haifa and Wilmette.

Dr Varqa came from a distinguished family of holy Baha'is. Dr. Varqa was a descendant of the revered martyr, Hand of the Cause Aqa Mirza Varqa, and received his name by Abdu'l-Baha in memory of his illustrious grandfather. His father, Hand of the Cause Valiyu'llah Varqa, was the trustee for the Huquq'ullah for Shoghi Effendi. Upon his father's death, Dr Varqa was appointed a Trustee of the Huquq by Shoghi Effendi just two years before the first Guardian's passing, and he continued to serve in that capacity on behalf of the Custodians and then the headless UHJ after it was created by the Hands.

Dr. Varqa was one of the nine Hands who met after the passing of Shoghi Effendi in order to open the Guardian's safe and desk in their futile search for Shoghi Effendi's Will and Testament. During the ministry of the Custodians following Shoghi Effendi's death, Dr. Varqa sometimes acted as one of the "substitute Custodians" in the absence of a permanent Custodian from Haifa. Dr. Varqa was the last living Hand of the Cause appointed by Shoghi Effendi. His death now means that organization is not only permanently deprived of its Guardian, but also now its Hands of the Cause.

How said it must be for Dr. Varqa to enter the Abha Kingdom in disgrace, In such sharp contrast to the station of glory to which his father and grandfather must have attained in the next world. To be counted amongst the instigators of the Great Violation must torment his soul. What a dubious honor it must be to be identified publicly as the "last Hand."

Of course, the Institution of the Hands of the Cause and of the Guardianship are alive and well in the Orthodox Bahai Faith, despite the efforts of the violators to kill these essential Institutions of Baha'u'llah's Kingdom. Although the Orthodox Baha'is are incredibly small in number, they have intact and functioning the Bahai Administrative Order as intended by Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha, as a shining beacon of light and guidance for the world. The Orthodox Baha'is have an activated International Bahai Council, with the Guardian (Joel B. Marangella) as its head, and both national and local councils serving under it. The Guardian has appointed 8 Hands of the Cause (one of whom was appointed posthumously).

After Shoghi Effendi's death, the Hands met together in secret conclave and decided the end of the Guardianship, declaring "Badah," that God had changed His mind. Then, instead of allowing the International Bahai Council, the embryonic UHJ created by Shoghi Effendi, to head up the Faith, the Hands appointed "Custodians" to exercise "all such functions, rights and powers in succession to the Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith" and then to deliver those illegitimate rights and powers to the illegitimate UHJ of their own making. As a result of this violation, the Hands actions threatened the end of the Guardianship and of the Institutions of the Hands (which can only be appointed by the Guardian). If not for the heroic deeds of Mason Remey and his followers, and now of Joel B. Marangella, and those who obey his Guardianship, in keeping alive these Institutions of the Cause of God, the Administrative Order of Baha'ullah might have been lost!

But it is not too late. The followers of the illegitimate UHJ now sitting in Haifa have the opportunity to right this wrong and to try to redeem the name of Dr Varqa and his fellow violating Hands. They simply must abandon this violation and approach the Guardian of Cause with humility and devotion, recognizing his Guardianship and offering their loyalty to him. They will be welcomed back to the true Cause of God and the healing Message of Baha'u'llah at last can begin to be spread throughout the world, and not a moment too soon.

Posted at 07:59 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Reflections on the passing of Dr. Ali-Muhammad Varqa

The passing of Hand of the Cause, Dr. Ali-Muhammad Varqa, on 22 September 2007 was the end of an era for the sans-Guardian Bahai Faith that is presently headquartered in Haifa and Wilmette.

Dr Varqa came from a distinguished family of holy Baha'is. Dr. Varqa was a descendant of the revered martyr, Hand of the Cause Aqa Mirza Varqa, and received his name by Abdu'l-Baha in memory of his illustrious grandfather. His father, Hand of the Cause Valiyu'llah Varqa, was the trustee for the Huquq'ullah for Shoghi Effendi. Upon his father's death, Dr Varqa was appointed a Trustee of the Huquq by Shoghi Effendi just two years before the first Guardian's passing, and he continued to serve in that capacity on behalf of the Custodians and then the headless UHJ after it was created by the Hands.

Dr. Varqa was one of the nine Hands who met after the passing of Shoghi Effendi in order to open the Guardian's safe and desk in their futile search for Shoghi Effendi's Will and Testament. During the ministry of the Custodians following Shoghi Effendi's death, Dr. Varqa sometimes acted as one of the "substitute Custodians" in the absence of a permanent Custodian from Haifa. Dr. Varqa was the last living Hand of the Cause appointed by Shoghi Effendi. His death now means that organization is not only permanently deprived of its Guardian, but also now its Hands of the Cause.

How said it must be for Dr. Varqa to enter the Abha Kingdom in disgrace, In such sharp contrast to the station of glory to which his father and grandfather must have attained in the next world. To be counted amongst the instigators of the Great Violation must torment his soul. What a dubious honor it must be to be identified publicly as the "last Hand."

Of course, the Institution of the Hands of the Cause and of the Guardianship are alive and well in the Orthodox Bahai Faith, despite the efforts of the violators to kill these essential Institutions of Baha'u'llah's Kingdom. Although the Orthodox Baha'is are incredibly small in number, they have intact and functioning the Bahai Administrative Order as intended by Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha, as a shining beacon of light and guidance for the world. The Orthodox Baha'is have an activated International Bahai Council, with the Guardian (Joel B. Marangella) as its head, and both national and local councils serving under it. The Guardian has appointed 8 Hands of the Cause (one of whom was appointed posthumously).

After Shoghi Effendi's death, the Hands met together in secret conclave and decided the end of the Guardianship, declaring "Badah," that God had changed His mind. Then, instead of allowing the International Bahai Council, the embryonic UHJ created by Shoghi Effendi, to head up the Faith, the Hands appointed "Custodians" to exercise "all such functions, rights and powers in succession to the Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith" and then to deliver those illegitimate rights and powers to the illegitimate UHJ of their own making. As a result of this violation, the Hands actions threatened the end of the Guardianship and of the Institutions of the Hands (which can only be appointed by the Guardian). If not for the heroic deeds of Mason Remey and his followers, and now of Joel B. Marangella, and those who obey his Guardianship, in keeping alive these Institutions of the Cause of God, the Administrative Order of Baha'ullah might have been lost!

But it is not too late. The followers of the illegitimate UHJ now sitting in Haifa have the opportunity to right this wrong and to try to redeem the name of Dr Varqa and his fellow violating Hands. They simply must abandon this violation and approach the Guardian of Cause with humility and devotion, recognizing his Guardianship and offering their loyalty to him. They will be welcomed back to the true Cause of God and the healing Message of Baha'u'llah at last can begin to be spread throughout the world, and not a moment too soon.

Posted at 07:59 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Reflections on the passing of Dr. Ali-Muhammad Varqa

The passing of Hand of the Cause, Dr. Ali-Muhammad Varqa, on 22 September 2007 was the end of an era for the sans-Guardian Bahai Faith that is presently headquartered in Haifa and Wilmette.

Dr Varqa came from a distinguished family of holy Baha'is. Dr. Varqa was a descendant of the revered martyr, Hand of the Cause Aqa Mirza Varqa, and received his name by Abdu'l-Baha in memory of his illustrious grandfather. His father, Hand of the Cause Valiyu'llah Varqa, was the trustee for the Huquq'ullah for Shoghi Effendi. Upon his father's death, Dr Varqa was appointed a Trustee of the Huquq by Shoghi Effendi just two years before the first Guardian's passing, and he continued to serve in that capacity on behalf of the Custodians and then the headless UHJ after it was created by the Hands.

Dr. Varqa was one of the nine Hands who met after the passing of Shoghi Effendi in order to open the Guardian's safe and desk in their futile search for Shoghi Effendi's Will and Testament. During the ministry of the Custodians following Shoghi Effendi's death, Dr. Varqa sometimes acted as one of the "substitute Custodians" in the absence of a permanent Custodian from Haifa. Dr. Varqa was the last living Hand of the Cause appointed by Shoghi Effendi. His death now means that organization is not only permanently deprived of its Guardian, but also now its Hands of the Cause.

How said it must be for Dr. Varqa to enter the Abha Kingdom in disgrace, In such sharp contrast to the station of glory to which his father and grandfather must have attained in the next world. To be counted amongst the instigators of the Great Violation must torment his soul. What a dubious honor it must be to be identified publicly as the "last Hand."

Of course, the Institution of the Hands of the Cause and of the Guardianship are alive and well in the Orthodox Bahai Faith, despite the efforts of the violators to kill these essential Institutions of Baha'u'llah's Kingdom. Although the Orthodox Baha'is are incredibly small in number, they have intact and functioning the Bahai Administrative Order as intended by Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha, as a shining beacon of light and guidance for the world. The Orthodox Baha'is have an activated International Bahai Council, with the Guardian (Joel B. Marangella) as its head, and both national and local councils serving under it. The Guardian has appointed 8 Hands of the Cause (one of whom was appointed posthumously).

After Shoghi Effendi's death, the Hands met together in secret conclave and decided the end of the Guardianship, declaring "Badah," that God had changed His mind. Then, instead of allowing the International Bahai Council, the embryonic UHJ created by Shoghi Effendi, to head up the Faith, the Hands appointed "Custodians" to exercise "all such functions, rights and powers in succession to the Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith" and then to deliver those illegitimate rights and powers to the illegitimate UHJ of their own making. As a result of this violation, the Hands actions threatened the end of the Guardianship and of the Institutions of the Hands (which can only be appointed by the Guardian). If not for the heroic deeds of Mason Remey and his followers, and now of Joel B. Marangella, and those who obey his Guardianship, in keeping alive these Institutions of the Cause of God, the Administrative Order of Baha'ullah might have been lost!

But it is not too late. The followers of the illegitimate UHJ now sitting in Haifa have the opportunity to right this wrong and to try to redeem the name of Dr Varqa and his fellow violating Hands. They simply must abandon this violation and approach the Guardian of Cause with humility and devotion, recognizing his Guardianship and offering their loyalty to him. They will be welcomed back to the true Cause of God and the healing Message of Baha'u'llah at last can begin to be spread throughout the world, and not a moment too soon.

Posted at 07:59 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Religion will degenerate into a mere organization

The emphasis in the Bahai Faith (that is, the sans-Guardian organization of Baha'is now occupying Haifa and Wilmette) on its Administration, obedience to its leadership, the constant flow of rules and regulations, the spying and paranoia over its members. and petty enforcement of laws regulating the private lives of its believers, has caused that organization to enter into a winter of spiritual ossification.

It seems this organization has forgotten that it is first and foremost a religious faith. Instead it has become preoccupied with itself as a corporate entity, with its trademarks, copyrights, market share, and advertising, as if the Message of Baha'u'llah was a commodity to be marketed and sold in the marketplace.

Shoghi Effendi, the first Guardian of the Cause, saw this was coming and tried to warn the Baha'is that spiritual death would come without a mystical relationship with God born of prayer and meditation:

"For the core of religious faith is that mystic feeling which unites Man with God. This state of spiritual communion can be brought about and maintained by means of meditation and prayer. And this is the reason why Bahá'u'lláh has so much stressed the importance of worship. It is not sufficient for a believer merely to accept and observe the teachings. He should, in addition, cultivate the sense of spirituality which he can acquire chiefly by means of prayer. The Bahá'í Faith, like all other Divine Religions, is thus fundamentally mystic in character. Its chief goal is the development of the individual and society, through the acquisition of spiritual virtues and powers. It is the soul of man which has first to be fed. And this spiritual nourishment prayer can best provide.

"Laws and institutions, as viewed by Bahá'u'lláh, can become really effective only when our inner spiritual life has been perfected and transformed. Otherwise religion will degenerate into a mere organization, and becomes a dead thing. The believers, particularly the young ones, should therefore fully realize the necessity of praying. For prayer is absolutely indispensable to their inner spiritual development, and this, as already stated, is the very foundation and purpose of the religion of God." Shoghi Effendi, Directives from the Guardian, p. 86-87

Thankfully, in the Bahai revelation, matters of spirituality are left to individual choice. Except for the revealed prayers, there is no established methods of prayer and meditation. The individual is left to choose spiritual practices according to his or her own level of spiritual growth. Since prayer and meditation is strictly a matter between God and an individual, there is no congregational or other organized forum for prayer. Instead, the practice of briefly reciting prayers at meetings is used. This freedom in matters of spirituality is one of the distinguishing features of the Baha'i religion, and because of this freedom the Baha'i religion is accessible to people of a variety of backgrounds. Regardless of one's past religious history or level of spiritual development, one can join the Faith and participate in its community, while pursuing one's own individual relationship with God. A Zen Buddhist and a Christian laymen can join side by side, each with his or her own spiritual practices and yet united within a common faith. At least, that was one of the promises of the Bahai Revelation.

Unfortunately, for those Bahais who are shallow and have merely scratched the surface of this Revelation (and those who know a community of these Baha'is will attest that this applies to the vast majority of them) they have no other spiritual life than the brief recital of a revealed prayer at a Feast, or Bahai school, or other function. That is the extent of their religious service. Since everything in their Bahai life is otherwise strictly regulated and controlled, there is no one telling them to pray at home and so most probably do not do so. It appears anyway that this is the case. The Bahais seem to give lip service to their spirituality but otherwise treat their religious activities as cold and calculating meetings designed to attract more members so that a larger pool of fanatical contributors can be obtained in order to further their goals of growth and consolidation. It is nothing more than a corporate business mentality. It has ceased to be a religion.

Posted at 10:17 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Religion will degenerate into a mere organization

The emphasis in the Bahai Faith (that is, the sans-Guardian organization of Baha'is now occupying Haifa and Wilmette) on its Administration, obedience to its leadership, the constant flow of rules and regulations, the spying and paranoia over its members. and petty enforcement of laws regulating the private lives of its believers, has caused that organization to enter into a winter of spiritual ossification.

It seems this organization has forgotten that it is first and foremost a religious faith. Instead it has become preoccupied with itself as a corporate entity, with its trademarks, copyrights, market share, and advertising, as if the Message of Baha'u'llah was a commodity to be marketed and sold in the marketplace.

Shoghi Effendi, the first Guardian of the Cause, saw this was coming and tried to warn the Baha'is that spiritual death would come without a mystical relationship with God born of prayer and meditation:

"For the core of religious faith is that mystic feeling which unites Man with God. This state of spiritual communion can be brought about and maintained by means of meditation and prayer. And this is the reason why Bahá'u'lláh has so much stressed the importance of worship. It is not sufficient for a believer merely to accept and observe the teachings. He should, in addition, cultivate the sense of spirituality which he can acquire chiefly by means of prayer. The Bahá'í Faith, like all other Divine Religions, is thus fundamentally mystic in character. Its chief goal is the development of the individual and society, through the acquisition of spiritual virtues and powers. It is the soul of man which has first to be fed. And this spiritual nourishment prayer can best provide.

"Laws and institutions, as viewed by Bahá'u'lláh, can become really effective only when our inner spiritual life has been perfected and transformed. Otherwise religion will degenerate into a mere organization, and becomes a dead thing. The believers, particularly the young ones, should therefore fully realize the necessity of praying. For prayer is absolutely indispensable to their inner spiritual development, and this, as already stated, is the very foundation and purpose of the religion of God." Shoghi Effendi, Directives from the Guardian, p. 86-87

Thankfully, in the Bahai revelation, matters of spirituality are left to individual choice. Except for the revealed prayers, there is no established methods of prayer and meditation. The individual is left to choose spiritual practices according to his or her own level of spiritual growth. Since prayer and meditation is strictly a matter between God and an individual, there is no congregational or other organized forum for prayer. Instead, the practice of briefly reciting prayers at meetings is used. This freedom in matters of spirituality is one of the distinguishing features of the Baha'i religion, and because of this freedom the Baha'i religion is accessible to people of a variety of backgrounds. Regardless of one's past religious history or level of spiritual development, one can join the Faith and participate in its community, while pursuing one's own individual relationship with God. A Zen Buddhist and a Christian laymen can join side by side, each with his or her own spiritual practices and yet united within a common faith. At least, that was one of the promises of the Bahai Revelation.

Unfortunately, for those Bahais who are shallow and have merely scratched the surface of this Revelation (and those who know a community of these Baha'is will attest that this applies to the vast majority of them) they have no other spiritual life than the brief recital of a revealed prayer at a Feast, or Bahai school, or other function. That is the extent of their religious service. Since everything in their Bahai life is otherwise strictly regulated and controlled, there is no one telling them to pray at home and so most probably do not do so. It appears anyway that this is the case. The Bahais seem to give lip service to their spirituality but otherwise treat their religious activities as cold and calculating meetings designed to attract more members so that a larger pool of fanatical contributors can be obtained in order to further their goals of growth and consolidation. It is nothing more than a corporate business mentality. It has ceased to be a religion.

Posted at 10:17 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The spiritual battle with the forces of darkness

I have been writing critical pieces about the sans-Guardian Bahai organization that is presently headquartered in Haifa and Wilmette, and some of its critics have tried to make the point that the paranoia and oppression exhibited by that organization had its source in the actions of the first Guardian, Shoghi Effendi, and even the founders of the Faith.

I disagree with this. Although I don't agree with everything Shoghi Effendi did, and I think he had his personality quirks just like everyone else, I don't see any concrete evidence of Shoghi Effendi taking the kind of oppressive actions that the headless UHJ presently commits on a regular basis.

Critics say that Shoghi Effendi exhibited paranoia when he explained Baha'u'llah's teachings that this is the day when the forces of darkness will do battle with the Army of Light. Larry Rowe recently had this to say on talk.religion.bahai:

Hi Jeffrey,

Whenever I read the following from the UHJ I get the willies:

The need to protect the Faith from the attacks of its enemies may not be generally appreciated by the friends, particularly in places where attacks have been infrequent. However, it is certain that such opposition will increase, become concerted, and eventually universal. The writings clearly foreshadow not only an intensification of the machinations of internal enemies, but a rise in the hostility and opposition of its external enemies, whether religious or secular, as the Cause pursues its onward march towards ultimate victory. Therefore, in the light of the warnings of the Guardian, the Auxiliary Boards for Protection should keep "constantly" a "watchful eye" on those "who are known to be enemies, or to have been put out of the Faith", discreetly investigate their activities, alert intelligently the friends to the opposition inevitably to come, explain how each crisis in God's Faith has always proved to be a blessing in disguise, and prepare them for the "dire contest which is destined to range the Army of Light against the forces of darkness".

(The Universal House of Justice, The Institution of the Counsellors, p. 16)

The Stasi-like mentality that is advocated by the UHJ in the above has no place in a system deserving of the name spiritual. What such paranoia which councils coreligionists to:""keep constantly" a "watchful eye" on those "who are known to be enemies, or to have been put out of the Faith", discreetly investigate their activities", inevitably does is create an elite who begin to believe that their personal religious interpretations are the all in all and that each and every one of their coreligionists who holds to religious interpretations which are diverse from their own orthodoxy should be purged, disenfranchised.

A person needs to investigate what the source of this paranoia is though.

It was Shoghi Effendi that the UHJ was quoting when they referred to an Army of Light.

The Lord of Hosts, the King of Kings has pledged unfailing aid to every crusader battling for His Cause. Invisible battalions are mustered, rank upon rank, ready to pour forth reinforcements from on high. Bahá'u'lláh's army of light is standing on the threshold of the Holy Year.

(Shoghi Effendi, Messages to the Baha'i World - 1950-1957, p. 44)

I also get the "willies" when I read the chilling words of their headless UHJ about how it sees enemies all around it, from within and without, and it must keep a watchful eye. I don't get the same feeling about Shoghi Effendi's messages because he is talking about a spiritual battle while the headless UHJ is talking about physically opposing its enemies (and of course, it considers me as one of its enemies and it is indeed presently doing battle against me and my colleagues in a federal district court in Chicago).
http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html

I believe we are in the midst of spiritual warfare. I am not talking about any of the physical wars going on in the world, although they are obvious symptoms of this greater fight that is going on in the spiritual world for the soul of humanity. In brief, this spiritual war is for the hearts and minds of every human being on this planet. The forces of darkness wish to enslave humanity in a materialist hell of hatred and passion. The Army of Light, on the other hand, seeks to free humanity so that it may achieve its destiny and evolve into spiritual beings of light and truth. This battle is being waged on all fronts throughout the world and it is absolutely essential that all of us engage the enemy and fight for love, truth, and justice in this world. When I say fight, I am not talking about physical or material violence in any shape way or form. I am talking about being prayer warriors, and fighting in the spiritual world for the redemption of our fellow men and women. This is difficult for many people to grasp because their vision is limited to the physical world. They have no real concept of a spiritual world, much less a spiritual battle.

It is ironic, of course, that the large Bahai organization headed up by the headless UHJ has already succumbed to the forces of darkness. Its paranoia about the sinister enemies comes far too late, because that organization lost its soul some 40 years ago and it already serves the forces of darkness. It already has a material view of the world, seeks power and prestige on the earth, and greedily hungers for money and to grow itself into a large force in this world. It is not concerned about matters of spirit. It has no regard for truth, justice, love, compassion, brotherhood, or peace. It gives lip service to them as it engages on a daily basis in behavior that betrays all of these ideals.

It truly is a dangerous organization because it masquerades as the true Cause of God, borrowing the prestige and ideals of Baha'u'llah's Revelation, in its nefarious efforts to destroy the truly faithful ones and to trick and enslave the masses of humanity in its fascist vision of controlling the world.

Abdu'l-Baha:

"O ye friends of God! Today is the day of union and this age is the age of harmony in the world of existence. 'Verily, God loveth those who are working in His path in groups, for they are a solid foundation.' Consider ye that he says 'in groups,' united and bound together, supporting one another. 'To work,' mentioned in this holy verse, does not mean, in this greatest age, to perform it with swords, spears, shafts and arrows, but rather with sincere intentions, good designs, useful advices, divine moralities, beautiful actions, spiritual qualities, educating the public, guiding the souls of mankind, diffusing spiritual fragrances, explaining divine illustrations, showing convincing proofs and doing charitable deeds. When the holy souls, through the angelic power, will arise to show forth these celestial characteristics, establishing a band of harmony, each of these souls shall be regarded as one thousand persons and the waves of this greatest ocean shall be considered as the army of the hosts of the Supreme Concourse."
Baha'i World Faith - Abdu'l-Baha Section, p. 401

Posted at 08:51 AM in Introductory | Permalink

True Bahá'í

What hope is left?

The promise of the Bahai Revelation was the universal tolerance and acceptance of all humanity that its teachings championed. Never before was there a religion that so brilliantly espoused the unity and brotherhood of men and women of all nations, races, and creeds.

More than that, the teachings of the Bahai Revelation were spiritually refreshing. The awe inspiring life and teachings of Abdu'l-Baha impressed many with His teachings that all of reality fundamentally was an expression of the Holy Spirit from the lowest forms of life up through to humanity, and that the physical world was but the shadow of an even more vast and powerful spiritual world. With this teaching as the foundation, the Master espoused a religion of brotherly love, tolerance, and world unity that was the last hope for a distressed humanity.

How unfortunate that the followers of this religion have so utterly failed to live up to the standards upon which this Cause was founded. The world today sees a Faith in which Bahais sue other Bahais over the right of the minority Bahais to even identify themselves with Baha'u'llah. We see a Faith strangleholded by a corrupt and paranoid leadership that seeks to control its followers and crush its enemies.

All of the ideals and spiritual truths upon which the religion was founded are presently nothing more than empty words. The Bahai Faith has become a pathetic shell of its once glorious promise. Whatever happened to the idea that "the souls of the people of Baha, who have entered and been established within the Crimson Ark, shall associate and commune intimately one with another, and shall be so closely associated in their lives, their aspirations, their aims and strivings as to be even as one soul"? (Gleanings, p. 169-70). The fundamental verities of the Cause of God have been neglected and abandoned. The organization of Bahais that now occupies the World Center is the refuge for bitter, close-minded fanatics unable to even express themselves openly and in good faith.

I urge all Bahais of every denomination to come together and abandon the estrangement and hatred for one another. Do not let your leadership keep you from associating with the followers of all religions, including other denominations of Bahai. Let us look to our common love for and belief in Baha'u'llah and turn away from the bitter disputes that have divided us. Tolerance means that each and every one of us can believe what we will about these matters but that should not prevent us from communicating with one another in a spirit of love and fellowship, and mutual understanding. If the Bahais can be so bitterly divided, then what hope is left for this Faith to serve as a focal point for the unity of the planet? What hope is left for the survival of humanity when the Message of its deliverance has been diluted by hatred and division?

"Look about thee at the world: here unity, mutual attraction, gathering together, engender life, but disunity and inharmony spell death." Selections from the Writings of Abdu'l-Baha, p. 31

Posted at 07:17 PM in World Unity | Permalink

True Bahá'í

What hope is left?

The promise of the Bahai Revelation was the universal tolerance and acceptance of all humanity that its teachings championed. Never before was there a religion that so brilliantly espoused the unity and brotherhood of men and women of all nations, races, and creeds.

More than that, the teachings of the Bahai Revelation were spiritually refreshing. The awe inspiring life and teachings of Abdu'l-Baha impressed many with His teachings that all of reality fundamentally was an expression of the Holy Spirit from the lowest forms of life up through to humanity, and that the physical world was but the shadow of an even more vast and powerful spiritual world. With this teaching as the foundation, the Master espoused a religion of brotherly love, tolerance, and world unity that was the last hope for a distressed humanity.

How unfortunate that the followers of this religion have so utterly failed to live up to the standards upon which this Cause was founded. The world today sees a Faith in which Bahais sue other Bahais over the right of the minority Bahais to even identify themselves with Baha'u'llah. We see a Faith strangleholded by a corrupt and paranoid leadership that seeks to control its followers and crush its enemies.

All of the ideals and spiritual truths upon which the religion was founded are presently nothing more than empty words. The Bahai Faith has become a pathetic shell of its once glorious promise. Whatever happened to the idea that "the souls of the people of Baha, who have entered and been established within the Crimson Ark, shall associate and commune intimately one with another, and shall be so closely associated in their lives, their aspirations, their aims and strivings as to be even as one soul"? (Gleanings, p. 169-70). The fundamental verities of the Cause of God have been neglected and abandoned. The organization of Bahais that now occupies the World Center is the refuge for bitter, close-minded fanatics unable to even express themselves openly and in good faith.

I urge all Bahais of every denomination to come together and abandon the estrangement and hatred for one another. Do not let your leadership keep you from associating with the followers of all religions, including other denominations of Bahai. Let us look to our common love for and belief in Baha'u'llah and turn away from the bitter disputes that have divided us. Tolerance means that each and every one of us can believe what we will about these matters but that should not prevent us from communicating with one another in a spirit of love and fellowship, and mutual understanding. If the Bahais can be so bitterly divided, then what hope is left for this Faith to serve as a focal point for the unity of the planet? What hope is left for the survival of humanity when the Message of its deliverance has been diluted by hatred and division?

"Look about thee at the world: here unity, mutual attraction, gathering together, engender life, but disunity and inharmony spell death." Selections from the Writings of Abdu'l-Baha, p. 31

Posted at 07:17 PM in World Unity | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Baha'i for Sale

In the litigation [http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html] brought against the Orthodox Baha'is by the NSA of sans-Guardian Bahais currently headquartered in Wilmette, the Wilmette NSA is attempting to prevent the OBF from using the word Bahai, claiming that they own a trademark to the name. They say that the OBF's use of the word "Bahai" is deceptive, misleading and irreparably damaging to the NSA. The OBF counters that it is the generic term for a religious teaching, and that the NSA does not have the exclusive right to use the term, and that the OBF's non-commercial use of the word to describe its religious beliefs is lawful.

The thing that is so sick about the Wilmette NSA's actions is that if anyone is damaging the name Bahai, it is them, in the undignified manner in which they advertise and promote the Faith (using billboards, for example). If you want to see how low it has become, go to amazon.com and search for "Baha'i" and see what you get. You will find t-shirts, sweatshirts, and caps with slogans such as "Army Baha'i" "Baha'i Power" "Kiss Me I'm Baha'i" and the ever appropriate "Do Not Hate Me Because I'm Baha'i". You can get "I Love (heart) Baha'u'llah" coffee mugs, and you can be a hit with the ladies with the "I Love (heart) Baha'i Girls" t-shirt. You can even purchase "I Love (heart) Baha" keychains and a lawn sign resembling a street sign that says "Baha'i Way."

The Wilmette NSA is so protective of the Baha'i name, but it apparently has no problem with the cheapening of the Greatest Name on apparel and novelty items. They sicken me.

Posted at 11:25 PM in Court Action | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Baha'i for Sale

In the litigation [http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html] brought against the Orthodox Baha'is by the NSA of sans-Guardian Bahais currently headquartered in Wilmette, the Wilmette NSA is attempting to prevent the OBF from using the word Bahai, claiming that they own a trademark to the name. They say that the OBF's use of the word "Bahai" is deceptive, misleading and irreparably damaging to the NSA. The OBF counters that it is the generic term for a religious teaching, and that the NSA does not have the exclusive right to use the term, and that the OBF's non-commercial use of the word to describe its religious beliefs is lawful.

The thing that is so sick about the Wilmette NSA's actions is that if anyone is damaging the name Bahai, it is them, in the undignified manner in which they advertise and promote the Faith (using billboards, for example). If you want to see how low it has become, go to amazon.com and search for "Baha'i" and see what you get. You will find t-shirts, sweatshirts, and caps with slogans such as "Army Baha'i" "Baha'i Power" "Kiss Me I'm Baha'i" and the ever appropriate "Do Not Hate Me Because I'm Baha'i". You can get "I Love (heart) Baha'u'llah" coffee mugs, and you can be a hit with the ladies with the "I Love (heart) Baha'i Girls" t-shirt. You can even purchase "I Love (heart) Baha" keychains and a lawn sign resembling a street sign that says "Baha'i Way."

The Wilmette NSA is so protective of the Baha'i name, but it apparently has no problem with the cheapening of the Greatest Name on apparel and novelty items. They sicken me.

Posted at 11:25 PM in Court Action | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Baha'i for Sale

In the litigation [http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html] brought against the Orthodox Baha'is by the NSA of sans-Guardian Bahais currently headquartered in Wilmette, the Wilmette NSA is attempting to prevent the OBF from using the word Bahai, claiming that they own a trademark to the name. They say that the OBF's use of the word "Bahai" is deceptive, misleading and irreparably damaging to the NSA. The OBF counters that it is the generic term for a religious teaching, and that the NSA does not have the exclusive right to use the term, and that the OBF's non-commercial use of the word to describe its religious beliefs is lawful.

The thing that is so sick about the Wilmette NSA's actions is that if anyone is damaging the name Bahai, it is them, in the undignified manner in which they advertise and promote the Faith (using billboards, for example). If you want to see how low it has become, go to amazon.com and search for "Baha'i" and see what you get. You will find t-shirts, sweatshirts, and caps with slogans such as "Army Baha'i" "Baha'i Power" "Kiss Me I'm Baha'i" and the ever appropriate "Do Not Hate Me Because I'm Baha'i". You can get "I Love (heart) Baha'u'llah" coffee mugs, and you can be a hit with the ladies with the "I Love (heart) Baha'i Girls" t-shirt. You can even purchase "I Love (heart) Baha" keychains and a lawn sign resembling a street sign that says "Baha'i Way."

The Wilmette NSA is so protective of the Baha'i name, but it apparently has no problem with the cheapening of the Greatest Name on apparel and novelty items. They sicken me.

Posted at 11:25 PM in Court Action | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Baha'i for Sale

In the litigation [http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html] brought against the Orthodox Baha'is by the NSA of sans-Guardian Bahais currently headquartered in Wilmette, the Wilmette NSA is attempting to prevent the OBF from using the word Bahai, claiming that they own a trademark to the name. They say that the OBF's use of the word "Bahai" is deceptive, misleading and irreparably damaging to the NSA. The OBF counters that it is the generic term for a religious teaching, and that the NSA does not have the exclusive right to use the term, and that the OBF's non-commercial use of the word to describe its religious beliefs is lawful.

The thing that is so sick about the Wilmette NSA's actions is that if anyone is damaging the name Bahai, it is them, in the undignified manner in which they advertise and promote the Faith (using billboards, for example). If you want to see how low it has become, go to amazon.com and search for "Baha'i" and see what you get. You will find t-shirts, sweatshirts, and caps with slogans such as "Army Baha'i" "Baha'i Power" "Kiss Me I'm Baha'i" and the ever appropriate "Do Not Hate Me Because I'm Baha'i". You can get "I Love (heart) Baha'u'llah" coffee mugs, and you can be a hit with the ladies with the "I Love (heart) Baha'i Girls" t-shirt. You can even purchase "I Love (heart) Baha" keychains and a lawn sign resembling a street sign that says "Baha'i Way."

The Wilmette NSA is so protective of the Baha'i name, but it apparently has no problem with the cheapening of the Greatest Name on apparel and novelty items. They sicken me.

Posted at 11:25 PM in Court Action | Permalink

True Bahá'í

"They inflicted the greatest injury and cruelty, yet counted themselves firm in the Covenant"

On the newsgroup talk.religion.bahai, there has been considerable discussion from time to time about shunning, as practiced by the sans-Guardian Baha'is, those who currently occupy the headquarters in Haifa and Wilmette. Remarkably, some of the members of that group have the audacity to deny that the behavior is taking place, or relegate it to some historical practice that is no longer being carried out.

The reality is that the sans-Guardian Baha'is have been consistently perverting the Faith's teachings about shunning Covenant-breakers, to carry out the most atrocious, cult-like and demonic, mind-control methods of thought control, for the purpose of keeping its membership in line, so that the leadership of the organization can effectively control the minds and behavior of its world-wide adherents.

With the constant threat of being shunned, to have all of your friends and family leave you and refuse any contact whatsoever, the sans-Guardian Bahai leadership controls what its members do, think and say, down to very minute details such as with whom they might associate and the details of which conversations and reading materials that are acceptable and which are not. Failure to heed these threats results in shunning, and if the friends and family of the shunned person do not comply, they too are shunned. As a result, a number of the sans-Guardian Bahai's who wish to read what they want, hear ideas they want to hear, and associate with persons as they wish, have to sneak around out of fear that they will be caught by the authorities and then ostracized by their friends and family. In some countries, my fellow Orthodox Baha'is are in constant fear of harassment and threats from extreme fanatical members of the sans-Guardian Baha'is, and must conduct their activities in secret lest they become victims of violent crimes against them. This is going on in many communities around the world today. Of course, this is kept hidden from the rank and file believers, but just because violence isn't being threatened in your nice suburban towns in the United States does not mean that it is not occurring secretly in other countries that enjoy less police protection than you have.

Let me state clearly for the record that shunning is a part of the Bahai teaching and history, but it must be understood what covenant-breaking was historically and how shunning was actually carried out. To gloss over the truth of the teachings and their historical context is part of the cult-like attitude displayed by the sans-Guardian Baha'is. It is important to be clear on this.

The teachings about shunning are best summarized in Abdu'l-Baha's Last Tablet to America, published in Bahai World Faith, p. 428. The quotes below come from that Tablet.

It is important to understand, first, that covenant-breaking always has meant disobedience to the point of opposition to the Center of the Covenant. "They have arisen against the Center of the Covenant like the people of Bayan who attacked the Blessed Beauty and every moment uttered a calumny." Thus, the Babi's who resisted and opposed Baha'u'llah, those who attacked and opposed Abdu'l-Baha, and those who opposed Shoghi Effendi, all were considered covenant-breakers. The definition of covenant-breaking was unilaterally altered by the Hands of the Cause after the death of Shoghi Effendi. They had no authority to change the definition. Until they changed it, it meant opposing the Guardian. There is no authoritative text to remotely suggest that covenant-breaking means opposition to the authority of the Hands or the headless UHJ they created. They also broadened the approach to covenant breaking by condemning not only the leaders but also the misled followers of these leaders. The reality is that covenant-breakers are only the instigators and leaders, ones with selfish ambition and purposes that motivate them, and not the sincere but misled persons deceived by the covenant breakers.

Although historically covenant-breakers opposed the Center of the Covenant, they always attempted to deceive others into believing that they were the ones faithful to the Covenant. "Every day they wrote and spread a pamphlet opposing Bahá'u'lláh, caused trouble and perplexity among the people; they inflicted the greatest injury and cruelty, yet counted themselves firm in the Covenant of His Holiness, the Báb." In most instances, the covenant-breakers deceived a multitude of people, such as in the days of Abdu'l-Baha, when most of the Bahais turned against the Master and pledged their allegiance to His brother. "Listen not to the nonsensical utterances of the manifestations of Satan, because the manifestations of Satan are occupying today the observation posts of the glorious path of God, and preventing the people by every means of deception and ruse."

Today is no different. The covenant-breakers of today, that is, the leaders of the sans-Guardian organization, have misled their followers into believing that the true ones, that is the ones who are loyal and obedient to the Guardian of the Cause, are the covenant-breakers. The reality is they are the ones opposed to the Guardian and his sworn enemies, even to the point of hauling the Guardian of the Faith into a secular court in the United States to try to prevent him and his organization from using the Greatest Name! What evil they commit and yet their followers remain blind to it.
[The Court papers can be viewed here: http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html]

And, yes it is true, that covenant-breakers should be shunned. That is, the leaders of opposition to the Guardian, the ones who knowingly and actively attack the Guardian, should be shunned. Not the misled followers, not the unfortunate family members, and not otherwise faithful believers who are caught reading material or talking with those who have been declared covenant breakers. The reason they are shunned is not to impose cult-like thought control upon the membership but to protect the members from the evil and deception perpetrated by these sick souls.

Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha used strong language to describe these people, much of it metaphorical in order to make the point how dangerous they are. Covenant-breakers are "weak, capricious, malicious and ignorant souls" all of whom "have been shaken by the earthquake of hatred, of animosity..." "Their breath is like the poison of the snake that kills instantly." They are like "Satan, in the garb of man." "They are manifestations of Satan." "Their breath is infectious, like unto poison." "Every hour they contrive new intrigues and fraud, and bring forth new calumny." They are "persons who appear as sheep and in reality are ferocious wolves; they exercise every sort of oppression, endeavor to destroy the foundation of the Covenant, -- and claim to be Bahá'ís. They strike at the root of the Tree of the Covenant -- and count themselves persecuted."

The gullible and misled believers of the sans-Guardian organization, have allowed themselves to be controlled because their evil and demonic leadership has made them fearful of covenant-breakers and of being labeled as covenant-breakers, even though it is that very leadership that is opposed to God and to the true ones of God. Literally believing that breath can be infectious poison and that they run the risk of spiritual death merely by reading materials or having conversations with certain persons, they have allowed themselves through irrational fear to close their minds.

When Joel B. Marangella (presently the third Guardian of the Cause), was the President of the NSA of France in May of 1960, the NSA received the Proclamation of the Guardianship of Mason Remey and consulted upon its contents. The NSA voted to accept Mason Remey as the Guardian of the Cause. Thereafter, the Custodian Hands, without any administrative authority to do so, dissolved the French NSA and put its members out of the Faith except those who recanted. Almost all of Joel B. Marangella's friends in the Faith shunned him, his wife, and his three sons, simply because he had recognized the truth of Remey's Guardianship. Marangella never again had contact with his father, mother, grandmother, twin sister and her husband and three children, even though all of his family (except for his father) lived in close proximity to him in Orleans, France.

The author of this article, when he recognized the Guardianship of Joel B. Marangella in 1997, even though he attempted to quietly resign from the sans-Guardian organization, was shunned by all of his friends in the Faith, who also shunned his wife and two children simply because his wife would not divorce him and take the children away from him, as they insisted she must. His nephew, the son of a sans-Guardian believer, does not even know he exists because he is prevented from any contact with the child for fear of catching a spiritual disease. I think it is too late because anyone who practices this kind of shunning already is suffering from the worst spiritual disease imaginable.

The next in line to be Guardian, Hand of the Cause Nosrat'u'llah Bahremand, when he recognized Joel B. Marangella's Guardianship, was shunned by all of his family and friends. A Continental Councilor held a meeting with his family, including include his wife, children, elderly mother, sisters, brother, niece, nephew and in-laws (all Baha'is) in the absence of the Nosrat. The Councilor accused Nosrat of being a covenant-breaker and instructed all of these relatives to shun him and break-up with him, or otherwise they themselves would be shunned. As instructed, Nosrat's wife immediately separated from him and obtained a divorce. [CORRECTION: Nosrat has corrected this in his recent article. She was forced to separate but did not divorce.] His daughter was instructed to prevent his grand-children, aged 4 and 2, from ever seeing again their grandfather. As a result of this, Nosrat's family was broken apart, he lost the family business and the family home. Nosrat has suffered and continues to suffer deep emotional and financial suffering as a result of the demonic actions of the sans-Guardian organization.

Any clear-thinking and decent person can see that only unmitigated evil is the result of the fanatical mind-control methods of shunning practiced by the sans-Guardian Baha'is. Those of who you are the misled followers of this demonic organization, when you finally come to the horrible realization of what is occurring within your so-called religion, have no choice but to take action. You must take a stand against this evil, and withhold your support from the bogus UHJ and the other leaders of your organization. You are most welcome to join the true Cause of God under the shelter of the Tree of the Covenant by investigating the claims of Joel B. Marangella to the office of the Guardianship and declaring your allegiance and loyalty to the Center of the Covenant.

Jeffrey Goldberg

Posted at 11:48 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink | Comments (3) | TrackBack (0)

True Bahá'í

"They inflicted the greatest injury and cruelty, yet counted themselves firm in the Covenant"

On the newsgroup talk.religion.bahai, there has been considerable discussion from time to time about shunning, as practiced by the sans-Guardian Baha'is, those who currently occupy the headquarters in Haifa and Wilmette. Remarkably, some of the members of that group have the audacity to deny that the behavior is taking place, or relegate it to some historical practice that is no longer being carried out.

The reality is that the sans-Guardian Baha'is have been consistently perverting the Faith's teachings about shunning Covenant-breakers, to carry out the most atrocious, cult-like and demonic, mind-control methods of thought control, for the purpose of keeping its membership in line, so that the leadership of the organization can effectively control the minds and behavior of its world-wide adherents.

With the constant threat of being shunned, to have all of your friends and family leave you and refuse any contact whatsoever, the sans-Guardian Bahai leadership controls what its members do, think and say, down to very minute details such as with whom they might associate and the details of which conversations and reading materials that are acceptable and which are not. Failure to heed these threats results in shunning, and if the friends and family of the shunned person do not comply, they too are shunned. As a result, a number of the sans-Guardian Bahai's who wish to read what they want, hear ideas they want to hear, and associate with persons as they wish, have to sneak around out of fear that they will be caught by the authorities and then ostracized by their friends and family. In some countries, my fellow Orthodox Baha'is are in constant fear of harassment and threats from extreme fanatical members of the sans-Guardian Baha'is, and must conduct their activities in secret lest they become victims of violent crimes against them. This is going on in many communities around the world today. Of course, this is kept hidden from the rank and file believers, but just because violence isn't being threatened in your nice suburban towns in the United States does not mean that it is not occurring secretly in other countries that enjoy less police protection than you have.

Let me state clearly for the record that shunning is a part of the Bahai teaching and history, but it must be understood what covenant-breaking was historically and how shunning was actually carried out. To gloss over the truth of the teachings and their historical context is part of the cult-like attitude displayed by the sans-Guardian Baha'is. It is important to be clear on this.

The teachings about shunning are best summarized in Abdu'l-Baha's Last Tablet to America, published in Bahai World Faith, p. 428. The quotes below come from that Tablet.

It is important to understand, first, that covenant-breaking always has meant disobedience to the point of opposition to the Center of the Covenant. "They have arisen against the Center of the Covenant like the people of Bayan who attacked the Blessed Beauty and every moment uttered a calumny." Thus, the Babi's who resisted and opposed Baha'u'llah, those who attacked and opposed Abdu'l-Baha, and those who opposed Shoghi Effendi, all were considered covenant-breakers. The definition of covenant-breaking was unilaterally altered by the Hands of the Cause after the death of Shoghi Effendi. They had no authority to change the definition. Until they changed it, it meant opposing the Guardian. There is no authoritative text to remotely suggest that covenant-breaking means opposition to the authority of the Hands or the headless UHJ they created. They also broadened the approach to covenant breaking by condemning not only the leaders but also the misled followers of these leaders. The reality is that covenant-breakers are only the instigators and leaders, ones with selfish ambition and purposes that motivate them, and not the sincere but misled persons deceived by the covenant breakers.

Although historically covenant-breakers opposed the Center of the Covenant, they always attempted to deceive others into believing that they were the ones faithful to the Covenant. "Every day they wrote and spread a pamphlet opposing Bahá'u'lláh, caused trouble and perplexity among the people; they inflicted the greatest injury and cruelty, yet counted themselves firm in the Covenant of His Holiness, the Báb." In most instances, the covenant-breakers deceived a multitude of people, such as in the days of Abdu'l-Baha, when most of the Bahais turned against the Master and pledged their allegiance to His brother. "Listen not to the nonsensical utterances of the manifestations of Satan, because the manifestations of Satan are occupying today the observation posts of the glorious path of God, and preventing the people by every means of deception and ruse."

Today is no different. The covenant-breakers of today, that is, the leaders of the sans-Guardian organization, have misled their followers into believing that the true ones, that is the ones who are loyal and obedient to the Guardian of the Cause, are the covenant-breakers. The reality is they are the ones opposed to the Guardian and his sworn enemies, even to the point of hauling the Guardian of the Faith into a secular court in the United States to try to prevent him and his organization from using the Greatest Name! What evil they commit and yet their followers remain blind to it.
[The Court papers can be viewed here: http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html]

And, yes it is true, that covenant-breakers should be shunned. That is, the leaders of opposition to the Guardian, the ones who knowingly and actively attack the Guardian, should be shunned. Not the misled followers, not the unfortunate family members, and not otherwise faithful believers who are caught reading material or talking with those who have been declared covenant breakers. The reason they are shunned is not to impose cult-like thought control upon the membership but to protect the members from the evil and deception perpetrated by these sick souls.

Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha used strong language to describe these people, much of it metaphorical in order to make the point how dangerous they are. Covenant-breakers are "weak, capricious, malicious and ignorant souls" all of whom "have been shaken by the earthquake of hatred, of animosity..." "Their breath is like the poison of the snake that kills instantly." They are like "Satan, in the garb of man." "They are manifestations of Satan." "Their breath is infectious, like unto poison." "Every hour they contrive new intrigues and fraud, and bring forth new calumny." They are "persons who appear as sheep and in reality are ferocious wolves; they exercise every sort of oppression, endeavor to destroy the foundation of the Covenant, -- and claim to be Bahá'ís. They strike at the root of the Tree of the Covenant -- and count themselves persecuted."

The gullible and misled believers of the sans-Guardian organization, have allowed themselves to be controlled because their evil and demonic leadership has made them fearful of covenant-breakers and of being labeled as covenant-breakers, even though it is that very leadership that is opposed to God and to the true ones of God. Literally believing that breath can be infectious poison and that they run the risk of spiritual death merely by reading materials or having conversations with certain persons, they have allowed themselves through irrational fear to close their minds.

When Joel B. Marangella (presently the third Guardian of the Cause), was the President of the NSA of France in May of 1960, the NSA received the Proclamation of the Guardianship of Mason Remey and consulted upon its contents. The NSA voted to accept Mason Remey as the Guardian of the Cause. Thereafter, the Custodian Hands, without any administrative authority to do so, dissolved the French NSA and put its members out of the Faith except those who recanted. Almost all of Joel B. Marangella's friends in the Faith shunned him, his wife, and his three sons, simply because he had recognized the truth of Remey's Guardianship. Marangella never again had contact with his father, mother, grandmother, twin sister and her husband and three children, even though all of his family (except for his father) lived in close proximity to him in Orleans, France.

The author of this article, when he recognized the Guardianship of Joel B. Marangella in 1997, even though he attempted to quietly resign from the sans-Guardian organization, was shunned by all of his friends in the Faith, who also shunned his wife and two children simply because his wife would not divorce him and take the children away from him, as they insisted she must. His nephew, the son of a sans-Guardian believer, does not even know he exists because he is prevented from any contact with the child for fear of catching a spiritual disease. I think it is too late because anyone who practices this kind of shunning already is suffering from the worst spiritual disease imaginable.

The next in line to be Guardian, Hand of the Cause Nosrat'u'llah Bahremand, when he recognized Joel B. Marangella's Guardianship, was shunned by all of his family and friends. A Continental Councilor held a meeting with his family, including include his wife, children, elderly mother, sisters, brother, niece, nephew and in-laws (all Baha'is) in the absence of the Nosrat. The Councilor accused Nosrat of being a covenant-breaker and instructed all of these relatives to shun him and break-up with him, or otherwise they themselves would be shunned. As instructed, Nosrat's wife immediately separated from him and obtained a divorce. [CORRECTION: Nosrat has corrected this in his recent article. She was forced to separate but did not divorce.] His daughter was instructed to prevent his grand-children, aged 4 and 2, from ever seeing again their grandfather. As a result of this, Nosrat's family was broken apart, he lost the family business and the family home. Nosrat has suffered and continues to suffer deep emotional and financial suffering as a result of the demonic actions of the sans-Guardian organization.

Any clear-thinking and decent person can see that only unmitigated evil is the result of the fanatical mind-control methods of shunning practiced by the sans-Guardian Baha'is. Those of who you are the misled followers of this demonic organization, when you finally come to the horrible realization of what is occurring within your so-called religion, have no choice but to take action. You must take a stand against this evil, and withhold your support from the bogus UHJ and the other leaders of your organization. You are most welcome to join the true Cause of God under the shelter of the Tree of the Covenant by investigating the claims of Joel B. Marangella to the office of the Guardianship and declaring your allegiance and loyalty to the Center of the Covenant.

Jeffrey Goldberg

Posted at 11:48 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink | Comments (3) | TrackBack (0)

True Bahá'í

It is the blind leading the blind

Let them alone: they be blind leaders of the blind. And if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch. Matthew 15:14

The one thing that always has bothered me about the situation of the Bahai Faith, upon the death of Shoghi Effendi, was that there was no discussion whatsoever of the question of the continuation of the Guardianship. In the opinion of the Orthodox Baha'is, the entire Bahai world made a serious mistake by following without question the Custodians into rejection of the Guardianship, one of the essential twin pillars of the Faith.

But, how can it be explained that the entire Bahai world, composed of numerous rational and well-meaning, and intelligent and good people, could take this erroneous path without giving it a single thought? It boggles the mind to think that so many people can be so mistaken.

But science has an explanation for it, in the study of crowd psychologies and the rational herding instinct.

It seems that when a large number of human beings, acting individually and using the diverse information available to them, will collectively exhibit an amazing intelligence. For example, the crowd at a horse race making individual bets on the probability that a horse will finish the race first, is composed of a numerous of individuals making their own decisions based upon the information available to each individual. Because the information is so diverse amongst such a large number of people, the collective wisdom of the crowd is extremely intelligent. The odds displayed by the horse race crowd is very intelligent and is an accurate predictor of the probability that a specific horse will win the race. When the individuals in a crowd each make their own decisions, there is an incredible collective intelligence in the crowd.

However, when the individuals in a crowd interact with one another about the information, where there is limited public information, the crowd will act like a herd. That is, the herd instinct will cause the crowd in some situations to be incredibly stupid. This is known as informational cascades or the rational herding instinct. This is a situation in which every subsequent actor, based on the observations of others, makes the same choice independent of his or her private signal. I will present an example from this web page: http://www.info-cascades.info/:

"Let us presume that you and a lot of other people have to find your way to a new destination, and you come to a crossway where you can only either go left or right. Everyone has a private imperfect signal (call it "judgment" or "opinion"). For simplicity, let everyone have a private signal "left" ("right") with probability 2/3 if the true best choice is to go left (right). So, the signal helps but it is not perfect. Everyone's signal is equally good.

"Now, assume that you are the third person to choose, and you first saw a man and then a woman go left. I claim that it is optimal for you to go "left" even if your private signal/intuition says "right". Why? You know that the man must have had an "l" signal, because he went left. The woman saw the man go "left." She would have figured out that the first individual's signal was "left". If her private signal was "left", she would have surely walked left, too. If her signal was "right", she would have been aware of one right and one left signal. She might have walked either way.

*"Now it is your turn. Having seen both the man and the woman walk "left," you know that the man had a "left" signal and the woman had a better than even chance of having had a "left" signal. Loosely speaking, the actions of your predecessors give you more than 1 "left" signal. Even if your private information is 1 "right" signal, net-in-net you should choose "left" if you are acting rationally---and so will everyone choosing after you. Now, everyone after you will know that what you did had nothing to do with your private information---but they will be in the same boat. The optimal decision will be to do the same thing and go left. One major consequence of informational cascades is that you may get a million rational individuals walking "left" just because the first two individuals walked "left", even if the true best choice was "right." (This will happen with more than 1/3*1/3=1/9 probability [first two individuals got incorrect "left" signals].)*

"So, what does this mean for society? Cascades predict that you can get massive social imitation, occasionally leading everyone (the "herd") to the incorrect choice."

I believe this explains why so many in the Bahai world made an incorrect choice in abandoning the Guardianship without even giving it a thought. The Custodians abandoned the Guardianship, and the entire group, lost in the herd instinct, simply followed.

But herein lies the solution to the problem. Because the second half of the informational cascade theory is the concept of fragility. This part of the theory points out that only a little bit of information can overturn even a long-standing informational cascade. In other words, the informational cascade is based upon little or no information and therefore it is fragile. The way to overturn this fragile state is to introduce just a little bit of correct information. The herd then turns in the opposite direction. Instead of going left, the herd now sees that moving to the right was the correct answer.

This is the function of the Orthodox Baha'is in this day. It is our job to introduce the little information necessary to overcome the long-standing erroneous choice of the Bahai world to simply abandon the Guardianship.

I encourage you to get that information:
http://www.bahai-guardian.com/

Posted at 10:57 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

It is the blind leading the blind

Let them alone: they be blind leaders of the blind. And if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch. Matthew 15:14

The one thing that always has bothered me about the situation of the Bahai Faith, upon the death of Shoghi Effendi, was that there was no discussion whatsoever of the question of the continuation of the Guardianship. In the opinion of the Orthodox Baha'is, the entire Bahai world made a serious mistake by following without question the Custodians into rejection of the Guardianship, one of the essential twin pillars of the Faith.

But, how can it be explained that the entire Bahai world, composed of numerous rational and well-meaning, and intelligent and good people, could take this erroneous path without giving it a single thought? It boggles the mind to think that so many people can be so mistaken.

But science has an explanation for it, in the study of crowd psychologies and the rational herding instinct.

It seems that when a large number of human beings, acting individually and using the diverse information available to them, will collectively exhibit an amazing intelligence. For example, the crowd at a horse race making individual bets on the probability that a horse will finish the race first, is composed of a numerous of individuals making their own decisions based upon the information available to each individual. Because the information is so diverse amongst such a large number of people, the collective wisdom of the crowd is extremely intelligent. The odds displayed by the horse race crowd is very intelligent and is an accurate predictor of the probability that a specific horse will win the race. When the individuals in a crowd each make their own decisions, there is an incredible collective intelligence in the crowd.

However, when the individuals in a crowd interact with one another about the information, where there is limited public information, the crowd will act like a herd. That is, the herd instinct will cause the crowd in some situations to be incredibly stupid. This is known as informational cascades or the rational herding instinct. This is a situation in which every subsequent actor, based on the observations of others, makes the same choice independent of his or her private signal. I will present an example from this web page: http://www.info-cascades.info/:

"Let us presume that you and a lot of other people have to find your way to a new destination, and you come to a crossway where you can only either go left or right. Everyone has a private imperfect signal (call it "judgment" or "opinion"). For simplicity, let everyone have a private signal "left" ("right") with probability 2/3 if the true best choice is to go left (right). So, the signal helps but it is not perfect. Everyone's signal is equally good.

"Now, assume that you are the third person to choose, and you first saw a man and then a woman go left. I claim that it is optimal for you to go "left" even if your private signal/intuition says "right". Why? You know that the man must have had an "l" signal, because he went left. The woman saw the man go "left." She would have figured out that the first individual's signal was "left". If her private signal was "left", she would have surely walked left, too. If her signal was "right", she would have been aware of one right and one left signal. She might have walked either way.

*"Now it is your turn. Having seen both the man and the woman walk "left," you know that the man had a "left" signal and the woman had a better than even chance of having had a "left" signal. Loosely speaking, the actions of your predecessors give you more than 1 "left" signal. Even if your private information is 1 "right" signal, net-in-net you should choose "left" if you are acting rationally---and so will everyone choosing after you. Now, everyone after you will know that what you did had nothing to do with your private information---but they will be in the same boat. The optimal decision will be to do the same thing and go left. One major consequence of informational cascades is that you may get a million rational individuals walking "left" just because the first two individuals walked "left", even if the true best choice was "right." (This will happen with more than 1/3*1/3=1/9 probability [first two individuals got incorrect "left" signals].)*

"So, what does this mean for society? Cascades predict that you can get massive social imitation, occasionally leading everyone (the "herd") to the incorrect choice."

I believe this explains why so many in the Bahai world made an incorrect choice in abandoning the Guardianship without even giving it a thought. The Custodians abandoned the Guardianship, and the entire group, lost in the herd instinct, simply followed.

But herein lies the solution to the problem. Because the second half of the informational cascade theory is the concept of fragility. This part of the theory points out that only a little bit of information can overturn even a long-standing informational cascade. In other words, the informational cascade is based upon little or no information and therefore it is fragile. The way to overturn this fragile state is to introduce just a little bit of correct information. The herd then turns in the opposite direction. Instead of going left, the herd now sees that moving to the right was the correct answer.

This is the function of the Orthodox Baha'is in this day. It is our job to introduce the little information necessary to overcome the long-standing erroneous choice of the Bahai world to simply abandon the Guardianship.

I encourage you to get that information:
http://www.bahai-guardian.com/

Posted at 10:57 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

It is the blind leading the blind

Let them alone: they be blind leaders of the blind. And if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch. Matthew 15:14

The one thing that always has bothered me about the situation of the Bahai Faith, upon the death of Shoghi Effendi, was that there was no discussion whatsoever of the question of the continuation of the Guardianship. In the opinion of the Orthodox Baha'is, the entire Bahai world made a serious mistake by following without question the Custodians into rejection of the Guardianship, one of the essential twin pillars of the Faith.

But, how can it be explained that the entire Bahai world, composed of numerous rational and well-meaning, and intelligent and good people, could take this erroneous path without giving it a single thought? It boggles the mind to think that so many people can be so mistaken.

But science has an explanation for it, in the study of crowd psychologies and the rational herding instinct.

It seems that when a large number of human beings, acting individually and using the diverse information available to them, will collectively exhibit an amazing intelligence. For example, the crowd at a horse race making individual bets on the probability that a horse will finish the race first, is composed of a numerous of individuals making their own decisions based upon the information available to each individual. Because the information is so diverse amongst such a large number of people, the collective wisdom of the crowd is extremely intelligent. The odds displayed by the horse race crowd is very intelligent and is an accurate predictor of the probability that a specific horse will win the race. When the individuals in a crowd each make their own decisions, there is an incredible collective intelligence in the crowd.

However, when the individuals in a crowd interact with one another about the information, where there is limited public information, the crowd will act like a herd. That is, the herd instinct will cause the crowd in some situations to be incredibly stupid. This is known as informational cascades or the rational herding instinct. This is a situation in which every subsequent actor, based on the observations of others, makes the same choice independent of his or her private signal. I will present an example from this web page: http://www.info-cascades.info/:

"Let us presume that you and a lot of other people have to find your way to a new destination, and you come to a crossway where you can only either go left or right. Everyone has a private imperfect signal (call it "judgment" or "opinion"). For simplicity, let everyone have a private signal "left" ("right") with probability 2/3 if the true best choice is to go left (right). So, the signal helps but it is not perfect. Everyone's signal is equally good.

"Now, assume that you are the third person to choose, and you first saw a man and then a woman go left. I claim that it is optimal for you to go "left" even if your private signal/intuition says "right". Why? You know that the man must have had an "l" signal, because he went left. The woman saw the man go "left." She would have figured out that the first individual's signal was "left". If her private signal was "left", she would have surely walked left, too. If her signal was "right", she would have been aware of one right and one left signal. She might have walked either way.

*"Now it is your turn. Having seen both the man and the woman walk "left," you know that the man had a "left" signal and the woman had a better than even chance of having had a "left" signal. Loosely speaking, the actions of your predecessors give you more than 1 "left" signal. Even if your private information is 1 "right" signal, net-in-net you should choose "left" if you are acting rationally---and so will everyone choosing after you. Now, everyone after you will know that what you did had nothing to do with your private information---but they will be in the same boat. The optimal decision will be to do the same thing and go left. One major consequence of informational cascades is that you may get a million rational individuals walking "left" just because the first two individuals walked "left", even if the true best choice was "right." (This will happen with more than 1/3*1/3=1/9 probability [first two individuals got incorrect "left" signals].)*

"So, what does this mean for society? Cascades predict that you can get massive social imitation, occasionally leading everyone (the "herd") to the incorrect choice."

I believe this explains why so many in the Bahai world made an incorrect choice in abandoning the Guardianship without even giving it a thought. The Custodians abandoned the Guardianship, and the entire group, lost in the herd instinct, simply followed.

But herein lies the solution to the problem. Because the second half of the informational cascade theory is the concept of fragility. This part of the theory points out that only a little bit of information can overturn even a long-standing informational cascade. In other words, the informational cascade is based upon little or no information and therefore it is fragile. The way to overturn this fragile state is to introduce just a little bit of correct information. The herd then turns in the opposite direction. Instead of going left, the herd now sees that moving to the right was the correct answer.

This is the function of the Orthodox Baha'is in this day. It is our job to introduce the little information necessary to overcome the long-standing erroneous choice of the Bahai world to simply abandon the Guardianship.

I encourage you to get that information:
http://www.bahai-guardian.com/

Posted at 10:57 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

It is the blind leading the blind

Let them alone: they be blind leaders of the blind. And if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch. Matthew 15:14

The one thing that always has bothered me about the situation of the Bahai Faith, upon the death of Shoghi Effendi, was that there was no discussion whatsoever of the question of the continuation of the Guardianship. In the opinion of the Orthodox Baha'is, the entire Bahai world made a serious mistake by following without question the Custodians into rejection of the Guardianship, one of the essential twin pillars of the Faith.

But, how can it be explained that the entire Bahai world, composed of numerous rational and well-meaning, and intelligent and good people, could take this erroneous path without giving it a single thought? It boggles the mind to think that so many people can be so mistaken.

But science has an explanation for it, in the study of crowd psychologies and the rational herding instinct.

It seems that when a large number of human beings, acting individually and using the diverse information available to them, will collectively exhibit an amazing intelligence. For example, the crowd at a horse race making individual bets on the probability that a horse will finish the race first, is composed of a numerous of individuals making their own decisions based upon the information available to each individual. Because the information is so diverse amongst such a large number of people, the collective wisdom of the crowd is extremely intelligent. The odds displayed by the horse race crowd is very intelligent and is an accurate predictor of the probability that a specific horse will win the race. When the individuals in a crowd each make their own decisions, there is an incredible collective intelligence in the crowd.

However, when the individuals in a crowd interact with one another about the information, where there is limited public information, the crowd will act like a herd. That is, the herd instinct will cause the crowd in some situations to be incredibly stupid. This is known as informational cascades or the rational herding instinct. This is a situation in which every subsequent actor, based on the observations of others, makes the same choice independent of his or her private signal. I will present an example from this web page: http://www.info-cascades.info/:

"Let us presume that you and a lot of other people have to find your way to a new destination, and you come to a crossway where you can only either go left or right. Everyone has a private imperfect signal (call it "judgment" or "opinion"). For simplicity, let everyone have a private signal "left" ("right") with probability 2/3 if the true best choice is to go left (right). So, the signal helps but it is not perfect. Everyone's signal is equally good.

"Now, assume that you are the third person to choose, and you first saw a man and then a woman go left. I claim that it is optimal for you to go "left" even if your private signal/intuition says "right". Why? You know that the man must have had an "l" signal, because he went left. The woman saw the man go "left." She would have figured out that the first individual's signal was "left". If her private signal was "left", she would have surely walked left, too. If her signal was "right", she would have been aware of one right and one left signal. She might have walked either way.

*"Now it is your turn. Having seen both the man and the woman walk "left," you know that the man had a "left" signal and the woman had a better than even chance of having had a "left" signal. Loosely speaking, the actions of your predecessors give you more than 1 "left" signal. Even if your private information is 1 "right" signal, net-in-net you should choose "left" if you are acting rationally---and so will everyone choosing after you. Now, everyone after you will know that what you did had nothing to do with your private information---but they will be in the same boat. The optimal decision will be to do the same thing and go left. One major consequence of informational cascades is that you may get a million rational individuals walking "left" just because the first two individuals walked "left", even if the true best choice was "right." (This will happen with more than 1/3*1/3=1/9 probability [first two individuals got incorrect "left" signals].)*

"So, what does this mean for society? Cascades predict that you can get massive social imitation, occasionally leading everyone (the "herd") to the incorrect choice."

I believe this explains why so many in the Bahai world made an incorrect choice in abandoning the Guardianship without even giving it a thought. The Custodians abandoned the Guardianship, and the entire group, lost in the herd instinct, simply followed.

But herein lies the solution to the problem. Because the second half of the informational cascade theory is the concept of fragility. This part of the theory points out that only a little bit of information can overturn even a long-standing informational cascade. In other words, the informational cascade is based upon little or no information and therefore it is fragile. The way to overturn this fragile state is to introduce just a little bit of correct information. The herd then turns in the opposite direction. Instead of going left, the herd now sees that moving to the right was the correct answer.

This is the function of the Orthodox Baha'is in this day. It is our job to introduce the little information necessary to overcome the long-standing erroneous choice of the Bahai world to simply abandon the Guardianship.

I encourage you to get that information:
http://www.bahai-guardian.com/

Posted at 10:57 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

It is the blind leading the blind

Let them alone: they be blind leaders of the blind. And if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch. Matthew 15:14

The one thing that always has bothered me about the situation of the Bahai Faith, upon the death of Shoghi Effendi, was that there was no discussion whatsoever of the question of the continuation of the Guardianship. In the opinion of the Orthodox Baha'is, the entire Bahai world made a serious mistake by following without question the Custodians into rejection of the Guardianship, one of the essential twin pillars of the Faith.

But, how can it be explained that the entire Bahai world, composed of numerous rational and well-meaning, and intelligent and good people, could take this erroneous path without giving it a single thought? It boggles the mind to think that so many people can be so mistaken.

But science has an explanation for it, in the study of crowd psychologies and the rational herding instinct.

It seems that when a large number of human beings, acting individually and using the diverse information available to them, will collectively exhibit an amazing intelligence. For example, the crowd at a horse race making individual bets on the probability that a horse will finish the race first, is composed of a numerous of individuals making their own decisions based upon the information available to each individual. Because the information is so diverse amongst such a large number of people, the collective wisdom of the crowd is extremely intelligent. The odds displayed by the horse race crowd is very intelligent and is an accurate predictor of the probability that a specific horse will win the race. When the individuals in a crowd each make their own decisions, there is an incredible collective intelligence in the crowd.

However, when the individuals in a crowd interact with one another about the information, where there is limited public information, the crowd will act like a herd. That is, the herd instinct will cause the crowd in some situations to be incredibly stupid. This is known as informational cascades or the rational herding instinct. This is a situation in which every subsequent actor, based on the observations of others, makes the same choice independent of his or her private signal. I will present an example from this web page: http://www.info-cascades.info/:

"Let us presume that you and a lot of other people have to find your way to a new destination, and you come to a crossway where you can only either go left or right. Everyone has a private imperfect signal (call it "judgment" or "opinion"). For simplicity, let everyone have a private signal "left" ("right") with probability 2/3 if the true best choice is to go left (right). So, the signal helps but it is not perfect. Everyone's signal is equally good.

"Now, assume that you are the third person to choose, and you first saw a man and then a woman go left. I claim that it is optimal for you to go "left" even if your private signal/intuition says "right". Why? You know that the man must have had an "l" signal, because he went left. The woman saw the man go "left." She would have figured out that the first individual's signal was "left". If her private signal was "left", she would have surely walked left, too. If her signal was "right", she would have been aware of one right and one left signal. She might have walked either way.

*"Now it is your turn. Having seen both the man and the woman walk "left," you know that the man had a "left" signal and the woman had a better than even chance of having had a "left" signal. Loosely speaking, the actions of your predecessors give you more than 1 "left" signal. Even if your private information is 1 "right" signal, net-in-net you should choose "left" if you are acting rationally---and so will everyone choosing after you. Now, everyone after you will know that what you did had nothing to do with your private information---but they will be in the same boat. The optimal decision will be to do the same thing and go left. One major consequence of informational cascades is that you may get a million rational individuals walking "left" just because the first two individuals walked "left", even if the true best choice was "right." (This will happen with more than 1/3*1/3=1/9 probability [first two individuals got incorrect "left" signals].)*

"So, what does this mean for society? Cascades predict that you can get massive social imitation, occasionally leading everyone (the "herd") to the incorrect choice."

I believe this explains why so many in the Bahai world made an incorrect choice in abandoning the Guardianship without even giving it a thought. The Custodians abandoned the Guardianship, and the entire group, lost in the herd instinct, simply followed.

But herein lies the solution to the problem. Because the second half of the informational cascade theory is the concept of fragility. This part of the theory points out that only a little bit of information can overturn even a long-standing informational cascade. In other words, the informational cascade is based upon little or no information and therefore it is fragile. The way to overturn this fragile state is to introduce just a little bit of correct information. The herd then turns in the opposite direction. Instead of going left, the herd now sees that moving to the right was the correct answer.

This is the function of the Orthodox Baha'is in this day. It is our job to introduce the little information necessary to overcome the long-standing erroneous choice of the Bahai world to simply abandon the Guardianship.

I encourage you to get that information:
http://www.bahai-guardian.com/

Posted at 10:57 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The sans-Guardian Baha'is-- marketed on NBC as the most comfortable religion

One interesting contrast between the Orthodox Bahai Faith, and the dominating group of sans-Guardian Bahai's presently headquartered in Haifa and Wilmette, is the manner in which the two organizations promote their teachings.

The sans-Guardian organization actively markets the Faith as if it were a corporation selling household products. They promote the Faith in an undignified manner by use of various marketing techniques such as billboards, to try to sell the Faith. Their focus is almost entirely on increasing their numbers and raising money. Raise money to increase the numbers; and increase the numbers to raise more money. Your faith is measured by how much you give to the cause of increasing those numbers, both enrollments and money. Rarely do they discuss subjects involving the mystical union of a soul with God, eternal life, or true loving kindness, and when they do it is with an eye toward making more Bahai's.

I recall that, when I left the sans-Guardian organization to join the Orthodox Bahai Faith, I was surprised to see what little emphasis was placed upon increasing the numbers or with making financial contributions. The emphasis was and still is on deepening one's knowledge in the fundamental verities of the Cause. The outreach by the Orthodox Baha'is consisted of occasional newspaper and magazine advertisements and internet web pages, in an effort to make the true teachings of the Faith available to the public. Other than that, there was never any concern for whether there were enrollments. Even when somebody approaches the Orthodox Baha'is stating their intention to join the Faith, instead of being quickly absorbed into the community, an effort is made to ensure that those seekers have a deepened knowledge of the Faith's teachings before their declarations are accepted. The focus is on quality of faith and true understanding rather than a large number of enrollments. There is no effort to sell the teachings or make more Bahai's. The sans-Guardian Baha'is even have the audacity to criticize the Orthodox Baha'is because of the fewness of their members, not realizing that we have a religion here, and not a product to be sold. The Orthodox Bahais have no interest in trademarks, copyrights, market share, marketing and other corporate nonsense that occupies the attention of the sans-Guardian Baha'is.

The sans-Guardian Bahai's, having no divine guidance whatsoever, have clearly lost their way. This has never been more evident than in the recent NBC news piece on religious faiths, which features the Bahai Faith as being the most "comfortable" faith to join. Here is a video clip of that piece: http://video.msn.com/video.aspx?mkt=en-US&brand=msnbc&vid=cdaf2f7d-ad01-4c65-9f6c-390ea4305ea7

Of all the reasons to choose a specific religious path, the least valid one in my opinion is to pick out the one that seems most comfortable. You are not picking out a mattress. For heaven's sake, you are seeking the Truth and not a comfortable consumer product! The whole focus of the NBC News piece was which religions are gaining members and which are losing them, and market studies of favorable or unfavorable opinions of the various religions. The only person they interview in all of this is none other than a sans-Guardian Bahai who joined the Faith because it was a "modern fit" and she did not want her friends to think she was joining a "religion of the month club" presumably by actually searching for Truth.

Posted at 09:10 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The sans-Guardian Baha'is-- marketed on NBC as the most comfortable religion

One interesting contrast between the Orthodox Bahai Faith, and the dominating group of sans-Guardian Bahai's presently headquartered in Haifa and Wilmette, is the manner in which the two organizations promote their teachings.

The sans-Guardian organization actively markets the Faith as if it were a corporation selling household products. They promote the Faith in an undignified manner by use of various marketing techniques such as billboards, to try to sell the Faith. Their focus is almost entirely on increasing their numbers and raising money. Raise money to increase the numbers; and increase the numbers to raise more money. Your faith is measured by how much you give to the cause of increasing those numbers, both enrollments and money. Rarely do they discuss subjects involving the mystical union of a soul with God, eternal life, or true loving kindness, and when they do it is with an eye toward making more Bahai's.

I recall that, when I left the sans-Guardian organization to join the Orthodox Bahai Faith, I was surprised to see what little emphasis was placed upon increasing the numbers or with making financial contributions. The emphasis was and still is on deepening one's knowledge in the fundamental verities of the Cause. The outreach by the Orthodox Baha'is consisted of occasional newspaper and magazine advertisements and internet web pages, in an effort to make the true teachings of the Faith available to the public. Other than that, there was never any concern for whether there were enrollments. Even when somebody approaches the Orthodox Baha'is stating their intention to join the Faith, instead of being quickly absorbed into the community, an effort is made to ensure that those seekers have a deepened knowledge of the Faith's teachings before their declarations are accepted. The focus is on quality of faith and true understanding rather than a large number of enrollments. There is no effort to sell the teachings or make more Bahai's. The sans-Guardian Baha'is even have the audacity to criticize the Orthodox Baha'is because of the fewness of their members, not realizing that we have a religion here, and not a product to be sold. The Orthodox Bahais have no interest in trademarks, copyrights, market share, marketing and other corporate nonsense that occupies the attention of the sans-Guardian Baha'is.

The sans-Guardian Bahai's, having no divine guidance whatsoever, have clearly lost their way. This has never been more evident than in the recent NBC news piece on religious faiths, which features the Bahai Faith as being the most "comfortable" faith to join. Here is a video clip of that piece: http://video.msn.com/video.aspx?mkt=en-US&brand=msnbc&vid=cdaf2f7d-ad01-4c65-9f6c-390ea4305ea7

Of all the reasons to choose a specific religious path, the least valid one in my opinion is to pick out the one that seems most comfortable. You are not picking out a mattress. For heaven's sake, you are seeking the Truth and not a comfortable consumer product! The whole focus of the NBC News piece was which religions are gaining members and which are losing them, and market studies of favorable or unfavorable opinions of the various religions. The only person they interview in all of this is none other than a sans-Guardian Bahai who joined the Faith because it was a "modern fit" and she did not want her friends to think she was joining a "religion of the month club" presumably by actually searching for Truth.

Posted at 09:10 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The shallow and hollow Faith

I have said many times that the sans-Guardian Baha'is (those presently headquartered in Haifa and Wilmette) have so lost their way that their Faith has become a mere shell of a religion, shallow and hollow.

In this interesting account by a Bahai, of her journey to the India House of Worship, the truth of my opinions are confirmed. Expecting to join thousands of Baha'is in worship, she finds nothing but an empty shell, shallow and hollow.

http://bahaitheway.blogspot.com/2007/10/wheres-god.html

It is time for everyone who considers himself or herself as a Bahai, to come over to the true Cause of God, under the guidance of the living Guardian, the Orthodox Bahai Faith.

Jeffrey

Posted at 09:00 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The shallow and hollow Faith

I have said many times that the sans-Guardian Baha'is (those presently headquartered in Haifa and Wilmette) have so lost their way that their Faith has become a mere shell of a religion, shallow and hollow.

In this interesting account by a Bahai, of her journey to the India House of Worship, the truth of my opinions are confirmed. Expecting to join thousands of Baha'is in worship, she finds nothing but an empty shell, shallow and hollow.

http://bahaitheway.blogspot.com/2007/10/wheres-god.html

It is time for everyone who considers himself or herself as a Bahai, to come over to the true Cause of God, under the guidance of the living Guardian, the Orthodox Bahai Faith.

Jeffrey

Posted at 09:00 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

"They inflicted the greatest injury and cruelty, yet counted themselves firm in the Covenant"

On the newsgroup talk.religion.bahai, there has been considerable discussion from time to time about shunning, as practiced by the sans-Guardian Baha'is, those who currently occupy the headquarters in Haifa and Wilmette. Remarkably, some of the members of that group have the audacity to deny that the behavior is taking place, or relegate it to some historical practice that is no longer being carried out.

The reality is that the sans-Guardian Baha'is have been consistently perverting the Faith's teachings about shunning Covenant-breakers, to carry out the most atrocious, cult-like and demonic, mind-control methods of thought control, for the purpose of keeping its membership in line, so that the leadership of the organization can effectively control the minds and behavior of its world-wide adherents.

With the constant threat of being shunned, to have all of your friends and family leave you and refuse any contact whatsoever, the sans-Guardian Bahai leadership controls what its members do, think and say, down to very minute details such as with whom they might associate and the details of which conversations and reading materials that are acceptable and which are not. Failure to heed these threats results in shunning, and if the friends and family of the shunned person do not comply, they too are shunned. As a result, a number of the sans-Guardian Bahai's who wish to read what they want, hear ideas they want to hear, and associate with persons as they wish, have to sneak around out of fear that they will be caught by the authorities and then ostracized by their friends and family. In some countries, my fellow Orthodox Baha'is are in constant fear of harassment and threats from extreme fanatical members of the sans-Guardian Baha'is, and must conduct their activities in secret lest they become victims of violent crimes against them. This is going on in many communities around the world today. Of course, this is kept hidden from the rank and file believers, but just because violence isn't being threatened in your nice suburban towns in the United States does not mean that it is not occurring secretly in other countries that enjoy less police protection than you have.

Let me state clearly for the record that shunning is a part of the Bahai teaching and history, but it must be understood what covenant-breaking was historically and how shunning was actually carried out. To gloss over the truth of the teachings and their historical context is part of the cult-like attitude displayed by the sans-Guardian Baha'is. It is important to be clear on this.

The teachings about shunning are best summarized in Abdu'l-Baha's Last Tablet to America, published in Bahai World Faith, p. 428. The quotes below come from that Tablet.

It is important to understand, first, that covenant-breaking always has meant disobedience to the point of opposition to the Center of the Covenant. "They have arisen against the Center of the Covenant like the people of Bayan who attacked the Blessed Beauty and every moment uttered a calumny." Thus, the Babi's who resisted and opposed Baha'u'llah, those who attacked and opposed Abdu'l-Baha, and those who opposed Shoghi Effendi, all were considered covenant-breakers. The definition of covenant-breaking was unilaterally altered by the Hands of the Cause after the death of Shoghi Effendi. They had no authority to change the definition. Until they changed it, it meant opposing the Guardian. There is no authoritative text to remotely suggest that covenant-breaking means opposition to the authority of the Hands or the headless UHJ they created. They also broadened the approach to covenant breaking by condemning not only the leaders but also the misled followers of these leaders. The reality is that covenant-breakers are only the instigators and leaders, ones with selfish ambition and purposes that motivate them, and not the sincere but misled persons deceived by the covenant breakers.

Although historically covenant-breakers opposed the Center of the Covenant, they always attempted to deceive others into believing that they were the ones faithful to the Covenant. "Every day they wrote and spread a pamphlet opposing Bahá'u'lláh, caused trouble and perplexity among the people; they inflicted the greatest injury and cruelty, yet counted themselves firm in the Covenant of His Holiness, the Báb." In most instances, the covenant-breakers deceived a multitude of people, such as in the days of Abdu'l-Baha, when most of the Bahais turned against the Master and pledged their allegiance to His brother. "Listen not to the nonsensical utterances of the manifestations of Satan, because the manifestations of Satan are occupying today the observation posts of the glorious path of God, and preventing the people by every means of deception and ruse."

Today is no different. The covenant-breakers of today, that is, the leaders of the sans-Guardian organization, have misled their followers into believing that the true ones, that is the ones who are loyal and obedient to the Guardian of the Cause, are the covenant-breakers. The reality is they are the ones opposed to the Guardian and his sworn enemies, even to the point of hauling the Guardian of the Faith into a secular court in the United States to try to prevent him and his organization from using the Greatest Name! What evil they commit and yet their followers remain blind to it.
[The Court papers can be viewed here: http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html]

And, yes it is true, that covenant-breakers should be shunned. That is, the leaders of opposition to the Guardian, the ones who knowingly and actively attack the Guardian, should be shunned. Not the misled followers, not the unfortunate family members, and not otherwise faithful believers who are caught reading material or talking with those who have been declared covenant breakers. The reason they are shunned is not to impose cult-like thought control upon the membership but to protect the members from the evil and deception perpetrated by these sick souls.

Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha used strong language to describe these people, much of it metaphorical in order to make the point how dangerous they are. Covenant-breakers are "weak, capricious, malicious and ignorant souls" all of whom "have been shaken by the earthquake of hatred, of animosity..." "Their breath is like the poison of the snake that kills instantly." They are like "Satan, in the garb of man." "They are manifestations of Satan." "Their breath is infectious, like unto poison." "Every hour they contrive new intrigues and fraud, and bring forth new calumny." They are "persons who appear as sheep and in reality are ferocious wolves; they exercise every sort of oppression, endeavor to destroy the foundation of the Covenant, -- and claim to be Bahá'ís. They strike at the root of the Tree of the Covenant -- and count themselves persecuted."

The gullible and misled believers of the sans-Guardian organization, have allowed themselves to be controlled because their evil and demonic leadership has made them fearful of covenant-breakers and of being labeled as covenant-breakers, even though it is that very leadership that is opposed to God and to the true ones of God. Literally believing that breath can be infectious poison and that they run the risk of spiritual death merely by reading materials or having conversations with certain persons, they have allowed themselves through irrational fear to close their minds.

When Joel B. Marangella (presently the third Guardian of the Cause), was the President of the NSA of France in May of 1960, the NSA received the Proclamation of the Guardianship of Mason Remey and consulted upon its contents. The NSA voted to accept Mason Remey as the Guardian of the Cause. Thereafter, the Custodian Hands, without any administrative authority to do so, dissolved the French NSA and put its members out of the Faith except those who recanted. Almost all of Joel B. Marangella's friends in the Faith shunned him, his wife, and his three sons, simply because he had recognized the truth of Remey's Guardianship. Marangella never again had contact with his father, mother, grandmother, twin sister and her husband and three children, even though all of his family (except for his father) lived in close proximity to him in Orleans, France.

The author of this article, when he recognized the Guardianship of Joel B. Marangella in 1997, even though he attempted to quietly resign from the sans-Guardian organization, was shunned by all of his friends in the Faith, who also shunned his wife and two children simply because his wife would not divorce him and take the children away from him, as they insisted she must. His nephew, the son of a sans-Guardian believer, does not even know he exists because he is prevented from any contact with the child for fear of catching a spiritual disease. I think it is too late because anyone who practices this kind of shunning already is suffering from the worst spiritual disease imaginable.

The next in line to be Guardian, Hand of the Cause Nosrat'u'llah Bahremand, when he recognized Joel B. Marangella's Guardianship, was shunned by all of his family and friends. A Continental Councilor held a meeting with his family, including include his wife, children, elderly mother, sisters, brother, niece, nephew and in-laws (all Baha'is) in the absence of the Nosrat. The Councilor accused Nosrat of being a covenant-breaker and instructed all of these relatives to shun him and break-up with him, or otherwise they themselves would be shunned. As instructed, Nosrat's wife immediately separated from him and obtained a divorce. [CORRECTION: Nosrat has corrected this in his recent article. She was forced to separate but did not divorce.] His daughter was instructed to prevent his grand-children, aged 4 and 2, from ever seeing again their grandfather. As a result of this, Nosrat's family was broken apart, he lost the family business and the family home. Nosrat has suffered and continues to suffer deep emotional and financial suffering as a result of the demonic actions of the sans-Guardian organization.

Any clear-thinking and decent person can see that only unmitigated evil is the result of the fanatical mind-control methods of shunning practiced by the sans-Guardian Baha'is. Those of who you are the misled followers of this demonic organization, when you finally come to the horrible realization of what is occurring within your so-called religion, have no choice but to take action. You must take a stand against this evil, and withhold your support from the bogus UHJ and the other leaders of your organization. You are most welcome to join the true Cause of God under the shelter of the Tree of the Covenant by investigating the claims of Joel B. Marangella to the office of the Guardianship and declaring your allegiance and loyalty to the Center of the Covenant.

Jeffrey Goldberg

Posted at 11:48 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

"They inflicted the greatest injury and cruelty, yet counted themselves firm in the Covenant"

On the newsgroup talk.religion.bahai, there has been considerable discussion from time to time about shunning, as practiced by the sans-Guardian Baha'is, those who currently occupy the headquarters in Haifa and Wilmette. Remarkably, some of the members of that group have the audacity to deny that the behavior is taking place, or relegate it to some historical practice that is no longer being carried out.

The reality is that the sans-Guardian Baha'is have been consistently perverting the Faith's teachings about shunning Covenant-breakers, to carry out the most atrocious, cult-like and demonic, mind-control methods of thought control, for the purpose of keeping its membership in line, so that the leadership of the organization can effectively control the minds and behavior of its world-wide adherents.

With the constant threat of being shunned, to have all of your friends and family leave you and refuse any contact whatsoever, the sans-Guardian Bahai leadership controls what its members do, think and say, down to very minute details such as with whom they might associate and the details of which conversations and reading materials that are acceptable and which are not. Failure to heed these threats results in shunning, and if the friends and family of the shunned person do not comply, they too are shunned. As a result, a number of the sans-Guardian Bahai's who wish to read what they want, hear ideas they want to hear, and associate with persons as they wish, have to sneak around out of fear that they will be caught by the authorities and then ostracized by their friends and family. In some countries, my fellow Orthodox Baha'is are in constant fear of harassment and threats from extreme fanatical members of the sans-Guardian Baha'is, and must conduct their activities in secret lest they become victims of violent crimes against them. This is going on in many communities around the world today. Of course, this is kept hidden from the rank and file believers, but just because violence isn't being threatened in your nice suburban towns in the United States does not mean that it is not occurring secretly in other countries that enjoy less police protection than you have.

Let me state clearly for the record that shunning is a part of the Bahai teaching and history, but it must be understood what covenant-breaking was historically and how shunning was actually carried out. To gloss over the truth of the teachings and their historical context is part of the cult-like attitude displayed by the sans-Guardian Baha'is. It is important to be clear on this.

The teachings about shunning are best summarized in Abdu'l-Baha's Last Tablet to America, published in Bahai World Faith, p. 428. The quotes below come from that Tablet.

It is important to understand, first, that covenant-breaking always has meant disobedience to the point of opposition to the Center of the Covenant. "They have arisen against the Center of the Covenant like the people of Bayan who attacked the Blessed Beauty and every moment uttered a calumny." Thus, the Babi's who resisted and opposed Baha'u'llah, those who attacked and opposed Abdu'l-Baha, and those who opposed Shoghi Effendi, all were considered covenant-breakers. The definition of covenant-breaking was unilaterally altered by the Hands of the Cause after the death of Shoghi Effendi. They had no authority to change the definition. Until they changed it, it meant opposing the Guardian. There is no authoritative text to remotely suggest that covenant-breaking means opposition to the authority of the Hands or the headless UHJ they created. They also broadened the approach to covenant breaking by condemning not only the leaders but also the misled followers of these leaders. The reality is that covenant-breakers are only the instigators and leaders, ones with selfish ambition and purposes that motivate them, and not the sincere but misled persons deceived by the covenant breakers.

Although historically covenant-breakers opposed the Center of the Covenant, they always attempted to deceive others into believing that they were the ones faithful to the Covenant. "Every day they wrote and spread a pamphlet opposing Bahá'u'lláh, caused trouble and perplexity among the people; they inflicted the greatest injury and cruelty, yet counted themselves firm in the Covenant of His Holiness, the Báb." In most instances, the covenant-breakers deceived a multitude of people, such as in the days of Abdu'l-Baha, when most of the Bahais turned against the Master and pledged their allegiance to His brother. "Listen not to the nonsensical utterances of the manifestations of Satan, because the manifestations of Satan are occupying today the observation posts of the glorious path of God, and preventing the people by every means of deception and ruse."

Today is no different. The covenant-breakers of today, that is, the leaders of the sans-Guardian organization, have misled their followers into believing that the true ones, that is the ones who are loyal and obedient to the Guardian of the Cause, are the covenant-breakers. The reality is they are the ones opposed to the Guardian and his sworn enemies, even to the point of hauling the Guardian of the Faith into a secular court in the United States to try to prevent him and his organization from using the Greatest Name! What evil they commit and yet their followers remain blind to it.
[The Court papers can be viewed here: http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html]

And, yes it is true, that covenant-breakers should be shunned. That is, the leaders of opposition to the Guardian, the ones who knowingly and actively attack the Guardian, should be shunned. Not the misled followers, not the unfortunate family members, and not otherwise faithful believers who are caught reading material or talking with those who have been declared covenant breakers. The reason they are shunned is not to impose cult-like thought control upon the membership but to protect the members from the evil and deception perpetrated by these sick souls.

Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha used strong language to describe these people, much of it metaphorical in order to make the point how dangerous they are. Covenant-breakers are "weak, capricious, malicious and ignorant souls" all of whom "have been shaken by the earthquake of hatred, of animosity..." "Their breath is like the poison of the snake that kills instantly." They are like "Satan, in the garb of man." "They are manifestations of Satan." "Their breath is infectious, like unto poison." "Every hour they contrive new intrigues and fraud, and bring forth new calumny." They are "persons who appear as sheep and in reality are ferocious wolves; they exercise every sort of oppression, endeavor to destroy the foundation of the Covenant, -- and claim to be Bahá'ís. They strike at the root of the Tree of the Covenant -- and count themselves persecuted."

The gullible and misled believers of the sans-Guardian organization, have allowed themselves to be controlled because their evil and demonic leadership has made them fearful of covenant-breakers and of being labeled as covenant-breakers, even though it is that very leadership that is opposed to God and to the true ones of God. Literally believing that breath can be infectious poison and that they run the risk of spiritual death merely by reading materials or having conversations with certain persons, they have allowed themselves through irrational fear to close their minds.

When Joel B. Marangella (presently the third Guardian of the Cause), was the President of the NSA of France in May of 1960, the NSA received the Proclamation of the Guardianship of Mason Remey and consulted upon its contents. The NSA voted to accept Mason Remey as the Guardian of the Cause. Thereafter, the Custodian Hands, without any administrative authority to do so, dissolved the French NSA and put its members out of the Faith except those who recanted. Almost all of Joel B. Marangella's friends in the Faith shunned him, his wife, and his three sons, simply because he had recognized the truth of Remey's Guardianship. Marangella never again had contact with his father, mother, grandmother, twin sister and her husband and three children, even though all of his family (except for his father) lived in close proximity to him in Orleans, France.

The author of this article, when he recognized the Guardianship of Joel B. Marangella in 1997, even though he attempted to quietly resign from the sans-Guardian organization, was shunned by all of his friends in the Faith, who also shunned his wife and two children simply because his wife would not divorce him and take the children away from him, as they insisted she must. His nephew, the son of a sans-Guardian believer, does not even know he exists because he is prevented from any contact with the child for fear of catching a spiritual disease. I think it is too late because anyone who practices this kind of shunning already is suffering from the worst spiritual disease imaginable.

The next in line to be Guardian, Hand of the Cause Nosrat'u'llah Bahremand, when he recognized Joel B. Marangella's Guardianship, was shunned by all of his family and friends. A Continental Councilor held a meeting with his family, including include his wife, children, elderly mother, sisters, brother, niece, nephew and in-laws (all Baha'is) in the absence of the Nosrat. The Councilor accused Nosrat of being a covenant-breaker and instructed all of these relatives to shun him and break-up with him, or otherwise they themselves would be shunned. As instructed, Nosrat's wife immediately separated from him and obtained a divorce. [CORRECTION: Nosrat has corrected this in his recent article. She was forced to separate but did not divorce.] His daughter was instructed to prevent his grand-children, aged 4 and 2, from ever seeing again their grandfather. As a result of this, Nosrat's family was broken apart, he lost the family business and the family home. Nosrat has suffered and continues to suffer deep emotional and financial suffering as a result of the demonic actions of the sans-Guardian organization.

Any clear-thinking and decent person can see that only unmitigated evil is the result of the fanatical mind-control methods of shunning practiced by the sans-Guardian Baha'is. Those of who you are the misled followers of this demonic organization, when you finally come to the horrible realization of what is occurring within your so-called religion, have no choice but to take action. You must take a stand against this evil, and withhold your support from the bogus UHJ and the other leaders of your organization. You are most welcome to join the true Cause of God under the shelter of the Tree of the Covenant by investigating the claims of Joel B. Marangella to the office of the Guardianship and declaring your allegiance and loyalty to the Center of the Covenant.

Jeffrey Goldberg

Posted at 11:48 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

"They inflicted the greatest injury and cruelty, yet counted themselves firm in the Covenant"

On the newsgroup talk.religion.bahai, there has been considerable discussion from time to time about shunning, as practiced by the sans-Guardian Baha'is, those who currently occupy the headquarters in Haifa and Wilmette. Remarkably, some of the members of that group have the audacity to deny that the behavior is taking place, or relegate it to some historical practice that is no longer being carried out.

The reality is that the sans-Guardian Baha'is have been consistently perverting the Faith's teachings about shunning Covenant-breakers, to carry out the most atrocious, cult-like and demonic, mind-control methods of thought control, for the purpose of keeping its membership in line, so that the leadership of the organization can effectively control the minds and behavior of its world-wide adherents.

With the constant threat of being shunned, to have all of your friends and family leave you and refuse any contact whatsoever, the sans-Guardian Bahai leadership controls what its members do, think and say, down to very minute details such as with whom they might associate and the details of which conversations and reading materials that are acceptable and which are not. Failure to heed these threats results in shunning, and if the friends and family of the shunned person do not comply, they too are shunned. As a result, a number of the sans-Guardian Bahai's who wish to read what they want, hear ideas they want to hear, and associate with persons as they wish, have to sneak around out of fear that they will be caught by the authorities and then ostracized by their friends and family. In some countries, my fellow Orthodox Baha'is are in constant fear of harassment and threats from extreme fanatical members of the sans-Guardian Baha'is, and must conduct their activities in secret lest they become victims of violent crimes against them. This is going on in many communities around the world today. Of course, this is kept hidden from the rank and file believers, but just because violence isn't being threatened in your nice suburban towns in the United States does not mean that it is not occurring secretly in other countries that enjoy less police protection than you have.

Let me state clearly for the record that shunning is a part of the Bahai teaching and history, but it must be understood what covenant-breaking was historically and how shunning was actually carried out. To gloss over the truth of the teachings and their historical context is part of the cult-like attitude displayed by the sans-Guardian Baha'is. It is important to be clear on this.

The teachings about shunning are best summarized in Abdu'l-Baha's Last Tablet to America, published in Bahai World Faith, p. 428. The quotes below come from that Tablet.

It is important to understand, first, that covenant-breaking always has meant disobedience to the point of opposition to the Center of the Covenant. "They have arisen against the Center of the Covenant like the people of Bayan who attacked the Blessed Beauty and every moment uttered a calumny." Thus, the Babi's who resisted and opposed Baha'u'llah, those who attacked and opposed Abdu'l-Baha, and those who opposed Shoghi Effendi, all were considered covenant-breakers. The definition of covenant-breaking was unilaterally altered by the Hands of the Cause after the death of Shoghi Effendi. They had no authority to change the definition. Until they changed it, it meant opposing the Guardian. There is no authoritative text to remotely suggest that covenant-breaking means opposition to the authority of the Hands or the headless UHJ they created. They also broadened the approach to covenant breaking by condemning not only the leaders but also the misled followers of these leaders. The reality is that covenant-breakers are only the instigators and leaders, ones with selfish ambition and purposes that motivate them, and not the sincere but misled persons deceived by the covenant breakers.

Although historically covenant-breakers opposed the Center of the Covenant, they always attempted to deceive others into believing that they were the ones faithful to the Covenant. "Every day they wrote and spread a pamphlet opposing Bahá'u'lláh, caused trouble and perplexity among the people; they inflicted the greatest injury and cruelty, yet counted themselves firm in the Covenant of His Holiness, the Báb." In most instances, the covenant-breakers deceived a multitude of people, such as in the days of Abdu'l-Baha, when most of the Bahais turned against the Master and pledged their allegiance to His brother. "Listen not to the nonsensical utterances of the manifestations of Satan, because the manifestations of Satan are occupying today the observation posts of the glorious path of God, and preventing the people by every means of deception and ruse."

Today is no different. The covenant-breakers of today, that is, the leaders of the sans-Guardian organization, have misled their followers into believing that the true ones, that is the ones who are loyal and obedient to the Guardian of the Cause, are the covenant-breakers. The reality is they are the ones opposed to the Guardian and his sworn enemies, even to the point of hauling the Guardian of the Faith into a secular court in the United States to try to prevent him and his organization from using the Greatest Name! What evil they commit and yet their followers remain blind to it.
[The Court papers can be viewed here: http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html]

And, yes it is true, that covenant-breakers should be shunned. That is, the leaders of opposition to the Guardian, the ones who knowingly and actively attack the Guardian, should be shunned. Not the misled followers, not the unfortunate family members, and not otherwise faithful believers who are caught reading material or talking with those who have been declared covenant breakers. The reason they are shunned is not to impose cult-like thought control upon the membership but to protect the members from the evil and deception perpetrated by these sick souls.

Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha used strong language to describe these people, much of it metaphorical in order to make the point how dangerous they are. Covenant-breakers are "weak, capricious, malicious and ignorant souls" all of whom "have been shaken by the earthquake of hatred, of animosity..." "Their breath is like the poison of the snake that kills instantly." They are like "Satan, in the garb of man." "They are manifestations of Satan." "Their breath is infectious, like unto poison." "Every hour they contrive new intrigues and fraud, and bring forth new calumny." They are "persons who appear as sheep and in reality are ferocious wolves; they exercise every sort of oppression, endeavor to destroy the foundation of the Covenant, -- and claim to be Bahá'ís. They strike at the root of the Tree of the Covenant -- and count themselves persecuted."

The gullible and misled believers of the sans-Guardian organization, have allowed themselves to be controlled because their evil and demonic leadership has made them fearful of covenant-breakers and of being labeled as covenant-breakers, even though it is that very leadership that is opposed to God and to the true ones of God. Literally believing that breath can be infectious poison and that they run the risk of spiritual death merely by reading materials or having conversations with certain persons, they have allowed themselves through irrational fear to close their minds.

When Joel B. Marangella (presently the third Guardian of the Cause), was the President of the NSA of France in May of 1960, the NSA received the Proclamation of the Guardianship of Mason Remey and consulted upon its contents. The NSA voted to accept Mason Remey as the Guardian of the Cause. Thereafter, the Custodian Hands, without any administrative authority to do so, dissolved the French NSA and put its members out of the Faith except those who recanted. Almost all of Joel B. Marangella's friends in the Faith shunned him, his wife, and his three sons, simply because he had recognized the truth of Remey's Guardianship. Marangella never again had contact with his father, mother, grandmother, twin sister and her husband and three children, even though all of his family (except for his father) lived in close proximity to him in Orleans, France.

The author of this article, when he recognized the Guardianship of Joel B. Marangella in 1997, even though he attempted to quietly resign from the sans-Guardian organization, was shunned by all of his friends in the Faith, who also shunned his wife and two children simply because his wife would not divorce him and take the children away from him, as they insisted she must. His nephew, the son of a sans-Guardian believer, does not even know he exists because he is prevented from any contact with the child for fear of catching a spiritual disease. I think it is too late because anyone who practices this kind of shunning already is suffering from the worst spiritual disease imaginable.

The next in line to be Guardian, Hand of the Cause Nosrat'u'llah Bahremand, when he recognized Joel B. Marangella's Guardianship, was shunned by all of his family and friends. A Continental Councilor held a meeting with his family, including include his wife, children, elderly mother, sisters, brother, niece, nephew and in-laws (all Baha'is) in the absence of the Nosrat. The Councilor accused Nosrat of being a covenant-breaker and instructed all of these relatives to shun him and break-up with him, or otherwise they themselves would be shunned. As instructed, Nosrat's wife immediately separated from him and obtained a divorce. [CORRECTION: Nosrat has corrected this in his recent article. She was forced to separate but did not divorce.] His daughter was instructed to prevent his grand-children, aged 4 and 2, from ever seeing again their grandfather. As a result of this, Nosrat's family was broken apart, he lost the family business and the family home. Nosrat has suffered and continues to suffer deep emotional and financial suffering as a result of the demonic actions of the sans-Guardian organization.

Any clear-thinking and decent person can see that only unmitigated evil is the result of the fanatical mind-control methods of shunning practiced by the sans-Guardian Baha'is. Those of who you are the misled followers of this demonic organization, when you finally come to the horrible realization of what is occurring within your so-called religion, have no choice but to take action. You must take a stand against this evil, and withhold your support from the bogus UHJ and the other leaders of your organization. You are most welcome to join the true Cause of God under the shelter of the Tree of the Covenant by investigating the claims of Joel B. Marangella to the office of the Guardianship and declaring your allegiance and loyalty to the Center of the Covenant.

Jeffrey Goldberg

Posted at 11:48 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

"They inflicted the greatest injury and cruelty, yet counted themselves firm in the Covenant"

On the newsgroup talk.religion.bahai, there has been considerable discussion from time to time about shunning, as practiced by the sans-Guardian Baha'is, those who currently occupy the headquarters in Haifa and Wilmette. Remarkably, some of the members of that group have the audacity to deny that the behavior is taking place, or relegate it to some historical practice that is no longer being carried out.

The reality is that the sans-Guardian Baha'is have been consistently perverting the Faith's teachings about shunning Covenant-breakers, to carry out the most atrocious, cult-like and demonic, mind-control methods of thought control, for the purpose of keeping its membership in line, so that the leadership of the organization can effectively control the minds and behavior of its world-wide adherents.

With the constant threat of being shunned, to have all of your friends and family leave you and refuse any contact whatsoever, the sans-Guardian Bahai leadership controls what its members do, think and say, down to very minute details such as with whom they might associate and the details of which conversations and reading materials that are acceptable and which are not. Failure to heed these threats results in shunning, and if the friends and family of the shunned person do not comply, they too are shunned. As a result, a number of the sans-Guardian Bahai's who wish to read what they want, hear ideas they want to hear, and associate with persons as they wish, have to sneak around out of fear that they will be caught by the authorities and then ostracized by their friends and family. In some countries, my fellow Orthodox Baha'is are in constant fear of harassment and threats from extreme fanatical members of the sans-Guardian Baha'is, and must conduct their activities in secret lest they become victims of violent crimes against them. This is going on in many communities around the world today. Of course, this is kept hidden from the rank and file believers, but just because violence isn't being threatened in your nice suburban towns in the United States does not mean that it is not occurring secretly in other countries that enjoy less police protection than you have.

Let me state clearly for the record that shunning is a part of the Bahai teaching and history, but it must be understood what covenant-breaking was historically and how shunning was actually carried out. To gloss over the truth of the teachings and their historical context is part of the cult-like attitude displayed by the sans-Guardian Baha'is. It is important to be clear on this.

The teachings about shunning are best summarized in Abdu'l-Baha's Last Tablet to America, published in Bahai World Faith, p. 428. The quotes below come from that Tablet.

It is important to understand, first, that covenant-breaking always has meant disobedience to the point of opposition to the Center of the Covenant. "They have arisen against the Center of the Covenant like the people of Bayan who attacked the Blessed Beauty and every moment uttered a calumny." Thus, the Babi's who resisted and opposed Baha'u'llah, those who attacked and opposed Abdu'l-Baha, and those who opposed Shoghi Effendi, all were considered covenant-breakers. The definition of covenant-breaking was unilaterally altered by the Hands of the Cause after the death of Shoghi Effendi. They had no authority to change the definition. Until they changed it, it meant opposing the Guardian. There is no authoritative text to remotely suggest that covenant-breaking means opposition to the authority of the Hands or the headless UHJ they created. They also broadened the approach to covenant breaking by condemning not only the leaders but also the misled followers of these leaders. The reality is that covenant-breakers are only the instigators and leaders, ones with selfish ambition and purposes that motivate them, and not the sincere but misled persons deceived by the covenant breakers.

Although historically covenant-breakers opposed the Center of the Covenant, they always attempted to deceive others into believing that they were the ones faithful to the Covenant. "Every day they wrote and spread a pamphlet opposing Bahá'u'lláh, caused trouble and perplexity among the people; they inflicted the greatest injury and cruelty, yet counted themselves firm in the Covenant of His Holiness, the Báb." In most instances, the covenant-breakers deceived a multitude of people, such as in the days of Abdu'l-Baha, when most of the Bahais turned against the Master and pledged their allegiance to His brother. "Listen not to the nonsensical utterances of the manifestations of Satan, because the manifestations of Satan are occupying today the observation posts of the glorious path of God, and preventing the people by every means of deception and ruse."

Today is no different. The covenant-breakers of today, that is, the leaders of the sans-Guardian organization, have misled their followers into believing that the true ones, that is the ones who are loyal and obedient to the Guardian of the Cause, are the covenant-breakers. The reality is they are the ones opposed to the Guardian and his sworn enemies, even to the point of hauling the Guardian of the Faith into a secular court in the United States to try to prevent him and his organization from using the Greatest Name! What evil they commit and yet their followers remain blind to it.
[The Court papers can be viewed here: http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html]

And, yes it is true, that covenant-breakers should be shunned. That is, the leaders of opposition to the Guardian, the ones who knowingly and actively attack the Guardian, should be shunned. Not the misled followers, not the unfortunate family members, and not otherwise faithful believers who are caught reading material or talking with those who have been declared covenant breakers. The reason they are shunned is not to impose cult-like thought control upon the membership but to protect the members from the evil and deception perpetrated by these sick souls.

Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha used strong language to describe these people, much of it metaphorical in order to make the point how dangerous they are. Covenant-breakers are "weak, capricious, malicious and ignorant souls" all of whom "have been shaken by the earthquake of hatred, of animosity..." "Their breath is like the poison of the snake that kills instantly." They are like "Satan, in the garb of man." "They are manifestations of Satan." "Their breath is infectious, like unto poison." "Every hour they contrive new intrigues and fraud, and bring forth new calumny." They are "persons who appear as sheep and in reality are ferocious wolves; they exercise every sort of oppression, endeavor to destroy the foundation of the Covenant, -- and claim to be Bahá'ís. They strike at the root of the Tree of the Covenant -- and count themselves persecuted."

The gullible and misled believers of the sans-Guardian organization, have allowed themselves to be controlled because their evil and demonic leadership has made them fearful of covenant-breakers and of being labeled as covenant-breakers, even though it is that very leadership that is opposed to God and to the true ones of God. Literally believing that breath can be infectious poison and that they run the risk of spiritual death merely by reading materials or having conversations with certain persons, they have allowed themselves through irrational fear to close their minds.

When Joel B. Marangella (presently the third Guardian of the Cause), was the President of the NSA of France in May of 1960, the NSA received the Proclamation of the Guardianship of Mason Remey and consulted upon its contents. The NSA voted to accept Mason Remey as the Guardian of the Cause. Thereafter, the Custodian Hands, without any administrative authority to do so, dissolved the French NSA and put its members out of the Faith except those who recanted. Almost all of Joel B. Marangella's friends in the Faith shunned him, his wife, and his three sons, simply because he had recognized the truth of Remey's Guardianship. Marangella never again had contact with his father, mother, grandmother, twin sister and her husband and three children, even though all of his family (except for his father) lived in close proximity to him in Orleans, France.

The author of this article, when he recognized the Guardianship of Joel B. Marangella in 1997, even though he attempted to quietly resign from the sans-Guardian organization, was shunned by all of his friends in the Faith, who also shunned his wife and two children simply because his wife would not divorce him and take the children away from him, as they insisted she must. His nephew, the son of a sans-Guardian believer, does not even know he exists because he is prevented from any contact with the child for fear of catching a spiritual disease. I think it is too late because anyone who practices this kind of shunning already is suffering from the worst spiritual disease imaginable.

The next in line to be Guardian, Hand of the Cause Nosrat'u'llah Bahremand, when he recognized Joel B. Marangella's Guardianship, was shunned by all of his family and friends. A Continental Councilor held a meeting with his family, including include his wife, children, elderly mother, sisters, brother, niece, nephew and in-laws (all Baha'is) in the absence of the Nosrat. The Councilor accused Nosrat of being a covenant-breaker and instructed all of these relatives to shun him and break-up with him, or otherwise they themselves would be shunned. As instructed, Nosrat's wife immediately separated from him and obtained a divorce. [CORRECTION: Nosrat has corrected this in his recent article. She was forced to separate but did not divorce.] His daughter was instructed to prevent his grand-children, aged 4 and 2, from ever seeing again their grandfather. As a result of this, Nosrat's family was broken apart, he lost the family business and the family home. Nosrat has suffered and continues to suffer deep emotional and financial suffering as a result of the demonic actions of the sans-Guardian organization.

Any clear-thinking and decent person can see that only unmitigated evil is the result of the fanatical mind-control methods of shunning practiced by the sans-Guardian Baha'is. Those of who you are the misled followers of this demonic organization, when you finally come to the horrible realization of what is occurring within your so-called religion, have no choice but to take action. You must take a stand against this evil, and withhold your support from the bogus UHJ and the other leaders of your organization. You are most welcome to join the true Cause of God under the shelter of the Tree of the Covenant by investigating the claims of Joel B. Marangella to the office of the Guardianship and declaring your allegiance and loyalty to the Center of the Covenant.

Jeffrey Goldberg

Posted at 11:48 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

"They inflicted the greatest injury and cruelty, yet counted themselves firm in the Covenant"

On the newsgroup talk.religion.bahai, there has been considerable discussion from time to time about shunning, as practiced by the sans-Guardian Baha'is, those who currently occupy the headquarters in Haifa and Wilmette. Remarkably, some of the members of that group have the audacity to deny that the behavior is taking place, or relegate it to some historical practice that is no longer being carried out.

The reality is that the sans-Guardian Baha'is have been consistently perverting the Faith's teachings about shunning Covenant-breakers, to carry out the most atrocious, cult-like and demonic, mind-control methods of thought control, for the purpose of keeping its membership in line, so that the leadership of the organization can effectively control the minds and behavior of its world-wide adherents.

With the constant threat of being shunned, to have all of your friends and family leave you and refuse any contact whatsoever, the sans-Guardian Bahai leadership controls what its members do, think and say, down to very minute details such as with whom they might associate and the details of which conversations and reading materials that are acceptable and which are not. Failure to heed these threats results in shunning, and if the friends and family of the shunned person do not comply, they too are shunned. As a result, a number of the sans-Guardian Bahai's who wish to read what they want, hear ideas they want to hear, and associate with persons as they wish, have to sneak around out of fear that they will be caught by the authorities and then ostracized by their friends and family. In some countries, my fellow Orthodox Baha'is are in constant fear of harassment and threats from extreme fanatical members of the sans-Guardian Baha'is, and must conduct their activities in secret lest they become victims of violent crimes against them. This is going on in many communities around the world today. Of course, this is kept hidden from the rank and file believers, but just because violence isn't being threatened in your nice suburban towns in the United States does not mean that it is not occurring secretly in other countries that enjoy less police protection than you have.

Let me state clearly for the record that shunning is a part of the Bahai teaching and history, but it must be understood what covenant-breaking was historically and how shunning was actually carried out. To gloss over the truth of the teachings and their historical context is part of the cult-like attitude displayed by the sans-Guardian Baha'is. It is important to be clear on this.

The teachings about shunning are best summarized in Abdu'l-Baha's Last Tablet to America, published in Bahai World Faith, p. 428. The quotes below come from that Tablet.

It is important to understand, first, that covenant-breaking always has meant disobedience to the point of opposition to the Center of the Covenant. "They have arisen against the Center of the Covenant like the people of Bayan who attacked the Blessed Beauty and every moment uttered a calumny." Thus, the Babi's who resisted and opposed Baha'u'llah, those who attacked and opposed Abdu'l-Baha, and those who opposed Shoghi Effendi, all were considered covenant-breakers. The definition of covenant-breaking was unilaterally altered by the Hands of the Cause after the death of Shoghi Effendi. They had no authority to change the definition. Until they changed it, it meant opposing the Guardian. There is no authoritative text to remotely suggest that covenant-breaking means opposition to the authority of the Hands or the headless UHJ they created. They also broadened the approach to covenant breaking by condemning not only the leaders but also the misled followers of these leaders. The reality is that covenant-breakers are only the instigators and leaders, ones with selfish ambition and purposes that motivate them, and not the sincere but misled persons deceived by the covenant breakers.

Although historically covenant-breakers opposed the Center of the Covenant, they always attempted to deceive others into believing that they were the ones faithful to the Covenant. "Every day they wrote and spread a pamphlet opposing Bahá'u'lláh, caused trouble and perplexity among the people; they inflicted the greatest injury and cruelty, yet counted themselves firm in the Covenant of His Holiness, the Báb." In most instances, the covenant-breakers deceived a multitude of people, such as in the days of Abdu'l-Baha, when most of the Bahais turned against the Master and pledged their allegiance to His brother. "Listen not to the nonsensical utterances of the manifestations of Satan, because the manifestations of Satan are occupying today the observation posts of the glorious path of God, and preventing the people by every means of deception and ruse."

Today is no different. The covenant-breakers of today, that is, the leaders of the sans-Guardian organization, have misled their followers into believing that the true ones, that is the ones who are loyal and obedient to the Guardian of the Cause, are the covenant-breakers. The reality is they are the ones opposed to the Guardian and his sworn enemies, even to the point of hauling the Guardian of the Faith into a secular court in the United States to try to prevent him and his organization from using the Greatest Name! What evil they commit and yet their followers remain blind to it.
[The Court papers can be viewed here: http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html]

And, yes it is true, that covenant-breakers should be shunned. That is, the leaders of opposition to the Guardian, the ones who knowingly and actively attack the Guardian, should be shunned. Not the misled followers, not the unfortunate family members, and not otherwise faithful believers who are caught reading material or talking with those who have been declared covenant breakers. The reason they are shunned is not to impose cult-like thought control upon the membership but to protect the members from the evil and deception perpetrated by these sick souls.

Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha used strong language to describe these people, much of it metaphorical in order to make the point how dangerous they are. Covenant-breakers are "weak, capricious, malicious and ignorant souls" all of whom "have been shaken by the earthquake of hatred, of animosity..." "Their breath is like the poison of the snake that kills instantly." They are like "Satan, in the garb of man." "They are manifestations of Satan." "Their breath is infectious, like unto poison." "Every hour they contrive new intrigues and fraud, and bring forth new calumny." They are "persons who appear as sheep and in reality are ferocious wolves; they exercise every sort of oppression, endeavor to destroy the foundation of the Covenant, -- and claim to be Bahá'ís. They strike at the root of the Tree of the Covenant -- and count themselves persecuted."

The gullible and misled believers of the sans-Guardian organization, have allowed themselves to be controlled because their evil and demonic leadership has made them fearful of covenant-breakers and of being labeled as covenant-breakers, even though it is that very leadership that is opposed to God and to the true ones of God. Literally believing that breath can be infectious poison and that they run the risk of spiritual death merely by reading materials or having conversations with certain persons, they have allowed themselves through irrational fear to close their minds.

When Joel B. Marangella (presently the third Guardian of the Cause), was the President of the NSA of France in May of 1960, the NSA received the Proclamation of the Guardianship of Mason Remey and consulted upon its contents. The NSA voted to accept Mason Remey as the Guardian of the Cause. Thereafter, the Custodian Hands, without any administrative authority to do so, dissolved the French NSA and put its members out of the Faith except those who recanted. Almost all of Joel B. Marangella's friends in the Faith shunned him, his wife, and his three sons, simply because he had recognized the truth of Remey's Guardianship. Marangella never again had contact with his father, mother, grandmother, twin sister and her husband and three children, even though all of his family (except for his father) lived in close proximity to him in Orleans, France.

The author of this article, when he recognized the Guardianship of Joel B. Marangella in 1997, even though he attempted to quietly resign from the sans-Guardian organization, was shunned by all of his friends in the Faith, who also shunned his wife and two children simply because his wife would not divorce him and take the children away from him, as they insisted she must. His nephew, the son of a sans-Guardian believer, does not even know he exists because he is prevented from any contact with the child for fear of catching a spiritual disease. I think it is too late because anyone who practices this kind of shunning already is suffering from the worst spiritual disease imaginable.

The next in line to be Guardian, Hand of the Cause Nosrat'u'llah Bahremand, when he recognized Joel B. Marangella's Guardianship, was shunned by all of his family and friends. A Continental Councilor held a meeting with his family, including include his wife, children, elderly mother, sisters, brother, niece, nephew and in-laws (all Baha'is) in the absence of the Nosrat. The Councilor accused Nosrat of being a covenant-breaker and instructed all of these relatives to shun him and break-up with him, or otherwise they themselves would be shunned. As instructed, Nosrat's wife immediately separated from him and obtained a divorce. [CORRECTION: Nosrat has corrected this in his recent article. She was forced to separate but did not divorce.] His daughter was instructed to prevent his grand-children, aged 4 and 2, from ever seeing again their grandfather. As a result of this, Nosrat's family was broken apart, he lost the family business and the family home. Nosrat has suffered and continues to suffer deep emotional and financial suffering as a result of the demonic actions of the sans-Guardian organization.

Any clear-thinking and decent person can see that only unmitigated evil is the result of the fanatical mind-control methods of shunning practiced by the sans-Guardian Baha'is. Those of who you are the misled followers of this demonic organization, when you finally come to the horrible realization of what is occurring within your so-called religion, have no choice but to take action. You must take a stand against this evil, and withhold your support from the bogus UHJ and the other leaders of your organization. You are most welcome to join the true Cause of God under the shelter of the Tree of the Covenant by investigating the claims of Joel B. Marangella to the office of the Guardianship and declaring your allegiance and loyalty to the Center of the Covenant.

Jeffrey Goldberg

Posted at 11:48 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

AN APPEAL FROM THE ORTHODOX BAHA'IS OF INDIA TO ALL THE LOVERS OF JUSTICE

In this period of strife, India is privileged to be a light to the world, the Torchbearer of a message of universal brotherhood. Indian culture possesses the capacity for rejuvenation, and can without loss of continuity bring about a spiritual change. Indian people, though somewhat slow-going, have the strength and vitality of youth and so have preserved their basic human instinct for love of the truth. Their instinct reacts infallibly to the impact of realities. They are capable of effecting changes, not by imposition nor by intimidation, but by the process of education, a spiritual refining.

A part of this Indian Culture is the Orthodox Baha'is of India residing in every nook and corner of this country.

The Orthodox Baha'is are indeed cornered about the harassment meted out to our fellow believers in United States due to an imposed court case on them, on the pretext that they have no right to be called as Baha'is. [To see the court documents, click here: http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html]

In India there are a number of Christians, Hindus and the Muslims religious denominations, all calling them Christians, Hindus and Muslims. But this is unprecedented in the history of the Faiths that a Bahai denomination has taken the help of Court to silence the other Bahai denominations.

We, the Orthodox Baha'is, believe that:

Bahaullah was the Prophet founder of the Bahai Faith, He appointed His eldest son Abdul Baha as the Center of his Covenant. Abdul Baha, on His passing appointed His Grandson, Shoghi Effendi, as the first Guardian of the Bahai Faith according to the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha. After the passing of the first Guardian, Charles Mason Remey, referred to by ‘Abdu’l-Baha as His spiritual son and who had been appointed by Shoghi Effendi as the President of the International Bahá’í Council, assumed responsibility as the second Guardian of the Bahá’í Faith. Later on, Charles Mason Remy appointed Joel B. Marangella as the third Guardian of the Bahai Faith, according to the Will and Testament of Abdul Baha which very clearly states that it is incumbent upon Guardian to appoint another Guardian in his life time.

The Orthodox Bahá’í also believes that:

1. The Guardianship is an integral part of the Bahai Faith and that any organization calling itself the Bahá’í Faith without a living Guardian as the "sacred head", is nothing more than a man-made organization, subject to corruption.

2. The State of Guardianship is the supermost thing upon Earth, for the Guardians are God’s lieutenants upon earth. That which concerns the mystery of the Guardian’s power is not lawful to be disputed.

3. The Guardian ought to have no equal in his realm because this would nullify the rule that an equal cannot have authority over his equals. Still less ought he to have a superior or anyone more powerful than he, for he would then be below his own deputies and it is impossible that inferiors should be equal to the Supreme.

4. The Supremacy of the Guardian in spiritual matters is absolute under God. Substantially he is the "AQDAS" in the sense that he can neither be removed nor held responsible and has ultimate authority over the rest of the hierarchy, which his deputies have not. The Guardian has full power to create Hands of the Cause and can do so without any of the customary forms of election.

5. The unique power possessed by the Guardian alone, is, therefore a "divine right". It confers a peculiar superiority, a power of revision and supervision over all other forms of authority whether ecclesiastical or secular. In substance, the Guardian alone is the head of the entire legal system, not, indeed, as a universal executive but as a court of final authority, which functions not in absentia but by presence. It is evident that it is impossible to invest the community or even the Hands of the Cause, with the supreme authority, which is the divine prerogative of the Guardian.

6. The sans-Guardian organization (currently in occupation of Haifa) have repudiated the major provisions of the ‘Divine Charter’ bequeathed by the ‘Architect of the Administrative Order’ by removing the ‘Center of the Cause,’ the ‘expounder of the Word of God’ and the ‘sacred head and the distinguished member for life’ of the Universal House of Justice" i.e., the living Guardian.

We also believe that:

1. Anyone who believes in Bahaullah has a right to be called as a Bahai.

2. We also believe that if the Christians, Hindus Muslims etc wish to call themselves as Bahais, it will be HONOR to us and not CONTEMPT.

3. We Orthodox Bahais in India believe that the matter of Faith cannot be legalized. Every individual is free to follow a set of beliefs and the others should respect his belief and not follow the policy of imposition, intimidation and harassment.

4.We Orthodox Bahais in India feel that American judicial system is being subjected to “PRESSURE TESTING” by the sans-Guardian organization.

Therefore, We, Orthodox Bahais of India, appeal to all “LOVERS OF JUSTICE” all across the globe to condemn the action taken by the sans-Guardian Bahai organization in following the policy of imposition, intimidation and harassment against the true Bahai Faith.

by Provisional National Bahai Council of the Orthodox Baha'is of India

http://www.bahaisorthodox.com/

Posted at 08:45 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

AN APPEAL FROM THE ORTHODOX BAHA'IS OF INDIA TO ALL THE LOVERS OF JUSTICE

In this period of strife, India is privileged to be a light to the world, the Torchbearer of a message of universal brotherhood. Indian culture possesses the capacity for rejuvenation, and can without loss of continuity bring about a spiritual change. Indian people, though somewhat slow-going, have the strength and vitality of youth and so have preserved their basic human instinct for love of the truth. Their instinct reacts infallibly to the impact of realities. They are capable of effecting changes, not by imposition nor by intimidation, but by the process of education, a spiritual refining.

A part of this Indian Culture is the Orthodox Baha'is of India residing in every nook and corner of this country.

The Orthodox Baha'is are indeed cornered about the harassment meted out to our fellow believers in United States due to an imposed court case on them, on the pretext that they have no right to be called as Baha'is. [To see the court documents, click here: http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html]

In India there are a number of Christians, Hindus and the Muslims religious denominations, all calling them Christians, Hindus and Muslims. But this is unprecedented in the history of the Faiths that a Bahai denomination has taken the help of Court to silence the other Bahai denominations.

We, the Orthodox Baha'is, believe that:

Bahaullah was the Prophet founder of the Bahai Faith, He appointed His eldest son Abdul Baha as the Center of his Covenant. Abdul Baha, on His passing appointed His Grandson, Shoghi Effendi, as the first Guardian of the Bahai Faith according to the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha. After the passing of the first Guardian, Charles Mason Remey, referred to by ‘Abdu’l-Baha as His spiritual son and who had been appointed by Shoghi Effendi as the President of the International Bahá’í Council, assumed responsibility as the second Guardian of the Bahá’í Faith. Later on, Charles Mason Remy appointed Joel B. Marangella as the third Guardian of the Bahai Faith, according to the Will and Testament of Abdul Baha which very clearly states that it is incumbent upon Guardian to appoint another Guardian in his life time.

The Orthodox Bahá’í also believes that:

1. The Guardianship is an integral part of the Bahai Faith and that any organization calling itself the Bahá’í Faith without a living Guardian as the "sacred head", is nothing more than a man-made organization, subject to corruption.

2. The State of Guardianship is the supermost thing upon Earth, for the Guardians are God’s lieutenants upon earth. That which concerns the mystery of the Guardian’s power is not lawful to be disputed.

3. The Guardian ought to have no equal in his realm because this would nullify the rule that an equal cannot have authority over his equals. Still less ought he to have a superior or anyone more powerful than he, for he would then be below his own deputies and it is impossible that inferiors should be equal to the Supreme.

4. The Supremacy of the Guardian in spiritual matters is absolute under God. Substantially he is the "AQDAS" in the sense that he can neither be removed nor held responsible and has ultimate authority over the rest of the hierarchy, which his deputies have not. The Guardian has full power to create Hands of the Cause and can do so without any of the customary forms of election.

5. The unique power possessed by the Guardian alone, is, therefore a "divine right". It confers a peculiar superiority, a power of revision and supervision over all other forms of authority whether ecclesiastical or secular. In substance, the Guardian alone is the head of the entire legal system, not, indeed, as a universal executive but as a court of final authority, which functions not in absentia but by presence. It is evident that it is impossible to invest the community or even the Hands of the Cause, with the supreme authority, which is the divine prerogative of the Guardian.

6. The sans-Guardian organization (currently in occupation of Haifa) have repudiated the major provisions of the ‘Divine Charter’ bequeathed by the ‘Architect of the Administrative Order’ by removing the ‘Center of the Cause,’ the ‘expounder of the Word of God’ and the ‘sacred head and the distinguished member for life’ of the Universal House of Justice" i.e., the living Guardian.

We also believe that:

1. Anyone who believes in Bahaullah has a right to be called as a Bahai.

2. We also believe that if the Christians, Hindus Muslims etc wish to call themselves as Bahais, it will be HONOR to us and not CONTEMPT.

3. We Orthodox Bahais in India believe that the matter of Faith cannot be legalized. Every individual is free to follow a set of beliefs and the others should respect his belief and not follow the policy of imposition, intimidation and harassment.

4.We Orthodox Bahais in India feel that American judicial system is being subjected to “PRESSURE TESTING” by the sans-Guardian organization.

Therefore, We, Orthodox Bahais of India, appeal to all “LOVERS OF JUSTICE” all across the globe to condemn the action taken by the sans-Guardian Bahai organization in following the policy of imposition, intimidation and harassment against the true Bahai Faith.

by Provisional National Bahai Council of the Orthodox Baha'is of India

http://www.bahaisorthodox.com/

Posted at 08:45 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Response to Dr Maneck re activation of 2nd International Bahai Council

by Jeffrey Goldberg

Dr. Susan Maneck, an internet mouthpiece for the sans-Guardian Baha'is now occupying Haifa/ Wilmette, on talk.religion.bahai, had this to say to challenge Joel B. Marangella's claim to the Guardianship:

"I'm more interested in the fact that these [court] documents prove that Second International Baha'i Council was in fact never activated for Joel himself admits it was never convened and never met. Yet his claim to Guardianship rests upon the false pretense that it was activated. Somehow that point is being studiously ignored. I'm sure that the Soghomonians will pick up on it eventually. They probably already know this, but having a sworn deposition from Joel himself admitting this to be the case would probably prove valuable."

It is inexplicable why a sans-Guardian Bahai is defending Jacque Sohomonian's claim to the Guardianship. Nevertheless, I will respond to the allegations here.

On the third Guardian's web site is an article entitled MY ACCESSION TO THE GUARDIANSHIP, A SUMMARY OF THE TRUE FACTS, in which he states:

"Not only misinformation, but a deplorable lack of information has been posted on Bahá'í newsgroups, from time to time, questioning the validity of my accession to the Guardianship of the Bahá'í Faith. It has been obvious that those who have posted this information have either never read my Proclamation, under date of 12 November 1969, or have purposely chosen to ignore the facts presented therein for reasons of their own." http://www.bahai-guardian.com/accession.html

Clearly Dr. Maneck's charge is one of the misinformed postings on the newsgroup, but I am glad because it gives me the opportunity to again explain to the internet audience interested in these things about the truth of Joel B. Marangella's claim to the Guardianship of the Baha'i Faith.

The article [at http://www.bahai-guardian.com/accession.html] goes on to explain how Mason Remey appointed Marangella in writing to be the third Guardian of the Faith, and confirmed that appointment by appointing him to be the President of the Second International Baha'i Council, which was the same manner that Shoghi Effendi had used to appoint Remey.

Marangella then explains his reaction when Remey told him to ACTIVATE the Council:

"In 1965 Mason Remey specifically instructed me, to my great surprise, to immediately activate the International Bahá'í Council under my Presidency. I felt certain that the believers who had accepted Mason Remey's Guardianship on the basis of his Presidency of the first International Bahá'í Council, appointed by Shoghi Effendi, would certainly realize that Mason Remey's instructions to activate the second International Bahá'í Council would have caused great consternation and incredulity on my part. For, it was obvious that if the instructions of Mason Remey to activate the Council were carried out implicitly according to his instructions, it would inevitably and automatically result in his abdication of the Guardianship and my accession to the Guardianship, coincident with that activation."

He then goes on to explain how he had attempted to "circumvent" the actual activation of the Council by saying that it would be convened in the future and that Marangella would only assign individual tasks. Marangella did this because he did not want to face the prospect that Remey had abdicated.

Marangella writes:

"However, there was a vital distinction, which I failed to perceive at the time, in my assigning such tasks to individual Council members, and the tasks that Shoghi Effendi had assigned, from time to time, to individual members of the Council that he had appointed, and one that I had been unable to avoid in my assignment of such tasks to members of an activated Council. This distinction lay in the fact that, in the case of the International Bahá'í Council appointed by Shoghi Effendi, it was he who had assigned tasks to individual members during the remaining years of his ministry, and not Mason Remey, who, although being the President of this supreme Council, had never been instructed by Shoghi Effendi during his ministry to convene it as an actively functioning body or had been authorized to assign any tasks to its members. Furthermore, when Shoghi Effendi had assigned individual tasks to Council members he would have undoubtedly transmitted his instructions through the intermediary of his "chosen liaison" with the Council, Rúhíyyih Khánum (as specified in his message of 8 March 1952)."

The Orthdodox Baha'is have never stated that the Second IBC ever convened as a body, or that convening physically as a body was necessary for activation. Indeed the Third IBC is now active, with the third Guardian as its head, even though the body has never physically gathered for a meeting.

An activated body is one that conducts business, with the Guardian as its head. In the case of both the 2nd IBC and the 3rd IBC, it was Marangella who directed the activities of the IBC. They both were activated, conducting business, with the Guardian as its head.

The third Guardian's web site: http://www.bahai-guardian.com/
The third IBC's web site: http://www.bahaisorthodox.com/ibc/

Posted at 09:34 AM in Introductory | Permalink | Comments (0) | TrackBack (0)

True Bahá'í

Response to Dr Maneck re activation of 2nd International Bahai Council

by Jeffrey Goldberg

Dr. Susan Maneck, an internet mouthpiece for the sans-Guardian Baha'is now occupying Haifa/ Wilmette, on talk.religion.bahai, had this to say to challenge Joel B. Marangella's claim to the Guardianship:

"I'm more interested in the fact that these [court] documents prove that Second International Baha'i Council was in fact never activated for Joel himself admits it was never convened and never met. Yet his claim to Guardianship rests upon the false pretense that it was activated. Somehow that point is being studiously ignored. I'm sure that the Soghomonians will pick up on it eventually. They probably already know this, but having a sworn deposition from Joel himself admitting this to be the case would probably prove valuable."

It is inexplicable why a sans-Guardian Bahai is defending Jacque Sohomonian's claim to the Guardianship. Nevertheless, I will respond to the allegations here.

On the third Guardian's web site is an article entitled MY ACCESSION TO THE GUARDIANSHIP, A SUMMARY OF THE TRUE FACTS, in which he states:

"Not only misinformation, but a deplorable lack of information has been posted on Bahá'í newsgroups, from time to time, questioning the validity of my accession to the Guardianship of the Bahá'í Faith. It has been obvious that those who have posted this information have either never read my Proclamation, under date of 12 November 1969, or have purposely chosen to ignore the facts presented therein for reasons of their own." http://www.bahai-guardian.com/accession.html

Clearly Dr. Maneck's charge is one of the misinformed postings on the newsgroup, but I am glad because it gives me the opportunity to again explain to the internet audience interested in these things about the truth of Joel B. Marangella's claim to the Guardianship of the Baha'i Faith.

The article [at http://www.bahai-guardian.com/accession.html] goes on to explain how Mason Remey appointed Marangella in writing to be the third Guardian of the Faith, and confirmed that appointment by appointing him to be the President of the Second International Baha'i Council, which was the same manner that Shoghi Effendi had used to appoint Remey.

Marangella then explains his reaction when Remey told him to ACTIVATE the Council:

"In 1965 Mason Remey specifically instructed me, to my great surprise, to immediately activate the International Bahá'í Council under my Presidency. I felt certain that the believers who had accepted Mason Remey's Guardianship on the basis of his Presidency of the first International Bahá'í Council, appointed by Shoghi Effendi, would certainly realize that Mason Remey's instructions to activate the second International Bahá'í Council would have caused great consternation and incredulity on my part. For, it was obvious that if the instructions of Mason Remey to activate the Council were carried out implicitly according to his instructions, it would inevitably and automatically result in his abdication of the Guardianship and my accession to the Guardianship, coincident with that activation."

He then goes on to explain how he had attempted to "circumvent" the actual activation of the Council by saying that it would be convened in the future and that Marangella would only assign individual tasks. Marangella did this because he did not want to face the prospect that Remey had abdicated.

Marangella writes:

"However, there was a vital distinction, which I failed to perceive at the time, in my assigning such tasks to individual Council members, and the tasks that Shoghi Effendi had assigned, from time to time, to individual members of the Council that he had appointed, and one that I had been unable to avoid in my assignment of such tasks to members of an activated Council. This distinction lay in the fact that, in the case of the International Bahá'í Council appointed by Shoghi Effendi, it was he who had assigned tasks to individual members during the remaining years of his ministry, and not Mason Remey, who, although being the President of this supreme Council, had never been instructed by Shoghi Effendi during his ministry to convene it as an actively functioning body or had been authorized to assign any tasks to its members. Furthermore, when Shoghi Effendi had assigned individual tasks to Council members he would have undoubtedly transmitted his instructions through the intermediary of his "chosen liaison" with the Council, Rúhíyyih Khánum (as specified in his message of 8 March 1952)."

The Orthdodox Baha'is have never stated that the Second IBC ever convened as a body, or that convening physically as a body was necessary for activation. Indeed the Third IBC is now active, with the third Guardian as its head, even though the body has never physically gathered for a meeting.

An activated body is one that conducts business, with the Guardian as its head. In the case of both the 2nd IBC and the 3rd IBC, it was Marangella who directed the activities of the IBC. They both were activated, conducting business, with the Guardian as its head.

The third Guardian's web site: http://www.bahai-guardian.com/
The third IBC's web site: http://www.bahaisorthodox.com/ibc/

Posted at 09:34 AM in Introductory | Permalink | Comments (0) | TrackBack (0)

True Bahá'í

Join the battle against the rulers of the darkness of this world

The battle between the forces of good and evil, the Army of Light and the minions of the dark, rages on in the world and in the hearts and minds of men and women around the globe. It is essential for Baha'is to understand this, and to choose correctly on which side they will fight.

There is a movement in the world by the forces of darkness to consolidate power, and to move power and resources from the weak and vulnerable masses to the strong and powerful elite. The struggle between good and evil, justice and tyranny, decency and depravity, has been going on for countless centuries, but in this day the battle is coming to a head. Now is the time to fight and resist this evil with the more powerful forces of truth and love. There are so few soldiers in this Army of Light so that none of us can afford to be negligent or dilatory in our duty to fight.

Know your enemy! All of us are pawns in this battle that is being waged "against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places." Ephesians 6:12.

How dangerous it is for modern humanity to forget this concept of a higher battle being waged between powers and forces in the spiritual world. To be conscious that this battle is raging on is necessary for us so that we do not fall victim to doing the bidding of the wrong side. Almost all of humanity, the rulers, leaders and politicians, the influential and the elite are well-meaning people and believe they are acting properly. They believe they are doing the right thing under the circumstances, even while they murder and plunder and engage in the darkest behavior imaginable. It is precisely because they have allowed themselves to be ruled by the dark forces, that their behavior is so wrongful even while they believe it is right.

Your life is either ruled by God, or it is not. Either you serve God or you are the plaything of Satan. This is the ultimate question all of us must consider. Our enemy is not our fellow human beings. We must love them and not even consider them our enemies no matter how evil their actions towards us might be. Rather our enemies are the spiritual forces of darkness that rule them. These enemies, the demons, principalities and powers, all must be vigorously and whole-heartedly resisted with the power of God.

The Cause of God is the very Army of Light of which I speak. Every person who considers himself or herself to be a follower of Baha'u'llah must examine whether or not he or she has joined the battle on the side of Light or of darkness. Those of who you who find yourselves serving the headless UHJ now occupying Haifa must relinquish your allegience to that headless monster, the beast of Revelation. Cease your support of its evil opposition to the Guardian of the Cause of God. Question its insistence upon your blind surrender to its authority. Investigate the verities of the Baha'i Revelation. Study the Writings. Become a true Bahai! Come under the guidance and leadership of the Center of the Covenant! Time is short, but it is still not too late to return to the true Cause of God.

"O ye loved ones of God! In this, the Bahá'í dispensation, God's Cause is spirit unalloyed. His Cause belongeth not to the material world. It cometh neither for strife nor war, nor for acts of mischief or of shame; it is neither for quarrelling with other Faiths, nor for conflicts with the nations. Its only army is the love of God, its only joy the clear wine of His knowledge, its only battle the expounding of the Truth; its one crusade is against the insistent self, the evil promptings of the human heart. Its victory is to submit and yield, and to be selfless is its everlasting glory. In brief, it is spirit upon spirit...." Abdu'l-Baha, Selections from the Writings of Abdu'l-Baha, p. 256.

Jeffrey

Posted at 10:46 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Join the battle against the rulers of the darkness of this world

The battle between the forces of good and evil, the Army of Light and the minions of the dark, rages on in the world and in the hearts and minds of men and women around the globe. It is essential for Baha'is to understand this, and to choose correctly on which side they will fight.

There is a movement in the world by the forces of darkness to consolidate power, and to move power and resources from the weak and vulnerable masses to the strong and powerful elite. The struggle between good and evil, justice and tyranny, decency and depravity, has been going on for countless centuries, but in this day the battle is coming to a head. Now is the time to fight and resist this evil with the more powerful forces of truth and love. There are so few soldiers in this Army of Light so that none of us can afford to be negligent or dilatory in our duty to fight.

Know your enemy! All of us are pawns in this battle that is being waged "against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places." Ephesians 6:12.

How dangerous it is for modern humanity to forget this concept of a higher battle being waged between powers and forces in the spiritual world. To be conscious that this battle is raging on is necessary for us so that we do not fall victim to doing the bidding of the wrong side. Almost all of humanity, the rulers, leaders and politicians, the influential and the elite are well-meaning people and believe they are acting properly. They believe they are doing the right thing under the circumstances, even while they murder and plunder and engage in the darkest behavior imaginable. It is precisely because they have allowed themselves to be ruled by the dark forces, that their behavior is so wrongful even while they believe it is right.

Your life is either ruled by God, or it is not. Either you serve God or you are the plaything of Satan. This is the ultimate question all of us must consider. Our enemy is not our fellow human beings. We must love them and not even consider them our enemies no matter how evil their actions towards us might be. Rather our enemies are the spiritual forces of darkness that rule them. These enemies, the demons, principalities and powers, all must be vigorously and whole-heartedly resisted with the power of God.

The Cause of God is the very Army of Light of which I speak. Every person who considers himself or herself to be a follower of Baha'u'llah must examine whether or not he or she has joined the battle on the side of Light or of darkness. Those of who you who find yourselves serving the headless UHJ now occupying Haifa must relinquish your allegience to that headless monster, the beast of Revelation. Cease your support of its evil opposition to the Guardian of the Cause of God. Question its insistence upon your blind surrender to its authority. Investigate the verities of the Baha'i Revelation. Study the Writings. Become a true Bahai! Come under the guidance and leadership of the Center of the Covenant! Time is short, but it is still not too late to return to the true Cause of God.

"O ye loved ones of God! In this, the Bahá'í dispensation, God's Cause is spirit unalloyed. His Cause belongeth not to the material world. It cometh neither for strife nor war, nor for acts of mischief or of shame; it is neither for quarrelling with other Faiths, nor for conflicts with the nations. Its only army is the love of God, its only joy the clear wine of His knowledge, its only battle the expounding of the Truth; its one crusade is against the insistent self, the evil promptings of the human heart. Its victory is to submit and yield, and to be selfless is its everlasting glory. In brief, it is spirit upon spirit...." Abdu'l-Baha, Selections from the Writings of Abdu'l-Baha, p. 256.

Jeffrey

Posted at 10:46 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Join the battle against the rulers of the darkness of this world

The battle between the forces of good and evil, the Army of Light and the minions of the dark, rages on in the world and in the hearts and minds of men and women around the globe. It is essential for Baha'is to understand this, and to choose correctly on which side they will fight.

There is a movement in the world by the forces of darkness to consolidate power, and to move power and resources from the weak and vulnerable masses to the strong and powerful elite. The struggle between good and evil, justice and tyranny, decency and depravity, has been going on for countless centuries, but in this day the battle is coming to a head. Now is the time to fight and resist this evil with the more powerful forces of truth and love. There are so few soldiers in this Army of Light so that none of us can afford to be negligent or dilatory in our duty to fight.

Know your enemy! All of us are pawns in this battle that is being waged "against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places." Ephesians 6:12.

How dangerous it is for modern humanity to forget this concept of a higher battle being waged between powers and forces in the spiritual world. To be conscious that this battle is raging on is necessary for us so that we do not fall victim to doing the bidding of the wrong side. Almost all of humanity, the rulers, leaders and politicians, the influential and the elite are well-meaning people and believe they are acting properly. They believe they are doing the right thing under the circumstances, even while they murder and plunder and engage in the darkest behavior imaginable. It is precisely because they have allowed themselves to be ruled by the dark forces, that their behavior is so wrongful even while they believe it is right.

Your life is either ruled by God, or it is not. Either you serve God or you are the plaything of Satan. This is the ultimate question all of us must consider. Our enemy is not our fellow human beings. We must love them and not even consider them our enemies no matter how evil their actions towards us might be. Rather our enemies are the spiritual forces of darkness that rule them. These enemies, the demons, principalities and powers, all must be vigorously and whole-heartedly resisted with the power of God.

The Cause of God is the very Army of Light of which I speak. Every person who considers himself or herself to be a follower of Baha'u'llah must examine whether or not he or she has joined the battle on the side of Light or of darkness. Those of who you who find yourselves serving the headless UHJ now occupying Haifa must relinquish your allegience to that headless monster, the beast of Revelation. Cease your support of its evil opposition to the Guardian of the Cause of God. Question its insistence upon your blind surrender to its authority. Investigate the verities of the Baha'i Revelation. Study the Writings. Become a true Bahai! Come under the guidance and leadership of the Center of the Covenant! Time is short, but it is still not too late to return to the true Cause of God.

"O ye loved ones of God! In this, the Bahá'í dispensation, God's Cause is spirit unalloyed. His Cause belongeth not to the material world. It cometh neither for strife nor war, nor for acts of mischief or of shame; it is neither for quarrelling with other Faiths, nor for conflicts with the nations. Its only army is the love of God, its only joy the clear wine of His knowledge, its only battle the expounding of the Truth; its one crusade is against the insistent self, the evil promptings of the human heart. Its victory is to submit and yield, and to be selfless is its everlasting glory. In brief, it is spirit upon spirit...." Abdu'l-Baha, Selections from the Writings of Abdu'l-Baha, p. 256.

Jeffrey

Posted at 10:46 PM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Response to Dr Maneck re activation of 2nd International Bahai Council

by Jeffrey Goldberg

Dr. Susan Maneck, an internet mouthpiece for the sans-Guardian Baha'is now occupying Haifa/ Wilmette, on talk.religion.bahai, had this to say to challenge Joel B. Marangella's claim to the Guardianship:

"I'm more interested in the fact that these [court] documents prove that Second International Baha'i Council was in fact never activated for Joel himself admits it was never convened and never met. Yet his claim to Guardianship rests upon the false pretense that it was activated. Somehow that point is being studiously ignored. I'm sure that the Soghomonians will pick up on it eventually. They probably already know this, but having a sworn deposition from Joel himself admitting this to be the case would probably prove valuable."

It is inexplicable why a sans-Guardian Bahai is defending Jacque Sohomonian's claim to the Guardianship. Nevertheless, I will respond to the allegations here.

On the third Guardian's web site is an article entitled MY ACCESSION TO THE GUARDIANSHIP, A SUMMARY OF THE TRUE FACTS, in which he states:

"Not only misinformation, but a deplorable lack of information has been posted on Bahá'í newsgroups, from time to time, questioning the validity of my accession to the Guardianship of the Bahá'í Faith. It has been obvious that those who have posted this information have either never read my Proclamation, under date of 12 November 1969, or have purposely chosen to ignore the facts presented therein for reasons of their own." http://www.bahai-guardian.com/accession.html

Clearly Dr. Maneck's charge is one of the misinformed postings on the newsgroup, but I am glad because it gives me the opportunity to again explain to the internet audience interested in these things about the truth of Joel B. Marangella's claim to the Guardianship of the Baha'i Faith.

The article [at http://www.bahai-guardian.com/accession.html] goes on to explain how Mason Remey appointed Marangella in writing to be the third Guardian of the Faith, and confirmed that appointment by appointing him to be the President of the Second International Baha'i Council, which was the same manner that Shoghi Effendi had used to appoint Remey.

Marangella then explains his reaction when Remey told him to ACTIVATE the Council:

"In 1965 Mason Remey specifically instructed me, to my great surprise, to immediately activate the International Bahá'í Council under my Presidency. I felt certain that the believers who had accepted Mason Remey's Guardianship on the basis of his Presidency of the first International Bahá'í Council, appointed by Shoghi Effendi, would certainly realize that Mason Remey's instructions to activate the second International Bahá'í Council would have caused great consternation and incredulity on my part. For, it was obvious that if the instructions of Mason Remey to activate the Council were carried out implicitly according to his instructions, it would inevitably and automatically result in his abdication of the Guardianship and my accession to the Guardianship, coincident with that activation."

He then goes on to explain how he had attempted to "circumvent" the actual activation of the Council by saying that it would be convened in the future and that Marangella would only assign individual tasks. Marangella did this because he did not want to face the prospect that Remey had abdicated.

Marangella writes:

"However, there was a vital distinction, which I failed to perceive at the time, in my assigning such tasks to individual Council members, and the tasks that Shoghi Effendi had assigned, from time to time, to individual members of the Council that he had appointed, and one that I had been unable to avoid in my assignment of such tasks to members of an activated Council. This distinction lay in the fact that, in the case of the International Bahá'í Council appointed by Shoghi Effendi, it was he who had assigned tasks to individual members during the remaining years of his ministry, and not Mason Remey, who, although being the President of this supreme Council, had never been instructed by Shoghi Effendi during his ministry to convene it as an actively functioning body or had been authorized to assign any tasks to its members. Furthermore, when Shoghi Effendi had assigned individual tasks to Council members he would have undoubtedly transmitted his instructions through the intermediary of his "chosen liaison" with the Council, Rúhíyyih Khánum (as specified in his message of 8 March 1952)."

The Orthdodox Baha'is have never stated that the Second IBC ever convened as a body, or that convening physically as a body was necessary for activation. Indeed the Third IBC is now active, with the third Guardian as its head, even though the body has never physically gathered for a meeting.

An activated body is one that conducts business, with the Guardian as its head. In the case of both the 2nd IBC and the 3rd IBC, it was Marangella who directed the activities of the IBC. They both were activated, conducting business, with the Guardian as its head.

The third Guardian's web site: http://www.bahai-guardian.com/
The third IBC's web site: http://www.bahaisorthodox.com/ibc/

Posted at 09:34 AM in Introductory | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Response to Dr Maneck re activation of 2nd International Bahai Council

by Jeffrey Goldberg

Dr. Susan Maneck, an internet mouthpiece for the sans-Guardian Baha'is now occupying Haifa/ Wilmette, on talk.religion.bahai, had this to say to challenge Joel B. Marangella's claim to the Guardianship:

"I'm more interested in the fact that these [court] documents prove that Second International Baha'i Council was in fact never activated for Joel himself admits it was never convened and never met. Yet his claim to Guardianship rests upon the false pretense that it was activated. Somehow that point is being studiously ignored. I'm sure that the Soghomonians will pick up on it eventually. They probably already know this, but having a sworn deposition from Joel himself admitting this to be the case would probably prove valuable."

It is inexplicable why a sans-Guardian Bahai is defending Jacque Sohomonian's claim to the Guardianship. Nevertheless, I will respond to the allegations here.

On the third Guardian's web site is an article entitled MY ACCESSION TO THE GUARDIANSHIP, A SUMMARY OF THE TRUE FACTS, in which he states:

"Not only misinformation, but a deplorable lack of information has been posted on Bahá'í newsgroups, from time to time, questioning the validity of my accession to the Guardianship of the Bahá'í Faith. It has been obvious that those who have posted this information have either never read my Proclamation, under date of 12 November 1969, or have purposely chosen to ignore the facts presented therein for reasons of their own." http://www.bahai-guardian.com/accession.html

Clearly Dr. Maneck's charge is one of the misinformed postings on the newsgroup, but I am glad because it gives me the opportunity to again explain to the internet audience interested in these things about the truth of Joel B. Marangella's claim to the Guardianship of the Baha'i Faith.

The article [at http://www.bahai-guardian.com/accession.html] goes on to explain how Mason Remey appointed Marangella in writing to be the third Guardian of the Faith, and confirmed that appointment by appointing him to be the President of the Second International Baha'i Council, which was the same manner that Shoghi Effendi had used to appoint Remey.

Marangella then explains his reaction when Remey told him to ACTIVATE the Council:

"In 1965 Mason Remey specifically instructed me, to my great surprise, to immediately activate the International Bahá'í Council under my Presidency. I felt certain that the believers who had accepted Mason Remey's Guardianship on the basis of his Presidency of the first International Bahá'í Council, appointed by Shoghi Effendi, would certainly realize that Mason Remey's instructions to activate the second International Bahá'í Council would have caused great consternation and incredulity on my part. For, it was obvious that if the instructions of Mason Remey to activate the Council were carried out implicitly according to his instructions, it would inevitably and automatically result in his abdication of the Guardianship and my accession to the Guardianship, coincident with that activation."

He then goes on to explain how he had attempted to "circumvent" the actual activation of the Council by saying that it would be convened in the future and that Marangella would only assign individual tasks. Marangella did this because he did not want to face the prospect that Remey had abdicated.

Marangella writes:

"However, there was a vital distinction, which I failed to perceive at the time, in my assigning such tasks to individual Council members, and the tasks that Shoghi Effendi had assigned, from time to time, to individual members of the Council that he had appointed, and one that I had been unable to avoid in my assignment of such tasks to members of an activated Council. This distinction lay in the fact that, in the case of the International Bahá'í Council appointed by Shoghi Effendi, it was he who had assigned tasks to individual members during the remaining years of his ministry, and not Mason Remey, who, although being the President of this supreme Council, had never been instructed by Shoghi Effendi during his ministry to convene it as an actively functioning body or had been authorized to assign any tasks to its members. Furthermore, when Shoghi Effendi had assigned individual tasks to Council members he would have undoubtedly transmitted his instructions through the intermediary of his "chosen liaison" with the Council, Rúhíyyih Khánum (as specified in his message of 8 March 1952)."

The Orthdodox Baha'is have never stated that the Second IBC ever convened as a body, or that convening physically as a body was necessary for activation. Indeed the Third IBC is now active, with the third Guardian as its head, even though the body has never physically gathered for a meeting.

An activated body is one that conducts business, with the Guardian as its head. In the case of both the 2nd IBC and the 3rd IBC, it was Marangella who directed the activities of the IBC. They both were activated, conducting business, with the Guardian as its head.

The third Guardian's web site: http://www.bahai-guardian.com/
The third IBC's web site: http://www.bahaisorthodox.com/ibc/

Posted at 09:34 AM in Introductory | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Those who call themselves Baha'is are blatantly in opposition of the true Faith of God

We read the in the Bible 1 Peter 3:12/14

"For the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open unto their prayers: but the face of the Lord is against them that do evil. And who is he that will harm you, if ye be followers of that which is good? But and if ye suffer for righteousness' sake, happy are ye: and be not afraid of their terror, neither be troubled".

We suffer for being righteous and faithful to the Covenant. There is a price which must be paid and we are not afraid of their terror and we are tough enough.

Eternal life and nearness to God has a price that needs to be paid in this world. You can't pay it in the next world.

Baha'u'llah says:

"Since the affectionate and faithful believers are as the aghsan (branches) and the leaves of this Holy Tree, therefore whatever (hostility and injuries) falls on the Mighty Stock; it will occur to the aghsan (branches), twigs and leaves as well, this is how in every age these tragedies and nuisances have been and will be for the lovers of the Beauty of All-Glorious."
(Al'vah-i-Moba'rakeh, p.343) (Ma'idiy-i-Asmani. Vol 4, p.42)

So we must not be surprised.

Covenant breaking is a spiritual disease, highly contagious and compared by 'Abdu'l-Baha to the physical affliction of leprosy and that is why it has now assumed epidemic proportions in the Baha'i world since the passing of Shoghi Effendi. If we consider that the institutions of the Baha'i Administrative Order had been healthy living organisms during the ministry of the first Guardian, it was only, following his death in 1957, that this deadly infection of violation first attacked the immune system of one of these living organisms of the Faith, i.e. the Hands of the Cause, who in turn infected the other organisms such as Baha'i assemblies and through them the contagion was spread worldwide to most of the believers in the Faith. This infection had spread in this way very quickly throughout the Faith. Only, Shoghi Effendi's appointed successor, the Head of the Faith, "Center of the Cause" and "the sacred and youthful branch, the guardian of the Cause of God" alone remained immune to this infection as he was "under the care and protection of the Abha Beauty".

It was not long, however before some of the institutions and believers who had received a spiritual antitoxin, in the form of the second Guardian's writings, recognized the virulence of this spiritual poison and became impervious to it, with the result that certain Baha'i organs, such as the National Spiritual Assembly of France, the Local Spiritual Assembly of Lucknow, India and some of the faithful believers in United States, Europe, Iran, India and Pakistan became immune to its effect. However the now effected and deformed cells of the immune system of the bogus UHJ in Haifa developed into an apparently incurable big spiritual tumor, which caused this thoroughly diseased body, in turn, to further infect all parts of the body of the Faith and paralyze all sense of understanding and logic on the part of most of the believers. That is how this tragic violation of the Covenant of Baha'u'llah happened. But the good news is that soon the Divine physician will inevitably extract the big tumor described above and its spiritual claws. Then the Faith will become healthy again.

Certainly everybody must take this warning very seriously:

"We have a fixed time for you, O peoples. If ye fail, at the appointed hour, to turn towards God, He, verily, will lay violent hold on you, and will cause grievous afflictions to assail you from every direction. How severe, indeed, is the chastisement with which your Lord will then chastise you!"

(Gleanings from the Writings of Baha'u'llah, p. 214)

Although I personally have no regret for what they have done to me, my regret is to see how many of those who call themselves Baha'is are blatantly in opposition of the true Faith of God.

Meantime I have to correct a misunderstanding. My wife was told that had to separate from me immediately and seek divorce. She immediately separated but she did not ask for a divorce. They put her in a difficult situation where she had to choose between continued association with her daughters and two little angels (our granddaughters) or me, which was a very painful decision for her to make.

Nosrat

Posted at 08:16 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Those who call themselves Baha'is are blatantly in opposition of the true Faith of God

We read the in the Bible 1 Peter 3:12/14

"For the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open unto their prayers: but the face of the Lord is against them that do evil. And who is he that will harm you, if ye be followers of that which is good? But and if ye suffer for righteousness' sake, happy are ye: and be not afraid of their terror, neither be troubled".

We suffer for being righteous and faithful to the Covenant. There is a price which must be paid and we are not afraid of their terror and we are tough enough.

Eternal life and nearness to God has a price that needs to be paid in this world. You can't pay it in the next world.

Baha'u'llah says:

"Since the affectionate and faithful believers are as the aghsan (branches) and the leaves of this Holy Tree, therefore whatever (hostility and injuries) falls on the Mighty Stock; it will occur to the aghsan (branches), twigs and leaves as well, this is how in every age these tragedies and nuisances have been and will be for the lovers of the Beauty of All-Glorious."
(Al'vah-i-Moba'rakeh, p.343) (Ma'idiy-i-Asmani. Vol 4, p.42)

So we must not be surprised.

Covenant breaking is a spiritual disease, highly contagious and compared by 'Abdu'l-Baha to the physical affliction of leprosy and that is why it has now assumed epidemic proportions in the Baha'i world since the passing of Shoghi Effendi. If we consider that the institutions of the Baha'i Administrative Order had been healthy living organisms during the ministry of the first Guardian, it was only, following his death in 1957, that this deadly infection of violation first attacked the immune system of one of these living organisms of the Faith, i.e. the Hands of the Cause, who in turn infected the other organisms such as Baha'i assemblies and through them the contagion was spread worldwide to most of the believers in the Faith. This infection had spread in this way very quickly throughout the Faith. Only, Shoghi Effendi's appointed successor, the Head of the Faith, "Center of the Cause" and "the sacred and youthful branch, the guardian of the Cause of God" alone remained immune to this infection as he was "under the care and protection of the Abha Beauty".

It was not long, however before some of the institutions and believers who had received a spiritual antitoxin, in the form of the second Guardian's writings, recognized the virulence of this spiritual poison and became impervious to it, with the result that certain Baha'i organs, such as the National Spiritual Assembly of France, the Local Spiritual Assembly of Lucknow, India and some of the faithful believers in United States, Europe, Iran, India and Pakistan became immune to its effect. However the now effected and deformed cells of the immune system of the bogus UHJ in Haifa developed into an apparently incurable big spiritual tumor, which caused this thoroughly diseased body, in turn, to further infect all parts of the body of the Faith and paralyze all sense of understanding and logic on the part of most of the believers. That is how this tragic violation of the Covenant of Baha'u'llah happened. But the good news is that soon the Divine physician will inevitably extract the big tumor described above and its spiritual claws. Then the Faith will become healthy again.

Certainly everybody must take this warning very seriously:

"We have a fixed time for you, O peoples. If ye fail, at the appointed hour, to turn towards God, He, verily, will lay violent hold on you, and will cause grievous afflictions to assail you from every direction. How severe, indeed, is the chastisement with which your Lord will then chastise you!"

(Gleanings from the Writings of Baha'u'llah, p. 214)

Although I personally have no regret for what they have done to me, my regret is to see how many of those who call themselves Baha'is are blatantly in opposition of the true Faith of God.

Meantime I have to correct a misunderstanding. My wife was told that had to separate from me immediately and seek divorce. She immediately separated but she did not ask for a divorce. They put her in a difficult situation where she had to choose between continued association with her daughters and two little angels (our granddaughters) or me, which was a very painful decision for her to make.

Nosrat

Posted at 08:16 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Those who call themselves Baha'is are blatantly in opposition of the true Faith of God

We read the in the Bible 1 Peter 3:12/14

"For the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open unto their prayers: but the face of the Lord is against them that do evil. And who is he that will harm you, if ye be followers of that which is good? But and if ye suffer for righteousness' sake, happy are ye: and be not afraid of their terror, neither be troubled".

We suffer for being righteous and faithful to the Covenant. There is a price which must be paid and we are not afraid of their terror and we are tough enough.

Eternal life and nearness to God has a price that needs to be paid in this world. You can't pay it in the next world.

Baha'u'llah says:

"Since the affectionate and faithful believers are as the aghsan (branches) and the leaves of this Holy Tree, therefore whatever (hostility and injuries) falls on the Mighty Stock; it will occur to the aghsan (branches), twigs and leaves as well, this is how in every age these tragedies and nuisances have been and will be for the lovers of the Beauty of All-Glorious."
(Al'vah-i-Moba'rakeh, p.343) (Ma'idiy-i-Asmani. Vol 4, p.42)

So we must not be surprised.

Covenant breaking is a spiritual disease, highly contagious and compared by 'Abdu'l-Baha to the physical affliction of leprosy and that is why it has now assumed epidemic proportions in the Baha'i world since the passing of Shoghi Effendi. If we consider that the institutions of the Baha'i Administrative Order had been healthy living organisms during the ministry of the first Guardian, it was only, following his death in 1957, that this deadly infection of violation first attacked the immune system of one of these living organisms of the Faith, i.e. the Hands of the Cause, who in turn infected the other organisms such as Baha'i assemblies and through them the contagion was spread worldwide to most of the believers in the Faith. This infection had spread in this way very quickly throughout the Faith. Only, Shoghi Effendi's appointed successor, the Head of the Faith, "Center of the Cause" and "the sacred and youthful branch, the guardian of the Cause of God" alone remained immune to this infection as he was "under the care and protection of the Abha Beauty".

It was not long, however before some of the institutions and believers who had received a spiritual antitoxin, in the form of the second Guardian's writings, recognized the virulence of this spiritual poison and became impervious to it, with the result that certain Baha'i organs, such as the National Spiritual Assembly of France, the Local Spiritual Assembly of Lucknow, India and some of the faithful believers in United States, Europe, Iran, India and Pakistan became immune to its effect. However the now effected and deformed cells of the immune system of the bogus UHJ in Haifa developed into an apparently incurable big spiritual tumor, which caused this thoroughly diseased body, in turn, to further infect all parts of the body of the Faith and paralyze all sense of understanding and logic on the part of most of the believers. That is how this tragic violation of the Covenant of Baha'u'llah happened. But the good news is that soon the Divine physician will inevitably extract the big tumor described above and its spiritual claws. Then the Faith will become healthy again.

Certainly everybody must take this warning very seriously:

"We have a fixed time for you, O peoples. If ye fail, at the appointed hour, to turn towards God, He, verily, will lay violent hold on you, and will cause grievous afflictions to assail you from every direction. How severe, indeed, is the chastisement with which your Lord will then chastise you!"

(Gleanings from the Writings of Baha'u'llah, p. 214)

Although I personally have no regret for what they have done to me, my regret is to see how many of those who call themselves Baha'is are blatantly in opposition of the true Faith of God.

Meantime I have to correct a misunderstanding. My wife was told that had to separate from me immediately and seek divorce. She immediately separated but she did not ask for a divorce. They put her in a difficult situation where she had to choose between continued association with her daughters and two little angels (our granddaughters) or me, which was a very painful decision for her to make.

Nosrat

Posted at 08:16 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Those who call themselves Baha'is are blatantly in opposition of the true Faith of God

We read the in the Bible 1 Peter 3:12/14

"For the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open unto their prayers: but the face of the Lord is against them that do evil. And who is he that will harm you, if ye be followers of that which is good? But and if ye suffer for righteousness' sake, happy are ye: and be not afraid of their terror, neither be troubled".

We suffer for being righteous and faithful to the Covenant. There is a price which must be paid and we are not afraid of their terror and we are tough enough.

Eternal life and nearness to God has a price that needs to be paid in this world. You can't pay it in the next world.

Baha'u'llah says:

"Since the affectionate and faithful believers are as the aghsan (branches) and the leaves of this Holy Tree, therefore whatever (hostility and injuries) falls on the Mighty Stock; it will occur to the aghsan (branches), twigs and leaves as well, this is how in every age these tragedies and nuisances have been and will be for the lovers of the Beauty of All-Glorious."
(Al'vah-i-Moba'rakeh, p.343) (Ma'idiy-i-Asmani. Vol 4, p.42)

So we must not be surprised.

Covenant breaking is a spiritual disease, highly contagious and compared by 'Abdu'l-Baha to the physical affliction of leprosy and that is why it has now assumed epidemic proportions in the Baha'i world since the passing of Shoghi Effendi. If we consider that the institutions of the Baha'i Administrative Order had been healthy living organisms during the ministry of the first Guardian, it was only, following his death in 1957, that this deadly infection of violation first attacked the immune system of one of these living organisms of the Faith, i.e. the Hands of the Cause, who in turn infected the other organisms such as Baha'i assemblies and through them the contagion was spread worldwide to most of the believers in the Faith. This infection had spread in this way very quickly throughout the Faith. Only, Shoghi Effendi's appointed successor, the Head of the Faith, "Center of the Cause" and "the sacred and youthful branch, the guardian of the Cause of God" alone remained immune to this infection as he was "under the care and protection of the Abha Beauty".

It was not long, however before some of the institutions and believers who had received a spiritual antitoxin, in the form of the second Guardian's writings, recognized the virulence of this spiritual poison and became impervious to it, with the result that certain Baha'i organs, such as the National Spiritual Assembly of France, the Local Spiritual Assembly of Lucknow, India and some of the faithful believers in United States, Europe, Iran, India and Pakistan became immune to its effect. However the now effected and deformed cells of the immune system of the bogus UHJ in Haifa developed into an apparently incurable big spiritual tumor, which caused this thoroughly diseased body, in turn, to further infect all parts of the body of the Faith and paralyze all sense of understanding and logic on the part of most of the believers. That is how this tragic violation of the Covenant of Baha'u'llah happened. But the good news is that soon the Divine physician will inevitably extract the big tumor described above and its spiritual claws. Then the Faith will become healthy again.

Certainly everybody must take this warning very seriously:

"We have a fixed time for you, O peoples. If ye fail, at the appointed hour, to turn towards God, He, verily, will lay violent hold on you, and will cause grievous afflictions to assail you from every direction. How severe, indeed, is the chastisement with which your Lord will then chastise you!"

(Gleanings from the Writings of Baha'u'llah, p. 214)

Although I personally have no regret for what they have done to me, my regret is to see how many of those who call themselves Baha'is are blatantly in opposition of the true Faith of God.

Meantime I have to correct a misunderstanding. My wife was told that had to separate from me immediately and seek divorce. She immediately separated but she did not ask for a divorce. They put her in a difficult situation where she had to choose between continued association with her daughters and two little angels (our granddaughters) or me, which was a very painful decision for her to make.

Nosrat

Posted at 08:16 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

True Faith vs. Blind Faith

By Megan Kathleen Olsen

Only through true doubt can one achieve true faith. Blind faith is a result of fear and laziness. Blind faith has no power, because it was not achieved through the individual search for knowledge and truth. How can one who has blind faith have true conviction, if they have not received true answers through the asking of their own questions? The only belief a person of blind faith has is a belief in comfort and community.

To achieve true faith, one must surrender to true doubt. Doubt of the certainties of existence. Doubt of all beliefs one has been told by family, friends, church officials, and society. Doubt of one's own perceptions and realities. Only after one has been "cleansed" (if you will) of all rules, laws, beliefs, and agreements which are forced upon every human being from the day they were born, are they free to question without fear, guilt, or shame and find the answers they were meant to find.

A religious establishment like the Heterodox Baha'i Faith [that is, those Baha'is currently occupying Haifa and Wilmette] only has power in numbers. It's a false kind of power. Their "faith" is based on perceived history, sense of community, threat of ex-communication, and blatant lies. They do not have a Universal House of Justice, but a Universal House of Cards. Under the slightest pressure of the truth which will one day present itself to all, their house of cards will crumble.

The Heterodox have attacked us not out of spite but out of fear. For all their power in numbers, they can never defeat the power we have in the truth. We are an indestructible wall built from our consistent defeat over adversity; a wall the Heterodox community will eventually break itself against. We have all come to the Orthodox Baha'i Faith because we have faced true doubt instead of running from it. We have faced that doubt and found truth faith on our own terms. It has brought us a freedom and a power no one can take from us. Not other Baha'is. Not a court of law. Not the world before which we stand and seek to alter forever.

Posted at 11:41 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

True Faith vs. Blind Faith

By Megan Kathleen Olsen

Only through true doubt can one achieve true faith. Blind faith is a result of fear and laziness. Blind faith has no power, because it was not achieved through the individual search for knowledge and truth. How can one who has blind faith have true conviction, if they have not received true answers through the asking of their own questions? The only belief a person of blind faith has is a belief in comfort and community.

To achieve true faith, one must surrender to true doubt. Doubt of the certainties of existence. Doubt of all beliefs one has been told by family, friends, church officials, and society. Doubt of one's own perceptions and realities. Only after one has been "cleansed" (if you will) of all rules, laws, beliefs, and agreements which are forced upon every human being from the day they were born, are they free to question without fear, guilt, or shame and find the answers they were meant to find.

A religious establishment like the Heterodox Baha'i Faith [that is, those Baha'is currently occupying Haifa and Wilmette] only has power in numbers. It's a false kind of power. Their "faith" is based on perceived history, sense of community, threat of ex-communication, and blatant lies. They do not have a Universal House of Justice, but a Universal House of Cards. Under the slightest pressure of the truth which will one day present itself to all, their house of cards will crumble.

The Heterodox have attacked us not out of spite but out of fear. For all their power in numbers, they can never defeat the power we have in the truth. We are an indestructible wall built from our consistent defeat over adversity; a wall the Heterodox community will eventually break itself against. We have all come to the Orthodox Baha'i Faith because we have faced true doubt instead of running from it. We have faced that doubt and found truth faith on our own terms. It has brought us a freedom and a power no one can take from us. Not other Baha'is. Not a court of law. Not the world before which we stand and seek to alter forever.

Posted at 11:41 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

WHO IS A COVENANT BREAKER?

A covenant breaker is a Baha'i who fully understands and grasps the significance of the Covenant and recognizes the Center of the Cause, the Living Guardian, but who rejects and betrays the living Guardian for compelling personal reasons.

The Bahá'í Writings teach that covenant breaking is a spiritual disease and the Writings are replete with warnings about the great harm that will come to the Cause unless Bahá'ís everywhere are vigilant about avoiding them.

But exactly what is a covenant breaker, how does a Bahá'í become one, and what can we do to make sure that we do not fall under their influence?

For a full explanation of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh, read the article What does He want you to do as a community? For a complete discussion of how the Center of the Cause was rejected by most Bahá'ís, read the article on The Great Violation.

It is important to distinguish between persons whom have broken the Covenant and others whom have been merely misled away from the Covenant.

COVENANT BREAKER

A covenant breaker is a Baha'i who fully understands and grasps the significance of the Covenant and recognizes the Center of the Cause, the Living Guardian. However, he knowingly and purposefully betrays the Center of the Cause due to personal and selfish concerns or pursuits. This condition is born of an arrogance that leads the wayward Baha'i into believing that he or she has a better approach than what has been put forth by the Will of God. The covenant breaker believes that he or she knows better or has a compelling personal reason to reject and betray the Center of the Cause.

Covenant breaking is a spiritual disease, highly contagious and compared by 'Abdu'l-Baha to the physical affliction of leprosy and that is why it has now assumed epidemic proportions in the Baha'i world since the passing of Shoghi Effendi. If we consider that the institutions of the Baha'i Administrative Order had been healthy living organisms during the ministry of the first Guardian, it was only, following his death in 1957, that this deadly infection of violation first attacked the immune system of one of these living organisms of the Faith, i.e. the Hands of the Cause, who in turn infected the other organisms such as Baha'i assemblies and through them the contagion was spread worldwide to most of the believers in the Faith. This infection had spread in this way very quickly throughout the Faith. Only, Shoghi Effendi's appointed successor, the Head of the Faith, "Center of the Cause" and "the sacred and youthful branch, the guardian of the Cause of God" alone remained immune to this infection as he was "under the care and protection of the Abha Beauty".

It was not long, however before some of the institutions and believers who had received a spiritual antitoxin, in the form of the second Guardian's writings, recognized the virulence of this spiritual poison and became impervious to it, with the result that certain Baha'i organs, such as the National Spiritual Assembly of France, the Local Spiritual Assembly of Lucknow, India and some of the faithful believers in United States, Europe, Iran, India and Pakistan became immune to its effect. However the now affected and deformed cells of the immune system of the bogus UHJ presently headquartered in Haifa developed into an apparently incurable big spiritual tumor, which caused this thoroughly diseased body, in turn, to further infect all parts of the body of the Faith and paralyze all sense of understanding and logic on the part of most of the believers. That is how this tragic violation of the Covenant of Baha'u'llah happened. But the good news is that soon the Divine physician will inevitably extract the big tumor described above and its spiritual claws. Then the Faith will become healthy again.

Certainly everybody must take this warning very seriously:

"We have a fixed time for you, O peoples. If ye fail, at the appointed hour, to turn towards God, He, verily, will lay violent hold on you, and will cause grievous afflictions to assail you from every direction. How severe, indeed, is the chastisement with which your Lord will then chastise you!"

(Gleanings from the Writings of Baha'u'llah, p. 214)

MISLED BELIEVER

A misled believer, on the other hand, does not have knowledge but comes under the influence of a covenant breaker and blindly accepts whatever he or she has to say. This is not covenant breaking. This condition arises from a shallowness of belief---a lack of faith. These misled and faithless believers must not be shunned. Instead they must be lovingly nurtured and deepened until their faith goes deeper in the Centre of Cause.

WHAT IS FAITHFULNESS TO COVENANT

Faithfulness to the Covenant should be understood as a spiritual process and journey. In order for a Bahá'í to properly take this journey, he or she must deepen in the Writings, become a sincere and independent investigator of Truth, and become a True Seeker. Bahá'u'lláh came to establish the Kingdom of Heaven on earth. If one is to be a true Bahá'í, one must recognize and obey the Guardian. To do this, one must grow spiritually until there is the capacity to see and accept the Center of the Cause. It is not enough to remain on the surface of the Ocean of Bahá'u'lláh's Revelation. He requires a deeper understanding and acceptance of the Faith. The independent investigation of Truth is our spiritual obligation.

TRUE SEEKER

A True Seeker does not have pre-conceived notions of what he or she will accept. The True Seeker knows what Truth is. All else is error and has no meaning or existence. Thus, the True Seeker will go wherever the Truth may lead. When a deaf, dumb, and blind Bahá'í awakens, True Faith is born and the wayward Bahá'í awakens to the truths of the Covenant. In other words, a deepened Bahá'í is a Bahá'í that has recognized the living Guardian of the Faith and obeys him.

There is a community of deepened Bahá'ís who remain completely unkown to the larger group of "blind, deaf, and dumb" Bahá'ís (those who have not yet been enlightened with the truth of the Covenant). Only those believers who remain faithful to the Center of the Cause--- the living Guardian of the Cause-- can be said to be True Baha'is. They understand that God really meant everything uttered from the mouths of Bahá'u'lláh and `Abdu´l-Bahá. They accept that the Bahá'í Revelation is a blueprint for God's Plan for our society. This blueprint must be followed exactly. It is not acceptable to deviate at all from the Plan established by God Himself.

To be True Bahá'ís, it is required that we be fully prepared to render instant, exact, and complete obedience to the Center of the Cause.

When we have become deepened in the Bahá'í Revelation, and we have sincere, unyielding and complete faith in the Truth, we no longer have anything to fear. We have no doubt about our position. There is nobody to convince or convert. We simply stand for the Truth with full knowledge that the Truth will prevail and will be victorious.

Covenant breakers and the misled shallow believers who follow them are not characterized by the peaceful and fearless traits of the True Bahá'ís. Because they have no Faith, they respond with fear and frustration, and the urgent desire to proselytize and convert others to their position. They have great fear that something will go wrong and that the Bahá'í Revelation will come to naught. Since they don't really accept the validity of the Bahá'í Revelation, they have doubts about it. They desire to make changes and to improve it. They want to substitute their own judgment for the Will of God. They attack and fear anybody who challenges their belief system because they are not so sure about it themselves. The more converts they can find, the better they feel that they are on the right course. If they can find leaders to guide them, they can let go of their fear and simply be a follower without question.

All Bahá'ís must come into the Light. It is time for Bahá'ís everywhere to begin their spiritual journey back to the shade of the Tree of the Covenant. Know that God is, and that all of His attributes, such as Love, Knowledge, and Glory, are the only things that really exist. All else is falsehood. Our job is to turn to Bahá'u'lláh, render instant, exact, and complete obedience to the Third Guardian, Joel B. Marangella and allow God's attributes to shine within our souls.

Be assured that the gates are always open for those who learn to understand the lineage of the Covenant as prescribed by Baha'u'llah and 'Abdu'l-Baha, and embrace the current Center of that Covenant, the living Third Guardian, Joel B. Marangella. Those who do so will be welcomed with open arms into the fold of the True Baha'i Faith, the Orthodox Baha'i Faith.

Compiled By

Hand of the Cause Y.H. Taylor

Posted at 08:58 PM in Introductory | Permalink

True Bahá'í

WHO IS A COVENANT BREAKER?

A covenant breaker is a Baha'i who fully understands and grasps the significance of the Covenant and recognizes the Center of the Cause, the Living Guardian, but who rejects and betrays the living Guardian for compelling personal reasons.

The Bahá'í Writings teach that covenant breaking is a spiritual disease and the Writings are replete with warnings about the great harm that will come to the Cause unless Bahá'ís everywhere are vigilant about avoiding them.

But exactly what is a covenant breaker, how does a Bahá'í become one, and what can we do to make sure that we do not fall under their influence?

For a full explanation of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh, read the article What does He want you to do as a community? For a complete discussion of how the Center of the Cause was rejected by most Bahá'ís, read the article on The Great Violation.

It is important to distinguish between persons whom have broken the Covenant and others whom have been merely misled away from the Covenant.

COVENANT BREAKER

A covenant breaker is a Baha'i who fully understands and grasps the significance of the Covenant and recognizes the Center of the Cause, the Living Guardian. However, he knowingly and purposefully betrays the Center of the Cause due to personal and selfish concerns or pursuits. This condition is born of an arrogance that leads the wayward Baha'i into believing that he or she has a better approach than what has been put forth by the Will of God. The covenant breaker believes that he or she knows better or has a compelling personal reason to reject and betray the Center of the Cause.

Covenant breaking is a spiritual disease, highly contagious and compared by 'Abdu'l-Baha to the physical affliction of leprosy and that is why it has now assumed epidemic proportions in the Baha'i world since the passing of Shoghi Effendi. If we consider that the institutions of the Baha'i Administrative Order had been healthy living organisms during the ministry of the first Guardian, it was only, following his death in 1957, that this deadly infection of violation first attacked the immune system of one of these living organisms of the Faith, i.e. the Hands of the Cause, who in turn infected the other organisms such as Baha'i assemblies and through them the contagion was spread worldwide to most of the believers in the Faith. This infection had spread in this way very quickly throughout the Faith. Only, Shoghi Effendi's appointed successor, the Head of the Faith, "Center of the Cause" and "the sacred and youthful branch, the guardian of the Cause of God" alone remained immune to this infection as he was "under the care and protection of the Abha Beauty".

It was not long, however before some of the institutions and believers who had received a spiritual antitoxin, in the form of the second Guardian's writings, recognized the virulence of this spiritual poison and became impervious to it, with the result that certain Baha'i organs, such as the National Spiritual Assembly of France, the Local Spiritual Assembly of Lucknow, India and some of the faithful believers in United States, Europe, Iran, India and Pakistan became immune to its effect. However the now affected and deformed cells of the immune system of the bogus UHJ presently headquartered in Haifa developed into an apparently incurable big spiritual tumor, which caused this thoroughly diseased body, in turn, to further infect all parts of the body of the Faith and paralyze all sense of understanding and logic on the part of most of the believers. That is how this tragic violation of the Covenant of Baha'u'llah happened. But the good news is that soon the Divine physician will inevitably extract the big tumor described above and its spiritual claws. Then the Faith will become healthy again.

Certainly everybody must take this warning very seriously:

"We have a fixed time for you, O peoples. If ye fail, at the appointed hour, to turn towards God, He, verily, will lay violent hold on you, and will cause grievous afflictions to assail you from every direction. How severe, indeed, is the chastisement with which your Lord will then chastise you!"

(Gleanings from the Writings of Baha'u'llah, p. 214)

MISLED BELIEVER

A misled believer, on the other hand, does not have knowledge but comes under the influence of a covenant breaker and blindly accepts whatever he or she has to say. This is not covenant breaking. This condition arises from a shallowness of belief---a lack of faith. These misled and faithless believers must not be shunned. Instead they must be lovingly nurtured and deepened until their faith goes deeper in the Centre of Cause.

WHAT IS FAITHFULNESS TO COVENANT

Faithfulness to the Covenant should be understood as a spiritual process and journey. In order for a Bahá'í to properly take this journey, he or she must deepen in the Writings, become a sincere and independent investigator of Truth, and become a True Seeker. Bahá'u'lláh came to establish the Kingdom of Heaven on earth. If one is to be a true Bahá'í, one must recognize and obey the Guardian. To do this, one must grow spiritually until there is the capacity to see and accept the Center of the Cause. It is not enough to remain on the surface of the Ocean of Bahá'u'lláh's Revelation. He requires a deeper understanding and acceptance of the Faith. The independent investigation of Truth is our spiritual obligation.

TRUE SEEKER

A True Seeker does not have pre-conceived notions of what he or she will accept. The True Seeker knows what Truth is. All else is error and has no meaning or existence. Thus, the True Seeker will go wherever the Truth may lead. When a deaf, dumb, and blind Bahá'í awakens, True Faith is born and the wayward Bahá'í awakens to the truths of the Covenant. In other words, a deepened Bahá'í is a Bahá'í that has recognized the living Guardian of the Faith and obeys him.

There is a community of deepened Bahá'ís who remain completely unkown to the larger group of "blind, deaf, and dumb" Bahá'ís (those who have not yet been enlightened with the truth of the Covenant). Only those believers who remain faithful to the Center of the Cause--- the living Guardian of the Cause-- can be said to be True Baha'is. They understand that God really meant everything uttered from the mouths of Bahá'u'lláh and `Abdu´l-Bahá. They accept that the Bahá'í Revelation is a blueprint for God's Plan for our society. This blueprint must be followed exactly. It is not acceptable to deviate at all from the Plan established by God Himself.

To be True Bahá'ís, it is required that we be fully prepared to render instant, exact, and complete obedience to the Center of the Cause.

When we have become deepened in the Bahá'í Revelation, and we have sincere, unyielding and complete faith in the Truth, we no longer have anything to fear. We have no doubt about our position. There is nobody to convince or convert. We simply stand for the Truth with full knowledge that the Truth will prevail and will be victorious.

Covenant breakers and the misled shallow believers who follow them are not characterized by the peaceful and fearless traits of the True Bahá'ís. Because they have no Faith, they respond with fear and frustration, and the urgent desire to proselytize and convert others to their position. They have great fear that something will go wrong and that the Bahá'í Revelation will come to naught. Since they don't really accept the validity of the Bahá'í Revelation, they have doubts about it. They desire to make changes and to improve it. They want to substitute their own judgment for the Will of God. They attack and fear anybody who challenges their belief system because they are not so sure about it themselves. The more converts they can find, the better they feel that they are on the right course. If they can find leaders to guide them, they can let go of their fear and simply be a follower without question.

All Bahá'ís must come into the Light. It is time for Bahá'ís everywhere to begin their spiritual journey back to the shade of the Tree of the Covenant. Know that God is, and that all of His attributes, such as Love, Knowledge, and Glory, are the only things that really exist. All else is falsehood. Our job is to turn to Bahá'u'lláh, render instant, exact, and complete obedience to the Third Guardian, Joel B. Marangella and allow God's attributes to shine within our souls.

Be assured that the gates are always open for those who learn to understand the lineage of the Covenant as prescribed by Baha'u'llah and 'Abdu'l-Baha, and embrace the current Center of that Covenant, the living Third Guardian, Joel B. Marangella. Those who do so will be welcomed with open arms into the fold of the True Baha'i Faith, the Orthodox Baha'i Faith.

Compiled By

Hand of the Cause Y.H. Taylor

Posted at 08:58 PM in Introductory | Permalink

True Bahá'í

WHO IS A COVENANT BREAKER?

A covenant breaker is a Baha'i who fully understands and grasps the significance of the Covenant and recognizes the Center of the Cause, the Living Guardian, but who rejects and betrays the living Guardian for compelling personal reasons.

The Bahá'í Writings teach that covenant breaking is a spiritual disease and the Writings are replete with warnings about the great harm that will come to the Cause unless Bahá'ís everywhere are vigilant about avoiding them.

But exactly what is a covenant breaker, how does a Bahá'í become one, and what can we do to make sure that we do not fall under their influence?

For a full explanation of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh, read the article What does He want you to do as a community? For a complete discussion of how the Center of the Cause was rejected by most Bahá'ís, read the article on The Great Violation.

It is important to distinguish between persons whom have broken the Covenant and others whom have been merely misled away from the Covenant.

COVENANT BREAKER

A covenant breaker is a Baha'i who fully understands and grasps the significance of the Covenant and recognizes the Center of the Cause, the Living Guardian. However, he knowingly and purposefully betrays the Center of the Cause due to personal and selfish concerns or pursuits. This condition is born of an arrogance that leads the wayward Baha'i into believing that he or she has a better approach than what has been put forth by the Will of God. The covenant breaker believes that he or she knows better or has a compelling personal reason to reject and betray the Center of the Cause.

Covenant breaking is a spiritual disease, highly contagious and compared by 'Abdu'l-Baha to the physical affliction of leprosy and that is why it has now assumed epidemic proportions in the Baha'i world since the passing of Shoghi Effendi. If we consider that the institutions of the Baha'i Administrative Order had been healthy living organisms during the ministry of the first Guardian, it was only, following his death in 1957, that this deadly infection of violation first attacked the immune system of one of these living organisms of the Faith, i.e. the Hands of the Cause, who in turn infected the other organisms such as Baha'i assemblies and through them the contagion was spread worldwide to most of the believers in the Faith. This infection had spread in this way very quickly throughout the Faith. Only, Shoghi Effendi's appointed successor, the Head of the Faith, "Center of the Cause" and "the sacred and youthful branch, the guardian of the Cause of God" alone remained immune to this infection as he was "under the care and protection of the Abha Beauty".

It was not long, however before some of the institutions and believers who had received a spiritual antitoxin, in the form of the second Guardian's writings, recognized the virulence of this spiritual poison and became impervious to it, with the result that certain Baha'i organs, such as the National Spiritual Assembly of France, the Local Spiritual Assembly of Lucknow, India and some of the faithful believers in United States, Europe, Iran, India and Pakistan became immune to its effect. However the now affected and deformed cells of the immune system of the bogus UHJ presently headquartered in Haifa developed into an apparently incurable big spiritual tumor, which caused this thoroughly diseased body, in turn, to further infect all parts of the body of the Faith and paralyze all sense of understanding and logic on the part of most of the believers. That is how this tragic violation of the Covenant of Baha'u'llah happened. But the good news is that soon the Divine physician will inevitably extract the big tumor described above and its spiritual claws. Then the Faith will become healthy again.

Certainly everybody must take this warning very seriously:

"We have a fixed time for you, O peoples. If ye fail, at the appointed hour, to turn towards God, He, verily, will lay violent hold on you, and will cause grievous afflictions to assail you from every direction. How severe, indeed, is the chastisement with which your Lord will then chastise you!"

(Gleanings from the Writings of Baha'u'llah, p. 214)

MISLED BELIEVER

A misled believer, on the other hand, does not have knowledge but comes under the influence of a covenant breaker and blindly accepts whatever he or she has to say. This is not covenant breaking. This condition arises from a shallowness of belief---a lack of faith. These misled and faithless believers must not be shunned. Instead they must be lovingly nurtured and deepened until their faith goes deeper in the Centre of Cause.

WHAT IS FAITHFULNESS TO COVENANT

Faithfulness to the Covenant should be understood as a spiritual process and journey. In order for a Bahá'í to properly take this journey, he or she must deepen in the Writings, become a sincere and independent investigator of Truth, and become a True Seeker. Bahá'u'lláh came to establish the Kingdom of Heaven on earth. If one is to be a true Bahá'í, one must recognize and obey the Guardian. To do this, one must grow spiritually until there is the capacity to see and accept the Center of the Cause. It is not enough to remain on the surface of the Ocean of Bahá'u'lláh's Revelation. He requires a deeper understanding and acceptance of the Faith. The independent investigation of Truth is our spiritual obligation.

TRUE SEEKER

A True Seeker does not have pre-conceived notions of what he or she will accept. The True Seeker knows what Truth is. All else is error and has no meaning or existence. Thus, the True Seeker will go wherever the Truth may lead. When a deaf, dumb, and blind Bahá'í awakens, True Faith is born and the wayward Bahá'í awakens to the truths of the Covenant. In other words, a deepened Bahá'í is a Bahá'í that has recognized the living Guardian of the Faith and obeys him.

There is a community of deepened Bahá'ís who remain completely unkown to the larger group of "blind, deaf, and dumb" Bahá'ís (those who have not yet been enlightened with the truth of the Covenant). Only those believers who remain faithful to the Center of the Cause--- the living Guardian of the Cause-- can be said to be True Baha'is. They understand that God really meant everything uttered from the mouths of Bahá'u'lláh and `Abdu´l-Bahá. They accept that the Bahá'í Revelation is a blueprint for God's Plan for our society. This blueprint must be followed exactly. It is not acceptable to deviate at all from the Plan established by God Himself.

To be True Bahá'ís, it is required that we be fully prepared to render instant, exact, and complete obedience to the Center of the Cause.

When we have become deepened in the Bahá'í Revelation, and we have sincere, unyielding and complete faith in the Truth, we no longer have anything to fear. We have no doubt about our position. There is nobody to convince or convert. We simply stand for the Truth with full knowledge that the Truth will prevail and will be victorious.

Covenant breakers and the misled shallow believers who follow them are not characterized by the peaceful and fearless traits of the True Bahá'ís. Because they have no Faith, they respond with fear and frustration, and the urgent desire to proselytize and convert others to their position. They have great fear that something will go wrong and that the Bahá'í Revelation will come to naught. Since they don't really accept the validity of the Bahá'í Revelation, they have doubts about it. They desire to make changes and to improve it. They want to substitute their own judgment for the Will of God. They attack and fear anybody who challenges their belief system because they are not so sure about it themselves. The more converts they can find, the better they feel that they are on the right course. If they can find leaders to guide them, they can let go of their fear and simply be a follower without question.

All Bahá'ís must come into the Light. It is time for Bahá'ís everywhere to begin their spiritual journey back to the shade of the Tree of the Covenant. Know that God is, and that all of His attributes, such as Love, Knowledge, and Glory, are the only things that really exist. All else is falsehood. Our job is to turn to Bahá'u'lláh, render instant, exact, and complete obedience to the Third Guardian, Joel B. Marangella and allow God's attributes to shine within our souls.

Be assured that the gates are always open for those who learn to understand the lineage of the Covenant as prescribed by Baha'u'llah and 'Abdu'l-Baha, and embrace the current Center of that Covenant, the living Third Guardian, Joel B. Marangella. Those who do so will be welcomed with open arms into the fold of the True Baha'i Faith, the Orthodox Baha'i Faith.

Compiled By

Hand of the Cause Y.H. Taylor

Posted at 08:58 PM in Introductory | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Court case update

This is an update on the court case. As you may know, the sans-Guardian National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is for the United States has filed a contempt motion against the Orthodox Baha'i Faith (and also a Baha'i denomination that follows Neal Chase as the Guardian). The motion seeks to enforce a Judgment against the OBF that had been entered in 1966 against the NSA of Charles Mason Remey's organization. That Judgment prohibits the use of the word "Baha'i" and the Greatest Name symbols, among other things, stating that such use infringes upon the NSA's trademark.

After considering the submissions of the parties, the Court has scheduled an evidentiary hearing for January 7, 2008 on the question of whether the OBF (and the Chase organization) are in "privity" with the Remey NSA and therefore bound by the Judgment.

All of the pertinent court documents are available here:
http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html

We have recently added various trial documents such as the exhibit lists, witness lists, and proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law of the OBF and NSA.

There is a status hearing on December 17, 2007 in Chicago.

Jeffrey

Posted at 10:54 AM in Court Action | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The guardianship of the UHJ

In a recent posting on the newsgroup talk.religion.bahai, a lost and confused sans-Guardian Bahai spoke out as follows:

"For six millions and half baha'is, the covenant is under the guardianship of the universal house of justice in mount Carmel in Haifa"

In a rare admission, this Bahai has stated publicly and openly that the so-called UHJ presently sitting in Haifa has assumed the "guardianship" of the Bahai Faith. I already knew this to be true, but was waiting for one of them to admit it.

Although they will rarely admit it, the sans-Guardian Baha'is long ago adopted the notion of a collective guardianship to be assumed by a body of believers. Shortly after the death of Shoghi Effendi, the first Guardian, the Hands of the Cause made the decision that the Guardianship was "badah", that God had changed His mind and that there would no longer be living Guardians in office. They then vested in an Institution of their own making (the "Custodian" Hands) "all such functions, rights and powers in succession to the Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith." In other words, a group of Hands that would serve as a collective Guardianship. This coup or usurpation of power and authority in the Faith occurred on November 25, 1957.

Make no mistake about it, they knew they were taking over the authority of the Guardian. They went on to take actions that only a Guardian had been empowered to do: to demand loyalty oaths from all of the National Spiritual Assemblies, to dissolve the French NSA after it recognized the claim by Charles Mason Remey to be the second Guardian, and to ex-communicate the second Guardian and those who were obedient to him. They threatened and cajoled and led the Bahai community until they could create their own Hand-made and headless so-called Universal House of Justice. After creation of their UHJ, on June 7, 1963, they then expressly released in writing those same functions, rights and powers:

"[W]e hereby release all the said functions, rights and powers which were conferred upon us under the said Declaration of November 25th, 1957 as determined by the Universal House of Justice in its communication of June 7th, 1963, and we declare that all the said functions, rights and powers now devolve rightfully and in full accordance with the Sacred Writings of the Bahá'í Faith upon the Universal House of Justice. We make this statement for the full body of the Hands of the Cause of God in accordance with the powers conferred upon us by the Declaration of November 25th, 1957, and the office of Custodians of the Bahá'í World Faith has thus ceased to exist."

From then on and to this day, the collective Guardianship usurped by the Hands was assumed by the UHJ. The fact that nothing in the Writings of the Faith calls for a collective Guardianship, or that devolves the rights and powers of the Guardian to the UHJ under any circumstances, is completely ignored by our confused sans-Guardian believer. He has the audacity, through the cloud of ignorance and confusion that surrounds him, to condemn the Orthodox Baha'is because of their belief that the Guardianship is occupied by a living man.

This is VIOLATION: the irrational belief that he is following the true teachings notwithstanding the fact that the teachings clearly state otherwise.

This is VIOLATION: to oppose and to disobey the Guardian of the Cause.

The Guardian today is Joel B. Marangella. His website is at the following address:
http://www.bahai-guardian.com/

Jeffrey

Posted at 12:02 AM | Permalink | Comments (0) | TrackBack (0)

True Bahá'í

The guardianship of the UHJ

In a recent posting on the newsgroup talk.religion.bahai, a lost and confused sans-Guardian Bahai spoke out as follows:

"For six millions and half baha'is, the covenant is under the guardianship of the universal house of justice in mount Carmel in Haifa"

In a rare admission, this Bahai has stated publicly and openly that the so-called UHJ presently sitting in Haifa has assumed the "guardianship" of the Bahai Faith. I already knew this to be true, but was waiting for one of them to admit it.

Although they will rarely admit it, the sans-Guardian Baha'is long ago adopted the notion of a collective guardianship to be assumed by a body of believers. Shortly after the death of Shoghi Effendi, the first Guardian, the Hands of the Cause made the decision that the Guardianship was "badah", that God had changed His mind and that there would no longer be living Guardians in office. They then vested in an Institution of their own making (the "Custodian" Hands) "all such functions, rights and powers in succession to the Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith." In other words, a group of Hands that would serve as a collective Guardianship. This coup or usurpation of power and authority in the Faith occurred on November 25, 1957.

Make no mistake about it, they knew they were taking over the authority of the Guardian. They went on to take actions that only a Guardian had been empowered to do: to demand loyalty oaths from all of the National Spiritual Assemblies, to dissolve the French NSA after it recognized the claim by Charles Mason Remey to be the second Guardian, and to ex-communicate the second Guardian and those who were obedient to him. They threatened and cajoled and led the Bahai community until they could create their own Hand-made and headless so-called Universal House of Justice. After creation of their UHJ, on June 7, 1963, they then expressly released in writing those same functions, rights and powers:

"[W]e hereby release all the said functions, rights and powers which were conferred upon us under the said Declaration of November 25th, 1957 as determined by the Universal House of Justice in its communication of June 7th, 1963, and we declare that all the said functions, rights and powers now devolve rightfully and in full accordance with the Sacred Writings of the Bahá'í Faith upon the Universal House of Justice. We make this statement for the full body of the Hands of the Cause of God in accordance with the powers conferred upon us by the Declaration of November 25th, 1957, and the office of Custodians of the Bahá'í World Faith has thus ceased to exist."

From then on and to this day, the collective Guardianship usurped by the Hands was assumed by the UHJ. The fact that nothing in the Writings of the Faith calls for a collective Guardianship, or that devolves the rights and powers of the Guardian to the UHJ under any circumstances, is completely ignored by our confused sans-Guardian believer. He has the audacity, through the cloud of ignorance and confusion that surrounds him, to condemn the Orthodox Baha'is because of their belief that the Guardianship is occupied by a living man.

This is VIOLATION: the irrational belief that he is following the true teachings notwithstanding the fact that the teachings clearly state otherwise.

This is VIOLATION: to oppose and to disobey the Guardian of the Cause.

The Guardian today is Joel B. Marangella. His website is at the following address:
http://www.bahai-guardian.com/

Jeffrey

Posted at 12:02 AM | Permalink | Comments (0) | TrackBack (0)

True Bahá'í

The guardianship of the UHJ

In a recent posting on the newsgroup talk.religion.bahai, a lost and confused sans-Guardian Bahai spoke out as follows:

"For six millions and half baha'is, the covenant is under the guardianship of the universal house of justice in mount Carmel in Haifa"

In a rare admission, this Bahai has stated publicly and openly that the so-called UHJ presently sitting in Haifa has assumed the "guardianship" of the Bahai Faith. I already knew this to be true, but was waiting for one of them to admit it.

Although they will rarely admit it, the sans-Guardian Baha'is long ago adopted the notion of a collective guardianship to be assumed by a body of believers. Shortly after the death of Shoghi Effendi, the first Guardian, the Hands of the Cause made the decision that the Guardianship was "badah", that God had changed His mind and that there would no longer be living Guardians in office. They then vested in an Institution of their own making (the "Custodian" Hands) "all such functions, rights and powers in succession to the Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith." In other words, a group of Hands that would serve as a collective Guardianship. This coup or usurpation of power and authority in the Faith occurred on November 25, 1957.

Make no mistake about it, they knew they were taking over the authority of the Guardian. They went on to take actions that only a Guardian had been empowered to do: to demand loyalty oaths from all of the National Spiritual Assemblies, to dissolve the French NSA after it recognized the claim by Charles Mason Remey to be the second Guardian, and to ex-communicate the second Guardian and those who were obedient to him. They threatened and cajoled and led the Bahai community until they could create their own Hand-made and headless so-called Universal House of Justice. After creation of their UHJ, on June 7, 1963, they then expressly released in writing those same functions, rights and powers:

"[W]e hereby release all the said functions, rights and powers which were conferred upon us under the said Declaration of November 25th, 1957 as determined by the Universal House of Justice in its communication of June 7th, 1963, and we declare that all the said functions, rights and powers now devolve rightfully and in full accordance with the Sacred Writings of the Bahá'í Faith upon the Universal House of Justice. We make this statement for the full body of the Hands of the Cause of God in accordance with the powers conferred upon us by the Declaration of November 25th, 1957, and the office of Custodians of the Bahá'í World Faith has thus ceased to exist."

From then on and to this day, the collective Guardianship usurped by the Hands was assumed by the UHJ. The fact that nothing in the Writings of the Faith calls for a collective Guardianship, or that devolves the rights and powers of the Guardian to the UHJ under any circumstances, is completely ignored by our confused sans-Guardian believer. He has the audacity, through the cloud of ignorance and confusion that surrounds him, to condemn the Orthodox Baha'is because of their belief that the Guardianship is occupied by a living man.

This is VIOLATION: the irrational belief that he is following the true teachings notwithstanding the fact that the teachings clearly state otherwise.

This is VIOLATION: to oppose and to disobey the Guardian of the Cause.

The Guardian today is Joel B. Marangella. His website is at the following address:
http://www.bahai-guardian.com/

Jeffrey

Posted at 12:02 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The guardianship of the UHJ

In a recent posting on the newsgroup talk.religion.bahai, a lost and confused sans-Guardian Bahai spoke out as follows:

"For six millions and half baha'is, the covenant is under the guardianship of the universal house of justice in mount Carmel in Haifa"

In a rare admission, this Bahai has stated publicly and openly that the so-called UHJ presently sitting in Haifa has assumed the "guardianship" of the Bahai Faith. I already knew this to be true, but was waiting for one of them to admit it.

Although they will rarely admit it, the sans-Guardian Baha'is long ago adopted the notion of a collective guardianship to be assumed by a body of believers. Shortly after the death of Shoghi Effendi, the first Guardian, the Hands of the Cause made the decision that the Guardianship was "badah", that God had changed His mind and that there would no longer be living Guardians in office. They then vested in an Institution of their own making (the "Custodian" Hands) "all such functions, rights and powers in succession to the Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith." In other words, a group of Hands that would serve as a collective Guardianship. This coup or usurpation of power and authority in the Faith occurred on November 25, 1957.

Make no mistake about it, they knew they were taking over the authority of the Guardian. They went on to take actions that only a Guardian had been empowered to do: to demand loyalty oaths from all of the National Spiritual Assemblies, to dissolve the French NSA after it recognized the claim by Charles Mason Remey to be the second Guardian, and to ex-communicate the second Guardian and those who were obedient to him. They threatened and cajoled and led the Bahai community until they could create their own Hand-made and headless so-called Universal House of Justice. After creation of their UHJ, on June 7, 1963, they then expressly released in writing those same functions, rights and powers:

"[W]e hereby release all the said functions, rights and powers which were conferred upon us under the said Declaration of November 25th, 1957 as determined by the Universal House of Justice in its communication of June 7th, 1963, and we declare that all the said functions, rights and powers now devolve rightfully and in full accordance with the Sacred Writings of the Bahá'í Faith upon the Universal House of Justice. We make this statement for the full body of the Hands of the Cause of God in accordance with the powers conferred upon us by the Declaration of November 25th, 1957, and the office of Custodians of the Bahá'í World Faith has thus ceased to exist."

From then on and to this day, the collective Guardianship usurped by the Hands was assumed by the UHJ. The fact that nothing in the Writings of the Faith calls for a collective Guardianship, or that devolves the rights and powers of the Guardian to the UHJ under any circumstances, is completely ignored by our confused sans-Guardian believer. He has the audacity, through the cloud of ignorance and confusion that surrounds him, to condemn the Orthodox Baha'is because of their belief that the Guardianship is occupied by a living man.

This is VIOLATION: the irrational belief that he is following the true teachings notwithstanding the fact that the teachings clearly state otherwise.

This is VIOLATION: to oppose and to disobey the Guardian of the Cause.

The Guardian today is Joel B. Marangella. His website is at the following address:
http://www.bahai-guardian.com/

Jeffrey

Posted at 12:02 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

As ye have faith so shall your powers and blessings be (1)

One of the questions the Orthodox Baha'is have been discussing lately is the power and efficacy of prayer and supplication. In light of the pending court action by the sans-Guardian Bahais against the Orthodox Bahá'ís, it raises the spectacle of Orthodox Bahá'ís praying for victory while the sans-Guardian Bahais presumably are also supplicating Baha'u'llah for victory. It certainly cannot be that the prayers of either side would persuade God to take one side or another in the court action. Certainly God knows where He stands without us telling Him what to do or believe.

Since God already knows what we and others need, what is the purpose of supplicating to Him to fufill those needs?

This question was posed to `Abdu'l-Bahá and both the question and His answer was published in Dr. J.E. Esslemont's Bahá'u'lláh and the New Era, at pp. 92-93:

"Another correspondent asked: 'Why pray? What is the wisdom thereof, for God has established everything and executes all affairs after the best order -- therefore, what is the wisdom in beseeching and supplicating and in stating one's wants and seeking help?'

"'Abdu'l-Bahá replied: --

"Know thou, verily it is becoming in a weak one to supplicate to the Strong One, and it behooveth a seeker of bounty to beseech the Glorious Bountiful One. When one supplicates to his Lord, turns to Him and seeks bounty from His Ocean, this supplication brings light to his heart, illumination to his sight, life to his soul and exaltation to his being. During thy supplications to God and thy reciting, "Thy Name is my healing," consider how thine heart is cheered, thy soul delighted by the spirit of the love of God, and thy mind attracted to the Kingdom of God! By these attractions one's ability and capacity increase. When the vessel is enlarged the water increases, and when the thirst grows the bounty of the cloud becomes agreeable to the taste of man. This is the mystery of supplication and the wisdom of stating one's wants. (from a tablet to an American believer, translated by Ali Kuli Khan, October 1908)."

Supplication is not a process whereby we convince God to give us help. It is God's nature to give us what we need without our asking. Supplication does not operate on God, it operates on the person who is supplicating. It is the process by which we prepare ourselves to accept His gifts. To have humble faith.

By supplicating, we come to understand the error of relying upon ourselves for any of our needs, and instead we humbly turn in total reliance upon God:

"O thou who art turning thy face towards God! Close thine eyes to all things else, and open them to the realm of the All-Glorious. Ask whatsoever thou wishest of Him alone; seek whatsoever thou seekest from Him alone. With a look He granteth a hundred thousand hopes, with a glance He healeth a hundred thousand incurable ills, with a nod He layeth balm on every wound, with a glimpse He freeth the hearts from the shackles of grief. He doeth as He doeth, and what recourse have we? He carrieth out His Will, He ordaineth what He pleaseth. Then better for thee to bow down thy head in submission, and put thy trust in the All-Merciful Lord." Selections from the Writings of `Abdu'l-Bahá, p. 51.

God does not answer the prayer of one person, and not others. The reason why some prayers are answered and some are not, is that the persons praying in faith become capable of receiving the gifts that God freely bestows upon them. Those who refuse God's help, confused with doubt and fear, block themselves from receiving the good they are entitled to receive. We have a choice whether to accept God's blessings, in total reliance upon Him, or to turn away from Him and to take on life's challenge on one's own. By praying and supplicating, we choose reliance upon God. This faith gives us the capacity to accept God's bestowals.

Jeffrey

(1) As ye have faith so shall your powers and blessings be, Abdu'l-Baha, quoted in Star of the West, Volume 12, No. 16, page 250

Posted at 10:27 PM in Introductory | Permalink

True Bahá'í

As ye have faith so shall your powers and blessings be (1)

One of the questions the Orthodox Baha'is have been discussing lately is the power and efficacy of prayer and supplication. In light of the pending court action by the sans-Guardian Bahais against the Orthodox Bahá'ís, it raises the spectacle of Orthodox Bahá'ís praying for victory while the sans-Guardian Bahais presumably are also supplicating Baha'u'llah for victory. It certainly cannot be that the prayers of either side would persuade God to take one side or another in the court action. Certainly God knows where He stands without us telling Him what to do or believe.

Since God already knows what we and others need, what is the purpose of supplicating to Him to fufill those needs?

This question was posed to `Abdu'l-Bahá and both the question and His answer was published in Dr. J.E. Esslemont's Bahá'u'lláh and the New Era, at pp. 92-93:

"Another correspondent asked: 'Why pray? What is the wisdom thereof, for God has established everything and executes all affairs after the best order -- therefore, what is the wisdom in beseeching and supplicating and in stating one's wants and seeking help?'

"'Abdu'l-Bahá replied: --

"Know thou, verily it is becoming in a weak one to supplicate to the Strong One, and it behooveth a seeker of bounty to beseech the Glorious Bountiful One. When one supplicates to his Lord, turns to Him and seeks bounty from His Ocean, this supplication brings light to his heart, illumination to his sight, life to his soul and exaltation to his being. During thy supplications to God and thy reciting, "Thy Name is my healing," consider how thine heart is cheered, thy soul delighted by the spirit of the love of God, and thy mind attracted to the Kingdom of God! By these attractions one's ability and capacity increase. When the vessel is enlarged the water increases, and when the thirst grows the bounty of the cloud becomes agreeable to the taste of man. This is the mystery of supplication and the wisdom of stating one's wants. (from a tablet to an American believer, translated by Ali Kuli Khan, October 1908)."

Supplication is not a process whereby we convince God to give us help. It is God's nature to give us what we need without our asking. Supplication does not operate on God, it operates on the person who is supplicating. It is the process by which we prepare ourselves to accept His gifts. To have humble faith.

By supplicating, we come to understand the error of relying upon ourselves for any of our needs, and instead we humbly turn in total reliance upon God:

"O thou who art turning thy face towards God! Close thine eyes to all things else, and open them to the realm of the All-Glorious. Ask whatsoever thou wishest of Him alone; seek whatsoever thou seekest from Him alone. With a look He granteth a hundred thousand hopes, with a glance He healeth a hundred thousand incurable ills, with a nod He layeth balm on every wound, with a glimpse He freeth the hearts from the shackles of grief. He doeth as He doeth, and what recourse have we? He carrieth out His Will, He ordaineth what He pleaseth. Then better for thee to bow down thy head in submission, and put thy trust in the All-Merciful Lord." Selections from the Writings of `Abdu'l-Bahá, p. 51.

God does not answer the prayer of one person, and not others. The reason why some prayers are answered and some are not, is that the persons praying in faith become capable of receiving the gifts that God freely bestows upon them. Those who refuse God's help, confused with doubt and fear, block themselves from receiving the good they are entitled to receive. We have a choice whether to accept God's blessings, in total reliance upon Him, or to turn away from Him and to take on life's challenge on one's own. By praying and supplicating, we choose reliance upon God. This faith gives us the capacity to accept God's bestowals.

Jeffrey

(1) As ye have faith so shall your powers and blessings be, Abdu'l-Baha, quoted in Star of the West, Volume 12, No. 16, page 250

Posted at 10:27 PM in Introductory | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Courtroom art images of OBF hearing

This is to announce the release of images of the January 7, 2008 hearing in Chicago on privity created by a courtroom artist.

Click here to see the photo album:
http://trueseeker.typepad.com/photos/trial/index.html

Jeffrey

Posted at 11:20 AM in Court Action | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Courtroom art images of OBF hearing

This is to announce the release of images of the January 7, 2008 hearing in Chicago on privity created by a courtroom artist.

Click here to see the photo album:
http://trueseeker.typepad.com/photos/trial/index.html

Jeffrey

Posted at 11:20 AM in Court Action | Permalink | Comments (0) | TrackBack (0)

True Bahá'í

Courtroom art images of OBF hearing

This is to announce the release of images of the January 7, 2008 hearing in Chicago on privity created by a courtroom artist.

Click here to see the photo album:
http://trueseeker.typepad.com/photos/trial/index.html

Jeffrey

Posted at 11:20 AM in Court Action | Permalink | Comments (0) | TrackBack (0)

True Bahá'í

Orthodox Baha'is among those to testify at hearing on NSA's contempt motion

The Honorable Amy J. St. Eve, Judge of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, presided over the hearing, on January 7, 2008, to take evidence on the question of whether Orthodox Baha'i Faith Respondents Joel B. Marangella (the present Guardian of the Cause of God), Frank D. Schlatter, and the Provisional National Baha'i Council of the United States, and also the organization established by Dr. Leland Jensen that recognizes Neal Chase as the Guardian, are legally in "privity" with the defunct National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the United States Under the Hereditary Guardianship ("NSAUHG") the the national organization that once presided over the followers of Charles Mason Remey. The Court held the hearing in order to determine factual issues related to the sans-Guardian NSA's motion for contempt of the 1966 Judgment that was entered against the NSAUHG.

The City of Chicago racked up record high temperatures for that normally cold and snowy time of year, with temperatures in the mid 50's. Perhaps this was the result of the prayers of the Orthodox Baha'is who were forced to leave a moderate climate in New Mexico in the beginning of January, in order to defend their right to use word "Baha'i" in their names and on their websites, in a far away courthouse situated in a considerably colder climate.

After the attorneys for the parties gave their opening argument, the witnesses testified under questioning by attorneys for each party. The first witness was Dr. Robert Henderson, the former Secretary of the NSA. Next was Frank Schlatter and then Marilyn Meyer of the Orthodox Bahai Faith. Finally, Neal Chase faced questions about his organization's relationship, if any, with the NSAUHG. The parties also submitted designations of transcript deposition testimony for the witnesses who were not present. All parties also submitted document exhibits into evidence.

The Court has set a briefing schedule for post-trial submissions (in lieu of a closing argument). The NSA is to file its brief on January 14, 2008. Responses are due January 22, and the NSA's reply is due January 28, 2008. Due to a delay in receiving the hearing transcript, those deadlines are expected to be moved back.

After the submissions have been provided to the Court, it will rule on the pending contempt motion by written order. There is no way to determine when the Court will issue its decision.

Jeffrey

CLICK HERE FOR COURT DOCUMENTS

Posted at 05:04 PM in Court Action | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Orthodox Baha'is among those to testify at hearing on NSA's contempt motion

The Honorable Amy J. St. Eve, Judge of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, presided over the hearing, on January 7, 2008, to take evidence on the question of whether Orthodox Baha'i Faith Respondents Joel B. Marangella (the present Guardian of the Cause of God), Frank D. Schlatter, and the Provisional National Baha'i Council of the United States, and also the organization established by Dr. Leland Jensen that recognizes Neal Chase as the Guardian, are legally in "privity" with the defunct National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the United States Under the Hereditary Guardianship ("NSAUHG") the the national organization that once presided over the followers of Charles Mason Remey. The Court held the hearing in order to determine factual issues related to the sans-Guardian NSA's motion for contempt of the 1966 Judgment that was entered against the NSAUHG.

The City of Chicago racked up record high temperatures for that normally cold and snowy time of year, with temperatures in the mid 50's. Perhaps this was the result of the prayers of the Orthodox Baha'is who were forced to leave a moderate climate in New Mexico in the beginning of January, in order to defend their right to use word "Baha'i" in their names and on their websites, in a far away courthouse situated in a considerably colder climate.

After the attorneys for the parties gave their opening argument, the witnesses testified under questioning by attorneys for each party. The first witness was Dr. Robert Henderson, the former Secretary of the NSA. Next was Frank Schlatter and then Marilyn Meyer of the Orthodox Bahai Faith. Finally, Neal Chase faced questions about his organization's relationship, if any, with the NSAUHG. The parties also submitted designations of transcript deposition testimony for the witnesses who were not present. All parties also submitted document exhibits into evidence.

The Court has set a briefing schedule for post-trial submissions (in lieu of a closing argument). The NSA is to file its brief on January 14, 2008. Responses are due January 22, and the NSA's reply is due January 28, 2008. Due to a delay in receiving the hearing transcript, those deadlines are expected to be moved back.

After the submissions have been provided to the Court, it will rule on the pending contempt motion by written order. There is no way to determine when the Court will issue its decision.

Jeffrey

CLICK HERE FOR COURT DOCUMENTS

Posted at 05:04 PM in Court Action | Permalink

True Bahá'í

A Spiritual Branchhood: DNA is not the carrier of divine guidance

The fundamental disagreement between the sans-Guardian Baha'is and those who remain loyal to the living Guardians of the Cause, has to do with the interpretation of Aghsan. That is, the Sons of Baha'u'llah, and the question of whether the Guardians must be Aghsan.

Shoghi Effendi, as the first Guardian, had the sole right to interpret the Writings of the Faith. His translations of the Holy Text are authoritative, including the interpretions he had to make in translating the Arabic and Persian words into English words.

Shoghi Effendi translated the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha, and in the English version of that document, Shoghi Effendi used the the word "branch" or a variation thereof ten times. Lets take a look at how they are used (emphasis added):

1) "Salutation and praise, blessing and glory rest upon that primal branch of the Divine and Sacred Lote-Tree, grown out, blest, tender, verdant and flourishing from the Twin Holy Trees; the most wondrous, unique and priceless pearl that doth gleam from out the Twin surging seas..." (p. 3)

The primal branch grown out of the Twin Holy Trees obviously refers to Shoghi Effendi, who branched from both the Bab and Baha'u'llah. Of course, he was not one of the Sons of Baha'u'llah, but was the grandson of Abdu'l-Baha, through His daughter.

In this translation and interpretation of Aghsan, Shoghi Effendi uses the lower case "b" to refer to himself.

2) "...for behold! he is the blest and sacred bough that hath branched out from the Twin Holy Trees. Well is it with him that seeketh the shelter of his shade that shadoweth all mankind." (p. 3)

Again, Shoghi Effendi's translation and interpretation in reference to himself uses a lower case "b" in "branch."

3) "...it is incumbent upon the Afnan, that are steadfast in the Covenant of God and have branched from the Tree of Holiness; the Hands, (pillars) of the Cause of God (the glory of the Lord rest upon them), and all the friends and loved ones, one and all to bestir themselves and arise with heart and soul and in one accord, to diffuse the sweet savors of God, to teach His Cause and to promote His Faith..." (p. 9)

Here, Abdu'l-Baha is referring to the Afnan, the maternal relatives of the Bab and Shoghi Effendi's translation and interpreation uses the word "branched" with a lower case "b".

4. 5. 6, and 7) "After the passing away of this wronged one, it is incumbent upon the Aghsan (Branches), the Afnan (Twigs) of the Sacred Lote-Tree, the Hands (pillars) of the Cause of God and the loved ones of the Abha Beauty to turn unto Shoghi Effendi -- the youthful branch branched from the two hallowed and sacred Lote-Trees and the fruit grown from the union of the two offshoots of the Tree of Holiness, -- as he is the sign of God, the chosen branch, the Guardian of the Cause of God, he unto whom all the Aghsan, the Afnan, the Hands of the Cause of God and His loved ones must turn..." (p. 11)

In this passage, Abdu'l-Baha is abandoning the succession of the Aghsan and replacing it with the Guardianship, with Shoghi Effendi as the first Guardian. In referring to the Sons of Baha'u'llah, who now must obey Shoghi Effendi, he interprets and translates the word with an upper case "B" but the other three uses of the word "branch" are lower case "b" because in those uses he is referring to Shoghi Effendi and the Guardians. Abdu'l-Baha makes it clear that the Sons of Baha'u'llah and the Hands are to turn to the Guardians.

8) "The sacred and youthful branch, the Guardian of the Cause of God, as well as the Universal House of Justice to be universally elected and established, are both under the care and protection of the Abha Beauty," (p. 11)

The sans-Guardian Baha'is may misinterpret this sentence because they have been brainwashed into believing that their headless UHJ is being referred to, when elsewhere Abdu'l-Baha makes it clear that the UHJ he is referring to has the Guardian as its "sacred head." In referring to the Guardian of the Cause, the word branch is lower case "b" according to the translation and interpretation of Shoghi Effendi.

9) "Thus, should the first-born of the Guardian of the Cause of God not manifest in himself the truth of the words: -- "The child is the secret essence of its sire," that is, should he not inherit of the spiritual within him (the Guardian of the Cause of God) and his glorious lineage not be matched with a goodly character, then must he, (the Guardian of the Cause of God) choose another branc h to succeed him."

Although Abdu'l-Baha clearly states a preference for the first born son of the Guardian to be his successor, He clearly makes the Guardianship an appointed position and not hereditary. If the Center of the Cause was strictly hereditary, then Abdu'l-Baha's successor would have to be Abdu'l-Bahá's half-brother, Muhammad `Alí, who was named by Baha'u'llah Himself as one of His successors (but who turned against Abdu'l-Baha). In this passage, the word "branch" is not referring to the Sons of Baha'u'llah, but instead it was referring to a spiritual branchhood, and therefore according to Shoghi Effendi's authoritative interpretation and translation, a lower case "b" is used for the word "branch." Abdu'l-Baha is specifically allowing the Guardians to appoint someone other than their own children by allowing them to choose another "branch."

10) "It is incumbent upon you to take the greatest care of Shoghi Effendi,the twig that hath branched from and the fruit given forth by the two hallowed and Divine Lote-Trees, that no dust of despondency and sorrow may stain his radiant nature, that day by day he may wax greater in happiness, in joy and spirituality, and may grow to become even as a fruitful tree." (p. 25)

In this last reference, referring to how Shoghi Effendi "branched" from the Bab and Baha'u'llah, the word is interpreted and translated by Shoghi Effendi with a lower case "b" as Shoghi Effendi is obviously not one of the Sons of Baha'u'llah. Those who say that the Guardian must be one of the Sons of Baha'u'llah, the Aghsan, are really denouncing Abdu'l-Baha since it was He who did away with the Agshan as the successors to Baha'u'llah. Those who insist that Aghsan refers to any descendant of Baha'u'llah are perverting the meaning of the word as used by Baha'u'llah, Abdu'l-Baha and Shoghi Effendi and are rejecting the clear interpretation of Shoghi Effendi, as well as the obvious intent of the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha.

Those who refuse to recognize the idea of a spiritual inheritance, that the Guardians are spiritual offshoots of the Tree of Holiness are caught up into a materialistic world view that is not consistent with Baha'i orthodoxy. It is absurd to believe that the DNA transferred from one member of the Holy Family to another is the carrier of divine guidance, yet this is exactly what the sans-Guardian Baha'is are saying when they say that there was no Agshan for Shoghi Effendi to appoint his successor.

Abdu'l-Baha seems to display foreknowledge that Shoghi Effendi would not have children in passage number 10, wherein He says that if the Baha'is must "take the greatest care of Shoghi Effendi" so that "no dust of despondency and sorrow may stain his radiant nature", then Shoghi Effendi would "grow to become even as a fruitful tree." Is He not saying that the opposition that Shoghi Effendi faced during his entire life caused him not to sire children, and therefore the greatest test of the Baha'i world would ensue?

Thus, the Baha'is are tested on whether they would accept a spiritual branchhood.

As Joel B. Marangella, stated in "The Tree of the Covenant:"

"Bahá'u'lláh is the Ancient Root from which has sprung the Primal Branch or Greatest Branch; that is His appointed Successor and the Center of His Covenant, 'Abdu'l-Bahá "a Branch" that hath been so uplifted as to encompass the whole of creation" and the "Most Mighty Branch of God. " The Guardians of the Faith who have been endowed with the same interpretive authority as had been vested in 'Abdu'l-Bahá, in accordance with the explicit provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, may be regarded (and, in fact, are so designated by 'Abdu'l-Bahá) as the youthful branches or twigs which are the offshoots of the Primal Branch while the mass of faithful believers are the leaves and fruits of this glorious Tree." http://bahai-guardian.com/tree.html

Abdu'l-Baha confirms this in Last Tablet to America (found at Baha'i World Faith, p. 438):

"Consider! The Divine Gardener cuts off the dry or weak branch from the good tree and grafts to it, a branch from another tree. He both separates and unites."

This is exactly what Abdu'l-Baha did when He created the Guardianship in His Will, and this is exactly what Shoghi Effendi did when he appointed Mason Remey to the presidency of the embryonic UHJ (the International Baha'i Council).

It is time for the Baha'is who follow the headless UHJ to abandon their materialistic ideas about the succession of the Center of the Cause and recognize that the Baha'i Faith is not to be bogged down with materialistic notions of hereditary succession. The Guardianship is a spiritual office. To be firm in the Covenant means and always has meant fidelity and obedience to the Guardian of the Cause:

"The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the Guardian of the Cause of God. It is incumbent upon the members of the House of Justice, upon all the Aghsan, the Afnan, the Hands of the Cause of God to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the Guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him. He that opposeth him hath opposed the True One, will make a breach in the Cause of God, will subvert His Word and will become a manifestation of the Center of Sedition. Beware, beware, lest the days after the ascension (of Bahá'u'lláh) be repeated when the Center of Sedition waxed haughty and rebellious and with Divine Unity for his excuse deprived himself and perturbed and poisoned others. No doubt every vainglorious one that purposeth dissension and discord will not openly declare his evil purposes, nay rather, even as impure gold, will he seize upon divers measures and various pretexts that he may separate the gathering of the people of Baha." Abdu'l-Baha, Will and Testament, p. 11.

Beware that He is talking about you!

For more information on the Orthodox Baha'is:

The living Guardian's web site:
http://www.bahai-guardian.com/

The International Baha'i Council's web site:
http://www.bahaisorthodox.com/ibc/

The Hands of the Cause of God web site:
http://handsofthebahaifaith.typepad.com/

Jeffrey

Posted at 09:42 AM in Introductory | Permalink

True Bahá'í

A Spiritual Branchhood: DNA is not the carrier of divine guidance

The fundamental disagreement between the sans-Guardian Baha'is and those who remain loyal to the living Guardians of the Cause, has to do with the interpretation of Aghsan. That is, the Sons of Baha'u'llah, and the question of whether the Guardians must be Aghsan.

Shoghi Effendi, as the first Guardian, had the sole right to interpret the Writings of the Faith. His translations of the Holy Text are authoritative, including the interpretions he had to make in translating the Arabic and Persian words into English words.

Shoghi Effendi translated the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha, and in the English version of that document, Shoghi Effendi used the the word "branch" or a variation thereof ten times. Lets take a look at how they are used (emphasis added):

1) "Salutation and praise, blessing and glory rest upon that primal branch of the Divine and Sacred Lote-Tree, grown out, blest, tender, verdant and flourishing from the Twin Holy Trees; the most wondrous, unique and priceless pearl that doth gleam from out the Twin surging seas..." (p. 3)

The primal branch grown out of the Twin Holy Trees obviously refers to Shoghi Effendi, who branched from both the Bab and Baha'u'llah. Of course, he was not one of the Sons of Baha'u'llah, but was the grandson of Abdu'l-Baha, through His daughter.

In this translation and interpretation of Aghsan, Shoghi Effendi uses the lower case "b" to refer to himself.

2) "...for behold! he is the blest and sacred bough that hath branched out from the Twin Holy Trees. Well is it with him that seeketh the shelter of his shade that shadoweth all mankind." (p. 3)

Again, Shoghi Effendi's translation and interpretation in reference to himself uses a lower case "b" in "branch."

3) "...it is incumbent upon the Afnan, that are steadfast in the Covenant of God and have branched from the Tree of Holiness; the Hands, (pillars) of the Cause of God (the glory of the Lord rest upon them), and all the friends and loved ones, one and all to bestir themselves and arise with heart and soul and in one accord, to diffuse the sweet savors of God, to teach His Cause and to promote His Faith..." (p. 9)

Here, Abdu'l-Baha is referring to the Afnan, the maternal relatives of the Bab and Shoghi Effendi's translation and interpreation uses the word "branched" with a lower case "b".

4. 5. 6, and 7) "After the passing away of this wronged one, it is incumbent upon the Aghsan (Branches), the Afnan (Twigs) of the Sacred Lote-Tree, the Hands (pillars) of the Cause of God and the loved ones of the Abha Beauty to turn unto Shoghi Effendi -- the youthful branch branched from the two hallowed and sacred Lote-Trees and the fruit grown from the union of

the two offshoots of the Tree of Holiness, -- as he is the sign of God, the chosen branch, the Guardian of the Cause of God, he unto whom all the Aghsan, the Afnan, the Hands of the Cause of God and His loved ones must turn..." (p. 11)

In this passage, Abdu'l-Baha is abandoning the succession of the Aghsan and replacing it with the Guardianship, with Shoghi Effendi as the first Guardian. In referring to the Sons of Baha'u'llah, who now must obey Shoghi Effendi, he interprets and translates the word with an upper case "B" but the other three uses of the word "branch" are lower case "b" because in those uses he is referring to Shoghi Effendi and the Guardians. Abdu'l-Baha makes it clear that the Sons of Baha'u'llah and the Hands are to turn to the Guardians.

8) "The sacred and youthful branch, the Guardian of the Cause of God, as well as the Universal House of Justice to be universally elected and established, are both under the care and protection of the Abha Beauty," (p. 11)

The sans-Guardian Baha'is may misinterpret this sentence because they have been brainwashed into believing that their headless UHJ is being referred to, when elsewhere Abdu'l-Baha makes it clear that the UHJ he is referring to has the Guardian as its "sacred head." In referring to the Guardian of the Cause, the word branch is lower case "b" according to the translation and interpretation of Shoghi Effendi.

9) "Thus, should the first-born of the Guardian of the Cause of God not manifest in himself the truth of the words: -- "The child is the secret essence of its sire," that is, should he not inherit of the spiritual within him (the Guardian of the Cause of God) and his glorious lineage not be matched with a goodly character, then must he, (the Guardian of the Cause of God) choose another branc h to succeed him."

Although Abdu'l-Baha clearly states a preference for the first born son of the Guardian to be his successor, He clearly makes the Guardianship an appointed position and not hereditary. If the Center of the Cause was strictly hereditary, then Abdu'l-Baha's successor would have to be Abdu'l-Bahá's half-brother, Muhammad `Alí, who was named by Baha'u'llah Himself as one of His successors (but who turned against Abdu'l-Baha). In this passage, the word "branch" is not referring to the Sons of Baha'u'llah, but instead it was referring to a spiritual branchhood, and therefore according to Shoghi Effendi's authoritative interpretation and translation, a lower case "b" is used for the word "branch." Abdu'l-Baha is specifically allowing the Guardians to appoint someone other than their own children by allowing them to choose another "branch."

10) "It is incumbent upon you to take the greatest care of Shoghi Effendi,the twig that hath branched from and the fruit given forth by the two hallowed and Divine Lote-Trees, that no dust of despondency and sorrow may stain his radiant nature, that day by day he may wax greater in happiness, in joy and spirituality, and may grow to become even as a fruitful tree." (p. 25)

In this last reference, referring to how Shoghi Effendi "branched" from the Bab and Baha'u'llah, the word is interpreted and translated by Shoghi Effendi with a lower case "b" as Shoghi Effendi is obviously not one of the Sons of Baha'u'llah. Those who say that the Guardian must be one of the Sons of Baha'u'llah, the Aghsan, are really denouncing Abdu'l-Baha since it was He who did away with the Agshan as the successors to Baha'u'llah. Those who insist that Aghsan refers to any descendant of Baha'u'llah are perverting the meaning of the word as used by Baha'u'llah, Abdu'l-Baha and Shoghi Effendi and are rejecting the clear interpretation of Shoghi Effendi, as well as the obvious intent of the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha.

Those who refuse to recognize the idea of a spiritual inheritance, that the Guardians are spiritual offshoots of the Tree of Holiness are caught up into a materialistic world view that is not consistent with Baha'i orthodoxy. It is absurd to believe that the DNA transferred from one member of the Holy Family to another is the carrier of divine guidance, yet this is exactly what the sans-Guardian Baha'is are saying when they say that there was no Agshan for Shoghi Effendi to appoint his successor.

Abdu'l-Baha seems to display foreknowledge that Shoghi Effendi would not have children in passage number 10, wherein He says that if the Baha'is must "take the greatest care of Shoghi Effendi" so that "no dust of despondency and sorrow may stain his radiant nature", then Shoghi Effendi would "grow to become even as a fruitful tree." Is He not saying that the opposition that Shoghi Effendi faced during his entire life caused him not to sire children, and therefore the greatest test of the Baha'i world would ensue?

Thus, the Baha'is are tested on whether they would accept a spiritual branchhood.

As Joel B. Marangella, stated in "The Tree of the Covenant:"

"Bahá'u'lláh is the Ancient Root from which has sprung the Primal Branch or Greatest Branch; that is His appointed Successor and the Center of His Covenant, 'Abdu'l-Bahá "a Branch" that hath been so uplifted as to encompass the whole of creation" and the "Most Mighty Branch of God. " The Guardians of the Faith who have been endowed with the same interpretive authority as had been vested in 'Abdu'l-Bahá, in accordance with the explicit provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, may be regarded (and, in fact, are so designated by 'Abdu'l-Bahá) as the youthful branches or twigs which are the offshoots of the Primal Branch while the mass of faithful believers are the leaves and fruits of this glorious Tree." http://bahai-guardian.com/tree.html

Abdu'l-Baha confirms this in Last Tablet to America (found at Baha'i World Faith, p. 438):

"Consider! The Divine Gardener cuts off the dry or weak branch from the good tree and grafts to it, a branch from another tree. He both separates and unites."

This is exactly what Abdu'l-Baha did when He created the Guardianship in His Will, and this is exactly what Shoghi Effendi did when he appointed Mason Remey to the presidency of the embryonic UHJ (the International Baha'i Council).

It is time for the Baha'is who follow the headless UHJ to abandon their materialistic ideas about the succession of the Center of the Cause and recognize that the Baha'i Faith is not to be bogged down with materialistic notions of hereditary succession. The Guardianship is a spiritual office. To be firm in the Covenant means and always has meant fidelity and obedience to the Guardian of the Cause:

"The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the Guardian of the Cause of God. It is incumbent upon the members of the House of Justice, upon all the Aghsan, the Afnan, the Hands of the Cause of God to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the Guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him. He that opposeth him hath opposed the True One, will make a breach in the Cause of God, will subvert His Word and will become a manifestation of the Center of Sedition. Beware, beware, lest the days after the ascension (of Bahá'u'lláh) be repeated when the Center of Sedition waxed haughty and rebellious and with Divine Unity for his excuse deprived himself and perturbed and poisoned others. No doubt every vainglorious one that purposeth dissension and discord will not openly declare his evil purposes, nay rather, even as impure gold, will he seize upon divers measures and various pretexts that he may separate the gathering of the people of Baha." Abdu'l-Baha, Will and Testament, p. 11.

Beware that He is talking about you!

For more information on the Orthodox Baha'is:

The living Guardian's web site:
http://www.bahai-guardian.com/

The International Baha'i Council's web site:
http://www.bahaisorthodox.com/ibc/

The Hands of the Cause of God web site:
http://handsofthebahaifaith.typepad.com/

Jeffrey

Posted at 09:42 AM in Introductory | Permalink

True Bahá'í

An Open Response to an Inquiring Heterodox Believer

The following is my response to an inquiry made by a believer in the sans-Guardian organization directed to an Orthodox Baha'i:

Allah-u-Abhá,

I am one of those that you call "heterodox" Bahá'ís. It is strange to hear this appellation, because we don't call ourselves like that, and this is misleading to your audience. To be clearly transparent, you may provide a link to www.bahai.org and let people judge themselves about the truth. I became curious and visited your profile, because in our community we heard a lot about you. And, because of that, a series of deepenings have started on the topic of the Covenant. And we thank you for that! So, I also saw your reply to A----, and as a Bahá'í living under the Covenant (under the guidance of the Universal House of Justice), I am not supposed to communicate with you, because it is believed that it is spiritually dangerous. However, I am taking the risk, just to share with you a few points.

Although this letter overall displays the usual spiritual blindness of the followers of the sans-Guardian UHJ, it is refreshing in that this believer has enough light to be curious and to be willing to communicate with the Orthodox Baha'is even though he believes it to be "spiritually dangerous." In reality, this kind of investigation of the truth is not dangerous at all, but it is a necessary part of spiritual growth. What this believer has failed to do is to undertake the basic investigation in the first place of the persons and institutions to whom he has sworn loyalty. His faith is based upon false assumptions and the opinions of others and is not based at all upon an investigation of the truth. Yet this believer is, almost despite himself, actually engaging in an independent investigation and for this I applaud him.

Of course, this believer is naive in believing in the basic goodness and good faith of the leadership of his organization who would expel him if they knew he was corresponding with us.

He objects to the term "heterodox" to describe the sans-Guardian organization, but fails to state why. Its definition is "unorthodox," or in other words contrary to the original established teachings. All one has to do is to crack open the Bahai texts to see that the original established teachings had a living Guardian as the Center of the Cause.

Let me quote your reply to A-----:

"The main distinction of the Orthodox Bahá'ís from the <<mainstream>> or heterodox Bahá'ís that we recognize the leadership of the Guardian as <<head of the Faith>>. The Orthodox Bahá'ís scrupulously follow the stipulations of the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá. The heterodox Bahá'ís pretend that the Guardianship is extinct, thus repudiating the Will and Testament of the Master."

Bahá'ís throughout the world recognize the spiritual leadership of the Guardian as Head of the Faith. The Guardian - Shoghi Effendi - although physically not present, continues to be our source of guidance, because his writings, letters, and messages constitute a central source of guidance for the Bahá'í communities and institutions, including the Universal House of Justice, because thy shed light and further interpret the Writings of Bahá'u'lláh and 'Abdu'l-Bahá. But you know all this. If you are referring to the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, the Guardian is "its sacred head for life", this means that his spirit, writings and letters will always be guiding the Universal House of Justice. This is also the case with Bahá'u'lláh, Báb, and 'Abdu'l-Bahá - although they are not physically with us, their spirit and letters guide us as individuals, communities, institutions, including the Universal House of Justice. The Will also provides to having a Universal House of Justice without the Guardian. We both know that the House was elected in 1963, and when it was elected, all Hands of the Cause submitted their will and obedience to this great institution, for which Bahá'u'lláh had provided in the Most Holy Book. In the paragraph #42, this is clearly stated, that there will be a time when there will be no Aghsan to lead, and the House will lead.

This believer is openly espousing one of the most pernicious doctrines of the sans-Guardian organization, and that is that Shoghi Effendi's "spirit" continues to guide their UHJ. He believes that his UHJ is not "headless" because Shoghi Effendi continues to preside over it from the Abha Kingdom. First, if it were true that it is sufficient for the Bahai Administration to be guided by the Writings and "spirit" of Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha, it begs the question of why it was necessary to have a Guardian at all. Why did we need Shoghi Effendi to tell us anything at all if Baha'u'llah was guiding us from on high. Indeed, why did we need Abdu'l-Baha? He goes on to say that the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha provides for a UHJ without a Guardian. Oh, really? Exactly where does it say that? Not in my copy!

Of course, this believer must never have read any of the writings of Shoghi Effendi, who pointed out the many functions of the Guardian (such as insisting upon a reconsideration of any enactment he believes is in conflict with Baha'u'llah's utterances, to interpret the Writings to ensure the continuity of the divinely appointed authority and maintain flexibility, to take a long and uninterrupted view over a series of generations, and to expel a member of the UHJ who commits a sin injurious to the common weal) all of which implicate a living person presiding. Not to mention the numerous references to "present and future Guardians" by Shoghi Effendi or the clear statement in the Will and Testament of Abdul-Baha that there would be future Guardians.

This believer incorrectly paraphrases the Most Holy Book which was talking about endowments for charity and not about the functions of the Guardian. The idea being expressed, of course, is one of the interpretations of his UHJ, something that is beyond the sphere of its jurisdiction. The comment that all of the Hands accepted the UHJ is laughable in its ignorance, since the Hands had already expelled one of its own because of his refusal to accept their plan to end the Guardianship and elect a headless UHJ. The violating Hands bullied and expelled anyone who questioned their authority, even though it is clear and obvious they had no authority whatsoever from the Holy Texts of the Faith.

I wonder if this believer is aware that former NSA Secretary and current NSA member, Dr. Robert Henderson, in his sworn testimony on behalf of the Wilmette NSA in the US District Court in Chicago, on January 7, 2008, DENIES that the Institution of the Guardianship is an official institution of the Bahai Faith:

Q. So, the Orthodox Baha'i Faith Web site -- for example, Joel Marangella's Web site where he claims to be the Guardian of the Baha'i faith -- was that -- do you consider that an official institution of the faith?

A. No. The official institutions of the Baha'i faith are the ones that I mentioned: The Universal House of Justice in Haifa, Israel; the 183 National Spiritual Assemblies in countries around the world; and, the 26,000 or so recognized local spiritual assemblies.

For more information on the court case brought by the Wilmette NSA against the Orthodox Bahais, go here: http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html

My suggestion to this believer is that he go back and carefully examine the writings of his leadership and the Holy Text as interpreted by Shoghi Effendi, and try to reconcile their opposing views. He will see, if he examines this with care and impartiality, that the organization to which he belongs has indeed strayed far from the original teachings of the Faith.

You know very well that Mason Remey, raised the claim to be the next guardian, but according to the Will, the Hands were invested with the power to expel from their midst whatever was false. The guy was maybe moved to raise his claim, because Shoghi Effendi had praised him in certain tones, and this should be seen as normal on the side of a loving and caring Guardian, but there is no written statement by the Guardian about who would be the next guardian to succeed him. You should remember that Muhammad Ali was called "the Greater Branch" by Baha'u'llah, and this pumped up his ego and led him break the Covenant. You also must be ware that Mason Remey was amongst the other Hands to put down his signature on the document that stated that there was no way to appoint a future guardian after Shoghi Effendi. Then, after some time, he came up with the claim of being the guardian.

Could this action not be just a prompting of extreme ego, a great desire for power and leadership that was devouring his heart and soul, perhaps initiated by the praising words of Shoghi Effendi? It was a test my friend, and Mason didn't pass it unfortunately. I hope and pray that your eyes may be opened regarding this heavy issue. The Hands were the 'Chief-Stewards', and together they had to lead the community for six years until the election of the first Universal House of Justice.

There are so many false statements and assumptions in this one paragraph, I don't know where to begin. First, the Hands were invested with the authority to expel anyone who opposed the GUARDIAN. Look at the actual text and don't make up stuff that is not there. Since they were the ones opposing the Guardian, it is not a surprise that they failed to expel themselves.

As for the claim "the guy" made, it was not because Shoghi Effendi praised him. The claim was clearly that as he was the appointed head of the embryonic UHJ, he was the embryonic Guardian, and upon Shoghi Effendi's death, that Institution was born. Thus, the UHJ with the Guardian as its head came to life upon Shoghi Effendi's death. Shoghi Effendi's proclamation creating the embryonic UHJ and his appointment of Mason Remey to its presidency are the written documents appointing him (not that a written document is required by the Will and Testament). His signature was to a document that said no will could be found naming his successor, but the documents also said that the IBC would be allowed to function! There was no will and that is not the proper vehicle to appoint the next Guardian. Therefore, that false legalistic argument has no bearing. The prompting of extreme ego was not Mason Remey's but instead it was the Hands who did not want to submit to the authority of another Guardian, and especially of Shoghi Effendi's widow who expressly stated that she would not submit to any more Guardians. Read the history!

As for the Chief Stewards, there is no basis for assuming that the name given to the Hands by Shoghi Effendi implies that they had administrative authority even temporarily. A steward is a servant, and the role of the Hands, always has been and will be one of servitude to the Guardian.

In the other side, Mason was not an Aghsan, and according to Bahá'u'lláh's Writings, his successors had to be Aghsan. Also, as I mentioned above, both Bahá'u'lláh and 'Abdu'l-Bahá provide for the House of Justice without a living Head. And when you refer to the Will, as I already stated above, the station of "its sacred Head" is a spiritual one. So my brother, see with the eyes of spirit and see what glorious light is coming on earth, streaming forth from the Holy Land, under the guidance of the Universal House of Justice, which is protected and guided by the spirit and letters of the Abhá Beauty, the Exalted, 'Abdu'l-Bahá and Shoghi Effendi.

I have asked but I have yet to be shown where in Baha'u'llah's Writings it says a successor had to be Aghsan. I think this was something concocted by the Aghsan, because it isn't there.

The one thing I agree with is that the sacred head is a spiritual authority. The Guardian is a spiritual hereditary office. It is incumbent upon all Bahais to obey the one appointed by the Guardian. The one who must overcome spiritual blindness and open his eyes to the light streaming down, is this believer and not the Orthodox Baha'is. You have been grossly misled my brother, and I urge you to investigate the truth independently. READ the WRITINGS and the interpretations of Shoghi Effendi and not the nonsense that you are being told at their so-called "deepenings."

I don't know if you ever had the chance to meet with the Universal House of Justice, but I can assure you that its members are the incarnation of humbleness, submissiveness and fear of God, and when you see them together, you will exclaim: "Yea, verily, Bahá'u'lláh has perfected his Covenant with us". And I can assure you that none of them bears easily the burden of being a House member. The House of Justice is leading the community to victories after victories in establishing the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh. His Covenant will make this possible, and whoever is trying to violate His Covenant, is just a dead body that the Ocean will cast out in the shore. Take your chance, perhaps you're still in time, with a breath of life in your heart!

Nonsense! The members of the UHJ are violators of the Covenant of Baha'u'llah. They seek their own glory and power. What arrogance they display by saying that they are perfecting the Covenant! And exactly what victories are you referring to? The Bahai Faith has been stagnant for many years.

I do agree that those who violate His Covenant are a dead body to be cast out on the shore. I am afraid that it is your organization that is the dead body! The Covenant is about loyalty to the Center of the Cause. That is, the GUARDIANS.

And that is in clear contrast to whoever "living guardian" is on earth, who have been fighting for power and leadership amongst one another, and you are following one of them. Are they divinely guided in your estimation? I guess not, and you doubt that, too. Thus, be warned and pray to Bahá'u'lláh, so that He may guide your heart to His real source of guidance and Center of His Faith., and ask for His grace and turn back to the real Ocean of His Guidance, and don't stay any longer to a pool of mud, which you are considering pure water that is sheer illusion, my brother. The Writings are like a puzzle, regarding the issue of the Covenant, and you need to put together all the pieces from the writings of Bahá'u'lláh, 'Abdu'l-Bahá and Shoghi Effendi to realize the truth from error. And Bahá'u'lláh has done this, amongst other reasons, to test the hearts and divide the sincere from the insincere. Which part will you take?

I have no doubt at all that Mason Remey and Joel B. Marangella were and are divinely guided. Have you read any of their writings to make this determination? I doubt it. I was a member of your organization once but I did not let any person prevent me from investigating and reading the writings with an open mind. I believe that Baha'u'llah has opened up my heart to the truth and for this I have gratitude. I am no longer spiritually blind. Are you?

When you denounce the living Guardians on the earth, you are displaying that you oppose the Guardian. Read the Will and Testament and see what Abdu'l-Baha says about opposing the Guardian:

The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the Guardian of the Cause of God. It is incumbent upon the members of the House of Justice, upon all the Aghsan, the Afnan, the Hands of the Cause of God to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the Guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him. He that opposeth him hath opposed the True One, will make a breach in the Cause of God, will subvert His Word and will become a manifestation of the Center of Sedition.

Nothing could be more clear. But I do agree the writings are a puzzle on the subject of the Covenant and they are a test to divide the sincere from the insincere. Have you read them carefully or are you adopting the opinions that others have spoon fed to you?

I am hoping with my whole being that you may be guided and return to the real Covenant, and that you will attract others to His Faith and Covenant under the Universal House of Justice. That will be your eternal glory, and not what you are doing now. Come and embrace His community and be faithful to His Covenant. You don't loose anything, but your "idle fancies and vain imaginations" that the 'guardians' have disseminated in your heart and hearts of others like you, orthodox. Break this earthly chain and rise up to the Heaven of His glorious Kingdom, part of which is being obedient to the institution appointed in His Most Holy Book, seated on the Most Holy Mountin.

I will pray for your guidance and you pray for my forgiveness, if my words were too harsh on you.

Likewise, I hope my words were not to harsh on you. Sometimes you have to be harsh to wake people up. Likewise, I hope you will return to the real Covenant, the one of obedience to the living Guardian.

Jeffrey

Posted at 11:04 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

An Open Response to an Inquiring Heterodox Believer

The following is my response to an inquiry made by a believer in the sans-Guardian organization directed to an Orthodox Baha'i:

Allah-u-Abhá,

I am one of those that you call "heterodox" Bahá'ís. It is strange to hear this appellation, because we don't call ourselves like that, and this is misleading to your audience. To be clearly transparent, you may provide a link to www.bahai.org and let people judge themselves about the truth. I became curious and visited your profile, because in our community we heard a lot about you. And, because of that, a series of deepenings have started on the topic of the Covenant. And we thank you for that! So, I also saw your reply to A----, and as a Bahá'í living under the Covenant (under the guidance of the Universal House of Justice), I am not supposed to communicate with you, because it is believed that it is spiritually dangerous. However, I am taking the risk, just to share with you a few points.

Although this letter overall displays the usual spiritual blindness of the followers of the sans-Guardian UHJ, it is refreshing in that this believer has enough light to be curious and to be willing to communicate with the Orthodox Baha'is even though he believes it to be "spiritually dangerous." In reality, this kind of investigation of the truth is not dangerous at all, but it is a necessary part of spiritual growth. What this believer has failed to do is to undertake the basic investigation in the first place of the persons and institutions to whom he has sworn loyalty. His faith is based upon false assumptions and the opinions of others and is not based at all upon an investigation of the truth. Yet this believer is, almost despite himself, actually engaging in an independent investigation and for this I applaud him.

Of course, this believer is naive in believing in the basic goodness and good faith of the leadership of his organization who would expel him if they knew he was corresponding with us.

He objects to the term "heterodox" to describe the sans-Guardian organization, but fails to state why. Its definition is "unorthodox," or in other words contrary to the original established teachings. All one has to do is to crack open the Bahai texts to see that the original established teachings had a living Guardian as the Center of the Cause.

Let me quote your reply to A-----:

"The main distinction of the Orthodox Bahá'ís from the <<mainstream>> or heterodox Bahá'ís that we recognize the leadership of the Guardian as <<head of the Faith>>. The Orthodox Bahá'ís scrupulously follow the stipulations of the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá. The heterodox Bahá'ís pretend that the Guardianship is extinct, thus repudiating the Will and Testament of the Master."

Bahá'ís throughout the world recognize the spiritual leadership of the Guardian as Head of the Faith. The Guardian - Shoghi Effendi - although physically not present, continues to be our source of guidance, because his writings, letters, and messages constitute a central source of guidance for the Bahá'í communities and institutions, including the Universal House of Justice, because thy shed light and further interpret the Writings of Bahá'u'lláh and 'Abdu'l-Bahá. But you know all this. If you are referring to the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, the Guardian is "its sacred head for life", this means that his spirit, writings and letters will always be guiding the Universal House of Justice. This is also the case with Bahá'u'lláh, Báb, and 'Abdu'l-Bahá - although they are not physically with us, their spirit and letters guide us as individuals, communities, institutions, including the Universal House of Justice. The Will also provides to having a Universal House of Justice without the Guardian. We both know that the House was elected in 1963, and when it was elected, all Hands of the Cause submitted their will and obedience to this great institution, for which Bahá'u'lláh had provided in the Most Holy Book. In the paragraph #42, this is clearly stated, that there will be a time when there will be no Aghsan to lead, and the House will lead.

This believer is openly espousing one of the most pernicious doctrines of the sans-Guardian organization, and that is that Shoghi Effendi's "spirit" continues to guide their UHJ. He believes that his UHJ is not "headless" because Shoghi Effendi continues to preside over it from the Abha Kingdom. First, if it were true that it is sufficient for the Bahai Administration to be guided by the Writings and "spirit" of Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha, it begs the question of why it was necessary to have a Guardian at all. Why did we need Shoghi Effendi to tell us anything at all if Baha'u'llah was guiding us from on high. Indeed, why did we need Abdu'l-Baha? He goes on to say that the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha provides for a UHJ without a Guardian. Oh, really? Exactly where does it say that? Not in my copy!

Of course, this believer must never have read any of the writings of Shoghi Effendi, who pointed out the many functions of the Guardian (such as insisting upon a reconsideration of any enactment he believes is in conflict with Baha'u'llah's utterances, to interpret the Writings to ensure the continuity of the divinely appointed authority and maintain flexibility, to take a long and uninterrupted view over a series of generations, and to expel a member of the UHJ who commits a sin injurious to the common weal) all of which implicate a living person presiding. Not to mention the numerous references to "present and future Guardians" by Shoghi Effendi or the clear statement in the Will and Testament of Abdul-Baha that there would be future Guardians.

This believer incorrectly paraphrases the Most Holy Book which was talking about endowments for charity and not about the functions of the Guardian. The idea being expressed, of course, is one of the interpretations of his UHJ, something that is beyond the sphere of its jurisdiction. The comment that all of the Hands accepted the UHJ is laughable in its ignorance, since the Hands had already expelled one of its own because of his refusal to accept their plan to end the Guardianship and elect a headless UHJ. The violating Hands bullied and expelled anyone who questioned their authority, even though it is clear and obvious they had no authority whatsoever from the Holy Texts of the Faith.

I wonder if this believer is aware that former NSA Secretary and current NSA member, Dr. Robert Henderson, in his sworn testimony on behalf of the Wilmette NSA in the US District Court in Chicago, on January 7, 2008, DENIES that the Institution of the Guardianship is an official institution of the Bahai Faith:

Q. So, the Orthodox Baha'i Faith Web site -- for example, Joel Marangella's Web site where he claims to be the Guardian of the Baha'i faith -- was that -- do you consider that an official institution of the faith?

A. No. The official institutions of the Baha'i faith are the ones that I mentioned: The Universal House of Justice in Haifa, Israel; the 183 National Spiritual Assemblies in countries around the world; and, the 26,000 or so recognized local spiritual assemblies.

For more information on the court case brought by the Wilmette NSA against the Orthodox Bahais, go here: http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html

My suggestion to this believer is that he go back and carefully examine the writings of his leadership and the Holy Text as interpreted by Shoghi Effendi, and try to reconcile their opposing views. He will see, if he examines this with care and impartiality, that the organization to which he belongs has indeed strayed far from the original teachings of the Faith.

You know very well that Mason Remey, raised the claim to be the next guardian, but according to the Will, the Hands were invested with the power to expel from their midst whatever was false. The guy was maybe moved to raise his claim, because Shoghi Effendi had praised him in certain tones, and this should be seen as normal on the side of a loving and caring Guardian, but there is no written statement by the Guardian about who would be the next guardian to succeed him. You should remember that Muhammad Ali was called "the Greater Branch" by Baha'u'llah, and this pumped up his ego and led him break the Covenant. You also must be ware that Mason Remey was amongst the other Hands to put down his signature on the document that stated that there was no way to appoint a future guardian after Shoghi Effendi. Then, after some time, he came up with the claim of being the guardian.

Could this action not be just a prompting of extreme ego, a great desire for power and leadership that was devouring his heart and soul, perhaps initiated by the praising words of Shoghi Effendi? It was a test my friend, and Mason didn't pass it unfortunately. I hope and pray that your eyes may be opened regarding this heavy issue. The Hands were the 'Chief-Stewards', and together they had to lead the community for six years until the election of the first Universal House of Justice.

There are so many false statements and assumptions in this one paragraph, I don't know where to begin. First, the Hands were invested with the authority to expel anyone who opposed the GUARDIAN. Look at the actual text and don't make up stuff that is not there. Since they were the ones opposing the Guardian, it is not a surprise that they failed to expel themselves.

As for the claim "the guy" made, it was not because Shoghi Effendi praised him. The claim was clearly that as he was the appointed head of the embryonic UHJ, he was the embryonic Guardian, and upon Shoghi Effendi's death, that Institution was born. Thus, the UHJ with the Guardian as its head came to life upon Shoghi Effendi's death. Shoghi Effendi's proclamation creating the embryonic UHJ and his appointment of Mason Remey to its presidency are the written documents appointing him (not that a written document is required by the Will and Testament). His signature was to a document that said no will could be found naming his successor, but the documents also said that the IBC would be allowed to function! There was no will and that is not the proper vehicle to appoint the next Guardian. Therefore, that false legalistic argument has no bearing. The prompting of extreme ego was not Mason Remey's but instead it was the Hands who did not want to submit to the authority of another Guardian, and especially of Shoghi Effendi's widow who expressly stated that she would not submit to any more Guardians. Read the history!

As for the Chief Stewards, there is no basis for assuming that the name given to the Hands by Shoghi Effendi implies that they had administrative authority even temporarily. A steward is a servant, and the role of the Hands, always has been and will be one of servitude to the Guardian.

In the other side, Mason was not an Aghsan, and according to Bahá'u'lláh's Writings, his successors had to be Aghsan. Also, as I mentioned above, both Bahá'u'lláh and 'Abdu'l-Bahá provide for the House of Justice without a living Head. And when you refer to the Will, as I already stated above, the station of "its sacred Head" is a spiritual one. So my brother, see with the eyes of spirit and see what glorious light is coming on earth, streaming forth from the Holy Land, under the guidance of the Universal House of Justice, which is protected and guided by the spirit and letters of the Abhá Beauty, the Exalted, 'Abdu'l-Bahá and Shoghi Effendi.

I have asked but I have yet to be shown where in Baha'u'llah's Writings it says a successor had to be Aghsan. I think this was something concocted by the Aghsan, because it isn't there.

The one thing I agree with is that the sacred head is a spiritual authority. The Guardian is a spiritual hereditary office. It is incumbent upon all Bahais to obey the one appointed by the Guardian. The one who must overcome spiritual blindness and open his eyes to the light streaming down, is this believer and not the Orthodox Baha'is. You have been grossly misled my brother, and I urge you to investigate the truth independently. READ the WRITINGS and the interpretations of Shoghi Effendi and not the nonsense that you are being told at their so-called "deepenings."

I don't know if you ever had the chance to meet with the Universal House of Justice, but I can assure you that its members are the incarnation of humbleness, submissiveness and fear of God, and when you see them together, you will exclaim: "Yea, verily, Bahá'u'lláh has perfected his Covenant with us". And I can assure you that none of them bears easily the burden of being a House member. The House of Justice is leading the community to victories after victories in establishing the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh. His Covenant will make this possible, and whoever is trying to violate His Covenant, is just a dead body that the Ocean will cast out in the shore. Take your chance, perhaps you're still in time, with a breath of life in your heart!

Nonsense! The members of the UHJ are violators of the Covenant of Baha'u'llah. They seek their own glory and power. What arrogance they display by saying that they are perfecting the Covenant! And exactly what victories are you referring to? The Bahai Faith has been stagnant for many years.

I do agree that those who violate His Covenant are a dead body to be cast out on the shore. I am afraid that it is your organization that is the dead body! The Covenant is about loyalty to the Center of the Cause. That is, the GUARDIANS.

And that is in clear contrast to whoever "living guardian" is on earth, who have been fighting for power and leadership amongst one another, and you are following one of them. Are they divinely guided in your estimation? I guess not, and you doubt that, too. Thus, be warned and pray to Bahá'u'lláh, so that He may guide your heart to His real source of guidance and Center of His Faith., and ask for His grace and turn back to the real Ocean of His Guidance, and don't stay any longer to a pool of mud, which you are considering pure water that is sheer illusion, my brother. The Writings are like a puzzle, regarding the issue of the Covenant, and you need to put together all the pieces from the writings of Bahá'u'lláh, 'Abdu'l-Bahá and Shoghi Effendi to realize the truth from error. And Bahá'u'lláh has done this, amongst other reasons, to test the hearts and divide the sincere from the insincere. Which part will you take?

I have no doubt at all that Mason Remey and Joel B. Marangella were and are divinely guided. Have you read any of their writings to make this determination? I doubt it. I was a member of your organization once but I did not let any person prevent me from investigating and reading the writings with an open mind. I believe that Baha'u'llah has opened up my heart to the truth and for this I have gratitude. I am no longer spiritually blind. Are you?

When you denounce the living Guardians on the earth, you are displaying that you oppose the Guardian. Read the Will and Testament and see what Abdu'l-Baha says about opposing the Guardian:

The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the Guardian of the Cause of God. It is incumbent upon the members of the House of Justice, upon all the Aghsan, the Afnan, the Hands of the Cause of God to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the Guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him. He that opposeth him hath opposed the True One, will make a breach in the Cause of God, will subvert His Word and will become a manifestation of the Center of Sedition.

Nothing could be more clear. But I do agree the writings are a puzzle on the subject of the Covenant and they are a test to divide the sincere from the insincere. Have you read them carefully or are you adopting the opinions that others have spoon fed to you?

I am hoping with my whole being that you may be guided and return to the real Covenant, and that you will attract others to His Faith and Covenant under the Universal House of Justice. That will be your eternal glory, and not what you are doing now. Come and embrace His community and be faithful to His Covenant. You don't loose anything, but your "idle fancies and vain imaginations" that the 'guardians' have disseminated in your heart and hearts of others like you, orthodox. Break this earthly chain and rise up to the Heaven of His glorious Kingdom, part of which is being obedient to the institution appointed in His Most Holy Book, seated on the Most Holy Mountin.

I will pray for your guidance and you pray for my forgiveness, if my words were too harsh on you.

Likewise, I hope my words were not to harsh on you. Sometimes you have to be harsh to wake people up. Likewise, I hope you will return to the real Covenant, the one of obedience to the living Guardian.

Jeffrey

Posted at 11:04 AM in sans-Guardian Bahá'ís | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Court Case Update

I have updated the web page on the pending court case (the Wilmette NSA's contempt action against the Orthodox Baha'is). Go to http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html

I have added the NSA's Post-Hearing Brief and the OBF's Response Brief. The NSA's reply is due February 4, 2008.

I will have more about the trial in the near future.

Jeffrey

Posted at 11:50 AM in Court Action | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Court Case Update

I have updated the web page on the pending court case (the Wilmette NSA's contempt action against the Orthodox Baha'is). Go to http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html

I have added the NSA's Post-Hearing Brief and the OBF's Response Brief. The NSA's reply is due February 4, 2008.

I will have more about the trial in the near future.

Jeffrey

Posted at 11:50 AM in Court Action | Permalink

HUQUQULLAH (THE RIGHT OF GOD) AND ITS DISPOSITION

HUQUQULLAH

There is a great importance of Huququllah in the Bahai Faith.

Huququllah is an Arabic word comprised of two words. Huquq meaning “Right” and “Allah” meaning “God”. Therefore Huququllah means “Right of God”, a part of the individuals possession and income offered at the Threshold of God.

Huququllah being the Right of God and bounty for the people is clear from the Bahai Holy writings of sayings of The Bab, Bahaullah and Abdul Baha

Writings of The Bab

O people of the world, whatever ye have offered up in the way of the one true God, ye shall indeed find preserved by God, The Preserver, and Intact at Gods Holy Gate.

Thus the embryo of the sacred law of Huququllah was established by the Bab in the Persian Bayan, His book of Laws.

Bahaullah brought some modifications in its content and fashioned it as one of the worlds shaping ordinances of His stupendous Revelation.

Writings of Bahaullah:

Bahaullah affirms “….the payment to the Right of God is conducive to prosperity, to blessing and to honour and divine protection”

"As to Huququllah, this is the source of blessing and the mainspring of God’s loving kindness and tender love vouchsafed unto men”.

In Kitab-i Aqdas verse 97, it has been revealed by Bahaullah:

Should anyone acquire one hundred mithqals of gold, nineteen mithqals thereof are Gods and to be rendered unto him, the fashioner of the earth and heaven. Take heed o people, lest you deprive yourselves of such a great bounty. This we have commanded you, though though we are well able to dispense with you and with all those who are in the heavens and on earth, in it there are benefits and wisdoms beyond the ken of anyone but God, The Omniscient, the All-informed Say, By this means He hath desired to purify what ye possess and to enable you to draw nigh unto such stations as none can comprehend save those whom God hath willed, He in truth is the Beneficent The Gracious, The Merciful .O people deal not faithlessly with the Right of God , Nor without His leave , make free with its disposal .Thus hath his commandments been established in the holy tablets and in this Exalted book .He who dealeth faithlessly with God shall in justice meet with faithlessness himself , He , however , who acteth in accordance with Gods bidding shall receive a blessing from the heaven of the bounty of His lord , the Gracious , the Bestower , the Generous , the Ancient of Days.He verily hath willed for you that which is yet beyond your knowledge , but shall be know to you when , after this fleeting life , your souls shall soar heaven wards and the trappings of your earthly joys are folded up.Thus admonished you He in Whose possession is the Guarded Tablet.

Writings of Abdul Baha: -

O friends of Abdul Baha The Lord as a sign of his infinite bounties hath graciously favoured His servants by providing for a fixed money offering (Huqooq) to be dutifully presented unto Him, through He m, the true One and His servants have been at all times independent of all created things, and God verily is the all-possessing, exalted above the need of any gift from His creatures. This fixed money offering however causeth people to become firm and steadfast and draweth Divine increase upon them

(Will and Testament of Abdul Baha)

Abdul Baha commenting on the manifold powers latent in the Law of Huququllah writes"

"…In accordance with His inscrutable wisdom and in order to apply a unique test to distinguish the friend from the stranger, He hath enjoined the Huqooq upon His servants and made it obligatory."

From all the above quotations it is amply clear that the source of energy for upholding the law of huqullah is the individuals love and loyalty to the covenant.

As Abdul Baha, Himself says that it distinguishes the friend from the stranger; this is nothing more or less than a test of ones firmness in the covenant.

DISPOSITION OF HUQUQULLAH

Now we come to a very important question regarding the Disposition of this Huquq .

Abdul Baha in one of his tablets has stated

"Disposition of the Huquq, wholly or partly is permissible but this should be done by PERMISSION OF THE AUTHORITY IN THE CAUSE TO WHOM ALL MUST TURN "

Thus provision in His Will and Testament that the Huququllah is to be offered through the GUARDIAN OF THE CAUSE OF GOD.

This clearly indicates that Huququllah is the Right of the Guardian.

CONCLUSION

This bring us to an important point that those misled Bahais who are paying Huququllah to some other entities other than the Guardian, are they doing the right thing?

Unfortunately these Bahais are not only misled but also are orphaned, as they do not believe in the Guardian. The entities who are claiming Huququllah other than Guardian are not the "Recipient of the Right of God", but are actually "Usurpers of the Right of God".

Arranged by:

Committee for the Study of Holy Text

PNBC of India

.

Posted at 12:42 PM | Permalink

HUQUQULLAH (THE RIGHT OF GOD) AND ITS DISPOSITION

HUQUQULLAH

There is a great importance of Huququllah in the Bahai Faith.

Huququllah is an Arabic word comprised of two words. Huquq meaning “Right” and “Allah” meaning “God”. Therefore Huququllah means “Right of God”, a part of the individuals possession and income offered at the Threshold of God.

Huququllah being the Right of God and bounty for the people is clear from the Bahai Holy writings of sayings of The Bab, Bahaullah and Abdul Baha

Writings of The Bab

O people of the world, whatever ye have offered up in the way of the one true God, ye shall indeed find preserved by God, The Preserver, and Intact at Gods Holy Gate.

Thus the embryo of the sacred law of Huququllah was established by the Bab in the Persian Bayan, His book of Laws.

Bahaullah brought some modifications in its content and fashioned it as one of the worlds shaping ordinances of His stupendous Revelation.

Writings of Bahaullah:

Bahaullah affirms “….the payment to the Right of God is conducive to prosperity, to blessing and to honour and divine protection”

"As to Huququllah, this is the source of blessing and the mainspring of God’s loving kindness and tender love vouchsafed unto men”.

In Kitab-i Aqdas verse 97, it has been revealed by Bahaullah:

Should anyone acquire one hundred mithqals of gold, nineteen mithqals thereof are Gods and to be rendered unto him, the fashioner of the earth and heaven. Take heed o people, lest you deprive yourselves of such a great bounty. This we have commanded you, though though we are well able to dispense with you and with all those who are in the heavens and on earth, in it there are benefits and wisdoms beyond the ken of anyone but God, The Omniscient, the All-informed Say, By this means He hath desired to purify what ye possess and to enable you to draw nigh unto such stations as none can comprehend save those whom God hath willed, He in truth is the Beneficent The Gracious, The Merciful .O people deal not faithlessly with the Right of God , Nor without His leave , make free with its disposal .Thus hath his commandments been established in the holy tablets and in this Exalted book .He who dealeth faithlessly with God shall in justice meet with faithlessness himself , He , however , who acteth in accordance with Gods bidding shall receive a blessing from the heaven of the bounty of His lord , the Gracious , the Bestower , the Generous , the Ancient of Days.He verily hath willed for you that which is yet beyond your knowledge , but shall be know to you when , after this fleeting life , your souls shall soar heaven wards and the trappings of your earthly joys are folded up.Thus admonished you He in Whose possession is the Guarded Tablet.

Writings of Abdul Baha: -

O friends of Abdul Baha The Lord as a sign of his infinite bounties hath graciously favoured His servants by providing for a fixed money offering (Huqooq) to be dutifully presented unto Him, through He m, the true One and His servants have been at all times independent of all created things, and God verily is the all-possessing, exalted above the need of any gift from His creatures. This fixed money offering however causeth people to become firm and steadfast and draweth Divine increase upon them

(Will and Testament of Abdul Baha)

Abdul Baha commenting on the manifold powers latent in the Law of Huququllah writes"

"…In accordance with His inscrutable wisdom and in order to apply a unique test to distinguish the friend from the stranger, He hath enjoined the Huqooq upon His servants and made it obligatory."

From all the above quotations it is amply clear that the source of energy for upholding the law of huqullah is the individuals love and loyalty to the covenant.

As Abdul Baha, Himself says that it distinguishes the friend from the stranger; this is nothing more or less than a test of ones firmness in the covenant.

DISPOSITION OF HUQUQULLAH

Now we come to a very important question regarding the Disposition of this Huquq .

Abdul Baha in one of his tablets has stated

"Disposition of the Huquq, wholly or partly is permissible but this should be done by PERMISSION OF THE AUTHORITY IN THE CAUSE TO WHOM ALL MUST TURN "

Thus provision in His Will and Testament that the Huququllah is to be offered through the GUARDIAN OF THE CAUSE OF GOD.

This clearly indicates that Huququllah is the Right of the Guardian.

CONCLUSION

This bring us to an important point that those misled Bahais who are paying Huququllah to some other entities other than the Guardian, are they doing the right thing?

Unfortunately these Bahais are not only misled but also are orphaned, as they do not believe in the Guardian. The entities who are claiming Huququllah other than Guardian are not the "Recipient of the Right of God", but are actually "Usurpers of the Right of God".

Arranged by:

Committee for the Study of Holy Text

PNBC of India

.

Posted at 12:42 PM | Permalink

HUQUQULLAH (THE RIGHT OF GOD) AND ITS DISPOSITION

HUQUQULLAH

There is a great importance of Huququllah in the Bahai Faith.

Huququllah is an Arabic word comprised of two words. Huquq meaning “Right” and “Allah” meaning “God”. Therefore Huququllah means “Right of God”, a part of the individuals possession and income offered at the Threshold of God.

Huququllah being the Right of God and bounty for the people is clear from the Bahai Holy writings of sayings of The Bab, Bahaullah and Abdul Baha

Writings of The Bab

O people of the world, whatever ye have offered up in the way of the one true God, ye shall indeed find preserved by God, The Preserver, and Intact at Gods Holy Gate.

Thus the embryo of the sacred law of Huququllah was established by the Bab in the Persian Bayan, His book of Laws.

Bahaullah brought some modifications in its content and fashioned it as one of the worlds shaping ordinances of His stupendous Revelation.

Writings of Bahaullah:

Bahaullah affirms “….the payment to the Right of God is conducive to prosperity, to blessing and to honour and divine protection”

"As to Huququllah, this is the source of blessing and the mainspring of God’s loving kindness and tender love vouchsafed unto men”.

In Kitab-i Aqdas verse 97, it has been revealed by Bahaullah:

Should anyone acquire one hundred mithqals of gold, nineteen mithqals thereof are Gods and to be rendered unto him, the fashioner of the earth and heaven. Take heed o people, lest you deprive yourselves of such a great bounty. This we have commanded you, though though we are well able to dispense with you and with all those who are in the heavens and on earth, in it there are benefits and wisdoms beyond the ken of anyone but God, The Omniscient, the All-informed Say, By this means He hath desired to purify what ye possess and to enable you to draw nigh unto such stations as none can comprehend save those whom God hath willed, He in truth is the Beneficent The Gracious, The Merciful .O people deal not faithlessly with the Right of God , Nor without His leave , make free with its disposal .Thus hath his commandments been established in the holy tablets and in this Exalted book .He who dealeth faithlessly with God shall in justice meet with faithlessness himself , He , however , who acteth in accordance with Gods bidding shall receive a blessing from the heaven of the bounty of His lord , the Gracious , the Bestower , the Generous , the Ancient of Days.He verily hath willed for you that which is yet beyond your knowledge , but shall be know to you when , after this fleeting life , your souls shall soar heaven wards and the trappings of your earthly joys are folded up.Thus admonished you He in Whose possession is the Guarded Tablet.

Writings of Abdul Baha: -

O friends of Abdul Baha The Lord as a sign of his infinite bounties hath graciously favoured His servants by providing for a fixed money offering (Huqooq) to be dutifully presented unto Him, through He m, the true One and His servants have been at all times independent of all created things, and God verily is the all-possessing, exalted above the need of any gift from His creatures. This fixed money offering however causeth people to become firm and steadfast and draweth Divine increase upon them

(Will and Testament of Abdul Baha)

Abdul Baha commenting on the manifold powers latent in the Law of Huququllah writes"

"…In accordance with His inscrutable wisdom and in order to apply a unique test to distinguish the friend from the stranger, He hath enjoined the Huqooq upon His servants and made it obligatory."

From all the above quotations it is amply clear that the source of energy for upholding the law of huqullah is the individuals love and loyalty to the covenant.

As Abdul Baha, Himself says that it distinguishes the friend from the stranger; this is nothing more or less than a test of ones firmness in the covenant.

DISPOSITION OF HUQUQULLAH

Now we come to a very important question regarding the Disposition of this Huquq .

Abdul Baha in one of his tablets has stated

"Disposition of the Huquq, wholly or partly is permissible but this should be done by PERMISSION OF THE AUTHORITY IN THE CAUSE TO WHOM ALL MUST TURN "

Thus provision in His Will and Testament that the Huququllah is to be offered through the GUARDIAN OF THE CAUSE OF GOD.

This clearly indicates that Huququllah is the Right of the Guardian.

CONCLUSION

This bring us to an important point that those misled Bahais who are paying Huququllah to some other entities other than the Guardian, are they doing the right thing?

Unfortunately these Bahais are not only misled but also are orphaned, as they do not believe in the Guardian. The entities who are claiming Huququllah other than Guardian are not the "Recipient of the Right of God", but are actually "Usurpers of the Right of God".

Arranged by:

Committee for the Study of Holy Text

PNBC of India

.

Posted at 12:42 PM | Permalink

HUQUQULLAH (THE RIGHT OF GOD) AND ITS DISPOSITION

HUQUQULLAH

There is a great importance of Huququllah in the Bahai Faith.

Huququllah is an Arabic word comprised of two words. Huquq meaning “Right” and “Allah” meaning “God”. Therefore Huququllah means “Right of God”, a part of the individuals possession and income offered at the Threshold of God.

Huququllah being the Right of God and bounty for the people is clear from the Bahai Holy writings of sayings of The Bab, Bahaullah and Abdul Baha

Writings of The Bab

O people of the world, whatever ye have offered up in the way of the one true God, ye shall indeed find preserved by God, The Preserver, and Intact at Gods Holy Gate.

Thus the embryo of the sacred law of Huququllah was established by the Bab in the Persian Bayan, His book of Laws.

Bahaullah brought some modifications in its content and fashioned it as one of the worlds shaping ordinances of His stupendous Revelation.

Writings of Bahaullah:

Bahaullah affirms “….the payment to the Right of God is conducive to prosperity, to blessing and to honour and divine protection”

"As to Huququllah, this is the source of blessing and the mainspring of God’s loving kindness and tender love vouchsafed unto men”.

In Kitab-i Aqdas verse 97, it has been revealed by Bahaullah:

Should anyone acquire one hundred mithqals of gold, nineteen mithqals thereof are Gods and to be rendered unto him, the fashioner of the earth and heaven. Take heed o people, lest you deprive yourselves of such a great bounty. This we have commanded you, though though we are well able to dispense with you and with all those who are in the heavens and on earth, in it there are benefits and wisdoms beyond the ken of anyone but God, The Omniscient, the All-informed Say, By this means He hath desired to purify what ye possess and to enable you to draw nigh unto such stations as none can comprehend save those whom God hath willed, He in truth is the Beneficent The Gracious, The Merciful .O people deal not faithlessly with the Right of God , Nor without His leave , make free with its disposal .Thus hath his commandments been established in the holy tablets and in this Exalted book .He who dealeth faithlessly with God shall in justice meet with faithlessness himself , He , however , who acteth in accordance with Gods bidding shall receive a blessing from the heaven of the bounty of His lord , the Gracious , the Bestower , the Generous , the Ancient of Days.He verily hath willed for you that which is yet beyond your knowledge , but shall be know to you when , after this fleeting life , your souls shall soar heaven wards and the trappings of your earthly joys are folded up.Thus admonished you He in Whose possession is the Guarded Tablet.

Writings of Abdul Baha: -

O friends of Abdul Baha The Lord as a sign of his infinite bounties hath graciously favoured His servants by providing for a fixed money offering (Huqooq) to be dutifully presented unto Him, through He m, the true One and His servants have been at all times independent of all created things, and God verily is the all-possessing, exalted above the need of any gift from His creatures. This fixed money offering however causeth people to become firm and steadfast and draweth Divine increase upon them

(Will and Testament of Abdul Baha)

Abdul Baha commenting on the manifold powers latent in the Law of Huququllah writes"

"…In accordance with His inscrutable wisdom and in order to apply a unique test to distinguish the friend from the stranger, He hath enjoined the Huqooq upon His servants and made it obligatory."

From all the above quotations it is amply clear that the source of energy for upholding the law of huqullah is the individuals love and loyalty to the covenant.

As Abdul Baha, Himself says that it distinguishes the friend from the stranger; this is nothing more or less than a test of ones firmness in the covenant.

DISPOSITION OF HUQUQULLAH

Now we come to a very important question regarding the Disposition of this Huquq .

Abdul Baha in one of his tablets has stated

"Disposition of the Huquq, wholly or partly is permissible but this should be done by PERMISSION OF THE AUTHORITY IN THE CAUSE TO WHOM ALL MUST TURN "

Thus provision in His Will and Testament that the Huququllah is to be offered through the GUARDIAN OF THE CAUSE OF GOD.

This clearly indicates that Huququllah is the Right of the Guardian.

CONCLUSION

This bring us to an important point that those misled Bahais who are paying Huququllah to some other entities other than the Guardian, are they doing the right thing?

Unfortunately these Bahais are not only misled but also are orphaned, as they do not believe in the Guardian. The entities who are claiming Huququllah other than Guardian are not the "Recipient of the Right of God", but are actually "Usurpers of the Right of God".

Arranged by:

Committee for the Study of Holy Text

PNBC of India

.

Posted at 12:42 PM | Permalink | Comments (2) | TrackBack (0)

HUQUQULLAH (THE RIGHT OF GOD) AND ITS DISPOSITION

HUQUQULLAH

There is a great importance of Huququllah in the Bahai Faith.

Huququllah is an Arabic word comprised of two words. Huquq meaning “Right” and “Allah” meaning “God”. Therefore Huququllah means “Right of God”, a part of the individuals possession and income offered at the Threshold of God.

Huququllah being the Right of God and bounty for the people is clear from the Bahai Holy writings of sayings of The Bab, Bahaullah and Abdul Baha

Writings of The Bab

O people of the world, whatever ye have offered up in the way of the one true God, ye shall indeed find preserved by God, The Preserver, and Intact at Gods Holy Gate.

Thus the embryo of the sacred law of Huququllah was established by the Bab in the Persian Bayan, His book of Laws.

Bahaullah brought some modifications in its content and fashioned it as one of the worlds shaping ordinances of His stupendous Revelation.

Writings of Bahaullah:

Bahaullah affirms “….the payment to the Right of God is conducive to prosperity, to blessing and to honour and divine protection”

"As to Huququllah, this is the source of blessing and the mainspring of God’s loving kindness and tender love vouchsafed unto men”.

In Kitab-i Aqdas verse 97, it has been revealed by Bahaullah:

Should anyone acquire one hundred mithqals of gold, nineteen mithqals thereof are Gods and to be rendered unto him, the fashioner of the earth and heaven. Take heed o people, lest you deprive yourselves of such a great bounty. This we have commanded you, though though we are well able to dispense with you and with all those who are in the heavens and on earth, in it there are benefits and wisdoms beyond the ken of anyone but God, The Omniscient, the All-informed Say, By this means He hath desired to purify what ye possess and to enable you to draw nigh unto such stations as none can comprehend save those whom God hath willed, He in truth is the Beneficent The Gracious, The Merciful .O people deal not faithlessly with the Right of God , Nor without His leave , make free with its disposal .Thus hath his commandments been established in the holy tablets and in this Exalted book .He who dealeth faithlessly with God shall in justice meet with faithlessness himself , He , however , who acteth in accordance with Gods bidding shall receive a blessing from the heaven of the bounty of His lord , the Gracious , the Bestower , the Generous , the Ancient of Days.He verily hath willed for you that which is yet beyond your knowledge , but shall be know to you when , after this fleeting life , your souls shall soar heaven wards and the trappings of your earthly joys are folded up.Thus admonished you He in Whose possession is the Guarded Tablet.

Writings of Abdul Baha: -

O friends of Abdul Baha The Lord as a sign of his infinite bounties hath graciously favoured His servants by providing for a fixed money offering (Huqooq) to be dutifully presented unto Him, through He m, the true One and His servants have been at all times independent of all created things, and God verily is the all-possessing, exalted above the need of any gift from His creatures. This fixed money offering however causeth people to become firm and steadfast and draweth Divine increase upon them

(Will and Testament of Abdul Baha)

Abdul Baha commenting on the manifold powers latent in the Law of Huququllah writes"

"…In accordance with His inscrutable wisdom and in order to apply a unique test to distinguish the friend from the stranger, He hath enjoined the Huqooq upon His servants and made it obligatory."

From all the above quotations it is amply clear that the source of energy for upholding the law of huqullah is the individuals love and loyalty to the covenant.

As Abdul Baha, Himself says that it distinguishes the friend from the stranger; this is nothing more or less than a test of ones firmness in the covenant.

DISPOSITION OF HUQUQULLAH

Now we come to a very important question regarding the Disposition of this Huquq .

Abdul Baha in one of his tablets has stated

"Disposition of the Huquq, wholly or partly is permissible but this should be done by PERMISSION OF THE AUTHORITY IN THE CAUSE TO WHOM ALL MUST TURN "

Thus provision in His Will and Testament that the Huququllah is to be offered through the GUARDIAN OF THE CAUSE OF GOD.

This clearly indicates that Huququllah is the Right of the Guardian.

CONCLUSION

This bring us to an important point that those misled Bahais who are paying Huququllah to some other entities other than the Guardian, are they doing the right thing?

Unfortunately these Bahais are not only misled but also are orphaned, as they do not believe in the Guardian. The entities who are claiming Huququllah other than Guardian are not the "Recipient of the Right of God", but are actually "Usurpers of the Right of God".

Arranged by:

Committee for the Study of Holy Text

PNBC of India

.

Posted at 12:42 PM | Permalink | Comments (2) | TrackBack (0)

True Bahá'í

NSA testimony reveals true reasons for court action

The US District Court in Chicago held an evidentiary hearing on January 7, 2008, on the question of whether the OBF was in privity with Mason Remey's organization (the NSA of Bahais under the Hereditary Guardianship) and therefore bound by the 1966 Judgment entered against the Remey group. The hearing was held in order for the Court to decide material issues of fact in dispute in connection with the sans-Guardian Wilmette NSA's motion for contempt against the Orthodox Baha'is (and also the Neal Chase organization.

One of the Wilmette NSA's witnesses was NSA member and former Secretary Dr Robert Henderson, who testified about the reasons for bringing the motion. What is startling about this testimony, as against the OBF, is that the NSA's motion has offered up the pretense that the OBF's use of its trademarks (that is, the word "Baha'i") is causing reputational harm to the NSA.

In this testimony, Dr. Henderson admits that the only thing objectionable about the OBF web sites is the "thematic misrepresentation" that there is or could be more than one Baha'i faith (or one other than the sans-Guardian one). In other words, it is the very existence of the OBF that bothers the NSA, and its motion seeks to silence the OBF:

MR. JEFFERY A. HANDELMAN, Attorney for NSA (Direct Examination):
Dr. Henderson, what caused the NSA to file the current contempt motion that is now pending before the Court?

DR. ROBERT HENDERSON: The National Spiritual Assembly became aware, as a result of reports, that there were Web sites that were misrepresenting Baha'i belief and claiming to be official institutions of the Baha'i faith. We hadn't seen them, but we began to get reports. And upon investigation, we were alarmed to find that there were Web sites claiming to be the official institutions of the Baha'i faith and -- and -- presenting beliefs which were in direct conflict to Baha'i teachings and Baha'i principles and at broad variance.

We had significant concerns about this. First, we were concerned about Baha'i refugees who were forced to flee their homes and their home countries because of their belief in the Baha'i faith, and who, in some cases, had corresponded with the wrong institutions, thinking that they were corresponding with the international governing body of the Baha'i faith and, in fact, they were sending their correspondence to some other institution.

Secondly, we were concerned about the public because one of our major strategies is to advise the public of the teachings and the fact and general aim of the Baha'i faith through the Internet. In fact, our Web site has won several awards for excellence from the National Religious

Communication -- Communicators -- Council, which is an organization that looks at religious publications and Web sites and videos, and so forth.

And we won the gold medal, in fact, as having the best Web site of the faith communities in the United States.

And, so, this is a primary means by which we communicate Baha'i belief, and who are the Baha'is, and what do we believe, and what do we do, and where can you find Baha'is close to you.

Suddenly, we began to receive some alarming reports from people who were not Baha'is, but who were investigating the Baha'i faith through the Internet, concerned about what they were reading on Web sites claiming to be official Baha'i Web sites. And their concern was stimulated by the fact that the content on these Web sites was in direct conflict with their understanding of Baha'i belief; and, in fact, it was in direct conflict.

And, then, lastly, there were -- or penultimately, we were concerned about the Baha'is themselves who might be misled and find themselves involved in discussions -- in fact, this did occur; find themselves involved in Internet forums and the like and corresponding -- with organizations that were not part of the National Spiritual Assembly.

And last, we were concerned with reputational harm. As I mentioned, we have extensive and longstanding relations with the United Nations, with the White House, with the -- with both Houses of Congress, with the human rights community. And these are based on principles of peace and cooperation, of universal fellowship, of race unity, of the equality of women and men, and so forth. All of the Baha'i principles centered around facilitating unity and cooperation and universal well-being and social progress.

These Web sites have alarming content that were in direct conflict with Baha'i teachings and, in some cases, even suggested that harm would come to institutions that we have long supported.

For example, in one case -- as I mentioned, we have had a non-governmental organization in the United Nations since its formation in 1948 and have consultative status with ECOSOC, and so on and so forth. One of the Web sites we read said that the United Nations would be nuked.

Well, there's no such Baha'i teaching suggesting that. It is completely antithetical to the teachings of our faith and very damaging to a member of the United Nations that might read that and be confused and think that Baha'is believe that destruction would come to an organization that we have been so vigorously supportive of and so deeply involved in.

==========

Later:

MR. JEFFREY A. GOLDBERG, Attorney for the OBF (Cross Examination): You said in your testimony that you found these Web sites that were mimicking the official institutions of the faith. Can you tell me which ones they were? Were those Orthodox Baha'i Faith Web sites?

DR. ROBERT HENDERSON: There were several of them. The one that comes readily to mind is Baha'is Under the Provision of the Covenant. And, then, there were Web sites claiming to be the official Universal House of Justice. And --
(Brief pause.)

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Those are the ones that come readily to mind.

BY MR. GOLDBERG:

Q. So, the Orthodox Baha'i Faith Web site -- for example, Joel Marangella's Web site where he claims to be the Guardian of the Baha'i faith -- was that -- do you consider that an official institution of the faith?

A. No. The official institutions of the Baha'i faith are the ones that I mentioned: The Universal House of Justice in Haifa, Israel; the 183 National Spiritual Assemblies in countries around the world; and, the 26,000 or so recognized local spiritual assemblies.

Q. So, has the Orthodox Baha'i Faith ever represented that it was the Universal House of Justice --

A. I don't know.

Q. -- or the National Spiritual Assembly?

A. I don't know.

Q. And you also mentioned that there were beliefs in conflict on the Web site of the Baha'i teaching. And with the exception of the Orthodox Baha'i Faith's teachings about that they believe that Joel Marangella's the Guardian, can you identify any beliefs that are set forth in our -- in the Orthodox Baha'i Faith -- Web sites that has anything that is in conflict with Baha'i teachings as you know -- understand them?

A. There were -- in the range of Web site material that I've read, there were -- several thematic misrepresentations and factual representations.

The first was that there is an alternate Baha'i faith. There is not. This notion that we are orthodox or true, that we are official, stands in direct conflict to the fundamental principle of the Baha'i faith; which is, the unity of faith.

Anyone is free to believe what they wish. Privately they can enjoy freedom of belief, and they can think of themselves as whatever brings meaning and spiritual cohesion to their lives. But when you begin to present yourself and to present counterclaims as being official or orthodox or more true to an established entity, the Baha'i faith is -- has teachings and laws and principles and structure that make up the faith itself. That provides its cohesion and its integrity.

The -- these Web sites claim to be the orthodox manifestation of that or the official counterpart to that. It's a fundamental conflict in Baha'i belief. It simply does not parse in Baha'i teachings or principles.

Posted at 09:46 AM in Court Action | Permalink

True Bahá'í

NSA testimony reveals true reasons for court action

The US District Court in Chicago held an evidentiary hearing on January 7, 2008, on the question of whether the OBF was in privity with Mason Remey's organization (the NSA of Bahais under the Hereditary Guardianship) and therefore bound by the 1966 Judgment entered against the Remey group. The hearing was held in order for the Court to decide material issues of fact in dispute in connection with the sans-Guardian Wilmette NSA's motion for contempt against the Orthodox Baha'is (and also the Neal Chase organization.

One of the Wilmette NSA's witnesses was NSA member and former Secretary Dr Robert Henderson, who testified about the reasons for bringing the motion. What is startling about this testimony, as against the OBF, is that the NSA's motion has offered up the pretense that the OBF's use of its trademarks (that is, the word "Baha'i") is causing reputational harm to the NSA.

In this testimony, Dr. Henderson admits that the only thing objectionable about the OBF web sites is the "thematic misrepresentation" that there is or could be more than one Baha'i faith (or one other than the sans-Guardian one). In other words, it is the very existence of the OBF that bothers the NSA, and its motion seeks to silence the OBF:

MR. JEFFERY A. HANDELMAN, Attorney for NSA (Direct Examination):
Dr. Henderson, what caused the NSA to file the current contempt motion that is now pending before the Court?

DR. ROBERT HENDERSON: The National Spiritual Assembly became aware, as a result of reports, that there were Web sites that were misrepresenting Baha'i belief and claiming to be official institutions of the Baha'i faith. We hadn't seen them, but we began to get reports. And upon investigation, we were alarmed to find that there were Web sites claiming to be the official institutions of the Baha'i faith and -- and -- presenting beliefs which were in direct conflict to Baha'i teachings and Baha'i principles and at broad variance.

We had significant concerns about this. First, we were concerned about Baha'i refugees who were forced to flee their homes and their home countries because of their belief in the Baha'i faith, and who, in some cases, had corresponded with the wrong institutions, thinking that they were corresponding with the international governing body of the Baha'i faith and, in fact, they were sending their correspondence to some other institution.

Secondly, we were concerned about the public because one of our major strategies is to advise the public of the teachings and the fact and general aim of the Baha'i faith through the Internet. In fact, our Web site has won several awards for excellence from the National Religious

Communication -- Communicators -- Council, which is an organization that looks at religious publications and Web sites and videos, and so forth.

And we won the gold medal, in fact, as having the best Web site of the faith communities in the United States.

And, so, this is a primary means by which we communicate Baha'i belief, and who are the Baha'is, and what do we believe, and what do we do, and where can you find Baha'is close to you.

Suddenly, we began to receive some alarming reports from people who were not Baha'is, but who were investigating the Baha'i faith through the Internet, concerned about what they were reading on Web sites claiming to be official Baha'i Web sites. And their concern was stimulated by the fact that the content on these Web sites was in direct conflict with their understanding of Baha'i belief; and, in fact, it was in direct conflict.

And, then, lastly, there were -- or penultimately, we were concerned about the Baha'is themselves who might be misled and find themselves involved in discussions -- in fact, this did occur; find themselves involved in Internet forums and the like and corresponding -- with organizations that were not part of the National Spiritual Assembly.

And last, we were concerned with reputational harm. As I mentioned, we have extensive and longstanding relations with the United Nations, with the White House, with the -- with both Houses of Congress, with the human rights community. And these are based on principles of peace and cooperation, of universal fellowship, of race unity, of the equality of women and men, and so forth. All of the Baha'i principles centered around facilitating unity and cooperation and universal well-being and social progress.

These Web sites have alarming content that were in direct conflict with Baha'i teachings and, in some cases, even suggested that harm would come to institutions that we have long supported.

For example, in one case -- as I mentioned, we have had a non-governmental organization in the United Nations since its formation in 1948 and have consultative status with ECOSOC, and so on and so forth. One of the Web sites we read said that the United Nations would be nuked.

Well, there's no such Baha'i teaching suggesting that. It is completely antithetical to the teachings of our faith and very damaging to a member of the United Nations that might read that and be confused and think that Baha'is believe that destruction would come to an organization that we have been so vigorously supportive of and so deeply involved in.

==========

Later:

MR. JEFFREY A. GOLDBERG, Attorney for the OBF (Cross Examination): You said in your testimony that you found these Web sites that were mimicking the official institutions of the faith. Can you tell me which ones they were? Were those Orthodox Baha'i Faith Web sites?

DR. ROBERT HENDERSON: There were several of them. The one that comes readily to mind is Baha'is Under the Provision of the Covenant. And, then, there were Web sites claiming to be the official Universal House of Justice. And --
(Brief pause.)

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Those are the ones that come readily to mind.

BY MR. GOLDBERG:

Q. So, the Orthodox Baha'i Faith Web site -- for example, Joel Marangella's Web site where he claims to be the Guardian of the Baha'i faith -- was that -- do you consider that an official institution of the faith?

A. No. The official institutions of the Baha'i faith are the ones that I mentioned: The Universal House of Justice in Haifa, Israel; the 183 National Spiritual Assemblies in countries around the world; and, the 26,000 or so recognized local spiritual assemblies.

Q. So, has the Orthodox Baha'i Faith ever represented that it was the Universal House of Justice --

A. I don't know.

Q. -- or the National Spiritual Assembly?

A. I don't know.

Q. And you also mentioned that there were beliefs in conflict on the Web site of the Baha'i teaching. And with the exception of the Orthodox Baha'i Faith's teachings about that they believe that Joel Marangella's the Guardian, can you identify any beliefs that are set forth in our -- in the Orthodox Baha'i Faith -- Web sites that has anything that is in conflict with Baha'i teachings as you know -- understand them?

A. There were -- in the range of Web site material that I've read, there were -- several thematic misrepresentations and factual representations.

The first was that there is an alternate Baha'i faith. There is not. This notion that we are orthodox or true, that we are official, stands in direct conflict to the fundamental principle of the Baha'i faith; which is, the unity of faith.

Anyone is free to believe what they wish. Privately they can enjoy freedom of belief, and they can think of themselves as whatever brings meaning and spiritual cohesion to their lives. But when you begin to present yourself and to present counterclaims as being official or orthodox or more true to an established entity, the Baha'i faith is -- has teachings and laws and principles and structure that make up the faith itself. That provides its cohesion and its integrity.

The -- these Web sites claim to be the orthodox manifestation of that or the official counterpart to that. It's a fundamental conflict in Baha'i belief. It simply does not parse in Baha'i teachings or principles.

Posted at 09:46 AM in Court Action | Permalink

True Bahá'í

"Baha'i Internet Agency":the dangers of Facebook friends

Watch out, the "legendary" Baha'i Internet Agency (the "BIA")is on the warpath against social web sites such as "Facebook" because you never know what friends you might pick up. Here is an actual BIA email on the subject.

Enjoy:

28 February 2008

To All National Spiritual Assemblies

Dear Bahá'í Friends,

We have been requested by the World Centre to alert you to the current activities of the Covenant-breaker Martin Lavallee on Facebook.com. This individual administers the "Orthodox Bahá'is" page on Facebook and also has a personal page on the site. There have been recent instances where Bahá'í youth with accounts on Facebook have unwittingly accepted invitations from Lavallee to be a "friend" or to become "members" of the Covenant-breaker page. Further, as a consequence of the Facebook networking scheme, if an individual accepts a direct invitation from Lavallee or any other member of his group, the "Friends" list (with e-mail addresses) of that individual becomes exposed. In this way, those with insincere intentions have the potential to directly contact an increasing number of Bahá'is, interactions that could pose a threat to the spiritual well-being of youth and other believers who are not deepened in the Covenant.

Each National Assembly will need to determine the necessity and most appropriate manner of discreetly informing believers of this situation in consultation and with the assistance of the Counsellors. In doing so it will of course be important to avoid creating undue anxiety or curiosity about the nature of Covenant-breaker material on the Internet..

It is our intention to provide more general guidance in the near future about how online social networks can be constructively and safely used by Bahá'ís.

With loving greetings,

Matt Weinberg
Program Director
Bahá'í Internet Agency

cc: Members of the Continental Boards of Counsellors

You better not go online until the BIA lets us all know how we should behave on online social networks. What paranoid silliness. Do you mean to tell me that things have become so bad that the Baha'is need to view "Guidelines" before they go internet surfing?

If the Baha'is in your organization are so weak in the Covenant that they cannot withstand receiving an email from Martin (a staunch Canadian believer whose social Facebook pages are strictly his own), then I think you guys better start "deepening" your believers.

I love the tone of this letter, though. To achieve this tone, you need to mix in to your mind a whole bunch of fear and faithlessness, heavy doses of paranoia, and the ridiculous belief that you are serving God by writing silly guidelines of what others should read, do, speak, and hear, for their "own protection." Does it ever occur to the Baha'is who think in this narrow-minded and fearful way, that the Baha'is ought to be able to associate with anyone they want, hear whatever ideas they want, and speak whatever opinions they hold, without a Baha'i administrative agency telling them what is right or wrong? Are they such fragile souls that they are the only adults in the world who need internet supervision? Can anybody explain to me why anyone would put up with this kind of mind control silliness?

This strange idea needs to examined also: How can a person be said to have "unwittingly accepted invitations from Lavallee to be a "friend" or to become "members" of the" Facebook page? They make it sound like some kind of deception is taking place. In reality, Martin is just sending people invitations. This is what people do on the social web sites. There is no horrendous conspiracy here.

It would seem to be that if the sans-Guardian Baha'is are the true Faith of Baha'u'llah, as they claim, and that the Orthodox Baha'i Faith is false and cannot be recognized as "Baha'i", then they would not fear the OBF so much. If the OBF is false, then it cannot and will not prevail. So why worry? Are you really trying to protect your members so much as control them? It sounds more like a control question, since if you were worried about protecting them, you would not be so DISCREET about it, but instead you would be out there educating your members about what is true and what is false, so they can make up their own mind. Instead, you try to keep the truth away from them and convince them to avoid certain ideas because you know better.

The BIA is a very sick agency. The sans-Guardian Baha'i Faith, currently occupying Haifa and Wilmette, are bastardized versions of the Baha'i Administration as it was originally intended to be, and they are paranoid about the OBF because they know something is wrong and they have something to hide, and to hide from. This is a sign of spiritual sickness.

If you want to read their paranoid materials, you can find the Bahai Internet Agency Position papers online here:
http://www.abs.org.nz/blog/?p=11
http://www.bcca.org/bia/

Jeffrey

Posted at 09:10 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

"Baha'i Internet Agency":the dangers of Facebook friends

Watch out, the "legendary" Baha'i Internet Agency (the "BIA")is on the warpath against social web sites such as "Facebook" because you never know what friends you might pick up. Here is an actual BIA email on the subject.

Enjoy:

28 February 2008

To All National Spiritual Assemblies

Dear Bahá'í Friends,

We have been requested by the World Centre to alert you to the current activities of the Covenant-breaker Martin Lavallee on Facebook.com. This individual administers the "Orthodox Bahá'is" page on Facebook and also has a personal page on the site. There have been recent instances where Bahá'í youth with accounts on Facebook have unwittingly accepted invitations from Lavallee to be a "friend" or to become "members" of the Covenant-breaker page. Further, as a consequence of the Facebook networking scheme, if an individual accepts a direct invitation from Lavallee or any other member of his group, the "Friends" list (with e-mail addresses) of that individual becomes exposed. In this way, those with insincere intentions have the potential to directly contact an increasing number of Bahá'is, interactions that could pose a threat to the spiritual well-being of youth and other believers who are not deepened in the Covenant.

Each National Assembly will need to determine the necessity and most appropriate manner of discreetly informing believers of this situation in consultation and with the assistance of the Counsellors. In doing so it will of course be important to avoid creating undue anxiety or curiosity about the nature of Covenant-breaker material on the Internet..

It is our intention to provide more general guidance in the near future about how online social networks can be constructively and safely used by Bahá'ís.

With loving greetings,

Matt Weinberg
Program Director
Bahá'í Internet Agency

cc: Members of the Continental Boards of Counsellors

You better not go online until the BIA lets us all know how we should behave on online social networks. What paranoid silliness. Do you mean to tell me that things have become so bad that the Baha'is need to view "Guidelines" before they go internet surfing?

If the Baha'is in your organization are so weak in the Covenant that they cannot withstand receiving an email from Martin (a staunch Canadian believer whose social Facebook pages are strictly his own), then I think you guys better start "deepening" your believers.

I love the tone of this letter, though. To achieve this tone, you need to mix in to your mind a whole bunch of fear and faithlessness, heavy doses of paranoia, and the ridiculous belief that you are serving God by writing silly guidelines of what others should read, do, speak, and hear, for their "own protection." Does it ever occur to the Baha'is who think in this narrow-minded and fearful way, that the Baha'is ought to be able to associate with anyone they want, hear whatever ideas they want, and speak whatever opinions they hold, without a Baha'i administrative agency telling them what is right or wrong? Are they such fragile souls that they are the only adults in the world who need internet supervision? Can anybody explain to me why anyone would put up with this kind of mind control silliness?

This strange idea needs to examined also: How can a person be said to have "unwittingly accepted invitations from Lavallee to be a "friend" or to become "members" of the" Facebook page? They make it sound like some kind of deception is taking place. In reality, Martin is just sending people invitations. This is what people do on the social web sites. There is no horrendous conspiracy here.

It would seem to be that if the sans-Guardian Baha'is are the true Faith of Baha'u'llah, as they claim, and that the Orthodox Baha'i Faith is false and cannot be recognized as "Baha'i", then they would not fear the OBF so much. If the OBF is false, then it cannot and will not prevail. So why worry? Are you really trying to protect your members so much as control them? It sounds more like a control question, since if you were worried about protecting them, you would not be so DISCREET about it, but instead you would be out there educating your members about what is true and what is false, so they can make up their own mind. Instead, you try to keep the truth away from them and convince them to avoid certain ideas because you know better.

The BIA is a very sick agency. The sans-Guardian Baha'i Faith, currently occupying Haifa and Wilmette, are bastardized versions of the Baha'i Administration as it was originally intended to be, and they are paranoid about the OBF because they know something is wrong and they have something to hide, and to hide from. This is a sign of spiritual sickness.

If you want to read their paranoid materials, you can find the Bahai Internet Agency Position papers online here:
http://www.abs.org.nz/blog/?p=11
http://www.bcca.org/bia/

Jeffrey

Posted at 09:10 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

"Baha'i Internet Agency":the dangers of Facebook friends

Watch out, the "legendary" Baha'i Internet Agency (the "BIA")is on the warpath against social web sites such as "Facebook" because you never know what friends you might pick up. Here is an actual BIA email on the subject.

Enjoy:

28 February 2008

To All National Spiritual Assemblies

Dear Bahá'í Friends,

We have been requested by the World Centre to alert you to the current activities of the Covenant-breaker Martin Lavallee on Facebook.com. This individual administers the "Orthodox Bahá'is" page on Facebook and also has a personal page on the site. There have been recent instances where Bahá'í youth with accounts on Facebook have unwittingly accepted invitations from Lavallee to be a "friend" or to become "members" of the Covenant-breaker page. Further, as a consequence of the Facebook networking scheme, if an individual accepts a direct invitation from Lavallee or any other member of his group, the "Friends" list (with e-mail addresses) of that individual becomes exposed. In this way, those with insincere intentions have the potential to directly contact an increasing number of Bahá'is, interactions that could pose a threat to the spiritual well-being of youth and other believers who are not deepened in the Covenant.

Each National Assembly will need to determine the necessity and most appropriate manner of discreetly informing believers of this situation in consultation and with the assistance of the Counsellors. In doing so it will of course be important to avoid creating undue anxiety or curiosity about the nature of Covenant-breaker material on the Internet..

It is our intention to provide more general guidance in the near future about how online social networks can be constructively and safely used by Bahá'ís.

With loving greetings,

Matt Weinberg
Program Director
Bahá'í Internet Agency

cc: Members of the Continental Boards of Counsellors

You better not go online until the BIA lets us all know how we should behave on online social networks. What paranoid silliness. Do you mean to tell me that things have become so bad that the Baha'is need to view "Guidelines" before they go internet surfing?

If the Baha'is in your organization are so weak in the Covenant that they cannot withstand receiving an email from Martin (a staunch Canadian believer whose social Facebook pages are strictly his own), then I think you guys better start "deepening" your believers.

I love the tone of this letter, though. To achieve this tone, you need to mix in to your mind a whole bunch of fear and faithlessness, heavy doses of paranoia, and the ridiculous belief that you are serving God by writing silly guidelines of what others should read, do, speak, and hear, for their "own protection." Does it ever occur to the Baha'is who think in this narrow-minded and fearful way, that the Baha'is ought to be able to associate with anyone they want, hear whatever ideas they want, and speak whatever opinions they hold, without a Baha'i administrative agency telling them what is right or wrong? Are they such fragile souls that they are the only adults in the world who need internet supervision? Can anybody explain to me why anyone would put up with this kind of mind control silliness?

This strange idea needs to examined also: How can a person be said to have "unwittingly accepted invitations from Lavallee to be a "friend" or to become "members" of the" Facebook page? They make it sound like some kind of deception is taking place. In reality, Martin is just sending people invitations. This is what people do on the social web sites. There is no horrendous conspiracy here.

It would seem to be that if the sans-Guardian Baha'is are the true Faith of Baha'u'llah, as they claim, and that the Orthodox Baha'i Faith is false and cannot be recognized as "Baha'i", then they would not fear the OBF so much. If the OBF is false, then it cannot and will not prevail. So why worry? Are you really trying to protect your members so much as control them? It sounds more like a control question, since if you were worried about protecting them, you would not be so DISCREET about it, but instead you would be out there educating your members about what is true and what is false, so they can make up their own mind. Instead, you try to keep the truth away from them and convince them to avoid certain ideas because you know better.

The BIA is a very sick agency. The sans-Guardian Baha'i Faith, currently occupying Haifa and Wilmette, are bastardized versions of the Baha'i Administration as it was originally intended to be, and they are paranoid about the OBF because they know something is wrong and they have something to hide, and to hide from. This is a sign of spiritual sickness.

If you want to read their paranoid materials, you can find the Bahai Internet Agency Position papers online here:
http://www.abs.org.nz/blog/?p=11
http://www.bcca.org/bia/

Jeffrey

Posted at 09:10 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í

By Megan Kathleen Olsen

It‘s not easy being an Orthodox Bahá'í. I should know. I’ve been one most of my life.

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í means being at odds with the world. It means never fitting in, never belonging. It means losing friends from the time you’re a child. It means losing lovers and loved ones and family members. It means being turned away at churches and shunned by church communities. It means being persecuted not for what you’ve done but for who you are.

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í means being asked to give up food and water for nineteen days once a year no matter how inconvenient or difficult the task; no matter what your schedule is or how dry the climate is where you live. It means having to explain to your coworkers, friends and family why you can’t eat lunch with them. It means strange looks of confusion and pity. It means a hasty conclusion that you are not one of them. It means you are decidedly different.

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í means you hesitate to tell people who you are, because you grow tired of the perplexed stares. You become weary of the dismissals of your explanations. You become enervated when your answers almost always dissatisfy questioning people, who suddenly become frightened by the possibility of your words.

For me, being an Orthodox Bahá'í has meant losing friends in every school I went to. It has meant crying myself to sleep at night, because I felt so alone, so unusual. It has meant being a permanent outsider no matter how hard I tried to fit in. It has meant having a Heterodox Bahá'í coworker ask not to be scheduled the same hours as me once she found out who I was. It has meant being excluded from reading a prayer at my own grandmother’s funeral. It has meant assimilating, because I was tired of standing out.

So I ask myself: Why am I an Orthodox Bahá'í?

I’m an Orthodox Bahá'í because my heart tells me I am. Because my soul knows I am. Because I come from a long line of brave, bold people who taught me the fight for the truth is worth the risk of alienation, of isolation, of pain and fear. Because I am a fourth generation warrior for a Faith worth dying for.

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í has meant finding strength when I felt weak; courage when I was scared; faith when I was in doubt, and love when I had anger in my heart. It has meant standing up before an unwelcoming world that does not understand, does not listen, does not care. It has meant standing up and standing alone, no matter how hard the winds of adversity have tried to knock me down.

I am an Orthodox Bahá'í, and I would not have it any other way.

Posted at 08:19 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í

By Megan Kathleen Olsen

It‘s not easy being an Orthodox Bahá'í. I should know. I’ve been one most of my life.

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í means being at odds with the world. It means never fitting in, never belonging. It means losing friends from the time you’re a child. It means losing lovers and loved ones and family members. It means being turned away at churches and shunned by church communities. It means being persecuted not for what you’ve done but for who you are.

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í means being asked to give up food and water for nineteen days once a year no matter how inconvenient or difficult the task; no matter what your schedule is or how dry the climate is where you live. It means having to explain to your coworkers, friends and family why you can’t eat lunch with them. It means strange looks of confusion and pity. It means a hasty conclusion that you are not one of them. It means you are decidedly different.

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í means you hesitate to tell people who you are, because you grow tired of the perplexed stares. You become weary of the dismissals of your explanations. You become enervated when your answers almost always dissatisfy questioning people, who suddenly become frightened by the possibility of your words.

For me, being an Orthodox Bahá'í has meant losing friends in every school I went to. It has meant crying myself to sleep at night, because I felt so alone, so unusual. It has meant being a permanent outsider no matter how hard I tried to fit in. It has meant having a Heterodox Bahá'í coworker ask not to be scheduled the same hours as me once she found out who I was. It has meant being excluded from reading a prayer at my own grandmother’s funeral. It has meant assimilating, because I was tired of standing out.

So I ask myself: Why am I an Orthodox Bahá'í?

I’m an Orthodox Bahá'í because my heart tells me I am. Because my soul knows I am. Because I come from a long line of brave, bold people who taught me the fight for the truth is worth the risk of alienation, of isolation, of pain and fear. Because I am a fourth generation warrior for a Faith worth dying for.

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í has meant finding strength when I felt weak; courage when I was scared; faith when I was in doubt, and love when I had anger in my heart. It has meant standing up before an unwelcoming world that does not understand, does not listen, does not care. It has meant standing up and standing alone, no matter how hard the winds of adversity have tried to knock me down.

I am an Orthodox Bahá'í, and I would not have it any other way.

Posted at 08:19 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í

By Megan Kathleen Olsen

It‘s not easy being an Orthodox Bahá'í. I should know. I’ve been one most of my life.

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í means being at odds with the world. It means never fitting in, never belonging. It means losing friends from the time you’re a child. It means losing lovers and loved ones and family members. It means being turned away at churches and shunned by church communities. It means being persecuted not for what you’ve done but for who you are.

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í means being asked to give up food and water for nineteen days once a year no matter how inconvenient or difficult the task; no matter what your schedule is or how dry the climate is where you live. It means having to explain to your coworkers, friends and family why you can’t eat lunch with them. It means strange looks of confusion and pity. It means a hasty conclusion that you are not one of them. It means you are decidedly different.

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í means you hesitate to tell people who you are, because you grow tired of the perplexed stares. You become weary of the dismissals of your explanations. You become enervated when your answers almost always dissatisfy questioning people, who suddenly become frightened by the possibility of your words.

For me, being an Orthodox Bahá'í has meant losing friends in every school I went to. It has meant crying myself to sleep at night, because I felt so alone, so unusual. It has meant being a permanent outsider no matter how hard I tried to fit in. It has meant having a Heterodox Bahá'í coworker ask not to be scheduled the same hours as me once she found out who I was. It has meant being excluded from reading a prayer at my own grandmother’s funeral. It has meant assimilating, because I was tired of standing out.

So I ask myself: Why am I an Orthodox Bahá'í?

I’m an Orthodox Bahá'í because my heart tells me I am. Because my soul knows I am. Because I come from a long line of brave, bold people who taught me the fight for the truth is worth the risk of alienation, of isolation, of pain and fear. Because I am a fourth generation warrior for a Faith worth dying for.

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í has meant finding strength when I felt weak; courage when I was scared; faith when I was in doubt, and love when I had anger in my heart. It has meant standing up before an unwelcoming world that does not understand, does not listen, does not care. It has meant standing up and standing alone, no matter how hard the winds of adversity have tried to knock me down.

I am an Orthodox Bahá'í, and I would not have it any other way.

Posted at 08:19 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í

By Megan Kathleen Olsen

It‘s not easy being an Orthodox Bahá'í. I should know. I’ve been one most of my life.

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í means being at odds with the world. It means never fitting in, never belonging. It means losing friends from the time you’re a child. It means losing lovers and loved ones and family members. It means being turned away at churches and shunned by church communities. It means being persecuted not for what you’ve done but for who you are.

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í means being asked to give up food and water for nineteen days once a year no matter how inconvenient or difficult the task; no matter what your schedule is or how dry the climate is where you live. It means having to explain to your coworkers, friends and family why you can’t eat lunch with them. It means strange looks of confusion and pity. It means a hasty conclusion that you are not one of them. It means you are decidedly different.

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í means you hesitate to tell people who you are, because you grow tired of the perplexed stares. You become weary of the dismissals of your explanations. You become enervated when your answers almost always dissatisfy questioning people, who suddenly become frightened by the possibility of your words.

For me, being an Orthodox Bahá'í has meant losing friends in every school I went to. It has meant crying myself to sleep at night, because I felt so alone, so unusual. It has meant being a permanent outsider no matter how hard I tried to fit in. It has meant having a Heterodox Bahá'í coworker ask not to be scheduled the same hours as me once she found out who I was. It has meant being excluded from reading a prayer at my own grandmother’s funeral. It has meant assimilating, because I was tired of standing out.

So I ask myself: Why am I an Orthodox Bahá'í?

I’m an Orthodox Bahá'í because my heart tells me I am. Because my soul knows I am. Because I come from a long line of brave, bold people who taught me the fight for the truth is worth the risk of alienation, of isolation, of pain and fear. Because I am a fourth generation warrior for a Faith worth dying for.

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í has meant finding strength when I felt weak; courage when I was scared; faith when I was in doubt, and love when I had anger in my heart. It has meant standing up before an unwelcoming world that does not understand, does not listen, does not care. It has meant standing up and standing alone, no matter how hard the winds of adversity have tried to knock me down.

I am an Orthodox Bahá'í, and I would not have it any other way.

Posted at 08:19 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í

By Megan Kathleen Olsen

It‘s not easy being an Orthodox Bahá'í. I should know. I’ve been one most of my life.

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í means being at odds with the world. It means never fitting in, never belonging. It means losing friends from the time you’re a child. It means losing lovers and loved ones and family members. It means being turned away at churches and shunned by church communities. It means being persecuted not for what you’ve done but for who you are.

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í means being asked to give up food and water for nineteen days once a year no matter how inconvenient or difficult the task; no matter what your schedule is or how dry the climate is where you live. It means having to explain to your coworkers, friends and family why you can’t eat lunch with them. It means strange looks of confusion and pity. It means a hasty conclusion that you are not one of them. It means you are decidedly different.

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í means you hesitate to tell people who you are, because you grow tired of the perplexed stares. You become weary of the dismissals of your explanations. You become enervated when your answers almost always dissatisfy questioning people, who suddenly become frightened by the possibility of your words.

For me, being an Orthodox Bahá'í has meant losing friends in every school I went to. It has meant crying myself to sleep at night, because I felt so alone, so unusual. It has meant being a permanent outsider no matter how hard I tried to fit in. It has meant having a Heterodox Bahá'í coworker ask not to be scheduled the same hours as me once she found out who I was. It has meant being excluded from reading a prayer at my own grandmother’s funeral. It has meant assimilating, because I was tired of standing out.

So I ask myself: Why am I an Orthodox Bahá'í?

I’m an Orthodox Bahá'í because my heart tells me I am. Because my soul knows I am. Because I come from a long line of brave, bold people who taught me the fight for the truth is worth the risk of alienation, of isolation, of pain and fear. Because I am a fourth generation warrior for a Faith worth dying for.

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í has meant finding strength when I felt weak; courage when I was scared; faith when I was in doubt, and love when I had anger in my heart. It has meant standing up before an unwelcoming world that does not understand, does not listen, does not care. It has meant standing up and standing alone, no matter how hard the winds of adversity have tried to knock me down.

I am an Orthodox Bahá'í, and I would not have it any other way.

Posted at 08:19 PM | Permalink | Comments (3) | TrackBack (0)

True Bahá'í

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í

By Megan Kathleen Olsen

It‘s not easy being an Orthodox Bahá'í. I should know. I’ve been one most of my life.

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í means being at odds with the world. It means never fitting in, never belonging. It means losing friends from the time you’re a child. It means losing lovers and loved ones and family members. It means being turned away at churches and shunned by church communities. It means being persecuted not for what you’ve done but for who you are.

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í means being asked to give up food and water for nineteen days once a year no matter how inconvenient or difficult the task; no matter what your schedule is or how dry the climate is where you live. It means having to explain to your coworkers, friends and family why you can’t eat lunch with them. It means strange looks of confusion and pity. It means a hasty conclusion that you are not one of them. It means you are decidedly different.

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í means you hesitate to tell people who you are, because you grow tired of the perplexed stares. You become weary of the dismissals of your explanations. You become enervated when your answers almost always dissatisfy questioning people, who suddenly become frightened by the possibility of your words.

For me, being an Orthodox Bahá'í has meant losing friends in every school I went to. It has meant crying myself to sleep at night, because I felt so alone, so unusual. It has meant being a permanent outsider no matter how hard I tried to fit in. It has meant having a Heterodox Bahá'í coworker ask not to be scheduled the same hours as me once she found out who I was. It has meant being excluded from reading a prayer at my own grandmother’s funeral. It has meant assimilating, because I was tired of standing out.

So I ask myself: Why am I an Orthodox Bahá'í?

I’m an Orthodox Bahá'í because my heart tells me I am. Because my soul knows I am. Because I come from a long line of brave, bold people who taught me the fight for the truth is worth the risk of alienation, of isolation, of pain and fear. Because I am a fourth generation warrior for a Faith worth dying for.

Being an Orthodox Bahá'í has meant finding strength when I felt weak; courage when I was scared; faith when I was in doubt, and love when I had anger in my heart. It has meant standing up before an unwelcoming world that does not understand, does not listen, does not care. It has meant standing up and standing alone, no matter how hard the winds of adversity have tried to knock me down.

I am an Orthodox Bahá'í, and I would not have it any other way.

Posted at 08:19 PM | Permalink | Comments (3) | TrackBack (0)

True Bahá'í

What did he mean by the words "divorced from"?

In the discussions had by the Orthodox Baha'is about the importance of the living Guardianship to the Cause of Baha'u'llah, we often quote various provisions of the writings of Shoghi Effendi to indicate how the first Guardian of the Faith never wavered from his belief that the Guardianship would continue after his death. He alluded to future Guardians. He laid plans for the erection of the Seat of the Guardianship on Mount Carmel.

Somehow the sans-Guardian Baha'is seem to simply ignore it. I am sure they rationalize it by saying that the Guardian just didn't know the Guardianship would end. This is absurd because he would have known that he didn't appoint anyone to the position. If he never appointed anyone to succeed, and if he really was unable to appoint a successor, why was he wasting time on plans for the office of future guardians?

But there is one passage of Shoghi Effendi's writings that is difficult to explain away:

"Divorced from the institution of the Guardianship the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh would be mutilated and permanently deprived of that hereditary principle which, as 'Abdu'l-Bahá has written, has been invariably upheld by the Law of God. 'In all the Divine Dispensations,' He states, in a Tablet addressed to a follower of the Faith in Persia, 'the eldest son hath been given extraordinary distinctions. Even the station of prophethood hath been his birthright.' Without such an institution the integrity of the Faith would be imperiled, and the stability of the entire fabric would be gravely endangered. Its prestige would suffer, the means required to enable it to take a long, an uninterrupted view over a series of generations would be completely lacking, and the necessary guidance to define the sphere of the legislative action of its elected representatives would be totally withdrawn." (The World Order of Baha'u'llah, p. 148)(Emphasis added)

Now some of the more creative members of the sans-Guardian organization of violators, remarkably will argue that the Guardianship is not divorced from the World Order of Baha'u'llah. They would say that they always have Shoghi Effendi's writings, and therefore the Guardianship has not been divorced from the Faith.

Lets consider these words "divorced from". The dictionary definition is simply that it is severed or disunited from. There is no longer a living Guardian holding office in the sans-Guardian organization, and yet they believe the Guardianship has not been severed?

Imagine after your ex-wife wins the lottery, trying to suggest that you are not divorced from your ex-wife --- because why? You still have the wedding ring? You have old love letters? You were once her husband so you are not divorced?

I got to wondering whether Shoghi Effendi ever used the words "divorced from" in other contexts, and lo and behold I found some quotations (computers are fantastic). The emphasis in the quotes below were added.

1. Shoghi Effendi, on the Mashriqu'l-Adhkar:

"Divorced from the social, humanitarian, educational and scientific pursuits centering around the Dependencies of the Mashriqu'l-Adhkar, Bahá'í worship, however exalted in its conception, however passionate in fervor, can never hope to achieve beyond the meagre and often transitory results produced by the contemplations of the ascetic or the communion of the passive worshiper." (Baha'i Administration, p. 185)

A pattern seems to be emerging here. I suppose they could say that the Dependencies of the Mashriqu'l-Adhkar are not divorced from it because they once had a nursing home for the elderly at the Wilmette Baha'i House of Worship. Never mind the fact that they no longer have any Dependencies.

2. Shoghi Effendi, on the World Order of Baha'u'llah:

"{T]he Guardian feels the necessity for all teachers to stress the fact that the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh can, under no circumstances, be divorced from the spiritual principles and teachings of the Cause...." (Directives from the Guardian, p. 67)

Good one. Following their logic, they might argue that they once had spiritual principles and teachings of the Cause, so it is not divorced from them, even though everybody knows that there is nothing spiritual about the Baha'i administration of the sans-Guardian variety.

3. Shoghi Effendi, on true religion:

"Divorced from true religion, morals lose their effectiveness and cease to guide and control man's individual and social life. But when true religion is combined with true ethics, then moral progress becomes a possibility and not a mere ideal." (Directives from the Guardian, p. 84)

I think I am getting the hang of this rationalization thing. You just argue that you once had true religion combined with your morals, so moral progress is still a possibility?

4. Shoghi Effendi, on Sohrab (former secretary of Abdul-Baha):

"What he [Sohrab] teaches at present is so far divorced from our beloved Faith, and so tinged with the doctrines of many "cults" which we see thriving at present, as to be almost unrecognizable." (Light of Divine Guidance v I, p. 135)

I get it, but since Sohrab once faithfully followed the teachings, what he teaches is really not divorced from the Faith.

5. Shoghi Effendi on the Bab:

"The Faith of the Báb should not be divorced from that of Bahá'u'lláh." (The Unfolding Destiny of the British Baha'i Community, p. 426)

But we could throw it out now because since it was once united with the Faith of Baha'u'llah, its not really divorced from it.

6. Shoghi Effendi on the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá:

"Being the Child of the Covenant -- the Heir of both the Originator and the Interpreter of the Law of God -- the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá can no more be divorced from Him Who supplied the original and motivating impulse than from the One Who ultimately conceived it." (The World Order of Baha'u'llah, p. 144)

Yes, but we still have the Will and Testament even though we are no longer following it! I see how this rationalization works!

It makes no sense.

Jeffrey

Posted at 10:35 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

What did he mean by the words "divorced from"?

In the discussions had by the Orthodox Baha'is about the importance of the living Guardianship to the Cause of Baha'u'llah, we often quote various provisions of the writings of Shoghi Effendi to indicate how the first Guardian of the Faith never wavered from his belief that the Guardianship would continue after his death. He alluded to future Guardians. He laid plans for the erection of the Seat of the Guardianship on Mount Carmel.

Somehow the sans-Guardian Baha'is seem to simply ignore it. I am sure they rationalize it by saying that the Guardian just didn't know the Guardianship would end. This is absurd because he would have known that he didn't appoint anyone to the position. If he never appointed anyone to succeed, and if he really was unable to appoint a successor, why was he wasting time on plans for the office of future guardians?

But there is one passage of Shoghi Effendi's writings that is difficult to explain away:

"Divorced from the institution of the Guardianship the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh would be mutilated and permanently deprived of that hereditary principle which, as 'Abdu'l-Bahá has written, has been invariably upheld by the Law of God. 'In all the Divine Dispensations,' He states, in a Tablet addressed to a follower of the Faith in Persia, 'the eldest son hath been given extraordinary distinctions. Even the station of prophethood hath been his birthright.' Without such an institution the integrity of the Faith would be imperiled, and the stability of the entire fabric would be gravely endangered. Its prestige would suffer, the means required to enable it to take a long, an uninterrupted view over a series of generations would be completely lacking, and the necessary guidance to define the sphere of the legislative action of its elected representatives would be totally withdrawn." (The World Order of Baha'u'llah, p. 148)(Emphasis added)

Now some of the more creative members of the sans-Guardian organization of violators, remarkably will argue that the Guardianship is not divorced from the World Order of Baha'u'llah. They would say that they always have Shoghi Effendi's writings, and therefore the Guardianship has not been divorced from the Faith.

Lets consider these words "divorced from". The dictionary definition is simply that it is severed or disunited from. There is no longer a living Guardian holding office in the sans-Guardian organization, and yet they believe the Guardianship has not been severed?

Imagine after your ex-wife wins the lottery, trying to suggest that you are not divorced from your ex-wife --- because why? You still have the wedding ring? You have old love letters? You were once her husband so you are not divorced?

I got to wondering whether Shoghi Effendi ever used the words "divorced from" in other contexts, and lo and behold I found some quotations (computers are fantastic). The emphasis in the quotes below were added.

1. Shoghi Effendi, on the Mashriqu'l-Adhkar:

"Divorced from the social, humanitarian, educational and scientific pursuits centering around the Dependencies of the Mashriqu'l-Adhkar, Bahá'í worship, however exalted in its conception, however passionate in fervor, can never hope to achieve beyond the meagre and often transitory results produced by the contemplations of the ascetic or the communion of the passive worshiper." (Baha'i Administration, p. 185)

A pattern seems to be emerging here. I suppose they could say that the Dependencies of the Mashriqu'l-Adhkar are not divorced from it because they once had a nursing home for the elderly at the Wilmette Baha'i House of Worship. Never mind the fact that they no longer have any Dependencies.

2. Shoghi Effendi, on the World Order of Baha'u'llah:

"{T]he Guardian feels the necessity for all teachers to stress the fact that the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh can, under no circumstances, be divorced from the spiritual principles and teachings of the Cause...." (Directives from the Guardian, p. 67)

Good one. Following their logic, they might argue that they once had spiritual principles and teachings of the Cause, so it is not divorced from them, even though everybody knows that there is nothing spiritual about the Baha'i administration of the sans-Guardian variety.

3. Shoghi Effendi, on true religion:

"Divorced from true religion, morals lose their effectiveness and cease to guide and control man's individual and social life. But when true religion is combined with true ethics, then moral progress becomes a possibility and not a mere ideal." (Directives from the Guardian, p. 84)

I think I am getting the hang of this rationalization thing. You just argue that you once had true religion combined with your morals, so moral progress is still a possibility?

4. Shoghi Effendi, on Sohrab (former secretary of Abdul-Baha):

"What he [Sohrab] teaches at present is so far divorced from our beloved Faith, and so tinged with the doctrines of many "cults" which we see thriving at present, as to be almost unrecognizable." (Light of Divine Guidance v I, p. 135)

I get it, but since Sohrab once faithfully followed the teachings, what he teaches is really not divorced from the Faith.

5. Shoghi Effendi on the Bab:

"The Faith of the Báb should not be divorced from that of Bahá'u'lláh." (The Unfolding Destiny of the British Baha'i Community, p. 426)

But we could throw it out now because since it was once united with the Faith of Baha'u'llah, its not really divorced from it.

6. Shoghi Effendi on the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá:

"Being the Child of the Covenant -- the Heir of both the Originator and the Interpreter of the Law of God -- the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá can no more be divorced from Him Who supplied the original and motivating impulse than from the One Who ultimately conceived it." (The World Order of Baha'u'llah, p. 144)

Yes, but we still have the Will and Testament even though we are no longer following it! I see how this rationalization works!

It makes no sense.

Jeffrey

Posted at 10:35 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

60 second explanation of the Baha'i Covenant

In this 60-second explanation, Stephen Rhodes, one of the members of the National Council of the Orthodox Baha'is for the United States, covers all anyone needs to know about the Covenant of Baha'u'llah:

Posted at 05:03 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

60 second explanation of the Baha'i Covenant

In this 60-second explanation, Stephen Rhodes, one of the members of the National Council of the Orthodox Baha'is for the United States, covers all anyone needs to know about the Covenant of Baha'u'llah:

Posted at 05:03 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

60 second explanation of the Baha'i Covenant

In this 60-second explanation, Stephen Rhodes, one of the members of the National Council of the Orthodox Baha'is for the United States, covers all anyone needs to know about the Covenant of Baha'u'llah:

Posted at 05:03 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

"Conflict and contention are categorically forbidden"

In the Kitab-i-'Ahd (Book of the Covenant), Bahá'u'lláh says:

"Conflict and contention are categorically forbidden in His Book. This is a decree of God in this Most Great Revelation. It is divinely preserved from annulment and is invested by Him with the splendour of His confirmation. Verily He is the All-Knowing, the All-Wise."

"Conflict and contention are categorically forbidden," and that means conflict and contention are forbidden without exceptions or conditions.

It is absolute, unqualified and unconditional that Bahá'ís may not engage in conflict and contention.

In the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá, He says that "[i]n this sacred Dispensation, conflict and contention are in no wise permitted. Every aggressor deprives himself of God's grace."

Conflict and contention are in "no wise" permitted. That is, no way.

I do believe in the rule of law. I do believe that, in civil matters, one sometimes has to resort to the civil courts. Also, I do believe in defending one's self if brought into court. But it is unseemly and wrong for Bahá'í denominations to quarrel with one another in secular courts over the right of each other to publicly exist, each other's use of the Greatest Name, and over matters of faith and belief. Since the aggressor deprives himself of God's grace, it would behoove all of the Bahá'ís, and the various denominations such as they exist, to strictly avoid battling in lawsuits in the secular courts.

Not only is this lawsuit contention forbidden, it is embarrassing. To the public, it appears no different than the religious disputes of other faiths. It is no different. It cannot be different unless and until we obey Bahá'u'lláh.

What is needed is consultation. Brutally honest, frank, and open consultation is what is needed. I have no fear of verbal warfare over the various ideas and beliefs held by the Bahá'í denominations. Let everyone speak and be heard. Don't hold back on the exchange of ideas. I believe true consultation arrives one at the Truth, and that the Truth will ultimately prevail. We do not want to air our issues before secular judges. The issues that divide us can only be decided in the hearts and minds of Bahá'ís, through the use of consultation, and in obedience to Bahá'u'lláh.

Jeffrey

Posted at 11:09 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

"Conflict and contention are categorically forbidden"

In the Kitab-i-'Ahd (Book of the Covenant), Bahá'u'lláh says:

"Conflict and contention are categorically forbidden in His Book. This is a decree of God in this Most Great Revelation. It is divinely preserved from annulment and is invested by Him with the splendour of His confirmation. Verily He is the All-Knowing, the All-Wise."

"Conflict and contention are categorically forbidden," and that means conflict and contention are forbidden without exceptions or conditions.

It is absolute, unqualified and unconditional that Bahá'ís may not engage in conflict and contention.

In the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá, He says that "[i]n this sacred Dispensation, conflict and contention are in no wise permitted. Every aggressor deprives himself of God's grace."

Conflict and contention are in "no wise" permitted. That is, no way.

I do believe in the rule of law. I do believe that, in civil matters, one sometimes has to resort to the civil courts. Also, I do believe in defending one's self if brought into court. But it is unseemly and wrong for Bahá'í denominations to quarrel with one another in secular courts over the right of each other to publicly exist, each other's use of the Greatest Name, and over matters of faith and belief. Since the aggressor deprives himself of God's grace, it would behoove all of the Bahá'ís, and the various denominations such as they exist, to strictly avoid battling in lawsuits in the secular courts.

Not only is this lawsuit contention forbidden, it is embarrassing. To the public, it appears no different than the religious disputes of other faiths. It is no different. It cannot be different unless and until we obey Bahá'u'lláh.

What is needed is consultation. Brutally honest, frank, and open consultation is what is needed. I have no fear of verbal warfare over the various ideas and beliefs held by the Bahá'í denominations. Let everyone speak and be heard. Don't hold back on the exchange of ideas. I believe true consultation arrives one at the Truth, and that the Truth will ultimately prevail. We do not want to air our issues before secular judges. The issues that divide us can only be decided in the hearts and minds of Bahá'ís, through the use of consultation, and in obedience to Bahá'u'lláh.

Jeffrey

Posted at 11:09 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

"Conflict and contention are categorically forbidden"

In the Kitab-i-'Ahd (Book of the Covenant), Bahá'u'lláh says:

"Conflict and contention are categorically forbidden in His Book. This is a decree of God in this Most Great Revelation. It is divinely preserved from annulment and is invested by Him with the splendour of His confirmation. Verily He is the All-Knowing, the All-Wise."

"Conflict and contention are categorically forbidden," and that means conflict and contention are forbidden without exceptions or conditions.

It is absolute, unqualified and unconditional that Bahá'ís may not engage in conflict and contention.

In the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá, He says that "[i]n this sacred Dispensation, conflict and contention are in no wise permitted. Every aggressor deprives himself of God's grace."

Conflict and contention are in "no wise" permitted. That is, no way.

I do believe in the rule of law. I do believe that, in civil matters, one sometimes has to resort to the civil courts. Also, I do believe in defending one's self if brought into court. But it is unseemly and wrong for Bahá'í denominations to quarrel with one another in secular courts over the right of each other to publicly exist, each other's use of the Greatest Name, and over matters of faith and belief. Since the aggressor deprives himself of God's grace, it would behoove all of the Bahá'ís, and the various denominations such as they exist, to strictly avoid battling in lawsuits in the secular courts.

Not only is this lawsuit contention forbidden, it is embarrassing. To the public, it appears no different than the religious disputes of other faiths. It is no different. It cannot be different unless and until we obey Bahá'u'lláh.

What is needed is consultation. Brutally honest, frank, and open consultation is what is needed. I have no fear of verbal warfare over the various ideas and beliefs held by the Bahá'í denominations. Let everyone speak and be heard. Don't hold back on the exchange of ideas. I believe true consultation arrives one at the Truth, and that the Truth will ultimately prevail. We do not want to air our issues before secular judges. The issues that divide us can only be decided in the hearts and minds of Bahá'ís, through the use of consultation, and in obedience to Bahá'u'lláh.

Jeffrey

Posted at 11:09 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

"Conflict and contention are categorically forbidden"

In the Kitab-i-'Ahd (Book of the Covenant), Bahá'u'lláh says:

"Conflict and contention are categorically forbidden in His Book. This is a decree of God in this Most Great Revelation. It is divinely preserved from annulment and is invested by Him with the splendour of His confirmation. Verily He is the All-Knowing, the All-Wise."

"Conflict and contention are categorically forbidden," and that means conflict and contention are forbidden without exceptions or conditions.

It is absolute, unqualified and unconditional that Bahá'ís may not engage in conflict and contention.

In the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá, He says that "[i]n this sacred Dispensation, conflict and contention are in no wise permitted. Every aggressor deprives himself of God's grace."

Conflict and contention are in "no wise" permitted. That is, no way.

I do believe in the rule of law. I do believe that, in civil matters, one sometimes has to resort to the civil courts. Also, I do believe in defending one's self if brought into court. But it is unseemly and wrong for Bahá'í denominations to quarrel with one another in secular courts over the right of each other to publicly exist, each other's use of the Greatest Name, and over matters of faith and belief. Since the aggressor deprives himself of God's grace, it would behoove all of the Bahá'ís, and the various denominations such as they exist, to strictly avoid battling in lawsuits in the secular courts.

Not only is this lawsuit contention forbidden, it is embarrassing. To the public, it appears no different than the religious disputes of other faiths. It is no different. It cannot be different unless and until we obey Bahá'u'lláh.

What is needed is consultation. Brutally honest, frank, and open consultation is what is needed. I have no fear of verbal warfare over the various ideas and beliefs held by the Bahá'í denominations. Let everyone speak and be heard. Don't hold back on the exchange of ideas. I believe true consultation arrives one at the Truth, and that the Truth will ultimately prevail. We do not want to air our issues before secular judges. The issues that divide us can only be decided in the hearts and minds of Bahá'ís, through the use of consultation, and in obedience to Bahá'u'lláh.

Jeffrey

Posted at 11:09 AM | Permalink | Comments (1)

True Bahá'í

Rejection of the Guardianship leads to spiritual death

Before Charles Mason Remey announced to the Bahá'í world that he had been appointed by Shoghi Effendi to be the second Guardian, he made a number of private appeals to the Custodian Hands to patiently explain to them how and why their scheme to elect a Universal House of Justice without the Guardian as its sacred head was a violation of the Master's Will and Testament and to urge them to accept his authority as the President of the International Bahá'í Council, an office that was synonymous with being the second Guardian. Those appeals, which are partially quoted below, can be found here: http://www.bahai-guardian.com/appeals.

First, Mason Remey points out that the life of the Faith results from the outpouring of the Holy Spirit, and spiritual death results from being cut off from this Spirit released in this Day by Bahá'u'lláh:

"In the teachings of the Bahá'í Faith we are constantly reminded that it is only through the operation of THE HOLY SPIRIT that the divine blessings of the Abhá Kingdom can give mankind spiritual life, In other words that the spiritual life of the Faith depends upon the out-pouring of The Holy Spirit as does the growth and the spread of the Faith. In other words, the very spiritual functioning of the religion of God in all of its appearances here upon earth down through the history of the many divine Dispensations of the past and as it always shall be throughout all those of time to come is through the intermediary of The Holy Spirit. This is the channel or the method of Almighty God through which His greatest blessing, that of the Life Eternal, works for the divinely spiritual uplift and will-being of mankind and woe be to those who cut themselves off from the flow of The Holy Spirit for to be cut off from its flow means spiritual death."

Mr. Remey then goes on to state that after Baha'u'llah ascended to the Abhá Kingdom, the channel through which the Holy Spirit appeared, flowing from Baha'u'llah, was ‘Abdu'l-Bahá:

"After Baha'u'llah, His Beloved Son, the Center of His Covenant ‘Abdu'l-Bahá, became the channel through which The Holy Spirit, coming through from Bahá'u'lláh, was diffused to those who turned to Him (‘Abdu'l-Bahá) while those who turned against Him cut themselves off from the Abhá Holy Spirit to find themselves indeed in darkness."

Upon ‘Abdu'l-Bahá's death, the Holy Spirit flows through the office of the Guardianship, the Center of the Cause, according to the provisions of His Will and Testament:

"In The Will and Testament of the Blessed Master Abdu’l-Bahá, He explicitly establishes the Guardianship as the Center upon this earth about which all should revolve, the Center of Guidance through and from which those of the Bahá’í Faith would be vouchsafed infallible guidance and the source and the only source to the world of Divine Guidance.

"In other words, the Institution of the Guardianship is the channel and the only channel through which The Holy Spirit can reach the world throughout the centuries to come of this Bahá'í Dispensation. The working out of this Divine Guidance was demonstrated with great clarity in the mission of the first Guardian of the Faith, Shoghi Effendi. Of that the Hands of the Faith are amply aware.

"But now??? In this interregnum between the first and a second Guardian of the Faith, the source of the light of the Faith is in eclipse and the Cause is without infallible direction. The Will and Testament of the Master with the Institution of the Guardianship being transgressed, or in other words, violated so with this conditions The Holy Spirit no longer can reach the Hands of the Faith who for the moment thus lead the Faith blindly the world around and in darkness. In our present state of confusion and dilemma of this departure from the Administration of The Will and Testament, they the Hands of the Faith, have set up a form of Bahá'í government quite different and foreign to anything in The Will and Testament, deceiving themselves and now they are frantically attempting to justify their actions in following this violation by promising to the Bahá’ís at large that they will form a Universal House of Justice in 1963 that will give them infallibility and thus replace any need for the function of the Guardianship, thus they are attempting the impossible and this attempt can only bring added confusion to that which we of the Faith are already suffering."

Our second Guardian was very clear and explicit about this matter. To reject the

Guardianship was to reject the Holy Spirit, "...the one unforgivable sin, the blasphemy; against The Holy Ghost, of which Christ taught that was not forgiven in this world nor in the worlds to come through all eternity!"

If you suddenly awaken from your spiritual slumber and realize that you are on the wrong side here, that your sans-Guardian organization is missing the flow of divine guidance that only comes from the Holy Spirit, which in this Day flows from Bahá'u'lláh to the living Guardian of the Cause, then it is not at all too late to retrace your steps. Your first duty is to recognize the validity of the second Guardian so that you can then follow his command to recognize and to obey the third Guardian, the living Guardian, Joel B. Marangella.

The authority of Mason Remey was never complicated, so it just needs to be faced and understood. Nobody else had authority after the passing of Shoghi Effendi, except for Mason Remey:

"Now since the departure from this world of Shoghi Effendi, the responsibilities of the International Council and everything connected with it are my responsibility – a responsibility such as no other Bahá'í carries or possesses. Mine is now the sole and the exclusive right to handle the affairs of the International Council. Such is the responsibility and call conferred upon me by our Beloved Guardian that went into effect at his death in November 1957.... Therefore I hold that nothing be done by any one or by any ones other than I, myself, toward anything at all that concerns the Bahá'í International Council, and this means the Hands of the Faith are at all times to be under the direction and command of the Guardian of the Faith, and my authority to direct the affairs of the International Council, to direct them of myself, independent of and free from all authority, was conferred upon me by the Beloved Guardian; thus these powers became mine automatically at the death of the first Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith."

The Hands arbitraily rejected the authority of Mason Remey and the International Baha'i Council, and arbitrarily asserted their own authority, and to this day the sans-Guardian organization is cut off from the power of the Holy Spirit and will remain so unless and until the Bahá'ís turn to the Guardian and accept his authority.

The living third Guardian's web site:
http://www.bahai-guardian.com/

Jeffrey

Posted at 05:38 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Rejection of the Guardianship leads to spiritual death

Before Charles Mason Remey announced to the Bahá'í world that he had been appointed by Shoghi Effendi to be the second Guardian, he made a number of private appeals to the Custodian Hands to patiently explain to them how and why their scheme to elect a Universal House of Justice without the Guardian as its sacred head was a violation of the Master's Will and Testament and to urge them to accept his authority as the President of the International Bahá'í Council, an office that was synonymous with being the second Guardian. Those appeals, which are partially quoted below, can be found here: http://www.bahai-guardian.com/appeals.

First, Mason Remey points out that the life of the Faith results from the outpouring of the Holy Spirit, and spiritual death results from being cut off from this Spirit released in this Day by Bahá'u'lláh:

"In the teachings of the Bahá'í Faith we are constantly reminded that it is only through the operation of THE HOLY SPIRIT that the divine blessings of the Abhá Kingdom can give mankind spiritual life, In other words that the spiritual life of the Faith depends upon the out-pouring of The Holy Spirit as does the growth and the spread of the Faith. In other words, the very spiritual functioning of the religion of God in all of its appearances here upon earth down through the history of the many divine Dispensations of the past and as it always shall be throughout all those of time to come is through the intermediary of The Holy Spirit. This is the channel or the method of Almighty God through which His greatest blessing, that of the Life Eternal, works for the divinely spiritual uplift and will-being of mankind and woe be to those who cut themselves off from the flow of The Holy Spirit for to be cut off from its flow means spiritual death."

Mr. Remey then goes on to state that after Baha'u'llah ascended to the Abhá Kingdom, the channel through which the Holy Spirit appeared, flowing from Baha'u'llah, was ‘Abdu'l-Bahá:

"After Baha'u'llah, His Beloved Son, the Center of His Covenant ‘Abdu'l-Bahá, became the channel through which The Holy Spirit, coming through from Bahá'u'lláh, was diffused to those who turned to Him (‘Abdu'l-Bahá) while those who turned against Him cut themselves off from the Abhá Holy Spirit to find themselves indeed in darkness."

Upon ‘Abdu'l-Bahá's death, the Holy Spirit flows through the office of the Guardianship, the Center of the Cause, according to the provisions of His Will and Testament:

"In The Will and Testament of the Blessed Master Abdu’l-Bahá, He explicitly establishes the Guardianship as the Center upon this earth about which all should revolve, the Center of Guidance through and from which those of the Bahá’í Faith would be vouchsafed infallible guidance and the source and the only source to the world of Divine Guidance.

"In other words, the Institution of the Guardianship is the channel and the only channel through which The Holy Spirit can reach the world throughout the centuries to come of this Bahá'í Dispensation. The working out of this Divine Guidance was demonstrated with great clarity in the mission of the first Guardian of the Faith, Shoghi Effendi. Of that the Hands of the Faith are amply aware.

"But now??? In this interregnum between the first and a second Guardian of the Faith, the source of the light of the Faith is in eclipse and the Cause is without infallible direction. The Will and Testament of the Master with the Institution of the Guardianship being transgressed, or in other words, violated so with this conditions The Holy Spirit no longer can reach the Hands of the Faith who for the moment thus lead the Faith blindly the world around and in darkness. In our present state of confusion and dilemma of this departure from the Administration of The Will and Testament, they the Hands of the Faith, have set up a form of Bahá'í government quite different and foreign to anything in The Will and Testament, deceiving themselves and now they are frantically attempting to justify their actions in following this violation by promising to the Bahá’ís at large that they will form a Universal House of Justice in 1963 that will give them infallibility and thus replace any need for the function of the Guardianship, thus they are attempting the impossible and this attempt can only bring added confusion to that which we of the Faith are already suffering."

Our second Guardian was very clear and explicit about this matter. To reject the

Guardianship was to reject the Holy Spirit, "...the one unforgivable sin, the blasphemy; against The Holy Ghost, of which Christ taught that was not forgiven in this world nor in the worlds to come through all eternity!"

If you suddenly awaken from your spiritual slumber and realize that you are on the wrong side here, that your sans-Guardian organization is missing the flow of divine guidance that only comes from the Holy Spirit, which in this Day flows from Bahá'u'lláh to the living Guardian of the Cause, then it is not at all too late to retrace your steps. Your first duty is to recognize the validity of the second Guardian so that you can then follow his command to recognize and to obey the third Guardian, the living Guardian, Joel B. Marangella.

The authority of Mason Remey was never complicated, so it just needs to be faced and understood. Nobody else had authority after the passing of Shoghi Effendi, except for Mason Remey:

"Now since the departure from this world of Shoghi Effendi, the responsibilities of the International Council and everything connected with it are my responsibility – a responsibility such as no other Bahá'í carries or possesses. Mine is now the sole and the exclusive right to handle the affairs of the International Council. Such is the responsibility and call conferred upon me by our Beloved Guardian that went into effect at his death in November 1957.... Therefore I hold that nothing be done by any one or by any ones other than I, myself, toward anything at all that concerns the Bahá'í International Council, and this means the Hands of the Faith are at all times to be under the direction and command of the Guardian of the Faith, and my authority to direct the affairs of the International Council, to direct them of myself, independent of and free from all authority, was conferred upon me by the Beloved Guardian; thus these powers became mine automatically at the death of the first Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith."

The Hands arbitraily rejected the authority of Mason Remey and the International Baha'i Council, and arbitrarily asserted their own authority, and to this day the sans-Guardian organization is cut off from the power of the Holy Spirit and will remain so unless and until the Bahá'ís turn to the Guardian and accept his authority.

The living third Guardian's web site:
http://www.bahai-guardian.com/

Jeffrey

Posted at 05:38 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Response to Facebook discussion on the Covenant

My dear friend, Martin, who has created his own Orthodox Baha'i group on Facebook sent me the latest discussions about the Covenant and the Orthodox Baha'is, and I thought I would respond here.

Martin:
Dear friends,

Some discussions on the Orthodox Baha'is occur in the group Baha'is on Facebook. I quote here that discussion. Love!

Maher:
I'm not a Baha'i, but I find that this religion is great in it's rules (while I'm not sure if it's true), except one thing, the usual Baha'is and the Orthodox Baha'is don't even talk to each other, just like to know why....thx

Jeffrey:
Not quite true, Maher. The Orthodox Baha'is do not shun the "usual Baha'is" but they shun us. They shun anyone who will even talk to us. They have taken the teachings of the Faith that were meant to protect the Faith from violation and they have twisted them in order to further their own violation. They shun us in an attempt to silence the truth.

Replies
by Adib
We don't shun them as if they do not exist in this world. We can still work with them in regards to business matters and so forth (I need to fnid the quotes for all this).
But Baha'u'llah stated that Covenant Breakers are poison to the Cause of the Baha'i Faith. Not saying that the individuals are hideous or anything, but the concepts they are taught and carry have negative influence on the general Baha'i population.
Anyway, this is my opinion.

I guess we need more information on this one :)

Jeffrey:
You certainly do need more information. If you are going to talk about what Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha said about covenant breakers, you need to stop and think with your own minds for a minute and ask yourselves how they defined what is a covenant breaker. If you went back and studied this, you would find that it is the so-called "usual Baha'is" who are the covenant breakers and poison to the Cause. Why? Because covenant breaking is opposition to the Center. That is, opposition to Abdu'l-Baha and then to the Guardian of the Cause. Covenant breaking means opposition to the Guardian. After the Hands deposed the Guardian and the original embryonic UHJ established by Shoghi Effendi, they substituted the Center for their own headless UHJ. All of a sudden, the definition of a covenant breaker became one who opposes their illegitimate UHJ. The UHJ of the original teachings had a Guardian as its head, but their UHJ has no Guardian. They are opposed to the true Faith.

by Patsy
Generally a covenant breaker is someone who disputes the authority of the Covenant. Baha'u'llah appointed Abdu'l Baha. With most of His family turning away from that truth (the wheat from the chaff) Abdu'l Baha went about His Fathers business. Later He appointed Shoghi Effendi as the Guardian and the same thing happened. When Shoghi Effendi died, one of the Hands decided he was the next Guardian. The other Hands worked to follow Shoghi Effendi's plans and to establish the Universal House of Justice. In each of these scenarios, someone demanded power and authority. But those who were given that power and authority never once used it for their own good.
I have a feeling "Orthodox" followed Mason Remy, the Hand. I saw it once in the New York phone book when I was a Baha'i of 2 weeks and stuck in NY. My instinct told me it wasn't right. I guess for me it's like drinking coffee while driving, it's a dangerous distraction, and you could get burned.
The scholars on this discussion board have likely found all their quotes by now and will be with you shortly.
(Darn! Whenever I put my tongue in my cheek, I bite it!)

The Will and Testament of Abdul-Baha did not establish merely the Guardianship of Shoghi Effendi. He established an Institution that is one of the twin pillars of the Baha'i Commonwealth, to be occupied by a living man throughout the Dispensation of Baha'u'llah. He appointed Shoghi Effendi as the first Guardian.

One of the Hands did not decide he was the Guardian. Rather, he announced that Shoghi Effendi had indicated his successor by appointing Mason Remey to be the head of the embryonic UHJ, an office that could only be held by a future Guardian. Upon Shoghi Effendi's death, Mason Remey became the Guardian and the International Baha'i Council, as established by Shoghi Effendi, was activated and the twin pillars began operating as the head of the Faith. The group of renegade Hands, led by Ruhiyyih Khanum would not accept anyone as Guardian after Shoghi Effendi, engineered a coup to declare the Guardianship as ended and they secretly plotted to elect a UHJ without a Guardian as its head. When Mason Remey stood up against the violation of the Faith, they put him out of the Faith, opposing the Guardian and breaking the Covenant.

The ones who "grabbed power and authority" was not Mason Remey and his followers. It was the Hands and all of you who have followed them into violation of the Covenant and opposition to the Guardian of the Cause.

by Sean:
Maher if there's one thing I hope that you know about the Bahai Faith is that it teaches that what the world needs now most is UNITY.

The whole purpose of the Bahai Faith is Unity. Unite all races, religions, creeds, tribes, and peoples together.

To achieve that aim Baha'u'llah made sure to preventive the schism that religions of the past suffered immediately after the founder died.

Baha'u'llah named Abdu'l-Baha as his successor. Abdu'l-Baha in turn named Shoghi Effendi the Guardian of the Bahai Faith in his Will and Testament. Shoghi Effendi in turn laid the stage for the election of the Universal House of Justice which Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha had already written about as the head of the Bahai Faith.

In the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha it is stated

O ye beloved of the Lord! It is incumbent upon the guardian of the Cause of God to appoint in his own life-time him that shall become his successor, that differences may not arise after his passing. He that is appointed must manifest in himself detachment from all worldly things, must be the essence of purity, must show in himself the fear of God, knowledge, wisdom and learning. Thus, should the first-born of the guardian of the Cause of God not manifest in himself the truth of the words: -- "The child is the secret essence of its sire," that is, should he not inherit of the spiritual within him (the guardian of the Cause of God) and his glorious lineage not be matched with a goodly character, then must he (the guardian of the Cause of God), choose another branch to succeed him.

(Abdu'l-Baha, Baha'i World Faith - Abdu'l-Baha Section, p. 443)

Unfortunately, Shoghi Effendi died without warning and without naming a successor. The Hands of the Cause of God, unanimously affirmed that Shoghi Effendi had died without leaving behind a successor (they looked very hard!). Even Charles Mason Remey, a later Archbreaker of the Covenant wrote and affirmed that Shoghi Effendi had died without leaving a successor.

Shoghi Effendi called the Hands of the Cause of God "the Chief Stewards of Bahá'u'lláh's embryonic World Commonwealth, who have been invested by the unerring Pen of the Center of His Covenant with the dual function of guarding over the security, and of insuring the propagation, of His Father's Faith."

(Shoghi Effendi, Messages to the Baha'i World - 1950-1957, p. 127)

As such, after the passing of Shoghi Effendi, they held together the faith and continued Shoghi Effendi's plans for the election of the Universal House of Justice in 1963.

Unfortunately, although Charles Mason Remey was a highly praised Bahai, he fell into pride and arrogantly declared that he was the next Guardian of the Bahai Faith and that the Hands should stop trying to elect the Universal House of Justice.

Charles Mason Remey never addressed the fact the requirement that a Guardian must be a "branch", a direct descendant of Baha'u'llah. Sometimes Covenant Breakers try to say that a branch does not mean a descendant of Baha'u'llah but this directly contradicts Shoghi Effendi's affirmation (or what we already knew)

1548. The Term 'Afnan' Refers to Believers of the Bab

"The term 'Afnan' means literally small branch, and refers to the relatives of the Báb, both men and women. As the Báb's only son died while in infancy, the former had no direct descendants. The 'Afnan' are, therefore, all indirectly related to the Báb.

"As to 'Aghsan', it also means branch. But is a bigger branch than 'Afnan'. It refers to Bahá'u'lláh's descendants."

(From a letter written on behalf of Shoghi Effendi to an individual believer, September 25, 1934)
(Compilations, Lights of Guidance, p. 470)

Trying to divide the Faith of God is repeatedly referred to as a transgression against Him. One such quote says...

All must be under his shadow and obey his command. Should any, within or without the company of the Hands of the Cause of God disobey and seek division, the wrath of God and His vengeance will be upon him, for he will have caused a breach in the true Faith of God.
(Abdu'l-Baha, The Will and Testament, p. 12)

and...

They whom God hath endued with insight will readily recognize that the precepts laid down by God constitute the highest means for the maintenance of order in the world and the security of its peoples. He that turneth away from them, is accounted among the abject and foolish. We, verily, have commanded you to refuse the dictates of your evil passions and corrupt desires, and not to transgress the bounds which the Pen of the Most High hath fixed, for these are the breath of life unto all created things. The seas of Divine wisdom and divine utterance have risen under the breath of the breeze of the All-Merciful. Hasten to drink your fill, O men of understanding! They that have violated the Covenant of God by breaking His commandments, and have turned back on their heels, these have erred grievously in the sight of God, the All-Possessing, the Most High.

O ye peoples of the world! Know assuredly that My commandments are the lamps of My loving providence among My servants, and the keys of My mercy for My creatures. Thus hath it been sent down from the heaven of the Will of your Lord, the Lord of Revelation. Were any man to taste the sweetness of the words which the lips of the All-Merciful have willed to utter, he would, though the treasures of the earth be in his possession, renounce them one and all, that he might vindicate the truth of even one of His commandments, shining above the day spring of His bountiful care and loving-kindness.

(Baha'u'llah, Gleanings from the Writings of Baha'u'llah, p. 331)

Regarding why Bahais are not to associate with Covenant Breakers, I hope that the following quote will adequately answer your question.

45 COVENANT BREAKERS (Shun)

"... Bahá'u'lláh and the Master in many places and very emphatically have told us to shun entirely all Covenant breakers as they are afflicted with what we might try and define as a contagious spiritual disease; they have also told us, however, to pray for them. These souls are not lost forever. In the Aqdas, Bahá'u'lláh says that God will forgive Mirza Yahya if he repents. It follows, therefore, that God will forgive any soul if he repents. Most of them don't want to repent, unfortunately. If the leaders can be forgiven it goes without saying that their followers can also be forgiven...

"Also, it has nothing to do with unity in the Cause; if a man cuts a cancer out of his body to preserve his health and very life, no one would suggest that for the sake of unity it should be reintroduced into the otherwise healthy organism. On the contrary, what was once a part of him has so radically changed as to have become a poison."

(Shoghi Effendi, Directives from the Guardian, p. 16)

Let me know if I can be of any more help Maher. Have a great day.

Jeffrey:
I feel like I have been bombarded with distortion and twisted meanings, and the fact that they employ these tactics in order to establish their leadership is proof enough to me that they are false and they have usurped the authority of the true head of the Faith, and then have the audacity to call those of use who have remained faithful to the Guardianship as covenant breakers and poison.

I will respond to each of the points raised in this sickening repudiation of the Guardianship of the Cause.

It is true that the Baha'i Faith is about unity. But you have conveniently forgotten that Abdul-Baha has clearly directed us that unity can only be achieved by obedience to the Guardian: "The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the Guardian of the Cause of God. It is incumbent upon the members of the House of Justice, upon all the Aghsan, the Afnan, the Hands of the Cause of God to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the Guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him. He that opposeth him hath opposed the True One, will make a breach in the Cause of God, will subvert His Word and will become a manifestation of the Center of Sedition. Beware, beware, lest the days after the ascension (of Bahá'u'lláh) be repeated when the Center of Sedition waxed haughty and rebellious and with Divine Unity for his excuse deprived himself and perturbed and poisoned others. No doubt every vainglorious one that purposeth dissension and discord will not openly declare his evil purposes, nay rather, even as impure gold, will he seize upon divers measures and various pretexts that he may separate the gathering of the people of Baha." Will and Testament, pp. 11-12

Shoghi Effendi did in fact appoint his successor, in his own lifetime, as the Will and Testament required him to do. He appointed Mason Remey to head the IBC, the embyronic UHJ created by Shoghi Effendi in its inactive state. Mason Remey and the other Hands announced that they did not find a will appointing a Guardian. They did not announce there was no Guardian. To the contrary, their decision to abolish the Guardianship was kept a secret at the time. Mason Remey argued against the Hand's violation for two years before he finally publicly denounced their violation.

The Hands did not carry out Shoghi Effendi's wishes. There is nothing in any of the writings of Shoghi Effendi to intimate that the Hands were to seize administrative authority over the Cause, to declare Mason Remey as a covenant breaker and to install a headless UHJ. The Hands usurped their authority, on a weak argument that Shoghi Effendi had referred to them as Chief Stewards. The reality is the Hands had no authority and they violated the Covenant.

The argument that only an Aghsan could be a Guardian is false. This refers to the Sons of Baha'u'llah. It was Abdu'l-Baha who changed the successor of the Cause from the Aghsan to the Guardianship. The Master made it clear that the position was appointed. Nobody can oppose the Guardian's choice of successor. On the pretext that Mason Remey was not qualified to hold office, the Hands rejected the Guardian's choice.

by Maher:
So don't you talk to them as people? or you just don't talk to them abt religion?

I mean if an Orthodox-Baha'i is with you, what do you do?

Anyway I guess that God looks into the person's deeds not religion, I think God knows if we wanna be bad or wanna be good, and usually people don't believe in the same thing, everyone's perfect belief system is different from the other. So we should respect each other, and understand that the only goal most people are going to is the ultimate truth (God).

Jeffrey:
The shunning practiced by the large group of Baha'is is used as a cult like practice to keep people from knowing the truth. If you associate with someone they claim is a covenant breaker, they will threaten to shun you unless you agree to stop associating. They break apart families and they use manipulation and threats to hold on to their authority. I agree that we should all respect each other's right to practice our religion as we see fit. But this group does not agree. In fact they have taken us to Court to try to prevent us from calling ourselves "Baha'i."

Posted at 09:10 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Response to Facebook discussion on the Covenant

My dear friend, Martin, who has created his own Orthodox Baha'i group on Facebook sent me the latest discussions about the Covenant and the Orthodox Baha'is, and I thought I would respond here.

Martin:
Dear friends,

Some discussions on the Orthodox Baha'is occur in the group Baha'is on Facebook. I quote here that discussion. Love!

Maher:
I'm not a Baha'i, but I find that this religion is great in it's rules (while I'm not sure if it's true), except one thing, the usual Baha'is and the Orthodox Baha'is don't even talk to each other, just like to know why....thx

Jeffrey:
Not quite true, Maher. The Orthodox Baha'is do not shun the "usual Baha'is" but they shun us. They shun anyone who will even talk to us. They have taken the teachings of the Faith that were meant to protect the Faith from violation and they have twisted them in order to further their own violation. They shun us in an attempt to silence the truth.

Replies
by Adib
We don't shun them as if they do not exist in this world. We can still work with them in regards to business matters and so forth (I need to fnid the quotes for all this).
But Baha'u'llah stated that Covenant Breakers are poison to the Cause of the Baha'i Faith. Not saying that the individuals are hideous or anything, but the concepts they are taught and carry have negative influence on the general Baha'i population.
Anyway, this is my opinion.

I guess we need more information on this one :)

Jeffrey:
You certainly do need more information. If you are going to talk about what Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha said about covenant breakers, you need to stop and think with your own minds for a minute and ask yourselves how they defined what is a covenant breaker. If you went back and studied this, you would find that it is the so-called "usual Baha'is" who are the covenant breakers and poison to the Cause. Why? Because covenant breaking is opposition to the Center. That is, opposition to Abdu'l-Baha and then to the Guardian of the Cause. Covenant breaking means opposition to the Guardian. After the Hands deposed the Guardian and the original embryonic UHJ established by Shoghi Effendi, they substituted the Center for their own headless UHJ. All of a sudden, the definition of a covenant breaker became one who opposes their illegitimate UHJ. The UHJ of the original teachings had a Guardian as its head, but their UHJ has no Guardian. They are opposed to the true Faith.

by Patsy
Generally a covenant breaker is someone who disputes the authority of the Covenant. Baha'u'llah appointed Abdu'l Baha. With most of His family turning away from that truth (the wheat from the chaff) Abdu'l Baha went about His Fathers business. Later He appointed Shoghi Effendi as the Guardian and the same thing happened. When Shoghi Effendi died, one of the Hands decided he was the next Guardian. The other Hands worked to follow Shoghi Effendi's plans and to establish the Universal House of Justice. In each of these scenarios, someone demanded power and authority. But those who were given that power and authority never once used it for their own good.
I have a feeling "Orthodox" followed Mason Remy, the Hand. I saw it once in the New York phone book when I was a Baha'i of 2 weeks and stuck in NY. My instinct told me it wasn't right. I guess for me it's like drinking coffee while driving, it's a dangerous distraction, and you could get burned.
The scholars on this discussion board have likely found all their quotes by now and will be with you shortly.
(Darn! Whenever I put my tongue in my cheek, I bite it!)

The Will and Testament of Abdul-Baha did not establish merely the Guardianship of Shoghi Effendi. He established an Institution that is one of the twin pillars of the Baha'i Commonwealth, to be occupied by a living man throughout the Dispensation of Baha'u'llah. He appointed Shoghi Effendi as the first Guardian.

One of the Hands did not decide he was the Guardian. Rather, he announced that Shoghi Effendi had indicated his successor by appointing Mason Remey to be the head of the embryonic UHJ, an office that could only be held by a future Guardian. Upon Shoghi Effendi's death, Mason Remey became the Guardian and the International Baha'i Council, as established by Shoghi Effendi, was activated and the twin pillars began operating as the head of the Faith. The group of renegade Hands, led by Ruhiyyih Khanum would not accept anyone as Guardian after Shoghi Effendi, engineered a coup to declare the Guardianship as ended and they secretly plotted to elect a UHJ without a Guardian as its head. When Mason Remey stood up against the violation of the Faith, they put him out of the Faith, opposing the Guardian and breaking the Covenant.

The ones who "grabbed power and authority" was not Mason Remey and his followers. It was the Hands and all of you who have followed them into violation of the Covenant and opposition to the Guardian of the Cause.

by Sean:
Maher if there's one thing I hope that you know about the Bahai Faith is that it teaches that what the world needs now most is UNITY.

The whole purpose of the Bahai Faith is Unity. Unite all races, religions, creeds, tribes, and peoples together.

To achieve that aim Baha'u'llah made sure to preventive the schism that religions of the past suffered immediately after the founder died.

Baha'u'llah named Abdu'l-Baha as his successor. Abdu'l-Baha in turn named Shoghi Effendi the Guardian of the Bahai Faith in his Will and Testament. Shoghi Effendi in turn laid the stage for the election of the Universal House of Justice which Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha had already written about as the head of the Bahai Faith.

In the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha it is stated

O ye beloved of the Lord! It is incumbent upon the guardian of the Cause of God to appoint in his own life-time him that shall become his successor, that differences may not arise after his passing. He that is appointed must manifest in himself detachment from all worldly things, must be the essence of purity, must show in himself the fear of God, knowledge, wisdom and learning. Thus, should the first-born of the guardian of the Cause of God not manifest in himself the truth of the words: -- "The child is the secret essence of its sire," that is, should he not inherit of the spiritual within him (the guardian of the Cause of God) and his glorious lineage not be matched with a goodly character, then must he (the guardian of the Cause of God), choose another branch to succeed him.

(Abdu'l-Baha, Baha'i World Faith - Abdu'l-Baha Section, p. 443)

Unfortunately, Shoghi Effendi died without warning and without naming a successor. The Hands of the Cause of God, unanimously affirmed that Shoghi Effendi had died without leaving behind a successor (they looked very hard!). Even Charles Mason Remey, a later Archbreaker of the Covenant wrote and affirmed that Shoghi Effendi had died without leaving a successor.

Shoghi Effendi called the Hands of the Cause of God "the Chief Stewards of Bahá'u'lláh's embryonic World Commonwealth, who have been invested by the unerring Pen of the Center of His Covenant with the dual function of guarding over the security, and of insuring the propagation, of His Father's Faith."

(Shoghi Effendi, Messages to the Baha'i World - 1950-1957, p. 127)

As such, after the passing of Shoghi Effendi, they held together the faith and continued Shoghi Effendi's plans for the election of the Universal House of Justice in 1963.

Unfortunately, although Charles Mason Remey was a highly praised Bahai, he fell into pride and arrogantly declared that he was the next Guardian of the Bahai Faith and that the Hands should stop trying to elect the Universal House of Justice.

Charles Mason Remey never addressed the fact the requirement that a Guardian must be a "branch", a direct descendant of Baha'u'llah. Sometimes Covenant Breakers try to say that a branch does not mean a descendant of Baha'u'llah but this directly contradicts Shoghi Effendi's affirmation (or what we already knew)

1548. The Term 'Afnan' Refers to Believers of the Bab

"The term 'Afnan' means literally small branch, and refers to the relatives of the Báb, both men and women. As the Báb's only son died while in infancy, the former had no direct descendants. The 'Afnan' are, therefore, all indirectly related to the Báb.

"As to 'Aghsan', it also means branch. But is a bigger branch than 'Afnan'. It refers to Bahá'u'lláh's descendants."

(From a letter written on behalf of Shoghi Effendi to an individual believer, September 25, 1934)
(Compilations, Lights of Guidance, p. 470)

Trying to divide the Faith of God is repeatedly referred to as a transgression against Him. One such quote says...

All must be under his shadow and obey his command. Should any, within or without the company of the Hands of the Cause of God disobey and seek division, the wrath of God and His vengeance will be upon him, for he will have caused a breach in the true Faith of God.
(Abdu'l-Baha, The Will and Testament, p. 12)

and...

They whom God hath endued with insight will readily recognize that the precepts laid down by God constitute the highest means for the maintenance of order in the world and the security of its peoples. He that turneth away from them, is accounted among the abject and foolish. We, verily, have commanded you to refuse the dictates of your evil passions and corrupt desires, and not to transgress the bounds which the Pen of the Most High hath fixed, for these are the breath of life unto all created things. The seas of Divine wisdom and divine utterance have risen under the breath of the breeze of the All-Merciful. Hasten to drink your fill, O men of understanding! They that have violated the Covenant of God by breaking His commandments, and have turned back on their heels, these have erred grievously in the sight of God, the All-Possessing, the Most High.

O ye peoples of the world! Know assuredly that My commandments are the lamps of My loving providence among My servants, and the keys of My mercy for My creatures. Thus hath it been sent down from the heaven of the Will of your Lord, the Lord of Revelation. Were any man to taste the sweetness of the words which the lips of the All-Merciful have willed to utter, he would, though the treasures of the earth be in his possession, renounce them one and all, that he might vindicate the truth of even one of His commandments, shining above the day spring of His bountiful care and loving-kindness.

(Baha'u'llah, Gleanings from the Writings of Baha'u'llah, p. 331)

Regarding why Bahais are not to associate with Covenant Breakers, I hope that the following quote will adequately answer your question.

45 COVENANT BREAKERS (Shun)

"... Bahá'u'lláh and the Master in many places and very emphatically have told us to shun entirely all Covenant breakers as they are afflicted with what we might try and define as a contagious spiritual disease; they have also told us, however, to pray for them. These souls are not lost forever. In the Aqdas, Bahá'u'lláh says that God will forgive Mirza Yahya if he repents. It follows, therefore, that God will forgive any soul if he repents. Most of them don't want to repent, unfortunately. If the leaders can be forgiven it goes without saying that their followers can also be forgiven...

"Also, it has nothing to do with unity in the Cause; if a man cuts a cancer out of his body to preserve his health and very life, no one would suggest that for the sake of unity it should be reintroduced into the otherwise healthy organism. On the contrary, what was once a part of him has so radically changed as to have become a poison."

(Shoghi Effendi, Directives from the Guardian, p. 16)

Let me know if I can be of any more help Maher. Have a great day.

Jeffrey:
I feel like I have been bombarded with distortion and twisted meanings, and the fact that they employ these tactics in order to establish their leadership is proof enough to me that they are false and they have usurped the authority of the true head of the Faith, and then have the audacity to call those of use who have remained faithful to the Guardianship as covenant breakers and poison.

I will respond to each of the points raised in this sickening repudiation of the Guardianship of the Cause.

It is true that the Baha'i Faith is about unity. But you have conveniently forgotten that Abdul-Baha has clearly directed us that unity can only be achieved by obedience to the Guardian: "The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the Guardian of the Cause of God. It is incumbent upon the members of the House of Justice, upon all the Aghsan, the Afnan, the Hands of the Cause of God to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the Guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him. He that opposeth him hath opposed the True One, will make a breach in the Cause of God, will subvert His Word and will become a manifestation of the Center of Sedition. Beware, beware, lest the days after the ascension (of Bahá'u'lláh) be repeated when the Center of Sedition waxed haughty and rebellious and with Divine Unity for his excuse deprived himself and perturbed and poisoned others. No doubt every vainglorious one that purposeth dissension and discord will not openly declare his evil purposes, nay rather, even as impure gold, will he seize upon divers measures and various pretexts that he may separate the gathering of the people of Baha." Will and Testament, pp. 11-12

Shoghi Effendi did in fact appoint his successor, in his own lifetime, as the Will and Testament required him to do. He appointed Mason Remey to head the IBC, the embyronic UHJ created by Shoghi Effendi in its inactive state. Mason Remey and the other Hands announced that they did not find a will appointing a Guardian. They did not announce there was no Guardian. To the contrary, their decision to abolish the Guardianship was kept a secret at the time. Mason Remey argued against the Hand's violation for two years before he finally publicly denounced their violation.

The Hands did not carry out Shoghi Effendi's wishes. There is nothing in any of the writings of Shoghi Effendi to intimate that the Hands were to seize administrative authority over the Cause, to declare Mason Remey as a covenant breaker and to install a headless UHJ. The Hands usurped their authority, on a weak argument that Shoghi Effendi had referred to them as Chief Stewards. The reality is the Hands had no authority and they violated the Covenant.

The argument that only an Aghsan could be a Guardian is false. This refers to the Sons of Baha'u'llah. It was Abdu'l-Baha who changed the successor of the Cause from the Aghsan to the Guardianship. The Master made it clear that the position was appointed. Nobody can oppose the Guardian's choice of successor. On the pretext that Mason Remey was not qualified to hold office, the Hands rejected the Guardian's choice.

by Maher:
So don't you talk to them as people? or you just don't talk to them abt religion?

I mean if an Orthodox-Baha'i is with you, what do you do?

Anyway I guess that God looks into the person's deeds not religion, I think God knows if we wanna be bad or wanna be good, and usually people don't believe in the same thing, everyone's perfect belief system is different from the other. So we should respect each other, and understand that the only goal most people are going to is the ultimate truth (God).

Jeffrey:
The shunning practiced by the large group of Baha'is is used as a cult like practice to keep people from knowing the truth. If you associate with someone they claim is a covenant breaker, they will threaten to shun you unless you agree to stop associating. They break apart families and they use manipulation and threats to hold on to their authority. I agree that we should all respect each other's right to practice our religion as we see fit. But this group does not agree. In fact they have taken us to Court to try to prevent us from calling ourselves "Baha'i."

Posted at 09:10 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Response to Facebook discussion on the Covenant

My dear friend, Martin, who has created his own Orthodox Baha'i group on Facebook sent me the latest discussions about the Covenant and the Orthodox Baha'is, and I thought I would respond here.

Martin:
Dear friends,

Some discussions on the Orthodox Baha'is occur in the group Baha'is on Facebook. I quote here that discussion. Love!

Maher:
I'm not a Baha'i, but I find that this religion is great in it's rules (while I'm not sure if it's true), except one thing, the usual Baha'is and the Orthodox Baha'is don't even talk to each other, just like to know why....thx

Jeffrey:
Not quite true, Maher. The Orthodox Baha'is do not shun the "usual Baha'is" but they shun us. They shun anyone who will even talk to us. They have taken the teachings of the Faith that were meant to protect the Faith from violation and they have twisted them in order to further their own violation. They shun us in an attempt to silence the truth.

Replies
by Adib
We don't shun them as if they do not exist in this world. We can still work with them in regards to business matters and so forth (I need to fnid the quotes for all this).
But Baha'u'llah stated that Covenant Breakers are poison to the Cause of the Baha'i Faith. Not saying that the individuals are hideous or anything, but the concepts they are taught and carry have negative influence on the general Baha'i population.
Anyway, this is my opinion.

I guess we need more information on this one :)

Jeffrey:
You certainly do need more information. If you are going to talk about what Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha said about covenant breakers, you need to stop and think with your own minds for a minute and ask yourselves how they defined what is a covenant breaker. If you went back and studied this, you would find that it is the so-called "usual Baha'is" who are the covenant breakers and poison to the Cause. Why? Because covenant breaking is opposition to the Center. That is, opposition to Abdu'l-Baha and then to the Guardian of the Cause. Covenant breaking means opposition to the Guardian. After the Hands deposed the Guardian and the original embryonic UHJ established by Shoghi Effendi, they substituted the Center for their own headless UHJ. All of a sudden, the definition of a covenant breaker became one who opposes their illegitimate UHJ. The UHJ of the original teachings had a Guardian as its head, but their UHJ has no Guardian. They are opposed to the true Faith.

by Patsy
Generally a covenant breaker is someone who disputes the authority of the Covenant. Baha'u'llah appointed Abdu'l Baha. With most of His family turning away from that truth (the wheat from the chaff) Abdu'l Baha went about His Fathers business. Later He appointed Shoghi Effendi as the Guardian and the same thing happened. When Shoghi Effendi died, one of the Hands decided he was the next Guardian. The other Hands worked to follow Shoghi Effendi's plans and to establish the Universal House of Justice. In each of these scenarios, someone demanded power and authority. But those who were given that power and authority never once used it for their own good.
I have a feeling "Orthodox" followed Mason Remy, the Hand. I saw it once in the New York phone book when I was a Baha'i of 2 weeks and stuck in NY. My instinct told me it wasn't right. I guess for me it's like drinking coffee while driving, it's a dangerous distraction, and you could get burned.
The scholars on this discussion board have likely found all their quotes by now and will be with you shortly.
(Darn! Whenever I put my tongue in my cheek, I bite it!)

The Will and Testament of Abdul-Baha did not establish merely the Guardianship of Shoghi Effendi. He established an Institution that is one of the twin pillars of the Baha'i Commonwealth, to be occupied by a living man throughout the Dispensation of Baha'u'llah. He appointed Shoghi Effendi as the first Guardian.

One of the Hands did not decide he was the Guardian. Rather, he announced that Shoghi Effendi had indicated his successor by appointing Mason Remey to be the head of the embryonic UHJ, an office that could only be held by a future Guardian. Upon Shoghi Effendi's death, Mason Remey became the Guardian and the International Baha'i Council, as established by Shoghi Effendi, was activated and the twin pillars began operating as the head of the Faith. The group of renegade Hands, led by Ruhiyyih Khanum would not accept anyone as Guardian after Shoghi Effendi, engineered a coup to declare the Guardianship as ended and they secretly plotted to elect a UHJ without a Guardian as its head. When Mason Remey stood up against the violation of the Faith, they put him out of the Faith, opposing the Guardian and breaking the Covenant.

The ones who "grabbed power and authority" was not Mason Remey and his followers. It was the Hands and all of you who have followed them into violation of the Covenant and opposition to the Guardian of the Cause.

by Sean:
Maher if there's one thing I hope that you know about the Bahai Faith is that it teaches that what the world needs now most is UNITY.

The whole purpose of the Bahai Faith is Unity. Unite all races, religions, creeds, tribes, and peoples together.

To achieve that aim Baha'u'llah made sure to preventive the schism that religions of the past suffered immediately after the founder died.

Baha'u'llah named Abdu'l-Baha as his successor. Abdu'l-Baha in turn named Shoghi Effendi the Guardian of the Bahai Faith in his Will and Testament. Shoghi Effendi in turn laid the stage for the election of the Universal House of Justice which Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha had already written about as the head of the Bahai Faith.

In the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha it is stated

O ye beloved of the Lord! It is incumbent upon the guardian of the Cause of God to appoint in his own life-time him that shall become his successor, that differences may not arise after his passing. He that is appointed must manifest in himself detachment from all worldly things, must be the essence of purity, must show in himself the fear of God, knowledge, wisdom and learning. Thus, should the first-born of the guardian of the Cause of God not manifest in himself the truth of the words: -- "The child is the secret essence of its sire," that is, should he not inherit of the spiritual within him (the guardian of the Cause of God) and his glorious lineage not be matched with a goodly character, then must he (the guardian of the Cause of God), choose another branch to succeed him.

(Abdu'l-Baha, Baha'i World Faith - Abdu'l-Baha Section, p. 443)

Unfortunately, Shoghi Effendi died without warning and without naming a successor. The Hands of the Cause of God, unanimously affirmed that Shoghi Effendi had died without leaving behind a successor (they looked very hard!). Even Charles Mason Remey, a later Archbreaker of the Covenant wrote and affirmed that Shoghi Effendi had died without leaving a successor.

Shoghi Effendi called the Hands of the Cause of God "the Chief Stewards of Bahá'u'lláh's embryonic World Commonwealth, who have been invested by the unerring Pen of the Center of His Covenant with the dual function of guarding over the security, and of insuring the propagation, of His Father's Faith."

(Shoghi Effendi, Messages to the Baha'i World - 1950-1957, p. 127)

As such, after the passing of Shoghi Effendi, they held together the faith and continued Shoghi Effendi's plans for the election of the Universal House of Justice in 1963.

Unfortunately, although Charles Mason Remey was a highly praised Bahai, he fell into pride and arrogantly declared that he was the next Guardian of the Bahai Faith and that the Hands should stop trying to elect the Universal House of Justice.

Charles Mason Remey never addressed the fact the requirement that a Guardian must be a "branch", a direct descendant of Baha'u'llah. Sometimes Covenant Breakers try to say that a branch does not mean a descendant of Baha'u'llah but this directly contradicts Shoghi Effendi's affirmation (or what we already knew)

1548. The Term 'Afnan' Refers to Believers of the Bab

"The term 'Afnan' means literally small branch, and refers to the relatives of the Báb, both men and women. As the Báb's only son died while in infancy, the former had no direct descendants. The 'Afnan' are, therefore, all indirectly related to the Báb.

"As to 'Aghsan', it also means branch. But is a bigger branch than 'Afnan'. It refers to Bahá'u'lláh's descendants."

(From a letter written on behalf of Shoghi Effendi to an individual believer, September 25, 1934)
(Compilations, Lights of Guidance, p. 470)

Trying to divide the Faith of God is repeatedly referred to as a transgression against Him. One such quote says...

All must be under his shadow and obey his command. Should any, within or without the company of the Hands of the Cause of God disobey and seek division, the wrath of God and His vengeance will be upon him, for he will have caused a breach in the true Faith of God.
(Abdu'l-Baha, The Will and Testament, p. 12)

and...

They whom God hath endued with insight will readily recognize that the precepts laid down by God constitute the highest means for the maintenance of order in the world and the security of its peoples. He that turneth away from them, is accounted among the abject and foolish. We, verily, have commanded you to refuse the dictates of your evil passions and corrupt desires, and not to transgress the bounds which the Pen of the Most High hath fixed, for these are the breath of life unto all created things. The seas of Divine wisdom and divine utterance have risen under the breath of the breeze of the All-Merciful. Hasten to drink your fill, O men of understanding! They that have violated the Covenant of God by breaking His commandments, and have turned back on their heels, these have erred grievously in the sight of God, the All-Possessing, the Most High.

O ye peoples of the world! Know assuredly that My commandments are the lamps of My loving providence among My servants, and the keys of My mercy for My creatures. Thus hath it been sent down from the heaven of the Will of your Lord, the Lord of Revelation. Were any man to taste the sweetness of the words which the lips of the All-Merciful have willed to utter, he would, though the treasures of the earth be in his possession, renounce them one and all, that he might vindicate the truth of even one of His commandments, shining above the day spring of His bountiful care and loving-kindness.

(Baha'u'llah, Gleanings from the Writings of Baha'u'llah, p. 331)

Regarding why Bahais are not to associate with Covenant Breakers, I hope that the following quote will adequately answer your question.

45 COVENANT BREAKERS (Shun)

"... Bahá'u'lláh and the Master in many places and very emphatically have told us to shun entirely all Covenant breakers as they are afflicted with what we might try and define as a contagious spiritual disease; they have also told us, however, to pray for them. These souls are not lost forever. In the Aqdas, Bahá'u'lláh says that God will forgive Mirza Yahya if he repents. It follows, therefore, that God will forgive any soul if he repents. Most of them don't want to repent, unfortunately. If the leaders can be forgiven it goes without saying that their followers can also be forgiven...

"Also, it has nothing to do with unity in the Cause; if a man cuts a cancer out of his body to preserve his health and very life, no one would suggest that for the sake of unity it should be reintroduced into the otherwise healthy organism. On the contrary, what was once a part of him has so radically changed as to have become a poison."

(Shoghi Effendi, Directives from the Guardian, p. 16)

Let me know if I can be of any more help Maher. Have a great day.

Jeffrey:
I feel like I have been bombarded with distortion and twisted meanings, and the fact that they employ these tactics in order to establish their leadership is proof enough to me that they are false and they have usurped the authority of the true head of the Faith, and then have the audacity to call those of use who have remained faithful to the Guardianship as covenant breakers and poison.

I will respond to each of the points raised in this sickening repudiation of the Guardianship of the Cause.

It is true that the Baha'i Faith is about unity. But you have conveniently forgotten that Abdul-Baha has clearly directed us that unity can only be achieved by obedience to the Guardian: "The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the Guardian of the Cause of God. It is incumbent upon the members of the House of Justice, upon all the Aghsan, the Afnan, the Hands of the Cause of God to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the Guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him. He that opposeth him hath opposed the True One, will make a breach in the Cause of God, will subvert His Word and will become a manifestation of the Center of Sedition. Beware, beware, lest the days after the ascension (of Bahá'u'lláh) be repeated when the Center of Sedition waxed haughty and rebellious and with Divine Unity for his excuse deprived himself and perturbed and poisoned others. No doubt every vainglorious one that purposeth dissension and discord will not openly declare his evil purposes, nay rather, even as impure gold, will he seize upon divers measures and various pretexts that he may separate the gathering of the people of Baha." Will and Testament, pp. 11-12

Shoghi Effendi did in fact appoint his successor, in his own lifetime, as the Will and Testament required him to do. He appointed Mason Remey to head the IBC, the embyronic UHJ created by Shoghi Effendi in its inactive state. Mason Remey and the other Hands announced that they did not find a will appointing a Guardian. They did not announce there was no Guardian. To the contrary, their decision to abolish the Guardianship was kept a secret at the time. Mason Remey argued against the Hand's violation for two years before he finally publicly denounced their violation.

The Hands did not carry out Shoghi Effendi's wishes. There is nothing in any of the writings of Shoghi Effendi to intimate that the Hands were to seize administrative authority over the Cause, to declare Mason Remey as a covenant breaker and to install a headless UHJ. The Hands usurped their authority, on a weak argument that Shoghi Effendi had referred to them as Chief Stewards. The reality is the Hands had no authority and they violated the Covenant.

The argument that only an Aghsan could be a Guardian is false. This refers to the Sons of Baha'u'llah. It was Abdu'l-Baha who changed the successor of the Cause from the Aghsan to the Guardianship. The Master made it clear that the position was appointed. Nobody can oppose the Guardian's choice of successor. On the pretext that Mason Remey was not qualified to hold office, the Hands rejected the Guardian's choice.

by Maher:
So don't you talk to them as people? or you just don't talk to them abt religion?

I mean if an Orthodox-Baha'i is with you, what do you do?

Anyway I guess that God looks into the person's deeds not religion, I think God knows if we wanna be bad or wanna be good, and usually people don't believe in the same thing, everyone's perfect belief system is different from the other. So we should respect each other, and understand that the only goal most people are going to is the ultimate truth (God).

Jeffrey:
The shunning practiced by the large group of Baha'is is used as a cult like practice to keep people from knowing the truth. If you associate with someone they claim is a covenant breaker, they will threaten to shun you unless you agree to stop associating. They break apart families and they use manipulation and threats to hold on to their authority. I agree that we should all respect each other's right to practice our religion as we see fit. But this group does not agree. In fact they have taken us to Court to try to prevent us from calling ourselves "Baha'i."

Posted at 09:10 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Response to Facebook discussion on the Covenant

My dear friend, Martin, who has created his own Orthodox Baha'i group on Facebook sent me the latest discussions about the Covenant and the Orthodox Baha'is, and I thought I would respond here.

Martin:
Dear friends,

Some discussions on the Orthodox Baha'is occur in the group Baha'is on Facebook. I quote here that discussion. Love!

Maher:
I'm not a Baha'i, but I find that this religion is great in it's rules (while I'm not sure if it's true), except one thing, the usual Baha'is and the Orthodox Baha'is don't even talk to each other, just like to know why....thx

Jeffrey:
Not quite true, Maher. The Orthodox Baha'is do not shun the "usual Baha'is" but they shun us. They shun anyone who will even talk to us. They have taken the teachings of the Faith that were meant to protect the Faith from violation and they have twisted them in order to further their own violation. They shun us in an attempt to silence the truth.

Replies
by Adib
We don't shun them as if they do not exist in this world. We can still work with them in regards to business matters and so forth (I need to fnid the quotes for all this).
But Baha'u'llah stated that Covenant Breakers are poison to the Cause of the Baha'i Faith. Not saying that the individuals are hideous or anything, but the concepts they are taught and carry have negative influence on the general Baha'i population.
Anyway, this is my opinion.

I guess we need more information on this one :)

Jeffrey:
You certainly do need more information. If you are going to talk about what Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha said about covenant breakers, you need to stop and think with your own minds for a minute and ask yourselves how they defined what is a covenant breaker. If you went back and studied this, you would find that it is the so-called "usual Baha'is" who are the covenant breakers and poison to the Cause. Why? Because covenant breaking is opposition to the Center. That is, opposition to Abdu'l-Baha and then to the Guardian of the Cause. Covenant breaking means opposition to the Guardian. After the Hands deposed the Guardian and the original embryonic UHJ established by Shoghi Effendi, they substituted the Center for their own headless UHJ. All of a sudden, the definition of a covenant breaker became one who opposes their illegitimate UHJ. The UHJ of the original teachings had a Guardian as its head, but their UHJ has no Guardian. They are opposed to the true Faith.

by Patsy
Generally a covenant breaker is someone who disputes the authority of the Covenant. Baha'u'llah appointed Abdu'l Baha. With most of His family turning away from that truth (the wheat from the chaff) Abdu'l Baha went about His Fathers business. Later He appointed Shoghi Effendi as the Guardian and the same thing happened. When Shoghi Effendi died, one of the Hands decided he was the next Guardian. The other Hands worked to follow Shoghi Effendi's plans and to establish the Universal House of Justice. In each of these scenarios, someone demanded power and authority. But those who were given that power and authority never once used it for their own good.
I have a feeling "Orthodox" followed Mason Remy, the Hand. I saw it once in the New York phone book when I was a Baha'i of 2 weeks and stuck in NY. My instinct told me it wasn't right. I guess for me it's like drinking coffee while driving, it's a dangerous distraction, and you could get burned.
The scholars on this discussion board have likely found all their quotes by now and will be with you shortly.
(Darn! Whenever I put my tongue in my cheek, I bite it!)

The Will and Testament of Abdul-Baha did not establish merely the Guardianship of Shoghi Effendi. He established an Institution that is one of the twin pillars of the Baha'i Commonwealth, to be occupied by a living man throughout the Dispensation of Baha'u'llah. He appointed Shoghi Effendi as the first Guardian.

One of the Hands did not decide he was the Guardian. Rather, he announced that Shoghi Effendi had indicated his successor by appointing Mason Remey to be the head of the embryonic UHJ, an office that could only be held by a future Guardian. Upon Shoghi Effendi's death, Mason Remey became the Guardian and the International Baha'i Council, as established by Shoghi Effendi, was activated and the twin pillars began operating as the head of the Faith. The group of renegade Hands, led by Ruhiyyih Khanum would not accept anyone as Guardian after Shoghi Effendi, engineered a coup to declare the Guardianship as ended and they secretly plotted to elect a UHJ without a Guardian as its head. When Mason Remey stood up against the violation of the Faith, they put him out of the Faith, opposing the Guardian and breaking the Covenant.

The ones who "grabbed power and authority" was not Mason Remey and his followers. It was the Hands and all of you who have followed them into violation of the Covenant and opposition to the Guardian of the Cause.

by Sean:
Maher if there's one thing I hope that you know about the Bahai Faith is that it teaches that what the world needs now most is UNITY.

The whole purpose of the Bahai Faith is Unity. Unite all races, religions, creeds, tribes, and peoples together.

To achieve that aim Baha'u'llah made sure to preventive the schism that religions of the past suffered immediately after the founder died.

Baha'u'llah named Abdu'l-Baha as his successor. Abdu'l-Baha in turn named Shoghi Effendi the Guardian of the Bahai Faith in his Will and Testament. Shoghi Effendi in turn laid the stage for the election of the Universal House of Justice which Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha had already written about as the head of the Bahai Faith.

In the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha it is stated

O ye beloved of the Lord! It is incumbent upon the guardian of the Cause of God to appoint in his own life-time him that shall become his successor, that differences may not arise after his passing. He that is appointed must manifest in himself detachment from all worldly things, must be the essence of purity, must show in himself the fear of God, knowledge, wisdom and learning. Thus, should the first-born of the guardian of the Cause of God not manifest in himself the truth of the words: -- "The child is the secret essence of its sire," that is, should he not inherit of the spiritual within him (the guardian of the Cause of God) and his glorious lineage not be matched with a goodly character, then must he (the guardian of the Cause of God), choose another branch to succeed him.

(Abdu'l-Baha, Baha'i World Faith - Abdu'l-Baha Section, p. 443)

Unfortunately, Shoghi Effendi died without warning and without naming a successor. The Hands of the Cause of God, unanimously affirmed that Shoghi Effendi had died without leaving behind a successor (they looked very hard!). Even Charles Mason Remey, a later Archbreaker of the Covenant wrote and affirmed that Shoghi Effendi had died without leaving a successor.

Shoghi Effendi called the Hands of the Cause of God "the Chief Stewards of Bahá'u'lláh's embryonic World Commonwealth, who have been invested by the unerring Pen of the Center of His Covenant with the dual function of guarding over the security, and of insuring the propagation, of His Father's Faith."

(Shoghi Effendi, Messages to the Baha'i World - 1950-1957, p. 127)

As such, after the passing of Shoghi Effendi, they held together the faith and continued Shoghi Effendi's plans for the election of the Universal House of Justice in 1963.

Unfortunately, although Charles Mason Remey was a highly praised Bahai, he fell into pride and arrogantly declared that he was the next Guardian of the Bahai Faith and that the Hands should stop trying to elect the Universal House of Justice.

Charles Mason Remey never addressed the fact the requirement that a Guardian must be a "branch", a direct descendant of Baha'u'llah. Sometimes Covenant Breakers try to say that a branch does not mean a descendant of Baha'u'llah but this directly contradicts Shoghi Effendi's affirmation (or what we already knew)

1548. The Term 'Afnan' Refers to Believers of the Bab

"The term 'Afnan' means literally small branch, and refers to the relatives of the Báb, both men and women. As the Báb's only son died while in infancy, the former had no direct descendants. The 'Afnan' are, therefore, all indirectly related to the Báb.

"As to 'Aghsan', it also means branch. But is a bigger branch than 'Afnan'. It refers to Bahá'u'lláh's descendants."

(From a letter written on behalf of Shoghi Effendi to an individual believer, September 25, 1934)
(Compilations, Lights of Guidance, p. 470)

Trying to divide the Faith of God is repeatedly referred to as a transgression against Him. One such quote says...

All must be under his shadow and obey his command. Should any, within or without the company of the Hands of the Cause of God disobey and seek division, the wrath of God and His vengeance will be upon him, for he will have caused a breach in the true Faith of God.
(Abdu'l-Baha, The Will and Testament, p. 12)

and...

They whom God hath endued with insight will readily recognize that the precepts laid down by God constitute the highest means for the maintenance of order in the world and the security of its peoples. He that turneth away from them, is accounted among the abject and foolish. We, verily, have commanded you to refuse the dictates of your evil passions and corrupt desires, and not to transgress the bounds which the Pen of the Most High hath fixed, for these are the breath of life unto all created things. The seas of Divine wisdom and divine utterance have risen under the breath of the breeze of the All-Merciful. Hasten to drink your fill, O men of understanding! They that have violated the Covenant of God by breaking His commandments, and have turned back on their heels, these have erred grievously in the sight of God, the All-Possessing, the Most High.

O ye peoples of the world! Know assuredly that My commandments are the lamps of My loving providence among My servants, and the keys of My mercy for My creatures. Thus hath it been sent down from the heaven of the Will of your Lord, the Lord of Revelation. Were any man to taste the sweetness of the words which the lips of the All-Merciful have willed to utter, he would, though the treasures of the earth be in his possession, renounce them one and all, that he might vindicate the truth of even one of His commandments, shining above the day spring of His bountiful care and loving-kindness.

(Baha'u'llah, Gleanings from the Writings of Baha'u'llah, p. 331)

Regarding why Bahais are not to associate with Covenant Breakers, I hope that the following quote will adequately answer your question.

45 COVENANT BREAKERS (Shun)

"... Bahá'u'lláh and the Master in many places and very emphatically have told us to shun entirely all Covenant breakers as they are afflicted with what we might try and define as a contagious spiritual disease; they have also told us, however, to pray for them. These souls are not lost forever. In the Aqdas, Bahá'u'lláh says that God will forgive Mirza Yahya if he repents. It follows, therefore, that God will forgive any soul if he repents. Most of them don't want to repent, unfortunately. If the leaders can be forgiven it goes without saying that their followers can also be forgiven...

"Also, it has nothing to do with unity in the Cause; if a man cuts a cancer out of his body to preserve his health and very life, no one would suggest that for the sake of unity it should be reintroduced into the otherwise healthy organism. On the contrary, what was once a part of him has so radically changed as to have become a poison."

(Shoghi Effendi, Directives from the Guardian, p. 16)

Let me know if I can be of any more help Maher. Have a great day.

Jeffrey:
I feel like I have been bombarded with distortion and twisted meanings, and the fact that they employ these tactics in order to establish their leadership is proof enough to me that they are false and they have usurped the authority of the true head of the Faith, and then have the audacity to call those of use who have remained faithful to the Guardianship as covenant breakers and poison.

I will respond to each of the points raised in this sickening repudiation of the Guardianship of the Cause.

It is true that the Baha'i Faith is about unity. But you have conveniently forgotten that Abdul-Baha has clearly directed us that unity can only be achieved by obedience to the Guardian: "The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the Guardian of the Cause of God. It is incumbent upon the members of the House of Justice, upon all the Aghsan, the Afnan, the Hands of the Cause of God to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the Guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him. He that opposeth him hath opposed the True One, will make a breach in the Cause of God, will subvert His Word and will become a manifestation of the Center of Sedition. Beware, beware, lest the days after the ascension (of Bahá'u'lláh) be repeated when the Center of Sedition waxed haughty and rebellious and with Divine Unity for his excuse deprived himself and perturbed and poisoned others. No doubt every vainglorious one that purposeth dissension and discord will not openly declare his evil purposes, nay rather, even as impure gold, will he seize upon divers measures and various pretexts that he may separate the gathering of the people of Baha." Will and Testament, pp. 11-12

Shoghi Effendi did in fact appoint his successor, in his own lifetime, as the Will and Testament required him to do. He appointed Mason Remey to head the IBC, the embyronic UHJ created by Shoghi Effendi in its inactive state. Mason Remey and the other Hands announced that they did not find a will appointing a Guardian. They did not announce there was no Guardian. To the contrary, their decision to abolish the Guardianship was kept a secret at the time. Mason Remey argued against the Hand's violation for two years before he finally publicly denounced their violation.

The Hands did not carry out Shoghi Effendi's wishes. There is nothing in any of the writings of Shoghi Effendi to intimate that the Hands were to seize administrative authority over the Cause, to declare Mason Remey as a covenant breaker and to install a headless UHJ. The Hands usurped their authority, on a weak argument that Shoghi Effendi had referred to them as Chief Stewards. The reality is the Hands had no authority and they violated the Covenant.

The argument that only an Aghsan could be a Guardian is false. This refers to the Sons of Baha'u'llah. It was Abdu'l-Baha who changed the successor of the Cause from the Aghsan to the Guardianship. The Master made it clear that the position was appointed. Nobody can oppose the Guardian's choice of successor. On the pretext that Mason Remey was not qualified to hold office, the Hands rejected the Guardian's choice.

by Maher:
So don't you talk to them as people? or you just don't talk to them abt religion?

I mean if an Orthodox-Baha'i is with you, what do you do?

Anyway I guess that God looks into the person's deeds not religion, I think God knows if we wanna be bad or wanna be good, and usually people don't believe in the same thing, everyone's perfect belief system is different from the other. So we should respect each other, and understand that the only goal most people are going to is the ultimate truth (God).

Jeffrey:
The shunning practiced by the large group of Baha'is is used as a cult like practice to keep people from knowing the truth. If you associate with someone they claim is a covenant breaker, they will threaten to shun you unless you agree to stop associating. They break apart families and they use manipulation and threats to hold on to their authority. I agree that we should all respect each other's right to practice our religion as we see fit. But this group does not agree. In fact they have taken us to Court to try to prevent us from calling ourselves "Baha'i."

Posted at 09:10 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Response to Facebook discussion on the Covenant

My dear friend, Martin, who has created his own Orthodox Baha'i group on Facebook sent me the latest discussions about the Covenant and the Orthodox Baha'is, and I thought I would respond here.

Martin:
Dear friends,

Some discussions on the Orthodox Baha'is occur in the group Baha'is on Facebook. I quote here that discussion. Love!

Maher:
I'm not a Baha'i, but I find that this religion is great in it's rules (while I'm not sure if it's true), except one thing, the usual Baha'is and the Orthodox Baha'is don't even talk to each other, just like to know why....thx

Jeffrey:
Not quite true, Maher. The Orthodox Baha'is do not shun the "usual Baha'is" but they shun us. They shun anyone who will even talk to us. They have taken the teachings of the Faith that were meant to protect the Faith from violation and they have twisted them in order to further their own violation. They shun us in an attempt to silence the truth.

Replies
by Adib
We don't shun them as if they do not exist in this world. We can still work with them in regards to business matters and so forth (I need to fnid the quotes for all this).
But Baha'u'llah stated that Covenant Breakers are poison to the Cause of the Baha'i Faith. Not saying that the individuals are hideous or anything, but the concepts they are taught and carry have negative influence on the general Baha'i population.
Anyway, this is my opinion.

I guess we need more information on this one :)

Jeffrey:
You certainly do need more information. If you are going to talk about what Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha said about covenant breakers, you need to stop and think with your own minds for a minute and ask yourselves how they defined what is a covenant breaker. If you went back and studied this, you would find that it is the so-called "usual Baha'is" who are the covenant breakers and poison to the Cause. Why? Because covenant breaking is opposition to the Center. That is, opposition to Abdu'l-Baha and then to the Guardian of the Cause. Covenant breaking means opposition to the Guardian. After the Hands deposed the Guardian and the original embryonic UHJ established by Shoghi Effendi, they substituted the Center for their own headless UHJ. All of a sudden, the definition of a covenant breaker became one who opposes their illegitimate UHJ. The UHJ of the original teachings had a Guardian as its head, but their UHJ has no Guardian. They are opposed to the true Faith.

by Patsy
Generally a covenant breaker is someone who disputes the authority of the Covenant. Baha'u'llah appointed Abdu'l Baha. With most of His family turning away from that truth (the wheat from the chaff) Abdu'l Baha went about His Fathers business. Later He appointed Shoghi Effendi as the Guardian and the same thing happened. When Shoghi Effendi died, one of the Hands decided he was the next Guardian. The other Hands worked to follow Shoghi Effendi's plans and to establish the Universal House of Justice. In each of these scenarios, someone demanded power and authority. But those who were given that power and authority never once used it for their own good.
I have a feeling "Orthodox" followed Mason Remy, the Hand. I saw it once in the New York phone book when I was a Baha'i of 2 weeks and stuck in NY. My instinct told me it wasn't right. I guess for me it's like drinking coffee while driving, it's a dangerous distraction, and you could get burned.
The scholars on this discussion board have likely found all their quotes by now and will be with you shortly.
(Darn! Whenever I put my tongue in my cheek, I bite it!)

The Will and Testament of Abdul-Baha did not establish merely the Guardianship of Shoghi Effendi. He established an Institution that is one of the twin pillars of the Baha'i Commonwealth, to be occupied by a living man throughout the Dispensation of Baha'u'llah. He appointed Shoghi Effendi as the first Guardian.

One of the Hands did not decide he was the Guardian. Rather, he announced that Shoghi Effendi had indicated his successor by appointing Mason Remey to be the head of the embryonic UHJ, an office that could only be held by a future Guardian. Upon Shoghi Effendi's death, Mason Remey became the Guardian and the International Baha'i Council, as established by Shoghi Effendi, was activated and the twin pillars began operating as the head of the Faith. The group of renegade Hands, led by Ruhiyyih Khanum would not accept anyone as Guardian after Shoghi Effendi, engineered a coup to declare the Guardianship as ended and they secretly plotted to elect a UHJ without a Guardian as its head. When Mason Remey stood up against the violation of the Faith, they put him out of the Faith, opposing the Guardian and breaking the Covenant.

The ones who "grabbed power and authority" was not Mason Remey and his followers. It was the Hands and all of you who have followed them into violation of the Covenant and opposition to the Guardian of the Cause.

by Sean:
Maher if there's one thing I hope that you know about the Bahai Faith is that it teaches that what the world needs now most is UNITY.

The whole purpose of the Bahai Faith is Unity. Unite all races, religions, creeds, tribes, and peoples together.

To achieve that aim Baha'u'llah made sure to preventive the schism that religions of the past suffered immediately after the founder died.

Baha'u'llah named Abdu'l-Baha as his successor. Abdu'l-Baha in turn named Shoghi Effendi the Guardian of the Bahai Faith in his Will and Testament. Shoghi Effendi in turn laid the stage for the election of the Universal House of Justice which Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha had already written about as the head of the Bahai Faith.

In the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha it is stated

O ye beloved of the Lord! It is incumbent upon the guardian of the Cause of God to appoint in his own life-time him that shall become his successor, that differences may not arise after his passing. He that is appointed must manifest in himself detachment from all worldly things, must be the essence of purity, must show in himself the fear of God, knowledge, wisdom and learning. Thus, should the first-born of the guardian of the Cause of God not manifest in himself the truth of the words: -- "The child is the secret essence of its sire," that is, should he not inherit of the spiritual within him (the guardian of the Cause of God) and his glorious lineage not be matched with a goodly character, then must he (the guardian of the Cause of God), choose another branch to succeed him.

(Abdu'l-Baha, Baha'i World Faith - Abdu'l-Baha Section, p. 443)

Unfortunately, Shoghi Effendi died without warning and without naming a successor. The Hands of the Cause of God, unanimously affirmed that Shoghi Effendi had died without leaving behind a successor (they looked very hard!). Even Charles Mason Remey, a later Archbreaker of the Covenant wrote and affirmed that Shoghi Effendi had died without leaving a successor.

Shoghi Effendi called the Hands of the Cause of God "the Chief Stewards of Bahá'u'lláh's embryonic World Commonwealth, who have been invested by the unerring Pen of the Center of His Covenant with the dual function of guarding over the security, and of insuring the propagation, of His Father's Faith."

(Shoghi Effendi, Messages to the Baha'i World - 1950-1957, p. 127)

As such, after the passing of Shoghi Effendi, they held together the faith and continued Shoghi Effendi's plans for the election of the Universal House of Justice in 1963.

Unfortunately, although Charles Mason Remey was a highly praised Bahai, he fell into pride and arrogantly declared that he was the next Guardian of the Bahai Faith and that the Hands should stop trying to elect the Universal House of Justice.

Charles Mason Remey never addressed the fact the requirement that a Guardian must be a "branch", a direct descendant of Baha'u'llah. Sometimes Covenant Breakers try to say that a branch does not mean a descendant of Baha'u'llah but this directly contradicts Shoghi Effendi's affirmation (or what we already knew)

1548. The Term 'Afnan' Refers to Believers of the Bab

"The term 'Afnan' means literally small branch, and refers to the relatives of the Báb, both men and women. As the Báb's only son died while in infancy, the former had no direct descendants. The 'Afnan' are, therefore, all indirectly related to the Báb.

"As to 'Aghsan', it also means branch. But is a bigger branch than 'Afnan'. It refers to Bahá'u'lláh's descendants."

(From a letter written on behalf of Shoghi Effendi to an individual believer, September 25, 1934)
(Compilations, Lights of Guidance, p. 470)

Trying to divide the Faith of God is repeatedly referred to as a transgression against Him. One such quote says...

All must be under his shadow and obey his command. Should any, within or without the company of the Hands of the Cause of God disobey and seek division, the wrath of God and His vengeance will be upon him, for he will have caused a breach in the true Faith of God.
(Abdu'l-Baha, The Will and Testament, p. 12)

and...

They whom God hath endued with insight will readily recognize that the precepts laid down by God constitute the highest means for the maintenance of order in the world and the security of its peoples. He that turneth away from them, is accounted among the abject and foolish. We, verily, have commanded you to refuse the dictates of your evil passions and corrupt desires, and not to transgress the bounds which the Pen of the Most High hath fixed, for these are the breath of life unto all created things. The seas of Divine wisdom and divine utterance have risen under the breath of the breeze of the All-Merciful. Hasten to drink your fill, O men of understanding! They that have violated the Covenant of God by breaking His commandments, and have turned back on their heels, these have erred grievously in the sight of God, the All-Possessing, the Most High.

O ye peoples of the world! Know assuredly that My commandments are the lamps of My loving providence among My servants, and the keys of My mercy for My creatures. Thus hath it been sent down from the heaven of the Will of your Lord, the Lord of Revelation. Were any man to taste the sweetness of the words which the lips of the All-Merciful have willed to utter, he would, though the treasures of the earth be in his possession, renounce them one and all, that he might vindicate the truth of even one of His commandments, shining above the day spring of His bountiful care and loving-kindness.

(Baha'u'llah, Gleanings from the Writings of Baha'u'llah, p. 331)

Regarding why Bahais are not to associate with Covenant Breakers, I hope that the following quote will adequately answer your question.

45 COVENANT BREAKERS (Shun)

"... Bahá'u'lláh and the Master in many places and very emphatically have told us to shun entirely all Covenant breakers as they are afflicted with what we might try and define as a contagious spiritual disease; they have also told us, however, to pray for them. These souls are not lost forever. In the Aqdas, Bahá'u'lláh says that God will forgive Mirza Yahya if he repents. It follows, therefore, that God will forgive any soul if he repents. Most of them don't want to repent, unfortunately. If the leaders can be forgiven it goes without saying that their followers can also be forgiven...

"Also, it has nothing to do with unity in the Cause; if a man cuts a cancer out of his body to preserve his health and very life, no one would suggest that for the sake of unity it should be reintroduced into the otherwise healthy organism. On the contrary, what was once a part of him has so radically changed as to have become a poison."

(Shoghi Effendi, Directives from the Guardian, p. 16)

Let me know if I can be of any more help Maher. Have a great day.

Jeffrey:
I feel like I have been bombarded with distortion and twisted meanings, and the fact that they employ these tactics in order to establish their leadership is proof enough to me that they are false and they have usurped the authority of the true head of the Faith, and then have the audacity to call those of use who have remained faithful to the Guardianship as covenant breakers and poison.

I will respond to each of the points raised in this sickening repudiation of the Guardianship of the Cause.

It is true that the Baha'i Faith is about unity. But you have conveniently forgotten that Abdul-Baha has clearly directed us that unity can only be achieved by obedience to the Guardian: "The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the Guardian of the Cause of God. It is incumbent upon the members of the House of Justice, upon all the Aghsan, the Afnan, the Hands of the Cause of God to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the Guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him. He that opposeth him hath opposed the True One, will make a breach in the Cause of God, will subvert His Word and will become a manifestation of the Center of Sedition. Beware, beware, lest the days after the ascension (of Bahá'u'lláh) be repeated when the Center of Sedition waxed haughty and rebellious and with Divine Unity for his excuse deprived himself and perturbed and poisoned others. No doubt every vainglorious one that purposeth dissension and discord will not openly declare his evil purposes, nay rather, even as impure gold, will he seize upon divers measures and various pretexts that he may separate the gathering of the people of Baha." Will and Testament, pp. 11-12

Shoghi Effendi did in fact appoint his successor, in his own lifetime, as the Will and Testament required him to do. He appointed Mason Remey to head the IBC, the embyronic UHJ created by Shoghi Effendi in its inactive state. Mason Remey and the other Hands announced that they did not find a will appointing a Guardian. They did not announce there was no Guardian. To the contrary, their decision to abolish the Guardianship was kept a secret at the time. Mason Remey argued against the Hand's violation for two years before he finally publicly denounced their violation.

The Hands did not carry out Shoghi Effendi's wishes. There is nothing in any of the writings of Shoghi Effendi to intimate that the Hands were to seize administrative authority over the Cause, to declare Mason Remey as a covenant breaker and to install a headless UHJ. The Hands usurped their authority, on a weak argument that Shoghi Effendi had referred to them as Chief Stewards. The reality is the Hands had no authority and they violated the Covenant.

The argument that only an Aghsan could be a Guardian is false. This refers to the Sons of Baha'u'llah. It was Abdu'l-Baha who changed the successor of the Cause from the Aghsan to the Guardianship. The Master made it clear that the position was appointed. Nobody can oppose the Guardian's choice of successor. On the pretext that Mason Remey was not qualified to hold office, the Hands rejected the Guardian's choice.

by Maher:
So don't you talk to them as people? or you just don't talk to them abt religion?

I mean if an Orthodox-Baha'i is with you, what do you do?

Anyway I guess that God looks into the person's deeds not religion, I think God knows if we wanna be bad or wanna be good, and usually people don't believe in the same thing, everyone's perfect belief system is different from the other. So we should respect each other, and understand that the only goal most people are going to is the ultimate truth (God).

Jeffrey:
The shunning practiced by the large group of Baha'is is used as a cult like practice to keep people from knowing the truth. If you associate with someone they claim is a covenant breaker, they will threaten to shun you unless you agree to stop associating. They break apart families and they use manipulation and threats to hold on to their authority. I agree that we should all respect each other's right to practice our religion as we see fit. But this group does not agree. In fact they have taken us to Court to try to prevent us from calling ourselves "Baha'i."

Posted at 09:10 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Response to Facebook discussion on the Covenant

My dear friend, Martin, who has created his own Orthodox Baha'i group on Facebook sent me the latest discussions about the Covenant and the Orthodox Baha'is, and I thought I would respond here.

Martin:
Dear friends,

Some discussions on the Orthodox Baha'is occur in the group Baha'is on Facebook. I quote here that discussion. Love!

Maher:
I'm not a Baha'i, but I find that this religion is great in it's rules (while I'm not sure if it's true), except one thing, the usual Baha'is and the Orthodox Baha'is don't even talk to each other, just like to know why....thx

Jeffrey:
Not quite true, Maher. The Orthodox Baha'is do not shun the "usual Baha'is" but they shun us. They shun anyone who will even talk to us. They have taken the teachings of the Faith that were meant to protect the Faith from violation and they have twisted them in order to further their own violation. They shun us in an attempt to silence the truth.

Replies
by Adib
We don't shun them as if they do not exist in this world. We can still work with them in regards to business matters and so forth (I need to fnid the quotes for all this).
But Baha'u'llah stated that Covenant Breakers are poison to the Cause of the Baha'i Faith. Not saying that the individuals are hideous or anything, but the concepts they are taught and carry have negative influence on the general Baha'i population.
Anyway, this is my opinion.

I guess we need more information on this one :)

Jeffrey:
You certainly do need more information. If you are going to talk about what Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha said about covenant breakers, you need to stop and think with your own minds for a minute and ask yourselves how they defined what is a covenant breaker. If you went back and studied this, you would find that it is the so-called "usual Baha'is" who are the covenant breakers and poison to the Cause. Why? Because covenant breaking is opposition to the Center. That is, opposition to Abdu'l-Baha and then to the Guardian of the Cause. Covenant breaking means opposition to the Guardian. After the Hands deposed the Guardian and the original embryonic UHJ established by Shoghi Effendi, they substituted the Center for their own headless UHJ. All of a sudden, the definition of a covenant breaker became one who opposes their illegitimate UHJ. The UHJ of the original teachings had a Guardian as its head, but their UHJ has no Guardian. They are opposed to the true Faith.

by Patsy
Generally a covenant breaker is someone who disputes the authority of the Covenant. Baha'u'llah appointed Abdu'l Baha. With most of His family turning away from that truth (the wheat from the chaff) Abdu'l Baha went about His Fathers business. Later He appointed Shoghi Effendi as the Guardian and the same thing happened. When Shoghi Effendi died, one of the Hands decided he was the next Guardian. The other Hands worked to follow Shoghi Effendi's plans and to establish the Universal House of Justice. In each of these scenarios, someone demanded power and authority. But those who were given that power and authority never once used it for their own good.
I have a feeling "Orthodox" followed Mason Remy, the Hand. I saw it once in the New York phone book when I was a Baha'i of 2 weeks and stuck in NY. My instinct told me it wasn't right. I guess for me it's like drinking coffee while driving, it's a dangerous distraction, and you could get burned.
The scholars on this discussion board have likely found all their quotes by now and will be with you shortly.
(Darn! Whenever I put my tongue in my cheek, I bite it!)

The Will and Testament of Abdul-Baha did not establish merely the Guardianship of Shoghi Effendi. He established an Institution that is one of the twin pillars of the Baha'i Commonwealth, to be occupied by a living man throughout the Dispensation of Baha'u'llah. He appointed Shoghi Effendi as the first Guardian.

One of the Hands did not decide he was the Guardian. Rather, he announced that Shoghi Effendi had indicated his successor by appointing Mason Remey to be the head of the embryonic UHJ, an office that could only be held by a future Guardian. Upon Shoghi Effendi's death, Mason Remey became the Guardian and the International Baha'i Council, as established by Shoghi Effendi, was activated and the twin pillars began operating as the head of the Faith. The group of renegade Hands, led by Ruhiyyih Khanum would not accept anyone as Guardian after Shoghi Effendi, engineered a coup to declare the Guardianship as ended and they secretly plotted to elect a UHJ without a Guardian as its head. When Mason Remey stood up against the violation of the Faith, they put him out of the Faith, opposing the Guardian and breaking the Covenant.

The ones who "grabbed power and authority" was not Mason Remey and his followers. It was the Hands and all of you who have followed them into violation of the Covenant and opposition to the Guardian of the Cause.

by Sean:
Maher if there's one thing I hope that you know about the Bahai Faith is that it teaches that what the world needs now most is UNITY.

The whole purpose of the Bahai Faith is Unity. Unite all races, religions, creeds, tribes, and peoples together.

To achieve that aim Baha'u'llah made sure to preventive the schism that religions of the past suffered immediately after the founder died.

Baha'u'llah named Abdu'l-Baha as his successor. Abdu'l-Baha in turn named Shoghi Effendi the Guardian of the Bahai Faith in his Will and Testament. Shoghi Effendi in turn laid the stage for the election of the Universal House of Justice which Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha had already written about as the head of the Bahai Faith.

In the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha it is stated

O ye beloved of the Lord! It is incumbent upon the guardian of the Cause of God to appoint in his own life-time him that shall become his successor, that differences may not arise after his passing. He that is appointed must manifest in himself detachment from all worldly things, must be the essence of purity, must show in himself the fear of God, knowledge, wisdom and learning. Thus, should the first-born of the guardian of the Cause of God not manifest in himself the truth of the words: -- "The child is the secret essence of its sire," that is, should he not inherit of the spiritual within him (the guardian of the Cause of God) and his glorious lineage not be matched with a goodly character, then must he (the guardian of the Cause of God), choose another branch to succeed him.

(Abdu'l-Baha, Baha'i World Faith - Abdu'l-Baha Section, p. 443)

Unfortunately, Shoghi Effendi died without warning and without naming a successor. The Hands of the Cause of God, unanimously affirmed that Shoghi Effendi had died without leaving behind a successor (they looked very hard!). Even Charles Mason Remey, a later Archbreaker of the Covenant wrote and affirmed that Shoghi Effendi had died without leaving a successor.

Shoghi Effendi called the Hands of the Cause of God "the Chief Stewards of Bahá'u'lláh's embryonic World Commonwealth, who have been invested by the unerring Pen of the Center of His Covenant with the dual function of guarding over the security, and of insuring the propagation, of His Father's Faith."

(Shoghi Effendi, Messages to the Baha'i World - 1950-1957, p. 127)

As such, after the passing of Shoghi Effendi, they held together the faith and continued Shoghi Effendi's plans for the election of the Universal House of Justice in 1963.

Unfortunately, although Charles Mason Remey was a highly praised Bahai, he fell into pride and arrogantly declared that he was the next Guardian of the Bahai Faith and that the Hands should stop trying to elect the Universal House of Justice.

Charles Mason Remey never addressed the fact the requirement that a Guardian must be a "branch", a direct descendant of Baha'u'llah. Sometimes Covenant Breakers try to say that a branch does not mean a descendant of Baha'u'llah but this directly contradicts Shoghi Effendi's affirmation (or what we already knew)

1548. The Term 'Afnan' Refers to Believers of the Bab

"The term 'Afnan' means literally small branch, and refers to the relatives of the Báb, both men and women. As the Báb's only son died while in infancy, the former had no direct descendants. The 'Afnan' are, therefore, all indirectly related to the Báb.

"As to 'Aghsan', it also means branch. But is a bigger branch than 'Afnan'. It refers to Bahá'u'lláh's descendants."

(From a letter written on behalf of Shoghi Effendi to an individual believer, September 25, 1934)
(Compilations, Lights of Guidance, p. 470)

Trying to divide the Faith of God is repeatedly referred to as a transgression against Him. One such quote says...

All must be under his shadow and obey his command. Should any, within or without the company of the Hands of the Cause of God disobey and seek division, the wrath of God and His vengeance will be upon him, for he will have caused a breach in the true Faith of God.
(Abdu'l-Baha, The Will and Testament, p. 12)

and...

They whom God hath endued with insight will readily recognize that the precepts laid down by God constitute the highest means for the maintenance of order in the world and the security of its peoples. He that turneth away from them, is accounted among the abject and foolish. We, verily, have commanded you to refuse the dictates of your evil passions and corrupt desires, and not to transgress the bounds which the Pen of the Most High hath fixed, for these are the breath of life unto all created things. The seas of Divine wisdom and divine utterance have risen under the breath of the breeze of the All-Merciful. Hasten to drink your fill, O men of understanding! They that have violated the Covenant of God by breaking His commandments, and have turned back on their heels, these have erred grievously in the sight of God, the All-Possessing, the Most High.

O ye peoples of the world! Know assuredly that My commandments are the lamps of My loving providence among My servants, and the keys of My mercy for My creatures. Thus hath it been sent down from the heaven of the Will of your Lord, the Lord of Revelation. Were any man to taste the sweetness of the words which the lips of the All-Merciful have willed to utter, he would, though the treasures of the earth be in his possession, renounce them one and all, that he might vindicate the truth of even one of His commandments, shining above the day spring of His bountiful care and loving-kindness.

(Baha'u'llah, Gleanings from the Writings of Baha'u'llah, p. 331)

Regarding why Bahais are not to associate with Covenant Breakers, I hope that the following quote will adequately answer your question.

45 COVENANT BREAKERS (Shun)

"... Bahá'u'lláh and the Master in many places and very emphatically have told us to shun entirely all Covenant breakers as they are afflicted with what we might try and define as a contagious spiritual disease; they have also told us, however, to pray for them. These souls are not lost forever. In the Aqdas, Bahá'u'lláh says that God will forgive Mirza Yahya if he repents. It follows, therefore, that God will forgive any soul if he repents. Most of them don't want to repent, unfortunately. If the leaders can be forgiven it goes without saying that their followers can also be forgiven...

"Also, it has nothing to do with unity in the Cause; if a man cuts a cancer out of his body to preserve his health and very life, no one would suggest that for the sake of unity it should be reintroduced into the otherwise healthy organism. On the contrary, what was once a part of him has so radically changed as to have become a poison."

(Shoghi Effendi, Directives from the Guardian, p. 16)

Let me know if I can be of any more help Maher. Have a great day.

Jeffrey:
I feel like I have been bombarded with distortion and twisted meanings, and the fact that they employ these tactics in order to establish their leadership is proof enough to me that they are false and they have usurped the authority of the true head of the Faith, and then have the audacity to call those of use who have remained faithful to the Guardianship as covenant breakers and poison.

I will respond to each of the points raised in this sickening repudiation of the Guardianship of the Cause.

It is true that the Baha'i Faith is about unity. But you have conveniently forgotten that Abdul-Baha has clearly directed us that unity can only be achieved by obedience to the Guardian: "The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the Guardian of the Cause of God. It is incumbent upon the members of the House of Justice, upon all the Aghsan, the Afnan, the Hands of the Cause of God to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the Guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him. He that opposeth him hath opposed the True One, will make a breach in the Cause of God, will subvert His Word and will become a manifestation of the Center of Sedition. Beware, beware, lest the days after the ascension (of Bahá'u'lláh) be repeated when the Center of Sedition waxed haughty and rebellious and with Divine Unity for his excuse deprived himself and perturbed and poisoned others. No doubt every vainglorious one that purposeth dissension and discord will not openly declare his evil purposes, nay rather, even as impure gold, will he seize upon divers measures and various pretexts that he may separate the gathering of the people of Baha." Will and Testament, pp. 11-12

Shoghi Effendi did in fact appoint his successor, in his own lifetime, as the Will and Testament required him to do. He appointed Mason Remey to head the IBC, the embyronic UHJ created by Shoghi Effendi in its inactive state. Mason Remey and the other Hands announced that they did not find a will appointing a Guardian. They did not announce there was no Guardian. To the contrary, their decision to abolish the Guardianship was kept a secret at the time. Mason Remey argued against the Hand's violation for two years before he finally publicly denounced their violation.

The Hands did not carry out Shoghi Effendi's wishes. There is nothing in any of the writings of Shoghi Effendi to intimate that the Hands were to seize administrative authority over the Cause, to declare Mason Remey as a covenant breaker and to install a headless UHJ. The Hands usurped their authority, on a weak argument that Shoghi Effendi had referred to them as Chief Stewards. The reality is the Hands had no authority and they violated the Covenant.

The argument that only an Aghsan could be a Guardian is false. This refers to the Sons of Baha'u'llah. It was Abdu'l-Baha who changed the successor of the Cause from the Aghsan to the Guardianship. The Master made it clear that the position was appointed. Nobody can oppose the Guardian's choice of successor. On the pretext that Mason Remey was not qualified to hold office, the Hands rejected the Guardian's choice.

by Maher:
So don't you talk to them as people? or you just don't talk to them abt religion?

I mean if an Orthodox-Baha'i is with you, what do you do?

Anyway I guess that God looks into the person's deeds not religion, I think God knows if we wanna be bad or wanna be good, and usually people don't believe in the same thing, everyone's perfect belief system is different from the other. So we should respect each other, and understand that the only goal most people are going to is the ultimate truth (God).

Jeffrey:
The shunning practiced by the large group of Baha'is is used as a cult like practice to keep people from knowing the truth. If you associate with someone they claim is a covenant breaker, they will threaten to shun you unless you agree to stop associating. They break apart families and they use manipulation and threats to hold on to their authority. I agree that we should all respect each other's right to practice our religion as we see fit. But this group does not agree. In fact they have taken us to Court to try to prevent us from calling ourselves "Baha'i."

Posted at 09:10 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Response to Facebook discussion on the Covenant

My dear friend, Martin, who has created his own Orthodox Baha'i group on Facebook sent me the latest discussions about the Covenant and the Orthodox Baha'is, and I thought I would respond here.

Martin:
Dear friends,

Some discussions on the Orthodox Baha'is occur in the group Baha'is on Facebook. I quote here that discussion. Love!

Maher:
I'm not a Baha'i, but I find that this religion is great in it's rules (while I'm not sure if it's true), except one thing, the usual Baha'is and the Orthodox Baha'is don't even talk to each other, just like to know why....thx

Jeffrey:
Not quite true, Maher. The Orthodox Baha'is do not shun the "usual Baha'is" but they shun us. They shun anyone who will even talk to us. They have taken the teachings of the Faith that were meant to protect the Faith from violation and they have twisted them in order to further their own violation. They shun us in an attempt to silence the truth.

Replies
by Adib
We don't shun them as if they do not exist in this world. We can still work with them in regards to business matters and so forth (I need to fnid the quotes for all this).
But Baha'u'llah stated that Covenant Breakers are poison to the Cause of the Baha'i Faith. Not saying that the individuals are hideous or anything, but the concepts they are taught and carry have negative influence on the general Baha'i population.
Anyway, this is my opinion.

I guess we need more information on this one :)

Jeffrey:
You certainly do need more information. If you are going to talk about what Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha said about covenant breakers, you need to stop and think with your own minds for a minute and ask yourselves how they defined what is a covenant breaker. If you went back and studied this, you would find that it is the so-called "usual Baha'is" who are the covenant breakers and poison to the Cause. Why? Because covenant breaking is opposition to the Center. That is, opposition to Abdu'l-Baha and then to the Guardian of the Cause. Covenant breaking means opposition to the Guardian. After the Hands deposed the Guardian and the original embryonic UHJ established by Shoghi Effendi, they substituted the Center for their own headless UHJ. All of a sudden, the definition of a covenant breaker became one who opposes their illegitimate UHJ. The UHJ of the original teachings had a Guardian as its head, but their UHJ has no Guardian. They are opposed to the true Faith.

by Patsy
Generally a covenant breaker is someone who disputes the authority of the Covenant. Baha'u'llah appointed Abdu'l Baha. With most of His family turning away from that truth (the wheat from the chaff) Abdu'l Baha went about His Fathers business. Later He appointed Shoghi Effendi as the Guardian and the same thing happened. When Shoghi Effendi died, one of the Hands decided he was the next Guardian. The other Hands worked to follow Shoghi Effendi's plans and to establish the Universal House of Justice. In each of these scenarios, someone demanded power and authority. But those who were given that power and authority never once used it for their own good.
I have a feeling "Orthodox" followed Mason Remy, the Hand. I saw it once in the New York phone book when I was a Baha'i of 2 weeks and stuck in NY. My instinct told me it wasn't right. I guess for me it's like drinking coffee while driving, it's a dangerous distraction, and you could get burned.
The scholars on this discussion board have likely found all their quotes by now and will be with you shortly.
(Darn! Whenever I put my tongue in my cheek, I bite it!)

The Will and Testament of Abdul-Baha did not establish merely the Guardianship of Shoghi Effendi. He established an Institution that is one of the twin pillars of the Baha'i Commonwealth, to be occupied by a living man throughout the Dispensation of Baha'u'llah. He appointed Shoghi Effendi as the first Guardian.

One of the Hands did not decide he was the Guardian. Rather, he announced that Shoghi Effendi had indicated his successor by appointing Mason Remey to be the head of the embryonic UHJ, an office that could only be held by a future Guardian. Upon Shoghi Effendi's death, Mason Remey became the Guardian and the International Baha'i Council, as established by Shoghi Effendi, was activated and the twin pillars began operating as the head of the Faith. The group of renegade Hands, led by Ruhiyyih Khanum would not accept anyone as Guardian after Shoghi Effendi, engineered a coup to declare the Guardianship as ended and they secretly plotted to elect a UHJ without a Guardian as its head. When Mason Remey stood up against the violation of the Faith, they put him out of the Faith, opposing the Guardian and breaking the Covenant.

The ones who "grabbed power and authority" was not Mason Remey and his followers. It was the Hands and all of you who have followed them into violation of the Covenant and opposition to the Guardian of the Cause.

by Sean:
Maher if there's one thing I hope that you know about the Bahai Faith is that it teaches that what the world needs now most is UNITY.

The whole purpose of the Bahai Faith is Unity. Unite all races, religions, creeds, tribes, and peoples together.

To achieve that aim Baha'u'llah made sure to preventive the schism that religions of the past suffered immediately after the founder died.

Baha'u'llah named Abdu'l-Baha as his successor. Abdu'l-Baha in turn named Shoghi Effendi the Guardian of the Bahai Faith in his Will and Testament. Shoghi Effendi in turn laid the stage for the election of the Universal House of Justice which Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha had already written about as the head of the Bahai Faith.

In the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha it is stated

O ye beloved of the Lord! It is incumbent upon the guardian of the Cause of God to appoint in his own life-time him that shall become his successor, that differences may not arise after his passing. He that is appointed must manifest in himself detachment from all worldly things, must be the essence of purity, must show in himself the fear of God, knowledge, wisdom and learning. Thus, should the first-born of the guardian of the Cause of God not manifest in himself the truth of the words: -- "The child is the secret essence of its sire," that is, should he not inherit of the spiritual within him (the guardian of the Cause of God) and his glorious lineage not be matched with a goodly character, then must he (the guardian of the Cause of God), choose another branch to succeed him.

(Abdu'l-Baha, Baha'i World Faith - Abdu'l-Baha Section, p. 443)

Unfortunately, Shoghi Effendi died without warning and without naming a successor. The Hands of the Cause of God, unanimously affirmed that Shoghi Effendi had died without leaving behind a successor (they looked very hard!). Even Charles Mason Remey, a later Archbreaker of the Covenant wrote and affirmed that Shoghi Effendi had died without leaving a successor.

Shoghi Effendi called the Hands of the Cause of God "the Chief Stewards of Bahá'u'lláh's embryonic World Commonwealth, who have been invested by the unerring Pen of the Center of His Covenant with the dual function of guarding over the security, and of insuring the propagation, of His Father's Faith."

(Shoghi Effendi, Messages to the Baha'i World - 1950-1957, p. 127)

As such, after the passing of Shoghi Effendi, they held together the faith and continued Shoghi Effendi's plans for the election of the Universal House of Justice in 1963.

Unfortunately, although Charles Mason Remey was a highly praised Bahai, he fell into pride and arrogantly declared that he was the next Guardian of the Bahai Faith and that the Hands should stop trying to elect the Universal House of Justice.

Charles Mason Remey never addressed the fact the requirement that a Guardian must be a "branch", a direct descendant of Baha'u'llah. Sometimes Covenant Breakers try to say that a branch does not mean a descendant of Baha'u'llah but this directly contradicts Shoghi Effendi's affirmation (or what we already knew)

1548. The Term 'Afnan' Refers to Believers of the Bab

"The term 'Afnan' means literally small branch, and refers to the relatives of the Báb, both men and women. As the Báb's only son died while in infancy, the former had no direct descendants. The 'Afnan' are, therefore, all indirectly related to the Báb.

"As to 'Aghsan', it also means branch. But is a bigger branch than 'Afnan'. It refers to Bahá'u'lláh's descendants."

(From a letter written on behalf of Shoghi Effendi to an individual believer, September 25, 1934)
(Compilations, Lights of Guidance, p. 470)

Trying to divide the Faith of God is repeatedly referred to as a transgression against Him. One such quote says...

All must be under his shadow and obey his command. Should any, within or without the company of the Hands of the Cause of God disobey and seek division, the wrath of God and His vengeance will be upon him, for he will have caused a breach in the true Faith of God.
(Abdu'l-Baha, The Will and Testament, p. 12)

and...

They whom God hath endued with insight will readily recognize that the precepts laid down by God constitute the highest means for the maintenance of order in the world and the security of its peoples. He that turneth away from them, is accounted among the abject and foolish. We, verily, have commanded you to refuse the dictates of your evil passions and corrupt desires, and not to transgress the bounds which the Pen of the Most High hath fixed, for these are the breath of life unto all created things. The seas of Divine wisdom and divine utterance have risen under the breath of the breeze of the All-Merciful. Hasten to drink your fill, O men of understanding! They that have violated the Covenant of God by breaking His commandments, and have turned back on their heels, these have erred grievously in the sight of God, the All-Possessing, the Most High.

O ye peoples of the world! Know assuredly that My commandments are the lamps of My loving providence among My servants, and the keys of My mercy for My creatures. Thus hath it been sent down from the heaven of the Will of your Lord, the Lord of Revelation. Were any man to taste the sweetness of the words which the lips of the All-Merciful have willed to utter, he would, though the treasures of the earth be in his possession, renounce them one and all, that he might vindicate the truth of even one of His commandments, shining above the day spring of His bountiful care and loving-kindness.

(Baha'u'llah, Gleanings from the Writings of Baha'u'llah, p. 331)

Regarding why Bahais are not to associate with Covenant Breakers, I hope that the following quote will adequately answer your question.

45 COVENANT BREAKERS (Shun)

"... Bahá'u'lláh and the Master in many places and very emphatically have told us to shun entirely all Covenant breakers as they are afflicted with what we might try and define as a contagious spiritual disease; they have also told us, however, to pray for them. These souls are not lost forever. In the Aqdas, Bahá'u'lláh says that God will forgive Mirza Yahya if he repents. It follows, therefore, that God will forgive any soul if he repents. Most of them don't want to repent, unfortunately. If the leaders can be forgiven it goes without saying that their followers can also be forgiven...

"Also, it has nothing to do with unity in the Cause; if a man cuts a cancer out of his body to preserve his health and very life, no one would suggest that for the sake of unity it should be reintroduced into the otherwise healthy organism. On the contrary, what was once a part of him has so radically changed as to have become a poison."

(Shoghi Effendi, Directives from the Guardian, p. 16)

Let me know if I can be of any more help Maher. Have a great day.

Jeffrey:
I feel like I have been bombarded with distortion and twisted meanings, and the fact that they employ these tactics in order to establish their leadership is proof enough to me that they are false and they have usurped the authority of the true head of the Faith, and then have the audacity to call those of use who have remained faithful to the Guardianship as covenant breakers and poison.

I will respond to each of the points raised in this sickening repudiation of the Guardianship of the Cause.

It is true that the Baha'i Faith is about unity. But you have conveniently forgotten that Abdul-Baha has clearly directed us that unity can only be achieved by obedience to the Guardian: "The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the Guardian of the Cause of God. It is incumbent upon the members of the House of Justice, upon all the Aghsan, the Afnan, the Hands of the Cause of God to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the Guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him. He that opposeth him hath opposed the True One, will make a breach in the Cause of God, will subvert His Word and will become a manifestation of the Center of Sedition. Beware, beware, lest the days after the ascension (of Bahá'u'lláh) be repeated when the Center of Sedition waxed haughty and rebellious and with Divine Unity for his excuse deprived himself and perturbed and poisoned others. No doubt every vainglorious one that purposeth dissension and discord will not openly declare his evil purposes, nay rather, even as impure gold, will he seize upon divers measures and various pretexts that he may separate the gathering of the people of Baha." Will and Testament, pp. 11-12

Shoghi Effendi did in fact appoint his successor, in his own lifetime, as the Will and Testament required him to do. He appointed Mason Remey to head the IBC, the embyronic UHJ created by Shoghi Effendi in its inactive state. Mason Remey and the other Hands announced that they did not find a will appointing a Guardian. They did not announce there was no Guardian. To the contrary, their decision to abolish the Guardianship was kept a secret at the time. Mason Remey argued against the Hand's violation for two years before he finally publicly denounced their violation.

The Hands did not carry out Shoghi Effendi's wishes. There is nothing in any of the writings of Shoghi Effendi to intimate that the Hands were to seize administrative authority over the Cause, to declare Mason Remey as a covenant breaker and to install a headless UHJ. The Hands usurped their authority, on a weak argument that Shoghi Effendi had referred to them as Chief Stewards. The reality is the Hands had no authority and they violated the Covenant.

The argument that only an Aghsan could be a Guardian is false. This refers to the Sons of Baha'u'llah. It was Abdu'l-Baha who changed the successor of the Cause from the Aghsan to the Guardianship. The Master made it clear that the position was appointed. Nobody can oppose the Guardian's choice of successor. On the pretext that Mason Remey was not qualified to hold office, the Hands rejected the Guardian's choice.

by Maher:
So don't you talk to them as people? or you just don't talk to them abt religion?

I mean if an Orthodox-Baha'i is with you, what do you do?

Anyway I guess that God looks into the person's deeds not religion, I think God knows if we wanna be bad or wanna be good, and usually people don't believe in the same thing, everyone's perfect belief system is different from the other. So we should respect each other, and understand that the only goal most people are going to is the ultimate truth (God).

Jeffrey:
The shunning practiced by the large group of Baha'is is used as a cult like practice to keep people from knowing the truth. If you associate with someone they claim is a covenant breaker, they will threaten to shun you unless you agree to stop associating. They break apart families and they use manipulation and threats to hold on to their authority. I agree that we should all respect each other's right to practice our religion as we see fit. But this group does not agree. In fact they have taken us to Court to try to prevent us from calling ourselves "Baha'i."

Posted at 09:10 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Response to Facebook discussion on the Covenant

My dear friend, Martin, who has created his own Orthodox Baha'i group on Facebook sent me the latest discussions about the Covenant and the Orthodox Baha'is, and I thought I would respond here.

Martin:
Dear friends,

Some discussions on the Orthodox Baha'is occur in the group Baha'is on Facebook. I quote here that discussion. Love!

Maher:
I'm not a Baha'i, but I find that this religion is great in it's rules (while I'm not sure if it's true), except one thing, the usual Baha'is and the Orthodox Baha'is don't even talk to each other, just like to know why....thx

Jeffrey:
Not quite true, Maher. The Orthodox Baha'is do not shun the "usual Baha'is" but they shun us. They shun anyone who will even talk to us. They have taken the teachings of the Faith that were meant to protect the Faith from violation and they have twisted them in order to further their own violation. They shun us in an attempt to silence the truth.

Replies
by Adib
We don't shun them as if they do not exist in this world. We can still work with them in regards to business matters and so forth (I need to fnid the quotes for all this).
But Baha'u'llah stated that Covenant Breakers are poison to the Cause of the Baha'i Faith. Not saying that the individuals are hideous or anything, but the concepts they are taught and carry have negative influence on the general Baha'i population.
Anyway, this is my opinion.

I guess we need more information on this one :)

Jeffrey:
You certainly do need more information. If you are going to talk about what Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha said about covenant breakers, you need to stop and think with your own minds for a minute and ask yourselves how they defined what is a covenant breaker. If you went back and studied this, you would find that it is the so-called "usual Baha'is" who are the covenant breakers and poison to the Cause. Why? Because covenant breaking is opposition to the Center. That is, opposition to Abdu'l-Baha and then to the Guardian of the Cause. Covenant breaking means opposition to the Guardian. After the Hands deposed the Guardian and the original embryonic UHJ established by Shoghi Effendi, they substituted the Center for their own headless UHJ. All of a sudden, the definition of a covenant breaker became one who opposes their illegitimate UHJ. The UHJ of the original teachings had a Guardian as its head, but their UHJ has no Guardian. They are opposed to the true Faith.

by Patsy
Generally a covenant breaker is someone who disputes the authority of the Covenant. Baha'u'llah appointed Abdu'l Baha. With most of His family turning away from that truth (the wheat from the chaff) Abdu'l Baha went about His Fathers business. Later He appointed Shoghi Effendi as the Guardian and the same thing happened. When Shoghi Effendi died, one of the Hands decided he was the next Guardian. The other Hands worked to follow Shoghi Effendi's plans and to establish the Universal House of Justice. In each of these scenarios, someone demanded power and authority. But those who were given that power and authority never once used it for their own good.
I have a feeling "Orthodox" followed Mason Remy, the Hand. I saw it once in the New York phone book when I was a Baha'i of 2 weeks and stuck in NY. My instinct told me it wasn't right. I guess for me it's like drinking coffee while driving, it's a dangerous distraction, and you could get burned.
The scholars on this discussion board have likely found all their quotes by now and will be with you shortly.
(Darn! Whenever I put my tongue in my cheek, I bite it!)

The Will and Testament of Abdul-Baha did not establish merely the Guardianship of Shoghi Effendi. He established an Institution that is one of the twin pillars of the Baha'i Commonwealth, to be occupied by a living man throughout the Dispensation of Baha'u'llah. He appointed Shoghi Effendi as the first Guardian.

One of the Hands did not decide he was the Guardian. Rather, he announced that Shoghi Effendi had indicated his successor by appointing Mason Remey to be the head of the embryonic UHJ, an office that could only be held by a future Guardian. Upon Shoghi Effendi's death, Mason Remey became the Guardian and the International Baha'i Council, as established by Shoghi Effendi, was activated and the twin pillars began operating as the head of the Faith. The group of renegade Hands, led by Ruhiyyih Khanum would not accept anyone as Guardian after Shoghi Effendi, engineered a coup to declare the Guardianship as ended and they secretly plotted to elect a UHJ without a Guardian as its head. When Mason Remey stood up against the violation of the Faith, they put him out of the Faith, opposing the Guardian and breaking the Covenant.

The ones who "grabbed power and authority" was not Mason Remey and his followers. It was the Hands and all of you who have followed them into violation of the Covenant and opposition to the Guardian of the Cause.

by Sean:
Maher if there's one thing I hope that you know about the Bahai Faith is that it teaches that what the world needs now most is UNITY.

The whole purpose of the Bahai Faith is Unity. Unite all races, religions, creeds, tribes, and peoples together.

To achieve that aim Baha'u'llah made sure to preventive the schism that religions of the past suffered immediately after the founder died.

Baha'u'llah named Abdu'l-Baha as his successor. Abdu'l-Baha in turn named Shoghi Effendi the Guardian of the Bahai Faith in his Will and Testament. Shoghi Effendi in turn laid the stage for the election of the Universal House of Justice which Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha had already written about as the head of the Bahai Faith.

In the Will and Testament of Abdu'l-Baha it is stated

O ye beloved of the Lord! It is incumbent upon the guardian of the Cause of God to appoint in his own life-time him that shall become his successor, that differences may not arise after his passing. He that is appointed must manifest in himself detachment from all worldly things, must be the essence of purity, must show in himself the fear of God, knowledge, wisdom and learning. Thus, should the first-born of the guardian of the Cause of God not manifest in himself the truth of the words: -- "The child is the secret essence of its sire," that is, should he not inherit of the spiritual within him (the guardian of the Cause of God) and his glorious lineage not be matched with a goodly character, then must he (the guardian of the Cause of God), choose another branch to succeed him.

(Abdu'l-Baha, Baha'i World Faith - Abdu'l-Baha Section, p. 443)

Unfortunately, Shoghi Effendi died without warning and without naming a successor. The Hands of the Cause of God, unanimously affirmed that Shoghi Effendi had died without leaving behind a successor (they looked very hard!). Even Charles Mason Remey, a later Archbreaker of the Covenant wrote and affirmed that Shoghi Effendi had died without leaving a successor.

Shoghi Effendi called the Hands of the Cause of God "the Chief Stewards of Bahá'u'lláh's embryonic World Commonwealth, who have been invested by the unerring Pen of the Center of His Covenant with the dual function of guarding over the security, and of insuring the propagation, of His Father's Faith."

(Shoghi Effendi, Messages to the Baha'i World - 1950-1957, p. 127)

As such, after the passing of Shoghi Effendi, they held together the faith and continued Shoghi Effendi's plans for the election of the Universal House of Justice in 1963.

Unfortunately, although Charles Mason Remey was a highly praised Bahai, he fell into pride and arrogantly declared that he was the next Guardian of the Bahai Faith and that the Hands should stop trying to elect the Universal House of Justice.

Charles Mason Remey never addressed the fact the requirement that a Guardian must be a "branch", a direct descendant of Baha'u'llah. Sometimes Covenant Breakers try to say that a branch does not mean a descendant of Baha'u'llah but this directly contradicts Shoghi Effendi's affirmation (or what we already knew)

1548. The Term 'Afnan' Refers to Believers of the Bab

"The term 'Afnan' means literally small branch, and refers to the relatives of the Báb, both men and women. As the Báb's only son died while in infancy, the former had no direct descendants. The 'Afnan' are, therefore, all indirectly related to the Báb.

"As to 'Aghsan', it also means branch. But is a bigger branch than 'Afnan'. It refers to Bahá'u'lláh's descendants."

(From a letter written on behalf of Shoghi Effendi to an individual believer, September 25, 1934)
(Compilations, Lights of Guidance, p. 470)

Trying to divide the Faith of God is repeatedly referred to as a transgression against Him. One such quote says...

All must be under his shadow and obey his command. Should any, within or without the company of the Hands of the Cause of God disobey and seek division, the wrath of God and His vengeance will be upon him, for he will have caused a breach in the true Faith of God.
(Abdu'l-Baha, The Will and Testament, p. 12)

and...

They whom God hath endued with insight will readily recognize that the precepts laid down by God constitute the highest means for the maintenance of order in the world and the security of its peoples. He that turneth away from them, is accounted among the abject and foolish. We, verily, have commanded you to refuse the dictates of your evil passions and corrupt desires, and not to transgress the bounds which the Pen of the Most High hath fixed, for these are the breath of life unto all created things. The seas of Divine wisdom and divine utterance have risen under the breath of the breeze of the All-Merciful. Hasten to drink your fill, O men of understanding! They that have violated the Covenant of God by breaking His commandments, and have turned back on their heels, these have erred grievously in the sight of God, the All-Possessing, the Most High.

O ye peoples of the world! Know assuredly that My commandments are the lamps of My loving providence among My servants, and the keys of My mercy for My creatures. Thus hath it been sent down from the heaven of the Will of your Lord, the Lord of Revelation. Were any man to taste the sweetness of the words which the lips of the All-Merciful have willed to utter, he would, though the treasures of the earth be in his possession, renounce them one and all, that he might vindicate the truth of even one of His commandments, shining above the day spring of His bountiful care and loving-kindness.

(Baha'u'llah, Gleanings from the Writings of Baha'u'llah, p. 331)

Regarding why Bahais are not to associate with Covenant Breakers, I hope that the following quote will adequately answer your question.

45 COVENANT BREAKERS (Shun)

"... Bahá'u'lláh and the Master in many places and very emphatically have told us to shun entirely all Covenant breakers as they are afflicted with what we might try and define as a contagious spiritual disease; they have also told us, however, to pray for them. These souls are not lost forever. In the Aqdas, Bahá'u'lláh says that God will forgive Mirza Yahya if he repents. It follows, therefore, that God will forgive any soul if he repents. Most of them don't want to repent, unfortunately. If the leaders can be forgiven it goes without saying that their followers can also be forgiven...

"Also, it has nothing to do with unity in the Cause; if a man cuts a cancer out of his body to preserve his health and very life, no one would suggest that for the sake of unity it should be reintroduced into the otherwise healthy organism. On the contrary, what was once a part of him has so radically changed as to have become a poison."

(Shoghi Effendi, Directives from the Guardian, p. 16)

Let me know if I can be of any more help Maher. Have a great day.

Jeffrey:
I feel like I have been bombarded with distortion and twisted meanings, and the fact that they employ these tactics in order to establish their leadership is proof enough to me that they are false and they have usurped the authority of the true head of the Faith, and then have the audacity to call those of use who have remained faithful to the Guardianship as covenant breakers and poison.

I will respond to each of the points raised in this sickening repudiation of the Guardianship of the Cause.

It is true that the Baha'i Faith is about unity. But you have conveniently forgotten that Abdul-Baha has clearly directed us that unity can only be achieved by obedience to the Guardian: "The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the Guardian of the Cause of God. It is incumbent upon the members of the House of Justice, upon all the Aghsan, the Afnan, the Hands of the Cause of God to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the Guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him. He that opposeth him hath opposed the True One, will make a breach in the Cause of God, will subvert His Word and will become a manifestation of the Center of Sedition. Beware, beware, lest the days after the ascension (of Bahá'u'lláh) be repeated when the Center of Sedition waxed haughty and rebellious and with Divine Unity for his excuse deprived himself and perturbed and poisoned others. No doubt every vainglorious one that purposeth dissension and discord will not openly declare his evil purposes, nay rather, even as impure gold, will he seize upon divers measures and various pretexts that he may separate the gathering of the people of Baha." Will and Testament, pp. 11-12

Shoghi Effendi did in fact appoint his successor, in his own lifetime, as the Will and Testament required him to do. He appointed Mason Remey to head the IBC, the embyronic UHJ created by Shoghi Effendi in its inactive state. Mason Remey and the other Hands announced that they did not find a will appointing a Guardian. They did not announce there was no Guardian. To the contrary, their decision to abolish the Guardianship was kept a secret at the time. Mason Remey argued against the Hand's violation for two years before he finally publicly denounced their violation.

The Hands did not carry out Shoghi Effendi's wishes. There is nothing in any of the writings of Shoghi Effendi to intimate that the Hands were to seize administrative authority over the Cause, to declare Mason Remey as a covenant breaker and to install a headless UHJ. The Hands usurped their authority, on a weak argument that Shoghi Effendi had referred to them as Chief Stewards. The reality is the Hands had no authority and they violated the Covenant.

The argument that only an Aghsan could be a Guardian is false. This refers to the Sons of Baha'u'llah. It was Abdu'l-Baha who changed the successor of the Cause from the Aghsan to the Guardianship. The Master made it clear that the position was appointed. Nobody can oppose the Guardian's choice of successor. On the pretext that Mason Remey was not qualified to hold office, the Hands rejected the Guardian's choice.

by Maher:
So don't you talk to them as people? or you just don't talk to them abt religion?

I mean if an Orthodox-Baha'i is with you, what do you do?

Anyway I guess that God looks into the person's deeds not religion, I think God knows if we wanna be bad or wanna be good, and usually people don't believe in the same thing, everyone's perfect belief system is different from the other. So we should respect each other, and understand that the only goal most people are going to is the ultimate truth (God).

Jeffrey:
The shunning practiced by the large group of Baha'is is used as a cult like practice to keep people from knowing the truth. If you associate with someone they claim is a covenant breaker, they will threaten to shun you unless you agree to stop associating. They break apart families and they use manipulation and threats to hold on to their authority. I agree that we should all respect each other's right to practice our religion as we see fit. But this group does not agree. In fact they have taken us to Court to try to prevent us from calling ourselves "Baha'i."

Posted at 09:10 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

They Sent Their Big Guns!

Hand of the Cause Marilyn Meyer speaks about the time when the Quincy, Illinois Baha'is accepted the Guardianship of Mason Remey. The sans-Guardian organization sent in all of their "big guns" to try to convince the Quincy Baha'is not to obey Mason Remey. The arguments of the Quincy Baha'is could not be refuted and the big guns had to give up.

Posted at 10:17 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

They Sent Their Big Guns!

Hand of the Cause Marilyn Meyer speaks about the time when the Quincy, Illinois Baha'is accepted the Guardianship of Mason Remey. The sans-Guardian organization sent in all of their "big guns" to try to convince the Quincy Baha'is not to obey Mason Remey. The arguments of the Quincy Baha'is could not be refuted and the big guns had to give up.

Posted at 10:17 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

They Sent Their Big Guns!

Hand of the Cause Marilyn Meyer speaks about the time when the Quincy, Illinois Baha'is accepted the Guardianship of Mason Remey. The sans-Guardian organization sent in all of their "big guns" to try to convince the Quincy Baha'is not to obey Mason Remey. The arguments of the Quincy Baha'is could not be refuted and the big guns had to give up.

Posted at 10:17 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Wilmette NSA's contempt motion FAILS against Orthodox Baha'is

The Court has issued its decision in the court action brought by the Wilmette NSA. The Court has ruled in favor of the Orthodox Baha'is. To read the Court's decision, follow this link: http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html

Posted at 04:39 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Wilmette NSA's contempt motion FAILS against Orthodox Baha'is

The Court has issued its decision in the court action brought by the Wilmette NSA. The Court has ruled in favor of the Orthodox Baha'is. To read the Court's decision, follow this link: http://trueseeker.typepad.com/true_seeker/court_case.html

Posted at 04:39 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

9 Erroneous Ideas You Would Have to Believe

In order to accept the claims of the leadership of the sans-Guardian Bahá'ís, you would have to believe the following plainly erroneous ideas. It astounds me that so many Bahá'ís have blindly accepted their leadership without being critical of these radically wrong concepts:

1) Shoghi Effendi was unable to appoint a successor for the reason that (choose all that you wish to believe): a) there was no Aghsán; b) he had no children; c) there was no one in the Holy Family still loyal; d) there were not 9 elected Hands to confirm the appointment. [The correct answer is, of course, none of the above. The Hands were obligated to accept any person the Guardian appointed]

2) The Hands had authority to seize control of the Faith after the passing of Shoghi Effendi (because they were the "Chief Stewards" and since Shoghi Effendi did not leave a Will, they might as well just take over). [Of course, they had no authority whatsoever]

3) The Hands had authority to call for the election of the headless UHJ (because they were supposedly faced with a situation not covered by the explicit Text so they needed a UHJ to ask what they should do). [The correct answer is that Shoghi Effendi had already established the International Bahá'í Council, the embryonic Universal House of Justice. If they needed guidance, then why didn't they consult this body?]

4) The headless UHJ has the authority to interpret the Texts as for example....

a) that there is no way to appoint a second Guardian to succeed Shoghi Effendi;

b) there is no way to appoint Hands;

c) the UHJ can supervise the Hands in the absence of the Guardian;

d) the UHJ can accept the Huqúq in the absence of the Guardian [interesting that they found a way to take the Huqúq but could not find a way to do the other things-- kind of selective, isn't it?]

e) that there was no guarantee in the Writings that the Guardianship would never be broken [contrary to the explicit statements made by Shoghi Effendi].

f) that the UHJ can appoint a Continental Board of Counselors to replace the Hands [even though there is no such Institution called for in the Writings]

[By the way, the UHJ has no authority to interpret the Texts under any circumstances; that is the sole province of the living Guardian]

5) The headless UHJ can function properly without a Guardian [despite the fact that Shoghi Effendi clearly stated that it could not].

6) The headless UHJ does not need a Guardian to "define the sphere of legislative action" [despite the fact that the Master's Will says that it is needed].

7) The headless UHJ can be infallible even though it does not have a Guardian [even though the Master defined the UHJ as having the Guardian as its sacred head].

8) Covenant breaking means opposing the headless UHJ [even though historically, in the Writings, it meant opposing the Center of the Covenant and later, the Guardians, and this definition was unilaterally changed by the UHJ].

9) The headless UHJ has the right to expel its own members [contrary to the explicit statement of the Master's Will that this is the right of the Guardian].

They say that the Orthodox Bahá'ís claims are far-fetched. But all we ask that you believe is that the teachings of the Faith that existed prior to 1957 continue exactly the same today, and that none of it has been abrogated. I think it is far-fetched to believe the above 9 erroneous statements.

Jeffrey

Posted at 08:42 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

9 Erroneous Ideas You Would Have to Believe

In order to accept the claims of the leadership of the sans-Guardian Bahá'ís, you would have to believe the following plainly erroneous ideas. It astounds me that so many Bahá'ís have blindly accepted their leadership without being critical of these radically wrong concepts:

1) Shoghi Effendi was unable to appoint a successor for the reason that (choose all that you wish to believe): a) there was no Aghsán; b) he had no children; c) there was no one in the Holy Family still loyal; d) there were not 9 elected Hands to confirm the appointment. [The correct answer is, of course, none of the above. The Hands were obligated to accept any person the Guardian appointed]

2) The Hands had authority to seize control of the Faith after the passing of Shoghi Effendi (because they were the "Chief Stewards" and since Shoghi Effendi did not leave a Will, they might as well just take over). [Of course, they had no authority whatsoever]

3) The Hands had authority to call for the election of the headless UHJ (because they were supposedly faced with a situation not covered by the explicit Text so they needed a UHJ to ask what they should do). [The correct answer is that Shoghi Effendi had already established the International Bahá'í Council, the embryonic Universal House of Justice. If they needed guidance, then why didn't they consult this body?]

4) The headless UHJ has the authority to interpret the Texts as for example....

a) that there is no way to appoint a second Guardian to succeed Shoghi Effendi;

b) there is no way to appoint Hands;

c) the UHJ can supervise the Hands in the absence of the Guardian;

d) the UHJ can accept the Huqúq in the absence of the Guardian [interesting that they found a way to take the Huqúq but could not find a way to do the other things-- kind of selective, isn't it?]

e) that there was no guarantee in the Writings that the Guardianship would never be broken [contrary to the explicit statements made by Shoghi Effendi].

f) that the UHJ can appoint a Continental Board of Counselors to replace the Hands [even though there is no such Institution called for in the Writings]

[By the way, the UHJ has no authority to interpret the Texts under any circumstances; that is the sole province of the living Guardian]

5) The headless UHJ can function properly without a Guardian [despite the fact that Shoghi Effendi clearly stated that it could not].

6) The headless UHJ does not need a Guardian to "define the sphere of legislative action" [despite the fact that the Master's Will says that it is needed].

7) The headless UHJ can be infallible even though it does not have a Guardian [even though the Master defined the UHJ as having the Guardian as its sacred head].

8) Covenant breaking means opposing the headless UHJ [even though historically, in the Writings, it meant opposing the Center of the Covenant and later, the Guardians, and this definition was unilaterally changed by the UHJ].

9) The headless UHJ has the right to expel its own members [contrary to the explicit statement of the Master's Will that this is the right of the Guardian].

They say that the Orthodox Bahá'ís claims are far-fetched. But all we ask that you believe is that the teachings of the Faith that existed prior to 1957 continue exactly the same today, and that none of it has been abrogated. I think it is far-fetched to believe the above 9 erroneous statements.

Jeffrey

Posted at 08:42 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Bahíyyih Khánum's Wisdom on the Center of the Faith

By Janice Franco
Guest Blogger

Bahíyyih Khánum was `Abdu'l-Bahá's sister. She was recently named by Joel B. Marangella as one of the 24 elders seated before God in heaven. Because of this, it is fitting to take a look at what she has to say. Relevent to Orthodox Bahá'ís is how she explained who the center of the Faith was and how important it was to regard him. At the time of `Abdu'l-Bahá's passing Bahíyyih Khánum wrote some letters that clarify this.

On page 141 in a letter following the passing of `Abdu'l-Bahá, she writes:

"Although to outward seeming the Sun of the Covenant has hidden Himself behind the clouds, and the Orb of the Testament is concealed, and on the holy horizon of glory, He has now set, and is lost to view--still His rays are shining from out His hidden place, and forever will His light shed down its splendours.

"For ever and ever will He, with all that invisible grace, and those bestowals of the spirit, lead the seeker onward, and guide the yearning, and ravish the hearts of the lovers.

"The Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá is His decisive decree; it gathers the believers together; it preserves their unity; it ensures the protection of the Faith of God. It designates a specific Centre irrefutably and in writing establishing Shoghi Efffendi as Guardian of the Faith and Chosen Branch, so that his name is recorded in the Preserved Tablet by the fingers of grace and bounty. How grateful should we be that such a bounty was bestowed and such a favour granted."

After reading this it is clear that not only was `Abdu'l-Bahá the Center, Shoghi Effendi was designated the new Center as the Guardian of the Faith. Bahíyyih Khánum refers to`Abdu'l-Bahá's Will and Testament in glowing terms as a book that was written that would "never be lost nor ever forgotten."

Unfortunately all too soon many of the Heterodox Bahá'ís have already forgotten that book. (It is unbelievable that at one visit to Panama in 1999 not a single copy of the Will and Testament, neither in English nor in Spanish could be found in the House of Worship there.) Bahíyyih Khánum goes on to state that the book contains all "that is essential and obligatory for the upraising of the Thy cause in this world below. It is a book in which all things are explained in minute detail, in such wise that no matters whether small or great have been left out." How can it be that the heterodox organization has declared null and void a large portion of that text? In another letter she states just how important this center is and the idea that it is "one holy being". Those that follow the heterodox Universal House of Justice are taught that their elected body is now the center of the faith. How could one holy being now suddenly be several holy beings?

Bahíyyih Khánum has some very compelling things to say and her letters can shed some light on questions that some of the believers may be pondering regarding the importance of a Guardian or Center.

In another letter (#33 pages 125-139) written to the Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'í's of Tabriz, 1922, following the passing of `Abdu'l-Bahá, she states:

"O my kind Lord! Thou didst make a clear compact and a Covenant explicit and firm, not in veiled and allusive language, that all should turn unto the Centre of Thy Covenant and the Protector of Thy Cause--so that no doubts whatever would remain for the hostile and the suspicious to exploit; and then Thy lone Servant rose up to lift Thy banner high, and carry the day for Thy Faith. For thirty years He summoned the people unto Thee, publicly, privately, and spread Thy Teachings and Thy principles to every corner, every country of the earth.....

"Then, O my Lord, Thou didst make Him to ascend unto Thee, to place Him at Thy side and by this the pillars of joy were shaken to their base, and the hearts of the devoted were terrified and the smoke of their sorrow overspread the earth....

"But the Centre of Thy complete and flawless Covenant, He Who occupies the seat of servitude to Thee in Thine exalted and all-glorious Cause, had written by Thy will and Thy power a Book that shall never be lost nor ever forgotten. Within it by Thy predestinating knowledge and might, He had set forth all that is essential and obligatory for the upraising of Thy Cause in this world below. It is a book in which all things are explained in minute detail, in such wise that no matters whether small or great have been left out. And by Thy will and pleasure He designated therein, in place of His own Person, a Branch grown out from the Tree of Thy holiness, one fresh and tender, verdant and flourishing, arising to serve Thee, dwelling in the groves of Thine eternity, and Thine immortal gardens. ....

"Over a span of thirty years the Centre of God's Covenant rested not, nor was His human temple ever tranquil and at peace. By day, by night, He would be teaching and guiding stranger and friend alike, and protecting the Cause, and seeing to its progress, and for these things He sacrificed His life. Now does loyalty to Him require that the beloved should rise up in obedience to His instructions , and devote their efforts to teaching the Faith and to passing around from one to the next this winecup tempered at the camphor fountain, and to protecting God's Cause from the evil suggestions and the mischief of the adversary, and to guarding the structure of the holy Covenant from disruption at the hands of the Covenant-breakers....

"...the divine Beauty had made His Covenant so strong, and appointed its Centre so explicitly, in writing, unmistakably, that He had left no room for any questions or doubts. In the Most Holy Book of Aqdas, which in this most excellent of all ages is the Mother Book, and embraces all, and again in the Kitab-i-Ahdi, the last revealed Tablet by the Tongue of knowledge and wisdom, which contains the final wishes of God--the people of Bahá are directed with perfect clarity to turn their faces toward Him Whom God has purposed, and He is designated as the Interpreter of the Book, the Resolver of all complex and difficult questions, and the Centre of the Faith. Therein as well are the other Branches, the Afnan and the rest of the believers bidden to direct themselves unto that One so that all might face one and the same Centre, and all be bound thereto. Thus would the basic foundation of God's Cause, which is unity, remain unassailable. Thus the root of heresy and rebellion would wither away and just as in the days when He Who is the Truth was made manifest, so too in the day of His Covenant the light of unity would pervade all things, and put to flight the murk of disbelief and dualism and rebellion and opposition--and thus the tree of His holy Cause would grow and flourish, and the rich fruits borne by the holy Teachings would satisfy all needs and be sweet in the mouth of all mankind.

"This fact of there being only one Centre and of turning unto a single holy Being is, in the Kingdom of His Cause, as the shaft or spindle of a millstone, and all the other laws and ordinances must needs revolve around this one. In the temple of God's religion the Centre of the Cause can be likened to the heart, for upon it depends the life of the human body as one entity, as well as the relationships of its organs and their essential growth and vitality. In human society the Centre of the Cause can be compared to the sun, whose magnetic force controls the movements and orbits of the planets. The Centre of the Cause is also like the spine of a book, for by it the pages are all banded together into one book, and without the spine the papers would become loose and scattered."

I am certainly grateful to have found the current Center of the faith, Joel B. Marangella, and am glad to be under the shadow of that blessed tree.

Quotations above from: Bahiyyih Khanum The Greatest Holy Leaf, a compilation from Bahai sacred texts and writings of the Guardian of the Faith and Bahiyyih Khanum's own letters made by the Research Department of the Bahai World Center Haifa 1982.

Posted at 12:10 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Bahíyyih Khánum's Wisdom on the Center of the Faith

By Janice Franco
Guest Blogger

Bahíyyih Khánum was `Abdu'l-Bahá's sister. She was recently named by Joel B. Marangella as one of the 24 elders seated before God in heaven. Because of this, it is fitting to take a look at what she has to say. Relevent to Orthodox Bahá'ís is how she explained who the center of the Faith was and how important it was to regard him. At the time of `Abdu'l-Bahá's passing Bahíyyih Khánum wrote some letters that clarify this.

On page 141 in a letter following the passing of `Abdu'l-Bahá, she writes:

"Although to outward seeming the Sun of the Covenant has hidden Himself behind the clouds, and the Orb of the Testament is concealed, and on the holy horizon of glory, He has now set, and is lost to view--still His rays are shining from out His hidden place, and forever will His light shed down its splendours.

"For ever and ever will He, with all that invisible grace, and those bestowals of the spirit, lead the seeker onward, and guide the yearning, and ravish the hearts of the lovers.

"The Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá is His decisive decree; it gathers the believers together; it preserves their unity; it ensures the protection of the Faith of God. It designates a specific Centre irrefutably and in writing establishing Shoghi Efffendi as Guardian of the Faith and Chosen Branch, so that his name is recorded in the Preserved Tablet by the fingers of grace and bounty. How grateful should we be that such a bounty was bestowed and such a favour granted."

After reading this it is clear that not only was `Abdu'l-Bahá the Center, Shoghi Effendi was designated the new Center as the Guardian of the Faith. Bahíyyih Khánum refers to`Abdu'l-Bahá's Will and Testament in glowing terms as a book that was written that would "never be lost nor ever forgotten."

Unfortunately all too soon many of the Heterodox Bahá'ís have already forgotten that book. (It is unbelievable that at one visit to Panama in 1999 not a single copy of the Will and Testament, neither in English nor in Spanish could be found in the House of Worship there.) Bahíyyih Khánum goes on to state that the book contains all "that is essential and obligatory for the upraising of the Thy cause in this world below. It is a book in which all things are explained in minute detail, in such wise that no matters whether small or great have been left out." How can it be that the heterodox organization has declared null and void a large portion of that text? In another letter she states just how important this center is and the idea that it is "one holy being". Those that follow the heterodox Universal House of Justice are taught that their elected body is now the center of the faith. How could one holy being now suddenly be several holy beings?

Bahíyyih Khánum has some very compelling things to say and her letters can shed some light on questions that some of the believers may be pondering regarding the importance of a Guardian or Center.

In another letter (#33 pages 125-139) written to the Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'í's of Tabriz, 1922, following the passing of `Abdu'l-Bahá, she states:

"O my kind Lord! Thou didst make a clear compact and a Covenant explicit and firm, not in veiled and allusive language, that all should turn unto the Centre of Thy Covenant and the Protector of Thy Cause--so that no doubts whatever would remain for the hostile and the suspicious to exploit; and then Thy lone Servant rose up to lift Thy banner high, and carry the day for Thy Faith. For thirty years He summoned the people unto Thee, publicly, privately, and spread Thy Teachings and Thy principles to every corner, every country of the earth.....

"Then, O my Lord, Thou didst make Him to ascend unto Thee, to place Him at Thy side and by this the pillars of joy were shaken to their base, and the hearts of the devoted were terrified and the smoke of their sorrow overspread the earth....

"But the Centre of Thy complete and flawless Covenant, He Who occupies the seat of servitude to Thee in Thine exalted and all-glorious Cause, had written by Thy will and Thy power a Book that shall never be lost nor ever forgotten. Within it by Thy predestinating knowledge and might, He had set forth all that is essential and obligatory for the upraising of Thy Cause in this world below. It is a book in which all things are explained in minute detail, in such wise that no matters whether small or great have been left out. And by Thy will and pleasure He designated therein, in place of His own Person, a Branch grown out from the Tree of Thy holiness, one fresh and tender, verdant and flourishing, arising to serve Thee, dwelling in the groves of Thine eternity, and Thine immortal gardens. ....

"Over a span of thirty years the Centre of God's Covenant rested not, nor was His human temple ever tranquil and at peace. By day, by night, He would be teaching and guiding stranger and friend alike, and protecting the Cause, and seeing to its progress, and for these things He sacrificed His life. Now does loyalty to Him require that the beloved should rise up in obedience to His instructions , and devote their efforts to teaching the Faith and to passing around from one to the next this winecup tempered at the camphor fountain, and to protecting God's Cause from the evil suggestions and the mischief of the adversary, and to guarding the structure of the holy Covenant from disruption at the hands of the Covenant-breakers....

"...the divine Beauty had made His Covenant so strong, and appointed its Centre so explicitly, in writing, unmistakably, that He had left no room for any questions or doubts. In the Most Holy Book of Aqdas, which in this most excellent of all ages is the Mother Book, and embraces all, and again in the Kitab-i-Ahdi, the last revealed Tablet by the Tongue of knowledge and wisdom, which contains the final wishes of God--the people of Bahá are directed with perfect clarity to turn their faces toward Him Whom God has purposed, and He is designated as the Interpreter of the Book, the Resolver of all complex and difficult questions, and the Centre of the Faith. Therein as well are the other Branches, the Afnan and the rest of the believers bidden to direct themselves unto that One so that all might face one and the same Centre, and all be bound thereto. Thus would the basic foundation of God's Cause, which is unity, remain unassailable. Thus the root of heresy and rebellion would wither away and just as in the days when He Who is the Truth was made manifest, so too in the day of His Covenant the light of unity would pervade all things, and put to flight the murk of disbelief and dualism and rebellion and opposition--and thus the tree of His holy Cause would grow and flourish, and the rich fruits borne by the holy Teachings would satisfy all needs and be sweet in the mouth of all mankind.

"This fact of there being only one Centre and of turning unto a single holy Being is, in the Kingdom of His Cause, as the shaft or spindle of a millstone, and all the other laws and ordinances must needs revolve around this one. In the temple of God's religion the Centre of the Cause can be likened to the heart, for upon it depends the life of the human body as one entity, as well as the relationships of its organs and their essential growth and vitality. In human society the Centre of the Cause can be compared to the sun, whose magnetic force controls the movements and orbits of the planets. The Centre of the Cause is also like the spine of a book, for by it the pages are all banded together into one book, and without the spine the papers would become loose and scattered."

I am certainly grateful to have found the current Center of the faith, Joel B. Marangella, and am glad to be under the shadow of that blessed tree.

Quotations above from: Bahiyyih Khanum The Greatest Holy Leaf, a compilation from Bahai sacred texts and writings of the Guardian of the Faith and Bahiyyih Khanum's own letters made by the Research Department of the Bahai World Center Haifa 1982.

Posted at 12:10 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Bahíyyih Khánum's Wisdom on the Center of the Faith

By Janice Franco
Guest Blogger

Bahíyyih Khánum was `Abdu'l-Bahá's sister. She was recently named by Joel B. Marangella as one of the 24 elders seated before God in heaven. Because of this, it is fitting to take a look at what she has to say. Relevent to Orthodox Bahá'ís is how she explained who the center of the Faith was and how important it was to regard him. At the time of `Abdu'l-Bahá's passing Bahíyyih Khánum wrote some letters that clarify this.

On page 141 in a letter following the passing of `Abdu'l-Bahá, she writes:

"Although to outward seeming the Sun of the Covenant has hidden Himself behind the clouds, and the Orb of the Testament is concealed, and on the holy horizon of glory, He has now set, and is lost to view--still His rays are shining from out His hidden place, and forever will His light shed down its splendours.

"For ever and ever will He, with all that invisible grace, and those bestowals of the spirit, lead the seeker onward, and guide the yearning, and ravish the hearts of the lovers.

"The Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá is His decisive decree; it gathers the believers together; it preserves their unity; it ensures the protection of the Faith of God. It designates a specific Centre irrefutably and in writing establishing Shoghi Efffendi as Guardian of the Faith and Chosen Branch, so that his name is recorded in the Preserved Tablet by the fingers of grace and bounty. How grateful should we be that such a bounty was bestowed and such a favour granted."

After reading this it is clear that not only was `Abdu'l-Bahá the Center, Shoghi Effendi was designated the new Center as the Guardian of the Faith. Bahíyyih Khánum refers to`Abdu'l-Bahá's Will and Testament in glowing terms as a book that was written that would "never be lost nor ever forgotten."

Unfortunately all too soon many of the Heterodox Bahá'ís have already forgotten that book. (It is unbelievable that at one visit to Panama in 1999 not a single copy of the Will and Testament, neither in English nor in Spanish could be found in the House of Worship there.) Bahíyyih Khánum goes on to state that the book contains all "that is essential and obligatory for the upraising of the Thy cause in this world below. It is a book in which all things are explained in minute detail, in such wise that no matters whether small or great have been left out." How can it be that the heterodox organization has declared null and void a large portion of that text? In another letter she states just how important this center is and the idea that it is "one holy being". Those that follow the heterodox Universal House of Justice are taught that their elected body is now the center of the faith. How could one holy being now suddenly be several holy beings?

Bahíyyih Khánum has some very compelling things to say and her letters can shed some light on questions that some of the believers may be pondering regarding the importance of a Guardian or Center.

In another letter (#33 pages 125-139) written to the Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'í's of Tabriz, 1922, following the passing of `Abdu'l-Bahá, she states:

"O my kind Lord! Thou didst make a clear compact and a Covenant explicit and firm, not in veiled and allusive language, that all should turn unto the Centre of Thy Covenant and the Protector of Thy Cause--so that no doubts whatever would remain for the hostile and the suspicious to exploit; and then Thy lone Servant rose up to lift Thy banner high, and carry the day for Thy Faith. For thirty years He summoned the people unto Thee, publicly, privately, and spread Thy Teachings and Thy principles to every corner, every country of the earth.....

"Then, O my Lord, Thou didst make Him to ascend unto Thee, to place Him at Thy side and by this the pillars of joy were shaken to their base, and the hearts of the devoted were terrified and the smoke of their sorrow overspread the earth....

"But the Centre of Thy complete and flawless Covenant, He Who occupies the seat of servitude to Thee in Thine exalted and all-glorious Cause, had written by Thy will and Thy power a Book that shall never be lost nor ever forgotten. Within it by Thy predestinating knowledge and might, He had set forth all that is essential and obligatory for the upraising of Thy Cause in this world below. It is a book in which all things are explained in minute detail, in such wise that no matters whether small or great have been left out. And by Thy will and pleasure He designated therein, in place of His own Person, a Branch grown out from the Tree of Thy holiness, one fresh and tender, verdant and flourishing, arising to serve Thee, dwelling in the groves of Thine eternity, and Thine immortal gardens. ....

"Over a span of thirty years the Centre of God's Covenant rested not, nor was His human temple ever tranquil and at peace. By day, by night, He would be teaching and guiding stranger and friend alike, and protecting the Cause, and seeing to its progress, and for these things He sacrificed His life. Now does loyalty to Him require that the beloved should rise up in obedience to His instructions , and devote their efforts to teaching the Faith and to passing around from one to the next this winecup tempered at the camphor fountain, and to protecting God's Cause from the evil suggestions and the mischief of the adversary, and to guarding the structure of the holy Covenant from disruption at the hands of the Covenant-breakers....

"...the divine Beauty had made His Covenant so strong, and appointed its Centre so explicitly, in writing, unmistakably, that He had left no room for any questions or doubts. In the Most Holy Book of Aqdas, which in this most excellent of all ages is the Mother Book, and embraces all, and again in the Kitab-i-Ahdi, the last revealed Tablet by the Tongue of knowledge and wisdom, which contains the final wishes of God--the people of Bahá are directed with perfect clarity to turn their faces toward Him Whom God has purposed, and He is designated as the Interpreter of the Book, the Resolver of all complex and difficult questions, and the Centre of the Faith. Therein as well are the other Branches, the Afnan and the rest of the believers bidden to direct themselves unto that One so that all might face one and the same Centre, and all be bound thereto. Thus would the basic foundation of God's Cause, which is unity, remain unassailable. Thus the root of heresy and rebellion would wither away and just as in the days when He Who is the Truth was made manifest, so too in the day of His Covenant the light of unity would pervade all things, and put to flight the murk of disbelief and dualism and rebellion and opposition--and thus the tree of His holy Cause would grow and flourish, and the rich fruits borne by the holy Teachings would satisfy all needs and be sweet in the mouth of all mankind.

"This fact of there being only one Centre and of turning unto a single holy Being is, in the Kingdom of His Cause, as the shaft or spindle of a millstone, and all the other laws and ordinances must needs revolve around this one. In the temple of God's religion the Centre of the Cause can be likened to the heart, for upon it depends the life of the human body as one entity, as well as the relationships of its organs and their essential growth and vitality. In human society the Centre of the Cause can be compared to the sun, whose magnetic force controls the movements and orbits of the planets. The Centre of the Cause is also like the spine of a book, for by it the pages are all banded together into one book, and without the spine the papers would become loose and scattered."

I am certainly grateful to have found the current Center of the faith, Joel B. Marangella, and am glad to be under the shadow of that blessed tree.

Quotations above from: Bahiyyih Khanum The Greatest Holy Leaf, a compilation from Bahai sacred texts and writings of the Guardian of the Faith and Bahiyyih Khanum's own letters made by the Research Department of the Bahai World Center Haifa 1982.

Posted at 12:10 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

I failed to see

For my first video rant, here I talk about the day when I decided to declare and join the Baha'i Faith at the Baha'i House of Worship in Wilmette. The whole place went dark for hours because there was a power outage. There I sat outside this darkened building, while they rummaged through the dark building looking for a declaration card. If only I realized the omen that the organization I was trying to join was plunged into darkness.

Luckily, I eventually awakened. Here is my first video.

Posted at 02:54 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

I failed to see

For my first video rant, here I talk about the day when I decided to declare and join the Baha'i Faith at the Baha'i House of Worship in Wilmette. The whole place went dark for hours because there was a power outage. There I sat outside this darkened building, while they rummaged through the dark building looking for a declaration card. If only I realized the omen that the organization I was trying to join was plunged into darkness.

Luckily, I eventually awakened. Here is my first video.

Posted at 02:54 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Really, Shoghi Effendi was not silent on the Guardianship!

By Martin Lavallee
Guest Blogger

Many of the heterodox Bahá'ís believe that Shoghi Effendi was silent about the Guardianship. He was not. In 1954, Shoghi Effendi spoke about the Guardianship.

Here is a question for you:

Where will the Seat of the Guardians be built in this "far flung arc"?

Cable 27 November 1954 (Shoghi Effendi, Messages to the Bahá'í World: 1950-1957):
"The raising of this Edifice will in turn herald the construction, in the course of successive epochs of the Formative Age of the Faith, of several other structures, which will serve as the administrative seats of such divinely appointed institutions as the Guardianship, the Hands of the Cause, and the Universal House of Justice."

Joel B. Marangella wrote:

"In reviewing this stream of communications to the Bahá'í world that flowed from Shoghi Effendi's pen, one notes that he repeatedly endeavored to give the believers a vision of the future developments in store for the Faith at the World Center as well as throughout the world. If one were to search these communications as well as the other copious writing of Shoghi Effendi concerning the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh, not a single word would be found alluding in the slightest to any possibility that the divine Charters referred to above would, in part, or in their entirety, become null and void.

"Quite to the contrary, all his acts and words were focused on their complete implementation and fulfilment. For example, only some three years prior to his passing he clearly wrote of the future edifices that would be raised on Mount Carmel to serve as the administrative seats for the highest institutions of the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh, edifices that included the seat of the Guardianship. Shoghi Effendi took the occasion of a message in which he described the acquisition of a piece of land on the slopes of Mount Carmel for the erection of 'the structure of the International Bahá'í Archives designed by the Hand of the Cause Mason Remey President of the International Bahá'í Council' to speak of the future edifices that would be built 'in the shape of a far-flung arc' surrounding the resting places of the members of the Holy Family of Bahá'u'lláh.

"Shoghi Effendi stated:

" 'The raising of this Edifice will in turn herald the construction in the course of successive epochs of the Formative Age of the Faith of several other structures which will serve as the administrative seats of such divinely appointed institutions as the Guardianship the Hands of the Cause and the Universal House of Justice.' And Shoghi Effendi went on to say in this message:

" 'The ultimate completion of this stupendous undertaking will mark the culmination of the development of a world-wide divinely-appointed Administrative Order whose beginnings may be traced as far back as the concluding years of the Heroic Age of the Faith.' And in the concluding passages of this message he proclaimed that 'The final establishment of this seat of the future Bahá'í World Commonwealth will signalize at once the proclamation of the sovereignty of the Founder of our Faith and the advent of the Kingdom of the Father repeatedly lauded and promised by Jesus Christ.' "
(Cable 27 November 1954)*
http://bahai-guardian.com/violation.html

Shoghi Effendi has written:

"The statement in the Will of `Abdu'l-Bahá does not imply that the Hands of the Cause of God have been given the authority to overrule the Guardian. `Abdu'l-Bahá could not have provided for a conflict of authority in the Faith. This is obvious, in view of His own words, which you will find on page 13 (p. 11 of 1944 U.S. edition) of the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá. 'The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the guardian of the Cause of God. It is incumbent upon...the Hands of the Cause of God to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him. He that opposeth him hath opposed the True One,' etc."
from Bahá'í News: http://www.rt66.com/~obfusa/newspage/288-55.htm

Then in 1956, the first Guardian referred to the interpretative infallibility reserved to the Guardianship:

"The infallibility of the Guardian is confined to matters which are related strictly to the Cause and interpretations of the Teachings; he is not an infallible authority on other subjects, such as economics, science, etc."

"The Guardian's infallibility covers interpretation of the revealed word, and its application. Likewise any instructions he may issue having to do with the protection of the Faith, or its well-being must be closely obeyed, as he is infallible in the protection of the Faith. He is assured the guidance of both Bahá'u'lláh and the Bab, as the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá clearly reveals."
American Bahá'í News. Page 2 November 1945

And in 1957:

"Call upon Hands and National Assemblies, each continent separately, to establish henceforth direct contact and deliberate, whenever feasible, as frequently as possible, to exchange reports to be submitted by their respective Auxiliary Boards and national committees, to exercise unrelaxing vigilance and carry out unflinchingly their sacred, inescapable duties. The security of our precious Faith, the preservation of the spiritual health of the Bahá'í communities, the vitality of the faith of its individual members, the proper functioning of its laboriously erected institutions, the fruition of its worldwide enterprises, the fulfilment of its ultimate destiny, all are directly dependent upon the befitting discharge of the weighty responsibilities now resting upon the members of these two institutions, occupying, with the Universal House of Justice, next to the Institution of the Guardianship, foremost rank in the divinely ordained administrative hierarchy of the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh."

Shoghi Effendi, Messages to the Baha'i World - 1950-1957

Really, Shoghi Effendi was not silent on the Guardianship!

Posted at 08:35 PM | Permalink | Comments (0)

True Bahá'í

Really, Shoghi Effendi was not silent on the Guardianship!

By Martin Lavallee
Guest Blogger

Many of the heterodox Bahá'ís believe that Shoghi Effendi was silent about the Guardianship. He was not. In 1954, Shoghi Effendi spoke about the Guardianship.

Here is a question for you:

Where will the Seat of the Guardians be built in this "far flung arc"?

Cable 27 November 1954 (Shoghi Effendi, Messages to the Bahá'í World: 1950-1957):
"The raising of this Edifice will in turn herald the construction, in the course of successive epochs of the Formative Age of the Faith, of several other structures, which will serve as the administrative seats of such divinely appointed institutions as the Guardianship, the Hands of the Cause, and the Universal House of Justice."

Joel B. Marangella wrote:

"In reviewing this stream of communications to the Bahá'í world that flowed from Shoghi Effendi's pen, one notes that he repeatedly endeavored to give the believers a vision of the future developments in store for the Faith at the World Center as well as throughout the world. If one were to search these communications as well as the other copious writing of Shoghi Effendi concerning the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh, not a single word would be found alluding in the slightest to any possibility that the divine Charters referred to above would, in part, or in their entirety, become null and void.

"Quite to the contrary, all his acts and words were focused on their complete implementation and fulfilment. For example, only some three years prior to his passing he clearly wrote of the future edifices that would be raised on Mount Carmel to serve as the administrative seats for the highest institutions of the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh, edifices that included the seat of the Guardianship. Shoghi Effendi took the occasion of a message in which he described the acquisition of a piece of land on the slopes of Mount Carmel for the erection of 'the structure of the International Bahá'í Archives designed by the Hand of the Cause Mason Remey President of the International Bahá'í Council' to speak of the future edifices that would be built 'in the shape of a far-flung arc' surrounding the resting places of the members of the Holy Family of Bahá'u'lláh.

"Shoghi Effendi stated:

" 'The raising of this Edifice will in turn herald the construction in the course of successive epochs of the Formative Age of the Faith of several other structures which will serve as the administrative seats of such divinely appointed institutions as the Guardianship the Hands of the Cause and the Universal House of Justice.' And Shoghi Effendi went on to say in this message:

" 'The ultimate completion of this stupendous undertaking will mark the culmination of the development of a world-wide divinely-appointed Administrative Order whose beginnings may be traced as far back as the concluding years of the Heroic Age of the Faith.' And in the concluding passages of this message he proclaimed that 'The final establishment of this seat of the future Bahá'í World Commonwealth will signalize at once the proclamation of the sovereignty of the Founder of our Faith and the advent of the Kingdom of the Father repeatedly lauded and promised by Jesus Christ.' "
(Cable 27 November 1954)*
http://bahai-guardian.com/violation.html

Shoghi Effendi has written:

"The statement in the Will of `Abdu'l-Bahá does not imply that the Hands of the Cause of God have been given the authority to overrule the Guardian. `Abdu'l-Bahá could not have provided for a conflict of authority in the Faith. This is obvious, in view of His own words, which you will find on page 13 (p. 11 of 1944 U.S. edition) of the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá. 'The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the guardian of the Cause of God. It is incumbent upon...the Hands of the Cause of God to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him. He that opposeth him hath opposed the True One,' etc."
from Bahá'í News: http://www.rt66.com/~obfusa/newspage/288-55.htm

Then in 1956, the first Guardian referred to the interpretative infallibility reserved to the Guardianship:

"The infallibility of the Guardian is confined to matters which are related strictly to the Cause and interpretations of the Teachings; he is not an infallible authority on other subjects, such as economics, science, etc."

"The Guardian's infallibility covers interpretation of the revealed word, and its application. Likewise any instructions he may issue having to do with the protection of the Faith, or its well-being must be closely obeyed, as he is infallible in the protection of the Faith. He is assured the guidance of both Bahá'u'lláh and the Bab, as the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá clearly reveals."
American Bahá'í News. Page 2 November 1945

And in 1957:

"Call upon Hands and National Assemblies, each continent separately, to establish henceforth direct contact and deliberate, whenever feasible, as frequently as possible, to exchange reports to be submitted by their respective Auxiliary Boards and national committees, to exercise unrelaxing vigilance and carry out unflinchingly their sacred, inescapable duties. The security of our precious Faith, the preservation of the spiritual health of the Bahá'í communities, the vitality of the faith of its individual members, the proper functioning of its laboriously erected institutions, the fruition of its worldwide enterprises, the fulfilment of its ultimate destiny, all are directly dependent upon the befitting discharge of the weighty responsibilities now resting upon the members of these two institutions, occupying, with the Universal House of Justice, next to the Institution of the Guardianship, foremost rank in the divinely ordained administrative hierarchy of the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh."

Shoghi Effendi, Messages to the Baha'i World - 1950-1957

Really, Shoghi Effendi was not silent on the Guardianship!

Posted at 08:35 PM | Permalink | Comments (0)

True Bahá'í

Really, Shoghi Effendi was not silent on the Guardianship!

By Martin Lavallee
Guest Blogger

Many of the heterodox Bahá'ís believe that Shoghi Effendi was silent about the Guardianship. He was not. In 1954, Shoghi Effendi spoke about the Guardianship.

Here is a question for you:

Where will the Seat of the Guardians be built in this "far flung arc"?

Cable 27 November 1954 (Shoghi Effendi, Messages to the Bahá'í World: 1950-1957):
"The raising of this Edifice will in turn herald the construction, in the course of successive epochs of the Formative Age of the Faith, of several other structures, which will serve as the administrative seats of such divinely appointed institutions as the Guardianship, the Hands of the Cause, and the Universal House of Justice."

Joel B. Marangella wrote:

"In reviewing this stream of communications to the Bahá'í world that flowed from Shoghi Effendi's pen, one notes that he repeatedly endeavored to give the believers a vision of the future developments in store for the Faith at the World Center as well as throughout the world. If one were to search these communications as well as the other copious writing of Shoghi Effendi concerning the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh, not a single word would be found alluding in the slightest to any possibility that the divine Charters referred to above would, in part, or in their entirety, become null and void.

"Quite to the contrary, all his acts and words were focused on their complete implementation and fulfilment. For example, only some three years prior to his passing he clearly wrote of the future edifices that would be raised on Mount Carmel to serve as the administrative seats for the highest institutions of the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh, edifices that included the seat of the Guardianship. Shoghi Effendi took the occasion of a message in which he described the acquisition of a piece of land on the slopes of Mount Carmel for the erection of 'the structure of the International Bahá'í Archives designed by the Hand of the Cause Mason Remey President of the International Bahá'í Council' to speak of the future edifices that would be built 'in the shape of a far-flung arc' surrounding the resting places of the members of the Holy Family of Bahá'u'lláh.

"Shoghi Effendi stated:

" 'The raising of this Edifice will in turn herald the construction in the course of successive epochs of the Formative Age of the Faith of several other structures which will serve as the administrative seats of such divinely appointed institutions as the Guardianship the Hands of the Cause and the Universal House of Justice.' And Shoghi Effendi went on to say in this message:

" 'The ultimate completion of this stupendous undertaking will mark the culmination of the development of a world-wide divinely-appointed Administrative Order whose beginnings may be traced as far back as the concluding years of the Heroic Age of the Faith.' And in the concluding passages of this message he proclaimed that 'The final establishment of this seat of the future Bahá'í World Commonwealth will signalize at once the proclamation of the sovereignty of the Founder of our Faith and the advent of the Kingdom of the Father repeatedly lauded and promised by Jesus Christ.' "
(Cable 27 November 1954)*
http://bahai-guardian.com/violation.html

Shoghi Effendi has written:

"The statement in the Will of `Abdu'l-Bahá does not imply that the Hands of the Cause of God have been given the authority to overrule the Guardian. `Abdu'l-Bahá could not have provided for a conflict of authority in the Faith. This is obvious, in view of His own words, which you will find on page 13 (p. 11 of 1944 U.S. edition) of the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá. 'The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the guardian of the Cause of God. It is incumbent upon...the Hands of the Cause of God to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him. He that opposeth him hath opposed the True One,' etc."
from Bahá'í News: http://www.rt66.com/~obfusa/newspage/288-55.htm

Then in 1956, the first Guardian referred to the interpretative infallibility reserved to the Guardianship:

"The infallibility of the Guardian is confined to matters which are related strictly to the Cause and interpretations of the Teachings; he is not an infallible authority on other subjects, such as economics, science, etc."

"The Guardian's infallibility covers interpretation of the revealed word, and its application. Likewise any instructions he may issue having to do with the protection of the Faith, or its well-being must be closely obeyed, as he is infallible in the protection of the Faith. He is assured the guidance of both Bahá'u'lláh and the Bab, as the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá clearly reveals."
American Bahá'í News. Page 2 November 1945

And in 1957:

"Call upon Hands and National Assemblies, each continent separately, to establish henceforth direct contact and deliberate, whenever feasible, as frequently as possible, to exchange reports to be submitted by their respective Auxiliary Boards and national committees, to exercise unrelaxing vigilance and carry out unflinchingly their sacred, inescapable duties. The security of our precious Faith, the preservation of the spiritual health of the Bahá'í communities, the vitality of the faith of its individual members, the proper functioning of its laboriously erected institutions, the fruition of its worldwide enterprises, the fulfilment of its ultimate destiny, all are directly dependent upon the befitting discharge of the weighty responsibilities now resting upon the members of these two institutions, occupying, with the Universal House of Justice, next to the Institution of the Guardianship, foremost rank in the divinely ordained administrative hierarchy of the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh."

Shoghi Effendi, Messages to the Baha'i World - 1950-1957

Really, Shoghi Effendi was not silent on the Guardianship!

Posted at 08:35 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The definition of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh has changed dramatically since 1950

By Guest Blogger
Barbara Walsh

From reading posts in Talk Religion Bahá'í, I have been reminded of the book “The Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh” that was published in 1950. I loved its introduction because it beautifully integrated the spiritual and administrative aspects of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh. The quotes below are from the introduction in referring to the establishment of the Kingdom of God on Earth.

"It is with this culmination of the process of social evolution on the planet, analogous to the stage of adult maturity in the individual, that the Bahá'í Faith is directly associated. The conditions of its establishment are the conditions of the Covenant of God in this age. The complexities of a world grown adult are infinitely manifold. Because all men are created different, the opinions of men vary greatly. It is for this reason that there must exist some absolute standard by which men can be reconciled; for otherwise the descent into the anarchy of the kingdom of expedience is inevitable. It is solely through the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh that this standard will be upraised and maintained."

"The Eternal Covenant of God is the recognition of, and response to, His Ancient Beauty through whomsoever It may be revealed. The complete revelation of that Beauty in the 'Day of God' necessitates the complete response of the whole of mankind and the maintenance of the fullest relation of love towards It, through the Center of that Covenant, Who is appointed to sustain the Balance of truth amid the changing realities of the world."

"Of this one Eternal Covenant all other Covenants form a part, whether that between God and His Messengers allotting each His degree of revelation, or those between His Messengers and the faithful, keeping alive for forgetful mankind the fuller promise to come - the 'Greater Covenant', to accept the next Messenger, and the 'Lesser Covenant', of obedience to the appointed head of the divinely established faith."

Reading further: "...But this life, for man grown adult, is to be established in a unity founded upon a divine structure or organization, reconciling the expression of the individual conscience with the necessary restraint of the basic authority of the Word of God, and collective responsibility for the whole community, under the guidance of God's finger through the Center of His Covenant. For the first time God's representative will be continually associated with men in the work of safeguarding the interests of the whole earth as one entity and one family acknowledging one Father. Bahá'u'lláh, ‘the Blessed Perfection’, the Most Great Beauty through Whom truth shall be distinguished from error and the wisdom of every command shall be tested,’ the complete fulfillment of the age of prophecy, made a provision for the protection of His Cause that was not open to His great Predecessors, for men in those times, our New Testament tells us, were not ready, and could not have borne it. Bahá'u'lláh in unequivocal terms established His own first-born son, `Abdu'l-Bahá, in His written Will, the Book of the Covenant, as the Center of the Covenant of God, and `Abdu'l-Bahá in His turn established Shoghi Effendi, the first Guardian, as the Center of the Covenant of God. They, and all the Guardians who will succeed Shoghi Effendi, are alone the ones through whom the absolute truth of the Word of Bahá'u'lláh can be known whenever there is need for the authority of God to reconcile the divergent relative opinions of men. The Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá, providing as it does the Charter of the New World, gives the Guardianship the function of interpretative guidance of man."

The entire introduction to this book is a wonderful, and I think, comprehensive definition of the Covenant in 1950, seven years before the death of Shoghi Effendi, and remains the definition of the Covenant for the Orthodox Bahá'ís today. The heterodox Bahá'ís have changed the definition dramatically.

Posted at 11:03 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The definition of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh has changed dramatically since 1950

By Guest Blogger
Barbara Walsh

From reading posts in Talk Religion Bahá'í, I have been reminded of the book “The Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh” that was published in 1950. I loved its introduction because it beautifully integrated the spiritual and administrative aspects of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh. The quotes below are from the introduction in referring to the establishment of the Kingdom of God on Earth.

"It is with this culmination of the process of social evolution on the planet, analogous to the stage of adult maturity in the individual, that the Bahá'í Faith is directly associated. The conditions of its establishment are the conditions of the Covenant of God in this age. The complexities of a world grown adult are infinitely manifold. Because all men are created different, the opinions of men vary greatly. It is for this reason that there must exist some absolute standard by which men can be reconciled; for otherwise the descent into the anarchy of the kingdom of expedience is inevitable. It is solely through the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh that this standard will be upraised and maintained."

"The Eternal Covenant of God is the recognition of, and response to, His Ancient Beauty through whomsoever It may be revealed. The complete revelation of that Beauty in the 'Day of God' necessitates the complete response of the whole of mankind and the maintenance of the fullest relation of love towards It, through the Center of that Covenant, Who is appointed to sustain the Balance of truth amid the changing realities of the world."

"Of this one Eternal Covenant all other Covenants form a part, whether that between God and His Messengers allotting each His degree of revelation, or those between His Messengers and the faithful, keeping alive for forgetful mankind the fuller promise to come - the 'Greater Covenant', to accept the next Messenger, and the 'Lesser Covenant', of obedience to the appointed head of the divinely established faith."

Reading further: "...But this life, for man grown adult, is to be established in a unity founded upon a divine structure or organization, reconciling the expression of the individual conscience with the necessary restraint of the basic authority of the Word of God, and collective responsibility for the whole community, under the guidance of God's finger through the Center of His Covenant. For the first time God's representative will be continually associated with men in the work of safeguarding the interests of the whole earth as one entity and one family acknowledging one Father. Bahá'u'lláh, ‘the Blessed Perfection’, the Most Great Beauty through Whom truth shall be distinguished from error and the wisdom of every command shall be tested,’ the complete fulfillment of the age of prophecy, made a provision for the protection of His Cause that was not open to His great Predecessors, for men in those times, our New Testament tells us, were not ready, and could not have borne it. Bahá'u'lláh in unequivocal terms established His own first-born son, `Abdu'l-Bahá, in His written Will, the Book of the Covenant, as the Center of the Covenant of God, and `Abdu'l-Bahá in His turn established Shoghi Effendi, the first Guardian, as the Center of the Covenant of God. They, and all the Guardians who will succeed Shoghi Effendi, are alone the ones through whom the absolute truth of the Word of Bahá'u'lláh can be known whenever there is need for the authority of God to reconcile the divergent relative opinions of men. The Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá, providing as it does the Charter of the New World, gives the Guardianship the function of interpretative guidance of man."

The entire introduction to this book is a wonderful, and I think, comprehensive definition of the Covenant in 1950, seven years before the death of Shoghi Effendi, and remains the definition of the Covenant for the Orthodox Bahá'ís today. The heterodox Bahá'ís have changed the definition dramatically.

Posted at 11:03 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The definition of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh has changed dramatically since 1950

By Guest Blogger
Barbara Walsh

From reading posts in Talk Religion Bahá'í, I have been reminded of the book “The Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh” that was published in 1950. I loved its introduction because it beautifully integrated the spiritual and administrative aspects of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh. The quotes below are from the introduction in referring to the establishment of the Kingdom of God on Earth.

"It is with this culmination of the process of social evolution on the planet, analogous to the stage of adult maturity in the individual, that the Bahá'í Faith is directly associated. The conditions of its establishment are the conditions of the Covenant of God in this age. The complexities of a world grown adult are infinitely manifold. Because all men are created different, the opinions of men vary greatly. It is for this reason that there must exist some absolute standard by which men can be reconciled; for otherwise the descent into the anarchy of the kingdom of expedience is inevitable. It is solely through the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh that this standard will be upraised and maintained."

"The Eternal Covenant of God is the recognition of, and response to, His Ancient Beauty through whomsoever It may be revealed. The complete revelation of that Beauty in the 'Day of God' necessitates the complete response of the whole of mankind and the maintenance of the fullest relation of love towards It, through the Center of that Covenant, Who is appointed to sustain the Balance of truth amid the changing realities of the world."

"Of this one Eternal Covenant all other Covenants form a part, whether that between God and His Messengers allotting each His degree of revelation, or those between His Messengers and the faithful, keeping alive for forgetful mankind the fuller promise to come - the 'Greater Covenant', to accept the next Messenger, and the 'Lesser Covenant', of obedience to the appointed head of the divinely established faith."

Reading further: "...But this life, for man grown adult, is to be established in a unity founded upon a divine structure or organization, reconciling the expression of the individual conscience with the necessary restraint of the basic authority of the Word of God, and collective responsibility for the whole community, under the guidance of God's finger through the Center of His Covenant. For the first time God's representative will be continually associated with men in the work of safeguarding the interests of the whole earth as one entity and one family acknowledging one Father. Bahá'u'lláh, ‘the Blessed Perfection’, the Most Great Beauty through Whom truth shall be distinguished from error and the wisdom of every command shall be tested,’ the complete fulfillment of the age of prophecy, made a provision for the protection of His Cause that was not open to His great Predecessors, for men in those times, our New Testament tells us, were not ready, and could not have borne it. Bahá'u'lláh in unequivocal terms established His own first-born son, `Abdu'l-Bahá, in His written Will, the Book of the Covenant, as the Center of the Covenant of God, and `Abdu'l-Bahá in His turn established Shoghi Effendi, the first Guardian, as the Center of the Covenant of God. They, and all the Guardians who will succeed Shoghi Effendi, are alone the ones through whom the absolute truth of the Word of Bahá'u'lláh can be known whenever there is need for the authority of God to reconcile the divergent relative opinions of men. The Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá, providing as it does the Charter of the New World, gives the Guardianship the function of interpretative guidance of man."

The entire introduction to this book is a wonderful, and I think, comprehensive definition of the Covenant in 1950, seven years before the death of Shoghi Effendi, and remains the definition of the Covenant for the Orthodox Bahá'ís today. The heterodox Bahá'ís have changed the definition dramatically.

Posted at 11:03 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The definition of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh has changed dramatically since 1950

By Guest Blogger
Barbara Walsh

From reading posts in Talk Religion Bahá'í, I have been reminded of the book “The Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh” that was published in 1950. I loved its introduction because it beautifully integrated the spiritual and administrative aspects of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh. The quotes below are from the introduction in referring to the establishment of the Kingdom of God on Earth.

"It is with this culmination of the process of social evolution on the planet, analogous to the stage of adult maturity in the individual, that the Bahá'í Faith is directly associated. The conditions of its establishment are the conditions of the Covenant of God in this age. The complexities of a world grown adult are infinitely manifold. Because all men are created different, the opinions of men vary greatly. It is for this reason that there must exist some absolute standard by which men can be reconciled; for otherwise the descent into the anarchy of the kingdom of expedience is inevitable. It is solely through the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh that this standard will be upraised and maintained."

"The Eternal Covenant of God is the recognition of, and response to, His Ancient Beauty through whomsoever It may be revealed. The complete revelation of that Beauty in the 'Day of God' necessitates the complete response of the whole of mankind and the maintenance of the fullest relation of love towards It, through the Center of that Covenant, Who is appointed to sustain the Balance of truth amid the changing realities of the world."

"Of this one Eternal Covenant all other Covenants form a part, whether that between God and His Messengers allotting each His degree of revelation, or those between His Messengers and the faithful, keeping alive for forgetful mankind the fuller promise to come - the 'Greater Covenant', to accept the next Messenger, and the 'Lesser Covenant', of obedience to the appointed head of the divinely established faith."

Reading further: "...But this life, for man grown adult, is to be established in a unity founded upon a divine structure or organization, reconciling the expression of the individual conscience with the necessary restraint of the basic authority of the Word of God, and collective responsibility for the whole community, under the guidance of God's finger through the Center of His Covenant. For the first time God's representative will be continually associated with men in the work of safeguarding the interests of the whole earth as one entity and one family acknowledging one Father. Bahá'u'lláh, ‘the Blessed Perfection’, the Most Great Beauty through Whom truth shall be distinguished from error and the wisdom of every command shall be tested,’ the complete fulfillment of the age of prophecy, made a provision for the protection of His Cause that was not open to His great Predecessors, for men in those times, our New Testament tells us, were not ready, and could not have borne it. Bahá'u'lláh in unequivocal terms established His own first-born son, `Abdu'l-Bahá, in His written Will, the Book of the Covenant, as the Center of the Covenant of God, and `Abdu'l-Bahá in His turn established Shoghi Effendi, the first Guardian, as the Center of the Covenant of God. They, and all the Guardians who will succeed Shoghi Effendi, are alone the ones through whom the absolute truth of the Word of Bahá'u'lláh can be known whenever there is need for the authority of God to reconcile the divergent relative opinions of men. The Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá, providing as it does the Charter of the New World, gives the Guardianship the function of interpretative guidance of man."

The entire introduction to this book is a wonderful, and I think, comprehensive definition of the Covenant in 1950, seven years before the death of Shoghi Effendi, and remains the definition of the Covenant for the Orthodox Bahá'ís today. The heterodox Bahá'ís have changed the definition dramatically.

Posted at 11:03 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The definition of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh has changed dramatically since 1950

By Guest Blogger
Barbara Walsh

From reading posts in Talk Religion Bahá'í, I have been reminded of the book “The Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh” that was published in 1950. I loved its introduction because it beautifully integrated the spiritual and administrative aspects of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh. The quotes below are from the introduction in referring to the establishment of the Kingdom of God on Earth.

"It is with this culmination of the process of social evolution on the planet, analogous to the stage of adult maturity in the individual, that the Bahá'í Faith is directly associated. The conditions of its establishment are the conditions of the Covenant of God in this age. The complexities of a world grown adult are infinitely manifold. Because all men are created different, the opinions of men vary greatly. It is for this reason that there must exist some absolute standard by which men can be reconciled; for otherwise the descent into the anarchy of the kingdom of expedience is inevitable. It is solely through the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh that this standard will be upraised and maintained."

"The Eternal Covenant of God is the recognition of, and response to, His Ancient Beauty through whomsoever It may be revealed. The complete revelation of that Beauty in the 'Day of God' necessitates the complete response of the whole of mankind and the maintenance of the fullest relation of love towards It, through the Center of that Covenant, Who is appointed to sustain the Balance of truth amid the changing realities of the world."

"Of this one Eternal Covenant all other Covenants form a part, whether that between God and His Messengers allotting each His degree of revelation, or those between His Messengers and the faithful, keeping alive for forgetful mankind the fuller promise to come - the 'Greater Covenant', to accept the next Messenger, and the 'Lesser Covenant', of obedience to the appointed head of the divinely established faith."

Reading further: "...But this life, for man grown adult, is to be established in a unity founded upon a divine structure or organization, reconciling the expression of the individual conscience with the necessary restraint of the basic authority of the Word of God, and collective responsibility for the whole community, under the guidance of God's finger through the Center of His Covenant. For the first time God's representative will be continually associated with men in the work of safeguarding the interests of the whole earth as one entity and one family acknowledging one Father. Bahá'u'lláh, ‘the Blessed Perfection’, the Most Great Beauty through Whom truth shall be distinguished from error and the wisdom of every command shall be tested,’ the complete fulfillment of the age of prophecy, made a provision for the protection of His Cause that was not open to His great Predecessors, for men in those times, our New Testament tells us, were not ready, and could not have borne it. Bahá'u'lláh in unequivocal terms established His own first-born son, `Abdu'l-Bahá, in His written Will, the Book of the Covenant, as the Center of the Covenant of God, and `Abdu'l-Bahá in His turn established Shoghi Effendi, the first Guardian, as the Center of the Covenant of God. They, and all the Guardians who will succeed Shoghi Effendi, are alone the ones through whom the absolute truth of the Word of Bahá'u'lláh can be known whenever there is need for the authority of God to reconcile the divergent relative opinions of men. The Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá, providing as it does the Charter of the New World, gives the Guardianship the function of interpretative guidance of man."

The entire introduction to this book is a wonderful, and I think, comprehensive definition of the Covenant in 1950, seven years before the death of Shoghi Effendi, and remains the definition of the Covenant for the Orthodox Bahá'ís today. The heterodox Bahá'ís have changed the definition dramatically.

Posted at 11:03 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The Guardian announces identity of last 5 of the 24 elders

By Janice Franco
Guest Blogger

Upon reading the Guardian's Ridván, 2008, letter a great announcement brought me much joy. Apparently back in November of 1944, Shoghi Effendi's answer to a letter written by Mrs. George R. True, dated July 22, 1943, was published in the Bahá'í News, No. 171. In it she had asked him about the twenty-four elders mentioned in the Book of Revelation. Shoghi Effendi answered as follows:

"Regarding the four and twenty elders: The Master in a Tablet, stated that they were the Báb and the eighteen letters of the Living, and five others who would be known in the future. So far, we do not know who these five others are."

But now, thanks to this great announcement we do finally know the identity of the other five. They are:

`Abdu'l-Bahá -Center of the Covenant
Bahíyyih Khánum -The Greatest Holy Leaf
Shoghi Effendi -First Guardian of the Cause of God
Charles Mason Remey -Second Guardian of the Cause of God
Martha Root -Prominent Teacher

A reference to the 24 elders can be found in Some Answered Questions, Ch. 11 Commentary on St. John:

"In each cycle the guardians and holy souls have been twelve. So Jacob had twelve sons; in the time of Moses there were twelve heads or chiefs of the tribes; in the time of Christ there were twelve Apostles; and in the time of Muhammad there were twelve Imams. But in this glorious manifestation there are twenty four, double the number of all the others, for the greatness of this Manifestation requires it. These holy souls are in the presence of God seated on their own thrones; meaning that they reign eternally.

"These twenty four great persons, thought they are seated on the thrones of everlasting rule, yet are worshippers of the appearance of the universal Manifestation, and they are humble and submissive saying, 'We give thanks to Thee, O Lord God Almighty, which art and wast and art to come, because Thou hast taken to Thee Thy great power and reigned' that is to say,Thou wilt issue all Thy teachings, Thou wilt gather all the people of the earth under Thy shadow, and Thou wilt bring all men under the shadow of one tent. Although it is the Eternal Kingdom of God, and He always had and has a Kingdom, the Kingdom here means the manifestation of Himself; and He will issue all the laws and teachings which are the spirit of the world of humanity, and everlasting life. And that universal Manifestation will subdue the world by spiritual power, not by war and combat; he will do it with peace and tranquillity, not by the sword and arms; He will establish this Heavenly Kingdom by true love, and not by power of war. He will promote these divine teachings by kindness and righteousness and not by weapons and harshness. He will so educate the nations and people that notwithstanding their various conditions, their different customs and characters, and their diverse religions and races, they will, as it is said in the Bible, like the wolf and the lamb, the leopard and the kid, the sucking child and the serpent, become comarades, friends and companions. The contentions of races, the differences of religions, and the barriers between nations will be completely removed, and all will attain perfect union and reconciliation under the shadow of the Blessed Tree."

Further reading in Chapter 11 of Some Answered Questions reveals the importance of the Covenant and the Will and Testament.

" 'And there was seen in His temple the ark of His Testament.' That is to say, the Book of His Testament will appear in His Jerusalem, the Epistle of the Covenant will be established, and the meaning of the Testament and of the Covenant will become evident. The renown of God will overspread the East and West, and the proclamation of the Cause of God will fill the world.

The violators of the Covenant will be degraded and dispersed, and the faithful cherished and glorified, for they cling to the Book of the Testament, and are firm and steadfast in the Covenant.'

'And there were lightnings and voices, and thunderings and an earthquake and great hail,' meaning that after the appearance of the Book of the Testament there will be a great storm, and the lightnings of the anger and wrath of God will flash, the noise of the thunder of the violation of the Covenant will resound, the earthquake of doubts will take place, the hail of torments will beat upon the violators of the Covenant, and even those who profess belief will fall into trials and temptations."

Perhaps the announcement of the remaining elders is an indication that we are advancing toward that day when all the people of the earth will be gathered under the shadow of the Blessed Tree.

Posted at 11:17 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The Guardian announces identity of last 5 of the 24 elders

By Janice Franco
Guest Blogger

Upon reading the Guardian's Ridván, 2008, letter a great announcement brought me much joy. Apparently back in November of 1944, Shoghi Effendi's answer to a letter written by Mrs. George R. True, dated July 22, 1943, was published in the Bahá'í News, No. 171. In it she had asked him about the twenty-four elders mentioned in the Book of Revelation. Shoghi Effendi answered as follows:

"Regarding the four and twenty elders: The Master in a Tablet, stated that they were the Báb and the eighteen letters of the Living, and five others who would be known in the future. So far, we do not know who these five others are."

But now, thanks to this great announcement we do finally know the identity of the other five. They are:

`Abdu'l-Bahá -Center of the Covenant
Bahíyyih Khánum -The Greatest Holy Leaf
Shoghi Effendi -First Guardian of the Cause of God
Charles Mason Remey -Second Guardian of the Cause of God
Martha Root -Prominent Teacher

A reference to the 24 elders can be found in Some Answered Questions, Ch. 11 Commentary on St. John:

"In each cycle the guardians and holy souls have been twelve. So Jacob had twelve sons; in the time of Moses there were twelve heads or chiefs of the tribes; in the time of Christ there were twelve Apostles; and in the time of Muhammad there were twelve Imams. But in this glorious manifestation there are twenty four, double the number of all the others, for the greatness of this Manifestation requires it. These holy souls are in the presence of God seated on their own thrones; meaning that they reign eternally.

"These twenty four great persons, thought they are seated on the thrones of everlasting rule, yet are worshippers of the appearance of the universal Manifestation, and they are humble and submissive saying, 'We give thanks to Thee, O Lord God Almighty, which art and wast and art to come, because Thou hast taken to Thee Thy great power and reigned' that is to say,Thou wilt issue all Thy teachings, Thou wilt gather all the people of the earth under Thy shadow, and Thou wilt bring all men under the shadow of one tent. Although it is the Eternal Kingdom of God, and He always had and has a Kingdom, the Kingdom here means the manifestation of Himself; and He will issue all the laws and teachings which are the spirit of the world of humanity, and everlasting life. And that universal Manifestation will subdue the world by spiritual power, not by war and combat; he will do it with peace and tranquillity, not by the sword and arms; He will establish this Heavenly Kingdom by true love, and not by power of war. He will promote these divine teachings by kindness and righteousness and not by weapons and harshness. He will so educate the nations and people that notwithstanding their various conditions, their different customs and characters, and their diverse religions and races, they will, as it is said in the Bible, like the wolf and the lamb, the leopard and the kid, the sucking child and the serpent, become comarades, friends and companions. The contentions of races, the differences of religions, and the barriers between nations will be completely removed, and all will attain perfect union and reconciliation under the shadow of the Blessed Tree."

Further reading in Chapter 11 of Some Answered Questions reveals the importance of the Covenant and the Will and Testament.

" 'And there was seen in His temple the ark of His Testament.' That is to say, the Book of His Testament will appear in His Jerusalem, the Epistle of the Covenant will be established, and the meaning of the Testament and of the Covenant will become evident. The renown of God will overspread the East and West, and the proclamation of the Cause of God will fill the world.

The violators of the Covenant will be degraded and dispersed, and the faithful cherished and glorified, for they cling to the Book of the Testament, and are firm and steadfast in the Covenant.'

'And there were lightnings and voices, and thunderings and an earthquake and great hail,' meaning that after the appearance of the Book of the Testament there will be a great storm, and the lightnings of the anger and wrath of God will flash, the noise of the thunder of the violation of the Covenant will resound, the earthquake of doubts will take place, the hail of torments will beat upon the violators of the Covenant, and even those who profess belief will fall into trials and temptations."

Perhaps the announcement of the remaining elders is an indication that we are advancing toward that day when all the people of the earth will be gathered under the shadow of the Blessed Tree.

Posted at 11:17 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The Guardian announces identity of last 5 of the 24 elders

By Janice Franco
Guest Blogger

Upon reading the Guardian's Ridván, 2008, letter a great announcement brought me much joy. Apparently back in November of 1944, Shoghi Effendi's answer to a letter written by Mrs. George R. True, dated July 22, 1943, was published in the Bahá'í News, No. 171. In it she had asked him about the twenty-four elders mentioned in the Book of Revelation. Shoghi Effendi answered as follows:

"Regarding the four and twenty elders: The Master in a Tablet, stated that they were the Báb and the eighteen letters of the Living, and five others who would be known in the future. So far, we do not know who these five others are."

But now, thanks to this great announcement we do finally know the identity of the other five. They are:

`Abdu'l-Bahá -Center of the Covenant
Bahíyyih Khánum -The Greatest Holy Leaf
Shoghi Effendi -First Guardian of the Cause of God
Charles Mason Remey -Second Guardian of the Cause of God
Martha Root -Prominent Teacher

A reference to the 24 elders can be found in Some Answered Questions, Ch. 11 Commentary on St. John:

"In each cycle the guardians and holy souls have been twelve. So Jacob had twelve sons; in the time of Moses there were twelve heads or chiefs of the tribes; in the time of Christ there were twelve Apostles; and in the time of Muhammad there were twelve Imams. But in this glorious manifestation there are twenty four, double the number of all the others, for the greatness of this Manifestation requires it. These holy souls are in the presence of God seated on their own thrones; meaning that they reign eternally.

"These twenty four great persons, thought they are seated on the thrones of everlasting rule, yet are worshippers of the appearance of the universal Manifestation, and they are humble and submissive saying, 'We give thanks to Thee, O Lord God Almighty, which art and wast and art to come, because Thou hast taken to Thee Thy great power and reigned' that is to say,Thou wilt issue all Thy teachings, Thou wilt gather all the people of the earth under Thy shadow, and Thou wilt bring all men under the shadow of one tent. Although it is the Eternal Kingdom of God, and He always had and has a Kingdom, the Kingdom here means the manifestation of Himself; and He will issue all the laws and teachings which are the spirit of the world of humanity, and everlasting life. And that universal Manifestation will subdue the world by spiritual power, not by war and combat; he will do it with peace and tranquillity, not by the sword and arms; He will establish this Heavenly Kingdom by true love, and not by power of war. He will promote these divine teachings by kindness and righteousness and not by weapons and harshness. He will so educate the nations and people that notwithstanding their various conditions, their different customs and characters, and their diverse religions and races, they will, as it is said in the Bible, like the wolf and the lamb, the leopard and the kid, the sucking child and the serpent, become comarades, friends and companions. The contentions of races, the differences of religions, and the barriers between nations will be completely removed, and all will attain perfect union and reconciliation under the shadow of the Blessed Tree."

Further reading in Chapter 11 of Some Answered Questions reveals the importance of the Covenant and the Will and Testament.

" 'And there was seen in His temple the ark of His Testament.' That is to say, the Book of His Testament will appear in His Jerusalem, the Epistle of the Covenant will be established, and the meaning of the Testament and of the Covenant will become evident. The renown of God will overspread the East and West, and the proclamation of the Cause of God will fill the world.

The violators of the Covenant will be degraded and dispersed, and the faithful cherished and glorified, for they cling to the Book of the Testament, and are firm and steadfast in the Covenant.'

'And there were lightnings and voices, and thunderings and an earthquake and great hail,' meaning that after the appearance of the Book of the Testament there will be a great storm, and the lightnings of the anger and wrath of God will flash, the noise of the thunder of the violation of the Covenant will resound, the earthquake of doubts will take place, the hail of torments will beat upon the violators of the Covenant, and even those who profess belief will fall into trials and temptations."

Perhaps the announcement of the remaining elders is an indication that we are advancing toward that day when all the people of the earth will be gathered under the shadow of the Blessed Tree.

Posted at 11:17 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The Guardian announces identity of last 5 of the 24 elders

By Janice Franco
Guest Blogger

Upon reading the Guardian's Ridván, 2008, letter a great announcement brought me much joy. Apparently back in November of 1944, Shoghi Effendi's answer to a letter written by Mrs. George R. True, dated July 22, 1943, was published in the Bahá'í News, No. 171. In it she had asked him about the twenty-four elders mentioned in the Book of Revelation. Shoghi Effendi answered as follows:

"Regarding the four and twenty elders: The Master in a Tablet, stated that they were the Báb and the eighteen letters of the Living, and five others who would be known in the future. So far, we do not know who these five others are."

But now, thanks to this great announcement we do finally know the identity of the other five. They are:

`Abdu'l-Bahá -Center of the Covenant
Bahíyyih Khánum -The Greatest Holy Leaf
Shoghi Effendi -First Guardian of the Cause of God
Charles Mason Remey -Second Guardian of the Cause of God
Martha Root -Prominent Teacher

A reference to the 24 elders can be found in Some Answered Questions, Ch. 11 Commentary on St. John:

"In each cycle the guardians and holy souls have been twelve. So Jacob had twelve sons; in the time of Moses there were twelve heads or chiefs of the tribes; in the time of Christ there were twelve Apostles; and in the time of Muhammad there were twelve Imams. But in this glorious manifestation there are twenty four, double the number of all the others, for the greatness of this Manifestation requires it. These holy souls are in the presence of God seated on their own thrones; meaning that they reign eternally.

"These twenty four great persons, thought they are seated on the thrones of everlasting rule, yet are worshippers of the appearance of the universal Manifestation, and they are humble and submissive saying, 'We give thanks to Thee, O Lord God Almighty, which art and wast and art to come, because Thou hast taken to Thee Thy great power and reigned' that is to say,Thou wilt issue all Thy teachings, Thou wilt gather all the people of the earth under Thy shadow, and Thou wilt bring all men under the shadow of one tent. Although it is the Eternal Kingdom of God, and He always had and has a Kingdom, the Kingdom here means the manifestation of Himself; and He will issue all the laws and teachings which are the spirit of the world of humanity, and everlasting life. And that universal Manifestation will subdue the world by spiritual power, not by war and combat; he will do it with peace and tranquillity, not by the sword and arms; He will establish this Heavenly Kingdom by true love, and not by power of war. He will promote these divine teachings by kindness and righteousness and not by weapons and harshness. He will so educate the nations and people that notwithstanding their various conditions, their different customs and characters, and their diverse religions and races, they will, as it is said in the Bible, like the wolf and the lamb, the leopard and the kid, the sucking child and the serpent, become comarades, friends and companions. The contentions of races, the differences of religions, and the barriers between nations will be completely removed, and all will attain perfect union and reconciliation under the shadow of the Blessed Tree."

Further reading in Chapter 11 of Some Answered Questions reveals the importance of the Covenant and the Will and Testament.

" 'And there was seen in His temple the ark of His Testament.' That is to say, the Book of His Testament will appear in His Jerusalem, the Epistle of the Covenant will be established, and the meaning of the Testament and of the Covenant will become evident. The renown of God will overspread the East and West, and the proclamation of the Cause of God will fill the world.

The violators of the Covenant will be degraded and dispersed, and the faithful cherished and glorified, for they cling to the Book of the Testament, and are firm and steadfast in the Covenant.'

'And there were lightnings and voices, and thunderings and an earthquake and great hail,' meaning that after the appearance of the Book of the Testament there will be a great storm, and the lightnings of the anger and wrath of God will flash, the noise of the thunder of the violation of the Covenant will resound, the earthquake of doubts will take place, the hail of torments will beat upon the violators of the Covenant, and even those who profess belief will fall into trials and temptations."

Perhaps the announcement of the remaining elders is an indication that we are advancing toward that day when all the people of the earth will be gathered under the shadow of the Blessed Tree.

Posted at 11:17 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

For heaven's sake, think for yourself!

"Whenever you find that you are on the side of the majority, it is time to reform." Mark Twain - Notebook, 1904

I always thought the above quote was an astute observation. If you find yourself in the grip of group-think, believing things and following along because everybody else does, then I think it is time to pause and reflect upon whether it is time for reform. Group-think allows people to feel safe holding opinions that are just plain wrong and eliminating the need to examine one's beliefs or opinions. "Everybody knows that...." is the refuge of fools.

"Everybody knows that" the Guardian must be an Aghsán.

"Everybody knows that" the Guardian must be able to speak Arabic or Persian.

"Everybody knows that" there was no promise that the Guardianship would continue into the future.

"Everybody knows that" the Hands, after the passing of Shoghi Effendi, acted in good faith to take leadership of the Faith until the UHJ could be elected.

"Everybody knows that" the Hands had an elevated spiritual station and therefore it would be absurd to believe that their actions violated the Covenant.

I don't know these things so I don't think that "everybody knows" them. I think that upon examination these statements are proved to be false, that they are not consistent with the fundamental verities of the Faith as identified by Shoghi Effendi in The Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh. The fact that many people believe them is not relevant to me. Nobody has been able to satisfy me that these are the correct teachings of the Faith.

The principle of independent investigation of truth means that you make your own inquiries before you accept any statement as true. Think for yourself. It is one of the principles revealed by Bahá'u'lláh for living in this Day.

"Hain't we got all the fools in town on our side? And ain't that a big enough majority in any town?" Mark Twain - The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn

Jeffrey

Posted at 07:11 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

For heaven's sake, think for yourself!

"Whenever you find that you are on the side of the majority, it is time to reform." Mark Twain - Notebook, 1904

I always thought the above quote was an astute observation. If you find yourself in the grip of group-think, believing things and following along because everybody else does, then I think it is time to pause and reflect upon whether it is time for reform. Group-think allows people to feel safe holding opinions that are just plain wrong and eliminating the need to examine one's beliefs or opinions. "Everybody knows that...." is the refuge of fools.

"Everybody knows that" the Guardian must be an Aghsán.

"Everybody knows that" the Guardian must be able to speak Arabic or Persian.

"Everybody knows that" there was no promise that the Guardianship would continue into the future.

"Everybody knows that" the Hands, after the passing of Shoghi Effendi, acted in good faith to take leadership of the Faith until the UHJ could be elected.

"Everybody knows that" the Hands had an elevated spiritual station and therefore it would be absurd to believe that their actions violated the Covenant.

I don't know these things so I don't think that "everybody knows" them. I think that upon examination these statements are proved to be false, that they are not consistent with the fundamental verities of the Faith as identified by Shoghi Effendi in The Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh. The fact that many people believe them is not relevant to me. Nobody has been able to satisfy me that these are the correct teachings of the Faith.

The principle of independent investigation of truth means that you make your own inquiries before you accept any statement as true. Think for yourself. It is one of the principles revealed by Bahá'u'lláh for living in this Day.

"Hain't we got all the fools in town on our side? And ain't that a big enough majority in any town?" Mark Twain - The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn

Jeffrey

Posted at 07:11 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

For heaven's sake, think for yourself!

"Whenever you find that you are on the side of the majority, it is time to reform." Mark Twain - Notebook, 1904

I always thought the above quote was an astute observation. If you find yourself in the grip of group-think, believing things and following along because everybody else does, then I think it is time to pause and reflect upon whether it is time for reform. Group-think allows people to feel safe holding opinions that are just plain wrong and eliminating the need to examine one's beliefs or opinions. "Everybody knows that...." is the refuge of fools.

"Everybody knows that" the Guardian must be an Aghsán.

"Everybody knows that" the Guardian must be able to speak Arabic or Persian.

"Everybody knows that" there was no promise that the Guardianship would continue into the future.

"Everybody knows that" the Hands, after the passing of Shoghi Effendi, acted in good faith to take leadership of the Faith until the UHJ could be elected.

"Everybody knows that" the Hands had an elevated spiritual station and therefore it would be absurd to believe that their actions violated the Covenant.

I don't know these things so I don't think that "everybody knows" them. I think that upon examination these statements are proved to be false, that they are not consistent with the fundamental verities of the Faith as identified by Shoghi Effendi in The Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh. The fact that many people believe them is not relevant to me. Nobody has been able to satisfy me that these are the correct teachings of the Faith.

The principle of independent investigation of truth means that you make your own inquiries before you accept any statement as true. Think for yourself. It is one of the principles revealed by Bahá'u'lláh for living in this Day.

"Hain't we got all the fools in town on our side? And ain't that a big enough majority in any town?" Mark Twain - The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn

Jeffrey

Posted at 07:11 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

I am an Orthodox Bahá'í and I would not have it any other way

In her YouTube debut, Megan Kathleen Olsen delivers this moving YouTube version of her essay "Being an Orthodox Bahá'í" (originally published here on 24 March 2008).

Posted at 07:37 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

I am an Orthodox Bahá'í and I would not have it any other way

In her YouTube debut, Megan Kathleen Olsen delivers this moving YouTube version of her essay "Being an Orthodox Bahá'í" (originally published here on 24 March 2008).

Posted at 07:37 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

What happened to the independent investigation of truth?

By Janet Steele
Guest Blogger

To the followers of the headless "UHJ":

The first principal of the Faith is being attacked by your organization.

The "UHJ" is dictating what you can read, who you associate with and what your personal relationships should be. Can you truly support an organization that is virtually eliminating a fundamental principal of the Faith that you love? What other principals of this Faith will become obsolete so they can stay in control? The "UHJ" has taken away the Living Guardianship from you and now they are taking away your independence to search for truth. What else will they take from you? How would it be if scientific study were conducted this way?

I'm guessing we would still think that the world was flat. We do not live in a flat world.

Read the "Tablet to the True Seeker", "The Will and Testament of Abdul Baha" and the one and onl y Proclamation of Shoghi Effendi.

The search for Truth does not end when we find the Faith, it begins.

I pray that the friends are fearless and brave in their quest for Divine Truth and that your search be fruitful.

Posted at 08:52 PM | Permalink | Comments (0)

True Bahá'í

What happened to the independent investigation of truth?

By Janet Steele
Guest Blogger

To the followers of the headless "UHJ":

The first principal of the Faith is being attacked by your organization.

The "UHJ" is dictating what you can read, who you associate with and what your personal relationships should be. Can you truly support an organization that is virtually eliminating a fundamental principal of the Faith that you love? What other principals of this Faith will become obsolete so they can stay in control? The "UHJ" has taken away the Living Guardianship from you and now they are taking away your independence to search for truth. What else will they take from you? How would it be if scientific study were conducted this way?

I'm guessing we would still think that the world was flat. We do not live in a flat world.

Read the "Tablet to the True Seeker", "The Will and Testament of Abdul Baha" and the one and onl y Proclamation of Shoghi Effendi.

The search for Truth does not end when we find the Faith, it begins.

I pray that the friends are fearless and brave in their quest for Divine Truth and that your search be fruitful.

Posted at 08:52 PM | Permalink | Comments (0)

True Bahá'í

Stand in Support of the Guardian!

The sans-Guardian Bahá'ís take great comfort in the fact that the Orthodox Bahá'ís are so few in number. At first glance one might think that the cause is hopeless and all effort is futile when you consider how few Bahá'ís there are in the world, and then out of that small number, it is rare to find very many who follow Joel B. Marangella, the Guardian of the Cause. It matters not at all that there are so few of us.

Mason Remey, the second Guardian, wrote in his Second Encyclical Letter:

"The way of the Bahá'í Faith is difficult. At all times one must be awake to its perils, and particularly so in times of crisis such as the one in which the Faith now finds itself; for, at this present time, the very existence and the future of the Faith upon earth hangs in the balance. Should the Guardianship of the Faith lapse and the line be allowed to break (as these violators are making every effort to accomplish), the line of Guardianship will be broken, infallibility will be lost to the Faith, and all hopes will be lost for the Kingdom of God upon Earth.

"Such a condition we must not allow to happen. Even though we be but a mere handful – a very small number of followers faithful to the Covenant and the Administration of the Guardianship – we, with all the world in violation against us, must stand together and support the Guardianship.

"We must stand in firmness for the Guardianship, that is, the Administration of our Faith. Not only must we do this for our own sakes and for the present existence of our Faith; but it must be done for the Faith in the ages to come, for if we fail now and allow the Guardianship to pass out of existence and this spiritual line of heritage to become extinct, future generations will have no Cause. All infallible divine guidance will be at an end.

"Therefore, Friends of the Bahá'í Faith, arise and maintain the life center – the heart and the soul of the Abhá Kingdom upon earth that is the Guardianship – for only by our so doing will the Cause of El Abhá be saved for this world. Even though all the rest of the world be against us, nothing can destroy this Cause so long as even a small few believers stand in support of the Guardian and the continued Guardianship of the Bahá'í Faith."

We stand in support of the Guardian. Join us!

The Guardian's web site:
http://www.bahai-guardian.com/

Posted at 08:51 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Stand in Support of the Guardian!

The sans-Guardian Bahá'ís take great comfort in the fact that the Orthodox Bahá'ís are so few in number. At first glance one might think that the cause is hopeless and all effort is futile when you consider how few Bahá'ís there are in the world, and then out of that small number, it is rare to find very many who follow Joel B. Marangella, the Guardian of the Cause. It matters not at all that there are so few of us.

Mason Remey, the second Guardian, wrote in his Second Encyclical Letter:

"The way of the Bahá'í Faith is difficult. At all times one must be awake to its perils, and particularly so in times of crisis such as the one in which the Faith now finds itself; for, at this present time, the very existence and the future of the Faith upon earth hangs in the balance. Should the Guardianship of the Faith lapse and the line be allowed to break (as these violators are making every effort to accomplish), the line of Guardianship will be broken, infallibility will be lost to the Faith, and all hopes will be lost for the Kingdom of God upon Earth.

"Such a condition we must not allow to happen. Even though we be but a mere handful – a very small number of followers faithful to the Covenant and the Administration of the Guardianship – we, with all the world in violation against us, must stand together and support the Guardianship.

"We must stand in firmness for the Guardianship, that is, the Administration of our Faith. Not only must we do this for our own sakes and for the present existence of our Faith; but it must be done for the Faith in the ages to come, for if we fail now and allow the Guardianship to pass out of existence and this spiritual line of heritage to become extinct, future generations will have no Cause. All infallible divine guidance will be at an end.

"Therefore, Friends of the Bahá'í Faith, arise and maintain the life center – the heart and the soul of the Abhá Kingdom upon earth that is the Guardianship – for only by our so doing will the Cause of El Abhá be saved for this world. Even though all the rest of the world be against us, nothing can destroy this Cause so long as even a small few believers stand in support of the Guardian and the continued Guardianship of the Bahá'í Faith."

We stand in support of the Guardian. Join us!

The Guardian's web site:
http://www.bahai-guardian.com/

Posted at 08:51 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Stand in Support of the Guardian!

The sans-Guardian Bahá'ís take great comfort in the fact that the Orthodox Bahá'ís are so few in number. At first glance one might think that the cause is hopeless and all effort is futile when you consider how few Bahá'ís there are in the world, and then out of that small number, it is rare to find very many who follow Joel B. Marangella, the Guardian of the Cause. It matters not at all that there are so few of us.

Mason Remey, the second Guardian, wrote in his Second Encyclical Letter:

"The way of the Bahá'í Faith is difficult. At all times one must be awake to its perils, and particularly so in times of crisis such as the one in which the Faith now finds itself; for, at this present time, the very existence and the future of the Faith upon earth hangs in the balance. Should the Guardianship of the Faith lapse and the line be allowed to break (as these violators are making every effort to accomplish), the line of Guardianship will be broken, infallibility will be lost to the Faith, and all hopes will be lost for the Kingdom of God upon Earth.

"Such a condition we must not allow to happen. Even though we be but a mere handful – a very small number of followers faithful to the Covenant and the Administration of the Guardianship – we, with all the world in violation against us, must stand together and support the Guardianship.

"We must stand in firmness for the Guardianship, that is, the Administration of our Faith. Not only must we do this for our own sakes and for the present existence of our Faith; but it must be done for the Faith in the ages to come, for if we fail now and allow the Guardianship to pass out of existence and this spiritual line of heritage to become extinct, future generations will have no Cause. All infallible divine guidance will be at an end.

"Therefore, Friends of the Bahá'í Faith, arise and maintain the life center – the heart and the soul of the Abhá Kingdom upon earth that is the Guardianship – for only by our so doing will the Cause of El Abhá be saved for this world. Even though all the rest of the world be against us, nothing can destroy this Cause so long as even a small few believers stand in support of the Guardian and the continued Guardianship of the Bahá'í Faith."

We stand in support of the Guardian. Join us!

The Guardian's web site:
http://www.bahai-guardian.com/

Posted at 08:51 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

What happened to the independent investigation of truth?

By Janet Steele
Guest Blogger

To the followers of the headless "UHJ":

The first principal of the Faith is being attacked by your organization.

The "UHJ" is dictating what you can read, who you associate with and what your personal relationships should be. Can you truly support an organization that is virtually eliminating a fundamental principal of the Faith that you love? What other principals of this Faith will become obsolete so they can stay in control? The "UHJ" has taken away the Living Guardianship from you and now they are taking away your independence to search for truth. What else will they take from you? How would it be if scientific study were conducted this way?

I'm guessing we would still think that the world was flat. We do not live in a flat world.

Read the "Tablet to the True Seeker", "The Will and Testament of Abdul Baha" and the one and onl y Proclamation of Shoghi Effendi.

The search for Truth does not end when we find the Faith, it begins.

I pray that the friends are fearless and brave in their quest for Divine Truth and that your search be fruitful.

Posted at 08:52 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

What happened to the independent investigation of truth?

By Janet Steele
Guest Blogger

To the followers of the headless "UHJ":

The first principal of the Faith is being attacked by your organization.

The "UHJ" is dictating what you can read, who you associate with and what your personal relationships should be. Can you truly support an organization that is virtually eliminating a fundamental principal of the Faith that you love? What other principals of this Faith will become obsolete so they can stay in control? The "UHJ" has taken away the Living Guardianship from you and now they are taking away your independence to search for truth. What else will they take from you? How would it be if scientific study were conducted this way?

I'm guessing we would still think that the world was flat. We do not live in a flat world.

Read the "Tablet to the True Seeker", "The Will and Testament of Abdul Baha" and the one and onl y Proclamation of Shoghi Effendi.

The search for Truth does not end when we find the Faith, it begins.

I pray that the friends are fearless and brave in their quest for Divine Truth and that your search be fruitful.

Posted at 08:52 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

BAHÁ'U'LLÁH PROMISES LIVING INTERPRETER

POSTED ON BEHALF OF THE GUARDIAN OF THE BAHÁ'Í FAITH (Orthodox)

BAHÁ'U'LLÁH PROMISES IMPERISHABLE ACCESS TO A LIVING INTERPRETER THROUGHOUT HIS DISPENSATION

"Those words uttered by the luminaries of truth must needs be pondered, and should their significance be not grasped, enlightenment should be sought from the trustees of the depositories of knowledge, that these may expound their meaning, and unravel their mystery. for it behooveth no man to interpret the holy words according to his own imperfect understanding, nor having found them to be contrary to his inclination and desires to reject and repudiate their truth. for such, today, is the manner of the divines and doctors of the age, who occupy the seats of knowledge and learning, and who have named ignorance knowledge, and called oppression justice."

Kitab-i-Iqan (p.182)

Similarly to Muhammad Who, in referring to the Imams who were destined to succeed Him and be the sole interpreters of His word, stated in the Qu'ran:

"ASK YE THEREFORE, OF THEM THAT HAVE THE CUSTODY OF THE SCRIPTURES, IF YE KNOW IT NOT." Bahá'u'lláh has likewise cautioned "NO MAN TO INTERPRET THE HOLY WORDS ACCORDING TO HIS OWN IMPERFECT UNDERSTANDING..." or "CONTRARY TO HIS INCLINATION AND DESIRES..." and has enjoined those who do not grasp the significance of the revealed Word to seek enlightenment from the "TRUSTEES OF THE DEPOSITORIES OF KNOWLEDGE" (the depositories of Knowledge being their revealed Writings).

It is obvious that these Trustees (note the plurality) must be living to provide this sole source of interpretation as long as the Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh endures. Is it not clear, therefore, that Bahá'u'lláh promised that there would be this continued source of interpretation following the Ascension of `Abdu'l-Bahá? And, therefore, `Abdu'l-Bahá provided for this continuing source of interpretation in the Institution of the Guardianship in His Will and Testament, a sacred Document that should actually be considered a part of the immutable explicit holy Text and nothing less than "THEIR WILL" for, as Shoghi Effendi has explained in his work God Passes By:

"THIS INSTRUMENT CAN, IF WE WOULD CORRECTLY APPRAISE IT, NO MORE BE DIVORCED FROM THE ONE WHO PROVIDED THE MOTIVATING IMPULSE FOR ITS CREATION THAN FROM HIM WHO DIRECTLY CONCEIVED IT."

Yet, in complete disregard of the foregoing, this divinely-conceived, co-authored, immutable and sacred Document has been shamefully and inexplicably repudiated by those who contend that the Guardianship of the Cause of God has come to and end only thirty-six years after the inception of the Administrative Order, "FASHIONED BY THE HAND OF ITS PERFECT ARCHITECT" in which the Guardian has been designated both the Head of the Faith and the "SACRED HEAD FOR LIFE" of its supreme legislative Organ.

(Emphasis added)

Joel Bray Marangella

Guardian of the Baha'i Faith

July, 2008

Web: http://www.Bahai-Guardian.com

Posted at 04:19 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Deep discussions at OBF conferences!

Chad, an Orthodox Bahá'í in another deep discussion had at last June's Orthodox Bahá'í conference.

Posted at 10:46 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Deep discussions at OBF conferences!

Chad, an Orthodox Bahá'í in another deep discussion had at last June's Orthodox Bahá'í conference.

Posted at 10:46 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

For unity's sake: abandon counterfeit doctrines and imitations

When `Abdu'l-Bahá traveled through the United States, on 16 June 1912, He spoke before the Central Congregational Church in Brooklyn, New York on the subject of religious unity. It would behove Bahá'ís everywhere today to carefully consider His comments and to act accordingly.

`Abdu'l-Bahá (as set forth in The Promulgation of Universal Peace):

"Just as in the world of politics there is need for free thought, likewise in the world of religion ther e should be the right of unrestricted individual belief. Consider what a vast difference exists between modern democracy and the old forms of despotism. Under an autocratic government the opinions of men are not free, and development is stifled, whereas in democracy, because thought and speech are not restricted, the greatest progress is witnessed. It is likewise true in the world of religion. When freedom of conscience, liberty of thought and right of speech prevail -- that is to say, when every man according to his own idealization may give expression to his beliefs -- development and growth are inevitable...." [Emphasis added]

In considering this comment, it seems to me that `Abdu'l-Bahá is championing the right of this web site (http://www.truebahai.com) to exist. This is my personal web site and in it I publish my religious views. That is, I give expression to my beliefs according to my own idealization. Yet the National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of the United States took legal action against the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith to try (among other things) to have my web site shut down. Doesn't it seem strange to you that the leaders of an organization that purports to revere and follow `Abdu'l-Bahá would take this kind of action against me in light of the Master's clear views on religious liberty and the freedom to express one's beliefs? The NSA would probably respond as they did in the court papers, to allege that this site causes confusion in the minds of the public as to its source. Really? Is there anybody out there who visits my site really confused about whether I am a supporter or not of the NSA? Come on. There is not a single article on this web site that I don't make abundantly clear my contempt for and opposition to the NSA. If anybody is confused, they are simply not reading the site.

"The divine religion is reality, and reality is not multiple; it is one. Therefore, the foundations of the religious systems are one because all proceed from the indivisible reality; but the followers of these systems have disagreed; discord, strife and warfare have arisen among them, for they have forsaken the foundation and held to that which is but imitation and semblance. Inasmuch as imitations differ, enmity and dissension have resulted...."

In this part of His speech,`Abdu'l-Bahá opines about the reason for disunity in religion. He says that discord and strife among religions is because the followers of the religions have abandoned the foundation of their faith and have followed imitation. In other words, it is the failure of religious persons to independently investigate the truth of the matter that is the cause of disunity. Instead of investigating for themselves, they follow the opinions of others including their leadership. But is that not what is happening today with the NSA and its minions? Are they not blindly following imitation, obeying the dictates of their leaders without making any serious investigation of the arguments and ideas presented by the Orthodox Bahá'ís? Instead of investigating reality, they attempt to silence me and my fellow Orthodox Bahá'ís through the secular court system. This is not at all consistent with the Master's teachings.

"If Christians of all denominations and divisions should investigate reality, the foundations of Christ will unite them. No enmity or hatred will remain, for they will all be under the one guidance of reality itself. Likewise, in the wider field if all the existing religious systems will turn away from ancestral imitations and investigate reality, seeking the real meanings of the Holy Books, they will unite and agree upon the same foundation, reality itself. As long as they follow counterfeit doctrines or imitations instead of reality, animosity and discord will exist and increase."

Almost 100 years ago, the Master here sets forth the prescription for overcoming religious animosity and discord: not to follow counterfeit docrines or imitations instead of reality. All I can say to the Bahá'ís who follow the NSA, has it ever occurred to you that the abandonment of the Guardianship and with it many of the verities of the Faith, and the embrace of a headless so-called Universal House of Justice in place of the one described in the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá is precisely to follow COUNTERFEIT DOCTRINES AND IMITATIONS. This is common sense my friends. Attempting to silence us in the courts is not the method of attaining unity prescribed by the Master. How far will you allow your leadership to stray from the clear teachings of the Faith before you abandon its COUNTERFEIT DOCTRINES AND IMITATIONS?

The third Guardian's web site can found at http://www.bahai-guardian.com/

Jeffrey

Posted at 08:33 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

For unity's sake: abandon counterfeit doctrines and imitations

When `Abdu'l-Bahá traveled through the United States, on 16 June 1912, He spoke before the Central Congregational Church in Brooklyn, New York on the subject of religious unity. It would behove Bahá'ís everywhere today to carefully consider His comments and to act accordingly.

`Abdu'l-Bahá (as set forth in The Promulgation of Universal Peace):

"Just as in the world of politics there is need for free thought, likewise in the world of religion ther e should be the right of unrestricted individual belief. Consider what a vast difference exists between modern democracy and the old forms of despotism. Under an autocratic government the opinions of men are not free, and development is stifled, whereas in democracy, because thought and speech are not restricted, the greatest progress is witnessed. It is likewise true in the world of religion. When freedom of conscience, liberty of thought and right of speech prevail -- that is to say, when every man according to his own idealization may give expression to his beliefs -- development and growth are inevitable...." [Emphasis added]

In considering this comment, it seems to me that `Abdu'l-Bahá is championing the right of this web site (http://www.truebahai.com) to exist. This is my personal web site and in it I publish my religious views. That is, I give expression to my beliefs according to my own idealization. Yet the National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of the United States took legal action against the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith to try (among other things) to have my web site shut down. Doesn't it seem strange to you that the leaders of an organization that purports to revere and follow `Abdu'l-Bahá would take this kind of action against me in light of the Master's clear views on religious liberty and the freedom to express one's beliefs? The NSA would probably respond as they did in the court papers, to allege that this site causes confusion in the minds of the public as to its source. Really? Is there anybody out there who visits my site really confused about whether I am a supporter or not of the NSA? Come on. There is not a single article on this web site that I don't make abundantly clear my contempt for and opposition to the NSA. If anybody is confused, they are simply not reading the site.

"The divine religion is reality, and reality is not multiple; it is one. Therefore, the foundations of the religious systems are one because all proceed from the indivisible reality; but the followers of these systems have disagreed; discord, strife and warfare have arisen among them, for they have forsaken the foundation and held to that which is but imitation and semblance. Inasmuch as imitations differ, enmity and dissension have resulted...."

In this part of His speech,`Abdu'l-Bahá opines about the reason for disunity in religion. He says that discord and strife among religions is because the followers of the religions have abandoned the foundation of their faith and have followed imitation. In other words, it is the failure of religious persons to independently investigate the truth of the matter that is the cause of disunity. Instead of investigating for themselves, they follow the opinions of others including their leadership. But is that not what is happening today with the NSA and its minions? Are they not blindly following imitation, obeying the dictates of their leaders without making any serious investigation of the arguments and ideas presented by the Orthodox Bahá'ís? Instead of investigating reality, they attempt to silence me and my fellow Orthodox Bahá'ís through the secular court system. This is not at all consistent with the Master's teachings.

"If Christians of all denominations and divisions should investigate reality, the foundations of Christ will unite them. No enmity or hatred will remain, for they will all be under the one guidance of reality itself. Likewise, in the wider field if all the existing religious systems will turn away from ancestral imitations and investigate reality, seeking the real meanings of the Holy Books, they will unite and agree upon the same foundation, reality itself. As long as they follow counterfeit doctrines or imitations instead of reality, animosity and discord will exist and increase."

Almost 100 years ago, the Master here sets forth the prescription for overcoming religious animosity and discord: not to follow counterfeit docrines or imitations instead of reality. All I can say to the Bahá'ís who follow the NSA, has it ever occurred to you that the abandonment of the Guardianship and with it many of the verities of the Faith, and the embrace of a headless so-called Universal House of Justice in place of the one described in the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá is precisely to follow COUNTERFEIT DOCTRINES AND IMITATIONS. This is common sense my friends. Attempting to silence us in the courts is not the method of attaining unity prescribed by the Master. How far will you allow your leadership to stray from the clear teachings of the Faith before you abandon its COUNTERFEIT DOCTRINES AND IMITATIONS?

The third Guardian's web site can found at http://www.bahai-guardian.com/

Jeffrey

Posted at 08:33 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

For unity's sake: abandon counterfeit doctrines and imitations

When `Abdu'l-Bahá traveled through the United States, on 16 June 1912, He spoke before the Central Congregational Church in Brooklyn, New York on the subject of religious unity. It would behove Bahá'ís everywhere today to carefully consider His comments and to act accordingly.

`Abdu'l-Bahá (as set forth in The Promulgation of Universal Peace):

"Just as in the world of politics there is need for free thought, likewise in the world of religion ther e should be the right of unrestricted individual belief. Consider what a vast difference exists between modern democracy and the old forms of despotism. Under an autocratic government the opinions of men are not free, and development is stifled, whereas in democracy, because thought and speech are not restricted, the greatest progress is witnessed. It is likewise true in the world of religion. When freedom of conscience, liberty of thought and right of speech prevail -- that is to say, when every man according to his own idealization may give expression to his beliefs -- development and growth are inevitable...." [Emphasis added]

In considering this comment, it seems to me that `Abdu'l-Bahá is championing the right of this web site (http://www.truebahai.com) to exist. This is my personal web site and in it I publish my religious views. That is, I give expression to my beliefs according to my own idealization. Yet the National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of the United States took legal action against the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith to try (among other things) to have my web site shut down. Doesn't it seem strange to you that the leaders of an organization that purports to revere and follow `Abdu'l-Bahá would take this kind of action against me in light of the Master's clear views on religious liberty and the freedom to express one's beliefs? The NSA would probably respond as they did in the court papers, to allege that this site causes confusion in the minds of the public as to its source. Really? Is there anybody out there who visits my site really confused about whether I am a supporter or not of the NSA? Come on. There is not a single article on this web site that I don't make abundantly clear my contempt for and opposition to the NSA. If anybody is confused, they are simply not reading the site.

"The divine religion is reality, and reality is not multiple; it is one. Therefore, the foundations of the religious systems are one because all proceed from the indivisible reality; but the followers of these systems have disagreed; discord, strife and warfare have arisen among them, for they have forsaken the foundation and held to that which is but imitation and semblance. Inasmuch as imitations differ, enmity and dissension have resulted...."

In this part of His speech,`Abdu'l-Bahá opines about the reason for disunity in religion. He says that discord and strife among religions is because the followers of the religions have abandoned the foundation of their faith and have followed imitation. In other words, it is the failure of religious persons to independently investigate the truth of the matter that is the cause of disunity. Instead of investigating for themselves, they follow the opinions of others including their leadership. But is that not what is happening today with the NSA and its minions? Are they not blindly following imitation, obeying the dictates of their leaders without making any serious investigation of the arguments and ideas presented by the Orthodox Bahá'ís? Instead of investigating reality, they attempt to silence me and my fellow Orthodox Bahá'ís through the secular court system. This is not at all consistent with the Master's teachings.

"If Christians of all denominations and divisions should investigate reality, the foundations of Christ will unite them. No enmity or hatred will remain, for they will all be under the one guidance of reality itself. Likewise, in the wider field if all the existing religious systems will turn away from ancestral imitations and investigate reality, seeking the real meanings of the Holy Books, they will unite and agree upon the same foundation, reality itself. As long as they follow counterfeit doctrines or imitations instead of reality, animosity and discord will exist and increase."

Almost 100 years ago, the Master here sets forth the prescription for overcoming religious animosity and discord: not to follow counterfeit docrines or imitations instead of reality. All I can say to the Bahá'ís who follow the NSA, has it ever occurred to you that the abandonment of the Guardianship and with it many of the verities of the Faith, and the embrace of a headless so-called Universal House of Justice in place of the one described in the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá is precisely to follow COUNTERFEIT DOCTRINES AND IMITATIONS. This is common sense my friends. Attempting to silence us in the courts is not the method of attaining unity prescribed by the Master. How far will you allow your leadership to stray from the clear teachings of the Faith before you abandon its COUNTERFEIT DOCTRINES AND IMITATIONS?

The third Guardian's web site can found at http://www.bahai-guardian.com/

Jeffrey

Posted at 08:33 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

For unity's sake: abandon counterfeit doctrines and imitations

When `Abdu'l-Bahá traveled through the United States, on 16 June 1912, He spoke before the Central Congregational Church in Brooklyn, New York on the subject of religious unity. It would behove Bahá'ís everywhere today to carefully consider His comments and to act accordingly.

`Abdu'l-Bahá (as set forth in The Promulgation of Universal Peace):

"Just as in the world of politics there is need for free thought, likewise in the world of religion ther e should be the right of unrestricted individual belief. Consider what a vast difference exists between modern democracy and the old forms of despotism. Under an autocratic government the opinions of men are not free, and development is stifled, whereas in democracy, because thought and speech are not restricted, the greatest progress is witnessed. It is likewise true in the world of religion. When freedom of conscience, liberty of thought and right of speech prevail -- that is to say, when every man according to his own idealization may give expression to his beliefs -- development and growth are inevitable...." [Emphasis added]

In considering this comment, it seems to me that `Abdu'l-Bahá is championing the right of this web site (http://www.truebahai.com) to exist. This is my personal web site and in it I publish my religious views. That is, I give expression to my beliefs according to my own idealization. Yet the National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of the United States took legal action against the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith to try (among other things) to have my web site shut down. Doesn't it seem strange to you that the leaders of an organization that purports to revere and follow `Abdu'l-Bahá would take this kind of action against me in light of the Master's clear views on religious liberty and the freedom to express one's beliefs? The NSA would probably respond as they did in the court papers, to allege that this site causes confusion in the minds of the public as to its source. Really? Is there anybody out there who visits my site really confused about whether I am a supporter or not of the NSA? Come on. There is not a single article on this web site that I don't make abundantly clear my contempt for and opposition to the NSA. If anybody is confused, they are simply not reading the site.

"The divine religion is reality, and reality is not multiple; it is one. Therefore, the foundations of the religious systems are one because all proceed from the indivisible reality; but the followers of these systems have disagreed; discord, strife and warfare have arisen among them, for they have forsaken the foundation and held to that which is but imitation and semblance. Inasmuch as imitations differ, enmity and dissension have resulted...."

In this part of His speech,`Abdu'l-Bahá opines about the reason for disunity in religion. He says that discord and strife among religions is because the followers of the religions have abandoned the foundation of their faith and have followed imitation. In other words, it is the failure of religious persons to independently investigate the truth of the matter that is the cause of disunity. Instead of investigating for themselves, they follow the opinions of others including their leadership. But is that not what is happening today with the NSA and its minions? Are they not blindly following imitation, obeying the dictates of their leaders without making any serious investigation of the arguments and ideas presented by the Orthodox Bahá'ís? Instead of investigating reality, they attempt to silence me and my fellow Orthodox Bahá'ís through the secular court system. This is not at all consistent with the Master's teachings.

"If Christians of all denominations and divisions should investigate reality, the foundations of Christ will unite them. No enmity or hatred will remain, for they will all be under the one guidance of reality itself. Likewise, in the wider field if all the existing religious systems will turn away from ancestral imitations and investigate reality, seeking the real meanings of the Holy Books, they will unite and agree upon the same foundation, reality itself. As long as they follow counterfeit doctrines or imitations instead of reality, animosity and discord will exist and increase."

Almost 100 years ago, the Master here sets forth the prescription for overcoming religious animosity and discord: not to follow counterfeit docrines or imitations instead of reality. All I can say to the Bahá'ís who follow the NSA, has it ever occurred to you that the abandonment of the Guardianship and with it many of the verities of the Faith, and the embrace of a headless so-called Universal House of Justice in place of the one described in the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá is precisely to follow COUNTERFEIT DOCTRINES AND IMITATIONS. This is common sense my friends. Attempting to silence us in the courts is not the method of attaining unity prescribed by the Master. How far will you allow your leadership to stray from the clear teachings of the Faith before you abandon its COUNTERFEIT DOCTRINES AND IMITATIONS?

The third Guardian's web site can found at http://www.bahai-guardian.com/

Jeffrey

Posted at 08:33 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

BAHÁ'U'LLÁH PROMISES LIVING INTERPRETER

POSTED ON BEHALF OF THE GUARDIAN OF THE BAHÁ'Í FAITH (Orthodox)

BAHÁ'U'LLÁH PROMISES IMPERISHABLE ACCESS TO A LIVING INTERPRETER THROUGHOUT HIS DISPENSATION

"Those words uttered by the luminaries of truth must needs be pondered, and should their significance be not grasped, enlightenment should be sought from the trustees of the depositories of knowledge, that these may expound their meaning, and unravel their mystery. for it behooveth no man to interpret the holy words according to his own imperfect understanding, nor having found them to be contrary to his inclination and desires to reject and repudiate their truth. for such, today, is the manner of the divines and doctors of the age, who occupy the seats of knowledge and learning, and who have named ignorance knowledge, and called oppression justice."

Kitab-i-Iqan (p.182)

Similarly to Muhammad Who, in referring to the Imams who were destined to succeed Him and be the sole interpreters of His word, stated in the Qu'ran:

"ASK YE THEREFORE, OF THEM THAT HAVE THE CUSTODY OF THE SCRIPTURES, IF YE KNOW IT NOT." Bahá'u'lláh has likewise cautioned "NO MAN TO INTERPRET THE HOLY WORDS ACCORDING TO HIS OWN IMPERFECT UNDERSTANDING..." or "CONTRARY TO HIS INCLINATION AND DESIRES..." and has enjoined those who do not grasp the significance of the revealed Word to seek enlightenment from the "TRUSTEES OF THE DEPOSITORIES OF KNOWLEDGE" (the depositories of Knowledge being their revealed Writings).

It is obvious that these Trustees (note the plurality) must be living to provide this sole source of interpretation as long as the Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh endures. Is it not clear, therefore, that Bahá'u'lláh promised that there would be this continued source of interpretation following the Ascension of `Abdu'l-Bahá? And, therefore, `Abdu'l-Bahá provided for this continuing source of interpretation in the Institution of the Guardianship in His Will and Testament, a sacred Document that should actually be considered a part of the immutable explicit holy Text and nothing less than "THEIR WILL" for, as Shoghi Effendi has explained in his work God Passes By:

"THIS INSTRUMENT CAN, IF WE WOULD CORRECTLY APPRAISE IT, NO MORE BE DIVORCED FROM THE ONE WHO PROVIDED THE MOTIVATING IMPULSE FOR ITS CREATION THAN FROM HIM WHO DIRECTLY CONCEIVED IT."

Yet, in complete disregard of the foregoing, this divinely-conceived, co-authored, immutable and sacred Document has been shamefully and inexplicably repudiated by those who contend that the Guardianship of the Cause of God has come to and end only thirty-six years after the inception of the Administrative Order, "FASHIONED BY THE HAND OF ITS PERFECT ARCHITECT" in which the Guardian has been designated both the Head of the Faith and the "SACRED HEAD FOR LIFE" of its supreme legislative Organ.

(Emphasis added)

Joel Bray Marangella

Guardian of the Baha'i Faith

July, 2008

Web: http://www.Bahai-Guardian.com

Posted at 04:19 PM | Permalink | Comments (0)

True Bahá'í

BAHÁ'U'LLÁH PROMISES LIVING INTERPRETER

POSTED ON BEHALF OF THE GUARDIAN OF THE BAHÁ'Í FAITH (Orthodox)

BAHÁ'U'LLÁH PROMISES IMPERISHABLE ACCESS TO A LIVING INTERPRETER THROUGHOUT HIS DISPENSATION

"Those words uttered by the luminaries of truth must needs be pondered, and should their significance be not grasped, enlightenment should be sought from the trustees of the depositories of knowledge, that these may expound their meaning, and unravel their mystery. for it behooveth no man to interpret the holy words according to his own imperfect understanding, nor having found them to be contrary to his inclination and desires to reject and repudiate their truth. for such, today, is the manner of the divines and doctors of the age, who occupy the seats of knowledge and learning, and who have named ignorance knowledge, and called oppression justice."

Kitab-i-Iqan (p.182)

Similarly to Muhammad Who, in referring to the Imams who were destined to succeed Him and be the sole interpreters of His word, stated in the Qu'ran:

"ASK YE THEREFORE, OF THEM THAT HAVE THE CUSTODY OF THE SCRIPTURES, IF YE KNOW IT NOT." Bahá'u'lláh has likewise cautioned "NO MAN TO INTERPRET THE HOLY WORDS ACCORDING TO HIS OWN IMPERFECT UNDERSTANDING..." or "CONTRARY TO HIS INCLINATION AND DESIRES..." and has enjoined those who do not grasp the significance of the revealed Word to seek enlightenment from the "TRUSTEES OF THE DEPOSITORIES OF KNOWLEDGE" (the depositories of Knowledge being their revealed Writings).

It is obvious that these Trustees (note the plurality) must be living to provide this sole source of interpretation as long as the Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh endures. Is it not clear, therefore, that Bahá'u'lláh promised that there would be this continued source of interpretation following the Ascension of `Abdu'l-Bahá? And, therefore, `Abdu'l-Bahá provided for this continuing source of interpretation in the Institution of the Guardianship in His Will and Testament, a sacred Document that should actually be considered a part of the immutable explicit holy Text and nothing less than "THEIR WILL" for, as Shoghi Effendi has explained in his work God Passes By:

"THIS INSTRUMENT CAN, IF WE WOULD CORRECTLY APPRAISE IT, NO MORE BE DIVORCED FROM THE ONE WHO PROVIDED THE MOTIVATING IMPULSE FOR ITS CREATION THAN FROM HIM WHO DIRECTLY CONCEIVED IT."

Yet, in complete disregard of the foregoing, this divinely-conceived, co-authored, immutable and sacred Document has been shamefully and inexplicably repudiated by those who contend that the Guardianship of the Cause of God has come to and end only thirty-six years after the inception of the Administrative Order, "FASHIONED BY THE HAND OF ITS PERFECT ARCHITECT" in which the Guardian has been designated both the Head of the Faith and the "SACRED HEAD FOR LIFE" of its supreme legislative Organ.

(Emphasis added)

Joel Bray Marangella

Guardian of the Baha'i Faith

July, 2008

Web: http://www.Bahai-Guardian.com

Posted at 04:19 PM | Permalink | Comments (0)

True Bahá'í

There is no such thing as an "Orthodox Baha'i"

"There is no such thing as an 'Orthodox Baha'i'" wrote one confused Bahá'í to one of my fellow believers. That comment really amused me since it speaks so clearly about the mind-set of the sans-Guardian Bahá'ís who are in denial about the truth. No longer believing their own teachings, the sans-Guardian Bahá'ís actually believe that unity comes by the subservience of all individuals to the beliefs, false or not, of the majority. If someone dares to question the majority view, they are cast out from the Faith and their very existence is denied. This view is ridiculous but widely held.

We are "Orthodox" because we hold to the original teachings of our Faith. That is, that unity is achieved in obedience to the Guardian, and not to the views of the majority vote. Yes, there is such a thing as an Orthodox Bahá'í, and there is no manner of shunning, coercion, denial or court proceeding that will change that fact.

Jeffrey

Posted at 03:34 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

There is no such thing as an "Orthodox Baha'i"

"There is no such thing as an 'Orthodox Baha'i'" wrote one confused Bahá'í to one of my fellow believers. That comment really amused me since it speaks so clearly about the mind-set of the sans-Guardian Bahá'ís who are in denial about the truth. No longer believing their own teachings, the sans-Guardian Bahá'ís actually believe that unity comes by the subservience of all individuals to the beliefs, false or not, of the majority. If someone dares to question the majority view, they are cast out from the Faith and their very existence is denied. This view is ridiculous but widely held.

We are "Orthodox" because we hold to the original teachings of our Faith. That is, that unity is achieved in obedience to the Guardian, and not to the views of the majority vote. Yes, there is such a thing as an Orthodox Bahá'í, and there is no manner of shunning, coercion, denial or court proceeding that will change that fact.

Jeffrey

Posted at 03:34 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Why not religious tolerance?

The heterodox Bahá'ís, those whose UHJ has no Guardian at its head, have taken legal action against the Orthodox Bahá'ís seeking to prevent us from calling ourselves Bahá'í in our name and on our web sites. This amazing display of religious intolerance by the Bahá'ís runs directly contrary to the statements they make about human rights in the official halls of governments and diplomacy.

A prime example of this is the statement submitted to the 48th session of the United Nations Commission on Human Rights Geneva, Switzerland, dated 10 February 1992, from the Bahá'í International Community, entitled: "Creating a Climate of Religious Tolerance" in which is stated:

"The most powerful remedy for religious superstition and contention is an examination of the original teachings of the founders of the world's great faiths. No student of comparative religion can fail to be struck by the extraordinary degree of harmony to be found in these original scriptures. Certainly, a fair-minded examination of these principal sources for the civilizing of human nature will reveal nothing to support the animosities that pit one religious community against another."

Is that not what the Orthodox Bahá'ís have been doing? Examination of the original teachings? Why does this threaten you so?

The Bahá'í International Community went on to state:

"Lamentably, some sectarian leaders discourage investigation of other beliefs and even dissuade their followers from fully investigating the truth of their own religious teachings. Such attitudes foster prejudice, and lead, all too often, to violent attacks on believers of other faiths. Indeed, one of the strangest and saddest features of the current outbreak of religious fanaticism is the extent to which, in each case, it is undermining not only the spiritual values which are conducive to the unity of mankind but also those unique moral victories won by the particular religion it purports to serve."

I agree that it is lamentable that the leaders of the heterodox Bahá'ís discourage investigation of our beliefs and even that they dissuade their followers from fully investigating the truth of their own religious teachings. By their own words do they condemn themselves.

Even after they lost their court battle in the U.S. District Court, the NSA has appealed their loss to the Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit which is now pending. Is it not the height of hypocrisy for the NSA to constantly talk about religious liberty and tolerance, but it is incapable itself of affording the Orthodox Bahá'ís that same consideration?

For more information on the court action, go to: http://www.truebahai.com/court_case.html

Jeffrey

Posted at 03:33 PM | Permalink | Comments (0)

True Bahá'í

Most of those who call themselves Bahá'í are NOT

The National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of the United States ("NSA") took legal action against the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith ("OBF") in the United States District Court in Chicago, Illinois, seeking to prevent the OBF from using the word "Bahá'í" in its name and on its web sites (with the absurd claim of a trademark on the name). Although the OBF won that action after an evidentiary hearing, the NSA has appealed that decision which appeal is presently pending in the Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit in Chicago. For details on that legal action, go here: http://www.truebahai.com/court_case.html.

But has anyone stopped to think by what right does the NSA have to call itself Bahá'í? If you were to look at the statement of the first Guardian, Shoghi Effendi, on what it means to be a Bahá'í, you would find that a person cannot be considered a Bahá'í unless he or she believes the following:

"Full recognition of the station of the Forerunner, the Author, and the True Exemplar of the Bahá'í Cause, as set forth in 'Abdu'l-Bahá's Testament; unreserved acceptance of, and submission to, whatsoever has been revealed by their Pen; loyal and steadfast adherence to every clause of our Beloved's sacred Will; and close association with the spirit as well as the form of the present day Bahá'í administration throughout the world..."

That is a direct quote by Shoghi Effendi, and it is published in books over which the NSA claims a copyright including the Declaration of Trust of the NSA that originally established it. Lets break that down. "Unreserved acceptance" means without qualification or restriction; "Submission to" or in other words obedient and willing; and "steadfast adherence" or fixed, resolute and unwavering support or fidelity to "every clause" of the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá, including but not limited to that clause that provides for a continuing succession of Guardians who are to be the sacred head for life of the Universal House of Justice. Also Shoghi Effendi states that one must have "close association with spirit and form of the present day Bahá'í administration." That present day was in 1925 when Shoghi Effendi was teaching that the form of Bahá'í administration had a guardian as the head of the Faith and Center of the Cause.

How then can the NSA, and all of the followers of that headless UHJ now sitting upon Mount Carmel, call themselves Bahá'í? They do not follow "every clause" of the Master's Will nor do they display "unreserved acceptance" or "submission to" or "steadfast adherence" to "every clause" of the Master's Will. Therefore, by their own definition, set forth in their founding documents and out of the mouth of the first Guardian whom they revere, they themselves are not Bahá'í.

They should not be worried, however, that we will haul them into a court of the United States. No, we do not think it is appropriate. It will be much better, and justice will most assuredly be done, when we file a lawsuit in the Holy Court of Bahá'u'lláh, asking for declaratory relief finding that they are indeed, NOT Bahá'ís at all, but instead they are usurpers and faithless opponents of the one true Faith.

Jeffrey

Posted at 10:10 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Most of those who call themselves Bahá'í are NOT

The National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of the United States ("NSA") took legal action against the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith ("OBF") in the United States District Court in Chicago, Illinois, seeking to prevent the OBF from using the word "Bahá'í" in its name and on its web sites (with the absurd claim of a trademark on the name). Although the OBF won that action after an evidentiary hearing, the NSA has appealed that decision which appeal is presently pending in the Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit in Chicago. For details on that legal action, go here: http://www.truebahai.com/court_case.html.

But has anyone stopped to think by what right does the NSA have to call itself Bahá'í? If you were to look at the statement of the first Guardian, Shoghi Effendi, on what it means to be a Bahá'í, you would find that a person cannot be considered a Bahá'í unless he or she believes the following:

"Full recognition of the station of the Forerunner, the Author, and the True Exemplar of the Bahá'í Cause, as set forth in 'Abdu'l-Bahá's Testament; unreserved acceptance of, and submission to, whatsoever has been revealed by their Pen; loyal and steadfast adherence to every clause of our Beloved's sacred Will; and close association with the spirit as well as the form of the present day Bahá'í administration throughout the world..."

That is a direct quote by Shoghi Effendi, and it is published in books over which the NSA claims a copyright including the Declaration of Trust of the NSA that originally established it. Lets break that down. "Unreserved acceptance" means without qualification or restriction; "Submission to" or in other words obedient and willing; and "steadfast adherence" or fixed, resolute and unwavering support or fidelity to "every clause" of the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá, including but not limited to that clause that provides for a continuing succession of Guardians who are to be the sacred head for life of the Universal House of Justice. Also Shoghi Effendi states that one must have "close association with spirit and form of the present day Bahá'í administration." That present day was in 1925 when Shoghi Effendi was teaching that the form of Bahá'í administration had a guardian as the head of the Faith and Center of the Cause.

How then can the NSA, and all of the followers of that headless UHJ now sitting upon Mount Carmel, call themselves Bahá'í? They do not follow "every clause" of the Master's Will nor do they display "unreserved acceptance" or "submission to" or "steadfast adherence" to "every clause" of the Master's Will. Therefore, by their own definition, set forth in their founding documents and out of the mouth of the first Guardian whom they revere, they themselves are not Bahá'í.

They should not be worried, however, that we will haul them into a court of the United States. No, we do not think it is appropriate. It will be much better, and justice will most assuredly be done, when we file a lawsuit in the Holy Court of Bahá'u'lláh, asking for declaratory relief finding that they are indeed, NOT Bahá'ís at all, but instead they are usurpers and faithless opponents of the one true Faith.

Jeffrey

Posted at 10:10 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

New definition for the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh

Those who come into contact with Bahá'ís will find that all of them,regardless of the name those believers go by (e.g., Orthodox Bahá'ís), willmake reference to the Bahá'í Covenant, and if they are asked, all of them, without exception, will maintain that they are faithful to the Covenant.

Unfortunately, what has happened following the death of the first Guardian of the Faith, Shoghi Effendi, in 1957 is that the organization representing most of the believers changed the definition of the Covenant. A clear example of the way in which the changed definition was applied by the heterodox Bahá'í (i.e., sans-Guardian) organization can be seen in the following descriptions by John Ferraby in different editions of his book All Things Made New. The earlier edition was printed in 1957 prior to Shoghi Effendi's death; the later edition was printed in 1975.

The description BEFORE the passing of Shoghi Effendi read:

"The Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh has already given to mankind 'Abdu'l-Bahá, the Centre of the Covenant, and [through Him] Shoghi Effendi, the first Guardian of the Cause of God, and has provided for other Guardians to follow" [for the duration of the Bahá'í Dispensation]. (Page 247 -- 1957 edition)

The revised description AFTER the passing of Shoghi Effendi reads:

"The power of the Covenant has already brought into being the Bahá'í Administrative Order whose yearly growth it sustains; it has enabled the Cause of God to overcome every obstacle..." (p. 148, 1975 edition)

"Although there could have been a series of Guardians, there is nowhere in the writings any promise or guarantee that the line of Guardians would not be broken but would endure forever. When Shoghi Effendi passed on, the conditions laid down by 'Abdu'l-Bahá in His Will and Testament for further succession could not be fulfilled." (Page 246 of later edition)

From Some Basic Facts Related to the Baha'i Covenant
http://www.rt66.com/~obfusa/facts.htm

Posted at 05:31 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

New definition for the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh

Those who come into contact with Bahá'ís will find that all of them,regardless of the name those believers go by (e.g., Orthodox Bahá'ís), willmake reference to the Bahá'í Covenant, and if they are asked, all of them, without exception, will maintain that they are faithful to the Covenant.

Unfortunately, what has happened following the death of the first Guardian of the Faith, Shoghi Effendi, in 1957 is that the organization representing most of the believers changed the definition of the Covenant. A clear example of the way in which the changed definition was applied by the heterodox Bahá'í (i.e., sans-Guardian) organization can be seen in the following descriptions by John Ferraby in different editions of his book All Things Made New. The earlier edition was printed in 1957 prior to Shoghi Effendi's death; the later edition was printed in 1975.

The description BEFORE the passing of Shoghi Effendi read:

"The Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh has already given to mankind 'Abdu'l-Bahá, the Centre of the Covenant, and [through Him] Shoghi Effendi, the first Guardian of the Cause of God, and has provided for other Guardians to follow" [for the duration of the Bahá'í Dispensation]. (Page 247 -- 1957 edition)

The revised description AFTER the passing of Shoghi Effendi reads:

"The power of the Covenant has already brought into being the Bahá'í Administrative Order whose yearly growth it sustains; it has enabled the Cause of God to overcome every obstacle..." (p. 148, 1975 edition)

"Although there could have been a series of Guardians, there is nowhere in the writings any promise or guarantee that the line of Guardians would not be broken but would endure forever. When Shoghi Effendi passed on, the conditions laid down by 'Abdu'l-Bahá in His Will and Testament for further succession could not be fulfilled." (Page 246 of later edition)

From Some Basic Facts Related to the Baha'i Covenant
http://www.rt66.com/~obfusa/facts.htm

Posted at 05:31 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

New definition for the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh

Those who come into contact with Bahá'ís will find that all of them,regardless of the name those believers go by (e.g., Orthodox Bahá'ís), willmake reference to the Bahá'í Covenant, and if they are asked, all of them, without exception, will maintain that they are faithful to the Covenant.

Unfortunately, what has happened following the death of the first Guardian of the Faith, Shoghi Effendi, in 1957 is that the organization representing most of the believers changed the definition of the Covenant. A clear example of the way in which the changed definition was applied by the heterodox Bahá'í (i.e., sans-Guardian) organization can be seen in the following descriptions by John Ferraby in different editions of his book All Things Made New. The earlier edition was printed in 1957 prior to Shoghi Effendi's death; the later edition was printed in 1975.

The description BEFORE the passing of Shoghi Effendi read:

"The Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh has already given to mankind 'Abdu'l-Bahá, the Centre of the Covenant, and [through Him] Shoghi Effendi, the first Guardian of the Cause of God, and has provided for other Guardians to follow" [for the duration of the Bahá'í Dispensation]. (Page 247 -- 1957 edition)

The revised description AFTER the passing of Shoghi Effendi reads:

"The power of the Covenant has already brought into being the Bahá'í Administrative Order whose yearly growth it sustains; it has enabled the Cause of God to overcome every obstacle..." (p. 148, 1975 edition)

"Although there could have been a series of Guardians, there is nowhere in the writings any promise or guarantee that the line of Guardians would not be broken but would endure forever. When Shoghi Effendi passed on, the conditions laid down by 'Abdu'l-Bahá in His Will and Testament for further succession could not be fulfilled." (Page 246 of later edition)

From Some Basic Facts Related to the Baha'i Covenant
http://www.rt66.com/~obfusa/facts.htm

Posted at 05:31 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Why not religious tolerance?

The heterodox Bahá'ís, those whose UHJ has no Guardian at its head, have taken legal action against the Orthodox Bahá'ís seeking to prevent us from calling ourselves Bahá'í in our name and on our web sites. This amazing display of religious intolerance by the Bahá'ís runs directly contrary to the statements they make about human rights in the official halls of governments and diplomacy.

A prime example of this is the statement submitted to the 48th session of the United Nations Commission on Human Rights Geneva, Switzerland, dated 10 February 1992, from the Bahá'í International Community, entitled: "Creating a Climate of Religious Tolerance" in which is stated:

"The most powerful remedy for religious superstition and contention is an examination of the original teachings of the founders of the world's great faiths. No student of comparative religion can fail to be struck by the extraordinary degree of harmony to be found in these original scriptures. Certainly, a fair-minded examination of these principal sources for the civilizing of human nature will reveal nothing to support the animosities that pit one religious community against another."

Is that not what the Orthodox Bahá'ís have been doing? Examination of the original teachings? Why does this threaten you so?

The Bahá'í International Community went on to state:

"Lamentably, some sectarian leaders discourage investigation of other beliefs and even dissuade their followers from fully investigating the truth of their own religious teachings. Such attitudes foster prejudice, and lead, all too often, to violent attacks on believers of other faiths. Indeed, one of the strangest and saddest features of the current outbreak of religious fanaticism is the extent to which, in each case, it is undermining not only the spiritual values which are conducive to the unity of mankind but also those unique moral victories won by the particular religion it purports to serve."

I agree that it is lamentable that the leaders of the heterodox Bahá'ís discourage investigation of our beliefs and even that they dissuade their followers from fully investigating the truth of their own religious teachings. By their own words do they condemn themselves.

Even after they lost their court battle in the U.S. District Court, the NSA has appealed their loss to the Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit which is now pending. Is it not the height of hypocrisy for the NSA to constantly talk about religious liberty and tolerance, but it is incapable itself of affording the Orthodox Bahá'ís that same consideration?

For more information on the court action, go to: http://www.truebahai.com/court_case.html

Jeffrey

Posted at 03:33 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Where is the missing Mashriqu'l-Adhkár?

Those Bahá'ís loyal to the sans-Guardian UHJ have built wonderful buildings and gardens upon Mount Carmel. But there is one building missing. Where is the missing Mashriqu'l-Adhkár? That is, the Bahá'í House of Worship (literally: "Dawning-Point of God's Remembrance"). We know that `Abdu'l-Bahá Himself predicted that Mason Remey would be the architect of the structure:

READ MORE

Posted at 06:50 PM | Permalink | Comments (0)

True Bahá'í

Where is the missing Mashriqu'l-Adhkár?

Those Bahá'ís loyal to the sans-Guardian UHJ have built wonderful buildings and gardens upon Mount Carmel. But there is one building missing. Where is the missing Mashriqu'l-Adhkár? That is, the Bahá'í House of Worship (literally: "Dawning-Point of God's Remembrance"). We know that `Abdu'l-Bahá Himself predicted that Mason Remey would be the architect of the structure:

READ MORE

Posted at 06:50 PM | Permalink | Comments (0)

True Bahá'í

Still they refuse to consult

Bahá'u'lláh: "The Great Being saith: The heaven of divine wisdom is illumined with the two luminaries of consultation and compassion. Take ye counsel together in all matters, inasmuch as consultation is the lamp of guidance which leadeth the way, and is the bestower of understanding." Tablets, p. 168.

All Bahá'ís know that consultation is one of the great laws of the Administrative Order of Bahá'u'lláh. It seems like a simple concept. It simply means we are to talk things over for unity's sake. To have a frank, free, and unfettered discussion of all viewpoints on a matter, so that the truth will be revealed. Each person sets forth his own views with courtesy and care, and nobody insists upon their opinion or belittles the opinion of others. All relevant facts and ideas are submitted and placed on the table for consideration. When a consensus is reached, or if that is not possible and the majority have decided, then all parties involved must strictly obey and follow the decision reached in unity. This is the method of decision-making, problem-solving and dispute resolution set forth in the Writings.

The present split between those who have abandoned the living Guardianship and rejected all of the Guardians after Shoghi Effendi, and those who remain faithful to the living Guardians of the Cause, was caused because the Bahá'ís have refused and continue to refuse to consult about the question of Shoghi Effendi's appointment of his successor. The Hands of the Cause did hastily meet in secret conclave after the death of Shoghi Effendi to verify that he did not leave a Will and to decide what to do next. The only existing account of those proceedings written by Mason Remey, and never refuted by anyone else who was present, was that the decision that the Guardianship was Badah (that God had changed His mind) and that there would be no more Guardians at least until the next Manifestation of God, was made without discussion. The Persian Hands and Shoghi Effendi's widow Rúhíyyih Khánum violated the principles of consultation by pre-arranging this decision and making a plan to introduce and vote on the question without discussion. After the Hands hastily adopted this decision, Mason Remey repeatedly attempted to re-open this question but was ruled "out of order" time and again because the Hands had already decided the question. After that, whenever any Bahá'ís would publicly discuss the question, the Hands took swift and decisive action to get them to stop discussing the question or to remove them from the Faith. In this way, the question of Shoghi Effendi's successor was never consulted upon. The Bahá'ís have refused to consult on this issue for over 40 years, and to this day they continue to refuse to consult or consider the question.

Consultation is the road to unity and to the discovery of the truth. To refuse to consult is to reject the lamp of guidance given to us by Bahá'u'lláh, so that the shining spark of truth might come forth:

"The members thereof [Spiritual Assembly] must take counsel together in such wise that no occasion for ill-feeling or discord may arise. This can be attained when every member expresseth with absolute freedom his own opinion and setteth forth his argument. Should anyone oppose, he must on no account feel hurt for not until matters are fully discussed can the right way be revealed. The shining spark of truth cometh forth only after the clash of differing opinions. If after discussion, a decision be carried unanimously well and good; but if, the Lord forbid, differences of opinion should arise, a majority of voices must prevail." Selections from the Writings of `Abdu'l-Bahá, p. 87.

Jeffrey

Posted at 08:51 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Still they refuse to consult

Bahá'u'lláh: "The Great Being saith: The heaven of divine wisdom is illumined with the two luminaries of consultation and compassion. Take ye counsel together in all matters, inasmuch as consultation is the lamp of guidance which leadeth the way, and is the bestower of understanding." Tablets, p. 168.

All Bahá'ís know that consultation is one of the great laws of the Administrative Order of Bahá'u'lláh. It seems like a simple concept. It simply means we are to talk things over for unity's sake. To have a frank, free, and unfettered discussion of all viewpoints on a matter, so that the truth will be revealed. Each person sets forth his own views with courtesy and care, and nobody insists upon their opinion or belittles the opinion of others. All relevant facts and ideas are submitted and placed on the table for consideration. When a consensus is reached, or if that is not possible and the majority have decided, then all parties involved must strictly obey and follow the decision reached in unity. This is the method of decision-making, problem-solving and dispute resolution set forth in the Writings.

The present split between those who have abandoned the living Guardianship and rejected all of the Guardians after Shoghi Effendi, and those who remain faithful to the living Guardians of the Cause, was caused because the Bahá'ís have refused and continue to refuse to consult about the question of Shoghi Effendi's appointment of his successor. The Hands of the Cause did hastily meet in secret conclave after the death of Shoghi Effendi to verify that he did not leave a Will and to decide what to do next. The only existing account of those proceedings written by Mason Remey, and never refuted by anyone else who was present, was that the decision that the Guardianship was Badah (that God had changed His mind) and that there would be no more Guardians at least until the next Manifestation of God, was made without discussion. The Persian Hands and Shoghi Effendi's widow Rúhíyyih Khánum violated the principles of consultation by pre-arranging this decision and making a plan to introduce and vote on the question without discussion. After the Hands hastily adopted this decision, Mason Remey repeatedly attempted to re-open this question but was ruled "out of order" time and again because the Hands had already decided the question. After that, whenever any Bahá'ís would publicly discuss the question, the Hands took swift and decisive action to get them to stop discussing the question or to remove them from the Faith. In this way, the question of Shoghi Effendi's successor was never consulted upon. The Bahá'ís have refused to consult on this issue for over 40 years, and to this day they continue to refuse to consult or consider the question.

Consultation is the road to unity and to the discovery of the truth. To refuse to consult is to reject the lamp of guidance given to us by Bahá'u'lláh, so that the shining spark of truth might come forth:

"The members thereof [Spiritual Assembly] must take counsel together in such wise that no occasion for ill-feeling or discord may arise. This can be attained when every member expresseth with absolute freedom his own opinion and setteth forth his argument. Should anyone oppose, he must on no account feel hurt for not until matters are fully discussed can the right way be revealed. The shining spark of truth cometh forth only after the clash of differing opinions. If after discussion, a decision be carried unanimously well and good; but if, the Lord forbid, differences of opinion should arise, a majority of voices must prevail." Selections from the Writings of `Abdu'l-Bahá, p. 87.

Jeffrey

Posted at 08:51 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Where is the missing Mashriqu'l-Adhkár?

Those Bahá'ís loyal to the sans-Guardian UHJ have built wonderful buildings and gardens upon Mount Carmel. But there is one building missing. Where is the missing Mashriqu'l-Adhkár? That is, the Bahá'í House of Worship (literally: "Dawning-Point of God's Remembrance"). We know that `Abdu'l-Bahá Himself predicted that Mason Remey would be the architect of the structure:

READ MORE

Posted at 06:50 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Why is the Bahá'í world spiritually withering and dying?

From time to time, members of the organization loyal to the sans-Guardian "Universal House of Justice" write to me in response to articles posted on the Internet. Most of these responses are negative and critical of my words. This is OK with me because I think it is good to have a dialog and to consult on these important issues, even if the sans-Guardian Bahá'ís make nasty and critical remarks.

The most common criticism I have received from these members is the notion that I am stuck in the past, dwelling upon the Guardianship, and that I and my fellow Orthodox Bahá'ís are not adequately concentrating upon the broader Message of Bahá'u'lláh, and all of the wonderful teachings for humanity in this Day set forth in His Revelation.

This is my response:

The reality is that the Holy Spirit appeared in the Person of Bahá'u'lláh (the Ancient Root), and in His Revelation there was instituted a Covenant for this Spirit to continue to provide divine guidance to humanity after Bahá'u'lláh, through the Center of the Covenant, `Abdu'l-Bahá (Most Mighty Branch), and after Him through the Institution of the Guardianship (youthful branches or twigs) created by Him in His Will and Testament. It is a fundamental and central truth of the Bahá'í Revelation that the Cause of God can be regarded as a Tree of Life (sprung from the Ancient Root) to those who have accepted this Revelation who are the leaves and fruits of this glorious Tree and from which they derive their spiritual sustenance. To be severed from this Tree is to spiritually wither and die.

"From the above analogy it becomes clear that through the instrumentality first of the Most Great Branch, and then in the continuity of the Guardianship of the Faith throughout the duration of the Bahá'í Dispensation in which these lesser or subordinate branches carry on uninterruptedly, the interpretive authority of the Word of God, the Tree of the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh is forever protected and shielded from man-made corruption. These Guardians of the Faith (each of whom is appointed by his predecessor in his lifetime in accordance with the explicit provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá) – these offshoots of the Primal Branch of the Tree of the Covenant, as faithful ministers to this Covenant, will assure that the spiritual nourishment and sustenance that flows from the Ancient Root is safeguarded throughout the Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh from the introduction of man-made substances (interpretations, institutions, etc.) such as those which have caused the decay of the Tree of the Cause of God in past Dispensations. It may now be understood why those professed believers who cease to be faithful to the Covenant (for example: rebel against the Guardian of the Faith), cut themselves off from this Tree and become fallen leaves whose inevitable fate is to spiritually wither and die." Joel B. Marangella The Tree of the Covenant.

Thus it can be seen that the "Guardian issue" is not some historical dispute or controversy from which I should move on, but is a matter that goes to the spiritual heart of the Faith. Without understanding and addressing this matter properly, the Bahá'í world cannot spread the Message of Bahá'u'lláh or promote His Cause because it finds itself spiritually cut off from the Source.

Jeffrey

Posted at 12:43 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

All Bahá'ís are Brothers and Sisters in the Faith

From: http://mybahaifaith.blogspot.com/

Question: Do you believe then that these Bahá'ís who have been led astray and are now under the leadership of the Haifa organization will forever consider the provisions of the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá pertaining to the institution of the Guardianship no longer applicable?

Answer: No. If those Bahá'ís who were formerly ardent and faithful believers during the Guardianship of Shoghi Effendi and have now been led to believe that the Guardianship ended with his passing as well as those Bahá'íss who have accepted the Faith following his passing would investigate fairly, sincerely and without bias the overwhelming evidence attesting to the continuation of the Guardianship found on our several web sites, they would inevitably perceive that the provisions of the divinely-conceived and sacred provisions of the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá pertaining to the Guardianship have remained valid and unalterable and that the first Guardian faithfully fulfilled his obligation to appoint his successor according to its sacred Mandate. Accordingly, I invite and implore all the Bahá'í friends to investigate independently and sincerely the truth and accept the "Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá" as immutable documentary evidence that has undeniably insured the continuity of the Guardianship.... READ MORE

Posted at 09:41 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

All Bahá'ís are Brothers and Sisters in the Faith

From: http://mybahaifaith.blogspot.com/

Question: Do you believe then that these Bahá'ís who have been led astray and are now under the leadership of the Haifa organization will forever consider the provisions of the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá pertaining to the institution of the Guardianship no longer applicable?

Answer: No. If those Bahá'ís who were formerly ardent and faithful believers during the Guardianship of Shoghi Effendi and have now been led to believe that the Guardianship ended with his passing as well as those Bahá'íss who have accepted the Faith following his passing would investigate fairly, sincerely and without bias the overwhelming evidence attesting to the continuation of the Guardianship found on our several web sites, they would inevitably perceive that the provisions of the divinely-conceived and sacred provisions of the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá pertaining to the Guardianship have remained valid and unalterable and that the first Guardian faithfully fulfilled his obligation to appoint his successor according to its sacred Mandate. Accordingly, I invite and implore all the Bahá'í friends to investigate independently and sincerely the truth and accept the "Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá" as immutable documentary evidence that has undeniably insured the continuity of the Guardianship.... READ MORE

Posted at 09:41 AM | Permalink | Comments (0)

True Bahá'í

All Bahá'ís are Brothers and Sisters in the Faith

From: http://mybahaifaith.blogspot.com/

Question: Do you believe then that these Bahá'ís who have been led astray and are now under the leadership of the Haifa organization will forever consider the provisions of the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá pertaining to the institution of the Guardianship no longer applicable?

Answer: No. If those Bahá'ís who were formerly ardent and faithful believers during the Guardianship of Shoghi Effendi and have now been led to believe that the Guardianship ended with his passing as well as those Bahá'íss who have accepted the Faith following his passing would investigate fairly, sincerely and without bias the overwhelming evidence attesting to the continuation of the Guardianship found on our several web sites, they would inevitably perceive that the provisions of the divinely-conceived and sacred provisions of the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá pertaining to the Guardianship have remained valid and unalterable and that the first Guardian faithfully fulfilled his obligation to appoint his successor according to its sacred Mandate. Accordingly, I invite and implore all the Bahá'í friends to investigate independently and sincerely the truth and accept the "Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá" as immutable documentary evidence that has undeniably insured the continuity of the Guardianship.... READ MORE

Posted at 09:41 AM | Permalink | Comments (0)

True Bahá'í

Shoghi Effendi: Bahá'í Faith would be imperiled without the Guardian

From the National Bahá'í Council of India (of the Orthodox Bahá'ís):

The First Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith, Shoghi Effendi, warned to the Bahá'íis in his Spiritual Testament "The Administrative Order of The Dispensation of Baha'u'llah" that the Faith would be imperiled, and the stability of entire fabric would be gravely endangered without the Guardian. Therefore Bahá'ís should obey his commandments and search for the living Guardian of Baha'i Faith.

He wrote:
"An attempt, I feel, should at the present juncture be made to explain the character and functions of the twin pillars that support this mighty Administrative Structure—the institutions of the Guardianship and of the Universal House of Justice. To describe in their entirety the diverse elements that function in conjunction with these institutions is beyond the scope and purpose of this general exposition of the fundamental...."

READ MORE

Posted at 10:46 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Shoghi Effendi: Bahá'í Faith would be imperiled without the Guardian

From the National Bahá'í Council of India (of the Orthodox Bahá'ís):

The First Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith, Shoghi Effendi, warned to the Bahá'íis in his Spiritual Testament "The Administrative Order of The Dispensation of Baha'u'llah" that the Faith would be imperiled, and the stability of entire fabric would be gravely endangered without the Guardian. Therefore Bahá'ís should obey his commandments and search for the living Guardian of Baha'i Faith.

He wrote:
"An attempt, I feel, should at the present juncture be made to explain the character and functions of the twin pillars that support this mighty Administrative Structure—the institutions of the Guardianship and of the Universal House of Justice. To describe in their entirety the diverse elements that function in conjunction with these institutions is beyond the scope and purpose of this general exposition of the fundamental...."

READ MORE

Posted at 10:46 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

a collective pseudo-Guardianship

They [the Hands after the death of Shoghi Effendi and after searching in vain for a will] then appointed an illegitimate body under the title of "Custodians of the Bahá'í World Faith," comprised of nine Hands, clearly outside of the provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, and relegated the International Bahá'í Council (the embryonic Universal House of Justice) that Shoghi Effendi had appointed in his Proclamation of 9 January 1951, prior to the appointment of their own institution, as the "first embryonic International Institution" to an insignificant role subordinate to this body. This body then illicitly and presumptuously took on the role of a collective pseudo-Guardianship of the Faith that blatantly assumed supreme administrative jurisdiction over national and local Bahá'í assemblies and the believers throughout the world for a period of some five years until the ill-gotten authority that they had seized was, in turn, passed on at Ridván 1963 to an elected. equally illegitimate, headless, and deformed body identified by them, notwithstanding this gross deformity, as the Universal House of Justice, in which the Guardian of the Faith did not preside, as its "sacred head," as clearly required under the explicit terms of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá.

Joel B. Marangella
READ ARTICLE

Posted at 06:47 AM | Permalink | Comments (0)

True Bahá'í

a collective pseudo-Guardianship

They [the Hands after the death of Shoghi Effendi and after searching in vain for a will] then appointed an illegitimate body under the title of "Custodians of the Bahá'í World Faith," comprised of nine Hands, clearly outside of the provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, and relegated the International Bahá'í Council (the embryonic Universal House of Justice) that Shoghi Effendi had appointed in his Proclamation of 9 January 1951, prior to the appointment of their own institution, as the "first embryonic International Institution" to an insignificant role subordinate to this body. This body then illicitly and presumptuously took on the role of a collective pseudo-Guardianship of the Faith that blatantly assumed supreme administrative jurisdiction over national and local Bahá'í assemblies and the believers throughout the world for a period of some five years until the ill-gotten authority that they had seized was, in turn, passed on at Ridván 1963 to an elected. equally illegitimate, headless, and deformed body identified by them, notwithstanding this gross deformity, as the Universal House of Justice, in which the Guardian of the Faith did not preside, as its "sacred head," as clearly required under the explicit terms of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá.

Joel B. Marangella
READ ARTICLE

Posted at 06:47 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

a collective pseudo-Guardianship

They [the Hands after the death of Shoghi Effendi and after searching in vain for a will] then appointed an illegitimate body under the title of "Custodians of the Bahá'í World Faith," comprised of nine Hands, clearly outside of the provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, and relegated the International Bahá'í Council (the embryonic Universal House of Justice) that Shoghi Effendi had appointed in his Proclamation of 9 January 1951, prior to the appointment of their own institution, as the "first embryonic International Institution" to an insignificant role subordinate to this body. This body then illicitly and presumptuously took on the role of a collective pseudo-Guardianship of the Faith that blatantly assumed supreme administrative jurisdiction over national and local Bahá'í assemblies and the believers throughout the world for a period of some five years until the ill-gotten authority that they had seized was, in turn, passed on at Ridván 1963 to an elected. equally illegitimate, headless, and deformed body identified by them, notwithstanding this gross deformity, as the Universal House of Justice, in which the Guardian of the Faith did not preside, as its "sacred head," as clearly required under the explicit terms of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá.

Joel B. Marangella
READ ARTICLE

Posted at 06:47 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

A Kingdom is lead by an individual person

The Kingdom of God will not be a democracy. It will, rather, resemble a kingdom, if we are to believe what was instructed and is recited by the Christians. Why does humanity recite countless times daily the word kingdom and not likewise prepare their hearts and minds for the acceptance of a (just) form of kingdom? Likewise, why have not the Baha'is conditioned themselves to the reality of a kingdom on earth, with a singular voice of authority for the leadership of that kingdom?

A kingdom is always directed by a single person, not by a collective. A kingdom has to have a king, a single person. It is not a convenient collection of men who pretend to be, and act as if they were, that person. A king is but one person at a time, who obtains his office through some sort of hereditary inheritance or appointment. A cursory review of but the most basic of the Baha'i Holy Writ, and by Holy Writ I mean writings penned by the Three Central figures, should determine that the Baha'i Faith will not be akin to any other form of government ever established on earth, including a democracy. Shoghi Effendi clearly explained that.

....

Could it be that mankind is so full of itself that it would not even consider a higher power determining its direction? Even though they pray for a Kingdom on Earth, they act as if they want to specify the terms of that Kingdom. Humanity as a whole may be excused from that error in assumption, but anyone who calls himself a Baha'i should know better.

A Kingdom is lead by an individual person. In the case of the promised Kingdom, that person will direct humans through the offices of the Institution of the Guardianship such that they will comply with the mirrored Will of God.

David Maxwell
Read Article

Posted at 03:30 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

A Kingdom is lead by an individual person

The Kingdom of God will not be a democracy. It will, rather, resemble a kingdom, if we are to believe what was instructed and is recited by the Christians. Why does humanity recite countless times daily the word kingdom and not likewise prepare their hearts and minds for the acceptance of a (just) form of kingdom? Likewise, why have not the Baha'is conditioned themselves to the reality of a kingdom on earth, with a singular voice of authority for the leadership of that kingdom?

A kingdom is always directed by a single person, not by a collective. A kingdom has to have a king, a single person. It is not a convenient collection of men who pretend to be, and act as if they were, that person. A king is but one person at a time, who obtains his office through some sort of hereditary inheritance or appointment. A cursory review of but the most basic of the Baha'i Holy Writ, and by Holy Writ I mean writings penned by the Three Central figures, should determine that the Baha'i Faith will not be akin to any other form of government ever established on earth, including a democracy. Shoghi Effendi clearly explained that.

....

Could it be that mankind is so full of itself that it would not even consider a higher power determining its direction? Even though they pray for a Kingdom on Earth, they act as if they want to specify the terms of that Kingdom. Humanity as a whole may be excused from that error in assumption, but anyone who calls himself a Baha'i should know better.

A Kingdom is lead by an individual person. In the case of the promised Kingdom, that person will direct humans through the offices of the Institution of the Guardianship such that they will comply with the mirrored Will of God.

David Maxwell
Read Article

Posted at 03:30 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

faithful believers never entertained any doubt....

And when he [Shoghi Effendi] passed to Abha Kingdom In 1957 his body was laid to rest as the first Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith

"The flowers were removed from the casket, revealing an engraved tablet on which was written:

Shoghi Effendi Rabbani

First Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith

March 3rd, 1896-November 4th, 1957" (Ruhiyyih Khanum, The Passing of Shoghi Effendi, p. 22)

At that time the question was: Who is the second Guardian? Not, had the first Guardian appointed his successor? Because faithful believers never entertained any doubt or question that Shoghi Effendi would fail to faithfully fulfill his most important obligation, under the terms of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Baha. But obviously one person was determined to adopt and nourish this inappropriate question and project a negative conclusion, and hatched a plot to draw the attention of the Bahá'ís away from the proper recognition of the International Bahá'í Council and attract their attention instead to the Hands of the Cause, so Ruhiyyih Khanum sent the following cablegrams:

"...URGE BELIEVERS REMAIN STEADFAST CLING INSTITUTION HANDS LOVINGLY REARED RECENTLY REINFORCED EMPHASIZED BY BELOVED GUARDIAN..." (Ruhiyyih Khanum, The Passing of Shoghi Effendi, p. 11)

"...FUNERAL OUR BELOVED GUARDIAN SATURDAY LONDON HANDS ASSEMBLY BOARD MEMBERS INVITED ATTEND ANY PRESS RELEASE SHOULD STATE MEETING HANDS SHORTLY HAIFA WILL MAKE ARRANGEMENT TO BAHAI WORLD REGARDING FUTURE PLANS STOP URGE HOLD MEMORIAL MEETINGS SATURDAY." (Ruhiyyih Khanum, The Passing of Shoghi Effendi, p. 13)

(In the Ministry of the Custodians, instead of "ARRANGEMENT" is written "ANNOUNCEMENT")

Nosrat'u'llah Bahremand
READ ARTICLE

Posted at 07:10 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

faithful believers never entertained any doubt....

And when he [Shoghi Effendi] passed to Abha Kingdom In 1957 his body was laid to rest as the first Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith

"The flowers were removed from the casket, revealing an engraved tablet on which was written:

Shoghi Effendi Rabbani

First Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith

March 3rd, 1896-November 4th, 1957" (Ruhiyyih Khanum, The Passing of Shoghi Effendi, p. 22)

At that time the question was: Who is the second Guardian? Not, had the first Guardian appointed his successor? Because faithful believers never entertained any doubt or question that Shoghi Effendi would fail to faithfully fulfill his most important obligation, under the terms of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Baha. But obviously one person was determined to adopt and nourish this inappropriate question and project a negative conclusion, and hatched a plot to draw the attention of the Bahá'ís away from the proper recognition of the International Bahá'í Council and attract their attention instead to the Hands of the Cause, so Ruhiyyih Khanum sent the following cablegrams:

"...URGE BELIEVERS REMAIN STEADFAST CLING INSTITUTION HANDS LOVINGLY REARED RECENTLY REINFORCED EMPHASIZED BY BELOVED GUARDIAN..." (Ruhiyyih Khanum, The Passing of Shoghi Effendi, p. 11)

"...FUNERAL OUR BELOVED GUARDIAN SATURDAY LONDON HANDS ASSEMBLY BOARD MEMBERS INVITED ATTEND ANY PRESS RELEASE SHOULD STATE MEETING HANDS SHORTLY HAIFA WILL MAKE ARRANGEMENT TO BAHAI WORLD REGARDING FUTURE PLANS STOP URGE HOLD MEMORIAL MEETINGS SATURDAY." (Ruhiyyih Khanum, The Passing of Shoghi Effendi, p. 13)

(In the Ministry of the Custodians, instead of "ARRANGEMENT" is written "ANNOUNCEMENT")

Nosrat'u'llah Bahremand
READ ARTICLE

Posted at 07:10 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

"As it is in heaven"

"AS IT IS IN HEAVEN"

Every practicing Christian, if asked, would be able to insert the words that precede the above quoted phrase in "The Lord's Prayer" and would be able to inform you that the completed quotation is a supplication to God to establish the Kingdom of God on earth "AS IT IS IN HEAVEN."

Will the Kingdom of God that is established on earth in response to this supplication be one that has been imperfectly fashioned by the minds of men, who possess no knowledge of the features of that heavenly Kingdom, or must it possess only those divinely-appointed features that have been uniquely revealed by the Manifestation of God in this long-awaited "Day of God?"

In the "Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh" penned by Shoghi Effendi one finds the following wonderful description of the manner in which the Bahá'í Administrative Order has been divinely-conceived in accordance with the above criteria and formally delineated by the Center of the Covenant, 'Abdu'l-Bahá, in His sacred and immutable Will and Testament:

"The creative energies released by the Law of Bahá'u'lláh, permeating and evolving within the mind of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, have by their very impact and close interaction, given birth to an Instrument which may be viewed as the Charter of the New World Order which is at once the glory and the promise of this most great Dispensation. The Will may thus be acclaimed as the inevitable offspring resulting from the mystic intercourse between Him Who communicated the generating influence of His divine Purpose and the One Who was its vehicle and chosen recipient. Being the Child of the Covenant-the Heir of both the Originator and the Interpreter of the Law of God-the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá can no more be divorced from Him Who supplied the original and motivating impulse than from the One Who ultimately conceived it."

In the light of the foregoing explanation, it becomes crystal clear that the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá is actually the Will of Bahá'u'lláh, as well, and for this reason Shoghi Effendi has referred to it elsewhere in his writings as "their Will." Furthermore, as evidence of the sacredness and immutability of every provision of this Document, Shoghi Effendi has further emphasized that the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá "together with the Kitab-i-Aqdas [Bahá'u'lláh's Most Holy Book] . . . .are not only complementary but that they mutually confirm one another and are inseparable parts of one complete unit" and that the divinely-conceived Administrative Order delineated in that Document is "God's immutable Purpose for mankind in this day."

Joel B. Marangella
http://bahai-guardian.com/onearth.html

Posted at 09:59 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

"As it is in heaven"

"AS IT IS IN HEAVEN"

Every practicing Christian, if asked, would be able to insert the words that precede the above quoted phrase in "The Lord's Prayer" and would be able to inform you that the completed quotation is a supplication to God to establish the Kingdom of God on earth "AS IT IS IN HEAVEN."

Will the Kingdom of God that is established on earth in response to this supplication be one that has been imperfectly fashioned by the minds of men, who possess no knowledge of the features of that heavenly Kingdom, or must it possess only those divinely-appointed features that have been uniquely revealed by the Manifestation of God in this long-awaited "Day of God?"

In the "Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh" penned by Shoghi Effendi one finds the following wonderful description of the manner in which the Bahá'í Administrative Order has been divinely-conceived in accordance with the above criteria and formally delineated by the Center of the Covenant, 'Abdu'l-Bahá, in His sacred and immutable Will and Testament:

"The creative energies released by the Law of Bahá'u'lláh, permeating and evolving within the mind of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, have by their very impact and close interaction, given birth to an Instrument which may be viewed as the Charter of the New World Order which is at once the glory and the promise of this most great Dispensation. The Will may thus be acclaimed as the inevitable offspring resulting from the mystic intercourse between Him Who communicated the generating influence of His divine Purpose and the One Who was its vehicle and chosen recipient. Being the Child of the Covenant-the Heir of both the Originator and the Interpreter of the Law of God-the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá can no more be divorced from Him Who supplied the original and motivating impulse than from the One Who ultimately conceived it."

In the light of the foregoing explanation, it becomes crystal clear that the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá is actually the Will of Bahá'u'lláh, as well, and for this reason Shoghi Effendi has referred to it elsewhere in his writings as "their Will." Furthermore, as evidence of the sacredness and immutability of every provision of this Document, Shoghi Effendi has further emphasized that the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá "together with the Kitab-i-Aqdas [Bahá'u'lláh's Most Holy Book] . . . .are not only complementary but that they mutually confirm one another and are inseparable parts of one complete unit" and that the divinely-conceived Administrative Order delineated in that Document is "God's immutable Purpose for mankind in this day."

Joel B. Marangella
http://bahai-guardian.com/onearth.html

Posted at 09:59 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

As the Bab has assured us...

"As the Bab has assured us that 'God in truth keepeth watch over all things' and as Shoghi Effendi has stated that 'the bedrock on which this Administrative Order is founded is God's immutable Purpose for mankind in this day,' how much longer will the members of the illegitimate and headless so-called Universal House of Justice continue to delude themselves into believing that they can continue to defy God's immutable Purpose with impunity and that the man-made corrupted administrative system that that they have nefariously substituted for the divinely-conceived System delineated in the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá will continue to survive as a substitute for the divine Order delineated in the sacred and immortal provisions of that Will, emphasized by Shoghi Effendi to be nothing less than an expression, as well, of Bahá'u'lláh's Will, and therefore actually 'their Will?' "

-Joel B. Marangella http://bahai-guardian.com/keepeth.html

Posted at 10:18 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

As the Bab has assured us...

"As the Bab has assured us that 'God in truth keepeth watch over all things' and as Shoghi Effendi has stated that 'the bedrock on which this Administrative Order is founded is God's immutable Purpose for mankind in this day,' how much longer will the members of the illegitimate and headless so-called Universal House of Justice continue to delude themselves into believing that they can continue to defy God's immutable Purpose with impunity and that the man-made corrupted administrative system that that they have nefariously substituted for the divinely-conceived System delineated in the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá will continue to survive as a substitute for the divine Order delineated in the sacred and immortal provisions of that Will, emphasized by Shoghi Effendi to be nothing less than an expression, as well, of Bahá'u'lláh's Will, and therefore actually 'their Will?' "

-Joel B. Marangella http://bahai-guardian.com/keepeth.html

Posted at 10:18 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

...blatantly ignoring God's Purpose....

In Shoghi Effendi's seminal work, first published in 1934, titled: "The Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh" and considered by him to be his spiritual testament, he states that "The bedrock on which this Administrative Order is founded is God's immutable Purpose for mankind in this day."

Yet, notwithstanding the above clear statement, those so-called Bahá'ís who have abandoned the Guardianship of the Cause of God, still count themselves faithful to the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh, while blatantly ignoring God's Purpose and accepting as the supreme authority in the Faith, a headless and an undeniably illegitimate body, calling itself the Universal House of Justice, although patently nothing more than a humanly created caricature of the divinely-conceived body called for under the sacred and immortal provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, over which the Guardian of the Cause of God - the "Center of the Cause" - also presides, not as a figure head, but as its essential "sacred head and the distinguished member for life."

Joel B. Marangella
http://www.bahai-guardian.com/purpose.html

Posted at 07:56 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

...blatantly ignoring God's Purpose....

In Shoghi Effendi's seminal work, first published in 1934, titled: "The Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh" and considered by him to be his spiritual testament, he states that "The bedrock on which this Administrative Order is founded is God's immutable Purpose for mankind in this day."

Yet, notwithstanding the above clear statement, those so-called Bahá'ís who have abandoned the Guardianship of the Cause of God, still count themselves faithful to the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh, while blatantly ignoring God's Purpose and accepting as the supreme authority in the Faith, a headless and an undeniably illegitimate body, calling itself the Universal House of Justice, although patently nothing more than a humanly created caricature of the divinely-conceived body called for under the sacred and immortal provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, over which the Guardian of the Cause of God - the "Center of the Cause" - also presides, not as a figure head, but as its essential "sacred head and the distinguished member for life."

Joel B. Marangella
http://www.bahai-guardian.com/purpose.html

Posted at 07:56 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Father, forgive them...

"FATHER, FORGIVE THEM, FOR THEY KNOW NOT WHAT THEY DO" - JESUS CHRIST

The above words uttered by Jesus Christ on the cross at the hour of His crucifixion may aptly be applied to the equally despicable spiritual crucifixion by the Hands of the Cause of Mason Remey, following the issuance of his Proclamation to the Baha'í World at Ridván 1960, as the second Guardian of the Cause of God.

Can we forgive, however, the inexplicable spiritual blindness and loss of faith in the indestructible Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh and the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá-the sacred and immortal "Child of the Covenant"-exhibited by his fellow-Hands, who had but recently attained their spiritual rank. For, in the hasty and unwarranted decision they would make to declare the Guardianship at an end upon the passing of Shoghi Effendi in 1957, they would destroy not only the "Center of the Cause" but, as well, the institution of the Hands of the Cause (who are solely appointed by the Guardian) and the Universal House of Justice, over which only the Guardian presides for life as its "sacred head" under the terms of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá. And thus, they would shamefully dismantle "the machinery of its highest institutions" and "the supreme organs of its unfolding Order" that Shoghi Effendi had "at long last" erected "in their embryonic form" at "the World Center of the Faith" as announced in his message of 30 June 1952 to the Baha'í World.

Joel B. Marangella
http://bahai-guardian.com/forgive.html

Posted at 05:02 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

I don't think so!

Does it seem at all reasonable to suppose that Shoghi Effendi, knowing the circumstances of his position, should fail to fulfill that trust placed in him by `Abdu'l-Bahá? Would he not know of the sacrifice that had been made for his birth? When he was chosen by `Abdu'l-Bahá as the first in a line of future Guardians, very explicitly outlined in the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá, would he then have chosen to pass to that same celestial garden NOT having chosen his successor, and NOT having fulfilled the duty placed on him by `Abdu'l-Bahá?

I don't think so!

Marilyn Meyer
Read Article

Posted at 09:05 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

a collective pseudo-Guardianship

They [the Hands after the death of Shoghi Effendi and after searching in vain for a will] then appointed an illegitimate body under the title of "Custodians of the Bahá'í World Faith," comprised of nine Hands, clearly outside of the provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, and relegated the International Bahá'í Council (the embryonic Universal House of Justice) that Shoghi Effendi had appointed in his Proclamation of 9 January 1951, prior to the appointment of their own institution, as the "first embryonic International Institution" to an insignificant role subordinate to this body. This body then illicitly and presumptuously took on the role of a collective pseudo-Guardianship of the Faith that blatantly assumed supreme administrative jurisdiction over national and local Bahá'í assemblies and the believers throughout the world for a period of some five years until the ill-gotten authority that they had seized was, in turn, passed on at Ridván 1963 to an elected. equally illegitimate, headless, and deformed body identified by them, notwithstanding this gross deformity, as the Universal House of Justice, in which the Guardian of the Faith did not preside, as its "sacred head," as clearly required under the explicit terms of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá.

Joel B. Marangella
READ ARTICLE

Posted at 06:47 AM | Permalink | Comments (0)

True Bahá'í

a collective pseudo-Guardianship

They [the Hands after the death of Shoghi Effendi and after searching in vain for a will] then appointed an illegitimate body under the title of "Custodians of the Bahá'í World Faith," comprised of nine Hands, clearly outside of the provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, and relegated the International Bahá'í Council (the embryonic Universal House of Justice) that Shoghi Effendi had appointed in his Proclamation of 9 January 1951, prior to the appointment of their own institution, as the "first embryonic International Institution" to an insignificant role subordinate to this body. This body then illicitly and presumptuously took on the role of a collective pseudo-Guardianship of the Faith that blatantly assumed supreme administrative jurisdiction over national and local Bahá'í assemblies and the believers throughout the world for a period of some five years until the ill-gotten authority that they had seized was, in turn, passed on at Ridván 1963 to an elected. equally illegitimate, headless, and deformed body identified by them, notwithstanding this gross deformity, as the Universal House of Justice, in which the Guardian of the Faith did not preside, as its "sacred head," as clearly required under the explicit terms of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá.

Joel B. Marangella
READ ARTICLE

Posted at 06:47 AM | Permalink | Comments (0)

True Bahá'í

Is it not a blatant paradox...

During the ministry of Shoghi Effendi all Bahá'ís knew that one of the essential conditions that had been prescribed by Shoghi Effendi for being accepted as an enrolled believer was faithful adherence to every clause of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá-"the Center of the Covenant"-and believed that fidelity on the part of the believer to the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh required nothing less than faithful, complete and steadfast adherence to every clause of this "Charter of the New World Order."

Is it not a blatant paradox that, since the passing of Shoghi Effendi, that the sans-Guardian, and therefore headless, illegitimate and so-called Universal House of Justice has now so perverted the meaning of fidelity to the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh that they now ludicrously label as Covenant-breakers those believers who have continued to faithfully and steadfastly adhere to every clause of 'Abdu'l-Bahá's divinely-conceived, sacred and immortal Will and Testament-a part of the explicit Holy Text-whereas, in marked contrast, it is they, who in their abandonment of the Guardianship, have thereby faithlessly declared major clauses of this Will and Testament null and void and have, in consequence, undeniably become themselves the arch-breakers of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh?

Joel B. Marangella
http://www.bahai-guardian.com/paradox.html

Posted at 08:33 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

...no more than pseudo Bahá'ís

Shoghi Effendi... has stipulated that one of the essential requirements that must be fulfilled to be accepted as a Bahá'í is: "Steadfast adherence to every clause of 'Abdu'l-Bahá's sacred Will."

This Will calls for an unbroken line of Guardians of the Cause of God as long as the Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh endures, each of whom, following the appointment of the first Guardian, Shoghi Effendi, by 'Abdu'l-Bahá, inherits the Guardianship solely through an appointment made by his predecessor "in his own life-time." (i.e., not by testamentary document)

This Will states that "The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the guardian of the Cause of God." and enjoins all "to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him."

Moreover, this Will stipulates that the Guardian of the Cause of God presides as "the sacred head and the distinguished member for life" of the Universal House of Justice" and provides him with the sole authority to appoint Hands of the Cause.

In the light of the foregoing, it is crystal clear that those individuals who identify themselves as Bahá'ís but belong to an organization that does not have a living Guardian of the Cause of God as the Head of the Faith-"the Center of the Cause"-and the "sacred head" of its Universal House of Justice, as stipulated under the provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, are seriously deluded and, however blindly, are blatantly misrepresenting themselves as Bahá'ís, who, undeniably, at best, are no more than pseudo Bahá'ís.

Joel B. Marangella
http://www.bahai-guardian.com/pseudo.html

Posted at 08:47 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

...no more than pseudo Bahá'ís

Shoghi Effendi... has stipulated that one of the essential requirements that must be fulfilled to be accepted as a Bahá'í is: "Steadfast adherence to every clause of 'Abdu'l-Bahá's sacred Will."

This Will calls for an unbroken line of Guardians of the Cause of God as long as the Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh endures, each of whom, following the appointment of the first Guardian, Shoghi Effendi, by 'Abdu'l-Bahá, inherits the Guardianship solely through an appointment made by his predecessor "in his own life-time." (i.e., not by testamentary document)

This Will states that "The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the guardian of the Cause of God." and enjoins all "to show their obedience, submissiveness and subordination unto the guardian of the Cause of God, to turn unto him and be lowly before him."

Moreover, this Will stipulates that the Guardian of the Cause of God presides as "the sacred head and the distinguished member for life" of the Universal House of Justice" and provides him with the sole authority to appoint Hands of the Cause.

In the light of the foregoing, it is crystal clear that those individuals who identify themselves as Bahá'ís but belong to an organization that does not have a living Guardian of the Cause of God as the Head of the Faith-"the Center of the Cause"-and the "sacred head" of its Universal House of Justice, as stipulated under the provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, are seriously deluded and, however blindly, are blatantly misrepresenting themselves as Bahá'ís, who, undeniably, at best, are no more than pseudo Bahá'ís.

Joel B. Marangella
http://www.bahai-guardian.com/pseudo.html

Posted at 08:47 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The true Faith has the Guardian at its head

There is an apparent ambiguity: does "branch" refer only to the Sons of Bahá'u'lláh, or to any of the members of His family, or does is it refer spiritually to any faithful believer whom the Guardian is divinely guided to appoint as his successor (the one in which is found "the fear of God, knowledge, wisdom and learning")?

The Orthodox Bahá'ís assert that the passage is not ambiguous or open to interpretation but the Will clearly allows the Guardian to appoint a successor of his choosing in any manner of his choosing as long as it occurs during his lifetime.

Bahá'u'lláh says: "Know thou that the passages that We have called "ambiguous" appear as such only in the eyes of them that have failed to soar above the horizon of guidance and to reach the heights of knowledge in the retreats of grace. For otherwise, unto them that have recognized the Repositories of divine Revelation and beheld through His inspiration the mysteries of divine authority, all the verses of God are perspicuous and all His allusions are clear. Such men discern the inner mysteries that have been clothed in the garment of words as clearly as ye perceive the heat of the sun or the wetness of water, nay even more distinctly. Immeasurably exalted is God above our praise of His loved ones, and beyond their praise of Him!" Gems of Divine Mysteries, p. 25

The true Faith has the Guardian at its head.

Jeffrey
READ ARTICLE

Posted at 07:41 AM | Permalink | Comments (0)

True Bahá'í

Since almost 1700 years ago, and continuing today...

By Guest Blogger
Hand of the Cause of God Ross Campbell

Constantly, during almost 1700 years, since the early part of fourth century of our Common Era and also continuing at our present time, the Catholic Church has claimed that those denying that the Lord Christ is Almighty God are perpetrating a "frightful sacrilege":

"Saint Athanasius was born in Alexandria, Egypt, towards the end of the third century, and from his youth was pious, learned, and deeply versed in the sacred writings. He left the paternal home to be raised by the bishop of Alexandria like a new Samuel in the Lord's temple, as befitted one whom God had chosen to be the champion and defender of His Church against the Arian heresy, which denied the Divinity of Christ.... the Catholic Patriarch of Constantinople, with Saint James of Nisibe, who was in Constantinople at that time, Saint Athanasius in France and the Catholics everywhere, had recourse to fasting and prayer, that God would avert from the Church the frightful sacrilege." (Little Pictorial Lives of the Saints)

As Bahá'ís, we know that Almighty God is: "...in truth...the Mighty, the All-Knowing" (LONG OBLIGATORY PRAYER)

Nobody in the Universe can reveal anything to Him. As "the all-Knowing", He cannot receive a Revelation. Nobody can deny Him knowledge or hold back from Him any facts or deceive Him.

Anyone who can receive a Revelation, therefore, is not God, since God cannot receive a Revelation. The Lord Christ taught that He would return to the same glory which He had before He came to Earth. After His ascension, having returned to that full glory which He had before, Holy Scripture informs us that He received a Revelation. Therefore He is not God. God cannot receive a Revelation:

"A Revelation by Jesus Christ, which God gave Him..." (Revelation1:1, Holy Bible)

Yes, as Bahá'ís, we know that the teaching that the Lord Christ is not Almighty God is not a "frightful sacrilege", but rather it is truth.

History is repeating itself. Shoghi Effendi, the first of our Bahá'í Guardians taught that the Guardianship of the Bahá'í continues by power of the "hereditary principle" of the Bahá'í Faith, which generates a succession of Guardians throughout this Millennium, which Millennium recently commenced.

Just as Arius approached Catholics 1700 years ago attempting to assist them to see the error of their Trinity doctrine, Faithful Bahá'ís during the past 50+ years since the death of the first of our Guardians, Shoghi Effendi, in 1957, have been attempting to assist members of the large body of Bahá'ís to see the error of their rejection of Shoghi Effendi's teaching that the Guardianship of the Bahá'í Faith continues throughout this Millennium.

The actions of the heterodox Bahá'í leadership currently on Mt. Carmel/Wilmette clearly demonstrate that it considers the teaching efforts of Orthodox Bahá'ís related to the continuing Guardianship of the Bahá'í Faith to be 'frightful sacrilege'. Will that so-called Universal House of Justice currently on Mt. Carmel be permitted to continue rejecting the sane teaching of Shoghi Effendi and Orthodox Bahá'ís for the remaining many centuries of this Holy Bahá'í Dispensation?

The third Guardian's explanation of the prophetic Tablet of the Holy Mariner provides the answer to that question.

The website of the living Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith:

www.Bahai-Guardian.com

Posted at 08:46 AM | Permalink | Comments (0)

True Bahá'í

perhaps an attempt should have been made...

The Hands in the Holy Land became self-interpreters after the first Guardian's death, developed a plan of their liking, and brainwashed the majority of the believers who now expect it to lead to the Promised Kingdom. Was it never considered that perhaps an attempt should have been made to conform to his instructions rather than to immediately declare that it was impossible for him to have appointed the second Guardian?

When one looks objectively at the conditions of rampant poverty, war, destruction and total chaos in today's world versus the promises of God's Plan as described in the Writings of all the Manifestations, with its theme of continuation through the Baha'i Faith, how could the peaceful promises be realized without the full cooperation of that God? God's cooperation will only happen within the following of `Abdu'l-Bahá's definition of the Covenant, and the explicit directions of Shoghi Effendi.

In the meantime, the UHJ's humanly-conceived plan continues with the only realistic outcome to be that of frustration and non-accomplishment of salvation for the world.

David Maxwell
READ ARTICLE

Posted at 08:02 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

perhaps an attempt should have been made...

The Hands in the Holy Land became self-interpreters after the first Guardian's death, developed a plan of their liking, and brainwashed the majority of the believers who now expect it to lead to the Promised Kingdom. Was it never considered that perhaps an attempt should have been made to conform to his instructions rather than to immediately declare that it was impossible for him to have appointed the second Guardian?

When one looks objectively at the conditions of rampant poverty, war, destruction and total chaos in today's world versus the promises of God's Plan as described in the Writings of all the Manifestations, with its theme of continuation through the Baha'i Faith, how could the peaceful promises be realized without the full cooperation of that God? God's cooperation will only happen within the following of `Abdu'l-Bahá's definition of the Covenant, and the explicit directions of Shoghi Effendi.

In the meantime, the UHJ's humanly-conceived plan continues with the only realistic outcome to be that of frustration and non-accomplishment of salvation for the world.

David Maxwell
READ ARTICLE

Posted at 08:02 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

shocking loss of faith...

In this decision, made with undue haste but a few days after his passing, and on the basis of a patently false premise, the Hands, (with a single notable exception) demonstrated a lamentable and shocking loss of faith in the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh and in the immutability of the sacred, and divinely-conceived Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá that Shoghi Effendi had repeatedly emphasized in his writings should be considered an expression of the Will of Bahá'u'lláh, as well, even referring to it as "their Will," (W.O.B. p.22), a Document which, therefore, would remain in force as long as the Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh itself endured. This Will clearly provides for an unbroken line of Guardians of the Cause of God, each appointed by his predecessor "in his own life-time" and who, as "the Center of the Cause," the sole interpreter of Bahá'í holy Writ and "the sacred head for life of the Universal House of Justice," are called upon to exercise these unique, irreplaceable and essential functions in the Bahá'í Administrative Order. In their unpardonable abandonment of the Guardianship that would bring about the demise of their own institution, upon the death of the last Hand of the Cause appointed by Shoghi Effendi, these now errant Hands, in effect, had shamelessly abrogated the major provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá that Shoghi Effendi had further equated in its sacredness and immutability with Bahá'u'lláh's Most Holy Book, the Kitáb-i-Aqdas, in further stating that these two Documents: "are not only complementary, but that they mutually confirm one another and are inseparable parts of one complete unit." (W.O.B. p.4).

Having thus in their faithlessness incredibly abandoned the Guardianship, and decreed their own ultimate demise, these fallen Hands then set about establishing a substitute organization of their own making....

Joel B. Marangella
READ ARTICLE

Posted at 08:13 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

shocking loss of faith...

In this decision, made with undue haste but a few days after his passing, and on the basis of a patently false premise, the Hands, (with a single notable exception) demonstrated a lamentable and shocking loss of faith in the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh and in the immutability of the sacred, and divinely-conceived Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá that Shoghi Effendi had repeatedly emphasized in his writings should be considered an expression of the Will of Bahá'u'lláh, as well, even referring to it as "their Will," (W.O.B. p.22), a Document which, therefore, would remain in force as long as the Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh itself endured. This Will clearly provides for an unbroken line of Guardians of the Cause of God, each appointed by his predecessor "in his own life-time" and who, as "the Center of the Cause," the sole interpreter of Bahá'í holy Writ and "the sacred head for life of the Universal House of Justice," are called upon to exercise these unique, irreplaceable and essential functions in the Bahá'í Administrative Order. In their unpardonable abandonment of the Guardianship that would bring about the demise of their own institution, upon the death of the last Hand of the Cause appointed by Shoghi Effendi, these now errant Hands, in effect, had shamelessly abrogated the major provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá that Shoghi Effendi had further equated in its sacredness and immutability with Bahá'u'lláh's Most Holy Book, the Kitáb-i-Aqdas, in further stating that these two Documents: "are not only complementary, but that they mutually confirm one another and are inseparable parts of one complete unit." (W.O.B. p.4).

Having thus in their faithlessness incredibly abandoned the Guardianship, and decreed their own ultimate demise, these fallen Hands then set about establishing a substitute organization of their own making....

Joel B. Marangella
READ ARTICLE

Posted at 08:13 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Shoghi Effendi's instruction for the Bahá’í Temple in Haifa

We know that Shoghi Effendi instructed that the architectural plan for the Bahá’í Temple on Mt. Carmel, designed by Charles Mason Remey, was to be kept safe where the first Guardian placed it. We have seen that the sans-Guardian administration leaves Mason
Remey's photo out of their yearbook, The Bahá’í World, when providing profiles of Hands of the Cause of God.

Ross Campbell

http://handsofthebahaifaith.typepad.com

Posted at 08:53 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Shoghi Effendi's instruction for the Bahá’í Temple in Haifa

We know that Shoghi Effendi instructed that the architectural plan for the Bahá’í Temple on Mt. Carmel, designed by Charles Mason Remey, was to be kept safe where the first Guardian placed it. We have seen that the sans-Guardian administration leaves Mason
Remey's photo out of their yearbook, The Bahá’í World, when providing profiles of Hands of the Cause of God.

Ross Campbell

http://handsofthebahaifaith.typepad.com

Posted at 08:53 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Since almost 1700 years ago, and continuing today...

By Guest Blogger
Hand of the Cause of God Ross Campbell

Constantly, during almost 1700 years, since the early part of fourth century of our Common Era and also continuing at our present time, the Catholic Church has claimed that those denying that the Lord Christ is Almighty God are perpetrating a "frightful sacrilege":

"Saint Athanasius was born in Alexandria, Egypt, towards the end of the third century, and from his youth was pious, learned, and deeply versed in the sacred writings. He left the paternal home to be raised by the bishop of Alexandria like a new Samuel in the Lord's temple, as befitted one whom God had chosen to be the champion and defender of His Church against the Arian heresy, which denied the Divinity of Christ.... the Catholic Patriarch of Constantinople, with Saint James of Nisibe, who was in Constantinople at that time, Saint Athanasius in France and the Catholics everywhere, had recourse to fasting and prayer, that God would avert from the Church the frightful sacrilege." (Little Pictorial Lives of the Saints)

As Bahá'ís, we know that Almighty God is: "...in truth...the Mighty, the All-Knowing" (LONG OBLIGATORY PRAYER)

Nobody in the Universe can reveal anything to Him. As "the all-Knowing", He cannot receive a Revelation. Nobody can deny Him knowledge or hold back from Him any facts or deceive Him.

Anyone who can receive a Revelation, therefore, is not God, since God cannot receive a Revelation. The Lord Christ taught that He would return to the same glory which He had before He came to Earth. After His ascension, having returned to that full glory which He had before, Holy Scripture informs us that He received a Revelation. Therefore He is not God. God cannot receive a Revelation:

"A Revelation by Jesus Christ, which God gave Him..." (Revelation1:1, Holy Bible)

Yes, as Bahá'ís, we know that the teaching that the Lord Christ is not Almighty God is not a "frightful sacrilege", but rather it is truth.

History is repeating itself. Shoghi Effendi, the first of our Bahá'í Guardians taught that the Guardianship of the Bahá'í continues by power of the "hereditary principle" of the Bahá'í Faith, which generates a succession of Guardians throughout this Millennium, which Millennium recently commenced.

Just as Arius approached Catholics 1700 years ago attempting to assist them to see the error of their Trinity doctrine, Faithful Bahá'ís during the past 50+ years since the death of the first of our Guardians, Shoghi Effendi, in 1957, have been attempting to assist members of the large body of Bahá'ís to see the error of their rejection of Shoghi Effendi's teaching that the Guardianship of the Bahá'í Faith continues throughout this Millennium.

The actions of the heterodox Bahá'í leadership currently on Mt. Carmel/Wilmette clearly demonstrate that it considers the teaching efforts of Orthodox Bahá'ís related to the continuing Guardianship of the Bahá'í Faith to be 'frightful sacrilege'. Will that so-called Universal House of Justice currently on Mt. Carmel be permitted to continue rejecting the sane teaching of Shoghi Effendi and Orthodox Bahá'ís for the remaining many centuries of this Holy Bahá'í Dispensation?

The third Guardian's explanation of the prophetic Tablet of the Holy Mariner provides the answer to that question.

The website of the living Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith:

www.Bahai-Guardian.com

Posted at 08:46 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Since almost 1700 years ago, and continuing today...

By Guest Blogger
Hand of the Cause of God Ross Campbell

Constantly, during almost 1700 years, since the early part of fourth century of our Common Era and also continuing at our present time, the Catholic Church has claimed that those denying that the Lord Christ is Almighty God are perpetrating a "frightful sacrilege":

"Saint Athanasius was born in Alexandria, Egypt, towards the end of the third century, and from his youth was pious, learned, and deeply versed in the sacred writings. He left the paternal home to be raised by the bishop of Alexandria like a new Samuel in the Lord's temple, as befitted one whom God had chosen to be the champion and defender of His Church against the Arian heresy, which denied the Divinity of Christ.... the Catholic Patriarch of Constantinople, with Saint James of Nisibe, who was in Constantinople at that time, Saint Athanasius in France and the Catholics everywhere, had recourse to fasting and prayer, that God would avert from the Church the frightful sacrilege." (Little Pictorial Lives of the Saints)

As Bahá'ís, we know that Almighty God is: "...in truth...the Mighty, the All-Knowing" (LONG OBLIGATORY PRAYER)

Nobody in the Universe can reveal anything to Him. As "the all-Knowing", He cannot receive a Revelation. Nobody can deny Him knowledge or hold back from Him any facts or deceive Him.

Anyone who can receive a Revelation, therefore, is not God, since God cannot receive a Revelation. The Lord Christ taught that He would return to the same glory which He had before He came to Earth. After His ascension, having returned to that full glory which He had before, Holy Scripture informs us that He received a Revelation. Therefore He is not God. God cannot receive a Revelation:

"A Revelation by Jesus Christ, which God gave Him..." (Revelation1:1, Holy Bible)

Yes, as Bahá'ís, we know that the teaching that the Lord Christ is not Almighty God is not a "frightful sacrilege", but rather it is truth.

History is repeating itself. Shoghi Effendi, the first of our Bahá'í Guardians taught that the Guardianship of the Bahá'í continues by power of the "hereditary principle" of the Bahá'í Faith, which generates a succession of Guardians throughout this Millennium, which Millennium recently commenced.

Just as Arius approached Catholics 1700 years ago attempting to assist them to see the error of their Trinity doctrine, Faithful Bahá'ís during the past 50+ years since the death of the first of our Guardians, Shoghi Effendi, in 1957, have been attempting to assist members of the large body of Bahá'ís to see the error of their rejection of Shoghi Effendi's teaching that the Guardianship of the Bahá'í Faith continues throughout this Millennium.

The actions of the heterodox Bahá'í leadership currently on Mt. Carmel/Wilmette clearly demonstrate that it considers the teaching efforts of Orthodox Bahá'ís related to the continuing Guardianship of the Bahá'í Faith to be 'frightful sacrilege'. Will that so-called Universal House of Justice currently on Mt. Carmel be permitted to continue rejecting the sane teaching of Shoghi Effendi and Orthodox Bahá'ís for the remaining many centuries of this Holy Bahá'í Dispensation?

The third Guardian's explanation of the prophetic Tablet of the Holy Mariner provides the answer to that question.

The website of the living Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith:

www.Bahai-Guardian.com

Posted at 08:46 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The forgotten promise found in Isaiah 9

"For to us a child is born, to us a son is given; and the government will be upon His shoulder."

All Bahá'ís believe that this quotation from the Book of Isaiah refers to Bahá'u'llah and that the promise that in this "Day of God" the government of the world "will be upon His shoulder," shall be fulfilled when the World Order of Bahá'u'llah is ultimately established in all of its perfection and glory.

This promise has been forgotten, following the passing of Shoghi Effendi, when twenty-six of the twenty-seven Hands of the Cause, who, ignoring the fact that Shoghi Effendi had been enjoined by the provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, to appoint his successor "in his own life-time," looked for a will and testament making this appointment, and upon not finding such a conventional testamentary document, immediately and tragicsally lost faith in the Covenant of Bahá'u'llah and in the immortality of the divinely-conceived and sacred "Child of the Covenant" --the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá-- that clearly provides for a succession of Guardians as long as the Dispensation of Bahá'u'llah endures.

Joel B. Marangella
READ ARTICLE

Posted at 06:18 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The forgotten promise found in Isaiah 9

"For to us a child is born, to us a son is given; and the government will be upon His shoulder."

All Bahá'ís believe that this quotation from the Book of Isaiah refers to Bahá'u'llah and that the promise that in this "Day of God" the government of the world "will be upon His shoulder," shall be fulfilled when the World Order of Bahá'u'llah is ultimately established in all of its perfection and glory.

This promise has been forgotten, following the passing of Shoghi Effendi, when twenty-six of the twenty-seven Hands of the Cause, who, ignoring the fact that Shoghi Effendi had been enjoined by the provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, to appoint his successor "in his own life-time," looked for a will and testament making this appointment, and upon not finding such a conventional testamentary document, immediately and tragicsally lost faith in the Covenant of Bahá'u'llah and in the immortality of the divinely-conceived and sacred "Child of the Covenant" --the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá-- that clearly provides for a succession of Guardians as long as the Dispensation of Bahá'u'llah endures.

Joel B. Marangella
READ ARTICLE

Posted at 06:18 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The Guardianship: an Institution of this world

These Bahá'ís [the misled who believe there is no living Guardian] have never been informed, of course, of Gayle Woolson's Haifa Notes, (Feb.16-25,1956). Gayle was a renowned pioneer to Latin America and member of the first Regional Bahá'í Assembly of South America, whose outstanding teaching successes in several countries of Latin America during the first Seven Year Plan were frequently reported in the United States Bahá'í News at the time. In her notes she reported that Shoghi Effendi was queried by a fellow-pilgrim about a son and he had replied: "EVERYTHING THAT IS WRITTEN IN THE WILL AND TESTAMENT WILL BE FULFILLED. THE BAHÁ'ÍS MUST NOT BE ANXIOUS ABOUT THIS."

Moreover, these new Bahá'ís would certainly also have no knowledge of the highly significant promise enshrined in 'Abdu'l-Bahá's Tablet to Mason Remey, as recorded in the "Star of the West" (Vol. V, No. 19, March 2, 1915) that was fulfilled exactly 36 years later on the date of March 2, 1951.That promise was that: "ERE LONG, THY LORD SHALL MAKE THEE A SIGN OF GUIDANCE AMONG MANKIND." It was on March 2, 1951 that Shoghi Effendi identified Mason Remey in a message to the Bahá'í world, as the President of the International Bahá'í Council, whose establishment "at long last" as "the first embryonic International Institution" he had proclaimed two months earlier on 9 January 1951, and he had extolled as an "historic decision marking the most significant milestone in the evolution of the Administrative Order of the Faith of Bahá'u'lláh" since its inception thirty years earlier upon the Ascension of 'Abdu'l-Bahá and had acclaimed as an event "which history will acclaim as the greatest event shedding luster upon the second epoch of the Formative Age of the Bahá'í Dispensation . . . ranking second only to the glorious immortal events associated with the Ministries of the Three Central Figures of the Faith."

It should be glaringly obvious from the foregoing discussion that the Guardianship of the Cause of God is unquestionably an institution of this world and that this essential and indispensable institution was therefore certainly not taken by Shoghi Effendi to the next world nor was it an institution that was meant to come to a premature end upon the passing of Shoghi Effendi, only thirty-six years following the inception of the Bahá'í Administrative Order.

Joel B. Marangella
Read Article

Posted at 08:41 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The Guardianship: an Institution of this world

These Bahá'ís [the misled who believe there is no living Guardian] have never been informed, of course, of Gayle Woolson's Haifa Notes, (Feb.16-25,1956). Gayle was a renowned pioneer to Latin America and member of the first Regional Bahá'í Assembly of South America, whose outstanding teaching successes in several countries of Latin America during the first Seven Year Plan were frequently reported in the United States Bahá'í News at the time. In her notes she reported that Shoghi Effendi was queried by a fellow-pilgrim about a son and he had replied: "EVERYTHING THAT IS WRITTEN IN THE WILL AND TESTAMENT WILL BE FULFILLED. THE BAHÁ'ÍS MUST NOT BE ANXIOUS ABOUT THIS."

Moreover, these new Bahá'ís would certainly also have no knowledge of the highly significant promise enshrined in 'Abdu'l-Bahá's Tablet to Mason Remey, as recorded in the "Star of the West" (Vol. V, No. 19, March 2, 1915) that was fulfilled exactly 36 years later on the date of March 2, 1951.That promise was that: "ERE LONG, THY LORD SHALL MAKE THEE A SIGN OF GUIDANCE AMONG MANKIND." It was on March 2, 1951 that Shoghi Effendi identified Mason Remey in a message to the Bahá'í world, as the President of the International Bahá'í Council, whose establishment "at long last" as "the first embryonic International Institution" he had proclaimed two months earlier on 9 January 1951, and he had extolled as an "historic decision marking the most significant milestone in the evolution of the Administrative Order of the Faith of Bahá'u'lláh" since its inception thirty years earlier upon the Ascension of 'Abdu'l-Bahá and had acclaimed as an event "which history will acclaim as the greatest event shedding luster upon the second epoch of the Formative Age of the Bahá'í Dispensation . . . ranking second only to the glorious immortal events associated with the Ministries of the Three Central Figures of the Faith."

It should be glaringly obvious from the foregoing discussion that the Guardianship of the Cause of God is unquestionably an institution of this world and that this essential and indispensable institution was therefore certainly not taken by Shoghi Effendi to the next world nor was it an institution that was meant to come to a premature end upon the passing of Shoghi Effendi, only thirty-six years following the inception of the Bahá'í Administrative Order.

Joel B. Marangella
Read Article

Posted at 08:41 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

...in defiance of and undeniably contrary to "God's immutable Purpose"

The now patently illegitimate headless organization in Haifa, functioning as successor to the so-called Universal House of Justice, first elected in 1963 and continuing to function without the Guardian presiding as its "sacred head", would do well to heed the following Words of Bahá'u'lláh and realize that the corrupted administrative system that has been shamelessly substituted for the divinely-conceived, sacred and immutable System delineated by 'Abdu'l-Bahá in His Will and Testament, is in defiance of and undeniably contrary to "God's immutable Purpose" and is therefore inevitably doomed to ultimate extinction.

"NAUGHT CAN RESIST THY WILL, NOR FRUSTRATE WHAT THOU HAST PURPOSED BY THY POWER."

Detailed information as to the manner in which Shoghi Effendi faithfully provided for the continuation of the Guardianship in complete fidelity to the provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá may be found in the following web site: http://www.Bahai-Guardian.com

Joel B. Marangella
http://bahai-guardian.com/prevail.html

Posted at 09:34 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

...in defiance of and undeniably contrary to "God's immutable Purpose"

The now patently illegitimate headless organization in Haifa, functioning as successor to the so-called Universal House of Justice, first elected in 1963 and continuing to function without the Guardian presiding as its "sacred head", would do well to heed the following Words of Bahá'u'lláh and realize that the corrupted administrative system that has been shamelessly substituted for the divinely-conceived, sacred and immutable System delineated by 'Abdu'l-Bahá in His Will and Testament, is in defiance of and undeniably contrary to "God's immutable Purpose" and is therefore inevitably doomed to ultimate extinction.

"NAUGHT CAN RESIST THY WILL, NOR FRUSTRATE WHAT THOU HAST PURPOSED BY THY POWER."

Detailed information as to the manner in which Shoghi Effendi faithfully provided for the continuation of the Guardianship in complete fidelity to the provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá may be found in the following web site: http://www.Bahai-Guardian.com

Joel B. Marangella
http://bahai-guardian.com/prevail.html

Posted at 09:34 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The true Faith has the Guardian at its head

There is an apparent ambiguity: does "branch" refer only to the Sons of Bahá'u'lláh, or to any of the members of His family, or does is it refer spiritually to any faithful believer whom the Guardian is divinely guided to appoint as his successor (the one in which is found "the fear of God, knowledge, wisdom and learning")?

The Orthodox Bahá'ís assert that the passage is not ambiguous or open to interpretation but the Will clearly allows the Guardian to appoint a successor of his choosing in any manner of his choosing as long as it occurs during his lifetime.

Bahá'u'lláh says: "Know thou that the passages that We have called "ambiguous" appear as such only in the eyes of them that have failed to soar above the horizon of guidance and to reach the heights of knowledge in the retreats of grace. For otherwise, unto them that have recognized the Repositories of divine Revelation and beheld through His inspiration the mysteries of divine authority, all the verses of God are perspicuous and all His allusions are clear. Such men discern the inner mysteries that have been clothed in the garment of words as clearly as ye perceive the heat of the sun or the wetness of water, nay even more distinctly. Immeasurably exalted is God above our praise of His loved ones, and beyond their praise of Him!" Gems of Divine Mysteries, p. 25

The true Faith has the Guardian at its head.

Jeffrey
READ ARTICLE

Posted at 07:41 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

...they incredulously assigned the rights and functions of the Guardianship

"...they hastily tragically concluded that the Guardianship of the Cause of God had come to a premature end only 36 years after the inception of the Administrative Order in November, 1921 upon the Ascension of 'Abdu'l-Bahá. They then took it upon themselves to appoint an illegitimate body from their number comprised of nine Hands, to which they gave the title: "Custodians of the Bahá'í World Faith" and to which they incredulously assigned the rights and functions of the Guardianship. This now illicitly formed supreme body remained unaware and ignorant of the continuing Guardianship, as well, and stubbornly refused, despite the many insistent appeals, as subsequently reported by one of its members who had made them, to reconsider the tragic conclusion and decision reached by the Hands in their first conclave that the Guardianship had come to an end. This body, with its seat in Haifa reigned over the Faith for some six years until its demise and replacement with the so-called Universal House of Justice, elected during Ridván,1963. This equally illicitly formed body and its successor elected bodies have also stubbornly refused to examine the facts, that have been presented by the believers under the Guardianship, that were obviously overlooked by the Hands, immediately following the passing of Shoghi Effendi, which undeniably provide evidence that he faithfully and unquestionably insured the continuation of the Guardianship. In turn, this body has influenced the great mass of believers to avoid any contact with those believers who have accepted the living Guardian of the Faith or to read any of the material they have published, using the diabolic argument that in doing so they would be consorting with those believers whom they have labeled, under their distorted interpretation, as Covenant-breakers, although these believers, unlike themselves, continue to faithfully adhere to every clause of the sacred and immutable provisions of the divinely-conceived Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá.

Joel B. Marangella
Read Article

Posted at 07:51 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

...they incredulously assigned the rights and functions of the Guardianship

"...they hastily tragically concluded that the Guardianship of the Cause of God had come to a premature end only 36 years after the inception of the Administrative Order in November, 1921 upon the Ascension of 'Abdu'l-Bahá. They then took it upon themselves to appoint an illegitimate body from their number comprised of nine Hands, to which they gave the title: "Custodians of the Bahá'í World Faith" and to which they incredulously assigned the rights and functions of the Guardianship. This now illicitly formed supreme body remained unaware and ignorant of the continuing Guardianship, as well, and stubbornly refused, despite the many insistent appeals, as subsequently reported by one of its members who had made them, to reconsider the tragic conclusion and decision reached by the Hands in their first conclave that the Guardianship had come to an end. This body, with its seat in Haifa reigned over the Faith for some six years until its demise and replacement with the so-called Universal House of Justice, elected during Ridván,1963. This equally illicitly formed body and its successor elected bodies have also stubbornly refused to examine the facts, that have been presented by the believers under the Guardianship, that were obviously overlooked by the Hands, immediately following the passing of Shoghi Effendi, which undeniably provide evidence that he faithfully and unquestionably insured the continuation of the Guardianship. In turn, this body has influenced the great mass of believers to avoid any contact with those believers who have accepted the living Guardian of the Faith or to read any of the material they have published, using the diabolic argument that in doing so they would be consorting with those believers whom they have labeled, under their distorted interpretation, as Covenant-breakers, although these believers, unlike themselves, continue to faithfully adhere to every clause of the sacred and immutable provisions of the divinely-conceived Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá.

Joel B. Marangella
Read Article

Posted at 07:51 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

True to his word....

"Everything that is written in the Will and Testament [of 'Abdu'l-Bahá] will be fulfilled. The Bahá'ís must not be anxious about this."

The above quoted words of Shoghi Effendi are extracted from the Haifa Notes of Gayle Woolson, (Feb. 16-25, 1956) renowned pioneer to Latin America whose outstandingly successful teaching efforts in several countries throughout Latin America were chronicled at the time in many issues of the Bahá'í Newsletter of the United States. She was subsequently elected to the first Regional Spiritual Assembly of South America. Her credibility is therefore of the highest order.

True to his word, Shoghi Effendi unquestionably provided for the continuation of the Guardianship.

Joel B. Marangella
READ ARTICLE

Posted at 08:44 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

True to his word....

"Everything that is written in the Will and Testament [of 'Abdu'l-Bahá] will be fulfilled. The Bahá'ís must not be anxious about this."

The above quoted words of Shoghi Effendi are extracted from the Haifa Notes of Gayle Woolson, (Feb. 16-25, 1956) renowned pioneer to Latin America whose outstandingly successful teaching efforts in several countries throughout Latin America were chronicled at the time in many issues of the Bahá'í Newsletter of the United States. She was subsequently elected to the first Regional Spiritual Assembly of South America. Her credibility is therefore of the highest order.

True to his word, Shoghi Effendi unquestionably provided for the continuation of the Guardianship.

Joel B. Marangella
READ ARTICLE

Posted at 08:44 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Wrong on all counts

"A message addressed to those Bahá'ís who maintain the following beliefs:"

1. That the Guardianship of the Faith ended with the passing of Shoghi Effendi because he was restricted under the terms of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá to the appointment of an Aghsán as his successor --- WRONG.

2. The choice of "another branch" to be his successor, in the event that the Guardian does not have a son worthy of inheriting the Guardianship, refers to an Aghsán --- WRONG.

3. That the term Aghsán referred to all of the male relatives of Bahá'u'lláh --- WRONG.

4. That Shoghi Effendi died unexpectedly --- WRONG.

5. That Shoghi Effendi made no provision for a successor --- WRONG.

READ ARTICLE

Joel B. Marangella

Posted at 09:05 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Wrong on all counts

"A message addressed to those Bahá'ís who maintain the following beliefs:"

1. That the Guardianship of the Faith ended with the passing of Shoghi Effendi because he was restricted under the terms of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá to the appointment of an Aghsán as his successor --- WRONG.

2. The choice of "another branch" to be his successor, in the event that the Guardian does not have a son worthy of inheriting the Guardianship, refers to an Aghsán --- WRONG.

3. That the term Aghsán referred to all of the male relatives of Bahá'u'lláh --- WRONG.

4. That Shoghi Effendi died unexpectedly --- WRONG.

5. That Shoghi Effendi made no provision for a successor --- WRONG.

READ ARTICLE

Joel B. Marangella

Posted at 09:05 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

a giant leap of faith

To believe that the present Universal House of Justice is infallible requires a giant leap of faith. To follow the present UHJ in Haifa one must first leap over many clauses in 'Abdu'l-Baha's Will and Testament, and then leap over the prescribed path to the UHJ established by Shoghi Effendi. The establishment of the Baha'i Administrative Order may not be likened to a children's game of leap frog. This is the era of the maturing of the human race, and we are required to act like adults in our activities.

By David Maxwell

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 08:12 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

a giant leap of faith

To believe that the present Universal House of Justice is infallible requires a giant leap of faith. To follow the present UHJ in Haifa one must first leap over many clauses in 'Abdu'l-Baha's Will and Testament, and then leap over the prescribed path to the UHJ established by Shoghi Effendi. The establishment of the Baha'i Administrative Order may not be likened to a children's game of leap frog. This is the era of the maturing of the human race, and we are required to act like adults in our activities.

By David Maxwell

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 08:12 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

a prime example of the wicked intentions of the authors

The following insidious expression found on page 54 of The Ruhi manuscript, The Covenant, Unit 2, is a prime example of the wicked intentions of the authors of the Ruhi manuscript, mentioned above:

“The Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá establishes the institution of the Guardianship. It explicitly names Shoghi Effendi as the Guardian, allows for the possibility of other Guardians succeeding him,…”

Would it be any more deceitful for someone to write:

‘Constitutional Law in the United States of America allows for the possibility of democratic elections of Presidents.’?

I doubt that anyone has ever written a more deceptive and inappropriate statement since the founding of the American nation, not even any elementary school student writing an assignment. Constitutional Law in the United States REQUIRES democratic elections of Presidents.

Similarly, all of the sacred instructions and institutions delineated by `Abdu'l-Bahá in His Will and Testament, and also all of the official statements written by the first Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith, Shoghi Effendi, use imperatives concerning the Guardianship and future Guardians of the Bahá'í Faith, and include prefatory commands such as these: “It is incumbent,” and “must”, to the extent that there is no excuse for any woman or man claiming to be Bahá'í to endorse or support the following ridiculous and utterly false statement by the Ruhi manuscript authors that ‘Abdu’l-Baha’s Will allows only for the POSSIBILITY of future Guardians after Shoghi Effendi:“The Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá…allows for the possibility of other Guardians succeeding him.…”

By Ross Campbell

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 07:10 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

a steward is never captain of a ship

Some eleven months following the establishment of the International Bahá'í Council, and significantly one month prior to his appointment of the first contingent of twelve living Hands of the Cause, Shoghi Effendi addressed a letter to the Bahá'í world, under date of 23 November 1951 in which he would refer to the International Bahá'í Council as "The Central Body," an unfamiliar term not noted elsewhere in either his prior or later writings or messages, the apparent reason for which will be discussed in due course below. This letter also most importantly confirmed the ominous prediction of his early passing, although again a prediction that had been disguised in such a way that he knew it would remain unperceived by the believers at the time. This letter was subsequently incorporated in a pamphlet published in January 1952 by the National Spiritual Assembly of the United States under the title of "World Order Unfolds."

Shoghi Effendi had not yet completed the erection of the international institutions of the Faith at the World Center. Therefore, on 24 December 1951, he appointed the first contingent of twelve Hands of the Cause that, incidentally, included Mason Remey. This contingent would be followed by his appointment of successive contingents bringing the total to twenty-seven, with the final contingent appointed in his last message to the Bahá'í world in October 1957, a month prior to his passing. It was in this last message that he referred to the Hands of the Cause for the only time as "The Chief Stewards of the embryonic World Commonwealth of Bahá'u'lláh," an appellation that they would erroneously interpret following the passing of Shoghi Effendi to confer upon them a primacy that was not theirs (inexcusably oblivious of the fact that a steward is never captain of a ship).

By Joel B. Marangella

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 08:17 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

And how tragic it is....

And how tragic it is that the vast majority of the Bahá'í's today have been led far astray from the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh by the leaders that they follow and possess no knowledge of the facts briefly discussed above, and consequently have accepted a seriously flawed, man-made and flagrantly corrupted so-called Bahá'í administrative order illegitimately and ignominiously set up by the heterodox organization, following the passing of Shoghi Effendi, as a hideously deformed and misguided substitute for the divinely-conceived System bequeathed to us by the "Center of the Covenant" 'Abdu'l-Bahá.

Joel B. Marangella

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 11:28 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

...and whose members ARE NOT "submissive" to a living Guardian as instructed by the Master

...it became necessary for the headless Heterodox UHJ to infringe on the "sacred and prescribed" domain of the Guardianship of the Bahá'í Faith by developing a substitute and parallel institution, their Board of Continental Counsellors, whose members a living Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith DID NOT "appoint" as instructed infallibly by the Master, and whose members ARE NOT "submissive" to a living Guardian as instructed by the Master, and whose members a living Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith DOES NOT "continually urge", as infallibly instructed by the Master in His sacred and immutable Will and Testament.

Ross Campbell
READ ARTICLE

Posted at 07:02 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

...and whose members ARE NOT "submissive" to a living Guardian as instructed by the Master

...it became necessary for the headless Heterodox UHJ to infringe on the "sacred and prescribed" domain of the Guardianship of the Bahá'í Faith by developing a substitute and parallel institution, their Board of Continental Counsellors, whose members a living Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith DID NOT "appoint" as instructed infallibly by the Master, and whose members ARE NOT "submissive" to a living Guardian as instructed by the Master, and whose members a living Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith DOES NOT "continually urge", as infallibly instructed by the Master in His sacred and immutable Will and Testament.

Ross Campbell
READ ARTICLE

Posted at 07:02 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

another edifice will gradually be erected

Shoghi Effendi:

"In the neighbourhood of these two stately edifices, and two mighty Institutions (ie. the Archives Building and the edifice for the House of Justice), another edifice will gradually be erected which will be the seat of the Guardianship, the centre which will interpret, expound and prepare commentaries on explicitly revealed laws, and will reinforce and supplement the legislative body."
(Shoghi Effendi, letter in Persian to the Bahá'ís of the East, quoted on page 323 of The Bahá'í World, 1976-1979)

When Shoghi Effendi, the first Bahá'í Guardian, wrote those words in 1954, less than three years before his death, would any Bahá'í believer have even thought of saying that Shoghi Effendi was wrong, in error, that 'there is no need for the Guardianship to "reinforce and supplement the legislative body" ', and 'there is no need for the Guardianship to "interpret, expound and prepare commentaries on explicitly revealed laws" ', and that 'we can effectively and successfully bring God's Kingdom to Earth ourselves without anyone to interpret the Most Holy Book of Laws or the Master's Charter of the New world Order.'

By Hand of the Cause of God Ross Campbell

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 07:36 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

another edifice will gradually be erected

Shoghi Effendi:

"In the neighbourhood of these two stately edifices, and two mighty Institutions (ie. the Archives Building and the edifice for the House of Justice), another edifice will gradually be erected which will be the seat of the Guardianship, the centre which will interpret, expound and prepare commentaries on explicitly revealed laws, and will reinforce and supplement the legislative body."
(Shoghi Effendi, letter in Persian to the Bahá'ís of the East, quoted on page 323 of The Bahá'í World, 1976-1979)

When Shoghi Effendi, the first Bahá'í Guardian, wrote those words in 1954, less than three years before his death, would any Bahá'í believer have even thought of saying that Shoghi Effendi was wrong, in error, that 'there is no need for the Guardianship to "reinforce and supplement the legislative body" ', and 'there is no need for the Guardianship to "interpret, expound and prepare commentaries on explicitly revealed laws" ', and that 'we can effectively and successfully bring God's Kingdom to Earth ourselves without anyone to interpret the Most Holy Book of Laws or the Master's Charter of the New world Order.'

By Hand of the Cause of God Ross Campbell

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 07:36 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Did Shoghi Effendi foresee his early passing?

UNEQUIVOCALLY AND UNDENIABLY YES!

The question as to whether Shoghi Effendi had foreseen his early passing is asked by those Bahá'ís who, in their lack of faith in the indestructibility of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh and the immutability of the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá, have inexcusably never taken the time or made the effort to search for an affirmative answer, which, otherwise, they would have been certain they would find, if they were to undertake a thorough review of the actions taken by Shoghi Effendi and particularly of the historic messages he had dispatched to the Bahá'í World during the latter years of his ministry. Had they retained an unwavering faith in the Covenant and complete assurance that Shoghi Effendi would have remained faithful to every clause of the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá, their earnest search would have been rewarded and they would have not only unquestionably and conclusively found a clear and undeniable answer to this question but in the process have discovered even more importantly the identity of his successor and realized that he had chosen to obscure his identity at the time for the very reason that he had known that his passing was imminent and that it was essential that this frightful prospect be veiled from the believers (and so well, as it tragically turned out, that, upon his passing, the Bahá'í World, not only failed to recognize his successor but came to incredibly believe that the Guardianship of the Cause of God had come to a premature end).

http://www.bahai-guardian.com/worldorder.html

On the other hand, their research need have gone no further than to read Shoghi Effendi's message, dated 23 November 1951, issued some eleven months following the issuance of his one and only Proclamation of 9 January of the same year in which he had proclaimed in glowing and unprecedented terms his "historic decision marking the most significant milestone in the evolution of the Administrative Order" in constituting "at long last" the International Bahá'í Council -- "this first embryonic International Institution" -- (an initial and provisional designation in his projected four-fold stage of evolution of this embryonic Universal House of Justice).

He had then subsequently and significantly identified, in his message of 2 March 1951, the identity of the permanent President thereof, the eminently distinguished believer, Mason Remey, whose exemplary devotion to the Covenant, and outstanding and unique record of manifold and unsurpassed services to the Cause of God for more than half a century had been repeatedly eulogized by `Abdu'l-Bahá during His ministry (as recorded and published at the time in The Star of the West).

http://www.bahai-guardian.com/eulogy.html

All Bahá'ís are certainly still familiar with the fact that Shoghi Effendi had initiated a Ten Year Global Crusade that took place between Ridvan 1953 and Ridvan 1963 in implementation of the Tablets of the Divine Plan of 'Abdu'l-Baha that involved establishment of the Faith throughout all virgin areas of the world and in which he had assigned specific goals for each of the existing National Spiritual Assemblies to achieve. Whereas the opening years of this Crusade would be carried out under the direction of Shoghi Effendi, himself, his message of 23 November 1951, cited above, significantly stated that this "Master Plan designed by 'Abdu'l-Baha will embrace all the continents of the earth, and will bring the Central body [i.e. the International Bahá'í Council] directing these widely ramified operations into direct contact with all the National Assemblies of the Bahá'í world . . . " now, for the first time, an active role for this supreme body that had been previously retained, of necessity, in an inactively functioning status during the concluding years of Shoghi Effendi's ministry, for the President of the Universal House of Justice, under the provisions of the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá, even in its initial embryonic form, could be none other than the second Guardian-to-be (for as `Abdu'l-Bahá has affirmed: "the embryo possesses from the first all perfections . . . in one word, all the powers . . . " (BWF p.313). With the International Bahá'í Council now performing this projected active role, Mason Remey would, as the President--"the sacred head"-- of this embryonic Universal House of Justice appointed by Shoghi Effendi, automatically, unquestionably and rightfully inherit the Guardianship. Shoghi Effendi, therefore had clearly prophesied that his passing would take place during the period of the Ten Year Global Crusade which, in fact, it did at midpoint, on 4 November 1957.

The further fact that in Shoghi Effendi's appointment of a believer who was almost a quarter of a century older than himself, and notwithstanding was destined to become his successor is further definite evidence that he knew that his passing was near at hand.

Joel Bray Marangella

Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith

December 2008

Posted at 08:12 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Did Shoghi Effendi foresee his early passing?

UNEQUIVOCALLY AND UNDENIABLY YES!

The question as to whether Shoghi Effendi had foreseen his early passing is asked by those Bahá'ís who, in their lack of faith in the indestructibility of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh and the immutability of the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá, have inexcusably never taken the time or made the effort to search for an affirmative answer, which, otherwise, they would have been certain they would find, if they were to undertake a thorough review of the actions taken by Shoghi Effendi and particularly of the historic messages he had dispatched to the Bahá'í World during the latter years of his ministry. Had they retained an unwavering faith in the Covenant and complete assurance that Shoghi Effendi would have remained faithful to every clause of the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá, their earnest search would have been rewarded and they would have not only unquestionably and conclusively found a clear and undeniable answer to this question but in the process have discovered even more importantly the identity of his successor and realized that he had chosen to obscure his identity at the time for the very reason that he had known that his passing was imminent and that it was essential that this frightful prospect be veiled from the believers (and so well, as it tragically turned out, that, upon his passing, the Bahá'í World, not only failed to recognize his successor but came to incredibly believe that the Guardianship of the Cause of God had come to a premature end).

http://www.bahai-guardian.com/worldorder.html

On the other hand, their research need have gone no further than to read Shoghi Effendi's message, dated 23 November 1951, issued some eleven months following the issuance of his one and only Proclamation of 9 January of the same year in which he had proclaimed in glowing and unprecedented terms his "historic decision marking the most significant milestone in the evolution of the Administrative Order" in constituting "at long last" the International Bahá'í Council -- "this first embryonic International Institution" -- (an initial and provisional designation in his projected four-fold stage of evolution of this embryonic Universal House of Justice).

He had then subsequently and significantly identified, in his message of 2 March 1951, the identity of the permanent President thereof, the eminently distinguished believer, Mason Remey, whose exemplary devotion to the Covenant, and outstanding and unique record of manifold and unsurpassed services to the Cause of God for more than half a century had been repeatedly eulogized by `Abdu'l-Bahá during His ministry (as recorded and published at the time in The Star of the West).

http://www.bahai-guardian.com/eulogy.html

All Bahá'ís are certainly still familiar with the fact that Shoghi Effendi had initiated a Ten Year Global Crusade that took place between Ridvan 1953 and Ridvan 1963 in implementation of the Tablets of the Divine Plan of 'Abdu'l-Baha that involved establishment of the Faith throughout all virgin areas of the world and in which he had assigned specific goals for each of the existing National Spiritual Assemblies to achieve. Whereas the opening years of this Crusade would be carried out under the direction of Shoghi Effendi, himself, his message of 23 November 1951, cited above, significantly stated that this "Master Plan designed by 'Abdu'l-Baha will embrace all the continents of the earth, and will bring the Central body [i.e. the International Bahá'í Council] directing these widely ramified operations into direct contact with all the National Assemblies of the Bahá'í world . . . " now, for the first time, an active role for this supreme body that had been previously retained, of necessity, in an inactively functioning status during the concluding years of Shoghi Effendi's ministry, for the President of the Universal House of Justice, under the provisions of the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá, even in its initial embryonic form, could be none other than the second Guardian-to-be (for as `Abdu'l-Bahá has affirmed: "the embryo possesses from the first all perfections . . . in one word, all the powers . . . " (BWF p.313). With the International Bahá'í Council now performing this projected active role, Mason Remey would, as the President--"the sacred head"-- of this embryonic Universal House of Justice appointed by Shoghi Effendi, automatically, unquestionably and rightfully inherit the Guardianship. Shoghi Effendi, therefore had clearly prophesied that his passing would take place during the period of the Ten Year Global Crusade which, in fact, it did at midpoint, on 4 November 1957.

The further fact that in Shoghi Effendi's appointment of a believer who was almost a quarter of a century older than himself, and notwithstanding was destined to become his successor is further definite evidence that he knew that his passing was near at hand.

Joel Bray Marangella

Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith

December 2008

Posted at 08:12 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

how spiritually blind they remain

As Shoghi Effendi has declared that the bedrock on which the Bahá'í Administrative Order is founded is "God's immutable Purpose," how much longer do the current leaders of the sans-Guardian, corrupted, man-made and flawed administrative system which they have substituted for the divinely-conceived Order bequeathed to us by 'Abdu'l-Bahá believe that they can prevail against and continue to defy God's immutable Purpose for this day. And how much longer will the mighty hand of God's retribution be stayed because of their continuing diabolical defilement of the Administrative Order of our Faith?

Indeed, how spiritually blind they remain in their persistent failure to realize, that they have ignominiously betrayed Shoghi Effendi, and have shamelessly repudiated the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá. While these leaders, in their glaring perversity, falsely accuse those faithful Bahá'ís who believe that every phrase of the Will and Testament is sacrosanct and immutable, of being Covenant-breakers, it is they, who have nefariously consigned the Guardianship of the Cause of God to oblivion, that are obviously the real Covenant-breakers and transparently guilty of the most flagrant and appalling violation of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh in the history of our precious Faith.

Joel B. Marangella

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 07:13 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

how spiritually blind they remain

As Shoghi Effendi has declared that the bedrock on which the Bahá'í Administrative Order is founded is "God's immutable Purpose," how much longer do the current leaders of the sans-Guardian, corrupted, man-made and flawed administrative system which they have substituted for the divinely-conceived Order bequeathed to us by 'Abdu'l-Bahá believe that they can prevail against and continue to defy God's immutable Purpose for this day. And how much longer will the mighty hand of God's retribution be stayed because of their continuing diabolical defilement of the Administrative Order of our Faith?

Indeed, how spiritually blind they remain in their persistent failure to realize, that they have ignominiously betrayed Shoghi Effendi, and have shamelessly repudiated the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá. While these leaders, in their glaring perversity, falsely accuse those faithful Bahá'ís who believe that every phrase of the Will and Testament is sacrosanct and immutable, of being Covenant-breakers, it is they, who have nefariously consigned the Guardianship of the Cause of God to oblivion, that are obviously the real Covenant-breakers and transparently guilty of the most flagrant and appalling violation of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh in the history of our precious Faith.

Joel B. Marangella

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 07:13 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

“the embryo possesses from the first all perfections . . . "

More than two years prior to the establishment of the International Bahá’í Council, Shoghi Effendi had addressed a letter to the United Nations Special Palestine Committee in July 1947 and, in discussing the Bahá’í Administrative Order, he had referred to his plans to establish this International Council in stating that: “the foundations are now being laid by the national and local councils” and are “paving the way for the constitution of the World Council, to be designated as the Universal House of Justice, which, in conjunction with me, as its appointed Head and the authorized interpreter of the Bahá’í teachings, must coordinate and direct the affairs of the Bahá’í community . . .”

‘Abdu’l-Bahá has clearly pointed out that “the embryo possesses from the first all perfections . . . in one word, all the powers–but they are not visible, and become so only by degrees.” (p. 313, BWF) Therefore, it should be crystal clear and undeniable that these two embryonic institutions and “supreme organs” of the Bahá’í Administrative Order, that had, “at long last,” been erected by Shoghi Effendi, during the closing years of his ministry, were not provisional, transitory or incomplete institutions that would later be replaced, but were unquestionably completely whole, and perfect institutions “from the first” that he had established in faithful compliance with the terms of the sacred and immutable provisions of the Will and Testament of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá. Only the functions of these two “supreme organs” would be progressively and appropriately expanded during the course of their future development. As an example, Shoghi Effendi, in his message of 25 April 1951, stated that the International Bahá’í Council would become, in its second stage of development, an International Bahá’í Court, a stage that he emphasized would be an “essential prelude to the institution of the Universal House of Justice.” This International Court would then exercise jurisdiction over “six national Bahá’í Courts in the chief cities of the Islamic East,” (Tihrán, Cairo, Baghdád, New Delhi, Karachi, Kabul) whose establishment, as stated in his message of 8 October 1952, would be one of the goals of the “decade-long, world-embracing Spiritual Crusade” that would commence at Ridván 1953.

Joel B. Marangella
READ ARTICLE

Posted at 07:05 AM | Permalink | Comments (0)

True Bahá'í

“the embryo possesses from the first all perfections . . . "

More than two years prior to the establishment of the International Bahá’í Council, Shoghi Effendi had addressed a letter to the United Nations Special Palestine Committee in July 1947 and, in discussing the Bahá’í Administrative Order, he had referred to his plans to establish this International Council in stating that: “the foundations are now being laid by the national and local councils” and are “paving the way for the constitution of the World Council, to be designated as the Universal House of Justice, which, in conjunction with me, as its appointed Head and the authorized interpreter of the Bahá’í teachings, must coordinate and direct the affairs of the Bahá’í community . . .”

‘Abdu’l-Bahá has clearly pointed out that “the embryo possesses from the first all perfections . . . in one word, all the powers–but they are not visible, and become so only by degrees.” (p. 313, BWF) Therefore, it should be crystal clear and undeniable that these two embryonic institutions and “supreme organs” of the Bahá’í Administrative Order, that had, “at long last,” been erected by Shoghi Effendi, during the closing years of his ministry, were not provisional, transitory or incomplete institutions that would later be replaced, but were unquestionably completely whole, and perfect institutions “from the first” that he had established in faithful compliance with the terms of the sacred and immutable provisions of the Will and Testament of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá. Only the functions of these two “supreme organs” would be progressively and appropriately expanded during the course of their future development. As an example, Shoghi Effendi, in his message of 25 April 1951, stated that the International Bahá’í Council would become, in its second stage of development, an International Bahá’í Court, a stage that he emphasized would be an “essential prelude to the institution of the Universal House of Justice.” This International Court would then exercise jurisdiction over “six national Bahá’í Courts in the chief cities of the Islamic East,” (Tihrán, Cairo, Baghdád, New Delhi, Karachi, Kabul) whose establishment, as stated in his message of 8 October 1952, would be one of the goals of the “decade-long, world-embracing Spiritual Crusade” that would commence at Ridván 1953.

Joel B. Marangella
READ ARTICLE

Posted at 07:05 AM | Permalink | Comments (0)

True Bahá'í

It is impossible...

It is impossible for any woman or man to accept Shoghi Effendi's Guardianship without accepting the Authority of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Baha', as clearly demonstrated by the first Guardian's written words:

"The Charter which called into being, outlined the features and set in motion the processes of, this Administrative Order is none other than the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, His greatest legacy to posterity, the brightest emanation of His mind and the mightiest instrument forged to insure the continuity of the three ages which constitute the component parts of His Father's Dispensation."

Ross Campbell

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 07:37 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

It is impossible...

It is impossible for any woman or man to accept Shoghi Effendi's Guardianship without accepting the Authority of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Baha', as clearly demonstrated by the first Guardian's written words:

"The Charter which called into being, outlined the features and set in motion the processes of, this Administrative Order is none other than the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, His greatest legacy to posterity, the brightest emanation of His mind and the mightiest instrument forged to insure the continuity of the three ages which constitute the component parts of His Father's Dispensation."

Ross Campbell

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 07:37 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

no spiritual "lustre"

The sans-Guardian UHJ certainly has no spiritual "lustre", because its members, neither individually nor as a group in session have any trace of power or authority to interpret Bahá'í Holy writ and Holy Text, and therefore that body shines no more spiritual light or lustre than any Christian church or other religious body on Earth.

The sans-Guardian UHJ collects money that it is not entitled to (Huqúqu'llah), as do many banks (instant electronic fines where no service is provided and no funds released from the bank,) but that shameful activity certainly sheds no "lustre" upon the "second epoch (of) Formative Age (of) Bahá'í Dispensation"

In what sense, then, could the sans-Guardian UHJ on Mt. Carmel be considered to be fulfilling what Shoghi Effendi foretold with the words: "... history will acclaim (as the) greatest event shedding lustre (upon) second epoch (of) Formative Age (of) Bahá'í Dispensation..."?

Spiritually, the heterodox Bahá'í UHJ currently on Mt. Carmel is indistinguishable from the many worldly religious and commercial organizations around the Earth.

By Ross Campbell

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 08:39 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

no spiritual "lustre"

The sans-Guardian UHJ certainly has no spiritual "lustre", because its members, neither individually nor as a group in session have any trace of power or authority to interpret Bahá'í Holy writ and Holy Text, and therefore that body shines no more spiritual light or lustre than any Christian church or other religious body on Earth.

The sans-Guardian UHJ collects money that it is not entitled to (Huqúqu'llah), as do many banks (instant electronic fines where no service is provided and no funds released from the bank,) but that shameful activity certainly sheds no "lustre" upon the "second epoch (of) Formative Age (of) Bahá'í Dispensation"

In what sense, then, could the sans-Guardian UHJ on Mt. Carmel be considered to be fulfilling what Shoghi Effendi foretold with the words: "... history will acclaim (as the) greatest event shedding lustre (upon) second epoch (of) Formative Age (of) Bahá'í Dispensation..."?

Spiritually, the heterodox Bahá'í UHJ currently on Mt. Carmel is indistinguishable from the many worldly religious and commercial organizations around the Earth.

By Ross Campbell

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 08:39 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

nothing more than a headless caricature

AN ILLEGITMATE NONDESCRIPT ADMINISTRATIVE BODY PRETENDING TO BE THE UNIVERSAL HOUSE OF JUSTICE OF THE BAHÁ'Í FAITH

And nothing more than a headless caricature of the divinely-conceived and immortal institution bequeathed to us by the "Center of the Covenant."

Certainly this body is not the Universal House of Justice delineated in the divinely-conceived, sacred and immutable provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, with "the Guardian of the Cause of God" presiding "as its sacred head and the distinguished member for life" and which, under its explicit terms, as the highest administrative Institution of the Faith, "enacteth all ordinances and regulations that are not to be found in the explicit Holy Text."

Certainly, in the permanent absence of the Guardian of the Cause of God, this body lacks the discretionary authority that he alone is granted, under the terms of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, to expel "any of the members" of the Universal House of Justice who may "commit a sin injurious to the common weal."

Certainly this is not the body in which the Guardian of the Faith, as its "sacred head" exercises the following essential and unique functions, as outlined by Shoghi Effendi in The Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh and in God Passes By:

* "The necessary guidance to define the sphere of the legislative action of its elected representatives."

* "The right "to insist upon a reconsideration by them of any enactment he conscientiously believes to conflict with the meaning and to depart from the spirit of Bahá'u'lláh's revealed utterances."

*""The right of exclusive interpretation of Bahá'í Holy Writ."

Joel B. Marangella

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 06:52 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

nothing more than a headless caricature

AN ILLEGITMATE NONDESCRIPT ADMINISTRATIVE BODY PRETENDING TO BE THE UNIVERSAL HOUSE OF JUSTICE OF THE BAHÁ'Í FAITH

And nothing more than a headless caricature of the divinely-conceived and immortal institution bequeathed to us by the "Center of the Covenant."

Certainly this body is not the Universal House of Justice delineated in the divinely-conceived, sacred and immutable provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, with "the Guardian of the Cause of God" presiding "as its sacred head and the distinguished member for life" and which, under its explicit terms, as the highest administrative Institution of the Faith, "enacteth all ordinances and regulations that are not to be found in the explicit Holy Text."

Certainly, in the permanent absence of the Guardian of the Cause of God, this body lacks the discretionary authority that he alone is granted, under the terms of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, to expel "any of the members" of the Universal House of Justice who may "commit a sin injurious to the common weal."

Certainly this is not the body in which the Guardian of the Faith, as its "sacred head" exercises the following essential and unique functions, as outlined by Shoghi Effendi in The Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh and in God Passes By:

* "The necessary guidance to define the sphere of the legislative action of its elected representatives."

* "The right "to insist upon a reconsideration by them of any enactment he conscientiously believes to conflict with the meaning and to depart from the spirit of Bahá'u'lláh's revealed utterances."

*""The right of exclusive interpretation of Bahá'í Holy Writ."

Joel B. Marangella

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 06:52 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

nothing more than a headless caricature

AN ILLEGITMATE NONDESCRIPT ADMINISTRATIVE BODY PRETENDING TO BE THE UNIVERSAL HOUSE OF JUSTICE OF THE BAHÁ'Í FAITH

And nothing more than a headless caricature of the divinely-conceived and immortal institution bequeathed to us by the "Center of the Covenant."

Certainly this body is not the Universal House of Justice delineated in the divinely-conceived, sacred and immutable provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, with "the Guardian of the Cause of God" presiding "as its sacred head and the distinguished member for life" and which, under its explicit terms, as the highest administrative Institution of the Faith, "enacteth all ordinances and regulations that are not to be found in the explicit Holy Text."

Certainly, in the permanent absence of the Guardian of the Cause of God, this body lacks the discretionary authority that he alone is granted, under the terms of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, to expel "any of the members" of the Universal House of Justice who may "commit a sin injurious to the common weal."

Certainly this is not the body in which the Guardian of the Faith, as its "sacred head" exercises the following essential and unique functions, as outlined by Shoghi Effendi in The Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh and in God Passes By:

* "The necessary guidance to define the sphere of the legislative action of its elected representatives."

* "The right "to insist upon a reconsideration by them of any enactment he conscientiously believes to conflict with the meaning and to depart from the spirit of Bahá'u'lláh's revealed utterances."

*""The right of exclusive interpretation of Bahá'í Holy Writ."

Joel B. Marangella

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 06:52 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

nothing more than a headless caricature

AN ILLEGITMATE NONDESCRIPT ADMINISTRATIVE BODY PRETENDING TO BE THE UNIVERSAL HOUSE OF JUSTICE OF THE BAHÁ'Í FAITH

And nothing more than a headless caricature of the divinely-conceived and immortal institution bequeathed to us by the "Center of the Covenant."

Certainly this body is not the Universal House of Justice delineated in the divinely-conceived, sacred and immutable provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, with "the Guardian of the Cause of God" presiding "as its sacred head and the distinguished member for life" and which, under its explicit terms, as the highest administrative Institution of the Faith, "enacteth all ordinances and regulations that are not to be found in the explicit Holy Text."

Certainly, in the permanent absence of the Guardian of the Cause of God, this body lacks the discretionary authority that he alone is granted, under the terms of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, to expel "any of the members" of the Universal House of Justice who may "commit a sin injurious to the common weal."

Certainly this is not the body in which the Guardian of the Faith, as its "sacred head" exercises the following essential and unique functions, as outlined by Shoghi Effendi in The Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh and in God Passes By:

* "The necessary guidance to define the sphere of the legislative action of its elected representatives."

* "The right "to insist upon a reconsideration by them of any enactment he conscientiously believes to conflict with the meaning and to depart from the spirit of Bahá'u'lláh's revealed utterances."

*""The right of exclusive interpretation of Bahá'í Holy Writ."

Joel B. Marangella

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 06:52 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

“The Charter of the New World Order” is obsolete/invalid?

The second paragraph on page 72 betrays their evil designs:

“You know, of course, what came to pass historically. The Bahá'í world had the bounty of being guided by Shoghi Effendi—that wondrous, unique and priceless pearl—as the guardian of the Cause from 1921 to 1957, during which time the Universal House of Justice did not exist. [A patently untrue statement, for it did exist, from the moment Shoghi Effendi established that sacred Institution in its embryonic form as the “International Bahá'í Council,” in his only Proclamation, issued in his cablegram, of January 9th, 1951 and in which he significantly referred to it as “this first embryonic International Institution.”] Five and a half years after his passing, on 21 April 1963, that promised institution came into being. Shoghi Effendi had been unable to name a successor who would fulfill the conditions set so explicitly by `Abdu'l-Bahá in the Will and Testament. Whether or not there were means to appoint another Guardian, and how the Universal House of Justice would organize its work in the absence of a living Guardian, were questions that could only be addressed by the House of Justice itself, since all obscure matters, not explicit in the sacred Text were left for it to decide. And, indeed, soon after its election, the House of Justice advised the Bahá'í world that it found no way “to appoint or to legislate to make it possible to appoint a second Guardian to succeed Shoghi Effendi.”

Thus it is clear that the authors of The Covenant, Unit 2 are, in effect, saying that PART ONE of the Master’s sacred and immutable Will and Testament, “The Child of the Covenant”, “The Charter of the New world Order” is obsolete/invalid. Yes, they are teaching that their headless UHJ will function alone in the New World, devoid of the sacred Institutions of the Bahá'í Faith delineated by `Abdu'l-Bahá in His Will, namely the Guardianship and the Hands of the Cause of God.

Ross Campbell
READ ARTICLE

Posted at 08:55 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

“The Charter of the New World Order” is obsolete/invalid?

The second paragraph on page 72 betrays their evil designs:

“You know, of course, what came to pass historically. The Bahá'í world had the bounty of being guided by Shoghi Effendi—that wondrous, unique and priceless pearl—as the guardian of the Cause from 1921 to 1957, during which time the Universal House of Justice did not exist. [A patently untrue statement, for it did exist, from the moment Shoghi Effendi established that sacred Institution in its embryonic form as the “International Bahá'í Council,” in his only Proclamation, issued in his cablegram, of January 9th, 1951 and in which he significantly referred to it as “this first embryonic International Institution.”] Five and a half years after his passing, on 21 April 1963, that promised institution came into being. Shoghi Effendi had been unable to name a successor who would fulfill the conditions set so explicitly by `Abdu'l-Bahá in the Will and Testament. Whether or not there were means to appoint another Guardian, and how the Universal House of Justice would organize its work in the absence of a living Guardian, were questions that could only be addressed by the House of Justice itself, since all obscure matters, not explicit in the sacred Text were left for it to decide. And, indeed, soon after its election, the House of Justice advised the Bahá'í world that it found no way “to appoint or to legislate to make it possible to appoint a second Guardian to succeed Shoghi Effendi.”

Thus it is clear that the authors of The Covenant, Unit 2 are, in effect, saying that PART ONE of the Master’s sacred and immutable Will and Testament, “The Child of the Covenant”, “The Charter of the New world Order” is obsolete/invalid. Yes, they are teaching that their headless UHJ will function alone in the New World, devoid of the sacred Institutions of the Bahá'í Faith delineated by `Abdu'l-Bahá in His Will, namely the Guardianship and the Hands of the Cause of God.

Ross Campbell
READ ARTICLE

Posted at 08:55 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

“the embryo possesses from the first all perfections . . . "

More than two years prior to the establishment of the International Bahá’í Council, Shoghi Effendi had addressed a letter to the United Nations Special Palestine Committee in July 1947 and, in discussing the Bahá’í Administrative Order, he had referred to his plans to establish this International Council in stating that: “the foundations are now being laid by the national and local councils” and are “paving the way for the constitution of the World Council, to be designated as the Universal House of Justice, which, in conjunction with me, as its appointed Head and the authorized interpreter of the Bahá’í teachings, must coordinate and direct the affairs of the Bahá’í community . . .”

‘Abdu’l-Bahá has clearly pointed out that “the embryo possesses from the first all perfections . . . in one word, all the powers–but they are not visible, and become so only by degrees.” (p. 313, BWF) Therefore, it should be crystal clear and undeniable that these two embryonic institutions and “supreme organs” of the Bahá’í Administrative Order, that had, “at long last,” been erected by Shoghi Effendi, during the closing years of his ministry, were not provisional, transitory or incomplete institutions that would later be replaced, but were unquestionably completely whole, and perfect institutions “from the first” that he had established in faithful compliance with the terms of the sacred and immutable provisions of the Will and Testament of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá. Only the functions of these two “supreme organs” would be progressively and appropriately expanded during the course of their future development. As an example, Shoghi Effendi, in his message of 25 April 1951, stated that the International Bahá’í Council would become, in its second stage of development, an International Bahá’í Court, a stage that he emphasized would be an “essential prelude to the institution of the Universal House of Justice.” This International Court would then exercise jurisdiction over “six national Bahá’í Courts in the chief cities of the Islamic East,” (Tihrán, Cairo, Baghdád, New Delhi, Karachi, Kabul) whose establishment, as stated in his message of 8 October 1952, would be one of the goals of the “decade-long, world-embracing Spiritual Crusade” that would commence at Ridván 1953.

Joel B. Marangella
READ ARTICLE

Posted at 07:05 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

“the embryo possesses from the first all perfections . . . "

More than two years prior to the establishment of the International Bahá’í Council, Shoghi Effendi had addressed a letter to the United Nations Special Palestine Committee in July 1947 and, in discussing the Bahá’í Administrative Order, he had referred to his plans to establish this International Council in stating that: “the foundations are now being laid by the national and local councils” and are “paving the way for the constitution of the World Council, to be designated as the Universal House of Justice, which, in conjunction with me, as its appointed Head and the authorized interpreter of the Bahá’í teachings, must coordinate and direct the affairs of the Bahá’í community . . .”

‘Abdu’l-Bahá has clearly pointed out that “the embryo possesses from the first all perfections . . . in one word, all the powers–but they are not visible, and become so only by degrees.” (p. 313, BWF) Therefore, it should be crystal clear and undeniable that these two embryonic institutions and “supreme organs” of the Bahá’í Administrative Order, that had, “at long last,” been erected by Shoghi Effendi, during the closing years of his ministry, were not provisional, transitory or incomplete institutions that would later be replaced, but were unquestionably completely whole, and perfect institutions “from the first” that he had established in faithful compliance with the terms of the sacred and immutable provisions of the Will and Testament of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá. Only the functions of these two “supreme organs” would be progressively and appropriately expanded during the course of their future development. As an example, Shoghi Effendi, in his message of 25 April 1951, stated that the International Bahá’í Council would become, in its second stage of development, an International Bahá’í Court, a stage that he emphasized would be an “essential prelude to the institution of the Universal House of Justice.” This International Court would then exercise jurisdiction over “six national Bahá’í Courts in the chief cities of the Islamic East,” (Tihrán, Cairo, Baghdád, New Delhi, Karachi, Kabul) whose establishment, as stated in his message of 8 October 1952, would be one of the goals of the “decade-long, world-embracing Spiritual Crusade” that would commence at Ridván 1953.

Joel B. Marangella
READ ARTICLE

Posted at 07:05 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

...the embryo possesses from the first all perfections...

'Abdu'l-Bahá has clearly pointed out that "the embryo possesses from the first all perfections . . . in one word, all the powers-but they are not visible, and become so only by degrees." (p. 313, BWF) Therefore, it should be crystal clear and undeniable that these two embryonic institutions and "supreme organs" of the Bahá'í Administrative Order, that had, "at long last," been erected by Shoghi Effendi, during the closing years of his ministry, were not provisional, transitory or incomplete institutions that would later be replaced, but were unquestionably completely whole, and perfect institutions "from the first" that he had established in faithful compliance with the terms of the sacred and immutable provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá.

Joel B. Marangella

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 02:45 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

...the embryo possesses from the first all perfections...

'Abdu'l-Bahá has clearly pointed out that "the embryo possesses from the first all perfections . . . in one word, all the powers-but they are not visible, and become so only by degrees." (p. 313, BWF) Therefore, it should be crystal clear and undeniable that these two embryonic institutions and "supreme organs" of the Bahá'í Administrative Order, that had, "at long last," been erected by Shoghi Effendi, during the closing years of his ministry, were not provisional, transitory or incomplete institutions that would later be replaced, but were unquestionably completely whole, and perfect institutions "from the first" that he had established in faithful compliance with the terms of the sacred and immutable provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá.

Joel B. Marangella

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 02:45 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

the enormity of their failure and their betrayal

Although Bahá'ís, who should now realize that they were tragically duped to believe that the Guardianship had ended with Shoghi Effendi, having been provided with overwhelming and incontrovertible evidence, as discussed above, that Shoghi Effendi had clearly and undeniably provided for the continuance of the Guardianship in faithful compliance with the provisions of the divinely-conceived and sacred Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, they incredibly, no longer seem to care. They will perhaps care very much indeed, when they enter the next world and there come face to face with Shoghi Effendi and attempt to explain their loss of faith in the indestructibility of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh, their ready acceptance of the repudiation of major provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá and their inexcusable and complete disregard and indifference to the cogent arguments and explanations that have been presented to them that have conclusively provided proof of his continuance of the Guardianship of the Cause of God in complete fidelity to the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá. Inevitably they will then come to realize the enormity of their failure and their betrayal of Shoghi Effendi and assuredly suffer a painful remorse from which there will be no surcease for all eternity, in the knowledge that they had blindly and shamefully participated in the attempted destruction of the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh and had been guilty of a flagrant and reprehensible violation of His mighty Covenant.

Joel B. Marangella

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 07:45 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

the enormity of their failure and their betrayal

Although Bahá'ís, who should now realize that they were tragically duped to believe that the Guardianship had ended with Shoghi Effendi, having been provided with overwhelming and incontrovertible evidence, as discussed above, that Shoghi Effendi had clearly and undeniably provided for the continuance of the Guardianship in faithful compliance with the provisions of the divinely-conceived and sacred Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, they incredibly, no longer seem to care. They will perhaps care very much indeed, when they enter the next world and there come face to face with Shoghi Effendi and attempt to explain their loss of faith in the indestructibility of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh, their ready acceptance of the repudiation of major provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá and their inexcusable and complete disregard and indifference to the cogent arguments and explanations that have been presented to them that have conclusively provided proof of his continuance of the Guardianship of the Cause of God in complete fidelity to the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá. Inevitably they will then come to realize the enormity of their failure and their betrayal of Shoghi Effendi and assuredly suffer a painful remorse from which there will be no surcease for all eternity, in the knowledge that they had blindly and shamefully participated in the attempted destruction of the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh and had been guilty of a flagrant and reprehensible violation of His mighty Covenant.

Joel B. Marangella

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 07:45 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

the glory and promise of this most great Dispensation

If you are a Bahá'í faithful to the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh and its immortal "Child"-the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá-and therefore faithful to the institution of the Guardianship, you will certainly say "yes" that you accept, without qualification, everything that Shoghi Effendi has written about the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh, the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá and the Bahá'í Administrative Order and unquestionably believe in the validity of all of his pronouncements, acts and decisions, including those announced in his messages to the Bahá'í world, often communicated in cablegram form, and the absolute essentiality of faithfully complying, without reservation and to the best of our ability, with such instructions and goals as may be set forth in his communications.

In the light of the above, you will say "yes," I accept the validity of the following statements made by Shoghi Effendi:

* That "The creative energies released by the Law of Bahá'u'lláh, permeating and evolving within the mind of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, have by their impact and close interaction, given birth to an Instrument [The Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá] which may be viewed as the Charter of the New World Order which is at once the glory and promise of this most great Dispensation."

* That "The Will [of 'Abdu'l-Bahá] may thus be acclaimed as the inevitable offspring resulting from that mystic intercourse between Him....

By Joel B. Marangella

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 07:52 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

the glory and promise of this most great Dispensation

If you are a Bahá'í faithful to the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh and its immortal "Child"-the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá-and therefore faithful to the institution of the Guardianship, you will certainly say "yes" that you accept, without qualification, everything that Shoghi Effendi has written about the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh, the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá and the Bahá'í Administrative Order and unquestionably believe in the validity of all of his pronouncements, acts and decisions, including those announced in his messages to the Bahá'í world, often communicated in cablegram form, and the absolute essentiality of faithfully complying, without reservation and to the best of our ability, with such instructions and goals as may be set forth in his communications.

In the light of the above, you will say "yes," I accept the validity of the following statements made by Shoghi Effendi:

* That "The creative energies released by the Law of Bahá'u'lláh, permeating and evolving within the mind of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, have by their impact and close interaction, given birth to an Instrument [The Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá] which may be viewed as the Charter of the New World Order which is at once the glory and promise of this most great Dispensation."

* That "The Will [of 'Abdu'l-Bahá] may thus be acclaimed as the inevitable offspring resulting from that mystic intercourse between Him....

By Joel B. Marangella

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 07:52 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

the Guardianship is the spiritual heart of the Faith

The truth of the matter is that the Guardianship is the spiritual heart of the Faith and without it the Faith cannot be. With all the talk about their Administration, the sans-Guardian organization cannot be the channel through which the Holy Spirit appears because the channel for this is the Guardianship itself, an Institution that exists in that organization only as an historical artifact. To believe otherwise is to disregard the teachings of the Center of the Covenant. The living faith is the Orthodox Bahá'í Faith, with the Holy Spirit's divine guidance flowing directly through the Guardianship, a divine office presently occupied by Joel B. Marangella, to that small band of faithful believers around the world still loyal to the Guardian.

Jeffrey

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 09:25 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

the OTHER realm of Divine guidance

The insidious manner by which the authors of the manuscript, The Covenant, Unit 2, have perpetrated the occulting of the above stated truth is evident by the manner by which they routinely in their manuscript quote the very passages from Bahá'í Holy Writings which clearly separate the two distinct realms of Divine guidance, while at the very same time presenting again and again and again the Universal House of Justice as the only “continuous source of guidance” for humanity without ever once mentioning the vital, absolute necessity of infallible interpretation of Bahá'í Holy Writ and Holy Text, the OTHER realm of Divine guidance, by which Divine guidance the sacred Laws of the Lord of this Age will become accurately applied by the Administration of the New World Order.

Here follow some examples of the treachery of the authors of the manuscript, as mentioned above:....

Ross Campbell

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 06:31 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

the OTHER realm of Divine guidance

The insidious manner by which the authors of the manuscript, The Covenant, Unit 2, have perpetrated the occulting of the above stated truth is evident by the manner by which they routinely in their manuscript quote the very passages from Bahá'í Holy Writings which clearly separate the two distinct realms of Divine guidance, while at the very same time presenting again and again and again the Universal House of Justice as the only “continuous source of guidance” for humanity without ever once mentioning the vital, absolute necessity of infallible interpretation of Bahá'í Holy Writ and Holy Text, the OTHER realm of Divine guidance, by which Divine guidance the sacred Laws of the Lord of this Age will become accurately applied by the Administration of the New World Order.

Here follow some examples of the treachery of the authors of the manuscript, as mentioned above:....

Ross Campbell

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 06:31 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

They knew they were taking over the authority of the Guardian

Although they will rarely admit it, the sans-Guardian Baha'is long ago adopted the notion of a collective guardianship to be assumed by a body of believers. Shortly after the death of Shoghi Effendi, the first Guardian, the Hands of the Cause made the decision that the Guardianship was "badah", that God had changed His mind and that there would no longer be living Guardians in office. They then vested in an Institution of their own making (the "Custodian" Hands) "all such functions, rights and powers in succession to the Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith." In other words, a group of Hands that would serve as a collective Guardianship. This coup or usurpation of power and authority in the Faith occurred on November 25, 1957.

Make no mistake about it, they knew they were taking over the authority of the Guardian. They went on to take actions that only a Guardian had been empowered to do: to demand loyalty oaths from all of the National Spiritual Assemblies, to dissolve the French NSA after it recognize....

Jeffrey

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 06:43 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

They knew they were taking over the authority of the Guardian

Although they will rarely admit it, the sans-Guardian Baha'is long ago adopted the notion of a collective guardianship to be assumed by a body of believers. Shortly after the death of Shoghi Effendi, the first Guardian, the Hands of the Cause made the decision that the Guardianship was "badah", that God had changed His mind and that there would no longer be living Guardians in office. They then vested in an Institution of their own making (the "Custodian" Hands) "all such functions, rights and powers in succession to the Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith." In other words, a group of Hands that would serve as a collective Guardianship. This coup or usurpation of power and authority in the Faith occurred on November 25, 1957.

Make no mistake about it, they knew they were taking over the authority of the Guardian. They went on to take actions that only a Guardian had been empowered to do: to demand loyalty oaths from all of the National Spiritual Assemblies, to dissolve the French NSA after it recognize....

Jeffrey

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 06:43 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

They then promulgated their insidious doctrine that God had changed His Plan.

Flushed with the brilliant successes won during the Ten Year Global Crusade pursued under the direction of a Guardian whose ministry showed every promise of continuing for many years to come, the Bahá'ís were ill-prepared for the tragic, sudden and completely unexpected passing of Shoghi Effendi at the mid-point of the Crusade. Dismayed, shocked and grieved as they were by this terrible loss, the believers sustained a further shock when the Hands of the Cause announced to the Bahá'í World in a Proclamation some three weeks following the passing of Shoghi Effendi (at the conclusion of a conclave they had held at the World Center) that Shoghi Effendi had not appointed a successor as no will and testament had been found and he had left no heir.

As the Hands of the Cause led by Rúhíyyih Khánum had taken charge of affairs in the Faith upon Shoghi Effendi's passing and convened a conclave in 'Accá for the purpose of determining the Guardian's successor (although no such conclave is called for under the terms of 'Abdu'l-Bahá's Will and Testament, nor is it necessary as there is no interregnum in the Guardianship) the believers quite understandably turned to these Hands for guidance and direction when they were informed that there was no successor. The Hands of the Cause (with a single notable exception) mistakenly believing that the Faith had been left without a Guardian quickly seized upon the appellation that Shoghi Effendi had given them as "Chief Stewards" and construed this to mean that they should assume authority for the direction of the affairs of the Faith. They then promulgated their insidious doctrine that God had changed His Plan (i.e. had ended the Guardianship) which meant, although not admitted by them, that the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh would be deprived not only of the Guardian but its supreme administrative institution as well and therefore could never become a reality. Only the President of the International Bahá'í Council (whose supreme station in The Faith no one recognized) refused to accept this doctrine (known as "BADA") and endeavored over some two and a half years until the issuance of his own Proclamation to get them to reconsider their stand against the continuity of the Guardianship, to no avail).

The Hands, at this stage, relegated the International Bahá'í Council to an insignificant role subordinate to themselves but....

Joel B. Marangella

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 09:21 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

What could be a greater repudiation?

Direct examination of Mason Remey:

[Mason Remey ("MR"):] It is not possible for me to tell this Court what the Hands were thinking, other than to give you my own understanding of their reaction and responses to my appeals.

[Thornton Chase, prosecutor (TC"):] Please do tell the Court.

[MR:] I had thought a great deal about this subject of Covenant-breaking, as you can well imagine. From a historical perspective, such as the recounting by Shoghi Effendi of the actions of the early Covenant-breakers in his book, God Passes By. The ambitions and desires of those Covenant-breakers who opposed 'Abdu'l-Bahá were evil. They seemed bent upon achieving a position of glory or power, even when their actions were blatantly destructive of the Faith, even violent and murderous.

[TC:] Is it your testimony that the Hands were Covenant-breakers in the historical sense?

[MR:] We had the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá that clearly pointed out the essentiality of the Guardian as "the Center of the Cause" and the "sacred head" of the Universal House of Justice and the extensive writings and highly significant messages of Shoghi Effendi which had obviously been ignored in the hasty decision to end the Guardianship, and, which if they had been examined closely and their implications taken into account, may have prevented their establishment of a sans-Guardian organization in place of the divinely-conceived and immortal Administrative Order bequeathed to us by 'Abdu'l-Bahá in His Will and Testament, a Document that Shoghi Effendi had equated in its sacredness and immutability with Bahá'u'lláh's Most Holy Book, the Kitáb-i-Aqdas. They were in error and they lost faith in the Covenant. There is no question in my mind about that. Some excuse for this failure by the Hands may be attributed to Shoghi Effendi's sudden and unexpected passing and the fact that we had become so used to Shoghi Effendi as our leader, that we could not even imagine going on without him. This entire situation -the untimely death of Shoghi Effendi, and the lack of any direct advice or instructions from him about the situation- had been suddenly foisted upon us by events.

[TC:] Were the Hands not Covenant-breakers?

[MR:] Of course they were, and with disastrous results to the Cause of God. And that was the most frustrating thing about it.... how this spirit of violation seemed to descend upon the Hands.

[TC:] Can you give me an example of this spirit descending upon them?

[MR:] First of all, quite obviously, there was this plot by the Hands to abandon the Guardianship, but not to be straightforward about it. This whole notion of Badah, that God had changed His Mind about such a fundamental and distinguishing characteristic of the Faith-the basic Institutions of the Divine Government established by Bahá'u'lláh and `Abdu'l-Bahá - was so pernicious.... it threatened to destroy the Faith, and how strange it was that all of the Hands over time came to embrace this concept. It was such a blatant violation but they could not see it.

[TC:] Yes, but what specific examples can you relate that these Hands were violators?

[MR:] I guess from the start, it seemed like they wanted to have nothing to do with a second Guardian. In any Kingdom, when a highly esteemed and just King dies and there is no heir apparent to inherit the throne, what do his nobles do? Do they set out to destroy what had been a well-established and functioning government and replace it with a purely democratic system? That would be sedition.

[TC:] Yes. But is the Universal House of Justice that they established a purely democratic institution?

[MR:] Of course it is. As Shoghi Effendi has clearly explained in his writings, it is the elected Local and National Spiritual Assemblies, which in turn elect the International Assembly, a body that will be designated in its final stage of development as the Universal House of Justice, that constitutes the democratic element in the Bahá'í Spiritual World Government. When formed and in working order these institutions will be the voice of the rank and file of the believers. The royal element in the Faith is the Guardianship together with the institution of the Hands, The democratically elected members of the Universal House of Justice constitute only one part of the Universal House of Justice. The Guardian in his dual role as both the "Center of the Cause" and the "sacred head" for life of the UHJ, together with the Hands appointed by him, represent the nobility. The Hands, in doing away with the Guardianship, have done away with the nobility, including their own Institution as well, as future Hands can only be appointed by the Guardian and therefore they have turned the Faith over exclusively to the rank and file. Consequently, they have destroyed the divinely-appointed System given to us in the Will and Testament and replaced it with something of their own concoction. What could be a greater repudiation of the Master's Will than this? What else but the evil spirit of violation could bring the Hands to do these things?

....

by Jeffrey

READ THE PLAY

Posted at 08:58 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

What could be a greater repudiation?

Direct examination of Mason Remey:

[Mason Remey ("MR"):] It is not possible for me to tell this Court what the Hands were thinking, other than to give you my own understanding of their reaction and responses to my appeals.

[Thornton Chase, prosecutor (TC"):] Please do tell the Court.

[MR:] I had thought a great deal about this subject of Covenant-breaking, as you can well imagine. From a historical perspective, such as the recounting by Shoghi Effendi of the actions of the early Covenant-breakers in his book, God Passes By. The ambitions and desires of those Covenant-breakers who opposed 'Abdu'l-Bahá were evil. They seemed bent upon achieving a position of glory or power, even when their actions were blatantly destructive of the Faith, even violent and murderous.

[TC:] Is it your testimony that the Hands were Covenant-breakers in the historical sense?

[MR:] We had the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá that clearly pointed out the essentiality of the Guardian as "the Center of the Cause" and the "sacred head" of the Universal House of Justice and the extensive writings and highly significant messages of Shoghi Effendi which had obviously been ignored in the hasty decision to end the Guardianship, and, which if they had been examined closely and their implications taken into account, may have prevented their establishment of a sans-Guardian organization in place of the divinely-conceived and immortal Administrative Order bequeathed to us by 'Abdu'l-Bahá in His Will and Testament, a Document that Shoghi Effendi had equated in its sacredness and immutability with Bahá'u'lláh's Most Holy Book, the Kitáb-i-Aqdas. They were in error and they lost faith in the Covenant. There is no question in my mind about that. Some excuse for this failure by the Hands may be attributed to Shoghi Effendi's sudden and unexpected passing and the fact that we had become so used to Shoghi Effendi as our leader, that we could not even imagine going on without him. This entire situation -the untimely death of Shoghi Effendi, and the lack of any direct advice or instructions from him about the situation- had been suddenly foisted upon us by events.

[TC:] Were the Hands not Covenant-breakers?

[MR:] Of course they were, and with disastrous results to the Cause of God. And that was the most frustrating thing about it.... how this spirit of violation seemed to descend upon the Hands.

[TC:] Can you give me an example of this spirit descending upon them?

[MR:] First of all, quite obviously, there was this plot by the Hands to abandon the Guardianship, but not to be straightforward about it. This whole notion of Badah, that God had changed His Mind about such a fundamental and distinguishing characteristic of the Faith-the basic Institutions of the Divine Government established by Bahá'u'lláh and `Abdu'l-Bahá - was so pernicious.... it threatened to destroy the Faith, and how strange it was that all of the Hands over time came to embrace this concept. It was such a blatant violation but they could not see it.

[TC:] Yes, but what specific examples can you relate that these Hands were violators?

[MR:] I guess from the start, it seemed like they wanted to have nothing to do with a second Guardian. In any Kingdom, when a highly esteemed and just King dies and there is no heir apparent to inherit the throne, what do his nobles do? Do they set out to destroy what had been a well-established and functioning government and replace it with a purely democratic system? That would be sedition.

[TC:] Yes. But is the Universal House of Justice that they established a purely democratic institution?

[MR:] Of course it is. As Shoghi Effendi has clearly explained in his writings, it is the elected Local and National Spiritual Assemblies, which in turn elect the International Assembly, a body that will be designated in its final stage of development as the Universal House of Justice, that constitutes the democratic element in the Bahá'í Spiritual World Government. When formed and in working order these institutions will be the voice of the rank and file of the believers. The royal element in the Faith is the Guardianship together with the institution of the Hands, The democratically elected members of the Universal House of Justice constitute only one part of the Universal House of Justice. The Guardian in his dual role as both the "Center of the Cause" and the "sacred head" for life of the UHJ, together with the Hands appointed by him, represent the nobility. The Hands, in doing away with the Guardianship, have done away with the nobility, including their own Institution as well, as future Hands can only be appointed by the Guardian and therefore they have turned the Faith over exclusively to the rank and file. Consequently, they have destroyed the divinely-appointed System given to us in the Will and Testament and replaced it with something of their own concoction. What could be a greater repudiation of the Master's Will than this? What else but the evil spirit of violation could bring the Hands to do these things?

....

by Jeffrey

READ THE PLAY

Posted at 08:58 AM | Permalink

Why was the meeting held in secret?

Direct examination of Mason Remey:

[Thornton Chase, prosecutor ("TC"):] What did you find?

[Mason Remey ("MR"):] Unfortunately, not much of anything. We verified that the seals had not been broken. We carefully searched the safe and desk, but found no Will or any other document or instructions.

[TC:] What did the Hands decide to do next?

[MR:] That was about the time we drew up the Proclamation of the Hands in which we announced that Shoghi Effendi had not left a Will appointing his successor.

[TC:] Do you recall when that was?

[MR:] This was on November 25th just following our conclave.

[TC:] Mr. Remey, before we discuss the proclamation made by the Hands, I would like to know a little more about this secret conclave of the Hands. How did this meeting come about?

[MR:] After we confirmed that Shoghi Effendi had not left behind a Will or instructions in his office, we really did not know what to do next. You can imagine how we felt. The entire Bahá'í world was looking to us for guidance. As you know, I am sure, during Shoghi's entire ministry, there were many rumors about an heir, a son, who had been placed into hiding for his protection. I think most Bahá'ís were waiting to hear from us about the identity of the second Guardian...

[TC:] Of course, he had no son....

[MR:] Of course, so what were we supposed to do? I think the Hands had no choice but to hold a meeting to discuss how to proceed, although such a meeting is not called for in the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá.

[TC:] Why was the meeting held in secret?

[MR:] It was very unwise, but Ruyiyyih Khanum insisted upon it- that no minutes or notes were to leave the meeting. She felt that disunity might result unless we all agreed to keep it secret. So I went along with it, as did all of the others....

[TC:] Is there anything in the Writings of the Faith or in the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá to support the need for the Hands to meet in secret conclave on any occasion?

[MR:] Of course not. Indeed, there is really only one meeting of the Hands called for in the Writings, and that would be in the Master's Will and Testament where it calls for an election by the Hands of nine of us to carry out the work of the Guardian in the Holy Land. Incidentally, this body of nine Hands was never called into being by Shoghi Effendi during his ministry. Certainly, I know of nothing in the Writings to require any meetings to be held in secret, especially a meeting of this importance.

[TC:] Why, then, did you consent to it?

....

by Jeffrey

READ THE PLAY

Posted at 10:13 AM | Permalink

Why was the meeting held in secret?

Direct examination of Mason Remey:

[Thornton Chase, prosecutor ("TC"):] What did you find?

[Mason Remey ("MR"):] Unfortunately, not much of anything. We verified that the seals had not been broken. We carefully searched the safe and desk, but found no Will or any other document or instructions.

[TC:] What did the Hands decide to do next?

[MR:] That was about the time we drew up the Proclamation of the Hands in which we announced that Shoghi Effendi had not left a Will appointing his successor.

[TC:] Do you recall when that was?

[MR:] This was on November 25th just following our conclave.

[TC:] Mr. Remey, before we discuss the proclamation made by the Hands, I would like to know a little more about this secret conclave of the Hands. How did this meeting come about?

[MR:] After we confirmed that Shoghi Effendi had not left behind a Will or instructions in his office, we really did not know what to do next. You can imagine how we felt. The entire Bahá'í world was looking to us for guidance. As you know, I am sure, during Shoghi's entire ministry, there were many rumors about an heir, a son, who had been placed into hiding for his protection. I think most Bahá'ís were waiting to hear from us about the identity of the second Guardian...

[TC:] Of course, he had no son....

[MR:] Of course, so what were we supposed to do? I think the Hands had no choice but to hold a meeting to discuss how to proceed, although such a meeting is not called for in the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá.

[TC:] Why was the meeting held in secret?

[MR:] It was very unwise, but Ruyiyyih Khanum insisted upon it- that no minutes or notes were to leave the meeting. She felt that disunity might result unless we all agreed to keep it secret. So I went along with it, as did all of the others....

[TC:] Is there anything in the Writings of the Faith or in the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá to support the need for the Hands to meet in secret conclave on any occasion?

[MR:] Of course not. Indeed, there is really only one meeting of the Hands called for in the Writings, and that would be in the Master's Will and Testament where it calls for an election by the Hands of nine of us to carry out the work of the Guardian in the Holy Land. Incidentally, this body of nine Hands was never called into being by Shoghi Effendi during his ministry. Certainly, I know of nothing in the Writings to require any meetings to be held in secret, especially a meeting of this importance.

[TC:] Why, then, did you consent to it?

....

by Jeffrey

READ THE PLAY

Posted at 10:13 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

ye have made it a den of thieves

"O YE THAT ARE FOOLISH , YET HAVE A NAME TO BE WISE! Wherefore do ye wear the guise of shepherds, when inwardly ye have become wolves, intent upon My flock? Ye are even as the star, which riseth ere the dawn, and which, though it seem radiant and luminous, leadeth the wayfarers of my city astray into the paths of perdition."

I have no authoritative ability to interpret/explain Bahá'í Holy Writ because I am not a Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith. Nevertheless, I am strongly suspicious that the wolves referred to in the above quote are dwelling behind the marble columns on Mt. Carmel.

His Holiness the Christ chased the money changers out of God's Temple during His Ministry, saying to them: "Is it not written, My house shall be called of all the nations the house of prayer, but ye have made it a den of thieves." (Mark chapter 11, verse 17)

The thieves are certainly back in the Temple again, stealing the Huququ'llah, despite the third Guardian's clear explanations of their error having been published openly for all to examine for many years.

Are those thieves who are stealing the Huququ'llah, the Right of God, the same "wolves" referred to in the Hidden Words quoted above?

By Ross Campbell

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 07:52 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

ye have made it a den of thieves

"O YE THAT ARE FOOLISH , YET HAVE A NAME TO BE WISE! Wherefore do ye wear the guise of shepherds, when inwardly ye have become wolves, intent upon My flock? Ye are even as the star, which riseth ere the dawn, and which, though it seem radiant and luminous, leadeth the wayfarers of my city astray into the paths of perdition."

I have no authoritative ability to interpret/explain Bahá'í Holy Writ because I am not a Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith. Nevertheless, I am strongly suspicious that the wolves referred to in the above quote are dwelling behind the marble columns on Mt. Carmel.

His Holiness the Christ chased the money changers out of God's Temple during His Ministry, saying to them: "Is it not written, My house shall be called of all the nations the house of prayer, but ye have made it a den of thieves." (Mark chapter 11, verse 17)

The thieves are certainly back in the Temple again, stealing the Huququ'llah, despite the third Guardian's clear explanations of their error having been published openly for all to examine for many years.

Are those thieves who are stealing the Huququ'llah, the Right of God, the same "wolves" referred to in the Hidden Words quoted above?

By Ross Campbell

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 07:52 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Deluded as they now were...

Deluded as they now were in this belief of their supreme authority, the Hands had the temerity to announce to the Bahá'í World in the Proclamation cited above, that they were "the supreme body of the Bahá'í World Community and yet, in the very same Proclamation, they surrendered most, if not all, of their authority in their announced appointment of an illicit body of nine Hands from their number to which they gave the appellation: "Custodians of the Bahá'í World Faith," a body completely outside the provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá. This illicitly formed body then ignominiously proceeded not only to flagrantly usurp the functions that should have been rightfully exercised by an actively functioning International Council, as Shoghi Effendi had planned, but, as announced in this same Proclamation, to shamelessly assume all of the "functions, rights and powers in succession to the Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith." Thus, this illicitly established bogus body disregarded Shoghi Effendi's projected plans for the International Council, made it subordinate to themselves, and blatantly usurped its functions as they took over direction of the National Assemblies in their prosecution of the remaining goals of the Ten Year Global Crusade.

In their further plans, the Hands announced that the body of the Custodians in which they had invested such great authority would cease to exist after its brief reign of some six years with the election of the Universal House of Justice during Ridván in 1963. Although it would be a body minus its "sacred head"-the Guardian of the Faith-and therefore a headless, fallible and illegitimate body, they nevertheless would pretend that it was nothiing less than "that Supreme body" unmindful of the further fact that its election at this stage in the evolution of the Faith was far too premature, as Shoghi Effendi's plans, embodied in the goals of the Ten Year Global Crusade had not envisaged the evolution of the International Bahá'í Council beyond its second essential stage as an International Bahá'í Court by Ridván 1963 and even then it's establishment as an International Court would be contingent upon the establishment of six national Bahá'í Courts "in the chief cities of the Islamic East" which he had named. Although, the demise of the ill-named body of the "Custodians of the Bahá'í World Faith" would, according to their plans, take place coincident with the election of their headless Universal House of Justice at Ridván 1963, they made no mention about the assumption by that illegitimate body of the "functions rights and powers in succession to the Guardian" previously usurped by these Custodians. It may have been inferred that the Hands intended that these function, rights and powers be assumed by their so-called Universal House of Justice, even though interpretation of the sacred Writings is a right reserved solely to the Guardian of the Faith according to the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá.

Joel B. Marangella
READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 04:57 AM | Permalink | Comments (0)

True Bahá'í

A message today with parallels to Jeremiah's message to ancient Israel

Jeffrey's posting reminded me about the bliblical story ofJeremiah. I am going to draw attention to some of those parallels here.

There are many such parallels between the time of Jeremiah and the disobedience of ancient Israelites to their Covenant with Almighty God and the current disobedience towards `Abdu'l-Bahá, the Center of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh, by the renegade UHJ currently on Mt. Carmel and their Heterodox Bahá'í adherents around the Earth. During a similar time span of years as Jeremiah's prophesying against the waywardness and unfaithfulness of the ancient Israelites (647-617 B.C.E.), Joel B. Marangella, the third Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith has been constantly exposing the false visions heralded by the headless heterodox Bahá'í UHJ on Mt. Carmel, and its other many violations of the Covenant of our Lord Bahá'u'lláh. The third Guardian's message has also included warnings with similarities to the warnings contained in Jeremiah's message to disobedient Israelites.

Ross Campbell

READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 05:18 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

A message today with parallels to Jeremiah's message to ancient Israel

Jeffrey's posting reminded me about the bliblical story ofJeremiah. I am going to draw attention to some of those parallels here.

There are many such parallels between the time of Jeremiah and the disobedience of ancient Israelites to their Covenant with Almighty God and the current disobedience towards `Abdu'l-Bahá, the Center of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh, by the renegade UHJ currently on Mt. Carmel and their Heterodox Bahá'í adherents around the Earth. During a similar time span of years as Jeremiah's prophesying against the waywardness and unfaithfulness of the ancient Israelites (647-617 B.C.E.), Joel B. Marangella, the third Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith has been constantly exposing the false visions heralded by the headless heterodox Bahá'í UHJ on Mt. Carmel, and its other many violations of the Covenant of our Lord Bahá'u'lláh. The third Guardian's message has also included warnings with similarities to the warnings contained in Jeremiah's message to disobedient Israelites.

Ross Campbell

READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 05:18 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

a statement of momentous import

I noted a message from Shoghi Effendi, dated November 23, 1951, titled: "The Last and Irretrievable Chance of Setting the Seal of Triumph Upon a Momentous Undertaking" that included, to my great surprise, a statement of momentous import that had previously escaped my attention, when first read many years ago as it must have, as well, escaped the attention of all the believers who read this message at the time. Even more critically, the significance of this statement was tragically overlooked or ignored by the Hands of the Cause some six years later, following the passing of Shoghi Effendi, with tragic results for the future of the Faith. No doubt, in view of the import of the statement contained in this message, the tremendous significance of which, if had been then discerned by the believers, would have caused widespread shock, consternation and unbelief, Shoghi Effendi had obviously purposely chosen to obscure its significance. He accomplished this by applying an unfamiliar term to the International Institution mentioned in his message and one he had but recently established in the Holy Land. On the other hand, it is doubtful that he had anticipated that his reference to this International Institution and its projected preeminent future active role would be so completely overlooked and disregarded upon his passing, particularly by the Hands of the Cause, who, at their first conclave in ‘Akká, in their unseemly haste to declare the Guardianship of the Faith ended, had taken no time to review and consider the import and the implications of, not only this message but the other historic messages that he had penned as his ministry drew to a close, including most importantly his Proclamation of 9 January 1951.

Inexplicably, and surprisingly I found that this message had been omitted from the well known book titled: MESSAGES TO THE BAHA’I WORLD 1950-1957 by Shoghi Effendi which it had always been my impression contained all of the important messages written in English that had been dispatched to the Bahá’í world by Shoghi Effendi during the seven closing years of his ministry.

The term in Shoghi Effendi’s message of November 23,1951 referring to the International Institution and the statement that carries such import with respect to its projected role, is found in the excerpt quoted below....

Joel B. Marangella

READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 08:22 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

a statement of momentous import

I noted a message from Shoghi Effendi, dated November 23, 1951, titled: "The Last and Irretrievable Chance of Setting the Seal of Triumph Upon a Momentous Undertaking" that included, to my great surprise, a statement of momentous import that had previously escaped my attention, when first read many years ago as it must have, as well, escaped the attention of all the believers who read this message at the time. Even more critically, the significance of this statement was tragically overlooked or ignored by the Hands of the Cause some six years later, following the passing of Shoghi Effendi, with tragic results for the future of the Faith. No doubt, in view of the import of the statement contained in this message, the tremendous significance of which, if had been then discerned by the believers, would have caused widespread shock, consternation and unbelief, Shoghi Effendi had obviously purposely chosen to obscure its significance. He accomplished this by applying an unfamiliar term to the International Institution mentioned in his message and one he had but recently established in the Holy Land. On the other hand, it is doubtful that he had anticipated that his reference to this International Institution and its projected preeminent future active role would be so completely overlooked and disregarded upon his passing, particularly by the Hands of the Cause, who, at their first conclave in ‘Akká, in their unseemly haste to declare the Guardianship of the Faith ended, had taken no time to review and consider the import and the implications of, not only this message but the other historic messages that he had penned as his ministry drew to a close, including most importantly his Proclamation of 9 January 1951.

Inexplicably, and surprisingly I found that this message had been omitted from the well known book titled: MESSAGES TO THE BAHA’I WORLD 1950-1957 by Shoghi Effendi which it had always been my impression contained all of the important messages written in English that had been dispatched to the Bahá’í world by Shoghi Effendi during the seven closing years of his ministry.

The term in Shoghi Effendi’s message of November 23,1951 referring to the International Institution and the statement that carries such import with respect to its projected role, is found in the excerpt quoted below....

Joel B. Marangella

READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 08:22 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Deluded as they now were...

Deluded as they now were in this belief of their supreme authority, the Hands had the temerity to announce to the Bahá'í World in the Proclamation cited above, that they were "the supreme body of the Bahá'í World Community and yet, in the very same Proclamation, they surrendered most, if not all, of their authority in their announced appointment of an illicit body of nine Hands from their number to which they gave the appellation: "Custodians of the Bahá'í World Faith," a body completely outside the provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá. This illicitly formed body then ignominiously proceeded not only to flagrantly usurp the functions that should have been rightfully exercised by an actively functioning International Council, as Shoghi Effendi had planned, but, as announced in this same Proclamation, to shamelessly assume all of the "functions, rights and powers in succession to the Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith." Thus, this illicitly established bogus body disregarded Shoghi Effendi's projected plans for the International Council, made it subordinate to themselves, and blatantly usurped its functions as they took over direction of the National Assemblies in their prosecution of the remaining goals of the Ten Year Global Crusade.

In their further plans, the Hands announced that the body of the Custodians in which they had invested such great authority would cease to exist after its brief reign of some six years with the election of the Universal House of Justice during Ridván in 1963. Although it would be a body minus its "sacred head"-the Guardian of the Faith-and therefore a headless, fallible and illegitimate body, they nevertheless would pretend that it was nothiing less than "that Supreme body" unmindful of the further fact that its election at this stage in the evolution of the Faith was far too premature, as Shoghi Effendi's plans, embodied in the goals of the Ten Year Global Crusade had not envisaged the evolution of the International Bahá'í Council beyond its second essential stage as an International Bahá'í Court by Ridván 1963 and even then it's establishment as an International Court would be contingent upon the establishment of six national Bahá'í Courts "in the chief cities of the Islamic East" which he had named. Although, the demise of the ill-named body of the "Custodians of the Bahá'í World Faith" would, according to their plans, take place coincident with the election of their headless Universal House of Justice at Ridván 1963, they made no mention about the assumption by that illegitimate body of the "functions rights and powers in succession to the Guardian" previously usurped by these Custodians. It may have been inferred that the Hands intended that these function, rights and powers be assumed by their so-called Universal House of Justice, even though interpretation of the sacred Writings is a right reserved solely to the Guardian of the Faith according to the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá.

Joel B. Marangella
READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 04:57 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Deluded as they now were...

Deluded as they now were in this belief of their supreme authority, the Hands had the temerity to announce to the Bahá'í World in the Proclamation cited above, that they were "the supreme body of the Bahá'í World Community and yet, in the very same Proclamation, they surrendered most, if not all, of their authority in their announced appointment of an illicit body of nine Hands from their number to which they gave the appellation: "Custodians of the Bahá'í World Faith," a body completely outside the provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá. This illicitly formed body then ignominiously proceeded not only to flagrantly usurp the functions that should have been rightfully exercised by an actively functioning International Council, as Shoghi Effendi had planned, but, as announced in this same Proclamation, to shamelessly assume all of the "functions, rights and powers in succession to the Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith." Thus, this illicitly established bogus body disregarded Shoghi Effendi's projected plans for the International Council, made it subordinate to themselves, and blatantly usurped its functions as they took over direction of the National Assemblies in their prosecution of the remaining goals of the Ten Year Global Crusade.

In their further plans, the Hands announced that the body of the Custodians in which they had invested such great authority would cease to exist after its brief reign of some six years with the election of the Universal House of Justice during Ridván in 1963. Although it would be a body minus its "sacred head"-the Guardian of the Faith-and therefore a headless, fallible and illegitimate body, they nevertheless would pretend that it was nothiing less than "that Supreme body" unmindful of the further fact that its election at this stage in the evolution of the Faith was far too premature, as Shoghi Effendi's plans, embodied in the goals of the Ten Year Global Crusade had not envisaged the evolution of the International Bahá'í Council beyond its second essential stage as an International Bahá'í Court by Ridván 1963 and even then it's establishment as an International Court would be contingent upon the establishment of six national Bahá'í Courts "in the chief cities of the Islamic East" which he had named. Although, the demise of the ill-named body of the "Custodians of the Bahá'í World Faith" would, according to their plans, take place coincident with the election of their headless Universal House of Justice at Ridván 1963, they made no mention about the assumption by that illegitimate body of the "functions rights and powers in succession to the Guardian" previously usurped by these Custodians. It may have been inferred that the Hands intended that these function, rights and powers be assumed by their so-called Universal House of Justice, even though interpretation of the sacred Writings is a right reserved solely to the Guardian of the Faith according to the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá.

Joel B. Marangella
READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 04:57 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Does not that give one pause?

Did Shoghi Effendi ever discuss that a Universal House of Justice would evolve into an entity that would lack any of the Institutions prescribed by 'Abdu'l-Baha? He did not. Just by that fact alone one should be suspect of any organization claiming lineage to the Will and Testament that lacks every one of the Institutions named by 'Abdu'l-Baha. Oh, they call themselves one of the named Institutions, the Universal House of Justice, but in fact it is not a UHJ as defined by 'Abdu'l-Baha, since it lacks at its head a guardian, the only individual named by 'Abdu'l-Baha to have a mantle of infallibility. So, on what basis do they claim to be infallible? The organization posturing itself as the UHJ has to downplay the words of 'Abdu'l-Baha and Shoghi Effendi in order to remain in business, for in fact, Shoghi Effendi spent his ministry touting the Will and Testament and promoting its clauses. It can be honestly stated that he reinforced 'Abdu'l-Baha's directions and never once questioned or rescinded any of them. Does not that give one pause?

David Maxwell
READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 06:49 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Does not that give one pause?

Did Shoghi Effendi ever discuss that a Universal House of Justice would evolve into an entity that would lack any of the Institutions prescribed by 'Abdu'l-Baha? He did not. Just by that fact alone one should be suspect of any organization claiming lineage to the Will and Testament that lacks every one of the Institutions named by 'Abdu'l-Baha. Oh, they call themselves one of the named Institutions, the Universal House of Justice, but in fact it is not a UHJ as defined by 'Abdu'l-Baha, since it lacks at its head a guardian, the only individual named by 'Abdu'l-Baha to have a mantle of infallibility. So, on what basis do they claim to be infallible? The organization posturing itself as the UHJ has to downplay the words of 'Abdu'l-Baha and Shoghi Effendi in order to remain in business, for in fact, Shoghi Effendi spent his ministry touting the Will and Testament and promoting its clauses. It can be honestly stated that he reinforced 'Abdu'l-Baha's directions and never once questioned or rescinded any of them. Does not that give one pause?

David Maxwell
READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 06:49 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

How to assume the reins of authority?

Fact:

Rúhíyyih Khánum confessed in her book, Ministry of the Custodians,that she and the other Hands of the Cause had no scriptural/legitimate authority for their actions related to the formation of the body of Custodians and their headless UHJ:

"...we were faced with problems of inconceivable magnitude. How to assume the reins of authority, with no document to support us, other than the general theological statements about the Hands?"

Fact:

The sans-Guardian UHJ currently on Mt. Carmel is impotent to interpret Bahá'í Holy Writ and Holy Text, and therefore it is by bogus authority that it has diverted the payment of the Right of God, the Huqúqu'lláh, to itself rather than to the one delineated in the sacred Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá to receive it, namely the Guardian of the Cause of God.

Fact:

Shoghi Effendi never authorized the formation of a headless UHJ either by his spoken word or officially in his writings , nor even in pilgrims' notes.

By Ross Campbell

READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 08:06 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

How to assume the reins of authority?

Fact:

Rúhíyyih Khánum confessed in her book, Ministry of the Custodians,that she and the other Hands of the Cause had no scriptural/legitimate authority for their actions related to the formation of the body of Custodians and their headless UHJ:

"...we were faced with problems of inconceivable magnitude. How to assume the reins of authority, with no document to support us, other than the general theological statements about the Hands?"

Fact:

The sans-Guardian UHJ currently on Mt. Carmel is impotent to interpret Bahá'í Holy Writ and Holy Text, and therefore it is by bogus authority that it has diverted the payment of the Right of God, the Huqúqu'lláh, to itself rather than to the one delineated in the sacred Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá to receive it, namely the Guardian of the Cause of God.

Fact:

Shoghi Effendi never authorized the formation of a headless UHJ either by his spoken word or officially in his writings , nor even in pilgrims' notes.

By Ross Campbell

READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 08:06 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

I have never understood the logic....

I have never understood the logic of the bogus Universal House of Justice that justifies their position of not having a living guardian, yet claiming to be the central authority of the Bahá'í Faith. They use a segment of the Most Holy Book, the Kitáb-i-Aqdas, to give credence to their position. The line of the Aghsán (Bahá'u'lláh's sons; page 239 "God Passes By") had ended, and were thus not available for succession. But that possibility had been addressed by 'Abdu'l-Bahá (with Bahá'u'lláh's co-authorship) in His Will and Testament in His discussion of guardianship succession. He provided that another branch, with specific spiritual attributes, would be appropriate should an Aghsán not be available. The Will mentions nothing about endowments dedicated to charity among the requirements for succession. Nor does it address that a Universal House of Justice may be formed without a living guardian, and then assume the guardianship responsibilities.

The Will stipulates the manner in which a proper Universal House of Justice must be organized in order for it to comply with the Mind of Bahá'u'lláh. It additionally tells of the essentiality of the guardian of the Cause of God to provide its proper leadership in the conduct of its responsibilities. The Kitáb-i-Aqdas discusses the mechanics of neither of them. The Will does that quite adequately. Nowhere in any of the Holy Writings does it discuss that a Universal House of Justice may exist absent a living guardian, nor that the Bahá'í Faith may exist without his presence as the Center of the Covenant.

The Kitáb-i-Aqdas does indeed refer to endowments dedicated to charity as well as the Huqúq'u'lláh, the fixed money offering (the Right of God.) However, it discusses them separately, only with reference to their handling. The Huqúq'u'lláh, is to be managed within the offices of the guardian of the Cause, while endowments dedicated to charity resides with the UHJ. The two were to be managed separately, yet the bogus UHJ handles both. Neither was intended to be a vehicle for guardianship succession.

David Maxwell

READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 01:19 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

If there were any remaining doubt...

If there were any remaining doubt that Shoghi Effendi had, in fact, erected the embryonic Universal House of Justice, they had only to read his message of 30 June 1952 dispatched some six months following his appointent of the first contingent of the living Hands of the Cause on 25 December 1951, thereby establishing the Institution of the Hands of the Cause. For this message stated: "At the World Center of the Faith, where at long last the machinery of its highest institutions has been erected, and around whose most holy shrines the supreme organs of its unfolding Order, are in their embryonic form, unfolding."

Incredulous as it may now seem, the decision made by the Hands of the Cause in their first conclave held in ‘Akka, subsequent to the passing of Shoghi Effendi, would clearly reveal that in spite of the unprecedented importance and significance Shoghi Effendi had placed upon the appointment of the International Bahá’í Council as the first of the "supreme organs" of Bahá’u’lláh’s "unfolding Order," they inexcusably overlooked the importance and significance of these messages and their bearing on the question of the continuance of the Guardianship, for they never realized that Shoghi Effendi had, in fact, created the embryonic Universal House of Justice and understood that it was unquestionably a complete and perfect Institution "from the first." Moreover, they failed to realize, as did all of the believers at the time, the momentous implication to be found in Shoghi Effendi’s appointment of Mason Remey as the permanent and irremovable Head of this Institution (an appointment confirmed in his message of 2 March 1951), who, by virtue of his appointment, as its President, would become, according to the sacred and immutable provisions of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá’s Will and Testament, at such time as he presided over this body as an actively functioning Institution, none other than the Guardian of the Faith. The other eight members appointed by Shoghi Effendi to this body, although provisionally appointed at its inception, would be, as Shoghi Effendi outlined in his Proclamation of 9 January 1951, elected to this body in due course.

Joel B. Marangella

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 06:20 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

If there were any remaining doubt...

If there were any remaining doubt that Shoghi Effendi had, in fact, erected the embryonic Universal House of Justice, they had only to read his message of 30 June 1952 dispatched some six months following his appointent of the first contingent of the living Hands of the Cause on 25 December 1951, thereby establishing the Institution of the Hands of the Cause. For this message stated: "At the World Center of the Faith, where at long last the machinery of its highest institutions has been erected, and around whose most holy shrines the supreme organs of its unfolding Order, are in their embryonic form, unfolding."

Incredulous as it may now seem, the decision made by the Hands of the Cause in their first conclave held in ‘Akka, subsequent to the passing of Shoghi Effendi, would clearly reveal that in spite of the unprecedented importance and significance Shoghi Effendi had placed upon the appointment of the International Bahá’í Council as the first of the "supreme organs" of Bahá’u’lláh’s "unfolding Order," they inexcusably overlooked the importance and significance of these messages and their bearing on the question of the continuance of the Guardianship, for they never realized that Shoghi Effendi had, in fact, created the embryonic Universal House of Justice and understood that it was unquestionably a complete and perfect Institution "from the first." Moreover, they failed to realize, as did all of the believers at the time, the momentous implication to be found in Shoghi Effendi’s appointment of Mason Remey as the permanent and irremovable Head of this Institution (an appointment confirmed in his message of 2 March 1951), who, by virtue of his appointment, as its President, would become, according to the sacred and immutable provisions of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá’s Will and Testament, at such time as he presided over this body as an actively functioning Institution, none other than the Guardian of the Faith. The other eight members appointed by Shoghi Effendi to this body, although provisionally appointed at its inception, would be, as Shoghi Effendi outlined in his Proclamation of 9 January 1951, elected to this body in due course.

Joel B. Marangella

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 06:20 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Deluded as they now were...

Deluded as they now were in this belief of their supreme authority, the Hands had the temerity to announce to the Bahá'í World in the Proclamation cited above, that they were "the supreme body of the Bahá'í World Community and yet, in the very same Proclamation, they surrendered most, if not all, of their authority in their announced appointment of an illicit body of nine Hands from their number to which they gave the appellation: "Custodians of the Bahá'í World Faith," a body completely outside the provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá. This illicitly formed body then ignominiously proceeded not only to flagrantly usurp the functions that should have been rightfully exercised by an actively functioning International Council, as Shoghi Effendi had planned, but, as announced in this same Proclamation, to shamelessly assume all of the "functions, rights and powers in succession to the Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith." Thus, this illicitly established bogus body disregarded Shoghi Effendi's projected plans for the International Council, made it subordinate to themselves, and blatantly usurped its functions as they took over direction of the National Assemblies in their prosecution of the remaining goals of the Ten Year Global Crusade.

In their further plans, the Hands announced that the body of the Custodians in which they had invested such great authority would cease to exist after its brief reign of some six years with the election of the Universal House of Justice during Ridván in 1963. Although it would be a body minus its "sacred head"-the Guardian of the Faith-and therefore a headless, fallible and illegitimate body, they nevertheless would pretend that it was nothiing less than "that Supreme body" unmindful of the further fact that its election at this stage in the evolution of the Faith was far too premature, as Shoghi Effendi's plans, embodied in the goals of the Ten Year Global Crusade had not envisaged the evolution of the International Bahá'í Council beyond its second essential stage as an International Bahá'í Court by Ridván 1963 and even then it's establishment as an International Court would be contingent upon the establishment of six national Bahá'í Courts "in the chief cities of the Islamic East" which he had named. Although, the demise of the ill-named body of the "Custodians of the Bahá'í World Faith" would, according to their plans, take place coincident with the election of their headless Universal House of Justice at Ridván 1963, they made no mention about the assumption by that illegitimate body of the "functions rights and powers in succession to the Guardian" previously usurped by these Custodians. It may have been inferred that the Hands intended that these function, rights and powers be assumed by their so-called Universal House of Justice, even though interpretation of the sacred Writings is a right reserved solely to the Guardian of the Faith according to the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá.

Joel B. Marangella
READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 04:57 AM | Permalink | Comments (0)

True Bahá'í

Deluded as they now were...

Deluded as they now were in this belief of their supreme authority, the Hands had the temerity to announce to the Bahá'í World in the Proclamation cited above, that they were "the supreme body of the Bahá'í World Community and yet, in the very same Proclamation, they surrendered most, if not all, of their authority in their announced appointment of an illicit body of nine Hands from their number to which they gave the appellation: "Custodians of the Bahá'í World Faith," a body completely outside the provisions of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá. This illicitly formed body then ignominiously proceeded not only to flagrantly usurp the functions that should have been rightfully exercised by an actively functioning International Council, as Shoghi Effendi had planned, but, as announced in this same Proclamation, to shamelessly assume all of the "functions, rights and powers in succession to the Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith." Thus, this illicitly established bogus body disregarded Shoghi Effendi's projected plans for the International Council, made it subordinate to themselves, and blatantly usurped its functions as they took over direction of the National Assemblies in their prosecution of the remaining goals of the Ten Year Global Crusade.

In their further plans, the Hands announced that the body of the Custodians in which they had invested such great authority would cease to exist after its brief reign of some six years with the election of the Universal House of Justice during Ridván in 1963. Although it would be a body minus its "sacred head"-the Guardian of the Faith-and therefore a headless, fallible and illegitimate body, they nevertheless would pretend that it was nothiing less than "that Supreme body" unmindful of the further fact that its election at this stage in the evolution of the Faith was far too premature, as Shoghi Effendi's plans, embodied in the goals of the Ten Year Global Crusade had not envisaged the evolution of the International Bahá'í Council beyond its second essential stage as an International Bahá'í Court by Ridván 1963 and even then it's establishment as an International Court would be contingent upon the establishment of six national Bahá'í Courts "in the chief cities of the Islamic East" which he had named. Although, the demise of the ill-named body of the "Custodians of the Bahá'í World Faith" would, according to their plans, take place coincident with the election of their headless Universal House of Justice at Ridván 1963, they made no mention about the assumption by that illegitimate body of the "functions rights and powers in succession to the Guardian" previously usurped by these Custodians. It may have been inferred that the Hands intended that these function, rights and powers be assumed by their so-called Universal House of Justice, even though interpretation of the sacred Writings is a right reserved solely to the Guardian of the Faith according to the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá.

Joel B. Marangella
READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 04:57 AM | Permalink | Comments (0)

True Bahá'í

My fervent prayer and resolve for 2009

Sometimes I get discouraged over the fact that the Great Violation of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh has continued for about 50 years now, with no apparent end in sight as the faithless sans-Guardian Bahá'ís continue their legal assault against the small faithful band of believers who insist upon believing that Bahá'u'lláh, `Abdu'l-Bahá, and Shoghi Effendi meant what they said about the Covenant and the divine Institutions of Bahá'u'lláh's wondrous System.

But when I consider the fact that this faithless covenant-breaking on the part of most of the Baha'is of the world today really should not have come as a surprise, and that rebellion against God and His leadership has been the hallmark of religious history since the beginning of time, then it does not seem so discouraging. The faithlessness and waywardness of humanity is just part of the great battle between the Army of Light and the forces of darkness that is now upon us.

`Abdu'l-Bahá has said: "O thou who art firm in the Covenant! ...[T]he hearts are afflicted by the murky breaths of the Covenant-breakers and harmony hath decreased among the friends. Gracious God! A hundred times it hath been foretold that the violators are lying in ambush and by every means desire to cause dissension among the friends so that this dissension may end in violation of the Covenant. How is it that, notwithstanding this warning, the friends have neglected this explicit statement?" (Selections, p. 211)

Jeffrey

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 06:23 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

My fervent prayer and resolve for 2009

Sometimes I get discouraged over the fact that the Great Violation of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh has continued for about 50 years now, with no apparent end in sight as the faithless sans-Guardian Bahá'ís continue their legal assault against the small faithful band of believers who insist upon believing that Bahá'u'lláh, `Abdu'l-Bahá, and Shoghi Effendi meant what they said about the Covenant and the divine Institutions of Bahá'u'lláh's wondrous System.

But when I consider the fact that this faithless covenant-breaking on the part of most of the Baha'is of the world today really should not have come as a surprise, and that rebellion against God and His leadership has been the hallmark of religious history since the beginning of time, then it does not seem so discouraging. The faithlessness and waywardness of humanity is just part of the great battle between the Army of Light and the forces of darkness that is now upon us.

`Abdu'l-Bahá has said: "O thou who art firm in the Covenant! ...[T]he hearts are afflicted by the murky breaths of the Covenant-breakers and harmony hath decreased among the friends. Gracious God! A hundred times it hath been foretold that the violators are lying in ambush and by every means desire to cause dissension among the friends so that this dissension may end in violation of the Covenant. How is it that, notwithstanding this warning, the friends have neglected this explicit statement?" (Selections, p. 211)

Jeffrey

READ ARTICLE

Posted at 06:23 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Response to Jeffrey's post: that "luminous person and heavenly man"

Dear Jeffrey,

We know that there are many, many highly intelligent women and men amongst our separated sans-Guardian Bahá'í sisters and brothers. Why can they not discern the contrast between the true and legitimate authority of `Abdu'l-Bahá and Shoghi Effendi who wrote the following two statements, and the non-existent authority of Hands of the Cause who formed their own International Bahá'í Council to replace the legitimate Body formed by Shoghi Effendi?:

"ERE LONG, THY LORD SHALL MAKE THEE A SIGN OF GUIDANCE AMONGMANKIND" (`Abdu'l-Bahá writing to (Charles Mason Remey)

"most significant milestone in the evolution of the Administrative Order of the Faith of Bahá'u'lláh in the course of the last thirty years." and "the greatest event shedding lustre upon the second epoch of the Formative Age of the Bahá´í Dispensation potentially unsurpassed by any enterprise undertaken since the inception of the Administrative Order of the Faith on the morrow of 'Abdu'l-Bahá's Ascension, ranking second only to the glorious events associated with the Ministries of the Three Central Figures of the Faith . . ." (Shoghi Effendi, writing about his decision to form the embryonic Uiversal House of Justice, January 9th, 1951)

The IBC formed by the Hands after they illegally dismissed the President of the Council formed by the first Guardian was assigned to greet visitors to the Holy Shrines and other relatively insignificant duties,--certainly not "the greatest event shedding lustre upon the second epoch of the Formative Age of the Bahá´í Dispensation", and certainly not "...unsurpassed by any enterprise undertaken since the inception of the Administrative Order of the Faith on the morrow of 'Abdu'l-Bahá's Ascension, ranking second only to the glorious events associated with the Ministries of the Three Central Figures of the Faith . . .", and definitely not "...ranking second only to the glorious events associated with the Ministries of the Three Central Figures of the Faith . . ."

Cannot our intelligent separated sisters and brothers clearly see that a legitimate Universal House of Justice could not "evolve" out of duties such as greeting visitors to our Holy Shrines? A Universal House of Justice is a Universal Court and a legislative Body, and was officially and infallibly delineated by the first of our Guardians, Shoghi Effendi, to evolve out of an International Bahá'í Court, a stage officially identified by Shoghi Effendi to be "a necessary prelude" to efflorescence as a Universal House of Justice.

Hands of the Cause have no authority in the Bahá'í Faith, unless specifically assigned authority by a living Guardian, and the body of 'greeters' which they established was certainly not a "necessary prelude" to the efflorescence of the highest Legislative Body of the Bahá'í Faith, and the body which they established briefly was certainly not the body delineated by Shoghi Effendi to evolve to become the Legitimate Universal House of Justice complete with a "sacred head" as delineated by the Master in His sacred and immutable Will and Testament in paragraph #25. Hands of the Cause had no authority to form an International Bahá'í Council in the manner that Shoghi Effendi did. Yes, he had that true authority in the Bahá'í Faith. The Hands had none.

The fact is that a legitimate Universal House of Justice could not and did not evolve out of that band of 'greeters' formed by the renegade Hands of the Cause. The sans-Guardian Hands of the Cause even usurped authority to make their rule that Hands of the Cause could no become elected to their sans-Guardian Universal House of Justice. Hands of the Cause have no authority in the Bahá'í Faith to make rules, not to mention rules related to membership in the Highest Legislative body of the Faith.

The fact is that their bogus/headless UHJ did not "evolve" out of anything. The sans-Guardian Hands illegally, without authority to do so, simply called for the election of their illegitimate UHJ. Those elected members of that illegitimate body had no personal experience as members of an International Bahá'í Court, no body of previous legislation and experiences to draw wisdom from, no "sacred head" able to to "...insist upon a reconsideration by them of any enactment he conscientiously believes to conflict with the meaning and to depart from the spirit of Baha'u'llah's revealed utterances." in the manner that Shoghi Effendi infallibly stated that a Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith who is that "sacred head" "must" do, and no Guardian to provide "...the necessary guidance to define the sphere of the legislative action" of the elected representatives of the Faith in the manner that Shoghi Effendi taught to be a necessary feature of the Bahá'í Guardianship, of which the Faith must not be deprived.

Surely, many of our intelligent separated sisters and brothers, as soon as they see those facts articulated for them, as Orthodox Bahá'ís have been doing for decades, will quickly discern that it is obvious why Shoghi Effendi did not take the Presidency of the embryonic
Universal House of Justice for himself, but rather assigned that Station to Charles Mason Remey with the clear intention that the very International Bahá'í Council which he himself formed should, by the same stages that he himself infallibly delineated, evolve to eventually effloresce as the legitimate Universal House of Justice complete with a "sacred head" as delineated by the Master, which "sacred head" can be no other person except a living Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith. Surely they will readily understand that Shoghi Effendi neither authorized nor planned nor intended that the Body which he established should be dissolved by mutineers, its President/Head exiled, defamed and denigrated and that a bogus/headless and unguided body should be substituted in its place.

The website of the living Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith:
http://www.Bahai-Guardian.com

By Ross Campbell

Posted at 06:41 AM | Permalink | Comments (0)

True Bahá'í

Response to Jeffrey's post: that "luminous person and heavenly man"

Dear Jeffrey,

We know that there are many, many highly intelligent women and men amongst our separated sans-Guardian Bahá'í sisters and brothers. Why can they not discern the contrast between the true and legitimate authority of `Abdu'l-Bahá and Shoghi Effendi who wrote the following two statements, and the non-existent authority of Hands of the Cause who formed their own International Bahá'í Council to replace the legitimate Body formed by Shoghi Effendi?:

"ERE LONG, THY LORD SHALL MAKE THEE A SIGN OF GUIDANCE AMONGMANKIND" (`Abdu'l-Bahá writing to (Charles Mason Remey)

"most significant milestone in the evolution of the Administrative Order of the Faith of Bahá'u'lláh in the course of the last thirty years." and "the greatest event shedding lustre upon the second epoch of the Formative Age of the Bahá´í Dispensation potentially unsurpassed by any enterprise undertaken since the inception of the Administrative Order of the Faith on the morrow of 'Abdu'l-Bahá's Ascension, ranking second only to the glorious events associated with the Ministries of the Three Central Figures of the Faith . . ." (Shoghi Effendi, writing about his decision to form the embryonic Uiversal House of Justice, January 9th, 1951)

The IBC formed by the Hands after they illegally dismissed the President of the Council formed by the first Guardian was assigned to greet visitors to the Holy Shrines and other relatively insignificant duties,--certainly not "the greatest event shedding lustre upon the second epoch of the Formative Age of the Bahá´í Dispensation", and certainly not "...unsurpassed by any enterprise undertaken since the inception of the Administrative Order of the Faith on the morrow of 'Abdu'l-Bahá's Ascension, ranking second only to the glorious events associated with the Ministries of the Three Central Figures of the Faith . . .", and definitely not "...ranking second only to the glorious events associated with the Ministries of the Three Central Figures of the Faith . . ."

Cannot our intelligent separated sisters and brothers clearly see that a legitimate Universal House of Justice could not "evolve" out of duties such as greeting visitors to our Holy Shrines? A Universal House of Justice is a Universal Court and a legislative Body, and was officially and infallibly delineated by the first of our Guardians, Shoghi Effendi, to evolve out of an International Bahá'í Court, a stage officially identified by Shoghi Effendi to be "a necessary prelude" to efflorescence as a Universal House of Justice.

Hands of the Cause have no authority in the Bahá'í Faith, unless specifically assigned authority by a living Guardian, and the body of 'greeters' which they established was certainly not a "necessary prelude" to the efflorescence of the highest Legislative Body of the Bahá'í Faith, and the body which they established briefly was certainly not the body delineated by Shoghi Effendi to evolve to become the Legitimate Universal House of Justice complete with a "sacred head" as delineated by the Master in His sacred and immutable Will and Testament in paragraph #25. Hands of the Cause had no authority to form an International Bahá'í Council in the manner that Shoghi Effendi did. Yes, he had that true authority in the Bahá'í Faith. The Hands had none.

The fact is that a legitimate Universal House of Justice could not and did not evolve out of that band of 'greeters' formed by the renegade Hands of the Cause. The sans-Guardian Hands of the Cause even usurped authority to make their rule that Hands of the Cause could no become elected to their sans-Guardian Universal House of Justice. Hands of the Cause have no authority in the Bahá'í Faith to make rules, not to mention rules related to membership in the Highest Legislative body of the Faith.

The fact is that their bogus/headless UHJ did not "evolve" out of anything. The sans-Guardian Hands illegally, without authority to do so, simply called for the election of their illegitimate UHJ. Those elected members of that illegitimate body had no personal experience as members of an International Bahá'í Court, no body of previous legislation and experiences to draw wisdom from, no "sacred head" able to to "...insist upon a reconsideration by them of any enactment he conscientiously believes to conflict with the meaning and to depart from the spirit of Baha'u'llah's revealed utterances." in the manner that Shoghi Effendi infallibly stated that a Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith who is that "sacred head" "must" do, and no Guardian to provide "...the necessary guidance to define the sphere of the legislative action" of the elected representatives of the Faith in the manner that Shoghi Effendi taught to be a necessary feature of the Bahá'í Guardianship, of which the Faith must not be deprived.

Surely, many of our intelligent separated sisters and brothers, as soon as they see those facts articulated for them, as Orthodox Bahá'ís have been doing for decades, will quickly discern that it is obvious why Shoghi Effendi did not take the Presidency of the embryonic
Universal House of Justice for himself, but rather assigned that Station to Charles Mason Remey with the clear intention that the very International Bahá'í Council which he himself formed should, by the same stages that he himself infallibly delineated, evolve to eventually effloresce as the legitimate Universal House of Justice complete with a "sacred head" as delineated by the Master, which "sacred head" can be no other person except a living Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith. Surely they will readily understand that Shoghi Effendi neither authorized nor planned nor intended that the Body which he established should be dissolved by mutineers, its President/Head exiled, defamed and denigrated and that a bogus/headless and unguided body should be substituted in its place.

The website of the living Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith:
http://www.Bahai-Guardian.com

By Ross Campbell

Posted at 06:41 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Response to Jeffrey's post: that "luminous person and heavenly man"

Dear Jeffrey,

We know that there are many, many highly intelligent women and men amongst our separated sans-Guardian Bahá'í sisters and brothers. Why can they not discern the contrast between the true and legitimate authority of `Abdu'l-Bahá and Shoghi Effendi who wrote the following two statements, and the non-existent authority of Hands of the Cause who formed their own International Bahá'í Council to replace the legitimate Body formed by Shoghi Effendi?:

"ERE LONG, THY LORD SHALL MAKE THEE A SIGN OF GUIDANCE AMONGMANKIND" (`Abdu'l-Bahá writing to (Charles Mason Remey)

"most significant milestone in the evolution of the Administrative Order of the Faith of Bahá'u'lláh in the course of the last thirty years." and "the greatest event shedding lustre upon the second epoch of the Formative Age of the Bahá´í Dispensation potentially unsurpassed by any enterprise undertaken since the inception of the Administrative Order of the Faith on the morrow of 'Abdu'l-Bahá's Ascension, ranking second only to the glorious events associated with the Ministries of the Three Central Figures of the Faith . . ." (Shoghi Effendi, writing about his decision to form the embryonic Uiversal House of Justice, January 9th, 1951)

The IBC formed by the Hands after they illegally dismissed the President of the Council formed by the first Guardian was assigned to greet visitors to the Holy Shrines and other relatively insignificant duties,--certainly not "the greatest event shedding lustre upon the second epoch of the Formative Age of the Bahá´í Dispensation", and certainly not "...unsurpassed by any enterprise undertaken since the inception of the Administrative Order of the Faith on the morrow of 'Abdu'l-Bahá's Ascension, ranking second only to the glorious events associated with the Ministries of the Three Central Figures of the Faith . . .", and definitely not "...ranking second only to the glorious events associated with the Ministries of the Three Central Figures of the Faith . . ."

Cannot our intelligent separated sisters and brothers clearly see that a legitimate Universal House of Justice could not "evolve" out of duties such as greeting visitors to our Holy Shrines? A Universal House of Justice is a Universal Court and a legislative Body, and was officially and infallibly delineated by the first of our Guardians, Shoghi Effendi, to evolve out of an International Bahá'í Court, a stage officially identified by Shoghi Effendi to be "a necessary prelude" to efflorescence as a Universal House of Justice.

Hands of the Cause have no authority in the Bahá'í Faith, unless specifically assigned authority by a living Guardian, and the body of 'greeters' which they established was certainly not a "necessary prelude" to the efflorescence of the highest Legislative Body of the Bahá'í Faith, and the body which they established briefly was certainly not the body delineated by Shoghi Effendi to evolve to become the Legitimate Universal House of Justice complete with a "sacred head" as delineated by the Master in His sacred and immutable Will and Testament in paragraph #25. Hands of the Cause had no authority to form an International Bahá'í Council in the manner that Shoghi Effendi did. Yes, he had that true authority in the Bahá'í Faith. The Hands had none.

The fact is that a legitimate Universal House of Justice could not and did not evolve out of that band of 'greeters' formed by the renegade Hands of the Cause. The sans-Guardian Hands of the Cause even usurped authority to make their rule that Hands of the Cause could no become elected to their sans-Guardian Universal House of Justice. Hands of the Cause have no authority in the Bahá'í Faith to make rules, not to mention rules related to membership in the Highest Legislative body of the Faith.

The fact is that their bogus/headless UHJ did not "evolve" out of anything. The sans-Guardian Hands illegally, without authority to do so, simply called for the election of their illegitimate UHJ. Those elected members of that illegitimate body had no personal experience as members of an International Bahá'í Court, no body of previous legislation and experiences to draw wisdom from, no "sacred head" able to to "...insist upon a reconsideration by them of any enactment he conscientiously believes to conflict with the meaning and to depart from the spirit of Baha'u'llah's revealed utterances." in the manner that Shoghi Effendi infallibly stated that a Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith who is that "sacred head" "must" do, and no Guardian to provide "...the necessary guidance to define the sphere of the legislative action" of the elected representatives of the Faith in the manner that Shoghi Effendi taught to be a necessary feature of the Bahá'í Guardianship, of which the Faith must not be deprived.

Surely, many of our intelligent separated sisters and brothers, as soon as they see those facts articulated for them, as Orthodox Bahá'ís have been doing for decades, will quickly discern that it is obvious why Shoghi Effendi did not take the Presidency of the embryonic
Universal House of Justice for himself, but rather assigned that Station to Charles Mason Remey with the clear intention that the very International Bahá'í Council which he himself formed should, by the same stages that he himself infallibly delineated, evolve to eventually effloresce as the legitimate Universal House of Justice complete with a "sacred head" as delineated by the Master, which "sacred head" can be no other person except a living Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith. Surely they will readily understand that Shoghi Effendi neither authorized nor planned nor intended that the Body which he established should be dissolved by mutineers, its President/Head exiled, defamed and denigrated and that a bogus/headless and unguided body should be substituted in its place.

The website of the living Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith:
http://www.Bahai-Guardian.com

By Ross Campbell

Posted at 06:41 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

that "luminous person and heavenly man"....

"ERE LONG, THY LORD SHALL MAKE THEE A SIGN OF GUIDANCE AMONG MANKIND"

The above quotation has been extracted from a Tablet addressed to Mason Remey and may be found in the publication "Star of the West" (Vol. V, No. 19, March 2, 1915). In addition to this brilliant and unique promise made to him by ‘Abdu’l-Bahá, he was frequently eulogized by Him in other Tablets that are recorded in various issues of the "Star of the West" where, for example, He has addressed him as: "O thou enlightened beloved son," has extolled him as that "luminous person and heavenly man," and referred to "the loftiness of thy nature, the strength of thy effort and the purity of thy intentions." Moreover, He expressed His infinite love for him, stated he was confirmed "in service to the Kingdom," and informed him that his devoted labours for the Faith were "a magnet of the confirmations of the Abha Kingdom." Moreover, during ‘Abdu’l-Bahá’s visit to Philadelphia on June 8-10, 1912, this significant account is recorded in the "Star of the West":

"Mr. William Remey came in about this time and when Abdul-Baha saw him, he greeted him most warmly" and said to him, "Your brother [Mason] mentioned your name to me. You are greatly blessed by having such a brother. At present you do not know how greatly you are blessed but you will see this with your own eyes. Your whole family will be glorified; they will be proud that they have such sons as Mr. Remey and yourself."

Mason Remey’s accomplishments in his outstanding service to the Faith over a period of more than half a century were unique, manifold, marked by exemplary devotion to the Covenant, as attested by ‘Abdu’l-Bahá and recognized by Shoghi Effendi, and certainly remain unparalleled by any other male believer in the Faith to this day and include the following, to enumerate the most notable:....

Joel B. Marangella
READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 06:26 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

that "luminous person and heavenly man"....

"ERE LONG, THY LORD SHALL MAKE THEE A SIGN OF GUIDANCE AMONG MANKIND"

The above quotation has been extracted from a Tablet addressed to Mason Remey and may be found in the publication "Star of the West" (Vol. V, No. 19, March 2, 1915). In addition to this brilliant and unique promise made to him by ‘Abdu’l-Bahá, he was frequently eulogized by Him in other Tablets that are recorded in various issues of the "Star of the West" where, for example, He has addressed him as: "O thou enlightened beloved son," has extolled him as that "luminous person and heavenly man," and referred to "the loftiness of thy nature, the strength of thy effort and the purity of thy intentions." Moreover, He expressed His infinite love for him, stated he was confirmed "in service to the Kingdom," and informed him that his devoted labours for the Faith were "a magnet of the confirmations of the Abha Kingdom." Moreover, during ‘Abdu’l-Bahá’s visit to Philadelphia on June 8-10, 1912, this significant account is recorded in the "Star of the West":

"Mr. William Remey came in about this time and when Abdul-Baha saw him, he greeted him most warmly" and said to him, "Your brother [Mason] mentioned your name to me. You are greatly blessed by having such a brother. At present you do not know how greatly you are blessed but you will see this with your own eyes. Your whole family will be glorified; they will be proud that they have such sons as Mr. Remey and yourself."

Mason Remey’s accomplishments in his outstanding service to the Faith over a period of more than half a century were unique, manifold, marked by exemplary devotion to the Covenant, as attested by ‘Abdu’l-Bahá and recognized by Shoghi Effendi, and certainly remain unparalleled by any other male believer in the Faith to this day and include the following, to enumerate the most notable:....

Joel B. Marangella
READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 06:26 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The false actions of the sans-Guardian UHJ expose their false interpretations

In Jeffrey's post entitled: “the embryo possesses from the first all perfections . . . " he has quoted a message from the third Guardian which discusses a letter written by Shoghi Effendi:

"Shoghi Effendi had addressed a letter to the United Nations Special Palestine Committee in July 1947 and, in discussing the Bahá’í Administrative Order, he had referred to his plans to establish this International Council in stating that: “the foundations are now being laid by the national and local councils” and are “paving the way for the constitution of the World Council, to be designated as the Universal House of Justice, which, in conjunction with me, as its appointed Head and the authorized interpreter of the Bahá’í teachings, must coordinate and direct the affairs of the Bahá’í community . . .”

We all know well the common proverbial expression: "Actions speak louder than words."

Here, as quoted, are the words of Shoghi Effendi:

“the foundations are now being laid by the national and local councils” and are “paving the way for the constitution of the World Council, to be designated as the Universal House of Justice, which, in conjunction with me, as its appointed Head and the authorized interpreter of the Bahá’í teachings, must coordinate and direct the affairs of the Bahá’í community . . .”

And here are decades of actions by the sans-Guardian/heterodox Bahá’í administration of Mt.Carmel/ Wilmette:

'the foundations are now being laid by the national and local councils' and are 'paving the way for the constitution of the World Council, to be designated as the Universal House of Justice, which, without me, as its appointed Head and without an authorized interpreter of the Bahá’í teachings, must, alone, coordinate and direct the affairs of the Bahá’í community . . .'

Take note that the double quotation marks enclosing Shoghi Effendi's exact official teaching have been replaced by single quotation marks in the version which expresses the bogus UHJ's false interpretation by its actions, which false interpretation of those vital words of the first of our Guardians, the illegitimate UHJ on Mt. Carmel has been foisting upon the Bahá’í world for more than forty years.

Clearly, as observed in Shoghi Effendi's official 1947 letter to the United Nations Special Palestine Committee, he foresaw and taught that an authorized interpreter of the Bahá’í teachings would be necessary to "coordinate and direct the affairs of the Bahá’í community . . .” while a legitimate Universal House of Justice is operational.

That official statement by Shoghi Effendi, the first of our Bahá’í Guardians, exposes to be utter nonsense and abject error the comment often written and spoken by heterodox Bahá’ís that the interpretations of the Bahá’í Writings made by Shoghi Effendi before he died are sufficient/adequate to guide Bahá’ís and humankind during all of the remaining centuries of this Holy Bahá’í Dispensation.

And that foolish comment has been repeated so many, many times by heterodox Bahá'í believers that it is impossible that their leaders and bogus UHJ members could deny knowledge of that commonly held view amongst their adherents/followers, and yet they conspicuously neglect to rebuke that utterly foolish and spiritually dangerous comment which is so totally in violation and conflict with the official teaching of the first of our Guardians quoted above.

And by their very actions they have continuously supported that false comment.

Such negligence which has been consistently displayed by the bogus UHJ currently on Mt. Carmel for decades is the very essence of apostasy.

The website of the living Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith:
http://www.Bahai-Guardian.com

Ross Campbell

Posted at 02:07 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

their appalling and inexcusable ignorance

Every Bahá’í who has read the writings of Shoghi Effendi in the Dispensation of Bahá’u’lláh will have noted that he has referred to the Will and Testament of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá as "the Child of the Covenant—the Heir of both the Originator and Interpreter of the Law of God" and that, in view of this spiritual relationship, this sacred and divinely-conceived Document is to be regarded, not only as the Will of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá but that of Bahá’u’lláh, as well, and therefore, as Shoghi Effendi has emphasized, should actually be considered as "their Will." Would such a divinely-conceived Document become null and void thirty-six years after the inception of the Administrative Order to which it gave birth?

Furthermore, Shoghi Effendi has equated the Will and Testament of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá, in its sacredness and immutability, with Bahá’u’lláh’s Most Holy Book, the Kitáb-i-Aqdas, in stating that these two "sacred documents" are "not only complementary" but "they mutually confirm one another and are inseparable parts of one complete unit." In view of that statement, it should be crystal clear that the terms of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá’s Will are as immutable and as inviolate as the laws of Bahá’u’lláh in the Kitáb-i-Aqdas, and are accordingly destined to endure and remain unchanged as long as the Dispensation of Bahá’u’lláh endures. Moreover, Shoghi Effendi has consistently and repeatedly emphasized in his writings the essentiality and indispensability of the institution of the Guardianship to the establishment of the World Order of Bahá’u’lláh.

In the light of the sacredness and immutability of the Will and Testament of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá, as emphasized by Shoghi Effendi in the above quoted statements, it is incomprehensible that the Hands of the Cause, the last contingent of whom had been appointed by Shoghi Effendi in the very last cablegram he dispatched to the Bahá’í World in October 1957, would have not only completely ignored these writings during the conclave they convened in ‘Akká, following Shoghi Effendi’s passing in London, England on 4 November 1957 but would have revealed, as well, their appalling and inexcusable ignorance of the provisions of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá’s Will and Testament....

Joel B. Marangella
READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 07:30 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

their appalling and inexcusable ignorance

Every Bahá’í who has read the writings of Shoghi Effendi in the Dispensation of Bahá’u’lláh will have noted that he has referred to the Will and Testament of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá as "the Child of the Covenant—the Heir of both the Originator and Interpreter of the Law of God" and that, in view of this spiritual relationship, this sacred and divinely-conceived Document is to be regarded, not only as the Will of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá but that of Bahá’u’lláh, as well, and therefore, as Shoghi Effendi has emphasized, should actually be considered as "their Will." Would such a divinely-conceived Document become null and void thirty-six years after the inception of the Administrative Order to which it gave birth?

Furthermore, Shoghi Effendi has equated the Will and Testament of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá, in its sacredness and immutability, with Bahá’u’lláh’s Most Holy Book, the Kitáb-i-Aqdas, in stating that these two "sacred documents" are "not only complementary" but "they mutually confirm one another and are inseparable parts of one complete unit." In view of that statement, it should be crystal clear that the terms of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá’s Will are as immutable and as inviolate as the laws of Bahá’u’lláh in the Kitáb-i-Aqdas, and are accordingly destined to endure and remain unchanged as long as the Dispensation of Bahá’u’lláh endures. Moreover, Shoghi Effendi has consistently and repeatedly emphasized in his writings the essentiality and indispensability of the institution of the Guardianship to the establishment of the World Order of Bahá’u’lláh.

In the light of the sacredness and immutability of the Will and Testament of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá, as emphasized by Shoghi Effendi in the above quoted statements, it is incomprehensible that the Hands of the Cause, the last contingent of whom had been appointed by Shoghi Effendi in the very last cablegram he dispatched to the Bahá’í World in October 1957, would have not only completely ignored these writings during the conclave they convened in ‘Akká, following Shoghi Effendi’s passing in London, England on 4 November 1957 but would have revealed, as well, their appalling and inexcusable ignorance of the provisions of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá’s Will and Testament....

Joel B. Marangella
READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 07:30 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

there was no mention whatsoever that ‘Abdu’l-Bahá was the divinely-inspired Architect

Recently a magazine has been placed in my hands titled: “THE BAHÁ’ÍS” published by the “Office of Public Information of the Bahá’í International Community” of the heterodox Bahá’í organization and distributed by the heterodox Bahá’í Publishing Trust of the United States. It was published initially in 1992 and reprinted in 1999 and undoubtedly has since been reprinted.

It is an attractive 80 page magazine obviously designed primarily to appeal to the non-Bahá’í reader containing nine principal articles on various aspects of the Faith and many photographs in colour of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá, Shoghi Effendi, former Hands of the Cause, the members of the first illegitimate Universal House of Justice, the holy Shrines, the several Bahá’í Temples, and various Bahá’í groups.

The article that has particularly caught my attention is one titled: “A System for Global Governance” with the subtitle, “The Bahá’í Administrative Order” comprising some three pages interspersed with several photographs. Perhaps I should not have been shocked, upon reading this article, written to inform the non-Bahá’í reader about the Bahá’í Administrative Order of the Faith, although I was, when I noted that that there was no mention whatsoever that ‘Abdu’l-Bahá was the divinely-inspired Architect of that Order.

However, as the articles in this publication are all written by heterodox Bahá’ís who believe that the Guardianship ended with the passing of Shoghi Effendi, it should have come as no surprise that they would omit any reference to the Will and Testament of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá for fear that if that sacred and divinely-conceived Document were to be reviewed by the same readers, they would inevitably perceive the essentiality and indispensability of the Institution of the Guardianship to the World Order of Bahá’u’lláh. For they would discover that ‘Abdu’l-Bahá had made the Guardian of the Cause of God not only the “Center of the Cause,” assisted by Hands of the Cause appointed solely by him, but had been endowed with the exclusive right of interpreting Bahá’í Holy Writ and been made the “sacred head” of the supreme administrative body of the Faith—the Universal House of Justice— which under their administrative organization was now a headless body.

Joel B. Marangella

READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 08:34 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

there was no mention whatsoever that ‘Abdu’l-Bahá was the divinely-inspired Architect

Recently a magazine has been placed in my hands titled: “THE BAHÁ’ÍS” published by the “Office of Public Information of the Bahá’í International Community” of the heterodox Bahá’í organization and distributed by the heterodox Bahá’í Publishing Trust of the United States. It was published initially in 1992 and reprinted in 1999 and undoubtedly has since been reprinted.

It is an attractive 80 page magazine obviously designed primarily to appeal to the non-Bahá’í reader containing nine principal articles on various aspects of the Faith and many photographs in colour of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá, Shoghi Effendi, former Hands of the Cause, the members of the first illegitimate Universal House of Justice, the holy Shrines, the several Bahá’í Temples, and various Bahá’í groups.

The article that has particularly caught my attention is one titled: “A System for Global Governance” with the subtitle, “The Bahá’í Administrative Order” comprising some three pages interspersed with several photographs. Perhaps I should not have been shocked, upon reading this article, written to inform the non-Bahá’í reader about the Bahá’í Administrative Order of the Faith, although I was, when I noted that that there was no mention whatsoever that ‘Abdu’l-Bahá was the divinely-inspired Architect of that Order.

However, as the articles in this publication are all written by heterodox Bahá’ís who believe that the Guardianship ended with the passing of Shoghi Effendi, it should have come as no surprise that they would omit any reference to the Will and Testament of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá for fear that if that sacred and divinely-conceived Document were to be reviewed by the same readers, they would inevitably perceive the essentiality and indispensability of the Institution of the Guardianship to the World Order of Bahá’u’lláh. For they would discover that ‘Abdu’l-Bahá had made the Guardian of the Cause of God not only the “Center of the Cause,” assisted by Hands of the Cause appointed solely by him, but had been endowed with the exclusive right of interpreting Bahá’í Holy Writ and been made the “sacred head” of the supreme administrative body of the Faith—the Universal House of Justice— which under their administrative organization was now a headless body.

Joel B. Marangella

READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 08:34 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

They hung on to any flimsy straw that they could

Rúhíyyih Khánum and the former Hands who followed her in violation of the Covenant, as well as the headless and spiritually dead body that they created, all followed a common pattern in which they projected a picture of Shoghi Effendi, the first Guardian of the Cause of God, as a weak, irresponsible and careless person who was unfaithful to the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá, and without being vouchsafed divine guidance, inspiration, and the protection of God.

They hung on to any flimsy straw that they could to say that he did not fulfill his divine obligation of appointing his successor during his own lifetime. This is in contradiction to many of the writings of Ruhiyyih Khanum and the former Hands and those who now run the bogus UHJ, who, on the one hand, attest to his spirituality, preeminence, precision, hard working and undoubted faithfulness to the provisions of the Will and Testament, while, on the other, they ignore the fact that Shoghi Effendi had, in strict and faithful accordance with that sacred Document appointed "in his own lifetime him that shall become his successor."

Nosrat

READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 06:09 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

"[they] who have named ignorance knowledge, and called oppression justice"

"Those words uttered by the Luminaries of Truth must needs be pondered, and should their significance be not grasped, enlightenment should be sought from the Trustees of the depositories of Knowledge, that these may expound their meaning, and unravel their mystery. For it behooveth no man to interpret the holy words according to his own imperfect understanding, nor having found them to be contrary to his inclination and desires to reject and repudiate their truth. For such, today, is the manner of the divines and doctors of the age, who occupy the seats of knowledge and learning, and who have named ignorance knowledge, and called oppression justice." Kitáb-i-Iqán (p.182)

Similarly to Muhammad Who, in referring to the Imams who were destined to succeed Him and be the sole interpreters of His word, stated in the Qu'ran: "Ask ye therefore, of them that have the custody of the Scriptures, if ye know it not." Bahá'u'lláh has likewise cautioned "no man to interpret the holy words according to his own imperfect understanding..." or "contrary to his inclination and desires..." and has enjoined those who do not grasp the significance of the revealed Word to seek enlightenment from the "Trustees of the depositories of Knowledge" (the depositories of Knowledge being their revealed Writings).

It is obvious that these Trustees (note the plurality) must be living to provide this sole source of interpretation as long as the Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh endures. Is it not clear, therefore, that Bahá'u'lláh promised that there would be this continued source of interpretation following the Ascension of `Abdu'l-Bahá? And, therefore, `Abdu'l-Bahá provided for this continuing source of interpretation in the Institution of the Guardianship in His Will and Testament, a sacred Document that should actually be considered a part of the immutable explicit holy Text and nothing less than "Their Will" for, as Shoghi Effendi has explained in his work God Passes By : "This Instrument can, if we would correctly appraise it, no more be divorced from the One Who provided the motivating impulse for its creation than from Him Who directly conceived it."

Yet, in complete disregard of the foregoing, this divinely-conceived, co-authored, immutable and sacred Document has been shamefully and inexplicably repudiated by those who contend that the Guardianship of the Cause of God has come to and end only thirty-six years after the inception of the Administrative Order "fashioned by the hand of its perfect Architect" in which the Guardian has been designated both the Head of the Faith and the "sacred head for life" of its supreme legislative Organ.

Joel B. Marangella
READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 07:44 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

"[they] who have named ignorance knowledge, and called oppression justice"

"Those words uttered by the Luminaries of Truth must needs be pondered, and should their significance be not grasped, enlightenment should be sought from the Trustees of the depositories of Knowledge, that these may expound their meaning, and unravel their mystery. For it behooveth no man to interpret the holy words according to his own imperfect understanding, nor having found them to be contrary to his inclination and desires to reject and repudiate their truth. For such, today, is the manner of the divines and doctors of the age, who occupy the seats of knowledge and learning, and who have named ignorance knowledge, and called oppression justice." Kitáb-i-Iqán (p.182)

Similarly to Muhammad Who, in referring to the Imams who were destined to succeed Him and be the sole interpreters of His word, stated in the Qu'ran: "Ask ye therefore, of them that have the custody of the Scriptures, if ye know it not." Bahá'u'lláh has likewise cautioned "no man to interpret the holy words according to his own imperfect understanding..." or "contrary to his inclination and desires..." and has enjoined those who do not grasp the significance of the revealed Word to seek enlightenment from the "Trustees of the depositories of Knowledge" (the depositories of Knowledge being their revealed Writings).

It is obvious that these Trustees (note the plurality) must be living to provide this sole source of interpretation as long as the Dispensation of Bahá'u'lláh endures. Is it not clear, therefore, that Bahá'u'lláh promised that there would be this continued source of interpretation following the Ascension of `Abdu'l-Bahá? And, therefore, `Abdu'l-Bahá provided for this continuing source of interpretation in the Institution of the Guardianship in His Will and Testament, a sacred Document that should actually be considered a part of the immutable explicit holy Text and nothing less than "Their Will" for, as Shoghi Effendi has explained in his work God Passes By : "This Instrument can, if we would correctly appraise it, no more be divorced from the One Who provided the motivating impulse for its creation than from Him Who directly conceived it."

Yet, in complete disregard of the foregoing, this divinely-conceived, co-authored, immutable and sacred Document has been shamefully and inexplicably repudiated by those who contend that the Guardianship of the Cause of God has come to and end only thirty-six years after the inception of the Administrative Order "fashioned by the hand of its perfect Architect" in which the Guardian has been designated both the Head of the Faith and the "sacred head for life" of its supreme legislative Organ.

Joel B. Marangella
READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 07:44 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

those words of the first Guardian all count

Yes, as Bahá'ís, we might expect Christians to make such a statement or other religionists or their leaders. However, could any true Bahá'í expect her/his fellow Bahá'ís to make or to endorse/support such a statement or attitude of negation and contradiction towards the official written words of the first of our Guardians, Shoghi Effendi?

Concerning those quoted words of Shoghi Effendi recorded in God Passes By, " the most brilliant and wondrous tale of a century that has ever been told", of which history Rúhíyyih Khánum wrote :

"...every word counts"

"...each design perfect in itself",

Orthodox Bahá'ís certainly believe his words.

Evidently Rúhíyyih Khánum believed neither Shoghi Effendi's words, nor even her own words which she wrote concerning his words recorded in God Passes By. He wrote very specificaly about the hereditary Guardianship of the Bahá'í Faith and its accompanying power and authority to interpret "the words of God", which " must and will, in a manner unparalleled in any previous religion, safeguard from schism the Faith from which it has sprung."

Othodox Bahá'ís believe that those words of the first Guardian all count.

Heterodox Bahá'ís demonstrate by their words and actions that they believe that his words do not count.

Ross Campbell

READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 07:38 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Appellate Briefs and Oral Argument Available Online

The NSA's appeal of Judge St. Eve's decision in favor of the Orthodox Bahá'ís has been proceeding before the United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit in Chicago, Illinois.

The case has been fully briefed and the parties argued in Chicago Illinois on 20 February 2009 before a panel of Judges of the Court of Appeals: the Honorable Daniel A. Manion, the Honorable William J. Bauer, and the Honorable Diane S. Sykes.

Appearing on behalf of the Orthodox Bahá'ís was James McClymonds, a New York attorney who is the grandson of A.S. Petzoldt, the chairman of the NSA under the Hereditary Guardianship (under Mason Remey) and whose deposition was taken by the NSA in the original case. James was a small child when his grandfather expressed the wish that someone would one day come forward to overturn the outrageous judgment that the Wilmette NSA had obtained against Remey's NSA.

The appellate briefs and a recording of the oral argument are public documents available on the Court of Appeal's web site. For links to the briefs and recording and more information about the case brought by the Wilmette NSA in an attempt to prevent the Orthodox Bahá'ís from using the name "Bahá'í" and from using the Greatest Name symbols, click here:

http://www.truebahai.com/court_case.html

Jeffrey

Posted at 11:34 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Appellate Briefs and Oral Argument Available Online

The NSA's appeal of Judge St. Eve's decision in favor of the Orthodox Bahá'ís has been proceeding before the United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit in Chicago, Illinois.

The case has been fully briefed and the parties argued in Chicago Illinois on 20 February 2009 before a panel of Judges of the Court of Appeals: the Honorable Daniel A. Manion, the Honorable William J. Bauer, and the Honorable Diane S. Sykes.

Appearing on behalf of the Orthodox Bahá'ís was James McClymonds, a New York attorney who is the grandson of A.S. Petzoldt, the chairman of the NSA under the Hereditary Guardianship (under Mason Remey) and whose deposition was taken by the NSA in the original case. James was a small child when his grandfather expressed the wish that someone would one day come forward to overturn the outrageous judgment that the Wilmette NSA had obtained against Remey's NSA.

The appellate briefs and a recording of the oral argument are public documents available on the Court of Appeal's web site. For links to the briefs and recording and more information about the case brought by the Wilmette NSA in an attempt to prevent the Orthodox Bahá'ís from using the name "Bahá'í" and from using the Greatest Name symbols, click here:

http://www.truebahai.com/court_case.html

Jeffrey

Posted at 11:34 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The true colors of Wilmette NSA come out under questioning by Court of Appeals

The oral arguments of the Wilmette NSA's appeal of Judge St. Eve's decision favoring the Orthodox Baha'is was held on 20 February 2009 in Chicago Illinois. For more information about this court case, brought by the Wilmette NSA against the Orthodox Baha'is, go here: http://www.truebahai.com/court_case.html

Here is a transcript of part of the exchange between Mr. Handelman, the attorney for the NSA, and a couple of the Judges of the Court of Appeals. No matter how hard he tried to obfuscate the outrageous position of the NSA, the Judges carefully questioned him and exposed the oppressive and fascist nature of the NSA's position, and it is here for all the world to see.

Here is part of the oral argument. Enjoy:

Jeffery A. Handelman, for Defendant-Appellant National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the United States: The principle we are here advancing today has been adopted by other courts of appeals and that is that a-- while the general rule is that a nonparty cannot be bound by an injunction issued in a case in which it wasn't named as a party, there are -- there is an important exception to that general rule and that is a nonparty is bound by an injunction if he is legally identified with the defendant corporation...

Judge William J. Bauer: Do you know of any case involving that particular rule that you enunciated to us in a civil rights case?

Handelman: Your honor, there are a couple of cases on point, the Federal Circuit in Additive Controls addressed this question of what do you do in applying an injunction when the corporate defendant has been dissolved.

Judge Bauer: That had to do with a patent infringement case?

Handelman: That is correct.

Judge Bauer: Other than a patent infringement case, do you have anything besides-- civil rights cases that involve that theory that you just enunciated?

Handelman: The two cases we rely on-- one is a patent infringement case Additive Controls. The other one is a trademark infringement case

Judge Bauer: Also from the Circuit?

Handelman: That is from the First Circuit

Judge Bauer: The First Circuit?

Handelman: Correct. Both of these cases draw on, first of all, the fact that Rule 65d codified the common law in this regard and so Justice Jackson in the Regal Knitwear case summarized Rule 65d: "is derived from the common law doctrine that a decree of injunction not only binds the parties defendant but also those identified with them in interest."

Judge Bauer: Let me intrude myself again. Was the original injunction a consent decree or was it a fought out battle?

Handelman: No the scenario leading to the injunction, the...

Judge Bauer: No, all I ask is a very simple question. Did Judge Austin formulate this decree himself or was it a consent decree?

Handelman: It was not a consent decree.

Judge Bauer: OK

Handelman: There were findings of fact and conclusions of law...

Judge Bauer: Based on a contested argument before, and presentation of evidence before Judge Austin?

Handelman: The... my understanding is that the NSA...

Judge Bauer: See you weren't around in those days. I was.

Handelman: But your Honor Judge Austin.. Bare in mind this was the counterclaim, the original was, was against the NSA. The trademark infringement claim was brought by way of a counterclaim. So they started it. We responded and there was a findings of fact and conclusions of law entered by Judge Aspen.

Judge Bauer: After a hearing?

Handelman: I do not know if there was testimony at the hearing. I do not believe there was testimony given at the hearing by both sides but Judge Austin...

Judge Bauer: What was the predicate for the decision? Stipulation of facts?

Handelman: No, there was no stipulation, the NSA...

Judge Bauer: Then how did he arrive at a decree at all?

Handelman: The uh, I believe, the NSA submitted, appeared at the hearing and presented Judge Austin. I don't know if there was live testimony at the hearing or not but it presented evidence on which the findings and conclusions were based.

Judge Bauer: What evidence did they and how did they present it?

Handelman: Well, for example, the deposition of the chairman of the UHG was taken and submitted to the Court, so we had the deposition...

Judge Bauer: Accepted by both sides as factually true?

Handelman: The testimony was sworn deposition testimony of the Chairman.

Judge Bauer: There is sworn testimony on each side of the case normally but I want to know, how did Judge Austin arrive at the conclusion if there was no presentation of live witnesses?

Handelman: Um

Judge Bauer: Was it a stipulation of facts? In which case..

Handelman: No I do not believe it was a stipulation, your honor. We can look into whether Judge Bauer: It was a question of fact, and he made a resolution based on affidavits?

Handelman: If I could look into that and get back to you I would prefer to do that.

Judge Bauer: I have no idea how the decree came to be, thats my problem

Handelman: OK

Judge Diane S. Sykes: Do you know whether the constitutionality of issuing such an Injunction was litigated, given the religious context?

Handelman: Yeah, I believe Judge Austin made explicit findings that the trademark laws apply equally to religious organizations and commercial organizations and that this, this case involved a blatant infringement of trademark rights that were recognized under federal law.

Judge Sykes: The legal landscape in this area of course has changed since then. We are talking of, about an injunction issued 40 years ago and the Supreme Court, in the meantime has issued the Presbyterian Church case that talks about the principles, the neutral principles doctrine that needs to be applied in this context, and of course that case wasn't on the books at the time.

Handelman: That is correct your honor. With respect to, first of all the validity of the trademark and the finding of infringement, those issues are not open to be retried in the context of a contempt proceeding as a prefatory matter, but beyond that the law is well settled that religious organizations as I mentioned are entitled to the protection of the trademark laws and in this case...

Judge Sykes: But they are not entitled to a judicial declaration that their church is the one true church and thats what Judge Austin said.

Handelman: Well if, your honor, in the context of a religious case under the Lanham Act, the mark is valid. There is no per se rule against trademark protection in the religious organization context. What you look at is whether the mark in question signifies affiliation or membership with a single organization and in this case the National Spiritual Assembly has a three tiered administrative structure as is laid out in the briefs. You have the Universal House of Justice at the highest level, you have the national spiritual assemblies at the intermediate level of which there are 183 worldwide, and then you have the local spiritual assembly. The Baha'i mark is federally registered, is extensively used, was federally registered at the time of the original injunction, and it signifies members who are affiliated with national spiritual assemblies authorized by the Universal House of Justice in Haifa. Now whats happening in this case, the Alleged Contemnors, are through their web sites calling themselves the official, in one case, the SIBC has a web site where it calls itself the official Universal House of Justice, and as a result prospective members are going to that site thinking they are contacting our client, the Universal House of Justice in Haifa Israel, when they are not. They are also believing that the content on the site is approved by the Universal House of Justice, when it is not. And this is precisely the harm that the Lanham Act is intended to prevent and Professor McCarthy in his treatise recognizes as much, and if I could quote briefly: "If a parent religious society remains true to the tenets of the religion it is entitled to protection against the minority's use of the same name. For example, a preliminary injunction can be obtained by the Mother Church against a local which has disaffiliated as it stops paying to the Mother Church and the rationale makes sense because without a preliminary injunction the Mother Church would be outside of..."

Judge Bauer: Who are you quoting at the moment?

Handelman: Professor McCarthy, his treatise on Trademark and Unfair Competition. So he is recognizing...

Judge Bauer: He is recognizing but the Supreme Court is more significant than Professer McCarthy is I would suspect, wouldn't you?

Handelman: But the point is that this case does not call upon this Court to evaluate religious doctrine. It calls upon this Court to apply the Lanham Act to religious organizations which has been done before.

Judge Sykes: Well to the extent that you are reading the injunction as prohibiting anyone other than the NSA from using the word Baha'i in the title of the religious organization's name, um, that clearly raises some constitutional concerns. Is that how you are reading the injunction? That you have exclusive, that your client has exclusive rights to the term Baha'i and no schismatic organization, schismatic group,breakaway group could ever use it into perpetuity in the United States?

Handelman: As long as the trademark rights are valid and federally registered and not abandoned, that is correct, as Professor...

Judge Sykes: The word Baha'i? So to use a hypothetical. Someone could copyright Christianity. Somebody could copyright Judaism, and that would prohibit anybody else from using that terminology in the title of their religious organization?

Handelman: No, each, each religious name or

Judge Sykes: I am sorry, not copyright, trademark.

Handelman: Yeah, each religious name or mark has to be evaluated on its own merits. There is no blanket...

Judge Sykes: But whats the response to the hypothetical, though?

Handelman: The hypothetical is yes, we. In other words a splinter group that is not affiliated with the National Spiritual Assembly authorized by the Universal House of Justice is not permitted to use the term Baha'i in a way where it is holding itself out as being affiliated with the group headed by and authorized by the Universal House of Justice.

Judge Sykes: Well that's, that's, different. But they can use the word Baha'i in the name of their new church, but they just can't use it in a way that implies affiliation with the Mother Church.

Handelman: That is correct. They cannot, cannot confuse the public into believing that they are affiliated with the Mother church when they are not, particularly where, as here, their doctrines are in many cases antithetical to those espoused by the Mother Church.

Judge Sykes: What could they call themselves and escape liability for contempt?

Handelman: They would have to use a non-confusingly similar name because they are not...

Judge Sykes: Can they use the word Baha'i?

Handelman: It would depend on-- not if it suggested affiliation with the Mother Church.

Judge Bauer: How about Reform Baha'i? Can they use that term?

Handelman: That would be a hypothetical that...

Judge Bauer: That's my hypothetical...

Handelman: It would...

Judge Bauer: And I want a hypothetical answer.

Handelman: If the use suggested affiliation...

Judge Bauer: I just gave it to you. Reform Baha'i.

Handelman: No that. Under the injunction, that would be prohibited. The injunction...

Judge Bauer: Yeah, I read the Injunction. I just don't know how it came to be. But you're going to enlighten me on that subject.

Handelman: So the injunction would prohibit a use likely to cause confusion as to affiliation.

Judge Bauer persistently questioned Mr. Handelman on how the 1966 injunction was entered and Mr. Handelman evades the fundamental truth that only the NSA appeared at the "hearing" and that the Remey organization did not appear and put on evidence (for some unknown reason). We know that the Remey NSA was unaware of the hearing and did not know of the Judgment until several days later. Mr. Handelman later admitted that only the NSA appeared which means the Injunction was effectively entered by "default"

Funny thing is Mr. Handelman quotes from Professor McCarthy that "If a parent religious society remains true to the tenets of the religion it is entitled to protection against the minority's use of the same name." Of course, the Wilmette NSA does NOT REMAIN TRUE to the tenets of the religion as the Orthodox Baha'is are constantly pointing out.

We do not know how the Court will rule, but clearly the Judges of the 7th Circuit are not fooled by the NSA's obfuscation. The NSA wants the Courts to enforce their belief that they are the one and only Baha'i Faith, and the NSA has proved itself to be in contempt of the basic religious freedoms of this country, even while they publicly whine about similarly motivated persecution against them in Iran, a country that does not have the same traditions of freedom of religion.

The true colors of the NSA come out here. They would trample over our freedom of religion and the Bill of Rights of the U.S. constitution. This is the World Order they seek to impose upon the unsuspecting peoples of the world.

Jeffrey

Posted at 09:57 AM | Permalink | Comments (0)

True Bahá'í

The true colors of Wilmette NSA come out under questioning by Court of Appeals

The oral arguments of the Wilmette NSA's appeal of Judge St. Eve's decision favoring the Orthodox Baha'is was held on 20 February 2009 in Chicago Illinois. For more information about this court case, brought by the Wilmette NSA against the Orthodox Baha'is, go here: http://www.truebahai.com/court_case.html

Here is a transcript of part of the exchange between Mr. Handelman, the attorney for the NSA, and a couple of the Judges of the Court of Appeals. No matter how hard he tried to obfuscate the outrageous position of the NSA, the Judges carefully questioned him and exposed the oppressive and fascist nature of the NSA's position, and it is here for all the world to see.

Here is part of the oral argument. Enjoy:

Jeffery A. Handelman, for Defendant-Appellant National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the United States: The principle we are here advancing today has been adopted by other courts of appeals and that is that a-- while the general rule is that a nonparty cannot be bound by an injunction issued in a case in which it wasn't named as a party, there are -- there is an important exception to that general rule and that is a nonparty is bound by an injunction if he is legally identified with the defendant corporation...

Judge William J. Bauer: Do you know of any case involving that particular rule that you enunciated to us in a civil rights case?

Handelman: Your honor, there are a couple of cases on point, the Federal Circuit in Additive Controls addressed this question of what do you do in applying an injunction when the corporate defendant has been dissolved.

Judge Bauer: That had to do with a patent infringement case?

Handelman: That is correct.

Judge Bauer: Other than a patent infringement case, do you have anything besides-- civil rights cases that involve that theory that you just enunciated?

Handelman: The two cases we rely on-- one is a patent infringement case Additive Controls. The other one is a trademark infringement case

Judge Bauer: Also from the Circuit?

Handelman: That is from the First Circuit

Judge Bauer: The First Circuit?

Handelman: Correct. Both of these cases draw on, first of all, the fact that Rule 65d codified the common law in this regard and so Justice Jackson in the Regal Knitwear case summarized Rule 65d: "is derived from the common law doctrine that a decree of injunction not only binds the parties defendant but also those identified with them in interest."

Judge Bauer: Let me intrude myself again. Was the original injunction a consent decree or was it a fought out battle?

Handelman: No the scenario leading to the injunction, the...

Judge Bauer: No, all I ask is a very simple question. Did Judge Austin formulate this decree himself or was it a consent decree?

Handelman: It was not a consent decree.

Judge Bauer: OK

Handelman: There were findings of fact and conclusions of law...

Judge Bauer: Based on a contested argument before, and presentation of evidence before Judge Austin?

Handelman: The... my understanding is that the NSA...

Judge Bauer: See you weren't around in those days. I was.

Handelman: But your Honor Judge Austin.. Bare in mind this was the counterclaim, the original was, was against the NSA. The trademark infringement claim was brought by way of a counterclaim. So they started it. We responded and there was a findings of fact and conclusions of law entered by Judge Aspen.

Judge Bauer: After a hearing?

Handelman: I do not know if there was testimony at the hearing. I do not believe there was testimony given at the hearing by both sides but Judge Austin...

Judge Bauer: What was the predicate for the decision? Stipulation of facts?

Handelman: No, there was no stipulation, the NSA...

Judge Bauer: Then how did he arrive at a decree at all?

Handelman: The uh, I believe, the NSA submitted, appeared at the hearing and presented Judge Austin. I don't know if there was live testimony at the hearing or not but it presented evidence on which the findings and conclusions were based.

Judge Bauer: What evidence did they and how did they present it?

Handelman: Well, for example, the deposition of the chairman of the UHG was taken and submitted to the Court, so we had the deposition...

Judge Bauer: Accepted by both sides as factually true?

Handelman: The testimony was sworn deposition testimony of the Chairman.

Judge Bauer: There is sworn testimony on each side of the case normally but I want to know, how did Judge Austin arrive at the conclusion if there was no presentation of live witnesses?

Handelman: Um

Judge Bauer: Was it a stipulation of facts? In which case..

Handelman: No I do not believe it was a stipulation, your honor. We can look into whether Judge Bauer: It was a question of fact, and he made a resolution based on affidavits?

Handelman: If I could look into that and get back to you I would prefer to do that.

Judge Bauer: I have no idea how the decree came to be, thats my problem

Handelman: OK

Judge Diane S. Sykes: Do you know whether the constitutionality of issuing such an Injunction was litigated, given the religious context?

Handelman: Yeah, I believe Judge Austin made explicit findings that the trademark laws apply equally to religious organizations and commercial organizations and that this, this case involved a blatant infringement of trademark rights that were recognized under federal law.

Judge Sykes: The legal landscape in this area of course has changed since then. We are talking of, about an injunction issued 40 years ago and the Supreme Court, in the meantime has issued the Presbyterian Church case that talks about the principles, the neutral principles doctrine that needs to be applied in this context, and of course that case wasn't on the books at the time.

Handelman: That is correct your honor. With respect to, first of all the validity of the trademark and the finding of infringement, those issues are not open to be retried in the context of a contempt proceeding as a prefatory matter, but beyond that the law is well settled that religious organizations as I mentioned are entitled to the protection of the trademark laws and in this case...

Judge Sykes: But they are not entitled to a judicial declaration that their church is the one true church and thats what Judge Austin said.

Handelman: Well if, your honor, in the context of a religious case under the Lanham Act, the mark is valid. There is no per se rule against trademark protection in the religious organization context. What you look at is whether the mark in question signifies affiliation or membership with a single organization and in this case the National Spiritual Assembly has a three tiered administrative structure as is laid out in the briefs. You have the Universal House of Justice at the highest level, you have the national spiritual assemblies at the intermediate level of which there are 183 worldwide, and then you have the local spiritual assembly. The Baha'i mark is federally registered, is extensively used, was federally registered at the time of the original injunction, and it signifies members who are affiliated with national spiritual assemblies authorized by the Universal House of Justice in Haifa. Now whats happening in this case, the Alleged Contemnors, are through their web sites calling themselves the official, in one case, the SIBC has a web site where it calls itself the official Universal House of Justice, and as a result prospective members are going to that site thinking they are contacting our client, the Universal House of Justice in Haifa Israel, when they are not. They are also believing that the content on the site is approved by the Universal House of Justice, when it is not. And this is precisely the harm that the Lanham Act is intended to prevent and Professor McCarthy in his treatise recognizes as much, and if I could quote briefly: "If a parent religious society remains true to the tenets of the religion it is entitled to protection against the minority's use of the same name. For example, a preliminary injunction can be obtained by the Mother Church against a local which has disaffiliated as it stops paying to the Mother Church and the rationale makes sense because without a preliminary injunction the Mother Church would be outside of..."

Judge Bauer: Who are you quoting at the moment?

Handelman: Professor McCarthy, his treatise on Trademark and Unfair Competition. So he is recognizing...

Judge Bauer: He is recognizing but the Supreme Court is more significant than Professer McCarthy is I would suspect, wouldn't you?

Handelman: But the point is that this case does not call upon this Court to evaluate religious doctrine. It calls upon this Court to apply the Lanham Act to religious organizations which has been done before.

Judge Sykes: Well to the extent that you are reading the injunction as prohibiting anyone other than the NSA from using the word Baha'i in the title of the religious organization's name, um, that clearly raises some constitutional concerns. Is that how you are reading the injunction? That you have exclusive, that your client has exclusive rights to the term Baha'i and no schismatic organization, schismatic group,breakaway group could ever use it into perpetuity in the United States?

Handelman: As long as the trademark rights are valid and federally registered and not abandoned, that is correct, as Professor...

Judge Sykes: The word Baha'i? So to use a hypothetical. Someone could copyright Christianity. Somebody could copyright Judaism, and that would prohibit anybody else from using that terminology in the title of their religious organization?

Handelman: No, each, each religious name or

Judge Sykes: I am sorry, not copyright, trademark.

Handelman: Yeah, each religious name or mark has to be evaluated on its own merits. There is no blanket...

Judge Sykes: But whats the response to the hypothetical, though?

Handelman: The hypothetical is yes, we. In other words a splinter group that is not affiliated with the National Spiritual Assembly authorized by the Universal House of Justice is not permitted to use the term Baha'i in a way where it is holding itself out as being affiliated with the group headed by and authorized by the Universal House of Justice.

Judge Sykes: Well that's, that's, different. But they can use the word Baha'i in the name of their new church, but they just can't use it in a way that implies affiliation with the Mother Church.

Handelman: That is correct. They cannot, cannot confuse the public into believing that they are affiliated with the Mother church when they are not, particularly where, as here, their doctrines are in many cases antithetical to those espoused by the Mother Church.

Judge Sykes: What could they call themselves and escape liability for contempt?

Handelman: They would have to use a non-confusingly similar name because they are not...

Judge Sykes: Can they use the word Baha'i?

Handelman: It would depend on-- not if it suggested affiliation with the Mother Church.

Judge Bauer: How about Reform Baha'i? Can they use that term?

Handelman: That would be a hypothetical that...

Judge Bauer: That's my hypothetical...

Handelman: It would...

Judge Bauer: And I want a hypothetical answer.

Handelman: If the use suggested affiliation...

Judge Bauer: I just gave it to you. Reform Baha'i.

Handelman: No that. Under the injunction, that would be prohibited. The injunction...

Judge Bauer: Yeah, I read the Injunction. I just don't know how it came to be. But you're going to enlighten me on that subject.

Handelman: So the injunction would prohibit a use likely to cause confusion as to affiliation.

Judge Bauer persistently questioned Mr. Handelman on how the 1966 injunction was entered and Mr. Handelman evades the fundamental truth that only the NSA appeared at the "hearing" and that the Remey organization did not appear and put on evidence (for some unknown reason). We know that the Remey NSA was unaware of the hearing and did not know of the Judgment until several days later. Mr. Handelman later admitted that only the NSA appeared which means the Injunction was effectively entered by "default"

Funny thing is Mr. Handelman quotes from Professor McCarthy that "If a parent religious society remains true to the tenets of the religion it is entitled to protection against the minority's use of the same name." Of course, the Wilmette NSA does NOT REMAIN TRUE to the tenets of the religion as the Orthodox Baha'is are constantly pointing out.

We do not know how the Court will rule, but clearly the Judges of the 7th Circuit are not fooled by the NSA's obfuscation. The NSA wants the Courts to enforce their belief that they are the one and only Baha'i Faith, and the NSA has proved itself to be in contempt of the basic religious freedoms of this country, even while they publicly whine about similarly motivated persecution against them in Iran, a country that does not have the same traditions of freedom of religion.

The true colors of the NSA come out here. They would trample over our freedom of religion and the Bill of Rights of the U.S. constitution. This is the World Order they seek to impose upon the unsuspecting peoples of the world.

Jeffrey

Posted at 09:57 AM | Permalink | Comments (0)

True Bahá'í

that bounty remains a gift for the followers of the third Guardian

The first Guardian emphasized how we must conduct our daily activities to align them within an administrative order that would promote an avenue of spiritual bounty for all. Although he admonished us to never celebrate his birthday nor supplicate God in prayer through his persona, as that would elevate him beyond his intended station, he did request of the believers the power of their supplications to God on his behalf. He provided the Prayer for the Guardian for them to recite in the privacy of their chambers. This prayer was no doubt recited by the believers hundreds of times a day, and provided special bounties for themselves and for the Faith itself.

Fortunately that bounty remains a gift for the followers of the third Guardian. What could be a grander bounty for humans than the opportunity for them to be a small part of the power-force connected to the Universe of God? The Prayer for the Guardian remains alive today, and will remain so for the entire 1,000 year Bahá'í Cycle, through its daily use by the believers for each of the successive guardians to come.

Here is that Prayer defined by the first Guardian, in its present iteration:

David Maxwell

READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 10:43 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

that bounty remains a gift for the followers of the third Guardian

The first Guardian emphasized how we must conduct our daily activities to align them within an administrative order that would promote an avenue of spiritual bounty for all. Although he admonished us to never celebrate his birthday nor supplicate God in prayer through his persona, as that would elevate him beyond his intended station, he did request of the believers the power of their supplications to God on his behalf. He provided the Prayer for the Guardian for them to recite in the privacy of their chambers. This prayer was no doubt recited by the believers hundreds of times a day, and provided special bounties for themselves and for the Faith itself.

Fortunately that bounty remains a gift for the followers of the third Guardian. What could be a grander bounty for humans than the opportunity for them to be a small part of the power-force connected to the Universe of God? The Prayer for the Guardian remains alive today, and will remain so for the entire 1,000 year Bahá'í Cycle, through its daily use by the believers for each of the successive guardians to come.

Here is that Prayer defined by the first Guardian, in its present iteration:

David Maxwell

READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 10:43 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The true colors of Wilmette NSA come out under questioning by Court of Appeals

The oral arguments of the Wilmette NSA's appeal of Judge St. Eve's decision favoring the Orthodox Baha'is was held on 20 February 2009 in Chicago Illinois. For more information about this court case, brought by the Wilmette NSA against the Orthodox Baha'is, go here: http://www.truebahai.com/court_case.html

Here is a transcript of part of the exchange between Mr. Handelman, the attorney for the NSA, and a couple of the Judges of the Court of Appeals. No matter how hard he tried to obfuscate the outrageous position of the NSA, the Judges carefully questioned him and exposed the oppressive and fascist nature of the NSA's position, and it is here for all the world to see.

Here is part of the oral argument. Enjoy:

Jeffery A. Handelman, for Defendant-Appellant National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the United States: The principle we are here advancing today has been adopted by other courts of appeals and that is that a-- while the general rule is that a nonparty cannot be bound by an injunction issued in a case in which it wasn't named as a party, there are -- there is an important exception to that general rule and that is a nonparty is bound by an injunction if he is legally identified with the defendant corporation...

Judge William J. Bauer: Do you know of any case involving that particular rule that you enunciated to us in a civil rights case?

Handelman: Your honor, there are a couple of cases on point, the Federal Circuit in Additive Controls addressed this question of what do you do in applying an injunction when the corporate defendant has been dissolved.

Judge Bauer: That had to do with a patent infringement case?

Handelman: That is correct.

Judge Bauer: Other than a patent infringement case, do you have anything besides-- civil rights cases that involve that theory that you just enunciated?

Handelman: The two cases we rely on-- one is a patent infringement case Additive Controls. The other one is a trademark infringement case

Judge Bauer: Also from the Circuit?

Handelman: That is from the First Circuit

Judge Bauer: The First Circuit?

Handelman: Correct. Both of these cases draw on, first of all, the fact that Rule 65d codified the common law in this regard and so Justice Jackson in the Regal Knitwear case summarized Rule 65d: "is derived from the common law doctrine that a decree of injunction not only binds the parties defendant but also those identified with them in interest."

Judge Bauer: Let me intrude myself again. Was the original injunction a consent decree or was it a fought out battle?

Handelman: No the scenario leading to the injunction, the...

Judge Bauer: No, all I ask is a very simple question. Did Judge Austin formulate this decree himself or was it a consent decree?

Handelman: It was not a consent decree.

Judge Bauer: OK

Handelman: There were findings of fact and conclusions of law...

Judge Bauer: Based on a contested argument before, and presentation of evidence before Judge Austin?

Handelman: The... my understanding is that the NSA...

Judge Bauer: See you weren't around in those days. I was.

Handelman: But your Honor Judge Austin.. Bare in mind this was the counterclaim, the original was, was against the NSA. The trademark infringement claim was brought by way of a counterclaim. So they started it. We responded and there was a findings of fact and conclusions of law entered by Judge Aspen.

Judge Bauer: After a hearing?

Handelman: I do not know if there was testimony at the hearing. I do not believe there was testimony given at the hearing by both sides but Judge Austin...

Judge Bauer: What was the predicate for the decision? Stipulation of facts?

Handelman: No, there was no stipulation, the NSA...

Judge Bauer: Then how did he arrive at a decree at all?

Handelman: The uh, I believe, the NSA submitted, appeared at the hearing and presented Judge Austin. I don't know if there was live testimony at the hearing or not but it presented evidence on which the findings and conclusions were based.

Judge Bauer: What evidence did they and how did they present it?

Handelman: Well, for example, the deposition of the chairman of the UHG was taken and submitted to the Court, so we had the deposition...

Judge Bauer: Accepted by both sides as factually true?

Handelman: The testimony was sworn deposition testimony of the Chairman.

Judge Bauer: There is sworn testimony on each side of the case normally but I want to know, how did Judge Austin arrive at the conclusion if there was no presentation of live witnesses?

Handelman: Um

Judge Bauer: Was it a stipulation of facts? In which case..

Handelman: No I do not believe it was a stipulation, your honor. We can look into whether Judge Bauer: It was a question of fact, and he made a resolution based on affidavits?

Handelman: If I could look into that and get back to you I would prefer to do that.

Judge Bauer: I have no idea how the decree came to be, thats my problem

Handelman: OK

Judge Diane S. Sykes: Do you know whether the constitutionality of issuing such an Injunction was litigated, given the religious context?

Handelman: Yeah, I believe Judge Austin made explicit findings that the trademark laws apply equally to religious organizations and commercial organizations and that this, this case involved a blatant infringement of trademark rights that were recognized under federal law.

Judge Sykes: The legal landscape in this area of course has changed since then. We are talking of, about an injunction issued 40 years ago and the Supreme Court, in the meantime has issued the Presbyterian Church case that talks about the principles, the neutral principles doctrine that needs to be applied in this context, and of course that case wasn't on the books at the time.

Handelman: That is correct your honor. With respect to, first of all the validity of the trademark and the finding of infringement, those issues are not open to be retried in the context of a contempt proceeding as a prefatory matter, but beyond that the law is well settled that religious organizations as I mentioned are entitled to the protection of the trademark laws and in this case...

Judge Sykes: But they are not entitled to a judicial declaration that their church is the one true church and thats what Judge Austin said.

Handelman: Well if, your honor, in the context of a religious case under the Lanham Act, the mark is valid. There is no per se rule against trademark protection in the religious organization context. What you look at is whether the mark in question signifies affiliation or membership with a single organization and in this case the National Spiritual Assembly has a three tiered administrative structure as is laid out in the briefs. You have the Universal House of Justice at the highest level, you have the national spiritual assemblies at the intermediate level of which there are 183 worldwide, and then you have the local spiritual assembly. The Baha'i mark is federally registered, is extensively used, was federally registered at the time of the original injunction, and it signifies members who are affiliated with national spiritual assemblies authorized by the Universal House of Justice in Haifa. Now whats happening in this case, the Alleged Contemnors, are through their web sites calling themselves the official, in one case, the SIBC has a web site where it calls itself the official Universal House of Justice, and as a result prospective members are going to that site thinking they are contacting our client, the Universal House of Justice in Haifa Israel, when they are not. They are also believing that the content on the site is approved by the Universal House of Justice, when it is not. And this is precisely the harm that the Lanham Act is intended to prevent and Professor McCarthy in his treatise recognizes as much, and if I could quote briefly: "If a parent religious society remains true to the tenets of the religion it is entitled to protection against the minority's use of the same name. For example, a preliminary injunction can be obtained by the Mother Church against a local which has disaffiliated as it stops paying to the Mother Church and the rationale makes sense because without a preliminary injunction the Mother Church would be outside of..."

Judge Bauer: Who are you quoting at the moment?

Handelman: Professor McCarthy, his treatise on Trademark and Unfair Competition. So he is recognizing...

Judge Bauer: He is recognizing but the Supreme Court is more significant than Professer McCarthy is I would suspect, wouldn't you?

Handelman: But the point is that this case does not call upon this Court to evaluate religious doctrine. It calls upon this Court to apply the Lanham Act to religious organizations which has been done before.

Judge Sykes: Well to the extent that you are reading the injunction as prohibiting anyone other than the NSA from using the word Baha'i in the title of the religious organization's name, um, that clearly raises some constitutional concerns. Is that how you are reading the injunction? That you have exclusive, that your client has exclusive rights to the term Baha'i and no schismatic organization, schismatic group,breakaway group could ever use it into perpetuity in the United States?

Handelman: As long as the trademark rights are valid and federally registered and not abandoned, that is correct, as Professor...

Judge Sykes: The word Baha'i? So to use a hypothetical. Someone could copyright Christianity. Somebody could copyright Judaism, and that would prohibit anybody else from using that terminology in the title of their religious organization?

Handelman: No, each, each religious name or

Judge Sykes: I am sorry, not copyright, trademark.

Handelman: Yeah, each religious name or mark has to be evaluated on its own merits. There is no blanket...

Judge Sykes: But whats the response to the hypothetical, though?

Handelman: The hypothetical is yes, we. In other words a splinter group that is not affiliated with the National Spiritual Assembly authorized by the Universal House of Justice is not permitted to use the term Baha'i in a way where it is holding itself out as being affiliated with the group headed by and authorized by the Universal House of Justice.

Judge Sykes: Well that's, that's, different. But they can use the word Baha'i in the name of their new church, but they just can't use it in a way that implies affiliation with the Mother Church.

Handelman: That is correct. They cannot, cannot confuse the public into believing that they are affiliated with the Mother church when they are not, particularly where, as here, their doctrines are in many cases antithetical to those espoused by the Mother Church.

Judge Sykes: What could they call themselves and escape liability for contempt?

Handelman: They would have to use a non-confusingly similar name because they are not...

Judge Sykes: Can they use the word Baha'i?

Handelman: It would depend on-- not if it suggested affiliation with the Mother Church.

Judge Bauer: How about Reform Baha'i? Can they use that term?

Handelman: That would be a hypothetical that...

Judge Bauer: That's my hypothetical...

Handelman: It would...

Judge Bauer: And I want a hypothetical answer.

Handelman: If the use suggested affiliation...

Judge Bauer: I just gave it to you. Reform Baha'i.

Handelman: No that. Under the injunction, that would be prohibited. The injunction...

Judge Bauer: Yeah, I read the Injunction. I just don't know how it came to be. But you're going to enlighten me on that subject.

Handelman: So the injunction would prohibit a use likely to cause confusion as to affiliation.

Judge Bauer persistently questioned Mr. Handelman on how the 1966 injunction was entered and Mr. Handelman evades the fundamental truth that only the NSA appeared at the "hearing" and that the Remey organization did not appear and put on evidence (for some unknown reason). We know that the Remey NSA was unaware of the hearing and did not know of the Judgment until several days later. Mr. Handelman later admitted that only the NSA appeared which means the Injunction was effectively entered by "default"

Funny thing is Mr. Handelman quotes from Professor McCarthy that "If a parent religious society remains true to the tenets of the religion it is entitled to protection against the minority's use of the same name." Of course, the Wilmette NSA does NOT REMAIN TRUE to the tenets of the religion as the Orthodox Baha'is are constantly pointing out.

We do not know how the Court will rule, but clearly the Judges of the 7th Circuit are not fooled by the NSA's obfuscation. The NSA wants the Courts to enforce their belief that they are the one and only Baha'i Faith, and the NSA has proved itself to be in contempt of the basic religious freedoms of this country, even while they publicly whine about similarly motivated persecution against them in Iran, a country that does not have the same traditions of freedom of religion.

The true colors of the NSA come out here. They would trample over our freedom of religion and the Bill of Rights of the U.S. constitution. This is the World Order they seek to impose upon the unsuspecting peoples of the world.

Jeffrey

Posted at 09:57 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

The true colors of Wilmette NSA come out under questioning by Court of Appeals

The oral arguments of the Wilmette NSA's appeal of Judge St. Eve's decision favoring the Orthodox Baha'is was held on 20 February 2009 in Chicago Illinois. For more information about this court case, brought by the Wilmette NSA against the Orthodox Baha'is, go here: http://www.truebahai.com/court_case.html

Here is a transcript of part of the exchange between Mr. Handelman, the attorney for the NSA, and a couple of the Judges of the Court of Appeals. No matter how hard he tried to obfuscate the outrageous position of the NSA, the Judges carefully questioned him and exposed the oppressive and fascist nature of the NSA's position, and it is here for all the world to see.

Here is part of the oral argument. Enjoy:

Jeffery A. Handelman, for Defendant-Appellant National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the United States: The principle we are here advancing today has been adopted by other courts of appeals and that is that a-- while the general rule is that a nonparty cannot be bound by an injunction issued in a case in which it wasn't named as a party, there are -- there is an important exception to that general rule and that is a nonparty is bound by an injunction if he is legally identified with the defendant corporation...

Judge William J. Bauer: Do you know of any case involving that particular rule that you enunciated to us in a civil rights case?

Handelman: Your honor, there are a couple of cases on point, the Federal Circuit in Additive Controls addressed this question of what do you do in applying an injunction when the corporate defendant has been dissolved.

Judge Bauer: That had to do with a patent infringement case?

Handelman: That is correct.

Judge Bauer: Other than a patent infringement case, do you have anything besides-- civil rights cases that involve that theory that you just enunciated?

Handelman: The two cases we rely on-- one is a patent infringement case Additive Controls. The other one is a trademark infringement case

Judge Bauer: Also from the Circuit?

Handelman: That is from the First Circuit

Judge Bauer: The First Circuit?

Handelman: Correct. Both of these cases draw on, first of all, the fact that Rule 65d codified the common law in this regard and so Justice Jackson in the Regal Knitwear case summarized Rule 65d: "is derived from the common law doctrine that a decree of injunction not only binds the parties defendant but also those identified with them in interest."

Judge Bauer: Let me intrude myself again. Was the original injunction a consent decree or was it a fought out battle?

Handelman: No the scenario leading to the injunction, the...

Judge Bauer: No, all I ask is a very simple question. Did Judge Austin formulate this decree himself or was it a consent decree?

Handelman: It was not a consent decree.

Judge Bauer: OK

Handelman: There were findings of fact and conclusions of law...

Judge Bauer: Based on a contested argument before, and presentation of evidence before Judge Austin?

Handelman: The... my understanding is that the NSA...

Judge Bauer: See you weren't around in those days. I was.

Handelman: But your Honor Judge Austin.. Bare in mind this was the counterclaim, the original was, was against the NSA. The trademark infringement claim was brought by way of a counterclaim. So they started it. We responded and there was a findings of fact and conclusions of law entered by Judge Aspen.

Judge Bauer: After a hearing?

Handelman: I do not know if there was testimony at the hearing. I do not believe there was testimony given at the hearing by both sides but Judge Austin...

Judge Bauer: What was the predicate for the decision? Stipulation of facts?

Handelman: No, there was no stipulation, the NSA...

Judge Bauer: Then how did he arrive at a decree at all?

Handelman: The uh, I believe, the NSA submitted, appeared at the hearing and presented Judge Austin. I don't know if there was live testimony at the hearing or not but it presented evidence on which the findings and conclusions were based.

Judge Bauer: What evidence did they and how did they present it?

Handelman: Well, for example, the deposition of the chairman of the UHG was taken and submitted to the Court, so we had the deposition...

Judge Bauer: Accepted by both sides as factually true?

Handelman: The testimony was sworn deposition testimony of the Chairman.

Judge Bauer: There is sworn testimony on each side of the case normally but I want to know, how did Judge Austin arrive at the conclusion if there was no presentation of live witnesses?

Handelman: Um

Judge Bauer: Was it a stipulation of facts? In which case..

Handelman: No I do not believe it was a stipulation, your honor. We can look into whether Judge Bauer: It was a question of fact, and he made a resolution based on affidavits?

Handelman: If I could look into that and get back to you I would prefer to do that.

Judge Bauer: I have no idea how the decree came to be, thats my problem

Handelman: OK

Judge Diane S. Sykes: Do you know whether the constitutionality of issuing such an Injunction was litigated, given the religious context?

Handelman: Yeah, I believe Judge Austin made explicit findings that the trademark laws apply equally to religious organizations and commercial organizations and that this, this case involved a blatant infringement of trademark rights that were recognized under federal law.

Judge Sykes: The legal landscape in this area of course has changed since then. We are talking of, about an injunction issued 40 years ago and the Supreme Court, in the meantime has issued the Presbyterian Church case that talks about the principles, the neutral principles doctrine that needs to be applied in this context, and of course that case wasn't on the books at the time.

Handelman: That is correct your honor. With respect to, first of all the validity of the trademark and the finding of infringement, those issues are not open to be retried in the context of a contempt proceeding as a prefatory matter, but beyond that the law is well settled that religious organizations as I mentioned are entitled to the protection of the trademark laws and in this case...

Judge Sykes: But they are not entitled to a judicial declaration that their church is the one true church and thats what Judge Austin said.

Handelman: Well if, your honor, in the context of a religious case under the Lanham Act, the mark is valid. There is no per se rule against trademark protection in the religious organization context. What you look at is whether the mark in question signifies affiliation or membership with a single organization and in this case the National Spiritual Assembly has a three tiered administrative structure as is laid out in the briefs. You have the Universal House of Justice at the highest level, you have the national spiritual assemblies at the intermediate level of which there are 183 worldwide, and then you have the local spiritual assembly. The Baha'i mark is federally registered, is extensively used, was federally registered at the time of the original injunction, and it signifies members who are affiliated with national spiritual assemblies authorized by the Universal House of Justice in Haifa. Now whats happening in this case, the Alleged Contemnors, are through their web sites calling themselves the official, in one case, the SIBC has a web site where it calls itself the official Universal House of Justice, and as a result prospective members are going to that site thinking they are contacting our client, the Universal House of Justice in Haifa Israel, when they are not. They are also believing that the content on the site is approved by the Universal House of Justice, when it is not. And this is precisely the harm that the Lanham Act is intended to prevent and Professor McCarthy in his treatise recognizes as much, and if I could quote briefly: "If a parent religious society remains true to the tenets of the religion it is entitled to protection against the minority's use of the same name. For example, a preliminary injunction can be obtained by the Mother Church against a local which has disaffiliated as it stops paying to the Mother Church and the rationale makes sense because without a preliminary injunction the Mother Church would be outside of..."

Judge Bauer: Who are you quoting at the moment?

Handelman: Professor McCarthy, his treatise on Trademark and Unfair Competition. So he is recognizing...

Judge Bauer: He is recognizing but the Supreme Court is more significant than Professer McCarthy is I would suspect, wouldn't you?

Handelman: But the point is that this case does not call upon this Court to evaluate religious doctrine. It calls upon this Court to apply the Lanham Act to religious organizations which has been done before.

Judge Sykes: Well to the extent that you are reading the injunction as prohibiting anyone other than the NSA from using the word Baha'i in the title of the religious organization's name, um, that clearly raises some constitutional concerns. Is that how you are reading the injunction? That you have exclusive, that your client has exclusive rights to the term Baha'i and no schismatic organization, schismatic group,breakaway group could ever use it into perpetuity in the United States?

Handelman: As long as the trademark rights are valid and federally registered and not abandoned, that is correct, as Professor...

Judge Sykes: The word Baha'i? So to use a hypothetical. Someone could copyright Christianity. Somebody could copyright Judaism, and that would prohibit anybody else from using that terminology in the title of their religious organization?

Handelman: No, each, each religious name or

Judge Sykes: I am sorry, not copyright, trademark.

Handelman: Yeah, each religious name or mark has to be evaluated on its own merits. There is no blanket...

Judge Sykes: But whats the response to the hypothetical, though?

Handelman: The hypothetical is yes, we. In other words a splinter group that is not affiliated with the National Spiritual Assembly authorized by the Universal House of Justice is not permitted to use the term Baha'i in a way where it is holding itself out as being affiliated with the group headed by and authorized by the Universal House of Justice.

Judge Sykes: Well that's, that's, different. But they can use the word Baha'i in the name of their new church, but they just can't use it in a way that implies affiliation with the Mother Church.

Handelman: That is correct. They cannot, cannot confuse the public into believing that they are affiliated with the Mother church when they are not, particularly where, as here, their doctrines are in many cases antithetical to those espoused by the Mother Church.

Judge Sykes: What could they call themselves and escape liability for contempt?

Handelman: They would have to use a non-confusingly similar name because they are not...

Judge Sykes: Can they use the word Baha'i?

Handelman: It would depend on-- not if it suggested affiliation with the Mother Church.

Judge Bauer: How about Reform Baha'i? Can they use that term?

Handelman: That would be a hypothetical that...

Judge Bauer: That's my hypothetical...

Handelman: It would...

Judge Bauer: And I want a hypothetical answer.

Handelman: If the use suggested affiliation...

Judge Bauer: I just gave it to you. Reform Baha'i.

Handelman: No that. Under the injunction, that would be prohibited. The injunction...

Judge Bauer: Yeah, I read the Injunction. I just don't know how it came to be. But you're going to enlighten me on that subject.

Handelman: So the injunction would prohibit a use likely to cause confusion as to affiliation.

Judge Bauer persistently questioned Mr. Handelman on how the 1966 injunction was entered and Mr. Handelman evades the fundamental truth that only the NSA appeared at the "hearing" and that the Remey organization did not appear and put on evidence (for some unknown reason). We know that the Remey NSA was unaware of the hearing and did not know of the Judgment until several days later. Mr. Handelman later admitted that only the NSA appeared which means the Injunction was effectively entered by "default"

Funny thing is Mr. Handelman quotes from Professor McCarthy that "If a parent religious society remains true to the tenets of the religion it is entitled to protection against the minority's use of the same name." Of course, the Wilmette NSA does NOT REMAIN TRUE to the tenets of the religion as the Orthodox Baha'is are constantly pointing out.

We do not know how the Court will rule, but clearly the Judges of the 7th Circuit are not fooled by the NSA's obfuscation. The NSA wants the Courts to enforce their belief that they are the one and only Baha'i Faith, and the NSA has proved itself to be in contempt of the basic religious freedoms of this country, even while they publicly whine about similarly motivated persecution against them in Iran, a country that does not have the same traditions of freedom of religion.

The true colors of the NSA come out here. They would trample over our freedom of religion and the Bill of Rights of the U.S. constitution. This is the World Order they seek to impose upon the unsuspecting peoples of the world.

Jeffrey

Posted at 09:57 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

They shamelessly interpret passages of Bahá'í Holy Writ

They shamelessly admit in writing for all to see that they well understand that "authoritative interpretation" "... is confined to the Guardian", and at the same time continue year after year, decade after decade, publishing "... the interpretation or understanding that each individual [amongst them] arrives at for himself from his study of its teachings", without ever making it clear that their views are merely their own?

Why?

Why do the members of the Heterodox UHJ shamelessly and constantly violate that very principle while they themselves admit in writing that it is obligatory for all individual Bahá'ís, except a Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith, to obey that rule?

They shamelessly interpret passages of Bahá'í Holy Writ and Holy Text related to the Huqúq'u'lláh and even make illegal application of their interpretations, despite the fact that, as they admit themselves in writing, such interpretations are "merely [their] own" because all "authoritative interpretation" is "confined" to the Guardianship.

They illegally apply a similar personal interpretation of the word "ghusan" in the Masters sacred Will and Testament, which Holy Document is Bahá'í Holy Text, the interpretation of which Holy Text belongs exclusively to a living Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith.

It is very evident that the members of the bogus UHJ currently on Mt. Carmel are nefariously attempting to elevate themselves in the eyes of Bahá'í believers to a station which is not their station.

Ross Campbell

READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 08:22 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

They shamelessly interpret passages of Bahá'í Holy Writ

They shamelessly admit in writing for all to see that they well understand that "authoritative interpretation" "... is confined to the Guardian", and at the same time continue year after year, decade after decade, publishing "... the interpretation or understanding that each individual [amongst them] arrives at for himself from his study of its teachings", without ever making it clear that their views are merely their own?

Why?

Why do the members of the Heterodox UHJ shamelessly and constantly violate that very principle while they themselves admit in writing that it is obligatory for all individual Bahá'ís, except a Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith, to obey that rule?

They shamelessly interpret passages of Bahá'í Holy Writ and Holy Text related to the Huqúq'u'lláh and even make illegal application of their interpretations, despite the fact that, as they admit themselves in writing, such interpretations are "merely [their] own" because all "authoritative interpretation" is "confined" to the Guardianship.

They illegally apply a similar personal interpretation of the word "ghusan" in the Masters sacred Will and Testament, which Holy Document is Bahá'í Holy Text, the interpretation of which Holy Text belongs exclusively to a living Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith.

It is very evident that the members of the bogus UHJ currently on Mt. Carmel are nefariously attempting to elevate themselves in the eyes of Bahá'í believers to a station which is not their station.

Ross Campbell

READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 08:22 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

they were prevented from doing so....

Shoghi Effendi, in his message of 23 November 1951, outlined the projected "added further functions" of the Council which would be assumed sometime during the period of the Ten Year Global Crusade scheduled to commence at Ridván 1953, when he stated: that this "Master Plan designed by ‘Abdu’l-Bahá will embrace the continents of the earth, and will bring the Central Body directing these widely ramified operations into direct contact with all the National Assemblies of the Bahá’í world, which in varying degrees, will have to contribute their share to the world establishment of the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh, as prophesied by ‘Abdu’l-Bahá and envisioned by Daniel. . ." As direction of the National Spiritual Assemblies would require the Council to become an actively functioning body that would have been presided over by Shoghi Effendi, himself, if he had not appointed Mason Remey as its President, Shoghi Effendi, obviously had been aware that his own passing was destined to take place before the expiration of the Ten Year Global Crusade and therefore, in preparing this message, had forecast in this indirect way his own early demise which actually took place six years later in November 1957 at mid-point of the Ten Year Crusade.

There can be no question that "CENTRAL BODY" referred to in Shoghi Effendi’s message above could be none other than the International Bahá’í Council, as it certainly did not apply to the Hands of the Cause, the first contingent of twelve living Hands having been appointed by Shoghi Effendi a month following the issuance of this message on 24 December 1951.

Notwithstanding the very clear intention of Shoghi Effendi, as undeniably shown in his message quoted above, that the International Bahá’í Council would be the body "directing" the "widely ramified operations" of the National Spiritual Assemblies involved in the prosecution of the goals of the Ten Year Global Crusade and thereby clearly require the services of the three secretaries of the International Bahá’í Council, specifically appointed by Shoghi Effendi for this purpose, these secretaries never wrote a single letter to the National Spiritual Assemblies during this Crusade. For, they were prevented from doing so....

Joel B. Marangella
READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 03:15 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

they were prevented from doing so....

Shoghi Effendi, in his message of 23 November 1951, outlined the projected "added further functions" of the Council which would be assumed sometime during the period of the Ten Year Global Crusade scheduled to commence at Ridván 1953, when he stated: that this "Master Plan designed by ‘Abdu’l-Bahá will embrace the continents of the earth, and will bring the Central Body directing these widely ramified operations into direct contact with all the National Assemblies of the Bahá’í world, which in varying degrees, will have to contribute their share to the world establishment of the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh, as prophesied by ‘Abdu’l-Bahá and envisioned by Daniel. . ." As direction of the National Spiritual Assemblies would require the Council to become an actively functioning body that would have been presided over by Shoghi Effendi, himself, if he had not appointed Mason Remey as its President, Shoghi Effendi, obviously had been aware that his own passing was destined to take place before the expiration of the Ten Year Global Crusade and therefore, in preparing this message, had forecast in this indirect way his own early demise which actually took place six years later in November 1957 at mid-point of the Ten Year Crusade.

There can be no question that "CENTRAL BODY" referred to in Shoghi Effendi’s message above could be none other than the International Bahá’í Council, as it certainly did not apply to the Hands of the Cause, the first contingent of twelve living Hands having been appointed by Shoghi Effendi a month following the issuance of this message on 24 December 1951.

Notwithstanding the very clear intention of Shoghi Effendi, as undeniably shown in his message quoted above, that the International Bahá’í Council would be the body "directing" the "widely ramified operations" of the National Spiritual Assemblies involved in the prosecution of the goals of the Ten Year Global Crusade and thereby clearly require the services of the three secretaries of the International Bahá’í Council, specifically appointed by Shoghi Effendi for this purpose, these secretaries never wrote a single letter to the National Spiritual Assemblies during this Crusade. For, they were prevented from doing so....

Joel B. Marangella
READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 03:15 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Why did RK tell the Bahá'ís to cling to the Hands?

While Rúhíyyih Khánum in the book called "The Ministry of the Custodians" didn't mention any thing about her first telegram in which she had announced that Shoghi Effendi was ill at a time when he wasn't in this world anymore, and she copied her cablegram when she announced the passing of the first Guardian in which she said:

"URGE BELIEVERS REMAIN STEADFAST CLING INSTITUTION HANDS LOVINGLY REARED RECENTLY REINFORCED EMPHASIZED BELOVED GUARDIAN." (Ministry of the Custodians, p. 7)

At that time the Bahá'í Faith was well organized, there were many Local and National Spiritual Assemblies and at the International level there was the International Bahá'í Council at the summit which according to Shoghi Effendi's Message of 23 November 1951 this "Central Body" had to direct the affairs of the National Assemblies. On the other hand, the Hands of the Cause did not have any administrative authority or responsibility, moreover Bahá'ís did not have direct contact or communication with the Hands, they were in contact and in touch with their LSA. Why did RK tell the Bahá'ís to cling to the Hands? And why did she have to tell Bahá'ís that this institution:

"REARED RECENTLY [was] REINFORCED [and] EMPHASIZED [by] BELOVED GUARDIAN"?

Nosrat

READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 07:57 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Why did RK tell the Bahá'ís to cling to the Hands?

While Rúhíyyih Khánum in the book called "The Ministry of the Custodians" didn't mention any thing about her first telegram in which she had announced that Shoghi Effendi was ill at a time when he wasn't in this world anymore, and she copied her cablegram when she announced the passing of the first Guardian in which she said:

"URGE BELIEVERS REMAIN STEADFAST CLING INSTITUTION HANDS LOVINGLY REARED RECENTLY REINFORCED EMPHASIZED BELOVED GUARDIAN." (Ministry of the Custodians, p. 7)

At that time the Bahá'í Faith was well organized, there were many Local and National Spiritual Assemblies and at the International level there was the International Bahá'í Council at the summit which according to Shoghi Effendi's Message of 23 November 1951 this "Central Body" had to direct the affairs of the National Assemblies. On the other hand, the Hands of the Cause did not have any administrative authority or responsibility, moreover Bahá'ís did not have direct contact or communication with the Hands, they were in contact and in touch with their LSA. Why did RK tell the Bahá'ís to cling to the Hands? And why did she have to tell Bahá'ís that this institution:

"REARED RECENTLY [was] REINFORCED [and] EMPHASIZED [by] BELOVED GUARDIAN"?

Nosrat

READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 07:57 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Appropriate leadership should have been by the President of the IBC

Yet, it was Rúhíyyih Khánum who became the Hand's de facto anointed leader during their meetings after Shoghi Effendi's death. Appropriate leadership should have been by the President of the IBC, Mason Remey, but the majority of them did not want that. In reading Shoghi Effendi's instructions, it is clear that Mason Remey was the only one who had been given authority to convene the International Bahá'í Council, yet that was never allowed to happen. The Hands dissolved Shoghi Effendi's IBC and elected one of their own, which had no God-given authority whatsoever. This signaled the beginning of the end, when they finally removed the invisible thread of Infallibility from their midst. Shoghi Effendi's instructions were never followed, and it was eventually Mason Remey who was belittled and banished by them. Upon leaving, Mason Remey took the invisible thread of Infallibility with him, leaving them naked. Up until then, they had that unacknowledged and hidden invisible thread in their midst; but now it was gone.

By David Maxwell

READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 09:30 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Appropriate leadership should have been by the President of the IBC

Yet, it was Rúhíyyih Khánum who became the Hand's de facto anointed leader during their meetings after Shoghi Effendi's death. Appropriate leadership should have been by the President of the IBC, Mason Remey, but the majority of them did not want that. In reading Shoghi Effendi's instructions, it is clear that Mason Remey was the only one who had been given authority to convene the International Bahá'í Council, yet that was never allowed to happen. The Hands dissolved Shoghi Effendi's IBC and elected one of their own, which had no God-given authority whatsoever. This signaled the beginning of the end, when they finally removed the invisible thread of Infallibility from their midst. Shoghi Effendi's instructions were never followed, and it was eventually Mason Remey who was belittled and banished by them. Upon leaving, Mason Remey took the invisible thread of Infallibility with him, leaving them naked. Up until then, they had that unacknowledged and hidden invisible thread in their midst; but now it was gone.

By David Maxwell

READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 09:30 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

ATTENTION MISLED BAHA'IS!!

POSTED ON BEHALF OF THE GUARDIAN OF THE BAHA'I FAITH

Tragically overlooked by the Hands of the Cause following the passing of Shoghi Effendi on 4 November 1957, and long since forgotten, is his message addressed to the Baha'i World on 23 November 1952, that resulted in serious and enduring consequences with an almost fatal impact on the continuance of the divinely-conceived Baha'i Administrative Order bequeathed to us by the infallible Pen of 'Abdu'l-Baha in His sacred Will and Testament, an Order acclaimed by Shoghi Effendi in his work: "The Dispensation of Baha'u'llah" as nothing less than "God's immutable Purpose for mankind in this day."

It was in this message that Shoghi Effendi, significantly and undeniably forecast his early passing, albeit in an indirect manner, while at the same time clearly and unmistakably projecting the essential continuance of the Guardianship, whose living incumbent is the irreplaceable "Center of the Cause" and "the sacred head and distinguished member for life" of the Universal House of Justice.

It was in this same message that he referred to the International Baha'i Council that he had appointed in his Proclamation of 9 January 1951 as "The Central Body," the one and only time he had ever used this term, so as to leave no doubt of the primacy of this institution and furthermore clearly assigned its future role. Yet, upon his passing, this International Council--nothing less than the embryonic Universal House of Justice --would be shamelessly relegated by the Hands of the Cause to a subordinate position to their own in their nefarious seizure of control over the affairs of Faith and illegitimate reign of some five years.

For details see:

http://www.Bahai-Guardian.com

Posted at 10:54 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

ATTENTION MISLED BAHA'IS!!

POSTED ON BEHALF OF THE GUARDIAN OF THE BAHA'I FAITH

Tragically overlooked by the Hands of the Cause following the passing of Shoghi Effendi on 4 November 1957, and long since forgotten, is his message addressed to the Baha'i World on 23 November 1952, that resulted in serious and enduring consequences with an almost fatal impact on the continuance of the divinely-conceived Baha'i Administrative Order bequeathed to us by the infallible Pen of 'Abdu'l-Baha in His sacred Will and Testament, an Order acclaimed by Shoghi Effendi in his work: "The Dispensation of Baha'u'llah" as nothing less than "God's immutable Purpose for mankind in this day."

It was in this message that Shoghi Effendi, significantly and undeniably forecast his early passing, albeit in an indirect manner, while at the same time clearly and unmistakably projecting the essential continuance of the Guardianship, whose living incumbent is the irreplaceable "Center of the Cause" and "the sacred head and distinguished member for life" of the Universal House of Justice.

It was in this same message that he referred to the International Baha'i Council that he had appointed in his Proclamation of 9 January 1951 as "The Central Body," the one and only time he had ever used this term, so as to leave no doubt of the primacy of this institution and furthermore clearly assigned its future role. Yet, upon his passing, this International Council--nothing less than the embryonic Universal House of Justice --would be shamelessly relegated by the Hands of the Cause to a subordinate position to their own in their nefarious seizure of control over the affairs of Faith and illegitimate reign of some five years.

For details see:

http://www.Bahai-Guardian.com

Posted at 10:54 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

...changing key passage in many of the Bahá'í books.

Another key issue for Baha'is is that a contributing factor to the neutralizing of the Faith by the bogus UHJ is their pattern of not only ignoring the original Writings in their activities, but actually changing key passage in many of the Bahá'í books. It should be understood by all Bahá'ís that its Publishing Trust has published books that contains text modified from the original of some of the books available from them since the passing of the First Guardian. Additionally, when perusing the listing of references immediately following the ITC study, many of those references cite the writings of the present Universal House of Justice for the justification of their existence. The reason for them doing so comes into question when in every instance they could have used topical Writings penned by the Three Central Figures of the Faith, Writings that are considered Holy Writ and the very foundational elements of the Bahá'í Faith. As a result, Orthodox Baha'is, and others who are concerned with authenticity should rely only on those books copyrighted and printed prior to 1957. In all cases of such modification, the author's original intent has been compromised. I will cite one such example of modification from "Bahá'u'lláh and the New Era," by J.E. Esslemont, a book that Shoghi Effendi said was one of the three most important for teaching the Bahá'í seeker.

By David Maxwell

READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 09:44 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

...changing key passage in many of the Bahá'í books.

Another key issue for Baha'is is that a contributing factor to the neutralizing of the Faith by the bogus UHJ is their pattern of not only ignoring the original Writings in their activities, but actually changing key passage in many of the Bahá'í books. It should be understood by all Bahá'ís that its Publishing Trust has published books that contains text modified from the original of some of the books available from them since the passing of the First Guardian. Additionally, when perusing the listing of references immediately following the ITC study, many of those references cite the writings of the present Universal House of Justice for the justification of their existence. The reason for them doing so comes into question when in every instance they could have used topical Writings penned by the Three Central Figures of the Faith, Writings that are considered Holy Writ and the very foundational elements of the Bahá'í Faith. As a result, Orthodox Baha'is, and others who are concerned with authenticity should rely only on those books copyrighted and printed prior to 1957. In all cases of such modification, the author's original intent has been compromised. I will cite one such example of modification from "Bahá'u'lláh and the New Era," by J.E. Esslemont, a book that Shoghi Effendi said was one of the three most important for teaching the Bahá'í seeker.

By David Maxwell

READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 09:44 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Do not become despondent, neither be thou sad....

At long last, it had now become evident, that the Master's portentous and highly revealing prophecy to Mason Remey concerning his future role contained in a Tablet addressed to him as long ago as 1915 had been fulfilled:

"Verily I beseech God to make thee confirmed under all circumstances. Do not become despondent, neither be thou sad. ERE LONG, THY LORD SHALL MAKE THEE A SIGN OF GUIDANCE AMONG MANKIND." (Star of the West - Vol.V, No. 19, March 2, 1915).

Let us now consider the latter part of the passage quoted from your book on the first page of this letter. You have said that you were only able to survive the Guardian's death "because I could not abandon him and his precious work . . ." This sentiment is certainly understandable in view of your great love for him and appreciation, more than any of us, due to your closeness to him, of his devoted, untiring, and magnificent labors during his 36 year ministry for the triumph of the Faith and the erection of the Institutions of the Administrative Order of Bahá'u'lláh, as delineated in the Will and Testament of `Abdu'l-Bahá. I find a great paradox in your statement, for, notwithstanding this sentiment, you have acquiesced in, if not presided over, the dismantlement of the very international institutions of the Faith whose final establishment during the concluding years of his ministry represented the crowning achievement of Shoghi Effendi's long, arduous, and dedicated labors to erect the administrative machinery of the Faith. Were not these achievements hailed by him in a veritable deluge of momentous and historic cablegrams to the Bahá'í world (as found in the book: MESSAGES TO THE BAHÁ'Í WORLD, 1950-1957) extolling the fact that these international institutions had finally been established? For example, in his message of 30 June 1952 (some 5 months before our pilgrimage) he stated:

"At the World Center of the Faith, where, at long last the machinery of its highest institutions has been erected, and around whose most holy shrines the supreme organs of its unfolding Order, are, in their embryonic form, unfolding . . ."

Were not these "highest institutions" and "supreme organs" that had at long last been erected in their embryonic form none other than the Universal House of Justice (i.e. the International Bahá'í Council) and the institution of the Hands of the Cause? Small wonder, then, that Shoghi Effendi could joyfully announce to the Bahá'í world that the "embryonic World Commonwealth of Bahá'u'lláh" had been established in all of its perfection and glory and he could as his ministry drew to its conclusion derive the greatest satisfaction and joy in the knowledge that he had faithfully discharged, with the erection of these institutions, and in the planning and inauguration of the Ten Year Global Crusade, every mandate bequeathed to us by the Master.

By Joel B. Marangella

READ ENTIRE ARTICLE:

Second Unanswered Letter to Rúhíyyih Khánum

Posted at 12:57 PM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

If they truly believed....

During this month of fasting, Bahá'ís refrain from food and drink each day during the hours between sunrise and sunset in obedience to Bahá'u'lláh's law. They do this because they truly believe that Bahá'u'lláh is the Manifestation of God for this age, and that He has revealed the laws necessary for human growth, peace, justice and tranquility. Bahá'ís believe there is a power in this Revelation, and that God firmly rules this creation, so that the ultimate victory of the Cause of God is assured. "All the kingdoms of heaven and earth and whatever is between them are God's, and His power is supreme over all things." [From the Báb, protection prayer] "Never be depressed. The more ye are stirred by violation, the more deepen ye in firmness and steadfastness, and be assured that the divine hosts shall conquer, for they are assured of the victory of the Abha Kingdom." [From Selections from the Writings of `Abdu'l-Bahá, p. 211]

So if we are assured of the victory of the Cause of God over violators and other enemies, what is there to fear from them? If one is truly faithful, and truly believes that one is firm in the Covenant, there is nothing to fear from those who oppose the Faith.

But the actions of the National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of the United States headquartered in Wilmette, Illinois ("NSA") lead me to question whether all Bahá'ís truly believe in the ultimate victory of the Cause, or that they have faith of their own firmness in the Covenant.

If they truly believed, they would not be so concerned about increasing their numbers, constantly seeking to proselytize the Faith, seeking fresh recruits to the organization, and frequently requesting more and more funds from their members to fund the organization's growth. If one is assured of victory, then one must believe that one's duty is to merely inform the world of the Teachings, making the Teachings available, and then rely upon God to awaken to the Truth those whom God sees fit to bring in to His Cause.

If they truly believed, they would not seek to silence the Orthodox Bahá'ís and others who challenge the legitimacy of their leadership, and who seek to inform the world about the Truth of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh, to the point of taking them to federal court and appealing their loss to the Court of Appeals in Chicago, seeking to topple the legal traditions of the United States for religious freedom. Using a legal technicality (arguing that a final Judgment cannot be attacked no matter how unlawful it is) and obfuscating their true position (that the only people who can call themselves Bahá'ís are those authorized by their sans-Guardian UHJ) from the appeals court. If one is assured of victory, and that one's position is correct, there is no reason to run from argument or to obfuscate one's position. They should confidently assert their claim for leadership and allow Bahá'ís everywhere to fully consult upon and discuss the legitimacy of their leadership, allowing the Truth to prevail, and allowing the matter to be decided in the hearts of the Bahá'ís instead of attempting to enforce their leadership by having a secular judge decide the question.

You can find information on the court case here: http://www.truebahai.com/court_case.html

For a partial transcript of the NSA's attorney's attempts at obfuscation, go here: http://www.truebahai.com/2009/02/the-true-colors-of-wilmette-nsa-come-out-under-questioning-by-court-of-appeals.html

If they truly believed, they would not squelch dissent and discussion within their own ranks. They would allow freedom of the members to independently investigate the truth for themselves. They would not attempt to dictate the actions and thoughts of their members by coercion, shunning, sanctions, and threats. Instead, they would allow all matters to be freely consulted upon.

Where there is fear, there one finds a lack of faith.

So ask yourself why the leadership of the sans-Guardian organization, with all of its money, power, and influence, and with its claims of religious legitimacy, is so afraid of a tiny band of persons faithful to the living Guardian?

If they truly believed, they would not fear us.

Jeffrey

Posted at 08:56 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

If they truly believed....

During this month of fasting, Bahá'ís refrain from food and drink each day during the hours between sunrise and sunset in obedience to Bahá'u'lláh's law. They do this because they truly believe that Bahá'u'lláh is the Manifestation of God for this age, and that He has revealed the laws necessary for human growth, peace, justice and tranquility. Bahá'ís believe there is a power in this Revelation, and that God firmly rules this creation, so that the ultimate victory of the Cause of God is assured. "All the kingdoms of heaven and earth and whatever is between them are God's, and His power is supreme over all things." [From the Báb, protection prayer] "Never be depressed. The more ye are stirred by violation, the more deepen ye in firmness and steadfastness, and be assured that the divine hosts shall conquer, for they are assured of the victory of the Abha Kingdom." [From Selections from the Writings of `Abdu'l-Bahá, p. 211]

So if we are assured of the victory of the Cause of God over violators and other enemies, what is there to fear from them? If one is truly faithful, and truly believes that one is firm in the Covenant, there is nothing to fear from those who oppose the Faith.

But the actions of the National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of the United States headquartered in Wilmette, Illinois ("NSA") lead me to question whether all Bahá'ís truly believe in the ultimate victory of the Cause, or that they have faith of their own firmness in the Covenant.

If they truly believed, they would not be so concerned about increasing their numbers, constantly seeking to proselytize the Faith, seeking fresh recruits to the organization, and frequently requesting more and more funds from their members to fund the organization's growth. If one is assured of victory, then one must believe that one's duty is to merely inform the world of the Teachings, making the Teachings available, and then rely upon God to awaken to the Truth those whom God sees fit to bring in to His Cause.

If they truly believed, they would not seek to silence the Orthodox Bahá'ís and others who challenge the legitimacy of their leadership, and who seek to inform the world about the Truth of the Covenant of Bahá'u'lláh, to the point of taking them to federal court and appealing their loss to the Court of Appeals in Chicago, seeking to topple the legal traditions of the United States for religious freedom. Using a legal technicality (arguing that a final Judgment cannot be attacked no matter how unlawful it is) and obfuscating their true position (that the only people who can call themselves Bahá'ís are those authorized by their sans-Guardian UHJ) from the appeals court. If one is assured of victory, and that one's position is correct, there is no reason to run from argument or to obfuscate one's position. They should confidently assert their claim for leadership and allow Bahá'ís everywhere to fully consult upon and discuss the legitimacy of their leadership, allowing the Truth to prevail, and allowing the matter to be decided in the hearts of the Bahá'ís instead of attempting to enforce their leadership by having a secular judge decide the question.

You can find information on the court case here: http://www.truebahai.com/court_case.html

For a partial transcript of the NSA's attorney's attempts at obfuscation, go here: http://www.truebahai.com/2009/02/the-true-colors-of-wilmette-nsa-come-out-under-questioning-by-court-of-appeals.html

If they truly believed, they would not squelch dissent and discussion within their own ranks. They would allow freedom of the members to independently investigate the truth for themselves. They would not attempt to dictate the actions and thoughts of their members by coercion, shunning, sanctions, and threats. Instead, they would allow all matters to be freely consulted upon.

Where there is fear, there one finds a lack of faith.

So ask yourself why the leadership of the sans-Guardian organization, with all of its money, power, and influence, and with its claims of religious legitimacy, is so afraid of a tiny band of persons faithful to the living Guardian?

If they truly believed, they would not fear us.

Jeffrey

Posted at 08:56 AM | Permalink

True Bahá'í

Appropriate leadership should have been by the President of the IBC

Yet, it was Rúhíyyih Khánum who became the Hand's de facto anointed leader during their meetings after Shoghi Effendi's death. Appropriate leadership should have been by the President of the IBC, Mason Remey, but the majority of them did not want that. In reading Shoghi Effendi's instructions, it is clear that Mason Remey was the only one who had been given authority to convene the International Bahá'í Council, yet that was never allowed to happen. The Hands dissolved Shoghi Effendi's IBC and elected one of their own, which had no God-given authority whatsoever. This signaled the beginning of the end, when they finally removed the invisible thread of Infallibility from their midst. Shoghi Effendi's instructions were never followed, and it was eventually Mason Remey who was belittled and banished by them. Upon leaving, Mason Remey took the invisible thread of Infallibility with him, leaving them naked. Up until then, they had that unacknowledged and hidden invisible thread in their midst; but now it was gone.

By David Maxwell

READ ENTIRE ARTICLE

Posted at 09:30 PM | Permalink | Comments (0)

Appropriate leadership should have been by the President of the IBC

